A Brief Reply to Jonathan Clapham's Book, intitled, A Guide to the True Religion.

IN WHICH

His	Religion Hypocrisy	is	Confuted. Detected.
	Aspersions Contradictions	are	Reprehended. Compared.

By W. Penn, A Friend to the True Religion.

If the Blind lead the Blind, both ſhall fall into the Ditch, Matt. xv. 14.

To the READER.

As nothing more imports the Sons of Men, than a judicious Search after the certain Knowledge of that Eternal Truth, in which alone Ability is placed to free from thoſe Sins and Entanglements the luſtful Eye and wanton Mind have naturally ſubjected them unto, and into which they are ſo deeply intricated; ſo can there nothing prove more dangerous, than an implicit Reception of ſuch Principles as daily ſteal out of the Preſs; Some are ſo very imbecil, as that they crave a Support from 1668. the Ingenuity of their Friends to vindicate their Cauſe; whilſt others better ſkill'd, cunningly can inſinuate their Sentiments (however defective, being truly examined) under the Plauſibility of Language, and Reſemblance of Reaſon: but tho' I am willing to acknowledge no Age more ſhatter'd and in Pieces about Religious Concernments than this we live in (ſome ſplitting on the Rocks of Atheiſm, whilſt others creep into the ſhallow Creeks of bare Profeſſion) yet with great Confidence I can impeach Man as the Ground of his own diſtracted and miſerable Eſtate; for ſuch hath been and is the curious and inquiſitive Mind of Man, that as he would be wiſe above what is written, ſo is he moſt impatient in his Search; and over-looking that Sufficiency given him of God, to act in his Divine and Human Capacity, is either buſily forming, out of his brain-ſick Fancies, rather what he would have God, Man and Religion to be, than what they really are; or elſe, being born under ſome generally received Apprehenſions and Articles of Faith, Worſhip and Diſcipline, is ſo entirely hurried away with the Variety of earthly Pleaſures, or diverted by Fears, that he can find no Leiſure to enquire how far they bear any Proportion with ſound Reaſon and true Religion: Both theſe ſo much experimented Evils, are the undeniable Occaſion of that inhuman Entertainment ſuch have met withal, whom God at any Time hath ſent to teſtify againſt the invented Ways, Words, Works and Worſhips of this degenerated World; looking on it as an intollerable Affront, that not only they ſhould be exploded for Hereticks, but that the Faith of their Zealous Anceſtors ſhould come in Queſtion, it may be by Reformers of no better Rank than poor Mechanicks; forgetting it was the Channel, through which God in all Ages hath been pleaſed to convey the Streams of Divine Knowledge; and 'twas indeed moſt congruous with God's Omnipotence, to let the lofty Worldlings know, how able he was by mean and contemptible Inſtruments to effect the Confuſion of them and their Inventions.

This never was more expreſly verified, than in the Progreſs made by that deſpiſed Generation of Pilgrims, call'd Quakers, who notwithſtanding all that Oppoſition of Powers Eccleſiaſtical and Civil, and their many Stratagems imbattelled to ſcatter and deſtroy them, are yet a People; and with no other Weapons, than an holy, inoffenſive and ſuffering Converſation, have valiantly warr'd through the many Armies of their Enemies, and in the Wiſdom of him that called them forth, been able to undermine and circumvent their moſt Machiavilian Conſpiracies; which leads me to give thee an Account of my thus appearing in thy View: I can aſſure thee, 'tis no Forwardneſs to gain the Reputation of a Diſputant, ſince that vain Glory my Principle prohibits, and ſhould moſt willingly have left this for another, did not Neceſſity lay it ſtrictly on me.

Amongſt the many peeviſh Adverſaries I have met with, who have ventured to oppoſe and ſlander that innocent People, I ſcarce know one who has more made it his Concern than my Antagoniſt; for beſides what either this treats of under my Examination, or another anciently printed, under the Protection of a large Dedicatory Epiſtle to O. Cromwel, the Acquaintance I have had with him by Paper and perſonal Conference, as well as the punctual Information I have receiv'd concerning his Practice through all our Revolutions, (which I may term a Touch-ſtone for Integrity) will by no Means diſpenſe with my paſſing by this Guide unanimadverted; for truly, Reader, I cannot but in Sincerity aſſure thee, that a Religious Pity will not have me ſilent, ſince when I narrowly obſerve the Paſſages of his Life, and then remark the very Drift of his Diſcourſe, (abundantly confuſed, as will appear in this ſhort Reply) I really find it is to palliate his own Nakedneſs, and, if poſſible, not only to confirm all Temporizers like himſelf, but alſo by his little Inſinuations of pretended Chriſtian Tenderneſs, to beguile the chaſte Minds of others into the Defilement of a Cringing and Conforming Spirit: All which ſtrongly excites me to preſent thee with a Confutation of his Religion, a Reprehenſion of his Aſperſions, a Detection of his Hypocriſy, and Compariſon of his Contradictions; that being once unmask'd, he may appear in all his Imperfections, and his Diſguiſe never prove injurious unto any.

Chap. I.

CHAP. I.

A Confutation of His Religion.

§. 1. Although I eaſily ſhall confeſs Religion to be Man's chiefeſt Concernment, and that his Eternal Bliſs does indiſpenſibly depend upon the ſound Belief and conſtant Practice of the True One, yet when I retroſpect upon that Time I once imploy'd in a Converſation with Books, and call to mind the excellent Defence of Origen, and Apology of Tertullian on the Behalf of thoſe Primitive Chriſtians, and alſo the Learning, Gravity, and Reaſon of Du Pleſſy, Grotius, Amiraldus, &c. who in their Time were truly Honourable, and Modern Writers on the ſame ſubject, I cannot but acknowledge my ſelf ſurpriz'd, to find a Diſcourſe ſo raw and undigeſted as Jonathan Clapham's, vent'ring abroad with no leſs Title, than A Guide to the True Religion, thereby implying, either the Inſufficiency of what already has been writ, or Self-Conceitedneſs, that the Abilities of none can better claim ſo great an Office; whilſt in very Truth, he has but ſhewn himſelf a Novice in the Taſk he hath undertook, which will but draw the Eyes of all thoſe Infidels and Hereticks (againſt whom he doth ſo zealouſly contend) from peruſing that which carries with it more of Reaſon for their Confutation and Convincement, to encounter him, a Match of much leſs Conſequence: So that his Ignorance becomes their Refuge, and his proofleſs Accuſations, groſs Contradictions, and often Tautologies, ſtrong Grounds for a Confirmation in their reſpective Perſwaſions: And if that which he terms Chriſtian Religion, had no better Champion than he ſeems to be, nor more Zeal to ſuffer whatever comes, than Reaſon to defend it, he may as well turn Jew, Turk, or Heathen, as manifeſtly he hath Preſbyterian, Independent, Epiſcopal; but leſt I may be cenſured for condemning that in him, which I allow in my ſelf, viz. bare Aſſertions without a Proof, I ſhall deſcend to the examining of thoſe Particulars, which may moſt deſerve our Conſideration.

§. 2. In his Epiſtle to the Reader, which muſt not ſlip my Obſervation, He much bewails the preſent State of the Churches of Chriſt in theſe Kingdoms, who for many Years (he ſays) have been diſtracted: But I'le refer it to thy Judgment, Reader, whether this New Guide be little better, who dares to call Diſtracted People, Chriſtian Churches, or Chriſt's Churches diſtracted: Paul bore another Record, when he deſcribes the Church of Chriſt without Spot, Wrinkle, or Blemiſh: But whilſt he would ſeem to allow many Diſſenting Parties the Title of Chriſtian Churches, it muſt be remembred he elſe would have excluded himſelf from being other than an Infidel, who as Occaſion ſerv'd, has been of four; yet how palpable a Contradiction this will be, not only to the Scripture, but the Deſign of his whole Diſcourſe, may appear upon the Peruſal of it's latter Part, where he not only adviſes all to acquieſce in the preſent Conſtitution of the Church of England, but ſeems to lay it as a Charge upon the reſt, pleading ſtrongly (as he thinks) for their Compliance, not conſidering if they equally deſerve the Name of Chriſtian, they conſequently are independent; and ſince he doth allow the one to be no more Chriſtian than the others, why any ſhould impoſe upon, or enjoyn Obedience from it's Siſter-Churches, I cannot find any Thing in ſound Reaſon, or Scripture, to warrant it: To mend, or rather marr the Matter, he in ſo many Words, calls thoſe very Churches he own'd for Chriſtian in one Page, A Reproach to the Chriſtian Religion, and infamous through the World, in the very next; but how infamous his Expreſſion is, I beſeech thee, Reader, to obſerve, that dares expoſe ſuch fooliſh and irreverent Terms to publick View, calling what's Chriſtian, infamous, or rather what's infamous, Chriſtian; methinks he ſhould better have conſulted his own Reputation, ſince having been a Miniſter to moſt of them, his Share has not been ſmall in their Reproach and Infamy. Epiſt. p. 1. Epiſt. p. 2.

He marches on without Fear, Wit or Wiſdom, telling us, the Intendment of his Book, Is to help againſt thoſe Evils, and to direct thoſe who are apt to miſcarry, through Occaſion of Diverſity of Opinions, and Ways, found amongſt us. But how improper this Magiſterial Guide is to direct Three Nations which of theſe many Ways they ought to walk in, will appear, if we conſider the Wavering of his own Mind, who as it conſiſted with his Intereſt, has been always ready to welcome every New Epiſt. p. 4.

1668. Chap. I. Power with a Leading Compliance; and if none would more concern themſelves for his preſent Opinion, than he has for his paſt, his Inconſtancy would not deceive them in his eſpouſing the next Conſtitution that may come.

And that I may not be miſtaken in my Conjectures of the Occaſion of this Treatiſe, read but a little farther, and thou wilt find a Confirmation in his own Words, Epiſt. p. 6, 7. who does not only account thoſe the Beſt Chriſtians, himſelf, which (through all thoſe Great Revolutions which have been amongſt us) have exerciſed their Zeal for the maintaining the Fundamental Doctrines of the Goſpel, and Practice and Power of Godlineſs, even to a Degree of Compliance; but has Confidence to give it as his Judgment, That ſuch ſhall appear the moſt Approved and Judicious Chriſtians unto all. I ſhall ſay little more in this Place, than refer him to ſuch Epiſcopalians as ſtood Faithful to their Churches Conſtitution, during his Compliance with Preſbyter, Independent, &c. and to the Reſentments of thoſe Parties, now he is become Prelatical. And thus much for his Preface.

§. 3. His Porch I cannot find to hold the leaſt Proportion, or Harmony, with Book, p. 1. almoſt any Part of his confuſed Building; for he tells us, The Buſineſs of Religion is the Grand Concernment that all of us are ſent into the World to mind, and therefore God hath in the framing of Man's Nature, laid ſo deep an Impreſſion thereof in us, that there is no Nation ſo barbarous and inhuman, but doth place this amongſt the greateſt Matters they judge themſelves to be intereſted in. 'Tis not my Diſpoſition to cavil at Terms, and therefore ſhall avoid the Occaſion he preſents me, and rather take his Matter as expreſt.

If God Eternal in the Creation of Man, and Infuſion of his Soul, gave him that Capacity (for what elſe can that Impreſſion ſignifie) whereby he might know and comprehend ſo much of that Divinity by which he was made, as to Live in a Due and Holy Conformity to His Divine Pleaſure manifeſted therein; what mean his many Exclamations againſt the Quaker's Light, as Natural and Inſufficient, ſince his very Words denominate this of God? Nor can he (I ſhould think) ſo much forget his Catechiſm, as not to remember and acknowledge the leaſt Ray of that immenſe Fulneſs of Glorious Light Supernatural and Perfect; beſides, it were to repreſent the All-wiſe moſt indiſcreet, in communicating unto Man a Proportion of his Spirit to no Purpoſe; if then, it will become us better to eſteem, both of what he hath impreſt, and of the End for which he did beſtow that Heavenly Favour, what remains, but that thoſe Inconveniences which have, do, and will attend the World, riſe from the over-looking it's Dictates, and giddy following the blind Imaginations and groundleſs Conjectures of we know not who, tranſferr'd to us from preceding Generations: Nor will it ſerve the Turn of any to reply, That whatever Sufficiency this might once have had, it becomes now invalid by Tranſgreſſion: For though it will be eaſily granted that Man's Rebellion againſt the Divine Capacity or Light, has plung'd him into all the dark and confuſed Practices, with which the World is ſo univerſally infected, and becomes thereby ſo entirely Leavened into the Nature of the Wicked One, (not minding the ſolid and weighty Things of God, which moſt concern his Eternal Peace, but rather ſporting away this precious Time in the Variety of Delights, expoſed to the Enjoyment of his Senſe) yet to affirm that it's Vertue is loſt, or thereby can be rendred more inſufficient to guide Man in all his Performances, than when firſt beſtow'd upon him, is to ſay, that becauſe a lewd Son will not take his Father's good Advice, therefore it was not the Son's Rebellion, but the Inſufficiency of the Father's Counſel; or, becauſe a Servant has not improv'd the Talent given him by his Lord, but conceal'd it in a Napkin, 'therefore 'twas no Talent, or through the Careleſneſs and idle Practice of the Servant, his Lord's Talent loſt the Poſſibility of Improvement; I ſhall confeſs his Negligence might more indiſpoſe his Mind to an induſtrious imploying of his Stock; but that it ſhould thereby loſe it's Virtue, Nature, and Capacity of Increaſe, can by no Means be admitted, becauſe incongruous both to Scripture and Good Reaſon—— He that tells Man his Thoughts, and the Purpoſe of his Heart, this is the Lord of Hoſts. But I ſhall ſee how this and what follows will conſiſt.

§. 4. Although the Beginning of his ſecond Page is manifeſtly oppoſite to his own Aſſertions, and conſequently but a farther Proof of my former Section; yet ſince I am confident he never meant it ſo, it may be requiſite to preſent thee, Rea-
Pag. 2. der, with a Confutation in his own Words: But as it is a Thing all do profeſs themſelves intereſted in, ſo there's nothing in all the World Men are at greater Difference about; ſome taking up one Religion, ſome another, as pleaſes themſelves beſt, one
See p. 8. 14, 15. ſerving Baal, another Dagon, ſome the Sun, others the Moon, or Stars, &c. If he would place the Variety of Religions on the Inſufficiency of that Inſtinct, or Impreſſion mentioned in his firſt Page, and ſo imply a Neceſſity of ſomething farther to act Man in that which may be pleaſing unto God, then will it manifeſtly follow that the Capacity given of God, could not diſcern, nor rightly diſtinguiſh betwixt that Eternal, Living, and Omnipotent God, from whence it came, and Baal, Dagon, Sun, Moon, or Stars; which very groſs Abſurdity I hope none will have the Confidence to aſſert: But farther, to repute the Authority of this Impreſſion, pray let theſe Words of his have but the Reader's Conſideration (viz.) —— Some of one Religion, ſome of another, as pleaſes themſelves beſt. Can a more Univerſal Anſwer be returned, or Catholick Reaſon rendred, to evince the Verity of the Quaker's Principle to the intelligible World? For what has been the Original of thoſe great Debates, Contentions, and Religious Duels through the World, but SELF? Which being ſtill impatient to be Taught, and nothing leſs ambitious to be Wiſe, hath ever been the Ground of thoſe Diſtractions, and Womb that hath brought forth thoſe monſtrous and miſhapen Births, ſo common among the Sons of Men: And, as the fallible Spirit of a Man, or ſelfiſh Part, could not produce a Nature different from it's own, (which ever has been ſubject to Fluctuation and Incertainty) ſo have their croſs and various Apprehenſions in the zealous Proſecution of them, been like the impetuous Billows of a raging Sea, that have daſht each againſt the other, to their irrecoverable Found'ring in the Ocean of Eternal Miſery; whereas if Mankind in that Stilneſs, and reverent Patience becoming a Creature, had but waited on the Great Creator of all Things, according to that Impreſſion and Meaſure of his Spirit beſtow'd upon him, to incline and guide him in the well-pleaſing Path of Righteouſneſs, he doubtleſs had receiv'd ſuch infallible Inſtructions, as ſhould have freed him from thoſe otherwiſe inextricable Diſquiſitions, and knotty Intanglements, his dark Inventions, and ſelf-exalted Opinions, have perplext the World withal.

Tautol. p. 2. 4, 5, 6. 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 18, 22.

§. 5. In the ſame Page, he goes on thus; How greatly doth it behove every one, to make a wiſe Choice of that God he intends to ſerve, and of that Religion he means to profeſs in the World, and to live and die in it. In Page 5. he thus tautologizes (a Fault I find him very often guilty of, with many other more groſs Improprieties, whilſt he condemns the Quakers for illiterate) to chuſe deliberately, what God we will ſerve, or what Religion we will profeſs, and then to labour, to be eſtabliſhed therein, ſo as by no Storms or Temptations we be removed.— Will any God ſerve? a very large and libertine Admonition: but he ſuddenly reprehends himſelf (the following Lines of the ſecond Page, flatly withſtanding that Latitude of ſerving any God) for ſays he, firſt chuſe the true God; and the rather becauſe Man's Eternal Happineſs, or Miſery depends thereon:—— Alas for him, that has elected any God, or has by this giddy Guide's Incouragement, choſen what Religion he would profeſs, with a fix't Reſolution, that no Storms ſhould remove him: What Contradiction is here? Can he be eſteemed a wiſe Counſellor, that adviſes to an Undertaking, which by his own Acknowledgment ſhall never have a proſperous Succeſs? Surely his Fee was very ill deſerv'd; and much better were it to have no Religion, but live inſenſible of all, than to become a very Zealot for a falſe one: nor is this the only Contradiction of the like Nature, as the Chapter of his Contradictions will more largely manifeſt.

§. 6. I am now come to take a View of his Propoſition, or Baſis, on which his Diſcourſe is grounded, viz. That it's a great Point of Wiſdom, to make a right Choice of that Religion he means to take up, and profeſs in the World, that he intends to live and dye in, and to venture his eternal Salvation upon.

Mat. 13. 11. 1 Cor. 2. 7. ch. 4. 1 Joh. 3. 12. Heb. 9. 23. 1 Cor. 2. 7. Tit. 2. 13. 2 Cor. 5. 17. Col. 3. 1. Rom 14. 17.

Since Paul who very well knew the Mind of God, has left it as the Spirit's Record in the Scriptures, That the deep Things of God, knoweth no Man, but the Spirit of God; and looking on the true Religion, to be what he intends by theſe following Expreſſions, [The Myſteries of God's Kingdom; Heavenly Things, hidden Wiſdom, Redemption from all Iniquity, all Things to become new, to be dead with Chriſt to the World, and riſen with him, to ſeek the Things that are above; in ſhort, By the Revelation of the eternal Spirit, to fathom the deep, and behold the myſterious Things of God, ſo as thereby, to be tranſlated from Darkneſs, into his moſt glorious Kingdom, of Righteouſneſs, Peace and Joy in the holy Spirit] I can by no Means, ſubſcribe my Aſſent, to this Guide's Propoſition, that Man with his talleſt Wiſdom, diſtinct from that Light, or pure Capacity, the Quakers affirm God has enlightned and inveſted all Men with, is able to wade ſecurely into the Depths of Divine Myſteries, nor allow him that Arbitrium of working out in his own Strength, Time and Mediums, the Knowledge of true Religion; much leſs can I concur with his eſteeming any wiſe, in rightly chuſing what Religion they would embrace, ſince it doth not limit him to what is true, in which the Choice can only be called right: but rather ſeems to give him the Liberty of chuſing where he will, in which no Election ought to be judged true or wiſe. And leſt I may be here cenſur'd by the Author of this Diſcourſe, under my Examination, let him peruſe not only his Argument, but his 14th Page, where he affirms a Neceſſity for a Man to be of ſome Religion; in which by the following Matter, is manifeſt, as well as from the Words themſelves, the exceeding Space given in the Search and eſpouſing of a Religion; yet however neceſſary, he has made it there, and what Liberty ſoever he has granted, it's his Advice in the 26th Page, to do it wiſely, leſt you be deluded, there being ſuch Diverſities of Religion, and ſo many falſe Ways in the World, you had need have your Eyes about you, erring herein will not ſtand with the Safety of your Souls; Eternal Happineſs or Miſery depends upon it: Which argues ſtrongly, (or elſe I know not what Argument means) againſt the Choice being right in any Religion, and that it only can be ſo in embracing the true one, let him but peruſe the 17th Page, and tell me, if he doth not find this, amongſt the many other Contradictions, that the Opinion or Dream, that every Man may be ſaved in his own Religion, if he be true to it, is more becoming Turks than Chriſtians. I muſt confeſs I have not met of late in any Author, with ſuch palpable Confuſion, and can aſſure thee, Reader, I do avoid, for brevity's Sake, the Recital of much more I might inſtance in. What Superſtructure it's poſſible for the beſt Artiſts to erect, on a Foundation, ſo imperfect and unſound, he need be no exact Architect to determine: but notwithſtanding his Miſtake in his Way to the true Religion, he may prove Guide ſufficient to his following Errors and Defects.

§. 7. I ſhall a little inſiſt upon his ſecond Chapter, the Head is this: Shewing wherein the wiſe chuſing one's Religion lies, and acts concurring thereunto. He needs muſt play the crack-Philoſopher, and imperfectly has manag'd his little Diſtinctions, in the pedantick Phraſe of the canting Prieſts and Academiſts: He tells us, firſt, what Election is in general, and then divides the right chuſing of Religion into three Acts, the intellect precedingly diſcerning the Nature of the Thing, that by the Will is choſen: And what in the 7th Page he hath defin'd, in the 8th he inſtances theſe following Words, to confirm the Definition, viz. Man being a Religious Creature, by the common Inſtinct of his natural Conſcience, is moved ſtrongly to worſhip a Deity, as we ſee in all the Nations of the Earth, much more when he is ſtirred up by a divine Inſtinct.

Whatever moves to worſhip God, is God's Spirit.

Anſw. It hath been the Unhappineſs of many Ages, as it is of this, to darken and confound Matters of Religion (moſtly) with Terms, not more affected and difficult, than very often impertinent, of which this Guide is not a little guilty, as muſt be obvious to ſuch as will examine his moſt frivolous and contradictory Diſtinction betwixt Natural and Divine. Not that I ſhall now allow them to be Terms proper in the Place, but very improper where he puts them: Let me perſwade thee, Reader, to obſerve impartially the Confuſion; I have to do with one, who characters himſelf a Chriſtian, and not a profeſt Diſciple of the Heathen Ariſtotle; and I ſhould therefore think it may become me beſt, (as it had him) to uſe ſuch a ſound Form of Words, as are warranted by, and laid down in the Scriptures of Truth; and that he, with all others, may know how far the Quakers, are on all Occaſions, ready to bring their Principles to be tried, by that which the Spirit there declares, I ſhall expoſe both his and theirs, to the Judgment of them, and leave thee, Reader, to determine which holds the greateſt Harmony therewith; although the Contradiction of his own Words, might have been Confutation evident enough.

Jam. 1. 27.

Rom. 10. 9.
Tit. 2. 11. 12.

Religion is by James, a Prophet of the moſt high God, thus defined: Pure Religion and undefiled before God and the Father, is this, to viſit the Fatherleſs and Widows in their Affliction, and to keep himſelf unſpotted from the World. Alſo, to believe, as Paul has it, in thy Heart, and confeſs with thy Tongue, in and to the Lord Jeſus. Or, as he hath it in another Place, to wit, A Subjection and Obedience to that Spirit, Light or Grace manifeſted from God, to all Men, teaching them that denying Ungodlineſs and worldly Luſts, they ſhall live ſoberly, righteouſly and godly in this preſent World. Taking theſe Paſſages, for the clear and compleat Signification of that Term Religion (as I ſhall, till ſome more ample be produced) and not the whimſical Conjectures of Men, from their wreſting of the Scriptures, patcht up into a formal Creed, by their eclipſt Underſtandings, as this Guide muſt not deny, if he will own Scripture; then will it conſequently follow, that no Man can be truly ſtiled Religious, from a natural Inſtinct or Cauſe: for ſince the one and true Religion, or Primitive, is divine, Religious or the Relative, muſt neceſſarily participate of the ſame Divine Nature; and if by natural Conſcience, he means Reaſon abſtractively, the Relative cannot amount to more than rational; for as what is ſimply Animal, cannot generate what's rational, ſo is it altogether impoſſible for what is but ſimply rational, to produce what is ſpiritual: Nor can I underſtand how he will ſecure himſelf from groſs Impertinency, in nominating Man a Religious Creature, from a natural Inſtinct; or to aſſert any Thing, but what is divine, can act Man to worſhip a Divinity; how far he may, to ſave himſelf, extend the Signification of natural, I know not, but if he means it, in the Senſe Paul often us'd it, methinks the very Letter of the Scripture, ſhould have barred his unſuitable Expreſſion; for ſaith that Apoſtle, The natural Man receiveth not the Things of the Spirit of God, neither can he, becauſe they are ſpiritually diſcerned. But if he will take Natura φύσις pro Generatione viventium, ſive Animalium, id eſt, Nativitate; or, if he will rather accept it in the Senſe of him they call Divine Seneca, that it imports a Deity, or divine Reaſon, ſown in all Parts of the World, he would do well, to let us know; for the Incongruity of his Aſſertion with good Senſe lies very palpable: He farther confirms his Opinion of the Univerſality of that (by him called Natural) Inſtinct, with his Parentheſis, as we ſee in all Nations of the Earth, much more when he is farther ſtirred up by a divine Inſtinct. I muſt confeſs to the Univerſality of it; but how diſguiſed it is through the various Times of Man's Inventions, and fore-Fathers idle Traditions, a Perſon never ſo little ſpiritualized may ſee, and eaſily deſcry the notorious Foppery of moſt Profeſſions; the Cauſe of which univerſal Darkneſs, has been the Nations ſacrificing their Judgments to the implicit Faith of their deceitful Prieſts; who have been and are a Monopoly to the Souls and Bodies of the whole Creation. And what he ignorantly calls the farther ſtirring of a divine Inſtinct, is not a difference from the former, in Reſpect of its Nature or Quality, but Meaſure or Degree. †

† In this only can the Underſtanding ſoundly judge, and the Will rightly elect.

I have the longer inſiſted on this Particular, becauſe moſt material, as well to detect his Weakneſs and grand Inability to the Work he forwardly has undertaken, as from his own Expreſſions to elucidate and maintain the Quakers Principles to be Orthodox: Although it was againſt them he mainly did deſign his Book; but with what Succeſs the End will manifeſt. I ſhall juſt hint upon his three Branches, into which he has ſplit the firſt Act of his Election. (1) He adviſes p. 10. to take a particular View of the Principal Doctrines and Myſteries of Faith, and Duty of Godlineſs taught in the Scriptures; but doth not tell us by what infallible Expoſitor we ought to peruſe them, that might unfold thoſe Myſteries he ſpeaks of (which imply a dubious, intricate and obſcure Senſe) does he mean the Inſtinct before-mentioned? I fear he is ſcarce ſo Orthodox, or will he have us give our own Conſtructions as Things preſent themſelves to our natural Underſtanding: or muſt we walk by the Crutches of ſome Commentators? For if he will at laſt ſend all to the Scriptures, or can propoſe no better Expedient to reconcile theſe Breaches, and heal thoſe Religious Jars, than that which through Men's Blindneſs (and for want of the infallible Spirit which guides all in the Truth that receive it, and are ſubjected thereunto) has been the very Riſe and Ground of them, the World will be little beholding to this Guide.

His ſecond Branch adviſes to diſcern the Verity and Certainty of thoſe Doctrines p. 11. that he may venture his Soul upon them, as if 'twere poſſible a Man could take a particular View of the principal Doctrines and Duty of Godlineſs, and not diſcern both Certainty and Verity.

His third is like his ſecond, that a Man muſt know the Excellency thereof, as if he could view thoſe Myſteries, behold both, and yet not ſee their Excellency. Thus Prieſt-like has he ſpoil'd Paper, in ſaying the ſame Thing in differing Expreſſions (as in the Caſe of the Hour-glaſs) that he may hold out.

§. 8. Act the ſecond, he goes on thus; After the underſtanding doth thus pre- p. 11. ſent the true Religion before us in the Certainty, Glory and Excellency of it, then the next Act is for the Will to elect, it's that I am reſolved to profeſs whatever Diſgraces, Reproaches, Loſſes, Perſecutions I may meet with: But beſides his putting Man upon Religion, inſtigating him to run and ſtrive of himſelf (A State the Scriptures declare ſhall never enter, becauſe unlawful) and Points him not to ſuch a Guide as can infallibly direct unto the true Religion, he has been ſo very bad an Example for Conſtancy, that he and his fellow-Temporizers have ſtumbled more 1668. into a ſneaking Conformity, and downright Atheiſm, than all their Prayers, Preaching, and Printing, will ever regain without a Miracle.

Chap. I. His third Act is little more than a Repetition of the former (a Crime he is very guilty of, as my Marginal in ſome Place doth obſerve.)

p. 14. §. 9. His third Chapter chiefly conſiſts of Conſiderations, to evidence it a principal Point of Wiſdom for a Man to make a right Choice of that Religion he would profeſs: His firſt is drawn from the Neceſſity of a Man's being of ſome Religion: indeed I cannot underſtand wherefore he ſhould be ſo often earneſt in preſſing Men to be of ſome Religion, who plainly tells them in ſeveral other Places there's no Salvation out of the true one; unleſs he thinks the imploying their Talent to the Service and Adoration of a falſe God, be more excuſable than to worſhip none: But to inforce this Conſideration, he does the Quakers the Advantage of p. 15. farther inſtancing a Proof for them, and againſt himſelf: ſays he, in the very framing of the Nature of Man there are ſuch Principles of Religion ingraven on him that cannot be razed out, that have taught the very Heathens to worſhip a Deity—Come judge, impartial Reader, betwixt this Guide and the ſo much condemned Quakers, who has here repeated what he had before acknowledged, with this material Addition, that cannot be razed out, I would gladly be informed, whether, if he allows the Eternal God to have created and formed Man in Body, Soul and Spirit, that it be not reaſonable to conclude no other could inveſt Man with Religious Principles, and a Propenſity to worſhip a Deity? and can it be admitted by any ſober Perſon, the Principle God hath beſtowed on Man ſhould be natural, and yet religious; imperfect, and yet the Gift of God? Surely there can be none ſo dim-ſighted as not to diſcern theſe very groſs Contradictions: for if God has impreſt on Man ſuch a Religious Principle, to teach him to adore a Deity (which muſt be himſelf, or elſe it would not anſwer the End for which it was given) what is it leſs than to declare that God hath diſtributed unto every Man ſuch a Proportion of his pure Spirit, and Meaſure of his Grace, as might enable him in Thought, Word and Deed to perform that Good, that acceptable and perfect Will of God? And that the Ground of thoſe Diviſions in Religion, Fallibility in Judgment, Cruelty in Diſpoſition, and all other Abominations that like a Deluge overflow the World, is not from the Inſufficiency of that Divine Principle, but from neglecting and diſregarding the Righteous Dictates and Inſtructions of it: And let him not deny it to be the ſame it was, who bears this Teſtimony that it cannot be razed out, ſo deeply (is it his Opinion, as well as Truth) has the infinitly Divine Sculptor ingraven the Characters of his Eternal Law on the Hearts of all Nations, that no Time or Alteration amongſt Men can poſſibly obliterate or deface it.

p. 16. His ſecond Conſideration is from the many Religions which are in the World, as Heatheniſm, Mahometaniſm, Judaiſm and Chriſtianity: But in his laſt he ſums up the many Sects and Perſwaſions that commonly are known therein: he has divided them into ſuch as differ doctrinally or circumſtantially; and thoſe which err fundamentally: The firſt are Lutherans, Calviniſts, Arminians, Anabaptiſts, Epiſ- p. 18. copalians, Presbyterians, Independents, &c. to whom he boldly allots Salvation. But how far his, &c. may concern us, he in a few Lines after particularly lets us underſtand, wherein he has not more expreſt his Cunning than his Cowardice; for as he is willing to allow all thoſe Perſwaſions to be Chriſtian, who are moſt likely to have the Civil Power in their Hands, (that come any of thoſe ſeven, with his large, &c. he hopes to ſecure himſelf Prieſt of Wramplingam, without being condemned for temporizing) ſo doth he manifeſt himſelf exceeding bold, in fighting ſuch for Infidels and Hereticks, as either cannot or will not practiſe external Violence on thoſe Powers that protect ſuch Caterpillars;) and that he may the better inſinuate, he ventures at this Juncture of his Plenty to own his quondam Brethren in their Adverſity, calling them all Children of the ſame Father, dreſt up in different Habits; but that his Wardrobe was better furniſhed than the reſt is evident, from his Variety and Change, yet more penurious, for that he never wore a Coat, he has not turn'd.

p. 18. His laſt Conſideration I rather call the Sequel of the former, Becauſe, ſaith he, if one ſhould happen of the true Religion, he would never be true unto it, unleſs he took it upon ſuch a Right Choice as before was ſpoken of.

—— What Choice of Religion he has made, or what Arguments he has uſed to confirm it, I ſhall refer unto thee, Reader: But I would fain entreat this Guide once to be ſerious with himſelf, and aſk his Heart if ever it had any? And whether it has not through all Revolutions diſcover'd it ſelf very deceitful and unſound? Alas, why will he thus nakedly expoſe his Ignorance and Hypocriſie to publick Cenſure, unleſs he would confeſs? Stiling a Conformity to the Conſtitution of the Church of England, a Right Choice of Religion, methinks it had been rather his Diſcretion to be ſilent, contenting himſelf with his Stipendium or Hire, and hiding his Inabilities in the Ruſticity of his own Pariſh; for he muſt be a very Child that does not ſee his Weakneſs and Temerity, that comes abroad reeling and interfering through every Chapter of his Treatiſe; nor is his Impudence leſs condemnable, who takes upon him to encourage others to Fidelity, that has himſelf ever relinquiſh'd that Perſwaſion which has ſunk under the growing Power of a new Opinion; and this is ſo notorious, that though I have reſerved the Relation of his Carriage for another Place, yet I could not let theſe Expreſſions ſlip my Animadverſions.

§. 10. The Buſineſs of his fourth Chapter is to invalidate the Religions profeſt by Heathens, Turks and Jews; and upon better Grounds to extol the Chriſtian. It's far from me to juſtifie the Opinions or Practices of thoſe acknowledged Inſidels, but I muſt alſo ſay, If the Chriſtian Religion had no better Defendants, and it's Adverſaries no ſtronger Opponents than this Guide, with his proofleſs Affirmations, it would have as little Reaſon to owe him it's Acknowledgments, as the others their Ill-Will and Prejudice: — And one Thing let me tell him, the falſe Chriſtian (for ſuch is he who takes upon him that Profeſſion, and lives not the Holy Life of Him whoſe Name he bears) is more intolerable than Heathens, Turks, or Jews, and whilſt the idle gormandizing Prieſts of England run away with above Fifteen Hundred Thouſand Pounds a Year, under Pretence of being God's Miniſters, (who never ſent them, but are Preachers of their own chaffie Inventions, not having known his Power, nor ſeen his Shape) the equal Converſation of thoſe Inſidels ſhould make both Prieſts and People bluſh; and in the Day that God Almighty ſhall judge the Works of Men by Jeſus Chriſt, it ſhall be found more tolerable for them to enter into reſt, than the outſide waſht Chriſtian: But, leſt I may be cenſured by thee, Reader, for too ſevere, let me beſeech thee to enquire throughout the Story of the World, where any Kind of Religion has been, or is eſtabliſht by Authority, and thou wilt doubtleſs find upon a diligent Search, that the People's Judgments have ever been and are faſt chain'd in the Prieſts Inquiſition, and that no Sort of People have been ſo univerſally through Ages the very Bane of Soul and Body to the Univerſe, as that abominable Tribe, for whom the Theatre of God's moſt dreadful Vengeance is reſerv'd to act their Eternal Tragedy upon.

§. 11. The Scope of his fifth Chapter is to direct People how to chuſe the ſafeſt Way amongſt the Variety of Sects that are to be found in Chriſtendom (ſo call'd): But before I ſhall examine the Force and Verity of his Fundamentals, I muſt take this Paſſage along with me, which is a Contradiction both to Scripture and other Parts of his own Diſcourſe: —— Know (ſaith he) that notwithſtanding theſe Diverſities of Sects aud Variety oſ Opinions which are found amongſt Chriſtians, from which they are not privileged, as neither are thoſe other three Religions, Heatheniſm, Judaiſm, Mahometaniſm, nor ſhall be fully whilſt we be imperfect, and know but in Part, and are in part carnal, as well as ſpiritual, whilſt the envious one ſhall ſow Tares in the Field of the Church, and it ſhall pleaſe God to ſuffer theſe Things to be, that they which are approved may be made manifeſt.

—— I ſhall not object againſt the long-ſuffering of God toward the Sons of Men, who waits that they might return and not be conſumed; and till they are reform'd from their groſs Darkneſs, they will not only live (but as Enemies too) amongſt the true Circumciſion, and thoſe who worſhip God in Spirit; but how an Impoſſibility of Perfection in ſuch as do believe, can be argued from the acknowledg'd Imperfection of thoſe who never knew the Blood of Sprinkling, and are not come to Jeſus the Saviour from all Iniquity, will ſcarce hold any Agreement with the very Reſemblace of Reaſon. I well know, that if the World conſiſted of a Thouſand Men, and but one Hundred of them were ſeparated from it's Unrighteouſneſs, or had imbrac'd that pure Religion which keeps unſpotted, the whole World cannot be eſteem'd perfect, ſince the greater Number remains Inſidel; however, that which is Spiritual, is as certainly perfect, as that which is carnal is imperfect: But to inſinuate the Neceſſity of Imperfection in the particular, from the Allowance of it in the General; or to deny Perfection attainable by ſome, becauſe of the confeſt improbability of being attain'd by all, is falſe and ſophiſtical:

Gal. 4. 29.

Contrariorum eadem eſt ratio.

For though all the Individuals of Mankind may not probably be perfect, yet ſince the Powers, Faculties and Nature of Mankind is as well in the individual as the Species (there being a Poſſibility of his Perfection) the Capacity is in all.

And for thoſe two Expreſſions of Scripture quoted by him, they both are wreſted beyond their genuin Senſe: I can allow the beſt of Men to know but in Part, and not ſubmit to his imperfect Apprehenſions; for not to mention many Scriptures, nor tediouſly to argue, there is a Perfection which conſiſts in an entire Separation from the Pollutions of the World, as abſolutely neceſſary and congeneous Reſpectu termini a quo. to the ſecond Adam's State, or Qualification of a true Chriſtian; and a Perfection relating to that more ample and eternal Enjoyment of all Divine Knowledge and Reſpectu termini ad quem Celeſtial Raviſhment, when theſe earthly Tabernacles ſhall be diſſolv'd: I ſhall in ſhort ſay, that as this Place was urg'd to overthrow the Doctrine of Perfection, and conſequently inſinuate that popularly pleaſing Opinion of Sin for Term of Life, ſo could he never have found a more expreſs Parable to vindicate it by. If Chriſt's Interpretation ought to be of moſt Authority, which is this; The Field is the World, the Good Seed are the Children of the Kingdom, but the Tares are the Children of the wicked One, he will be greatly diſappointed of his End, which alſo the very Parable refutes from the Nature of the Tares and Wheat: for as I have already ſaid, if he will not argue an Imperfection to Believers, from that which is already granted to Unbelievers, there needs no more Diſpute about the Matter; but if by a confeſt non-perfection in that greater Number of Tares, or unrighteous Men, he therefore will conclude there is no perfect Wheat or godly Men, this were to contradict the expreſs End and very Purpoſe of the Parable: But ſince the Nature of the Wheat admits no mixture with the Tares parabolically, it follows really that the Children of the Kingdom ſhould have no Relation or Fellowſhip with, but be ſeparated from, the Nature of the wicked One, and Converſation of his Children, which is more particularly confirm'd in thoſe Places where 'tis ſaid, He which ſinneth is of the Devil, but he that is born of God ſinneth 1 John 3. 7, 8, 9. not, becauſe the Seed of God abideth in him: As is the Begetter, ſo is the begotten. It may be farther obſerv'd, that into the Kingdom, of which they are called Rev. 21. 27. Children or Inhabitants, other Places will not allow an Entrance for any Thing that is unclean or makes a Lye: nor is it congruous with Scripture and common Senſe, the ſame Temple ſhould hold God and Mammon, Chriſt and Belial, or that any can witneſs a being dead, and crucified with Chriſt, whilſt living in that which has no Share in him. And though he would imply a Salvo or Defence for the Admiſſion of all Sorts to Sacraments (ſo call'd) under the Notion of the Field's being the Church, yet, if he well obſerves, it is call'd the World, out of which the Church of Chriſt, both as to Doctrine and Converſation, was always gathered; (otherwiſe thoſe Heathens, Turks, Jews, &c. whom he would exclude, muſt be Members of his Church;) and whilſt he would intrude Tares or the whole Rabble of unrighteous Perſons, as Members of Chriſt's Church, he has forgot the Teſtimony born by the Apoſtles concerning that Spotleſs, Blameleſs, and Perfect Body, of which Chriſt Jeſus was the Head. And if he would from Chriſt's Words, Eph. 5. 25, 26. of letting them alone cover his Practice of admitting all, as being ignorant, who is a Believer, (ſince none knows, but in plucking up the Tares he may pluck up the Wheat alſo) for this Guide's a Latitudinarian) what need his whole Diſcourſe for a particular Conſtitution? He might, I am ſure, have let that alone as knowing it would be of little Force; yet may he better underſtand the Paſſage, if he pleaſe, of Perſecution; for they were known to be Tares, elſe how could the Servant ſay, Sir, Matt. 13. 27. didſt not thou ſow good Seed in thy Field? from whence then hath it Tares? If he had not rightly diſcerned their Nature, and that the Wheat was to hold no Communication in any religious Sort with them? nor were they to expreſs Severity or Force, but (leaving them in ſupernatural Caſes to the Determination and Puniſhment of the great Judge) live a ſelf-denying Example to the World: — In this Senſe Imperfection is granted, I mean to the carnal and unregenerate; but to the Redeemed of God, and Children of the Kingdom, Perfection. I am now come to the Examination of the Eſſentials of his ſo much recommended Choice.

§. 12. His Firſt Article is, concerning the Nature of God, and what of Him is to be believed by thoſe that would be Happy: His Words are theſe, That there is p. 36. One God, of an Infinite, Perfect, and Spiritual Nature, ſubſiſting in Three Moſt Glorious Perſons, the Father, Son, and Holy Ghoſt; who is the Maker, Preſerver, and Governour of All Things, and intends His own Glory in All His Works: That the greateſt Concernment of Reaſonable Creatures, is to know and acknowledge this God, God, fear, love, adore, and glorifie him; and their chiefeſt Felicity ſtands in his Love and Favour, in fulleſt Conformity to his Image, and in no Earthly Good ſeparate from him.

—— Taking the former Part of his Definition ſot granted, to wit, The Perfection, Infinity, and Spirituality of his Nature, how very unſuitable herewith is the Religion and Practice of this Guide, firſt, in denying that Revelation by which only a Knowledge of this Glorious and Inviſible Deity can be obtained, which was the Teſtimony Chriſt bore concerning him, That no Man knew the Father but the Son, and He to whom the Son revealed Him; ſo that if ſuch Revelation as gives to behold the Father, ſee his Shape, and contemplate the Excellency of his Nature, be wholly rejected by this Guide, methinks it is either Arrogancy to intrude Things he doth not know, or Folly, to tell a Tale received from other People, for infallible Truth, without a Demonſtration in himſelf.

Mat. 11. 27.

Next, if there be no other Way to have Communion with this Inviſible God, that thereby the Conformity he talks of may be known, (for being a Spirit, it's prepoſterous to imagine a Knowledge of Him obtainable by other Mediums, (than what are adequate to his Divine Nature) but by this Revelation of Himſelf thro' His Son Chriſt (in us, except we are Reprobates;) it will neceſſarily follow that he muſt either deny Chriſt's Doctrine, or elſe confeſs himſelf ignorant of what he writes. And ſince the God he would adviſe all to know, fear and love, is that perfect Spirit, I fain would know what Worſhip can be termed ſuitable thereunto, but the Internal and Spiritual One? Which is altogether void of thoſe Ceremonies, Formalities, Will-Performances, and Periſhing Obſervations, once uſed as condeſcending Signs to the Weakneſs of ſome Seaſons, which at this Day fill up the Sacrifices, and in which ſtands the Religion of thoſe called Chriſtians through the World; whoſe Ignorance of God's once diſpenſing with Beggarly Elements, for their Sakes whoſe Underſtandings were vailed and too weak-ſighted to behold at firſt the Glorious Light, has put many upon the Imitation of paſt Generations, though void of their Spirit, and not anſwering the End for which they were then practiſed, vainly conceiting them an Offering acceptable to the Eternal Spirit, when it were as well-pleaſing to preſent a Dog's-Neck, as anciently was ſaid.

Iſa. 1. 13, 14, 15.
Ch. 66. 3.

What ſhall I hence conclude, but as the Almighty God is a Spirit, ſo cannot he otherwiſe be known or ſerved; and ſince He has required Homage from his Creatures, and yet is ſo purely Juſt as to expect but what he has impow'red them to do, how abſolutely neceſſary is it that all Worſhip Godward ſhould ſtand in the Ability given of him thereunto, and how Reaſonable to believe that the Occaſion of all the Apoſtacy, Darkneſs, Inventions, and whole Variety of Forms and Conſtitutions of Religion, have been from the Neglect of that Pure Spiritual Capacity once given of God to act and order them in all Things that did concern their Duty both to God and Man.

As for his ſtrange Diſtinction of the Deity, which he inforces on the Faith of all that value their Eternal Welfare, I cannot find one Scripture that will bear him out; and if they had been of ſo much Credit with this Guide, as to have been by them led into their undeniable Form of Sound Words, he would not have intruded Tradition for Scripture to the Creed of any, but rather have inſerted the Text or Phraſe it ſelf, whoſe Authority might have commanded an Aſſent: And it had become him to give the World a Reaſon for his requiring a Submiſſion to, and Credence of his Doctrine, rather than barely to draw up ſo many Articles, and thus imperiouſly to call on all for a Subſcription as they would be ſaved; eſpecially ſince he cannot but know how ſtrongly theſe very Points have been debated in Ancient Councils, and not leſs controverted by modern Perſons of Reputation and Learning: Some owning One Eternal God, void of all Perſonal Relations, as Arrius, with many Prelates, and ſome Emperors, in former Centuries: F. Socinus, L. Socinus, Crellius, Slictingius, &c. of later Days. Others contend for the Exiſtence of this Divinity in the Relative Perſons of Father and Son, as Macedonius of old, and many in theſe Times, to ſay nothing of Particulars; both which may properly be call'd Anti-Trinitarians, or Oppoſers of this Guide's Trinity. But becauſe the Scriptures do not warrant that Diviſion into, and Appellation of Three Perſons, and that he ſlightly paſſes over this Weighty Matter, recommending it for an Article of Faith, but never arming him with Reaſons that receives it for his Defence againſt the Strength and great Subtilty of his Adverſaries, I here ſhall offer him by Way of Query, what every Sober Perſon would deſire Satisfaction in before he entertains his Principle.

Chap. I.

Query 1. Whether that Eternal and Almighty Being, called GOD, implies more than One Pure and Simple Act?

2. Whether He can be ſaid to ſubſiſt in Three Perſons?

3. Whether any Thing can rightly be called GOD, that is not Infinite, and without Beginning?

4. Whether if God did beget a Son, that Son had not a Beginning? And if the Holy Ghoſt proceeded from both, whether he was Contemporary with the Son, and both Co-eternal with God? Since the Begetter precedes the Begotten, and that the Begotten cannot exiſt before it is?

5. Whether theſe Three Perſons are indiſtinguiſhable, or diſtinct from the Godhead, and each other, by incommunicable Properties?

6. Whether if GOD, implies the Fulneſs, Perfection and Glory of All; and that no Addition can be to his Greatneſs and Delight, but what was in his Moſt Pure and Perfect Self from all Eternity, as that One Pure Act; the Succeſſive Acts of thoſe Perſonal Relations can ſoberly be predicated of him, unleſs they all are Co-eternal; which ſeems in terminis, to confute a Conception, Progreſſion and Perfection of the diſtinct Relations?

If he will tell me it is a Myſterious Point, and therefore he did forbear a farther Diſcuſſion of it. I anſwer, it did the more require his Explanation; for that I conceive a Religion, or Hope, will do a Man but little Good, for which he has not a Reaſon in himſelf; and to believe Things by Rote, is quite as ineffectual as not to believe at all: If he ſhall ſay, That Reaſon is not to be conſulted or rendred in this Caſe, I anſwer, That either it's what deſerves Silence, and ſo condemns himſelf amongſt thoſe Fools that will be medling; or if it's to be pried into, then to be underſtood before believed; or elſe his Three Philoſophical Acts of Election are defeated.

Pag. 37. §. 13. His Second Fundamental Principle to be received, runs thus: That God made Man at firſt in a very Holy and Happy State, from which he ſoon fell, through Satan's Temptations, and all Mankind became plunged into Sin and Miſery; that we are all Heinous Offenders againſt the God of Heaven, under his Dreadful Wrath, and the Curſe of the Law, bar'd out of Heaven and Happineſs, and liable to Eternal Torments, if not ſpeedily reconciled to God, and pardoned, and by Renewing Grace, Sanctified and Converted; which neither we, nor any meer Creature, is able to do for us.

He has here drawn up an Article out of Scripture-Record, but never tells us what he has experienced in the Matter, confidently bidding all embrace and believe it, without any farther Examination of its Verity, or Conviction from the Spirit of God, whoſe Office it is, To Convince the World of Sin. And I ſhall boldly affirm, That this forward putting People upon the Entertainment of Notions (though of Truth it ſelf) whilſt the Spirit of the Living God is not at work, or moves not on the Waters, is but the forming up that very Righteouſneſs which is the Second Office of the Eternal Spirit to Convince of, and condemn the World for. John 16. 8, 9, 10. A Confutation to his own Principles and Practices is apparent in the latter Part of this Second Fundamental; For if they who are ſanctified and converted are no Heinous Offenders, then will it reaſonably follow, That ſuch as are Heinous Offenders, are not ſanctified and converted: But this Guide, with all his Tribe, that are Daily crying, They do the Things they ought not, and have no Health in them, are Heinous Offenders; therefore they never knew the Saving Health of all Nations, nor yet have felt the Blood that purges, that Spirit which ſanctifies, that Word which converts to God. Again, the Holy God is perfect, and has no Fellowſhip with one unfruitful Work of Darkneſs; but this Guide allows that Man muſt be reconciled, or elſe he lies under the Curſe of the Law, therefore there is a Poſſibility, nay, a Neceſſity of Man's being Perfect, which to deny, is to contradict his allowed Reconciliation, unleſs he can tell where to fetch a Proof, That the moſt Pure God will have Fellowſhip with, or be reconciled to, whatever is not of his moſt Perfect Nature; nor is it Senſe to ſay, the Creature can be reconciled, whilſt in the Commiſſion of that the Curſe for ever lies upon. His Terms Sanctifie and Convert, imply as much, 1 Theſ. 5. 23. Pag. 38. eſpecially if he be of Paul's Mind, That prayed the Primitive Saints might be Sanctified throughout: And if he has an Art to make Convert imply more or leſs than a being changed, turned from, or made new, he would do well to let us know it; for how a Man, in good Senſe, can be changed, and the ſame, Sanctified and Polluted; turned from his Way, and yet in it reconciled, and under the Curſe at the ſame Time, is a Kind of Antitheſis I never underſtood. But I haſte to his Third.

§. 14. His next Great Principle he recommends, is this, That the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the Only Begotten Son of God, Co-eſſential and Co-eternal with his Father, upon the Appointment and Deſignation of his Father, voluntarily undertook the Office of a Saviour and Redeemer to Mankind, and being made Man, took upon him our Sins, and the Curſe of the Law, and giving himſelf up a Sacrifice an Offering to God for us, purchaſed by his Death all Things conducing to Grace and Glory; and having by his own Power riſen from the Dead, and aſcended into Heaven, he is become an All-Sufficient Saviour, and will effectually confer Pardon, Grace and Salvation, on all thoſe who ſhall truly believe in him, and that there is no other Name under Heaven to be ſaved by, but the Name of Jeſus Chriſt.

O the confuſed Babble of the World, the by-rote Canting of this Guide! How does he wander in the by-paths of vain Tradition and Invention! Romancing over the weighty Myſteries of Eternal Life: And from the dark Reſults of ſeveral Factious and corrupted Councils, has piec'd up a Fundamental to recommend, as indiſpenſibly to be embraced by all: He tells us, Chriſt is the Begotten Son of God: And in his next Words, calls him, Co-eternal. I am as far from queſtioning Chriſt's Eternity, as ready both to ſcruple and reject his Phraſe, it carrying manifeſt Oppoſition to it ſelf. A little farther, he ſays, Upon the Father's Deſignation of the Son, he voluntarily undertook the Office of a Saviour, to effect what after follows on the Behalf of diſtreſſed Mankind. If the Father did appoint the Son, then 'twas not voluntary, or an Act ſpringing from his own Arbitrium, (for that's the ſtrict and true Signification of it) but the Father's; ſo that by Conſequence, Chriſt was not the Cauſe, but the Effect of God's Love to Man, which contradicts the Ground of that Satisfaction many have conceived themſelves ſecured by, and intereſted in.

But becauſe this Doctrine has been much controverted, and that the World of thoſe called Chriſtians are bearing hard hereupon, according to their Variety of Apprehenſions, as the only Support, I ſhall a little query in the Matter, leaving it to this Guide to direct unto the End of what I aſk; for barely to lay down a Doctrine, without the leaſt Proof, is ſo irrational, as I know none but would be rather forward to reject it, (though in Meaſure True) becauſe void of a Reaſon to maintain it. He ſays, That Chriſt took upon him our Sins, and has given himſelf a Sacrifice; or in other Terms, has ſatisfied the Juſtice of the Father diſpleaſed with Man.

Query 1. Whether he ſatisfied as God or Man?

If as God,

(Becauſe no meer Creature can) Then,

Q. 2. Whether this does not ſplit the Unity of the Godhead? Which (ſays this Guide) is the ſame in Father and Son; and make a Duality in Natures as well as in Perſons; ſince the one is the Appointer, the other the Appointed; the one Deſigner, the other Deſigned; the one Satisfier, the other Satisfied.

Q. 3. Whether ſince the Godhead is but one Pure Act, it's not to ſay the Father ſent the Son, the Son the Father; the Godhead, the Godhead?

Q. 4. Whether the Conception of the Appointment, preceded not the Conception of Obedience in the Appointed?

Q. 5. Whether Relatives are predicable of a Deity, having their Primitives, which ſuppoſes Priority, in Time as well as Nature? Or how commanding, and obeying, Acts can be ſoberly affirmed of the Divine Being?

Q. 6. Whether it is Harmonious with Reaſon, or according to Scripture, warrantable, to ſay, That Chriſt, as God, ſatisfied his Father? Since 'tis to make God reſolved to have Satisfaction ſomewhere, and none being of Ability, that the ſame Godhead ſhould pay it; that his Mercy ſhould pay it his Juſtice, that one Attribute (ſo called) ſhould deny an Acquittance, till to'ther had ſolv'd the Debt; God the Father ſtanding off in high Diſpleaſure, and on his Terms, and the ſame Godhead in the Son deſigned to ſatisfie? Gal. 3. 20.

Q. 7. Whether if there be not diſtinct Properties and Attributes in the Father and Son, but are one Pure Being and Godhead, concurring in the Conception, Progreſſion, and Perfection of all Acts, it is leſs Reaſonable and Neceſſary that the Juſtice of the Son ſhould have an infinite Satisfaction paid it, than the ſame Attribute in the Father?

If as Man,

Q. 8. Whether if the Juſtice of God be Infinite, his Satisfaction ought not to bear a Proportion therewith?

Q. 9. Whether Chriſt Jeſus, as Man, could offer up an infinite Sacrifice, to ſatisfie the infinite Diſpleaſure of his Father? paying all due Reſpect to his very great Afflictions, which were ſuſtained by him in his fulfilling his Father's Will, and really were, towards the Salvation of Mankind, as a pleaſant Offering.

If as God and Man,

Q. 10. Whether if Two Mediums be ſingly inconſiſtent with the Nature of the End for which they were propounded, the Conjunction of them does not rather augment, than leſſen the Difficulty of archieving it?

Q. 11. Whether 'tis not to paint the Merciful God moſt Revengeful, that not being able to have his Satisfaction where 'twas owing, would take it where it was not due?

Q. 12. Whether it were not more ſuitable to Truth, and Scripture Record, to avoid all dark Conceits, Schoolmen's Quiddities, and vain Janglings, and to believe, 2 Cor. 13. 5. That God was, and is in Chriſt (who is in us except we be Reprobates) reconciling Ch. 5. 9. the World, or Men, unto himſelf, by removing that unrighteous and ſelf-exalted Nature, which ruled as God in their Hearts; and by His Glorious Light, giving them to know the Glory of God in the Face of Jeſus Chriſt?

Thou muſt not, Reader, from my querying thus conclude, We do deny (as he hath falſly charged us) thoſe glorious three, which bear Record in Heaven, the Father, Word and Spirit, neither the Infinity, Eternity and Divinity of Jeſus Chriſt; for that we know he is the mighty God; nor what the Father ſent his Son to do on the Behalf of loſt Man, declaring to the whole World, we know no other Name, by which Atonement, Salvation and plenteous Redemption comes; but by his Name, are according to our Meaſures, made ſenſible of its mighty Power: But rather to let thee ſee, how unſatisfactorily he has impoſed Religion on the World, and how exceeding open, he has laid his Principles, to the Objection of every reaſonable Inquirer; for whilſt he undertakes to dreſs up a Religion, that ſhall excel all others, and boldly recommends it to ſuch, who are reſolved to be of ſome Religion, (as if there did accompany it ſuch undeniable Evidence, that though it might effect little upon the looſe and diſolute Atheiſt, to fix his moving Mind, yet queſtions not the good Succeſs, it might have upon the Religiouſly inclined) he in Reality has not brought a Proof or ſolid Argument, as Encouragement for any to embrace them.

§. 15. His laſt Cardinal Doctrine I am come to, after which it had been more Pag. 39. proper, ſome may think, to have inſerted the preceding Caution; but ſince this may not give ſo much Occaſion to ſuch as watch for Opportunities, to raiſe their miſty Suſpicions, and that it might be too remote from thoſe Paſſages, for the better Explanation of which it purpoſely was mentioned, I have the rather placed it here; and now for the Examination of this his laſt Fundamental,

That our Redeemer, the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, having all Power in Heaven and Earth given to him, hath made a new Law, and cauſed it to be proclaimed to the World, wherein he promiſes Pardon and Salvation to all that ſhall ſincerely accept him for their Saviour.

He boldly calls him his Redeemer, not obſerving how unſutable his Life and Doctrine is with the Redeemed of the World; for whoſoever is redeemed by Chriſt, is perfectly ſo, inaſmuch as all his Works are perfect; but as this Guide's Converſation manifeſts the contrary, by his very great Miſcarriages, ſo does his Book; for Paul teſtifies to all, That Jeſus Chriſt was ſent to redeem, not only from Iniquity (which might admit of a Diſtinction, by froward and unclean Spirits) but all Tit. 2. 14. Iniquity; therefore this Perſon has ſpoke too largely, in calling the pure Jeſus his Redeemer, for ſuch imperfect Works would very much diſgrace their Author; nor is there any Thing, ſo much ſtumbles Infidels, and brings a Reproach upon the Chriſtian Religion, or Diſhonour to the Holy God, as Prieſts and People, writing, talking, and fighting hard for Chriſt as Redeemer, whilſt every Eye finds them, as polluted and deeply engaged in diſhoneſt and immoral Practices, as thoſe againſt whom they contend.

And truly repenting of their Sins, ſhall reſt on his Death, and merits, alone for Life, and love him above all Things, and ſincerely obey his Goſpel, Laws and Commandments, and ſhall perſevere in this Duty to the End.

I hope by this Time, Reader, thou art ſufficiently convinced, this Guide is leading thee to a State of Perfection, notwithſtanding he would make thee believe it's unattainable in this Life; for he concludes, we ought to love God above all; and is it poſſible for any Mind, but that which walks with God, is born again, and entirely tranſlated from the Kingdom of Darkneſs, into the Kingdom of God's marvellous Light, to be ſo entirely divorced from all, and eſpouſed to God, as to love him above all? and ſincerely (which implies no leſs than the ſtrongeſt Activity of an upright Soul) obey his Goſpel, Laws and Commandments, and perſevere, which excludes all Commiſſion or Omiſſion to the contrary.

In ſhort, if Chriſt's Law be imperfect, then muſt it's Author be ſo too, but he is purely perfect, ſo muſt his Work or Law: And if the Law be perfect, then is the Obſerver alſo perfect, but the Law and Goſpel is proved undeniably perfect, therefore muſt the Obſerver alſo. And leſt this Guide ſhould offer to retort, that none can obſerve it, let him anſwer for me, who ſays we ought not only to obſerve and obey it, but with Sincerity, and Perſeverance in fulfilling the Commands of it to the End, Finis coronat Opus, The End's Perfection.

He follows on to this Effect, And after he ſhall have ſent his Holy Spirit, to work Faith and Converſion in his Elect, he will certainly come again, and by his mighty Power raiſe the Dead, and convene both quick and dead before his Judgment, and then ſuch as obey his Goſpel, he will adjudge to eternal Glory, but Unbelievers to eternal Torments.

He has here jumbled many Things of moment up together, ſcraps pickt out of more ample Diſcourſes. Succinctneſs is commendable, but not in his abrupt Way; cramming and ſtifling Matters for want of Room to open and explain themſelves to the Convincement of the Underſtanding: And whilſt he loudly does exclaim againſt the Quakers, for ſlighting the Scriptures; who is there found more guilty than himſelf? that though his Book treats of nothing leſs than ſuch a Religion, as he aſſures all muſt embrace that would be ſaved, 'tis rare he cites one Paſſage of them, for a Confirmation of his very Fundamentals; He tells us of the Neceſſity of believing God will ſend his Holy Spirit, as being otherwiſe void of Faith and Converſion, and yet denies the very Office of the Spirit, which is to reveal the Myſteries of God, and to convert from fallen Adam's State, to that glorious ſecond Adam's, which never fell, and if he did believe in that eternal Power, which raiſes from the Dead, in Treſpaſſes, it would be to him according to his Faith; For God is faithful, that hath promiſed: But being wholly ignorant of Chriſt Jeſus, the Power, no Wonder if he never knew the Reſurrection, and the Life: And how abſurd it is for one to draw a Repreſentation of a Thing he never ſaw, or venture to challenge an Aſſent to what he ignorantly has fancied to himſelf, without one Argument to induce, or ſo much as an Obſervation, to explain the Obſcurity of his Doctrine, I leave the ſober Reader to determine.

John 11. 25.

Thus having endeavoured an Enervation of his four Fundamentals, I ſhall haſten to the Examining the Force of his Accuſations againſt my Friends, but in my Way thither, I ſhall a little turn my Eye upon ſome Paſſages of leſſer Moment.

§. 16. His ſixth Chapter mainly intends the recommending to our Conſideration, ſome religious Matters of a ſecondary Nature; as a preparative to Conformity; for though he ſeems to expreſs a Tenderneſs, towards doubting Conſciences, yet if we follow him through his 8th and 9th Chapters, it will evidently appear, to be no other than a more facile and probable Way to inſinuate the ſame Conformity-Spirit to the Minds of others which he ſtands branded with himſelf; aud by his Plea, for a Conformity (as Chriſtian) he palliates his own wicked temporizing, and would ſo far prevail on othets, that none may be left to accuſe him of Inconſtancy: And if he were the Man he pretends himſelf to be, what needs he buſie himſelf in ſcribling, who has Tenderneſs enough, he ſays, to overlook Non-Conformity, and that allows the Non-Conforming-Churches to be Chriſtian; doth he afford the Church of England more? Time was, he would not have acknowledged her ſo much.

§. 17. His 7th Chapter, is an Application of his preceding Diſcourſe, bringing all Ways amongſt the Chriſtians, (ſo called) of theſe Nations under two, either ſuch an Eſtabliſhment, as hath the Sanction of the Law, to warrant and protect it; or thoſe Perſwaſions, as are eſpouſed by private Men. Reader, thou may'ſt be ſure he is not of the the laſt; the firſt wears the Cap of Maintenance: but he diſtinguiſhes amongſt thoſe many Ways he fathers on private Spirits; ſome he indites of holding Principles, that overturn the very Foundation of Chriſtian Religion, ligion, whilſt he more candidly diſmiſſes others, with the Approbation of ſound Fundamentals, although he lays it as an Home charge, that they ſhould not neglect the uſing ſuch Means, as might better inform their Schiſmatical Judgments, concerning the Church of England's Conſtitution.

Pa. 18. 58, 59, 60, 61, 62.

Thoſe great Impoſtors or dangerous Hereticks, whom this Guide eſteems it a fooliſh Charity to flatter with the Hopes of Salvation, are Papiſts, Socinians and Quakers, by which he has at once damn'd Millions of poor Immortal Souls, however ſtrict, ſerious and ſincere, in what they knew, through many Generations; whilſt if defective, they owe it to the Idle, Lying, Covetous, Ignorant, and murdering Spirit, and Practice of the Prieſts; whoſe Intereſt it has ever been to enſlave and obſcure the People's Underſtandings, by their many curſed Inventions, and terrifying Puniſhments; framing and trimming a Religion, with ſuch Variety of external Ceremonies, as probably beſt might take and influence the carnal Multitude, enacting moſt ſevere Laws againſt ſuch, as ſhould at any Time decry their Fopperies, and teſtifie againſt their abominable Inventions; Letting their Canons play, or rather plague, to the Deſtruction of Lives, Families, and Eſtates: —— It's not my Buſineſs to apologize for Papiſts, I am not of their Kin; but look upon Rome Pagan, to have been much inferiour to the Impieties of Rome (called) Chriſtian; and the latter greatly tranſcending the former, in all Sorts of Abomination, capable to be invented by the wicked one. —— As for the Socinian, I know him to have Wit and Learning enough, to encounter a more redoubtable Adverſary than mine; and however he has expos'd himſelf to the juſt Cenſures of ſome, his Exemplary Life and Grave Deportment I muſt acknowledge to be very ſingular; and if his Cauſe receive no greater Foil than this Perſon's bare Reproaches, at leaſt Aſſertions without Proof, the diſcreet World will ſooner acquieſce in the ſtronger Arguments of Socinus, and his quaint Adherents, than this unreaſonable and ſlandering Guide: Nor does a wrong Opinion gain more Credit or Life, than when oppos'd by Perſons indiſcreet and incompetent.

Chap. II.

CHAP. II. His Aſperſions Reprehended.

§. 1. IT is an Art this Guide is Curious at, to purchaſe the Eſteem of ſuch whom his Miſcarriages may juſtly have incens'd, at the inhumane Rate of forward and invective Slanders, on ſuch who have for Conſcience-ſake ſtept aſide from the Eſtabliſh'd Miniſtry of the Nations; but more eſpecially the Quakers, againſt whom he ever has been bold to write and ſpeak (being withdrawn from every Form and Conſtitution, to wait for Life from God, and not from Beggarly Elements) and therefore made a Prey to all Parties, againſt whom he knew every Hand has been lifted up, (diſtreſſed by, and forſaken of all Civil Power) and conſequently ſecure in his Undertaking: He was not ſlothful under former Powers, nor has he been leſs diligent ſince, employing all his wicked Wits to render us a People unfit to hold Society with Men, being not only deſtructive to Religion, but Government: Nor will the Character he has given of us, in Pag. 62, ſpeak much leſs, where inveighing againſt Sects, he begins with us in this Manner: I ſhall only inſtance in one more of ſuch as err in Fundamental Points, who in reſpect of their Want of Learning, and outward Accompliſhments, are contemptible, yet in reſpect of their Number, and ſingular Obſtinacy in their Way, whereby they amuſe the Vulgar, are not to be paſt by, viz. the Quakers: Although Quakeriſm cannot properly be called a Sect of Chriſtians, but rather a Total Apoſtacy from Chriſtianity; for excepting they have the Name of Chriſt in their Mouths, they ſcarce retain any Article of the Chriſtian Faith.

Pag. 62.

Reader, thou need'ſt not be a Man ſo very judicious, (although our Cauſe, being by moſt peruſed with a prejudiced Eye, deſires thee to be impartial) rightly to taſte what the Ingredients and Infuſions are that do compoſe this Spirit, who at the very Entrance manifeſts himſelf thus intoxicated, that he has already over-ſhot both Verity and Good Manners; thereby preparing the Minds of ſuch as read him, to entertain his Falſities the moſt he can for the Diſadvantage of our Perſons and Principles: This Front of his Impeachment, calls for my Anſwer in theſe Reſpects; (1.) We ſtand charg'd as to our Want of Learning, and External Accompliſhments. It is our Joy, and Matter of Rejoicing, and many Times with unutterable Thankſgivings in Sincerity I can ſay, that the Everlaſting God ſhould now, as frequently at other Times, diſplay the Riches of his Love and Grace to the mean and deſpiſed amongſt Men; herein is it tranſcending in our Eye, that he ſhould abſcond abſcond theſe Things, and leave them ſtill as Myſteries to the Wiſe World, whilſt in extream Love he has ſo plentifully vouchſafed the Revelation of them unto Babes; and therein made Good that Ancient Obſervation of Paul, in our Times, Not many Wiſe, not many Noble; not that we thereby do exclude any, only we can affirm, that the Entrance of God's Everlaſting Goſpel of Salvation, or whatever he has had to do amongſt the Sons of Men, has been with very ſeemingly deſpicable Attendances. This ought not to be dubious unto any intelligent Perſon that has a moderate Acquaintance with Hiſtory. If I ſhould go no farther than the Scriptures of Truth, let it be there examined, and 'twill appear if ſuch whom God called at any Time (from the Beginning to the End) were not Handicraft, Labouring, and Huſbandmen, Perſons inexpert in the Scholaſtick Adages, Diſputations and Opinions of the Heatheniſh Philoſophical World. But leſt that may not be of ſufficient Authority, let them but read the Account that's largely given in this Matter by Heraldus, who declares the Primitive Chriſtians general Diſguſt to all human Literature, and Philoſophy in particular, the only Accompliſhments of that Age; which occaſion'd the Gentiles continual upbraiding of the Chriſtians for Idiots and illiterate Perſons. And Origen in ſo many Words gives this Account of the very Propagators of the Goſpel, that they were Ἐριοῦργοι καὶ σκυτοτόμοι, καὶ κναφεῖς, καὶ ἀπαιδεύτοι, καὶ ἀγροικότατοι, Weavers or Combers of Wooll, Coblers, Fullers, and illiterate and exceeding Ruſtick.

But leſt it may be objected, that though God at firſt was pleas'd to uſe ſuch illiterate Preachers, thereby to manifeſt the Greatneſs of his Power, yet afterwards the Means of Literature were not to be neglected, as neceſſary Ingredients to an able and orthodox Miniſter. Let ſuch but read the Ordinance of the fourth Council of Carthage, where it is ordained, Let every Clergyman get his Livelihood by ſome Artifice or Huſbandry, without Prejudice to his Calling; and, let every Clergyman, tho' learned in the Word of God, have ſome Artifice or Handicraft; and, let all Clergymen that are able to labour, learn ſome petty Handicrafts.

Con. Carthag. c. 51, 52, 53.

And Gaudentius expreſly ſays, that we do not read that ever the Ancients did teach Philoſophy ſince, they did rather abhor it; I fain, ſays he, would ſee any Man that could ſhew that the Chriſtians, either before, or in the Time of Juſtinian, did openly teach Philoſophy. And as the Waldenſes of Old anſwered the Academian Papiſts (as Warnerius and others, who ſaid concerning their Preachers, Doctores ipſorum ſunt Textores & Sutores, their Teachers are Weavers and Coblers.) So we return to this Contemner of the Quakers, for their Unacquaintance in Learning; We are not aſham'd of our Miniſters, becauſe they labour with their Hands, procuring thereby a Livelihood to themſelves, according as they are able, becauſe both the Doctrine and Example of the Apoſtles doth lead us to ſuch Apprehenſions.

And if this Guide were either learned himſelf, or but impartial, he may remember, that there was not one at the Nicene Council (whoſe Creed is ſo famous in Europe) who underſtood the Hebrew Tongue: not to make any Compariſon between John's Greek, and the Quakers Engliſh; or to inſtance the great Difference betwixt Iſaiah and Jeremiah in the Old Teſtament; And therefore be it known to all thoſe who ſhall in Libanus's Scoffing Stile, ſay, Let us not hear what theſe Men ſpeak concerning Heaven, God, and Goodneſs, who come forth black and ſooty from the Smith's Forge and Anvil. That 'tis not in the Power of Man's Reaſon, Wit, Study, or Wiſdom, to unſeal the Book, ſee, hear, and underſtand the deep Things of God, nor to give the Light of the Knowledge of the Glory of God in the Face of Jeſus Chriſt: But as the Apoſtles ſaid, ſo ſay we, Everlaſting Praiſes to our God, by the Revelation of his Eternal Spirit he has given us in Meaſure that Divine Science, truly ſo called: And this Light we are not aſham'd to own for our Teacher in the Sight of Nations, but by it's Supream Authority to declare, There is not another Leader by whom Salvation is attainable, and in Obedience to whom the Nations of them that are ſaved muſt walk.

Although I needs muſt ſay, this Objection of our Ignorance had much better become a Perſon whoſe Abilities ſurpaſs this Cantabrigian Sizer's Education, whoſe inexpertneſs in Story, Tongues and Opinions, might have barr'd him from theſe uncivil as well as untrue Reflections; and ſo much of Literature is to be found amongſt the Quakers (though it's not their Strength) as does, and very likely will remain unanſwer'd by Scholars of an higher Form than this Conceited Guide.

§. 2.) 2. His Charge of Obſtinacy we deny; nor am I much ſolicitous to enlarge in our Vindication, ſince 'tis the Senſe I know he has of all who withſtand a Conformity to that Eſtabliſhment his Intereſt leads him to embrace, and bow not with him to the Riſing-Sun: In this Senſe we own his Epithet, and adjunct of Singular alſo, being indeed moſt ſo in Sufferings; having by all Powers (ſince we were a People ſeparated by the Lord from their Inventions) been killed all the Day long in Reputation, Liberty, Eſtate, and ſometimes Life; but in all other Reſpects (our Conſciences excepted) we are always ready to expreſs Complacency and Willingneſs to aſſiſt our very Enemies.

§. 3.) 3. He does accuſe us with a total Apoſtacy from Chriſtianity; but if the Rom. 8. 9. Definition Paul gives of a Chriſtian ought to decide the Caſe, then he is one in Gal. 5. 16. whom Chriſt reigns, and by the Fruits of his Spirit manifeſts to the World he is John 15. 12. redeemed from it, and from fulfilling thoſe Luſts which once had abſolute Dominion over him: But whether this Guide, or the ſo much calumniated Quakers, are fulleſt of Self-denyal, moſt ſeparated from the World, or in greateſt Subjection to that pure Spirit of Grace which teaches to deny all Unrighteouſneſs, and to Titus 2. 11, 12. live ſoberly in this preſent World, impartial Reader, ſpeak? For if the preceding Qualities denote Men truly Chriſtian, and that a pious, diligent, and inoffenſive Converſation, is the moſt expreſs Character of Chriſt's Followers; I make my Appeal to thee and the whole World, if there lives among the Sons of Men a People leſs deſerving to be call'd Apoſtates, and conſequently any that ſo viſibly carry with them the Badge of true and Primitive Chriſtianity as they. And whereas he ſays, we ſcarce retain any Article of the Chriſtian Faith; We do in ſo many Words Acts 15. 9. 1 Tim. 3. 9. reject his Aſperſion, being made Partakers of that Divine Faith in Jeſus, which ſanctifies, and is held in a pure Conſcience.

§. 4.] 4. His next Accuſation is, That they extol the Light in all Men, as the only ſufficient Rule to walk by, to the apparent ſlighting of Scriptures, and Preaching:

Reader, If yet thou art a Stranger to this Light he thus explodes and vilifies, let me beſeech thee once to obſerve it in thy ſelf, and tell me then if it has not that Divine Quality to diſcern betwixt the Precious and the Vile, and manifeſt every Thought, Word, and Act; whether it is well-pleaſing, or the contrary, to Jo. 1. 9. 1 Jo. 1. 5. 7. the Great God? If it be criminal to own thoſe Scriptures he falſly ſays we ſlight, the Caſe is chang'd, otherwiſe, we all confeſs that God is Light, and that he hath enlighten'd every Man; by heeding and obeying the Dictates of which, we may be preſerv'd in that Capacity, as the ſame Scripture ſays, ſhall bring us into the pure Fellowſhip, and that the Blood of Jeſus ſhall cleanſe us from all Sin. Nor do they own a Principle in the Clouds, but above all People have demonſtrated the Power and Authority of their Principle by that Redemption it has wrought for them, and Alteration it has made from that Condition which nakedly expos'd their immortal Souls to the Snares and Entanglements of this World's periſhing Glories, to experience the Blood which cleanſeth from all Iniquity, the unſpeakable Peace of perfect Reconciliation with God.

And for his confident affirming we ſlight both Scriptures and Preaching, I have this to ſay, That as there is not any who diſcover more Reſpect for them, by a Conformity of Life to what they require, ſo do they both read, and as often quote them in Preaching, or Declaration, as any who profeſs them for their Rule. And, Reader, that thou may'ſt be the better informed concerning the Eſteem we have them in, take but the Pains to viſit our Aſſemblies, and that ſhall be a ſufficient Helps the other wanted. Vindication of our Innocency, which alſo may anſwer him as to the Advantage, that's confeſt, the Jew had before the Heathen.

5. His fifth Reflection is, Our openly denying the Doctrine of the Trinity: But methinks it would become him who is reproving others for not paying that Reſpect they ought unto the Scriptures, to be a little more exemplary in uſing their unqueſtionable Phraſe, and ſound Expreſſion, for I am altogether ignorant of any Scripture that mentions that Word Trinity; and 'tis his own Opinion, that Fundamentals ſhould not be drawn from dubious and obſcure Places, but rather that the Scriptures were evident and perſpicuous, as to what was neceſſary to be believed; yet, if by Trinity he underſtands thoſe three Witneſſes in Heaven, Father, Word, and Spirit, he ſhould have better acquainted himſelf with what we diſown, than ignorantly thus to blaze Abroad our open Denyal of what we moſt abſolutely credit and believe.

6. His next Slander runs thus: The Perſon of Jeſus Chriſt, as to his human Nature, with all his Offices aſſigned to him by his Father, they utterly reject, (though this is an Arcanum that is kept hid from their Novices.)

Fain would he here inſinuate to People, by his moſt invective Impoſtures, hard Thoughts concerning an inoffenſive People, whilſt in Reality they own no other Name by which Salvation is obtainable than the Chriſt of God; and all the Offices that ever were aſſigned him by his Father, are by them acknowledged; and ſo remote are they from hiding their Sentiments, or being jealous of expoſing them to all, that whoſoever will but give himſelf the Time of frequenting their Meetings, or peruſing their Books, will ſoon perceive how very far this Character is wide of Truth.

7. His next Report is, We call not upon God in the Name and Mediation of Jeſus Chriſt. But, Reader, that thou may'ſt not thus be dogmatized upon, but better ſatisfied in thy ſober Inquiries, aſſure thy ſelf, the Quakers never knew any other Name than that of Jeſus Chriſt, through which to find Acceptance with the Lord; nor is it by any other, than Jeſus, the Mediator of the New Covenant, by whom they expect Redemption, and may receive the Promiſe of an Eternal Inheritance.

Heb. 9. 15.

§. 5. He farther ſays, They truſt not in his Death for Pardon and Salvation, but in a pretended ſinleſs Perfection.

They are ſo far from diſowning the Death and Sufferings of Chriſt, that there is not a People on the Earth that ſo aſſuredly witneſs and demonſtrate a Fellowſhip therewith, confeſſing before Men and Angels, that Chriſt died for the Sins of the World, and gave his Life a Ranſom. Perfection from Sin they hold attainable, becauſe he that's born of God ſins not, and that nothing which is unclean can enter the Kingdom of God; no Crown without Victory; the little Leaven leavens the whole Lump; the ſtrong Man muſt be caſt out; Paul prays they might be ſanctified wholly: Be ye perfect as God is perfect; be perfect, be of good Comfort; unto a perfect Man; as many as be perfect; that the Man of God may be perfect: The God of Peace make you perfect in every good Work; The God of all Grace make you perfect; let us cleanſe our ſelves from all Filthineſs of Fleſh and Spirit; perfecting Holineſs in the Fear of God; leaving thoſe Things behind, let us go on unto Perfection; and this will we do if God permit. If Perfection were unattainable, it would be ſtrange that the Scriptures ſhould ſpeak of ſuch a State, and very prepoſterous, that Paul, Peter, &c. ſhould ſo ſollicite and pray for the ancient Saints, that they might come thither, even to the *Spirits of juſt Men * made perfect*; nay, he poſitively avouches to have arrived there, at the Heavenly Jeruſalem, at the Church of the Firſt born, &c. And notwithſtanding that this excellent State ſhould never be enjoined, ſeems to me no leſs than a giving the Apoſtles Doctrine the Lie, and tacitly impeaching them of groſs Diſſimulation and Contradiction. But, Reader, 'tis not only my Opinion that Perfection is attainable; for if thou pleaſeſt to remember the many Paſſages of his Diſcourſe already paſs'd my Obſervation, as well as to remark the following Chapter of his Contradictions, thou certainly wilt find Perfection an Article of this Guide's Creed, without the leaſt Violation to his Matter.

§. 6. They deny any Neceſſity of Special Grace of the Spirit to Converſion and Sanctification, ſaying, The Light within is ſufficient hereunto, and ſcoff at them that pray for more. — His Malice and his Lies run parallel; Are there amongſt the Sons of Men any that ſo contend for that Grace which brings Salvation, and ſo ſtrongly plead, as well with Sufferings as otherwiſe, the abſolute Neceſſity of Faith therein, Subjection thereto, and Sanctification thereby, to this blind-profeſſing World? And for his Diſtinction between the Light and Grace: Reader, if thou doſt well obſerve the Apoſtle Paul's Deſcription ~~of~~ their Properties and Effects, I queſtion not but thou wilt ſoon condemn this Guide for ignorant, and very inobſervant of the Scriptures: For he to the Epheſians writes, That whatſoever makes manifeſt is Light, and bids them thereby to walk Circumſpectly So that the Apoſtle ſets it as the Diſtinguiſher between Good and Evil, as a Guide or Leader: And thus was Jeſus Chriſt, the Fulneſs of Light, nominated by the Prophet, — A Light unto the Gentiles, a Leader unto the People, and for Salvation unto the Ends of the Earth; who by the Evangeliſt, is ſaid, to have enlightened every Man; and by the Prophet 'tis determin'd, as well as by the ſame John in his Revelation, That the Nations of them which are ſaved muſt walk in that Light; and how it can be different from that Grace, whoſe Properties are the ſame, in teaching to deny Ungodlineſs and worldly Luſts, and to live ſoberly, righteouſly, and godly in this preſent World, cannot be rationally ſuppos'd; for, ſays the Apoſtle John, If ye walk in the Light, as God is in the Light, ye ſhall be cleanſed from all Sin; which Paul expreſſes preſſes thus, If ye walk in the Spirit, ye ſhall not fulfil the Luſts of the Fleſh; and, ſays Chriſt, I am the Light of the World, he that follows me ſhall not walk in Darkneſs, but ſhall have the Light of Life: John 8. 12. It muſt be therefore evident to every common Underſtanding, that this (ſo much blaſphem'd) Light, Spirit, and Grace, ſpoken of, (leading to the ſame Condition, and bringing to the ſame End) are one in Eſſence and Virtue, though diverſly denominated, according to the Variety of it's Operations; and who is't can be thought a Chriſtian that denies the Sufficiency of this Glorious Light, which graciouſly is given of God as a Leader to the Nations, and for Salvation to the Ends of the Earth? And ſurely had this Guide but ever been acquainted with it's pure Inſtructions, and walked therein, the Benefit that would have certainly accrued, had better taught him the Excellency of it's Nature, and the reverent Obſervance he ought to pay it, and not to make a Scoff at it, as he moſt wickedly ſays the Quakers do at Grace, (who generally are known to be no Mockers, but have been made a Laughing-ſtock by all Perſwaſions; being reviled, they bleſs; perſecuted, they ſuffer; defamed, they intreat; accounted the off-ſcouring of all Things unto this Day, and made a Spectacle unto the World, Angels, and Men.) 1 Cor. 4. 9. 12. 13.

§. 7.] 10. He follows on much at the ſame Rate, Sabbaths and Sacraments, and all inſtituted Worſhip they caſt off; the great Doctrines of the Reſurrection, Laſt Judgment, Heaven, and Hell, they turn into Allegories, &c.

How long wilt thou imagine, write, and utter lying Vanities to beſpatter, defame, and expoſe to vulgar Rage the innocent People, and Royal Inheritance of the moſt high God? Can'ſt thou expect thy Days ſhould terminate in Peace, and that the Judge of all will not account with thee for all thy Slanders? Yea, Clapham, be it known unto thee, the dreadful God ſhall recompence it on thy Head; nor ſhall thy peeviſh Malice (ſurpaſſing all I know) eſcape a Pledge of God's Diſpleaſure on thee, e'er thou takeſt thy Farewel of this Earth; he will rebuke thy unclean Spirit, too full of naſty Venom and Lies, ever to have Admittance where nothing enters that defiles or makes a Lye: It's not a Rage I am in, as thou may'ſt think, and willingly would'ſt have others to believe, God bears me Record, but the infallible Senſe I have upon my Spirit of thy deep enſnaring Hypocriſy to betray (if poſſible) others more moderate and faithful into the ſame wicked yielding Spirit with thy ſelf; and alſo (I fear) thy immortal Enmity to us, the innocent People of the Lord, provokes to an Holy Indignation; and Judgment is for that unrighteous Nature to Eternity.

But that I may not leave the Reader unſatisfied as to this laſt moſt impudently wicked Aſperſion, know in the Name of all true Quakers, the Sabbath that is reſerv'd for the People of God, is ſo far from being by them rejected or deny'd, that they admoniſh all to the exact and punctual Obſervation of it, not to think their own Thoughts, ſpeak their own Words, nor do their own Works; — for the Word Sacraments, 'tis no where ſcriptural; and, 'till he explains his Meaning, I am not bound to find him one; but for ſuch Worſhip as is of Scripture-inſtitution, and perform'd by the Spirit of God, they own and practiſe, diſowning (as there is good Reaſon) all other Inſtitutions.

The Doctrine of the Reſurrection of the Juſt and Unjuſt, Laſt Judgment, Heaven and Hell, as future Rewards; they believe and confeſs: — And, as my faithful Teſtimony both to their Life and Doctrine, I am neceſſitated to declare, (and be it known to all that ever knew me) that when the unſpeakable Riches of God's eternal Love viſited me, by the Call of his Glorious Light, from the dark Practices, wandring Notions, and vain Converſations of this polluted World, and that my Heart was influenced thereby, and conſequently diſpos'd for the more intimate and ſincere Reception of it; thoſe very Habits, which once I judg'd impoſſible, whilſt here, to have relinquiſhed, (as well as I was unwilling) and did allow my ſelf a Liberty therein, becauſe not openly groſs or ſcandalous, I thought my ſelf excuſable) became not only burdenſome, and by that Light manifeſted to be of another Nature than that which I was called to the Participation of; but in my faithful Adherence to it's Holy Counſel and Inſtructions, I was immediately endued with that Power and Authority as gave Dominion over them, and being in Meaſure redeemed from that to which the Curſe is pronounc'd, I ſenſibly enjoy'd the Bleſſings that attend a Reconciliation; And never ſince I have been converſant with their Principles, (thus odiouſly deſcribed by him) have I found one Article that did not receive a full and ſatisfactory Aſſent from that very Grace, Spirit, or Light of God, which firſt called me from the groſs Impieties, vain Entertainments, tempting ing Glories and Will-worſhips of this Generation: And as I have the Seal of God's eternal Spirit of Love upon my Soul, as an infallible Aſſurance; ſo, ſince my firſt frequenting of them and their Aſſemblies, I have obſerv'd that holy, innocent, and righteous Converſation, which harmonizes with the Severity, Circumſpection, and Self-denying Life of the Goſpel; and teſtify, (as revealed from God) that ſince thoſe Centuries, in which the Apoſtacy eclipſed the Beauty of the Primitive Light, there has not been ſo glorious a Diſcovery of Spiritual, Pure and Evangelical Worſhip, Life and Doctrine, as God hath in his Loving-kindneſs raiſed the ſo much deſpiſed Quakers, to own, practiſe and declare amongſt the Nations; as the good old Way of Holineſs, that leads from Intemperance, Vanity, Pride, Oppreſſion, and the Love of this World's periſhing Glories, to that everlaſting Joy and Reſt which is reſerved for the People of the Moſt High God. In ſhort, they are ſound in Principles, zealous for God, devout in Worſhip, earneſt in Prayer, conſtant in Profeſſion, harmleſs and exemplary in their Lives, patient in Sufferings, orderly in their Affairs, few in Words, punctual in Dealings, merciful to Enemies, Self-denying as to this World's Delights and Enjoyments; and to ſum up all, Standards for the God of Heaven, againſt the Pride, Cruelty, Luſt, Avarice, &c. of this Godleſs Generation; —whom the unborn ſhall call Bleſſed, when their Teſtimonies be finiſhed, and they gathered into the unſpeakable Solace and Poſſeſſion of God's eternal Preſence; —yet are they concluded by this uncharitable Guide, not Company for Chriſtians: But I am perſwaded, that the more Diſcreet will not relax their good Opinion for his ſlanderous Reflexions, but rather thence renew Occaſions of farther expreſſing their Candour and Humanity: And I hope their diſcreet and inoffenſive Deportment will perſwade all People, they are not ſo deſerving their ill Thoughts, as envious and ſelf-intereſted Prieſts have endeavoured to inſinuate.

CHAP. III. His Hypocriſy Detected.

Chap. III.

THO' manifold are the Stratagems of Satan, that old Serpent, by which he does ſurprize the immortal Souls of Men with moſt deplorable woes, and everlaſting Miſery, yet is there none that proves ſo generally effectual as Hypocriſy; It's his Myſterium Maximum, a Study and Employment fit for none below the Form of his Arch-Angels; ſuch make his archeſt Emiſſaries, and moſt ſubtil Meanders Sublime Devils, maſqu'd with the Vizard of Sincerity, palliating themſelves from what they really are, by ſeeming what as really they are not; outſide waſh'd Platters; Wolves in Sheeps-Cloathing; Inſide rotten, but outſide whited Sepulchres: In ſhort, the muddy Senſualiſt refined to a Counterfeit-Fidelity, and Imitation of the Form of Godlineſs, the more unqueſtionably to deceive, and ſecurely to inſinuate candid Apprehenſions of his Purpoſe; who is the moſt impudent Deſpiſer of God, Deſtroyer of Souls, Contemner of Laws, Perverter of Truth, and Treacherous to the End; againſt whom the ſharpeſt Woes are denounced, and Puniſhments reſerved to Eternity: —— How far this Guide has rendred himſelf obnoxious to the Character of an Hypocrite, it is our Buſineſs mainly in this Chapter to diſcourſe: But leſt his diſſimulated Condeſcenſion, and pretended Chriſtian Inſtructions, (as inducements to Conformity) ſhould ſo far prevail upon the Unacquaintance of any with his Spirit, and notorious Practice through all Revolutions as to believe they may deſerve my Obſervation and Reply, (ſince 'tis irrational to argue the Unſoundneſs of a Principle from the confeſs'd Imperfections of it's Defendants) I ſhall a little hint at the chiefeſt of his Reaſons; as well to manifeſt 'twas not ſo much a general as an individual Concern that intereſted him in this Undertaking, as to prevent (if poſſible) his ingratiating his Motives to Conformity, with the Minds of ſuch as are inclinable to Temporizing: He ſtates his Queſtion thus.

Whether it be a Duty for Chriſtians to hold Communion with the Church of England, according to her preſent Adminiſtrations?

Had this Guide the leaſt honeſty, or been conſcientious in his former Perſwaſions; it ſhould not be a Queſtion with him now (although I fear he is ſcarce ſo honeſt as to make it one, my Paradox is Orthodox) but having ever forfeited the Reputation of a ſincere Perſon, and not being eſteem'd other than a groſs Temporizer, I eaſily ſhall grant it very requiſit for him (whoſe Belly is his God, and that minds earthly Things) to commune with the Church of England in her preſent Adminiſtrations; but as for Chriſtians I ſhall not aſk his Leave to diſſent, unleſs he can

1668. Chap. III. p. 69. can produce better Arguments to warrant his confident Aſſertions: his firſt runs thus: It will not be denied by all Diſſenters (that have Underſtanding and Sobriety in them) but that here is a clear Profeſſion of all thoſe fundamental Points of Faith, which are accounted amongſt Chriſtians neceſſary unto Salvation; yea, ſuch a pure Confeſſion of other Points of a ſecondary Nature, that there's ſcarce any other Church in the World that God hath bleſt with a greater Purity.

What ſtrange Confuſion, and unuſual Impertinency is this! Would not half-witted People bluſh to venture abroad in print with ſuch Expreſſions? Surely this Guide was groſly fond of writing Books, that rather than be quiet, he ſhould with ſuch Greedineſs expoſe his Ignorance to vulgar Cenſure; for if the Diſſenters he writes againſt, confeſs the Church they ſeparate from to be greatly pure in Fundamentals and Things of a ſecondary Nature, how is it poſſible, according to good Senſe, they can be termed Diſſenters in Religious Matters? I ſhall appeal to the intelligent Reader, if this blind Guide is not fallen into the Ditch, that aſcribes to ſuch the Title of Diſſenters, whom he at the ſame Time characters for abſolute Sons of the Church; for, do the higheſt Conformiſts to the Church of England acknowledge more, than that ſhe's pure in Fundamentals and Things of a ſecondary nature, and yet that ſuch who confeſs her to be this, ſhould by this ſilly Guide be ſtil'd Diſſenters! away with this apparent Nonſenſe, ſince none can properly be ſo eſteem'd that differs not in one or both; and how inconſiſtent, as well as ſaucy, his Expreſſion is, that will not allow Diſſenters to be ſober and intelligent (when none are ſuch in his Account, that allow not the Church of England what they can never do, and properly be counted for Diſſenters) ſufficiently appears, in his admitting theſe very Diſſenters to be Chriſtian Churches, and Children of the ſame Father, though now he ſeems to repreſent them void of both Underſtanding and Sobriety. Where his Wits were when theſe raſh and undadviſed Words were writ, I leave for the Reader to determine.

p. 72, 73. §. 3. He ſpeaks largely of the publick Worſhip, loudly extolling the Conſtitution of the Church of England, profeſſing a Separation therefrom to be unwarrantable; and that Corruption in Manners, both of Miniſters and People, ſhould be no Reaſon for deſerting their Aſſemblies, &c.

Contrary to the whole current of Scripture-record, and the beſt Accounts that have been tranſmitted through Ages of the Primitive Chriſtians, who ever have withdrawn themſelves from ſuch as held the Truth in Unrighteouſneſs; and let the World judge if Paul was not thus perſwaded, when he ſtrictly enjoyn'd Separation from (2 Tim. 3. 5.) (not only Schiſmaticks, Hereticks, and Apoſtates, but) ſuch as held the Form of Godlineſs, which conſiſted in Profeſſion and external Performances, without the Everlaſting Power, which alone could bring into true Obedience, and give the Poſſeſſion of that Eternal Life, which rightly denominates People Chriſtians, or a Chriſtian Church: But as two ſtrong Pillars, to maintain and underprop his Aſſertion, (p. 82.) he tells us, otherwiſe God would have no Publick Worſhip; As if an Aſſembly in an Houſe, Field or Barn, was not as capable to worſhip God in Spirit, as thoſe who frequent the Pariſh Steeple-houſes; if not, 'tis fit this Guide ſhould pay his Acknowledgements to the Roman Society (he calls Antichriſt) for his publick Worſhip; but be it known to him and all the World, that as God's Spirit is not tied to Places, ſo all Worſhip ſtanding therein is truly Catholick and Publick Worſhip, in Field or Houſe, whether Three or Three Thouſand; convenient Places being circumſtantial, not eſſential, to God's Worſhip.

p. 75. §. 4. His ſecond Pillar is the Example of Zacharias, who (ſays he) deſerted not his Station in the Jewiſh Worſhip, notwithſtanding thoſe many Corruptions that were innovated, by which he would excuſe his continuance in his Prieſtly Office in Wramplingam Pariſh: But if this Guide will be inform'd, he ſoon may ſee his Error in this Particular, (as upon Occaſion formerly was expreſt to him) the Jews were ſelected from all other Nations, and privileged as God's Peculiar People, by an external Law and Ordinances (all which were typical) over whom he ordained Magiſtrates, and a Prieſthood, which had no Relation to any other Conſtitution that was contemporary, or ſhould ſucceed, but were to continue till the Times of Reformation, and then to be abrogated; yet inaſmuch as Antitypes are repreſented by their Types, it muſt be granted, that many legal Inſtitutions did ſignifie and ſhadow forth what afterwards ſhould follow; ſince therefore it muſt needs be granted, that the Jewiſh State relates no farther to us than typically, it will not be unneceſſary to examine how far this Guide can ſecure himſelf, and juſtifie his many Turnings, from the confeſt Conſtancy of faithful Zacharias.

Conſider (1.) that the Jews were a People ſeparated from among the Nations, as his viſible Church, to whom he gave that intituling Sign of Circumciſion.

2. That their Temple, Worſhip and Laws, moral, judicial and ceremonial, were indiſputably of Divine Inſtitution.

3. That as thoſe who were their Prieſts, were by the high Prieſt anointed thereunto; ſo being once dedicated, were to officiate with Integrity and Conſtancy at the Altar.

4. That no Addition was to be admitted to what God had ſo punctually ordered, in any Circumſtance. Now unleſs this Guide can prove the Church of England the Antitype;

1. In being the Circumciſion in Spirit, by which ſhe is rightly intituled to the Priviledges of the Spiritual Jewiſh Church.

2. Can as infallibly and unqueſtionably prove the Divine Inſtitution of her Faith, Worſhip and Diſcipline.

3. That her Miniſtry is ſpiritually Anointed of God, by that one High-Prieſt after the Order of Melchizedeck, and by him commiſſionated to preach the everlaſting Goſpel.

4. And that in Faith, Worſhip and Diſcipline ſhe remains as clear and ſingle from all Inventions, Traditions and Ceremonies (thoſe only allowed as have their footing in the Divine Appointment and Order of God) unleſs I ſay this be made good, 'twill declare great Weakneſs in any to allow this Guide to argue from Zacharias's Caſe to his own; —— I grant that whoſoever is anointed by Jeſus Chriſt to preach his everlaſting Salvation, ought to do it inceſſantly, not mattering the Oppoſition or Revolution of Powers; and that No defect in the Generality can or ought to unminiſter him, but rather that he faithfully ſhould decry thoſe Impieties, and keep his Station on God's Behalf, which righteous Zacharias did, whoſe bold withſtanding their Inventions, and honeſt Deſire of preſerving that Law pure, of which he was inſtituted Prieſt, procured no leſs than his Martyrdom, from the Cruelty of thoſe vain Superſtitioniſts. But what's this to Clapham's Caſe? Zacharias was anointed by the High-Prieſt; whence was Clapham's Ordination? Zacharias was murder'd for oppoſing their Unrighteouſneſs and wicked Traditions: Where did Clapham do ſo? but has he not preach'd for and againſt what he at Times has own'd, to keep his Pariſh. Zacharias would not diſpenſe with their Additions to God's Inſtitutions; has Clapham done ſo too? how comes he then to call the Church of England, Pure in ſecondary Matters, to wit, her Forms of Prayer, Anthems, Reſponſes, Litanies, Baby-Baptiſm, Croſſes, Altars, Steeple-houſes, Eaſt and Weſt, Bowings, Organs, Choriſters, Surplices, Caps, Rochets, Hoods, with much more ſuch like traſh than my Memory will ſerve at preſent to inſert, which fills up the Engliſh Worſhip, and are known by Perſons moderately read in Story, to have been brought forth by the Womb of dark Popery, that ſink of Antichriſtianiſm: — But as there ought to be one Temple, Worſhip and Prieſthood to make Clapham's Caſe reſemble Zacharias's, ſo that his may approach this Guide's, let us ſuppoſe amongſt the Jews three ſeveral Temples, Worſhips and Prieſthoods, call'd Presbyterian, Independent, Epiſcopal: If Zacharias had firſt been of the Presbyterian-Prieſthood, and as that ſhould decline in eſteem, imbraced the Independents, till by Revolution of Government both were violently ſuppreſt, as to the Exerciſe of their Conſciences towards God, by the Epiſcopal; and then that Zacharias ſhould divorce his Independent Spouſe, crying All Hail unto the new Eſtabliſhment, as Clapham undeniably did, he might have quoted Zacharias with more Honour, to his own ſhameful Retreat: but his conſtant Keeping of his Station in Faithfulneſs to God, ſharply rebukes this Guide's manifeſt Infidelity both to God and Men.

§. 5. His next great Argument to enforce Compliance, is that Soveraignty beſtow'd on Rulers, who (ſays he) in particular Circumſtances undetermined by God, have Power to order and ſettle Things according to the general Rules laid down in the Word; Inſtancing in ſeveral Jewiſh Kings: Although I need not farther trouble thee nor my ſelf, than barely to recommend the foregoing Page to thy peruſal; yet leſt the Matter may not be ſo evident, I ſhall a little obſerve his very great ſelf-contradiction; his Words are theſe; There is not the like Reaſon to determine all Circumſtances in the Chriſtian Churches, as was in the Jewiſh Church, the one being in it's Minority, the other grown up to a State of greater Liberty. A Boy when he goes to School, in every Particular he is ſtinted to his Work; but when he goes to p. 104. p. 103.

the Univerſity, he only hath general Rules for his Study, and is left to his own Diſpoſition for Order and Manner of his Studies. Is it not obvious that he does confute himſelf, and ſo has ſav'd me the Pains of making any other Anſwer than what ariſeth from his own Aſſertion and Similitude to prove it: He ſays the Chriſtian-Church is grown to greater Liberty; How ſo, if ſtill ſubject to be impoſed upon by Civil Power? Is not the Slavery greater, ſince that the Jews were ſtinted by God himſelf, but we by Men, and that according to their fallible Apprehenſions? yet with ſuch Severity is Obedience enjoyn'd, as Nonconformity coſts nothing leſs than the Price of Liberty and Eſtate. But ſince by Boys at School he means the Jewiſh Church, and by thoſe fitted for the Univerſity he intends a State of Liberty in ſecondary Matters, what follows but that our Schoolmaſters the Magiſtrates are diſmiſt, and we, being under an Evangelical Conſtitution, are in thoſe Matters left to that greater Liberty relating to the Goſpel State; which flatly contradicts that Power he in other Places does aſcribe unto them: Nay, if I ſhould make the moſt of his Similitude for my Advantage, how apparent would it be that the very Rulers in the Jewiſh-State were Boys, and ſtinted in all Religious Circumſtances, and conſequently not to be our Schoolmaſters under a Diſpenſation of greater Freedom, for then the change would be to our apparent Loſs and Injury; ſo that others being free as well as Rulers, for them to command is groſs Uſurpation; and for any to yield Obedience is nothing leſs than High-Treaſon againſt the King of Conſcience, and a betraying of themſelves into the School-boys State again—— Sometimes he ſays the Scriptures are clear in this Particular: in other Places, promiſcuous; but his beſt Argument is the Magiſtrate, for never wanting a ready Compliance to their Commands (come what will) he has better learnt Intereſt than to ſet his Opinion in Competition; — However, I ſhall propoſe theſe Queries, which he may anſwer if he pleaſe, or any elſe.

Qu. 1. Whether if ſeven Powers make ſeven diſtinct Interpretations of Religious Principles, and erect ſeven diſtinct Modes of Worſhip, according to what they apprehend from the Scriptures; they all may be ſubmitted to notwithſtanding their Contrariety?

Q. 2. Whether theſe ſeven different Principles and Modes of Worſhip, enacted to be conformed to, in theſe ſeven Dominions, can be rightly ſaid to proceed from the Spirit of God, the Unity; and not their erroneous Apprehenſions?

Q. 3. Whether any Preſcriptions concerning Faith and Worſhip, ſhould be allow'd or obey'd, if not from that unerring Spirit in which God's true and only Worſhip ſtands?

Q. 4. Whether any Magiſtrates now in being, do or can pretend to that Infallibility?

Q. 5. Where is that Goſpel-Scripture, which impowers Magiſtrates to concern themſelves in Religious Matters?

Q. 6. Whether it be congeneous, or ſuitable to the ſecond Covenant and Times of Reformation, when the Law is written in the Heart, and the Spirit put in the inward Parts; where there is but one King, and one Lawgiver; where the Offices and Aſſiſtance of Sun, Moon and Stars are no more required, but the Lamb Chriſt Jeſus is their Light, their Knowledge, their Guide, their All in All; for Rulers to interpoſe their Civil Authority to pull down or ſet up Religion?

Q. 7. Whether the firſt Inſtitution of Magiſtracy propos'd a Juriſdiction over Conſciences, or only the Preſervation and Proſperity of the People in Civil and External Matters?

§. 6. Many are his Cautions, and as many his Contradictions, too many for my Obſervation: In ſhort, the End of all his Tenderneſs to Diſſenters, and kind Titles of Chriſtian Churches, Children of the ſame Father, &c. I find, is a perſwading of all into an Acknowledgment of the Church of England. But Reader, if thou wilt know the Reaſon why this perſon Now appears ſo earneſt in his Diſcourſe for all to march in his conforming Steps, and thus confidently impoſes himſelf a Guide on all to the true Religion, as if we had been at a Loſs till now both for the true Religion and a Guide, I ask thy Patience and thy Credit in the Peruſal of this notorious (tho' contracted) Story of his Life, which a Neceſſity is upon me to inſert, that ſuch who otherwiſe may let his Hypocritical Inſinuations gain their eſteem, may (if they pleaſe) be furniſht with an Antidote againſt the Infection of their Nature.

It is not long ſince (being in thoſe Parts) I had ſome Hours converſe with this Perſon, and amongſt the many Things we touch'd upon, I charg'd him with his Retreat from a certain People to whom he formerly had a Religious Relation: Upon which he ſent me this, with other Particulars, by Epiſtle, in a Way of Apology; That he never had profeſt himſelf of any Party, nor would come under any diſtinguiſhing Denomination of Presbyterian, Independent, Epiſcopal, owning no other than that of a Chriſtian, avowing, that whatever Apprehenſions People had concerning the Church of England, and notwithſtanding ſeveral went as far as New-England to enjoy purer Ordinances, yet for our Parts (including himſelf as a conſtant Son of the Church) we can witneſs the Lord's Preſence is amongſt us.

To all which I then anſwer'd ſomething, though not ſo amply; that ſince he ſeems to liſt himſelf ſo early amongſt the Members of the Church of England, Where has he been during the Time of her Captivity and Exile? Did he for Conſcience-ſake (oppoſing Covenant, Engagement, &c.) quit the Land, contenting himſelf rather in the Quality of a poor begging Prieſt beyond the Seas, than to embrace the Perſwaſions of thoſe Powers, which had reduc'd the Reſidue of his Brethren to extream Poverty? Or turn'd he Trencher-Chaplain, Tutor, &c. Did he traverſe the Country, Sprinkling, Marrying, Churching, Burying, the common Trade of thoſe ejected Prieſts? And can he ſay, that whilſt the King and Biſhops were incapacitated by Exile, to act as Officers in the Church and State, he own'd the One for Supream in Matters Civil and Eccleſiaſtical; and the others, for ſo many Apoſtolical Heads in Chriſt's Church? Did he proteſt againſt the Cruelty of thoſe Powers, in the clear Subverſion of both? What Priſon was he in? What Bonds did he endure, what Loſs ſuſtain, Teſtimony bear, and Loyalty expreſs, on the Behalf of his Epiſcopal Faith, and it's Defender? —— Alas! But was he not in all thoſe ſtrange Occurrences of Times, and Variety of Changes, to be found Prieſt of Wramplingam in Norfolk? At the Beginning of the Wars, a moſt preciſe Stickler for a Reformation, extolling the great Neceſſity, as well as Righteouſneſs of the Solemn League and Covenant, encouraging others thereunto, both by his Example and Doctrine: Bold for the Directory, and buſie at Chuſing Elders, and ſo went under the Notion of a Preſbyterian: But 'twas not long before the Independents, through their greater Courage and Policy, had undermin'd and vanquiſht t'others Intereſt, and when poſſeſt of the Authority, he ſaw 'twas Folly to expect a Salary as Guide, in that Way the Governing-Party of the Nations had rejected, and therefore was obliged to liſt himſelf a Volunteer in J. Munny's Independent Congregation; 'twas then the Beheaded King was by this Guide both preach'd and printed, as a Toe of that Image the little Stone, cut out of the Mountain without Hands, was to ſmite; and therefore ſays, The Fall of the Ten Kingdoms was begun, the Lord is riſen out of his Habitation, gainſay not; for who ſeeth not the Alteration is of the Lord? And in his Anſwer to an Objection, that this Prophecy was accompliſh'd when this Nation fell from Popery, ſays he, Doctrinally it was, but not Politically; the Government hath continued the ſame, yea, and hard enough to the Saints (alias NONCONFORMISTS) none can deny it. Now the Change this Prophecy ſpeaks of, reſpects the Government. In another Place ſays he, There can be no clearer Evidence that God is about this Work of breaking down this Great IMAGE, and ſmiting the very Feet and Toes thereof, than this preſent Victory over the Scottiſh Forces at Dunbar, (which we are now to render Thankſgiving to God for) the Cauſe of this War being, Whether this IMAGE ſhall be upheld, or the Feet and Toes be broken. In ſhort, O ye Honoured Worthies, whom the Lord hath raiſed up to effect theſe great Changes, carry on the Lord's Work; That your People may not have Cauſe to ſay, We have changed our TYRANTS, not our TYRANNY; although Providence ſeems to put an Impoſſibility of ſetling Government in the former Way: But Time hath proved him both a Temporizer, and a Falſe Prophet. 'Twas alſo then he ſought, if poſſible, to ingratiate himſelf with the Powers and People of the Land, by his moſt invective and falſe Diſcourſe againſt the Harmleſs Quakers, with a large Dedicatory Epiſtle to O. Cromwel, allow'd by him of England, Scotland, Ireland, &c. Protector, to whom, amongſt other extraordinary Complements, I cannot let paſs theſe Expreſſions, where he invites him, As God's Delegate, in Honour to Jeſus Chriſt, and out of Love to the Churches of Chriſt, for whoſe Welfare you have this Great Power committed to you, to ſtop theſe Seducers, &c. Concluding thus, The Lord of Heaven and Earth Bleſs your Highneſs with the Continuance of His Gracious Preſence with you, that as you have done Valiantly in the High Places of the Field, (that is, fought againſt King and Biſhops) ſo you Govern as Righteouſly and Happily in the Gates of the City. O groſs Diſſimulation! Now 'tis he turns Engagement-Man, and is employ'd by the ſeveral Churches in Norfolk, to R. Cromwel, on the Death of Oliver, as their Repreſentative about that Petition, or Addreſs made by the Prieſts in General, which terms the Father Moſes, and the Son the Joſhua, that ſhould conduct them to the Holy-Land: But he being by the Projections, and angry Reſentments of the Long Parliament, diveſted of his Uſurped Authority, this Guide finds out a very Honourable Epithet for it; which had not long taſted of Power, before another Revolution took it's Place: But I muſt needs confeſs, that when 'twas noiſed a King was coming in, and the Church of England to be reſtored to all her ancient Emoluments (ſo called) this Guide grew ſeemingly dejected, and very forward in expreſſing his Diſlike againſt their Spiritual Lordſhips, and not leſs contumeliouſly (as he now would think) both of Her Worſhip and Diſcipline, hoping the Preſbyterians Teſtimony of Allegiance, in their Zealouſly aſſiſting to facilitate the King's Return, would ſo far intereſt him in their Concerns, as not wholly to be excluded from the Exerciſe of their Religion in the Land: But when 'twas manifeſt that nothing under an open Conformity would purchaſe the Enjoyment of their Pariſhes, (whatever becomes of them) this Guide ſlinks from his Independent Church, and Preſbyterian Hopes, reads the Common-Prayer-Book, ſubſcribes the Articles, changes Oliver, Richard, or Parliament, for Charles, (once a Toe of the Beaſt, that the Little Stone was to ſmite) of England, Scotland, Ireland, &c. And in the Place of Chriſt's Churches, the Church of England, with the whole Tribe however dignified or diſtinguiſhed; the Beheaded King (once the firſt Broken Toe of the Image,) now he commemorates with an Anniverſary-Sermon; and, as the Top of all, boldly renounces his ſo Solemnly-taken League and Covenant; —— What Temporizing's this! O what unheard of Hypocriſie is here! But Reader, What's thy Opinion of the Matter? Can Oliver be Moſes? Richard, Joſhua? And Charles, Defender of the Faith, altogether? Whoſe Intereſts were ſo oppoſite, as the laſt to be Exiled, and kept ſo by both: With whom was God's Preſence in all theſe Times? The Church of England? If ſo, then not with thoſe that turn'd her out, where Clapham had his Pariſh: How plainly have his Actions unmaſkt the groſs Diſſimulation of his Heart, and theſe corrupt Fruits explain'd the Poiſonous Nature of the Tree that brought them forth? But leſt I may be thought to wrong him, as if it were impoſſible for one who pretends himſelf a Chriſtian Miniſter, to be Guilty of ſuch abominable Time-ſerving, Reader, Epiſt. p. 6, 7. Book, p. 98. peruſe theſe Paſſages, where he confidently affirms ſuch to have been, The Beſt, Wiſeſt, and Moſt Judicious Chriſtians, who under all thoſe great Changes and Revolutions, amongſt us of latter Times, have endeavoured the maintaining the Fundamental Doctrines of the Goſpel, even to a Degree of Compliance in Things of a lower Nature; in which he poſitively concludes all Perſons, (from Canterbury, to the meaneſt Curate in the Nation, as alſo Seculars in their reſpective Places) have been to blame, both as to their Underſtanding and Wiſdom, in not yielding with Clapham in thoſe ſmaller Matters, (viz. an Expulſion of the Church of England, a diſowning of Monarchical Authority, or Right in the Stuart's Family; Preaching and Printing it a Toe of the Beaſt, extolling the Covenant, taking the Engagement, being a Preſbyterian, an Independent, a Millenary, &c. Praying, and Swearing for Parliament, Protectors, Parliament again, at laſt, King and Biſhops) ſince thoſe who have left King, Biſhops, Common-Prayer, &c. and eſpouſed the Intereſt of thoſe other Powers, who Eſtabliſh'd other Methods both in Church and State, Were the Beſt and Moſt Judicious Chriſtians; but to excuſe this Brazen Impudence P. 106. and Hypocriſie, he concludes, Let not any Principles you have inconſiderately taken up, ſo far engage you, as to make you loath to return to Ways of Truth and Soberneſs: But it would be conſidered, it's no Diſgrace for the Wiſeſt, Holieſt, and P. 108. moſt Learned'ſt Men to retreat, in ſome Controverſial Principles and Practices. Reader, Will this Fig-Leaf Garment cover the Shame of this Guide's Nakedneſs, from thy Diſcerning and Cenſure? I hope not; But does not his Covering ſtand in Need of one, who ſays, The Holieſt, Wiſeſt, and moſt Learned'ſt Men may ſtill be ſuch, and yet walk not in the Ways of Truth and Sobriety: What Weakneſs, what Ignorance, what ſtrange Confuſion's here! From which I alſo muſt infer, that ſince he is but here of late return'd To the Ways of Truth and Sobriety, he all his Life-Time before walk'd in the Way of Error and Madneſs; Judge then how fit he was to Preach others into the Knowledge of the Truth, and a Sober Life: Have not the People given him Money for that which was not Bread? And farther, I would obſerve, 'twas in that Time of Error and Madneſs, he writ thoſe wicked Slanders againſt us who are called Quakers.

§. 7. I would obſerve before I finiſh, that the Intendment of his Book is not to preſs Conformity to any one in Oppoſition to all other Conſtitutions, otherwiſe than in a Temporary Senſe; for ſince it is his Principle, That ſuch are the moſt Wiſe and Judicious Chriſtians, that have in all Revolutions complied in leſſer Matters, it follows, that the Church of England is no farther concerned in this Diſcourſe, than whilſt She keeps the Power and Magiſtracy on her Side; for which of the Seven Sons, viz. Lutherans, Calviniſts, Anabaptiſts, Arminians, Epiſcopalians, P. 17, 18. Preſbyterians, Independents, (being of the ſame Father) with that known, or unknown, &c. ſhall gain the Prerogative, he by his own Principles ſtands ready to embrace him; ſo that no longer than any of them have external Force to warrant their Commands and Impoſitions, no longer ſhould they be acknowledged; but any other of them (though remote in ſmaller Matters, holding the ſame Fundamentals) is quite as eſtimable in this Guide's Account, and thoſe Injudicious that concur not with his Sentiments; by which he does at once commend, rather than excuſe his paſt Compliance with thoſe ſeveral Perſwaſions, and palpably diſcovers his Readineſs to do the like, as otherwiſe conceiving it Unwiſe, (they being the Moſt Wiſe, and Beſt Chriſtians, that yield in leſſer Matters) — But that which renders ſuch Alterations ſuſpicious to Sober Men, is the never finding them convenient till Change of Government makes them ſo; for amongſt the many Tranſactions of this Perſon's Life, I ſhould not forget, that when the Fifth-Monarchy Principle was in Eſteem, which would by no Means diſpenſe with an Earthly Monarch, (as belonging to the Great Image) J. Clapham prints a Diſcourſe in the Vindication of it, but the potent Argument of Cromwel's aſſuming it, under the ſpecious Title of Protector, clearly confuted this Great Millenary, as he at large acknowledges in his Epiſtle Dedicatory to him before his Book, anciently writ againſt the Quakers; — ſo that the only Conſtancy I can remark of J. Clapham, has been the keeping of his Pariſh, through his very Great Inconſtancy, in his Perſwaſions.

I hope, by this Time, Reader, thou haſt well conſidered, and narrowly inſpected the Qualities of this Guide, which ſurely manifeſt themſelves as deteſtable as any I have ever met withal; his Ignorance, Impudence, and Hypocriſie, but above all, his Hackney, Mercenary Spirit; which doubtleſs needs muſt leave ſuch ſtrong Impreſſions as ſhall for ever make thee diſeſteem his Undertaking, and that the Quaker's Innocency, whom he has ſo unworthily ſlandered, without a Proof to warrant his Aſperſions, ſhall not appear the leſs deſerving Favour and Encouragement from thee; however he has not been remiſs in putting all his Stratagems on Foot to render them obnoxious to the Fury and Diſpleaſure of ſuch who have Power to execute the Reſentments of their Minds, but rather let them have thy Countenance, as a People whoſe upright and induſtrious Converſation, renders them not leſs Serviceable than Exemplary.

Thus have I finiſh'd my third Chapter, and haſten to my fourth, which is a ſhort Compariſon of ſome of his Contradictions; that whilſt he runs inſulting upon us for Ignorant, Erroneous, and Contemptible, it may appear that his Diſcourſe requires an Errata.

CHAP. IV. His Contradictions Compared.

Chap. IV.

§. 1. GOD hath in the framing of Man's Nature, laid ſo deep an Impreſſion of Religion, that there is no Nation but doth judge themſelves Intereſted therein. P. 1.

In the framing of the Nature of Man, there are ſuch Principles of Religion Engraven in him, as cannot be razed out. P. 8. 15, 16.

BUT as 'tis a Thing all profeſs themſelves intereſted in, ſo there's nothing Men are at greater Difference about; ſome Worſhip the Sun, others the Moon or the Stars, and almoſt any Creature from whence they received any Benefit. Pag. 2.

We read in the Story of the Iſraelites, the Vanity of Man's Nature in Matters of Religion. P. 3. 4, 5.

Is God's Impreſſion divided, or the Capacity he gave Man ſo blinded, as that it cannot diſcern betwixt Himſelf, Sun, Moon, or Stars? And is it poſſible, That Man's Nature ſhould be Religious, and it's Principles not to be razed out, and yet Obſerv.

vain in thoſe Matters? And what Spiritual Benefit did any ever receive from Sun, Moon, or Stars, that induced them to worſhip and adore them?

How greatly then doth it behove every Man to make a Wiſe Choice of that God he intends to ſerve, and that Religion he means to live and die in? P. 2. There is a Neceſſity Men ſhould be of ſome Religion, P. 14. To chuſe deliberately what God we will ſerve, and then reſolve to cleave unto him. P. 15.	Man's Eternal Happineſs or Miſery, depends on the Right Knowing God, or his Miſtake about it. P. 2. On the Right Chuſing one's Religion, or our Miſtake about it, Eternal Happineſs or Miſery, Life or Death depends, P. 16. The Dream that every Man may be ſaved in his own Religion, if he be True to it, is more becoming Turks than Chriſtians. P. 17.

Obſerv. O ſtrange Contradiction! Has Man a Liberty given, nay, Advice grounded on Neceſſity to be of ſome Religion, And not only to chuſe what God he will, but alſo to Live and Die in his Service; and yet Damn'd if he hits not on the True One: What's this more, than to ſay, It's Neceſſary Man ſhould do ſomewhat, though he be Damn'd for it? And if it's a Dream to expect Salvation in being True to ſome Religion, is it not a Lethargy of Impertinency, That it's neceſſary to be of ſome Religion, and to Live and Die in it?

There are many Falſe Religions in the World. P. 15. There being ſuch Diverſities of Religions, you had Need to have your Eyes about you. P. 26.	It's a Miſtake to think that there is ſuch a Multitude of Religions in the World. P. 27. There are, to ſpeak properly, but Four Religions. p. 28.

Obſerv. Theſe Croſs Sayings muſt needs be manifeſt to the weakeſt Capacity; for if he ſpeaks Properly on one Side, he ſpeaks very improperly on the other.

§. 2. It's not ſufficient, that it be delivered unto you, by Tradition from Anceſtors, by Education from Godly Parents, commended by the Practice of wiſe and pious Perſons,— but make a wiſe Choice for your ſelves. p. 25. Thoſe that take up Religion, becauſe it's profeſt in the Country, and commended by Example, how ſlight are they therein? p. 19.	Man muſt diſcern the Verity and certainty of theſe Doctrines, that he may venture his Soul upon them; for which End, it's exceeding neceſſary to be converſant in thoſe Treatiſes which prove the Verity of the Chriſtian Religion. p. 10. I add one Rule of Caution more, againſt a common, but dangerous Miſtake: Take heed of ſetting up your own Apprehenſions of the Senſe of Scripture: Though fundamentals are plainly laid down, yet Points controverted are hidden from ordinary Underſtandings, that know not the Languages and proper Idioms of Scripture, and other Advantages of Learning. p. 109.

Obſerv. In one Side, this Guide is for every Individuals' chuſing from a Reaſon in himſelf; in the other, that he ſhould accept Things from the Apprehenſions and greater Skill of others.

But it's unreaſonable to be contending about Things, not ſo clearly revealed in Scripture; p. 44. But darkly laid down p. 47. Take Heed of that great Miſtake, that nothing is to be admitted, in and about the Adminſtrations of the Church of Chriſt, but what is held forth in Scripture. p. 99. 100.	Search the Scriptures and look well to them, they are your Chart and Compaſs, to ſteer your Courſe by; try all Things by them. p. 47.

Obſerv. O ſtrange Confuſion! A Rule and no Rule; revealed, and not revealed: Is it not unreaſonable to ſuppoſe that Chriſt, inſtead of rendering his Church more glorious and infallible than ever, ſhould leave her deſtitute of Information in thoſe

Things, which concern her Peace, ſince contrary Apprehenſions about them, have been the Ground of all Diviſion and Perſecution through Ages, and will be yet with moſt, notwithſtanding this Guide's Directions? — Can the Scriptures be clear in deep, and not in ſhallow Matters?

God hath committed the Care of Religion, and the Settlement of it, to thoſe in Authority, in their Dominions, in ſuch a Way as they judge moſt agreeable to the Rule of the Word. p. 68.

They are to ſee all be adminiſtred according to the ſame; and in the particular Circumſtances undetermined by God, they have a Power to order and ſettle Things according to the general Rules laid down in the Word. p. 104.

It's not ſufficient that it's commanded by the Laws of the Land, but make a wiſe Choice for yonr ſelves. p. 25.

Let every one be fully perſwaded in his own Mind. p. 53.

And Men that act according to Reaſon, will look into the Oracles of God himſelf, wherein God hath reveal'd his Will, concerning Faith and Worſhip. p. 9.

If God has inveſted Magiſtrates, with the Power of Interpretation, and Settlement of Religious Matters accordingly; is it not abſurd to bid Men chuſe for themſelves, ſince they are to be concluded by another's Choice? And how the Oracles of God, ſhould be perſpicuous to all Underſtandings, and yet need an Interpreter, (I mean the Magiſtrate) I would fain underſtand.

§. 3. The Chriſtian Religion was confirm'd by many Signs; by the Means of Propagation of it, by weak and unlearned Men, by whoſe Preaching it overſpread the World. p. 31.

The Fundamentals of Chriſtianity are ſo plainly laid down in Scripture, that the weakeſt Chriſtians may underſtand them. p. 110.

The Quakers, in Reſpect of their want of Learning and outward Accompliſhments, are contemptible. p. 62.

Controverted Points are hidden from ordinary Underſtandings that know not the Languages, and proper Idioms of Scripture, and Cuſtoms of the Church, and other Advantages of Learning, that it's ordinarily impoſſible they ſhould find out the Mind of God therein. p. 111.

Obſerve. What Contradiction is here! that what he deſigns to have been Proof or Argument, to have recommended the more unqueſtionably the Belief of the Chriſtian Religion in old Times, to the primitive Chriſtians, he here ſhould make the Reaſon why he rejects and reviles the Quakers and their Teſtimony;—— and that he ſhould tell us, the Spirit they received perfectly inform'd them, and yet that Learning is to be the only Means of knowing God's Mind in theſe Days, whilſt he confeſſes at the ſame Time, the weakeſt Chriſtian may underſtand the Fundamentals of Religion.

God is to be worſhipped in Spirit and in Truth— p. 70.

The Eſſence of Prayer lies in lifting up true Deſires to God in the Name of Chriſt. p. 71.

To pray, is Part of God's Worſhip, but whether it be in a Book or out of it, is no Part at all. p. 100.

For who is there that knows not that Forms of Prayer, have been of exceeding long Continuance in the Chriſtian Church. p. 91.

Set-Forms, are not only uſed and preſcribed in the old Teſtament, but alſo in the new. p. 94.

How! Worſhip in Spirit, and yet by Words of Man's Preſcription! Can any Man bring the Spirit to ſo many Words, to begin with I, and end with R? Or who knows the Spirit's Mind, ſo punctually as to preſcribe for Generations to come the Words it will uſe, for all Perſons and Conditions, that may be in the World? Who can pretend to know all States, that he may write Prayers for each? Why not Forms of Sighs and Groans?— Was it not a ſpiritual Worſhip, Chriſt Jeſus ſet up, above ſixteen Hundred Years ago, in Oppoſition to the Jewiſh one, and all other particnlar Worſhips, in the World? which are known to have been Forms, and ſuch as this Guide pleads for, at leaſt the Jewiſh, and produce me a Form put forth and eſtabliſh't by any of the Apoſtles, who were faithful in God's Houſe;— But did not Forms creep up, when the primitive Power and Spirit was loſt, imitating Prayer, bnt not Praying? And did not Tertullian in his Apology, (who is generally rank't in the Beginning of the third Century) write, that the Chriſtians prayed not by Book, bnt as they were moved by the Spirit of God, or to that Purpoſe; and I challenge this Guide, or any living, to make appear that a Form of

Prayer

Ston. ſmi. the Image on the Feet. p. 29.

Prayer was eſtabliſh'd, till ſome Time after his Death; And this Guide himſelf acknowledges in his Stone ſmiting the Image on the Feet, that the Apoſtacy was begun, the Empire yielded up to the Papacy, the primitive Purity of Chriſtian Worſhip, fail'd, and became corrupted: And let him tell me if the Worſhip of the Church of England, had not it's Beginning there, at leaſt thoſe Things he calls Additaments and Modes; ſo that they are not concluded as neceſſary by any Light or Prudence, but innovated by a vain, formal and ſuperſtitious Nature: Beſides, examine the Contradiction of his own Aſſertions, God muſt be worſhipped in Spirit, and yet in Form: Forms are not only of Legal, but of Goſpel-Inſtitution, and yet whether Prayer be within or without Book, it matters not.

It's a vain Deluſion to think that the Spirit ſhould diſcover all deep Myſteries. p. 111.	Wherein you are otherwiſe minded, he will reveal the Truth, [the Myſtery] unto you. p. 46.
The Spirit of God teaches not by ſuch immediate Enthuſiaſms [or Revelations]	God will reveal his Secrets to ſuch as fear him, and lead you by his Spirit, p. 46. 47.

Obſerv.

If it be a vain Deluſion, to ſay the Spirit only can diſcover all deep Myſteries, pray what is it to ſay, it ſhall reveal the Truth, which comprehends all? And that it will reveal God's Secrets, (what are they but Myſteries?) And if God's Spirit does not teach immediately, why does Clapham ſay, that it will reveal God's Secrets, and lead us? Which implies the Familiarity and Conſtancy of his Preſence, What Contradiction's this!

§. 4. For who is there of the higheſt Form of Chriſtians, that are aſcertained that in every particular Doctrine and Practice, theſe be in the Right, ſeeing the beſt of Men are imperfect, and may and do err. p. 53.	Let the Doctrines and Myſteries of Faith you receive, influence your Hearts and Lives, ſanctifie and change them. Reſt not in the Form of Godlineſs, without the Power of it. p. 27.
Who is in all Things free from Error? What Church or Perſon upon Earth? p. 65.	God only is to be ſanctified of all them that come near to him. p. 70.
For what Churches are ſo pure, but they have ſome Defects, Errors, or Corruptions? p. 81.	In the Church of England, is a profeſſed Renunciation of the Devil, the World, and the Fleſh, with all their Sinful Works and Luſts. p. 70.
The Quakers truſt in a pretended Sinleſs Perfection. p. 63.	Let this Truth influence your Hearts and Lives, ſo as you ſincerely obey the Goſpel, and live in the daily Expectation of the Coming of the Lord, and give Diligence to be found of him, without Spot and Blameleſs. p. 40.

Obſerv.

Here's the Perfection of his Contradictions; — 1. Is it Senſe to affirm that Societies are ſanctified and changed, and yet imperfect, corrupt and erroneous? 2. If God is to be ſanctified of all that come near unto him, then ſuch as can't ſanctifie him, cannot approach him; but Clapham, and ſuch as cry, they have no Health in them, and conſequently unſanctified, cannot ſanctifie the Lord, therefore can't they approach him. 3. He asks the Queſtion, What Church is without Corruptions? and as patly anſwers it, The Church of England (for ſhe) renounces the Devil, the World and the Fleſh, with all their deceitful Works and Luſts. So that Perfection is an Article of Clapham's Faith, as being of that Church. 4. And why ſhould he be angry that the Quakers truſt in a ſinleſs Perfection, and that which will exceedingly rejoyce, at the Appearance of their Lord? Since he has found ſo ſuitable a Defence, that in ſo many Words, admoniſhes all to give Diligence to be found of him in Peace, without Spot, and Blameleſs.

And Reader, though he never did intend by his Diſcourſe, a Vindication of the Quakers Principles, yet mayſt thou eaſily perceive how he is left of God, in this conceited Undertaking, to manifold groſs Contradictions; and whilſt he would be thought competent, to enervate ſuch Opinions as don't quadrate, or agree, with his, his Book is made his Confutation: — Nor have I hinted at the Moiety, becauſe I would avoid Prolixity, profeſſing in Sincerity, I ſcarce have ever read ſuch a Compendium of Abſurdities, although, when firſt I ſaw his Treatiſe, I was in

Expectation

Chap. IV.

Expectation of ſome Eſſay, or new Atlantis in Religion, as might (if not) deſerve an Approbation of it's Doctrine, at leaſt have manifeſted the Ingenuity of its Author; but to find the Gleanings of ſome mouldy Authors, and dark Suggeſtions of unwarrantable Tradition, venture to put a Cheat upon the World, under the ſpecious Title of a Guide, (who had not gone a Page, before he loſt his Way) at once expreſt more Ignorance and Impudence, than any Piece I have met with, ſince I have held the leaſt Intelligence with Books; and I hope what hath been already writ, will by thee be eſteemed a ſufficient Anſwer to this Guide, and ſo unvizard his Deſigns, as neither thou, or any elſe, from thence ſhall take the leaſt Encouragement to embrace his Religion, or give Entertainment to his falſe Aſperſions, but rather am willing to believe, that Perſons ingenious and deliberate, will never look upon a Time ſerving Prieſt, thus circumſtantiated with great Variety of Miſdemeanours, or any Thing, his Parts or Malice can ſuggeſt, ſo favourably, as to accept his Sentiments to the apparent Prejudice of ſuch, whoſe Carriage and Correſpondence amongſt Men, are in the general, confeſt to be diſcreet and Friendly; for if the Perſons inveſted with Authority ſhall once admit of implicit Apprehenſions, for their Rule, and that from one, whoſe very Actions carry ſuch undeniable malignity with them, thoſe different Perſwaſions againſt whom he may have treaſured up Revenge, muſt certainly expect the Effects of their Severity and Diſpleaſure, let them in other Matters, where publick Preſervation is concerned, appear never ſo ready and contributory.

But ſuch Procedures reliſh rather of Romiſh Bigotry, and Inhuman Inquiſition, than Chriſtian Tenderneſs and Human Prudence: For as a gentle Treatment of Diſſenters has ever been the moſt effectual Way for Uniting Differences in Religion, (at leaſt preſerving of the Peace) ſo ſhould all Magiſtrates remember (if they pleaſe) that their Authority cannot reaſonably extend beyond the End for which it was appointed, which being not to inthrone themſelves Sovereign Moderators in Cauſes purely Conſcientious, and relating to a World in which they cannot pretend the leaſt Juriſdiction, but only to maintain the impartial Execution of Juſtice, in regulating Civil Matters with moſt Advantage to the Tranquillity, Enrichment, and Reputation of their Territories, they ſhould not bend their Forces, nor imploy their Strength, to gratifie the Self-ſeeking Spirit of the Prieſts, or any private Intereſt whatſoever; — An Exerciſe below the Dignity of their Office, and much too narrow for that Univerſal Influence it ſhould have upon the Publick.

§. 5. But to conclude, Judicious Reader, hold not ſo ſlight an Eſteem of the Quakers Principles, becauſe decri'd by ſuch as either don't know them, or well know an Entertainment of them would put a Period to their Gain: But ſoberly examine if there be any other Way to perfect Victory over thoſe Corruptions and Fleſhly Luſts, to which we naturally are addicted, and moſt infallibly occaſion that Diſorder and Confuſion we ſee all Nations ſubject to, than what they Preach up, Write for, and Walk by, even that Grace of God which brings Salvation, (from all Iniquity) which, ſays this Guide, is the Sum of all, viz. The Grace of God which bringeth Salvation, hath appeared unto all Men, teaching us, that denying Ungodlineſs and Worldly Luſts, we ſhould Live Soberly, Righteouſly, and Godly in this preſent World: Which being really attended on, it's Inſtructions cordially embrac'd, and Holy Motions intirely reſign'd unto, with that Noble, but neceſſary Reſolution, Of deſpiſing all Shame, and patiently enduring the Croſs, ſhall make thee a Righteous Magiſtrate, a Reformed Prieſt, or an Holy Citizen of the New Jeruſalem: It leads into Circumſpection, and Pure Conformity to the Divine Pleaſure: Doubts and Fears, Sighs and Tears, ſhall fly away, and in that Faithful Stayedneſs of Heart on God, We can, according to our reſpective Meaſures ſay, He makes the Rivers of his Peace to overflow, and never-failingly bedews with the Refreſhment of his Glorious Preſence: Which Reader, that thou mayſt, and all Men, really experience, is the very earneſt Deſire of him, that God in Everlaſting Love, has made a Friend to the True Religion, but an Enemy to every Falſe Way.

FOR THE PRINCIPLES and PRACTICES
Of the PEOPLE call'd
QUAKERS.

Againſt the Malicious Aſperſions, Erroneous Doctrines, and Horrid Blaſphemies, of Thomas Jenner, and Timothy Taylor, in their Book, entituled, Quakeriſm Anatomiz'd, and Confuted.

* The SECOND PART.

* Note, the First Part was written by G. Whitehead.

By WILLIAM PENN.

But theſe ſpeak Evil of thoſe Things which they know not; raging Waves of the Sea foaming out their own Shame, Jude v. 10 13. But Wiſdom is juſtified of her Children, Mat. xi. 19.

The PREFACE.

To the KING's Lieutenant-General, and General-Governour, and Council of Ireland: With all other it's Subordinate Magiſtrates. The Juſt and Neceſſary Defence of the People call'd QUAKERS.

THO' it be the uſual Deſign of Dedicatory Epiſtles, to flatter thoſe Perſons whoſe Names front the enſuing Tracts, with the Protection of them (and ſome we confeſs want it) yet ſuch is the Dignity of the TRUTH we vindicate, that as we cannot attribute it's Original to any Mortal Men, ſo are it's own Innocence and Certainty the moſt Convincing Apology againſt all it's Adverſaries: We therefore wave all Gaudy Titles, and chuſe to evidence our Reſpect in a Way leſs ſuited to the Education of Phariſaical Paraſites.

Some, mov'd by their own Intereſts, have been pleas'd to enterprize a Confutation of the Quaker's Doctrines (at leaſt they think ſo) in which they let us underſtand, how much more they deſign'd to diſ-intereſt us in Chriſtianity and Civil Government, than to inforce us of either: But that the Hope of the Hypocrite may periſh, and their Vain Expectations appear fruſtrated to all Impartial Readers; we have taken their Diſcourſe into our Serious Examination, otherwiſe unworthy of our leaſt Notice.

And though they intend nothing leſs than a diſingaging us in any Claim to Legal Protection, yet, as we only can aſcribe the Honour of our Creation to God, ſo do we attribute our Happineſs of Birth unto His Providence, which has not fallen within the Lawleſs Borders of meer Prerogative, but the more Pleaſant Province of Legal Freedoms.

And being thus intituled to equal Priviledges with them, we cannot eſteem their Partial Characters, Grounds ſufficient to cut off that Entail of Liberty, however buſily endeavour'd by their meer Rapſody of Folly, Error, and Abuſe; Men, whoſe whole Lives are but the expreſs Inſtances of Contention: And whilſt they ſeem to repreſent us undeſerving of your Protection, none more Incendiaries than themſelves. It is their old Thread-bare Project, to abuſe the Civil Magiſtrate, with the Execution of their Revengeful Deſigns, under the Pretence of anſwering ſome Publick End.

And truly, it ever was the Infelicity of States, to ſteer by the Siniſter Compaſs of an Avaritious and Enrag'd Clergy.

We judge our ſelves as rightfully poſſeſt of our Demeans as any, and muſt believe our Lives and Labours as Beneficial to the Publick.

It's not a Meer Credential, or Point of Faith, that criminates; but an immoral Practice in the Opinion of the Law: And of what Morals thoſe Men are, that dare to inſtigate Authority to our Subverſion, for not believing what they would have us, (whilſt they themſelves ſtand Heterodox to the Publick) we may interpret by the Jeſuits Bloody Ones.

It's wretched, and almoſt unpardonable in Men, to pretend themſelves Miniſters af the Meek and Self-Denying Jeſus, when they are not yet learnt in the School of doing as they would be done by. Their Enmity is the expreſs Image of their Souls, and their envying us your Toleration (whilſt they court it for themſelves) ſhews how much it is their Principle to give none; and were you but as ſubject to their Power, as we are to yours, 'tis ſhrewdly to be ſuſpected, that our Entertainment would be alike Cruel.

We hope the Tragical Stories of the Scottiſh Covenant, and ſad Effects of their ſtrait-laced Engagement, will for ever antidote Sober Men againſt the Contagion of their Narrow Principles; which rightly underſtood, are the trueſt Meaſures, and plaineſt Engliſh of their Chriſtianity, and Obedience to the Civil Magiſtrate.

Could we but daub with the untemper'd Mortar of Sin-pleaſing Principles, deny our own Judgments, bow to their Dictatorian Cenſures, flatter their Perſons, feed their Pride, augment their Trap-door-Stipends, and excite to Diviſions, by aggravating the Miſcarriages of Superiors, we might have more Reſpect in their Thoughts; who in their implacable Enmity miſrepreſent us both to you and the Nation, which is the only Cauſe of our preſenting this Defence to you: But 'tis our Deſire to give other Teſtimonies of our Religion, than Animoſity; and better Proofs of our Chriſtian Moderation, than the ſharp Guſts of a Scottiſh-Preſbyterian-Directorian-Perſecution.

Not that we would be thought to juſtifie our ſelves, in condemning them; we make a Difference betwixt ſeeking Revenge, and giving Men their True Characters.

We are ſo remote from Vailing our inmoſt Parts, that we chearfully offer our ſelves to your narroweſt Scrutiny and moſt prying Search: Nay, we beſeech you do that Juſtice to your ſelves and our Adverſaries, as well as to our Cauſe, to make the ſtricteſt Inquiſition after us and our Principles. 'Twas that which rendred the Bereans Noble; and to Try all Things, the Apoſtle held to be a certain Means of knowing what is Good: For, as it is a Mark of Great Folly, to cenſure what is neither underſtood nor known; ſo may the fouleſt Error be diſguis'd with the fair Pretences of Truth, and Prejudice or Intereſt, traduce the moſt in-offenſive People upon Earth; which has neceſſitated us to offer this Apology, or, thoſe ſo often refell'd and refuted Doctrines and Accuſations, would not have deſerv'd our ſlighteſt Notice: But as we can never think our Time better employ'd, than in defending TRUTH, againſt the mean (yet malicious) Eſſays of her Adverſaries; ſo we may reaſonably expect (as the juſt Succeſs of our Endeavours) the Happineſs of being better underſtood, by this renew'd Occaſion of once more Remonſtrating our real Innocence to the World.

To conclude, We hope to evidence by the enſuing Diſcourſe, that not We, but our Adverſaries, are the malignant Enemies of God, Scripture, Religion, and Civil Government, and that by Undeniable Inſtances.

At leaſt, it will always appear partial and unmanly, that in a Country, only maintain'd by an Engliſh Civil Intereſt, thoſe who are themſelves Diſſenters, and eſteem Perſecution againſt them Unchriſtian, ſhould expreſs ſo much Romiſh Zeal in exaſperating the Civil Magiſtrate to our utter Ruin, who are both Engliſh and Diſſenters too.

We ſhall omit to mention how far we are conducive to the Publick Good of this Plantation, as well as how far we were Inſtrumental in procuring it; but this we ſhall take the Liberty to aſſert, That ſince we are as large Contributors to the Govern-

1671. ment as our Antagoniſts, we are intituled to as large a Protection from it: And for our Faith in God, and Worſhip of Him, we neither are aſham'd to confeſs, nor unable to render a Reaſon of either; but as we have done both in this Apology, ſo upon all Occaſions we chearfully ſhall expreſs our great Reddineſs to confeſs and vindicate the ſame, againſt the utmoſt Strength of all our Enemies.

We are Your real Friends in all Truth and Righteouſneſs,

G. W. W. P.

The INTRODUCTION.

CHAP. I.

Chap. I.

IN my Anſwer to the latter Part of this Rapſody of Slander and Impoſture; I muſt take Leave to premiſe two Things:

Firſt, That as theſe very Points in Controverſy, have been throughly conſidered, upon ſeveral Occaſions, (as is evident in the Books of many of our Friends; both of them living, and thoſe that are at Reſt with God) ſo can we find nothing New, either of Objection or Slander, that might deſerve our farther Thoughts; but a meer Gleaning of that Harveſt of Lyes and Error; in which ſo many of his Brethren (and Satan's Labourers) have been, for theſe twenty Years paſt, moſt diligently employ'd: Yet for the Sake of ſuch, as may be impoſed upon, and deceived into an Apprehenſion of the Truth of theſe deteſtable Imputations, (through their Ignorance, as well of us and our Principles, as of the Prieſts and their ſiniſter Practices) we ſhall condeſcend to take them into our ſerious Examination.

Secondly, Nor would I have the Man conceit it was his Strength of Argument that neceſſitated Two to anſwer it; ſince the Meaneſt had been more than enough, for an Adverſary ſo feeble and incompetent: but being both alive, and particularly concern'd (becauſe abus'd in the Diſcourſe) we can do no leſs for the Truth, our Brethren, and our ſelves.

And now I muſt declare, I am aſham'd and troubl'd that any Man ſhould live ſo long, and to ſo little Purpoſe. He recommends his Diſcourſe with Sixty Six Years of Age, as if we ought to infer Verity from his Antiquity; not conſidering, Bis pueri ſenes, and that his Age gives but a more juſt Reflection upon his Folly, whoſe beſt Apology will be his Doting.

Certainly he muſt have been very envious in his Youth, in whom the Flames of Wrath are ſo unquenchable in old Age. And inſtead of Simeon's Farewel, Now let thy Servant depart in Peace (in Oppoſition to the Tenor of the Goſpel of the Son of God) he is taking his Leave of the World, with a Proclamation of War and Perſecution to his Co-diſſenters (worſe than Amilcar of old, that made his Son to ſwear an Implacability to the Romans, that he might continue his Hatred with his Poſterity) which, however like it was to a Gallant and injur'd Carthaginian, was but an ill Copy for a Chriſtian Miniſter to write after (indeed to out-do.) But if that vulgar Fancy were true, of Men's degenerating into the Iriſh Nature by living in the Iriſh Air, we might know whence to derive his Maſſacring Stile and Doctrine: But as the Innocence and Patience of our Friends there, prove that an Imagination, ſo his ancient Fierceneſs againſt all that ſuited not the Model of his crazy Brain, ſhews it to be his very Nature; And what is bred in the Bone (we have ſo far Reaſon to allow the Proverb) will never be out of the Fleſh. I ſhall only ſay, that the narrow-ſpirited envenom'd Preſbyter (who like to that Ægyptian King of old, lops all to his Stature that are longer, and ſtretches all to his Length that are ſhorter) is the Metropolitan Canker to the Serenity and Security of all human Society. But becauſe his Religious Matters firſt preſent themſelves, I ſhall ſuſpend my Character of the Man and his Brethren, 'till I have given them their due Conſideration.

Chap. I.
Pag. 87, 88.

And that I may begin, I muſt profeſs, I have not been more at a Loſs for a Beginning in any Adverſary, that has fallen to my Share. I choſe to take my Riſe of Anſwer from his Endeavours to prove, we are againſt Preaching: But ſuch is the Unhappineſs of this miſerable Pedagogue, that in ſeeking to imitate a Writer, he plays the Scribler, leaving us ſtrangely in the Dark for a Beginning.

He calls it Sect. 1. the next is alſo Sect. 1ſt, the next to that Sect. 3d, then Sect. 1ſt again, and Sect. 1ſt follows that, and then Chap. 3d: But becauſe the Compoſitor has ſhewn himſelf more a Maſter of his Trade in the Punctuality of his Pages, than the Perſon himſelf a Doctor at Writing, by the Miſtake of his Sections: I ſhall refer the Reader to the ſeveral Pages for Proof of my true Citation.

As to the Method of my Anſwer, I have not deſign'd the common Rode of Printing his Words at large on all Occaſions; but having peruſed an entire Section or Chapter, I have digeſted or contracted the Scope and Tendency of the whole into ſome one or two Poſitions, which with all convenient Brevity, are fairly examin'd, and, I hope, as rationally confuted.

CHAP. II.

Chap. II.

HIS whole Diſcourſe may be conſidered under theſe two Heads, Of Matter of Fact, and Matter of Doctrine. My Buſineſs will be to detect his Falſity in the Firſt, and Error in the Laſt.

He confidently chargeth us with a Denial of the Uſefulneſs of Preaching (it is the Title of his Section) and hopes to prove the Charge from this Expreſſion, in a Book, written by G. Fox, call'd Truth's Defence, viz. If any Soul be once made one with God by the Spirit, who dare deny but all Scripture is fulfilled in them; therefore they need none to teach them, For thus (ſays he) they alledge, Jer. 31. 34. They ſhall teach no more every Man his Neighbour, &c. And Jer. 2. 27. You need not any Man teach you; Alſo 2 Pet. 1. 19. Ye have a more ſure Word of Prophecy, &c. This then is Matter of Fact, that we deny the Uſefulneſs of Preaching; the Evidence is this Citation out of G. Fox's Book, and the Scriptures quoted.

But certainly he deſerves to be begged for a Fool, that could embrace any thing ſo falſe and ſenſleſs for Truth and Sincerity: The Man has vainly ſet up the Puppet of his own Fancy, and then pelts as at a real Subſtance; He rather ſeems to expreſs what he would have, than what really is; as if he took more Delight that we ſhould be Heterodox, than that we were Orthodox: And indeed, we have Reaſon to believe, That his Diſpleaſure againſt our being in the Right, runs parallel with the Satisfaction he takes to repreſent us in the Wrong.

What Man of Senſe can interpret from George Fox's Expreſſion, the Uſeleſneſs of Preaching? If he had ſaid of Men's Preaching, whom God never ſent, but that run of their own Heads, made by the Will and Appointment of Man, that Preach for Hire, and Divine for Money, and prepare War againſt ſuch as put not into their Mouths; but, like ravenous Curs, ſeek Gain from their Quarters, ſtealing their Neighbours Words to ſupply their own Defects, and the Hour-glaſs; I do confeſs the Inference had been natural. But to affirm G. F. denies Preaching (ſingly as ſuch) becauſe he ſays, they need no Teaching that are made one with God's Spirit, were to ſuppoſe, he deny'd even the Spirit's Teaching; which were to clear the Quakers of what the Prieſts think to be our moſt damnable Doctrine, viz. To Preach by the Spirit: If then it cannot be ſuppoſed, unleſs they would take that for granted, which they moſt vehemently deny; namely, That we diſown the Spirit's Teaching: It follows, that it was not all Teaching; but that which turns to no Profit, The Traditions and Commandments of Men, the Science, falſly ſo called: And that this muſt needs be the Intent of that Paſſage, our conſtant Aſſemblies (even when our Adverſaries dare not to ſhew their Heads) are pregnant Inſtances; which tho' urg'd by Jenner, to bring a Contradiction upon the Quakers, it inverts more ſtrongly upon himſelf; ſince that he might conclude, we oppoſe not all Preaching, againſt which his Arguments are moſtly levelled. He muſt either begin again, and undertake the Vindication of his Hackney Homilies, and Hireling-Sermons; or elſe, relinquiſh all Pretence to Objection againſt our Doctrine in this Point.

It is a Piece of Sophiſtry, as black as Hell, to ſay, That becauſe the Quakers deny all human Teaching, or the utmoſt Knowledge of degenerated, avaricious, proud, perſecuting Prieſts, to be inſtrumental for the convincing or converting any; that therefore they deny all Preaching, even that which flows from the Divine Power and Spirit of God.

1671. Chap. II. Beſides, had G. F. intended any ſuch Meaning, as is ſuggeſted by the Man in Hand, I cannot ſee the leaſt Unreaſonableneſs in it by his own avow'd Principles: For it is generally agreed upon, That ſuch as have perfect Underſtanding, need not the Help of any to inform them; and certainly he that is made one with God, can never be ignorant of what is fit for him to know of him, to whom he is perfectly united: This Doctrine the Man himſelf teaches, ſaying, That ſuch as are come to Chriſt, need no Man to teach them; which is an Expreſſion no leſs comprehenſive than that uſed by G. F. read p. 101.

The Scriptures urged to prove the Neceſſity and Uſefulneſs of Evangelical Teaching, he has not the leaſt Share in; and we profeſs our ſelves to be the Men that have fulfilled them: For as that Miſſion of, Go into all the World, and preach the Goſpel, (with the reſt of the ſame Tendency) was given to a choſen Sort of Men, divinely qualified and inſpired for the Work (which none of our Anti-revelation Adverſaries will dare to derive their Orders from) ſo do we poſitively declare to all the World, that we have received a Meaſure of that ſame Anointing, and by it being qualified in our ſelves, through much Travel, Temptation, Sorrow and Experience, we are become able Miniſters of the Everlaſting Goſpel; and not in Corners, or under the Protection of Earthly Powers, nor yet in ſet Places for large Stipends, but freely, with our Lives in our Hands, in Perils, in Streights, in Wants, and through great Tribulation, have proclaimed the acceptable Day of the Lord, namely, that as many as believe in the Univerſal Grace, with which God hath indued them, and (repenting of their former Iniquities) do obey the ſame, ſhould have Remiſſion of Sins, and Eternal Salvation: And this both hath been our Practice, and will be to the Ends of the Earth.

So that his great Pains, and many Scriptures alledged, to maintain the Uſefulneſs of Preaching, are no otherwiſe of Service, than to detect his own Folly: and therefore wholly uſeleſs to the Matter in Hand.

To conclude this Point, I ſhall adviſe the Man in his Reply (if he may think it worth his While, and I know no Reaſon why he ſhould not, ſince the older he grows the more he dotes) to diſtinguiſh between the Quaker's denying the Spirit's Teaching (which is Free and Univerſal, without Money and without Price) and the coſtly Teachings of a Pack of inſolent Hirelings: Had he been but informed of this before, he might have ſaved himſelf and the Printer, the Pains of ſo much uſeleſs Matter, and me the Trouble of Animadverting: For it was never yet in Controverſy with us, whether we own'd, that in an Age as dark, ignorant, and degenerated, (as this manifeſtly is) it may be neceſſary for any illuminated and convicted, to Preach the Way of Redemption and Salvation to others, (for in this Senſe the Holy Ghoſt teacheth) ſince we both aſſent to and practice it: But the Queſtion ever was on this Hand, Whether ever men, only qualified with natural Gifts and acquir'd Parts, (not cleans'd, ſanctified, and ſet apart by the Eternal Spirit, for the Work of the Miniſtry, but Proud, Covetous, and Perſecuting) were the undoubted Meſſengers of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt? This we utterly renounce, as a damnable Poſition, and which reſts on our Adverſaries Side to prove. Something he ventureth at in the Sequel of his Book, but with his uſual Reaſon and Succeſs, as ſhall anon be manifeſted.

In the mean Time I ſhall attend his pretended Anſwer to what he calls our Objection, viz. That we have Teachers among us, but they are ſuch as are inſpired; the contrary, though they may uſe the Words of Scripture, yet are falſe Prophets; becauſe they ſay, The Lord hath ſaid, and yet the Lord never ſpoke to them, and we abide by it.

His Anſwer admits of two Parts; both which I ſhall faithfully contract into the narroweſt Compaſs I can, without Injury to him or it.

Firſt, They, who formerly ſpoke by immediate Revelation, as Moſes and the Prophets, Chriſt and the Apoſtles, did confirm what they ſaid by Miracles; the Conſequences are plainly this, that there is a mediate Revelation.

Secondly, That the only Sign and Evidence of real Inſpiration is the working of Miracles.

To which I Reply, That greater Impertinency no Man can be guilty of, than to affirm or teach, that there is a Revelation not immediate; it is a direct Contradiction in Terms; for that which is revealed muſt be immediately, or elſe it cannot rationally be a Revelation, but Tradition rather.

Nay, The Scriptures cannot be properly ſtiled the Revelation of the Will of God, 'till they are firſt opened by him, who was found worthy to unſeal the Book, That Spirit of Truth, that opens, and none ſhuts; and ſhuts, and none opens.

Job 32. 8. John 14. 6. Mat. 11. 27. 1 Cor. 2. 11. Phil. 2. 15.

The Scripture gives this Teſtimony to what I affirm, That 'tis the Inſpiration of the Almighty which gives Underſtanding: And none can come to the Father but by me: None knows the Father but the Son, and he to whom the Son reveals him: None knows the Things of God, ſave the Spirit of God: I will be with you to the End: If any be otherwiſe minded, God will reveal it to him; with many the like Expreſſions, which afford us thus much, viz. That ſince no Man knows the Mind and Will of God, neither can rightly diſcern of Spiritual Matters, but as they are revealed and manifeſted by the Spirit of God; the very Scriptures themſelves are not a Revelation to him, but the Senſe and Purpoſe of them (ſo immediately revealed by the Eternal Spirit) is the only true Revelation, and the Scriptures but a Godly Tradition.

Moſes did not conclude his Predeceſſors ignorant of the Will of God, who were without a written Law. Nor did Job ſay, That the naked Books of Moſes were able to give Underſtanding; but the Inſpiration of the Almighty, Neither did Chriſt bid them read the Scriptures, that the Father might be revealed to them. Nor the Apoſtles require the Churches to have recourſe to their Writings (then ſcatter'd amongſt them) as what would only reveal to them the Mind of God. But as they affirm'd and preacht the Impoſſibility of knowing the Things of God any other Way, than that of Revelation from God; ſo did they attribute all ſuch Science, not to their Writings, but to his Spirit; directing all to the Grace, Spirit, and Anointing, as their moſt infallible Teacher.

Nay, The Lord (in his Wiſdom) apprehending, that the People would not believe Moſes, unleſs they had ſome ſenſible and convincing Evidence, was therefore pleas'd to ſay to Moſes, Lo I come in a thick Cloud, that the People may hear when I ſpeak with thee, and believe thee for ever, Exod. 19. 9. This was far from God's ſpeaking ſo, as that the People ſhould not hear as well as Moſes, or the Prophets. And truly, the plain Engliſh why we believe not the Black-Coats of our Age, is becauſe we don't hear God ſpeak to, or by them.

And indeed, it is the very Tenure of the new Covenant, that all ſhould be taught of God, which does not exclude Direction (the Tendency of Preaching under that Covenant, being to direct to that which alone can teach) as I may meet with a Man upon the Road, who not being able to inform me of the Way I would go, directs me to ſuch a Poſt, where the Town's Names and Croſs Ways are inſcribed, for the Information of Paſſengers: He cannot be ſaid to teach me the right Way, but he may be truly allow'd to direct me to what was able to inform me. The Samaritans believ'd the Report of the Woman, and embrac'd her Direction; but the Revelation was not from her, but from Chriſt. For no ſooner were they come to him, to whom the Woman had directed them for Satisfaction, but they had this Teſtimony to bear againſt all implicit Faith (and that not becauſe of what ſhe ſaid, but what they themſelves had ſeen and known of Chriſt) that they did believe, He was the Meſſiah, and only begotten Son of God.

Nor would we be thought to leſſen the Virtue, Uſe, and Reputation of the Holy Scriptures, whilſt we endeavour the Vindication of the Holy Spirit in his Office of Revelation to Believers.

They are uſeful in two eminent Reſpects.

Firſt, Hiſtorically, as giving us a true Narrative of the Tranſactions of thoſe Ages of the World, in reference to the Church or State of both Jews and Chriſtians, their Trials, Troubles, Temptations, Lapſes, Recoveries, and perfect Victories.

Secondly, Doctrinally, as preſenting us with a true Account of the Principles and Doctrines of the People of God, their Holy Faith and Patience; I cannot phraſe it better, than a Divine Glaſs, in which we ſee (I ſay WE SEE) who firſt have that Heavenly Organ and Eye opened by Inſpiration and Revelation) the States and Conditions of the Primitive Saints; which is Matter of unſpeakable Comfort and Confirmation, as well as of Good Example to us; yet ſtill, the efficient Cauſe of all, is the convincing Revelation and Operation of the Eternal Spirit of God; and the Scriptures are only uſeful, as unfolded by the Inſpiration of the ſame.

This is no new Doctrine, but the old and beſt Ground that the firſt Proteſtants, as Luther, Zuinglius, &c. abroad; and Whitaker, Reynolds, Jewel, &c. at home, proceeded on againſt the Papiſts, in vindication of their Revolt, and ſeparate Faith and Worſhip from thoſe Romaniſts: Only the Intereſt of the Mercenary Prieſts of theſe Times being varied, they have alſo chang'd their Way of proſecuting it; and ſtick not to deny us thoſe Pleas, they once with Confidence employ'd againſt their Romiſh Adverſaries, which this old angry Man might have been pleas'd to obſerve. But,

Secondly, That the only Sign and Evidence of Inſpiration is Miracles, I utterly renounce and deny, as what is moſt falſe and unworthy of the Reaſon, Perſpicuity, and Self-evidencing Verity of the Chriſtian Religion.

I need not go far to detect the Falſity of the Aſſertion; ſince many, nay moſt of the Prophets, are not recorded to have wrought any. And if the Scriptures are acknowledged to have been given forth by the Holy Ghoſt, how many mention'd in them, whoſe Words and Works compile them, never wrought ſo much as one Miracle, and that both under the Old and New Teſtament?

Beſides this wretched Doctrine denies that to be Revelation, which is not at the ſame inſtant accompanied with Miracles; then if it be Revelation to Thomas Jenner, and any of his (not Miraculous, but Monſtrous) Crew, only becauſe attended with Miracles; I hope he will give us leave to infer, that no Man ſince the World was, had ever any Revelation that had not Miracles, which naturally excludes the greateſt Part of the Scripture, as of Divine Canon, and makes the Will of God a ſealed Book, to thoſe, to whom the Scriptures teſtifie it was revealed. But this kind of arguing well becomes an Anti-revelation-man, and is an eminent Demonſtration how little of the Will of God is known to him.

Nevertheleſs, I would that all ſhould underſtand what we mean by Revelation, and that is this, That from our Conviction of the leaſt Evil, to our Redemption from it; and all the Knowledge we have of God, his Way, and good Pleaſure towards us, throughout the whole Exerciſe of our Religious Life; we aſcribe our Knowledge and Inſtruction to no other Thing than the Diſcoveries or Revelation of the Spirit of God in our Hearts: But this not in a Moment, but gradually, through our Obedience to what we know of him. For they that do my Will (ſaith God) ſhall know of my Doctrine, John 7. 17.

And we know not to what elſe we ſhould impute the eagerneſs of ſome Men againſt this neceſſary Doctrine of Daily Revelation of the Mind and Will of God, than to their greedy Deſire of graſping Divine Knowledge, whilſt in a State of Diſobedience to what they already know; and the Impoſſibility of their obtaining that Heavenly Science in that State of Impurity, makes them ſo impatient, and angry, and poſitive in their Denials of it to any other: Although, if they did but conſider, That it is the Inſpiration of the Almighty which gives them to underſtand what is Good, and what is Evil; that they might do the one, and reject the other: Not a Man in the World needed to be long ignorant of our Meaning of Revelation. And whilſt Men and Women continue in ſuch Watchfulneſs and Obedience, they are daily furniſhed with ſuch Diſcoveries from God, as ſuit their State and Condition.

I know the monſtrous Conceits, that ſome have of our Meaning by Revelation, fancying we underſtand Whimſical Raptures, Strange and Prodigious Trances; but ſuch imagine Evil of Things they know not: We diſclaim any Share or Intereſt in thoſe vain Whimſies and idle Intoxications; profeſſing our Revelation to be ſolid and neceſſary Diſcovery from the Lord, of thoſe Things that do import and concern our daily Conditions, in reference to the Honour which is due to him, and Care owing to our own Souls.

But how weak an Argument the Doctrine of Miracles is, to prove the Verity of the Chriſtian Faith, or Doctrine of Revelation, at this Time of Day, is beſt ſeen by conſidering 'twas Weakneſs that occaſioned them: For had not the Lord Jeſus obſerv'd the Darkneſs and Carnality of thoſe Times, to be ſo great, as without reaching through the black Clouds of their Traditions and Superſtitions, by the Hand of his Miracles (or viſible Signs to their Underſtandings, or rather Senſes) there was no likelihood of faſtning a Conviction on them, there never had been need of an external Miracle in any ſuch Senſe. I would that the Man ſhould know, we have receiv'd and maintain'd our Faith in Chriſt by more noble and ſublime Arguments, guments, than that of Miracles; namely, the Truth, Reaſon, Equity, Holineſs, and Recompence of the Chriſtian Religion; which Miracles can never render more, or leſs, Intrinſically ſo.

Not that we put a low Eſteem upon Miracles, but comparatively only: And to ſay they are ceaſt, is in no other Senſe true, than that wherein Viſion or Revelation is; I mean, they are ceaſt to them that have not Faith. For many have, and do know, the Power of taking up their Sick-Beds, and walking; their Faith in God's Power has made them whole.

His firſt Part of his Anſwer being conſider'd, I ſhall apply my ſelf to examine the Weight of the Second.

Secondly, The Subſtance of the other Part of his Anſwer, is briefly this, That the Prieſts and Levites, who were the People's Inſtructors under the Law, ſpoke not by Viſion or Revelation, but only what God had ſpoken by the Prophets, for many P. 93, 94, 95 Generations were without Prophets, but not Teachers; and that which is now to be taught, ought not to be from any new Revelation; but from what has been already preacht and laid down in the Scriptures, by Chriſt and his Apoſtles; the contrary being ſubject to much Fallacy and Deluſion. To back all which he quoted ſeveral Scriptures, but how pertinently to the Matter in Hand, will be the ſubject of our Inquiry.

Should I grant him his firſt Aſſertion, and the Reaſon he gives for it; of how little Moment would it be to the Buſineſs in debate? What if the People then were to have the Law from the Prieſt's Mouth, is it a good Conſequence that therefore under a Goſpel Diſpenſation, and the glorious Covenant of Life, it ſhould be the ſame? What greater Advantage would redound to Mankind by the ſecond, than the firſt Covenant, if there were not an univerſal Prieſthood? You are a Royal Prieſthood, ſaid Peter: Kings and Prieſts, ſaid John; and had that Covenant been perfect in this Particular, there had not been Need of another. 1 Pet. 2. 9. Rev. 1. 6. & 5. 10. Heb. 8. 7.

But never let any think that the idle, covetous, ſelf-intereſted Prieſts will admit of any Principle or Practice, that may in the leaſt leſſen their Tyranny and Simonious Oppreſſion. No, Let God be diſhonoured, let the Covenant of Grace fall to the Ground, and the whole World labour under the Yoak and Bondage of Mercenary Hirelings, rather than they ſhould give their Conſent to ſuch a total diſbanding and ſubverſion of them, and their Ungodly Gains.

But beſides, That this Conſequence is moſt unnatural, and deſtructive of the whole Deſign of the Goſpel; he endeavours in his Aſſertion to obtrude an arrant Lye upon us: For there was Viſion and immediate Helps beſides the Moſaical Law: Nay, the Law being Matter of Duty, did not ſufficiently impower ſuch, as were to keep it, to do ſo; it told them much of what they ought to do, and what not; yet not the thouſandth Part of thoſe Temptations and ſecret Workings of the Evil One, to defile and alienate their Minds from God; which for all the Law, they muſt have periſhed under, had they not had the Diſcovery of them, and the Remedies againſt them, from daily Heavenly Viſion. And this cannot but be imply'd from our Adverſaries own Words; for they were to teach (or expound) What? their own Inventions, or Experiences? If the former, we may the more eaſily know of what Tribe he is; if the latter, it's utterly impoſſible they could do that, and not have been acquainted with Divine Viſion and Revelation: For what can any experience of God, or Spiritual Things, without a Diſcovery of them; and that's only by the Spirit's illuminating the Underſtanding.

But, ſays he, God ſpake by the Prophets, and the Prophets were but at certain Times.

What then? Therefore did he not ſpeak ordinarily by Viſions and Revelations? But that he tells us he is an Old Man, and that many Infirmities attend Age, I could ſcarcely paſs this decrepit Inference, without ſome farther Notice than I am now willing to take: But if this be right Argumentation, then I will ſay, that becauſe God ſpoke by the Prophets, he did not ſpeak by the Apoſtles.

Is there any Thing more evident, than that God gave his good Spirit to the Children of Iſrael? And what for? If not to afford them Viſion; for every Viſion, or Act of the Spirit in the Underſtanding of the Creature, is Revelation? And if God gave them his Good Spirit, neither to appear nor act in them, he gave it to no Purpoſe; but 'tis moſt certain his End was, that it ſhould do both.

Secondly, Moſes deſired that all the Lord's People might be Prophets; and unleſs the Man will ſuppoſe, that Moſes deſired a Thing in-obtainable, or unlawful (which were to impeach him of not a little Ignorance and Preſumption) or take for granted, that Men may be Prophets, and not have Revelation (contrary to his own Apprehenſion and Force of the Word) he muſt acknowledge, that if every Man had not Revelation in that Day, it was not God's Fault, but by Diſobedience his own; and if then ſo, much more now.

Thirdly, If Viſion and Revelation were not more ordinary and familiar, than is allow'd of by our Adverſaries, how comes it, that amongſt many others (for I am willing to be brief) the Prophet Micah ſpake after this Manner.

Mic. 3. 6, 7. Therefore Night ſhall be unto you, that ye ſhall not have Viſion; and it ſhall be dark unto you, that ye ſhall not Divine; and the Sun ſhall go down over the Prophets, and the Day ſhall be Dark over them; then ſhall the Seers be aſham'd, and the Diviners confounded; yea, they ſhall all cover their Lips, for there is no Anſwer of God.

Certainly the Prophet ſpake Truth, and as certain then it is that T. J. has writ a Lye; for what can be more plain, than that there were Diviners and Prophets among the People? And is it not as evident, that the Reaſon why the Sun of Viſion was ſet over their Heads, and their Diviners were confounded, was their Rebellion and Diſobedience to God, namely, Their Teaching for Hire, Divining for Money, and Judging for Reward. (read the following Verſes.) And what other Reaſon can we give, why Jenner and his Brethren are Enemies to all Revelation, than that of their Diſobedience to God, and horrid Cozenage of the People.

Firſt, In ſaying they are Miniſters of Chriſt, and have not One of his Marks.

Secondly, In denying the Miniſtration of the Goſpel, by the Revelation of the Spirit.

Laſtly, In Teaching theſe Deluſions for Hire and Reward.

I hope by this Time, all Impartial Readers will do God, the Scriptures, themſelves, and our Friends, the Juſtice of abhorring the Falſeneſs, Ignorance, and Malicious Imputations of our Adverſary; who whilſt he pretends to be a Miniſter of Chriſt, and their Friend, Endeavours to overturn the Foundation of his Kingdom, and the moſt unerring Ground of their Eternal Conſolation.

Jer. 31. 34.
Heb. 1. 9, 10, 11.
1 Cor. 6. 19.
Revel. 21. 3.

With what Succeſs can any think he could enterprize the proving of the Non-neceſſity of Revelation under the Goſpel, who has ſo lamely manag'd the ſame Aſſertion under the Law (where there was more Room, at leaſt for a Pretence) I cannot tell, nor I believe any elſe: For take away Revelation, and take away the Goſpel: Wherein is a better Covenant, or more Heavenly Diſpenſation? Or are the Laſt Days ſurpaſſing the Firſt; If the Times of Reſtitution leave us ſtill under the Tuition of Mortal Men? If the Law be not writ in the Heart, the Spirit put in the Inward Parts, and every one taught of God? Nay, If we are not Temples of the Holy Ghoſt, and that God tabernacles and dwells not in us; we do but mock the World with the ſplendid Names of Goſpel-Days, Covenant of Grace, Glad-Tidings, Times of Refreſhment, and perfect Redemption, &c. But let every ſuch Jannes and Jambres, and their Goſpel be accurſt.

However, the Man adventures at a Vindication of his wretched Aſſertion from the Scriptures, as,

Heb. 12. 25. Firſt, See that ye refuſe not him that ſpeaketh: This (ſays he) is ſpoken in the Preſent Tenſe, though Chriſt was in Heaven, and ſpoke not; but what he at any Time hath ſpoken, when it is made uſe of, or apply'd, it muſt be accounted his preſent Speaking: Therefore (ſays he) Saints are ſaid to be built upon the Prophets and the Apoſtles, Jeſus Chriſt himſelf being the Chief Corner-Stone; and not upon an immediate Voice that comes from God; but upon the Word of God ſpoken by the Prophets, and is a more ſure Word than an immediate Word, for there may be much Falſity and Deluſion in that; but we know that God ſpake with Moſes, &c.

Epheſ. 2. 20.

I muſt frankly profeſs, that were it not for the Truth's Sake, and their deluded Souls (who through Simplicity have been beguil'd) I ſhould reſt for ever ſilent, from concerning my ſelf in theſe ſordid, weak, and beggarly Cavils, ſince I ſhall always deſpair of working any Change upon a Man, ſo Grey-headed in his Confidence and Folly.

Deut. 18. 18. Can a more pregnant Paſſage be urg'd, to prove the perpetual Speaking of Chriſt to his Church, than the Place mention'd? Was he not promiſ'd thus, I will raiſe them up a Prophet from their Brethren, like unto thee, and will put my Words in his Mouth; and he ſhall ſpeak unto them all that I command him: And it ſhall come to paſs, that whoſoever will not hearken to my Words, which he ſhall ſpeak in my Name, I will require it of him? And did he not ſay, He would be with his to the End of the World? And he would not leave them comfortleſs, he would come to them; and that He, who was with them, ſhould be in them?

But I perceive the Scriptures are of as little Reputation with him, as he would falſly render them to be with us.

His Expoſition I will attend, viz. That it was not by Revelation, but written Tradition, that Chriſt ſpake, which is the Subſtance of what he would infer.

The Apoſtle Paul (as is ſuppos'd) writing to the Hebrews, amongſt many other weighty Matters, from the eighteenth Verſe of the ſecond Chapter, to the five and twentieth of the ſame, takes Occaſion for their Information and Comfort, to tell them, That they were not come to the Mount that might not be touched, nor to Blackneſs and Tempeſt, which made Moſes exceedingly Fear and Quake, &c. but to Mount Zion, to Jeruſalem, the City of the Living God, to the General Aſſembly, to the Church of the Firſt-Born, to God the Judge of all, to the Spirits of Juſt Men made Perfect, and to Jeſus the Mediator of the New Covenant: See that ye refuſe not him that ſpeaketh; for if they eſcaped not, who refuſed him that ſpoke on Earth, much more ſhall not we eſcape, if we turn away from him that ſpeaketh from Heaven: This Place is the very Tenor of the Goſpel. And truly I am beholden to the Man, that ſince he can find no Scripture for his own Turn, he has provided one Paſſage ſo pertinent to mine.

The Law came by Moſes, but Grace and Truth by Jeſus Chriſt: The firſt Covenant was for a Time, and imperfect; the ſecond for ever, and moſt perfect: The Condition of the firſt was, To have the Law at the Prieſt's Mouth; that of the ſecond is, To be all taught of God, to learn the Law of the Spirit of Life at the Mouth of our moſt perfect High-Prieſt, Chriſt Jeſus the Righteous. Moſes did ſpeak, did give a Law from God, was in the World; but his Day is ended, his Diſpenſation and Covenant paſt away (by the bringing in of a better Hope) but Chriſt doth ſpeak, he doth give a New Law, he was in the World (though not of it) is in the World, and will be to the End thereof; his Day is to Day, and for ever, and his Diſpenſation always in the Preſent Tenſe; for of his Government there ſhall be no End.

But how any Man in his Wits, can rationally infer, that becauſe Chriſt ſpeaketh, therefore he does not ſpeak, only he did ſpeak, I leave to the Judgment of any that can diſtinguiſh betwixt the Preſent and Preterperfect Tenſe, the Time preſent and paſt: For becauſe the Apoſtle ſaith, Chriſt ſpeaketh, therefore ſays T. J. he did ſpeak but he does not now ſpeak: What if one ſhould ſay, T. Jenner is an Hireling, would it be a good Conſequence to ſay, therefore he was one, but is not now one; or contrarily, He did write againſt the Quakers, to get a Livelihood by his Books, therefore he does and will write againſt them for that End, but he did not write againſt them: Or, that though he ſays he is ſixty ſix Years old, yet we are to underſtand he was ſixty ſix Years, but he is not ſo much now. I can never underſtand, that the Reaſon why the Apoſtle makes Chriſt a daily preſent Speaker to his People, ſhould be the Reaſon why Jenner denies he is ſo, unleſs from the apparent Contrariety of their Apprehenſions.

Indeed, I ſhould ſtand amaz'd at the Stupidity of the Man, did I not know how Juſt, as well as frequent, the Lord is, in leaving Men under ſtrange Infatuations; that a Scripture ſo pertinent for immediate Teaching, ſhould be urg'd againſt it,

Is it the Goſpel State (as the Apoſtle avows it) to come to God, the Judge of all, to the Spirits of Juſt Men made perfect, and to Jeſus the Mediator of the New Covenant, and yet want Revelation and Perfection?

Nor is it leſs worthy our Obſervation, that any Man ſhould be ſo dark, as to imagine, that Chriſt's Teaching-Office was at an end with his outward Life, when he ſo expreſly (and his Apoſtles after him) makes that to be his chiefeſt Work, when viſibly withdrawn from them.

Firſt, That he would be with them to the End of the World, Mat. 28.

Secondly, That ſome ſhould not taſte of Death, till they ſaw him come in his Kingdom (and that was within them) Mat. 16. 28.

Thirdly, That he that is with them, ſhould be In them, John 14. 17.

Fourthly, That when the Comforter (or Advocate) came, he would lead them into all Truth; which was himſelf, in his Spiritual Adminiſtration; for the Lord is that Spirit, John 16. 13. and the Greek Word in the 17th of John, is the ſame Word in 1 John 2. 1. If any Man ſin we have an [Advocate] with the Father, Jeſus Chriſt the Righteous, &c.

Fifthly, Except Chriſt be in you, ye are Reprobates, 2 Cor. 13. 5.

Sixthly, ſaid Paul, When it pleaſed God to REVEAL his Son IN me. Gal. 1. 15. 16.

Seventhly, Chriſt in you, the Hope of Glory, Col. 1. 27.

Eighthly, If any Man love me, he will keep my Words, and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our ABODE with him, John 14. which, with many more Places, teſtifie to Chriſt's dwelling in, and cohabiting with Believers.

Nor can it reaſonably be thought, it ſhould be otherwiſe, for if under the Goſpel, the utmoſt of our Privilege, muſt be a Law written, not ſo much as upon Stone, inſtead of a Law of Life; we are ſo far from being advantaged by the Change, that we are upon more uncertain Terms than before. But ſince it was the Deſign of God, by giving his Son, an immediate Light, to enliven and enlighten the dark and dead World, and bring it into a nearer Union, and more intimate Knowledge of him, and Fellowſhip with him, even to the giving it a Part or Portion of his own Divine Nature, and a being perfectly turned into the Purity and Holineſs of it; For any to deny Revelation, is of all Things, moſt abſurdly ignorant and ſacrilegiouſly abominable.

And thus much the Paſſage, cited by our Adverſary, evidently makes appear; for if the Apoſtle did not intend that Chriſt ſhould be underſtood to be a perpetual immediate Speaker to his Church; why did he not as well phraſe Chriſt's Speaking in the Preterimperfect Tenſe (it being paſt) as well as that of Moſes? But if we ought to underſtand, that Moſes did not ſpeak then in Paul's Time, becauſe his Expreſſion of him relates to a Time long ſince elapſt; then by good Reaſon, may we conclude, that Chriſt is an immediate perpetual Speaker to his Church; becauſe the Apoſtle did not uſe the ſame Phraſe concerning Chriſt, as he did of Moſes, though both (as to any external Appearance) are equally gone (Of Moſes) he ſays, For if they eſcaped not, that refuſed him that ſpake on Earth; (Of Chriſt) much more ſhall not we eſcape, if we turn away from him that ſpeaketh from Heaven.

In ſhort, If he deſign'd we ſhould underſtand Chriſt's Speaking, to have been paſt, why did he not as well ſay, ſpeak, of Chriſt, as he did of Moſes? But becauſe he ſaid, ſpake, of Moſes, and ſpeaketh, of Chriſt, we muſt infer, that he intended Chriſt was a perpetual immediate Teacher, and Speaker to his People. Otherwiſe, if (by ſpeaketh) we muſt underſtand a Time paſt, we reaſonably ought to conclude, that by Spake, is meant the Time preſent; but if the latter be ridiculous and falſe, the former cannot be leſs impertinent and fooliſh.

But perhaps the Word here ſtumbles him, the Man being ſo dark, as to conceit ſome auricular Sound, through the viſible Firmament, but I would have him know, That Heaven is where Chriſt inhabits, and he fills Heaven and Earth too; and though Believers Bodies are on Earth, their Spirits are in Heavenly Places, where the Voice of the True Spiritual Shepherd is Spiritually heard and known.

His other Scriptures are as little to his Purpoſe, viz. 1 Tim. 6. 14. Keep this Commandment until the Appearance of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt. 2 Tim. 2. 2. The Things which thou heardeſt from me, the ſame commit thou to Faithful Men, who ſhall be able to teach others. Jude ver. 3. Contend for the Faith which was once delivered to the Saints. Hold the Traditions which ye have been taught, that ye may be able, by Sound Doctrine, both to exhort and convince Gainſayers.

We greatly want the Conſequence. By no means, ſays Thomas Jenner, Behold here is one at hand; to wit, There is no Certainty in Revelation; an immediate Word is Fallacious, Deceitful, and Deluſive; but we know that God ſpoke to Moſes, and the Prophets, &c.

I am weary with wondring; the Frequency of his Folly hath taken away almoſt the Senſe of it; and indeed, 'tis unreaſonable that a Man ſhould be diſpleas'd with any for what is ſo natural to them. But I anſwer.

Did ever any Quaker in the World deny the Scriptures quoted? Do they not own, That the Commandments ſhould be kept for ever? That Timothy did well to commit the wholeſome Doctrine he had heard of Paul to others, and that the Faith ſhould be contended for; and the Tradition, or thoſe Holy Truths, declar'd by the Apoſtle, ſhould abide with them to whom he ſpake, and with us too, for evermore. But what has this to do with the Neceſſity of Revelation? Does not the ſame Apoſtle expreſly ſay, The Spirit of God only can give to diſcern the Things of God, and that if any Man is otherwiſe minded, God will REVEAL it to him.

But what's the Matter with the Man, that an immediate Word is of leſs Force with him than what's Traditional? Has he endeavour'd to detect us of a Confederacy with the Papiſts, and yet he himſelf maintain their moſt Fundamental Error:

Namely, The Infallibility of Tradition: Have they a ſtronger Plea? Nay, is it not their moſt Dianian Doctrine, Calculated to the utter Overthrow both of the Holy Spirit and Scriptures.

What can be more ſubject to Variation and Sophiſtication than Books? And what more certain, than what we ſee with our Eyes, hear with our Ears, and handle with our Hands of any Thing. He that denies the Verity of an immediate Word, and adheres to the Uncertainty of a Report, muſt diſown his own Senſe, and at the ſame Time embrace that of another Man's. Certainly he would have made a rare Papiſt; for by his Principles there can be no greater Ground for Faith, than a mighty Confidence in the Report of another Man. How Rational the Senſeleſs Opinion of Tranſubſtantiation would have appeared to ſuch a Perſon, is not hard to determine, that eſteems a Matter True, not becauſe he ſees or hears it to be, but becauſe another told him he did, or his Great Grand-father at leaſt.

But if an immediate Word muſt be ſo dangerous and deceitful, I wonder upon what Terms he believes the Scriptures to be True: He ſays, He is ſure that God ſpake to Moſes and the Prophets, I deſire to know which Way he came to this mighty Aſſurance. Is it becauſe it was reveal'd to him? By no Means: He is afraid of nothing more than Inſpiration; it muſt be then becauſe he had been told ſo; And is not this a moſt Scriptural and Proteſtant Way of Believing (or much the contrary.)

Has the Man forgot, that in his own Expreſſion he has impeach'd the whole Reformation, whilſt he vainly ſeems to praiſe the Authors of it; for if the Reaſon of Believing is not Inſpiration, it muſt be Tradition; and if Tradition be the Ground of Faith, it's high Time he had a Roman Penſion for his Pains: The very Papiſts, (I mean the more moderate) abhor the Largeneſs of this Conceſſion, and yet we find it in expreſs Terms in a Preſbyterian Parſon (Whitaker) an ancient Proteſtant Writer, who was of another Opinion, in his Book againſt Bellarmine, betaking himſelf to the Sanctuary of Divine Revelation, from the Purſuit of that Jeſuitical Plea of the Infallibility of Tradition, viz. That therefore the Scriptures appeared to be True, and their own Conſtructions of greater Authority than the Ancient Doctors, becauſe the Spirit did witneſs with their Spirits, that both the Scriptures were from God, and the Scope of them truly underſtood by them: And thus ſaid Ameſius on the ſame Subject. It is a great Shame, as well as manifeſt Folly, that rather than not abuſe the Quakers, Men will renounce and oppoſe the avow'd Principles of their moſt admir'd Anceſtors; but ſuch is the Unhappineſs of the Man in Hand, with many more (of his Fraternity) That will violently withſtand all Inſpiration, though it run them upon the Sands of fallible Tradition.

But there is one material Inſtance yet omitted, which the Man doubtleſs confides not a little in, viz.

Well ſpake (ſaid Paul) the Holy Ghoſt by Iſaiah: Paul did not ſay, well ſpake the Holy Ghoſt by me, but by Iſaiah, which Paul made uſe of againſt the Jews, to whom he ſpake, though it were not God's Word immediately, yet mediately; the ſame is True of the Faithful Miniſters of Chriſt, who therefore are no Falſe Prophets.

How fatal a Blow our Adverſary has given his Anti-Revelation Cauſe, in his Alluſion to Paul, I proceed to ſhew.

If Paul's Quotation of thoſe Words were not by Inſpiration, then is it no Part or Portion of Scripture, or immediate Revelation, which were both irreverent and abſurd to ſay, upon our Adverſaries own Principles. But why none of Paul's, becauſe Iſaiah's? As if the ſame Truth may not be reveal'd to a Thouſand ſeveral Perſons I ſay, that ſame Holy Spirit, that ſpake by Iſaiah, brought theſe Words to Paul's Remembrance; and had Iſaiah never ſpoken them, if not the very Words, yet the Purpoſe of them, would have been us'd by that Apoſtle, as being ſuitable to the Matter in Hand; and the mentioning of Iſaiah's Name, was no otherwiſe uſeful, than becauſe he ſpoke to the Jews; that whilſt they condemned Paul for an Heretick, they receiv'd Iſaiah for a Prophet.

But the Parſon little thought, that though it ſhould be granted that Paul made uſe of another's Revelation (as the Prieſts ſay they do, both of Prophets and Apoſtles) yet that Paul had alſo Revelations of his own, which they deny, and therefore a moſt unhappy Inſtance for the poor Prieſts.

For if it be a good Argument, that the now Miniſters ſhould make uſe of Paul's Revelation, becauſe he made uſe of Iſaiah's, I am ſure it is no bad one, That becauſe Paul alſo own'd, and had Revelations (as well as that 'tis ſaid he borrow'd Iſaiah's) the preſent Miniſters ought to own and have Revelation too. But if they are 1671. Chap. II. are ſo far from being like Paul in the latter, as that they exclaim againſt Revelation, as a Deluſive Thing, they ought not to borrow and merchandize with the Revelation of other Men.

The Three Scriptures he pretends to anſwer, or rather expound in Oppoſition to what he calls our Senſe of them, I might very well omit to conſider at this Time, having ſo largely ſpoken to the Point, they chiefly are imploy'd by us to vindicate; but that our Adverſaries may ſee how little their Endeavours contribute to their Cauſe, I ſhall touch upon them.

Jer. 31. 34. Heb. 8. 11. p. 97. Firſt, They ſhall no more teach every Man his Neighbour, and every one his Brother, ſaying, Know the Lord; for they ſhall all know me, from the leaſt to the greateſt. Which (ſaith he) cannot exclude the Miniſtry of Man; for the Apoſtle and Evangeliſts labour'd in the Word and Doctrine.

But the poor Man is miſerably put to it, to prove his Inference, and indeed, has not ſo much as rationally attempted it.

We confeſs it does not exclude God's Teaching by Man; for the Word of Reconciliation was, and is, committed to ſome of the Sons of Men: But as Paul's Call was not by the Will of Man, ſo neither his Miniſtry: And to aſſert an humane Miniſtry from this Paſſage, or to affirm it not to be deſtructive of the Miniſtry of Man, is to give an high Inſtance of groſs Ignorance.

And though in the Beginning of the Goſpel Adminiſtration, Teaching, in the Senſe expreſt, was allow'd, nay, commendable and neceſſary; yet, the End of it, is to be brought into ſuch an improv'd State, as ſhall never need it more, which could never be the Tendency, nor End, of the old Covenant.

In fine, They are taught of God, who are taught by the Spirit of God in another: However the Place totally excludes thoſe, who borrow their Neighbour's Words, and ſpeak what they have not known and receiv'd of the Lord.

1 Jo. 2. 27. p. 99. Secondly, The Second Scripture is that of John, But the Anointing, which ye have receiv'd of him, abideth in you; and you need not that any Man teach you, but as the ſame Anointing teacheth you all Things, and is no Lye.

To which he offers ſeveral Anſwers, or Expoſitions, but horribly contradictory to each other.

His firſt is, That the Apoſtle meant, they had no need, who through Grace were anointed with the indwelling ſaving Operations, and efficacious Influence of the Spirit (which is the only Teacher) to hearken to the Doctrine of Cerinthus, Ebion, or the Gnoſticks; who though they pretend to be Miniſters of Chriſt, are indeed Antichriſts.

Where by the way, I muſt take Liberty to obſerve, how plainly he vindicates both Revelation, and the Spirit's being the only Teacher or Rule; If the only Teacher, then no other Teacher; and what then becomes of his Miniſtry of Man?

Next, it's ſtrange ſo old a Man ſhould be ſo ignorant and impudent at once, as to infer ſo wrong and ſo unnatural a Conſequence from the Words of the Apoſtle: How could the Holy Ghoſt intend, that the Anointing was able to teach them, what were the Words of thoſe Men, and yet not what was the Way of Truth: 'Tis not to be ſuppoſed, that it was given only to preſerve from Error, and not to lead into all Truth. But the Parſon would not that the Miniſtry of Man ſhould be totally excluded, and therefore bequeaths to it, the more noble Employment, viz. To inform of the Myſteries of the Goſpel, but the Anointing was only to teach to avoid Error; as if what did the one, was not to do the other: Horrible Folly!

But if the Man will have the Apoſtle to mean, that becauſe they had received the Anointing, they needed not that Cerinthus ſhould teach them his Hereſie: I hope he will give us leave to infer, that before they had received the Anointing, they had great Need to embrace his erroneous Teachings; but becauſe ſuch a Conſtruction is moſt abuſively falſe, it is apparent, that by Man's Teaching was meant the legal Adminiſtration, or the utmoſt Ability, except that which was deriv'd from, or grounded upon, Inſpiration.

And that I ſpeak the Truth, let us conſider his ſecond Anſwer, viz. That this was not ſpoken to all Men, but of thoſe that are come to Chriſt, and need no Man to teach them.

O Stupendious Contradiction! Why? The Man is here become our Proſelyte, he ſpeaks the Language of perfect Revelation: Certainly, if they were thus qualified that they needed no Man's Teaching, ſome were come to a State that was above the ſo much beloved Miniſtry of Man: And how this agrees with the firſt Anſwer, viz. That the Teaching was only to avoid Error, but not of Force enough to inform them of all Truth (as his Expoſition did import) let the ſober Man judge.

1671. Chap. II. p. 100.

His third Anſwer is his third Contradiction, viz. That the Anointing meant, was the Spirit in the Scripture (to make the beſt of his other improper Phraſes) to which no Teaching of Man ſhould be added, but as we are taught there.

It is as hard for me to underſtand what he means by the Spirit in the Scriptures, as it is for him to make it out; I hope he does not mean, that when the Bible is in his Pocket, the holy Ghoſt is there; though that which is their Life and Spirit in the Scriptures, is the ungodly Gain, they make by them, and that they always love to carry there.

But 'tis apparent, that though they would ſeem to joyn the Spirit with the Scriptures, in Reality he means, the Scriptures without the Spirit; for how can the holy Spirit be added to? But the Scriptures may.

What Harmony this third Interpretation has with his two former, that appropriated all to the Anointing, and in Expreſſions ſo plain and poſitive, as no Quaker needs to except againſt them, cannot but be obvious to every unbyaſt Perſon.

But that he may not take for granted, that it was the Scripture the Apoſtle was inſpir'd to give forth, but that very Anointing which inſpir'd the Apoſtle. Let it be firſt conſidered that the Word is plain, Anointing, without any other adjunct. And ſecondly, that little was written, or at leaſt compoſ'd, but ſcattered abroad among the ſeveral Churches, at that early Time of the Day; or to uſe his own Words, p. 102. The New Teſtament was not then extant.

Laſtly (ſays he) 'twere well if it were the laſt of his Abſurdities) Theſe Words are an Hyperbole; there is an Exceſs in them, as in chap. 2. 20. that they know all Things, which is God's only property. The meaning is, They knew many Things, even ſo that they needed not that any Man teach them; that is, They knew ſo much, as that if they perſevered, they might be kept without ſo much Teaching.

It were (almoſt) endleſs to purſue the wretched Folly of this poor Scribler: Was there no other Man among the angry Hirelings, of that Country, to enterprize this Work? Methinks they ſhould (as Men) have ſcorn'd to ſuffer ſo raw and contradictory a Diſcourſe to ſee the World: What greater Abuſe can be put upon the Scriptures than this, to mangle them under the vain Pretence of being ſkill'd in the Idioms of the Original? 'Tis an Exceſs (ſays he (of Folly ſay I) but what is an Exceſs? To ſay that ſuch as have the Holy Spirit need not to be taught by Man, then there is an Exceſs in pag. 99, and 100. of his own Diſcourſe, where he gives that for his Senſe of the Place in controverſie; Yes (ſays he) it is, for the Apoſtle ſaid, They knew all Things, and they did not: But I had rather Jenner were a Lyar, than the Apoſtle: Can ſuch as are taught by the Holy Spirit be ignorant of any Thing that relates to their own Souls? And is the Man ſo ſtupid, as to think the Apoſtle otherwiſe intended, in his ſaying, They knew all Things (viz. That concern them to know)

Well, but for his meaning now, I would fain be inform'd, If from knowing all Things, in the Senſe expreſs'd, and needing not to be taught of Men, this meaning of our Antagoniſt may be logically and truly deduc'd? Namely, That they needed not that any Man ſhould teach them; that is, they might be kept without much Teaching, and this all in a Breath? The firſt Part of his Meaning is true (if he mean ſo) however, he was ſoon weary of it, that in the following line implies the Neceſſity (after all) of a little of Man's Miniſtry to mix with it; but that little (with him) is all. In fine, the Man ſhews an Ignorance in theſe Affairs, almoſt invincible.

His third Paſſage, by him pretended to be expounded, is this, We have a more ſure Word of Propheſie, whereunto you do well to take heed, as unto a Light that ſhineth in a dark Place until the Day dawn, and the Day-ſtar ſhineth in your Hearts.

He faſtens an Interpretation of this Place upon us, but does not tell us whence he takes it: He ſays it ſuppoſeth three Things.

Firſt, That by the Word of Propheſie is to be underſtood, the whole Scriptures.

To which he anſwers, Firſt, That the Apoſtle could not mean the whole Scriptures, ſince the New Teſtament was not then extant. Second, That it was a Compariſon pariſon betwixt the Certainty of the Old Teſtament, and the Voice upon the Mount; which (ſays he) Peter preſer'd not as moſt true, but as the moſt ſure Ground for Faith of the two. Third, That the Voice was not ſo ſure, whilſt verbal; but moſt ſure when writ, and made ſcriptural.

To all which I ſay, That as he has obtruded upon us an Interpretation of the Word Propheſie, that is neither ours, nor could be the Apoſtle's (and therefore forc'd.) So to his firſt Conceit I reply, That the Spirit of Jeſus is the Word of Propheſie, which is not diſtinct in Nature from the Day-ſtar, but in Degree only; the utmoſt Attainment being ſtill through the ſame Power and Spirit, however, diverſly denominated, according to it's ſeveral Operations; for as the Prophet's State was before that of the Goſpel (yet the ſame Spirit in both) ſo the Spirit of Propheſie is the ſame with the Glorious Day-ſtar, though in it's Appearance, Service and Tendency, it may be of an inferior Adminiſtration.

p. 99. 100. Beſides, It could not be all the Scriptures, becauſe, The New Teſtament was not then extant: How could the Scripture inſpir'd by John (to uſe his own Phraſe) be the then Saints Rule of Faith and Ground of Knowledge; ſince he confeſſes, It was not then in eſſe, in being? But if that was not extant, and yet they were not without a Teacher and a Rule, we hope it will be granted to us, that the Holy Anointing was both.

Secondly, I do deny, that the Compariſon was betwixt the Old Teſtament and the Voice in the Mount; for of the two, without all doubt, the Voice was the moſt ſure; ſince two Witneſſes are better than one. Of the Old Teſtament, they could only ſay they had read it, and they believ'd it to be of God, becauſe they were told ſo (unleſs Tho. Jenner will allow the Scriptures to be acknowledg'd ſuch, only upon an Inſpiration) But of the certainty of that Tranſaction in the Mount, they had their Eyes and Ears to confirm it, and the Allowance of the Son of God, as afterwards their Diſcourſe about it evidenceth, with their own inward Senſe of it, than which nothing could be attended with greater Circumſtances of Verity.

But it is worth our Notice, that notwithſtanding he has accuſed us upon the Spot, of diſreſpect to the Scriptures, he by his own Interpretation and Confeſſion, expreſſeth our greater Value of them, than the Voice upon the Mount, for if I underſtand him, he ſays, the Quakers make the Scriptures to be the Word of Propheſie, and by-and-by tells us, he grants that the Apoſtle meant the old Teſtament was ſo, and that the Compariſon lies betwixt it and the Voice. From whence I conclude, He believes (if he believes what he writes) that becauſe the Scripture is a ſurer Word of Propheſy than the Voice; and that the Quakers, he ſays, affirm the Scripture is that Word of Propheſy, the Quakers then place more value upon a written and recorded Word, than in an immediate Word or Voice: Behold the Contradiction of the Man!

But above all, his groſs Impertinency in ſaying. The Old Teſtament is not to be preferred as the moſt true, and yet is the moſt ſure Ground of Faith of the two; is very remarkable and reprovable.

Thirdly and laſtly, If the Certainty of what was heard lay in the writing of it, then it was not certain before; but if they could not write before they heard it, and that it was firſt certainly heard, before written, what Man in his Wits will dare to affirm that it was therefore only certain, becauſe Scriptural or Written.

In ſhort, if it was not as certain before as after, it is uncertain yet; ſince whatever certainly is heard, was received firſt by the Hearing of it. But again, What can be more irrational, than that the Old Teſtament ſhould be a Rule to the then Churches and Apoſtles, that were Miniſters and Congregations of the New One? This very Aſſertion, beſides that, it carries much of Folly in it, ſhews how fatal the Spirits of the Prieſts are to the whole End and Benefit of the Goſpel.

2d. The Second Interpretation of the Remainder of that Scripture he makes to be this, viz. That by the very Dawning and Day-ſtar ariſing in their Hearts, is to be underſtood the Spirit of Grace in Regeneration: But this (ſays he) cannot be; for Peter wrote to ſuch as had obtained like precious Faith with himſelf, Chap. 1. 1.

Of all which I take no farther Notice than this, That though they had received like precious Faith in Kind, yet not in Meaſure and Degree, for then they might have as well writ that Epiſtle to Peter, as he did to them. But if Peter had a right Senſe of their Conditions, and that the Holy Ghoſt does nothing needleſs or in vain; we ought to conclude, that they had not yet arriv'd to that perfect State, albeit, they were preſſing after it, as that they ſtood not in Need of a farther Exhortation: And that Peter had a more deep Experience, than thoſe to whom he wrote. So much for this, unleſs he had given us our own Words.

3*d*. His third Branch of Interpretation concerns the Particle [Until] which, he ſays, we underſtand to be the limited Inſtant of Regeneration, though before it we may attend the Scriptures, yet after it we may not.

To which, by Way of Anſwer, he makes a wretched Stir about the Particle Until. So, like a mean Pedant, and one that would be thought an Originalian, (the Refuge of empty Heads, and defeated Cauſes) that it would be too tedious to attend his indirect and crooked Motions. But in ſhort, this he means by the whole, that ſometimes, [Until] in Scripture is taken for no Limitation, and ſometimes for a Limitation, Inſtances he gives us ſeveral, but of one Side only, &c. thou ſhalt by no Means come out thence [Till] thou haſt paid the utmoſt Farthing, Matth. 5. 26. Now, ſays he, that is meant never: But where's the Conſequence? Why this? that the Scriptures are to be attended upon after the ariſing of this Day-ſtar.

To which I anſwer, That nothing can be more Contradictory to the Senſe of Scripture, and his own Opinion upon the Place, and by his Folly in this one Particular, the Reader may take a moſt clear Meaſure of the whole.

Firſt then, I ſay, that [Until] is not thus to be read, no more than, do this 'till I come, in the Caſe of the Supper, where our Adverſaries allow, that when He, the Subſtance, is come, the Shadow ſhall diſappear; and though we differ about the Subſtance coming, yet all agree to the Force of the Particle Until; for the Place ſays, that they were to take Heed to that ſure Word of Propheſy [Until] the Day-ſtar did ariſe; intimating, that when it was riſen, it being a greater and more glorious Diſcovery, it ſhould ſwallow up the leſſer Meaſure of Light; otherwiſe, they would reſt in a Degree and Condition far ſhort of that Illumination and Enjoyment that belong'd to the Time of the Day-ſtar's ariſing in the Heart, and inſtead of preſſing forward and forgetting the Things that are behind, they would be conforming themſelves to them: Not that the Word of Propheſy is to be deſpiſed, but that the other is to be preferred: And had we aſſerted the Scriptures to be the Word of Propheſy, though we acknowledge the Day-ſtar to be of a more infallible and tranſcending Value, yet we ſhould alſo have confeſt, that the Scriptures are, and yet will be highly valuable and uſeful to the End of the World.

But ſince he reſtrains not the Force of the Particle [Until] to the Inſtant of Regeneration, but the Viſion of the Glory after this Life, (as he conceives) why ſhould he not allow of [Until] as I have expreſſed; ſince all conclude, that in future Glory there can be no Need of Service, for the Scripture? Will he both have [Until] extend the Authority and Uſefulneſs of the Scriptures beyond and after the ariſing of the Day-ſtar, (which, ſays he, is Eternal Glory) and yet confeſs, that in that Cæleſtial State there is no Need of them?

And though his Endeavours are to render our Interpretation (as he calls it) falſe and irrational, yet can his Senſe of the Particle [Until] be only Senſe and Rational in the Allowance of it.

For which is more ſober? To ſay that the Scriptures are uſeful, even after Regeneration, or when ſeparated from this viſible World, and entred into Eternal Glory? The firſt is allowed by all, the laſt is denied by all, ſo that either he ſhould have made his Particle [Until] to ſignify a Limitation; and ſo his Notion of the Day-ſtar had been more reconcileable with it, (though falſe in it ſelf) or elſe he ſhould not have quarrel'd with that which he calls our Interpretation; that being the moſt reconcileable. For if he had aſſerted either (as he does neither) he might have been ſaid to write Senſe, though not Truth; but now he miſerably miſſeth both.

So that our Belief of that Metropolitan and Superintendent Doctrine of Revelation is ſo far from receiving any Diſadvantage by the Endeavours of the Man in hand, that his moſt frivolous Objections, but pertinent Scriptures by him urg'd, (againſt himſelf) have done It the Juſtice, and Us the Service of a Vindication.

To conclude, There can be no Underſtanding in this World without Revelation; which is never the leſs true, becauſe totally unobſerv'd, or generally deny'd.

For Inſtance; What Man alive is capable of the Affairs pertinent and proper to himſelf as a meer Man in external Matters, without the Diſcovery and Aſſiſtance of that intelligent Principle the Apoſtle phraſes the Spirit of a Man? Is it not

Chap. II.

through the Dictates or Revelation it gives him, that he is intellectually abilitated to manage the whole Tranſactions of Human Life? Thus ſaith Paul, what Man knoweth the Things of a Man ſave the Spirit of Man which is in him? 1 Cor. 2. 11.

And by what Way imaginable can this Knowledge be convey'd, unleſs by the Manifeſtation or Diſcovery of this Spirit of Man, which I call common, natural, and civil Revelation.

But as there is this natural and intelligent Spirit, by which Man is daily informed of the Concerns of mortal Life; ſo is there a divine Principle communicated to him, which we call the Light, that does illuminate and diſcover to his Underſtanding the Condition of his Soul, and give him a true Knowledge of what is good, what he himſelf is, and what is required at his Hands, either in obeying or ſuffering. And to this the Apoſtle plainly conſents in the following Words of the Paſſage before urged. For when he had aſcribed the Knowledge of human Affairs only to the Spirit of Man, he adds, even ſo the Things of God knoweth no Man ſave the Spirit of God.

I therefore infer, that the moſt religious, pertinent and authoritative Writings in the World are but ſo many ſenſleſs Letters and lifeleſs Words, where that infallible Expoſitor (I mean the Holy Spirit) in his Diſcovery and Revelation to the Minds of Men, is abſent and wanting.

Since therefore it's Information and Teſtimonials are the indiſpenſable Requiſites to authorize and unfold them to us, 'tis evident that not only no Diſcourſe can otherwiſe be beneficial to us, but that it therefore is the moſt noble and unerring Rule of Faith and Obedience, the Life and Key of all. Whatever Writings were by Inſpiration, are of leſs Value, than the Spirit that gave them forth; for the Effect can never be ſo worthy as the Cauſe; and what is liable to Sophiſtication, Miſtranſlation, and falſe Copies, with almoſt an Infinity of other Accidents, as the beſt of Books are, cannot with any Reverence or good Senſe be equalled to the Unerring, impaſſible and Eternal Spirit; which becauſe none can underſtand the Things of God without, and that 'tis neceſſary all that would be ſav'd ſhould endeavour it, 'tis greatly neceſſary that they have Recourſe to that Spirit of Truth for ſound Conviction and perfect Converſion from the World to God!

We end the Chapter with this brief Summary of the whole.

Firſt, That by Revelation we underſtand the Diſcovery and Illumination of the Light and Spirit of God relating to thoſe Things that properly and immediately concern the daily Information and Satisfaction of our Souls in the Way of our Duty to him and our Neighbour.

2d. That we renounce all fantaſtical and whimſical Intoxications, or any Pretence to the Revelation of new Matter in Oppoſition to the ancient Goſpel declared by Chriſt Jeſus and his Apoſtles: And therefore not the Revelation of new Things, but the renewed Revelation of the Eternal Way of Truth. P. 43.

3d. That this Revelation is the Life, Virtue, Condition, and very Soul of the Goſpel and ſecond Covenant.

4th. That none oppoſe this, but ſuch as the God of this World has blinded, and that through their Ignorance of the Spirituality of the Evangelical Diſpenſation, are (whilſt they pretend to be under it) Sticklers for a more embondaged State than that of the ancient Jews.

I muſt confeſs I have exceeded my own Deſign, being thereto led by the plain Diſcoveries of the Spirit of Truth, how much this Doctrine concerns the Offices of the Lord Jeſus, as he is King, Prieſt and Prophet, and that daily Benefit of his Church, without which ſhe muſt inevitably faint and periſh under the dry and mercenary Miniſtration of very Hirelings.

Chap. III.

CHAP. III.

THE firſt Thing I ſhall inſiſt upon in this Chapter, (tho' I find little Encouragement to inſiſt upon any Thing) ſhall be his Anſwer to what he calls our Second Objection, &c. p. 107, 108.

That the preſent Miniſters take a Text from the Letter of the Scripture, and teach the People from that, which the Prophets never did; The Subſtance of what he ſays is this: That though the Prophets took no Text, (becauſe they were to lay the firſt Foundation for After-ages) yet Chriſt himſelf did, citing that Paſſage of his going into the Synagogues, and reading and expounding on the Sabbath-day recorded by Luke, &c. And that they therefore take a Text that the Weight of their Building may have the Prophets and Apoſtles for it's Foundation.

To which I need not give any other Reply than what ariſes from his own Anſwer.

Firſt, It's a plain Untruth that the Reaſon of the Prophets not taking a Text was their being the firſt Foundation, Since the greateſt Part of the Old Teſtament was then in Being, and from whence the preſent Prieſts do frequently fetch their Themes. Nay, the Prophets Works may rather be ſaid to be Prophetical Diſcourſes of the New One.

Secondly, Nor is it leſs Irreverent that he ſhould make Chriſt the Chief Corner-ſtone, to be built upon the Foundation of the Prophets; For if their Writings are a Foundation to After-ages, to build their Preaching upon, then was not Chriſt their Foundation, whom they called the Foundation of many Generations, but the Prophets his, becauſe he quoted their Words: But beſides, that this is Irrational, What Foundation had Enoch, Noah, Abraham, Iſaac, Jacob, Moſes, &c?

Thirdly, Neither is Chriſt's Practice, in this Particular, to be imitated, any more than all the reſt of his Condeſcenſions to the Jewiſh Church: It was not therefore any Matter of Inſtitution, only he was deſirous of informing the People how their own admired Prophets had foretold his Coming, and that his Appearance, Life, Doctrine, and Miracles, had fulfilled their Propheſies that Day, in their Ears, to the End they might receive him, for he was the Meſſiah of the World; nor is there Inſtance of any ſuch Sermons recorded by the Evangeliſts.

Fourthly, The Apoſtles, in their many Sermons recorded in the Acts, never practis'd any ſuch Way, or form of Declaration of the Goſpel to the People, though they often cited Paſſages as the Holy Spirit brought them to their Remembrance, which is not now denied but practiſed by us; and if ſuch as had the Writings of the Prophets took no Text out of the Prophets, I aſk the Man, Why he and his Brethren, having the Writing of the Apoſtles, take Texts out of the Writings of the Apoſtles? But if the Apoſtles, notwithſtanding the Writings of the Prophets, ſpake as the Holy Spirit moved them, without any ſuch Formality; the preſent Miniſters ought in Imitation of the Apoſtles (ſince they are ſo preciſe at Imitation in leſſer Matters) to do the like, but apprehenſive of their little Ware and Trade, in Caſe they ſhould abandon that profitable Practice of Merchandizing with the Saints Words, they ſeem reſolved to perſevere in their ungodly Traffick, and which is worſe, endeavour to ſhew the Words of theſe Holy Men to vindicate their own corrupt Practices.

Fifthly, If they will have their Works to be the Superſtructure that's built upon the Foundation of the Prophets and Apoſtles Writings, then ſuch as is the Foundation, ſuch muſt the Superſtructure be; but the Foundation is Revelation, therefore the Superſtructure cannot be Premeditation; for as Iron and Clay can never mix, by Reaſon of an Oppoſition and Inconſiſtency in their Natures, ſo is it equally impoſſible that Revelation, ſhould be a Foundation, for the Invention and inexperienc'd premeditated Diſcourſes of Men; they can never incorporate; the Building cannot ſubſiſt of ſuch contrary and incoherent Matter; The Souls that are built on that Foundation, muſt be as living as the Foundation they are built upon. Nay, nothing can be more Irrational and Irreverent, than to make the Lord Jeſus Chriſt the Chief Corner-ſtone of a Building contrived, and premeditated by Men, not inſpired, the Foundation of which upon our Adverſaries Conceſſions is very Revelation.

Sixthly, But if Chriſt's Example in this Caſe be of ſuch Importance and muſt be inviolably obſerved, How comes it that the preſent Miniſters have ſo exceeded it? Did Chriſt preach by an Hour-Glaſs? Did he put on Ceremonial Garbs and Veſtments, divide his Text into it may be twenty Particulars, raiſe Doctrines, draw Uſes, and laſtly make Applications, as the Prieſts now do, to the confounding and darkning of God's Counſel, and the People's Underſtanding, inſtead of opening the former, and informing the latter?

Seventhly, Not that we think it is a Fault to uſe the Words of Scripture, when the ſame Spirit that gave them forth brings them to our Remembrance for preſent Service, but that which objects againſt that Practice, is their making Uſe of theſe Holy Men's Words, for a Subject to premeditate and build their dark Conceptions, and meer Imaginations upon; for we affirm, that none ought to Preach in the Name of the Lord, but ſuch as are impowered by the immediate Teachings, and Requirings of his Holy Spirit; and that it's as ſuitable and neceſſary to this Age, as ever it was to any former Age; and from the Eternal God do I warn all the Hirelings that read me, to lay cloſe to heart, that ſuch as run and are not ſent of him, and that ſay, the Lord ſaith, and he hath not ſpoken by them, but borrow the Words of thoſe, by whom he ſpake in Ages paſt, and add thereto their own carnal Meanings and uninſpired Interpretations, (and all for Gain too) the dreadful God of Heaven and Earth will reveal himſelf in Flames of conſuming Fire to their Everlaſting Deſtruction, for the Blood of Souls lies at their Door; but as for him that hath received the cleanſing Word of Reconciliation, in the Power and Divine Authority of the ſame, let him declare it where-ever called; and as he hath freely received, ſo freely let him give.

To the Third and Fourth Objections, he ſays we make, namely, Againſt their Praying before and after Sermons, and their obſerving of Days and Hours, to Preach in, and Pray in: Thus he pretends to anſwer, viz. That it is of good Report, and that Prayer ſanctifieth all Things, and that the firſt Day was intituled Sabbath under the Goſpel, from David's Words, this is the Day which the Lord hath made, and Chriſt's Reſurrection, and Redemption of Man: And becauſe the Ninth and Third Hours amongſt the Jews were Times for Devotion, the like ſhould be now: But that it is no new Thing for the Man to miſtake, I ſhould wonder that he would dare to charge us with that in Print, which our known Practice in a great Meaſure vindicates us from: But how can I expect that he ſhould not miſtake our Principles, who does not know his own. However, I reply, Firſt, Prayer is of good Report, and we both own and practiſe it with all relative Circumſtances of due Reverence: But is it of good Report for unregenerated and uninſpired Men to pray? The Apoſtle ſays, That Praying ought to be with the Spirit; then not without Inſpiration; and if ſo, ſuch can never pray acceptably to God, that are ſo far from praying by the Impulſes, Teachings, and Motions of that Divine Spirit, as that they deny with Vehemency the very Doctrine of Inſpiration. And that this muſt be the Senſe of the Apoſtle, and Holy Scriptures of Truth, (nay the Tendency of the Man himſelf, if he underſtands what he writes.) Conſider the Word Sanctify. I aſk what kind of Prayer can Sanctify? That which ſprings from any thing below the Inſpiration of the Eternal Spirit of Truth? Are the moſt zealous Cries and paſſionate Supplications of Man, unaſſiſted or unmov'd thereto, ſufficient to ſanctify any Action or Thing? The Scriptures reſolve us, I will pray with the Spirit and with Underſtanding alſo; as if the Apoſtle would let us know, That without the Spirit to enliven and aſſiſt, it were as impoſſible to pray acceptably to God, as without the Gift of Tongues, to pray intelligibly to the People; and indeed more. And I can give no better Reaſon, nor can another be rendered, why thoſe Heaps of Prayer, and daily Repetitions do ſo little Good, and are ſo ineffectual, than their Proceeding from, and being offer'd by unclean Hearts and polluted Lips, who are ſo far from praying by the Spirit, that they furiouſly deny the Doctrine of Inſpiration and Revelation, (which are one) as dangerous and diabolical.

So that we do not deny true and proper Prayer at any Time, but thoſe formal, ſet, and pre-appointed Prayers, which ſhew themſelves to be the Invention and Contrivance of Man's Spirit, and not of God's.

That their Prayers are ſuch, there needs no other Inſtance than their conſtant Practice, before and after Sermons, and upon Set Days, &c. For either they muſt make appear, that they have the Holy Spirit at their Beck, or elſe confeſs that they make and perform thoſe Duties (as they falſely call them) in their own Will and Time, which, of the two, is moſt reaſonable to believe.

Secondly, As to the Force of his Anſwer to our Fourth Objection, (as he ſtiles it) That we are diſpleaſed that they obſerve ſet Times, Days, and Hours, &c. namely, That the Firſt Day is the Goſpel-Sabbath by divine Appointment, becauſe called the Lord's-Day (which it is not by Creation) and that the Jews obſerved the Ninth and Third Hours, for their Devotion, and therefore Set-Days, Hours, and Times, &c. ought to be as well under the Goſpel, as the Law.

I briefly reply thus, It is greatly to be ſuſpected, that moſt of thoſe Objections he would have to be ours, are his own; or he would have proved them ours by Quotation, which he hath moſtly omitted from the firſt. If by Set-times he means, Days ſet apart (not as more intrinſically ſacred, or in themſelves more Holy than others, but) only to aſſemble upon, to wait upon God, and receive of his

Heavenly Benefits; we are ſo far from being deſtitute of them, that as 'tis impoſſible for us to perform an Action without Time, ſo have we diſtinct Days and Times, we meet upon, well-known throughout the World, where any of us do inhabit: In this Senſe then we cannot be obnoxious; for it is perfect Matter of Fact, that in that Senſe we allow of Days and Times; but as to Conſecrated Days and Times, and the ſuperſtitious Obſervation of them; as if the Holineſs of the Day called loudly on us for our particular Devotion, as being this or t'other Saint's, and not that our Devotion rather required a Time to be performed in: This we are diſpleaſed with, and boldly teſtify againſt, as beggarly and Jewiſh: What ſaid the Apoſtle, (urged by his Godly Jealouſy) to the Galatians? Gal. 4. 9. 10, 11. But now after ye have known God, or rather are known of God, how turn ye again to the weak and beggarly Elements, whereunto ye deſire again to be in Bondage; ye obſerve Days, and Months, and Times, and Years; I am afraid of you, leſt I have beſtowed upon you Labour in Vain, &c. Which is Defence enough for us; for if the Apoſtle ſaid it, the Holy Ghoſt ſaid it; and we are ſure, whoever require or practiſe any thing contrary to this Reproof, they are great Strangers to the Liberty of the Goſpel, being yet in Bondage to the beggarly Elements of weak and Antichriſtian Diſpenſations; for ſuch implicitly deny him to be come in the Fleſh, that hath put an End to them all, who is the Everlaſting Day of Reſt, and Sabbath to his People.

How ridiculous the Parſon ſhews himſelf, in offering to maintain the moral Holineſs of the firſt Day, is evident; ſince if it therefore was of Divine Appointment, becauſe not the Lord's Day by Creation, then was not the ſeventh Sabbath, the Lord's Sabbath, becauſe ſo by Creation; as if that it's being ſo from the Creation, hindred it's being ſo by Divine Appointment. But this Ribaldry well becomes the poor Prieſt; beſides, how comes he to know that John's being in the Spirit upon the Lord's Day, was the firſt Day of the Week. Or what Inſtitution can be infer'd from it's being called the Lord's Day, in caſe John meant ſo? He certainly little deſerves to be ſtiled an Evangelical Miniſter, who inſtead of Preaching the End of all Holy Days, Feaſts, new Moons, ſolemn Aſſemblies, and Sabbath-Days, is aſſerting and maintaining the abſolute Neceſſity and Service of them under the Goſpel. Let no Man judge you in Meat, or Drink, or in reſpect of an Holy Col. 2. 16, 17. Day, or New Moon, or of the Sabbath, which are Shadows of Things to come, but the Body is of Chriſt. This Doctrine Paul preached and writ, how then it ſhould be Evangelical to inſtitute a ſecond viſible Sabbath in the Room or Place of the firſt, when the firſt was abrogated as ſhadowy, is abſurd, and incongruous; for the Reaſon of the viſible and external Reſt, was the viſible and external Creation; but becaſe the ſecond Creation is Inviſible and Spiritual, by the inviſible Word of his Power, viz. The Regeneration and Redemption of the Soul of Man (begetting him anew to God) therefore ſhould the Goſpel-Sabbath be alſo ſpiritual and inviſible: to which theſe Words refer, Come unto Me, all ye that Labour, and are heavy Leaden, and I will give you Reſt. Mat. 11. 2. 8. We which have believed do enter into Reſt: There remaineth a Reſt for the People of God: Heb. 21. 3. 9. And had this poor Man known, what the Goſpel-Sabbath means, he would have reſted from this fooliſh (nay) wicked Work, his Ignorance and Malice have brought forth againſt the Owners and Profeſſors of the true Sabbath-Day.

He might have better learnt from the reformed Churches abroad (as they are called) and more particularly from their grand Champion, and moſt Celebrated Founder, Calvin; let the Prieſt firſt anſwer his Arguments againſt a viſible temporary Sabbath, under the Goſpel, before he attacks the Quakers, as heterodox in the Point.

And as to the Inference he makes, viz. That becauſe there were ſet Times and Days under the Jewiſh Conſtitution, therefore ſhould there be ſome under that of the Goſpel alſo: Here can be nothing ſaid by me which can render him more a Jew and an Anti-Evangelical Miniſter in the World; for the contrary is moſt true, viz. That becauſe they were Ceremonially or Typically uſed under the Law, therefore, and on ſet Purpoſe, they are not to be uſ'd under the Goſpel, which is the End of the Law, as to thoſe Things.

In ſhort, I do declare again, that though we utterly renounce all ſpecial and moral Holineſs in Times and Days, yet we both believe it is requiſit that Time be ſet apart for the Worſhip of the Almighty, and are alſo every where found in the diligent Practice of the ſame: And howbeit, we cannot own ſo ſtrict an Inſtitution, as to Sabbatize the firſt Day, nor that it has any Holineſs, inherent to it;

1671. yet as taking the Primitive Saints for an Example, with Godly Reverence we conſtantly aſſemble upon it.

Chap. III. p. 114, 115. His Charge of our denying Family-Duties is equally falſe, and Deviliſh, with all the reſt; for we know it is our Duty, and is alſo our Practice, to retire from our external Affairs, and wait upon the Lord every Day, that we may receive Strength from him, and feel his Heavenly Peace and Bleſſing to deſcend upon Us, at our riſing up, and lying down; that ſo to him, over and above all viſible Things, Honour and Praiſe may be returned, who is worthy for ever.

Chap. IV.

CHAP. IV.

p. 116, 117, 118. THE next Charge he brings againſt Us is this, That we aſſert all outward Church-Polity, Church-Officers, and Church-Ordinances to be ceaſed ſince the Death of the Apoſtles; for Confirmation of this, he quotes (a Thing he ſeldom does) One Joſeph Frice who (ſays he) affirms, that the true Church ceaſed ſince the Death of the Apoſtles, until the raiſing up of God's own Seed out of the Earth, to ſtand a Witneſs againſt wicked Murderers, and Perſecutors of the Saints, and true Church of Chriſt: but in what Chapter or Page we are to find this, I cannot tell, nor has he told Us, and if he has miſtaken the matter quoted, and inſiſted on, as he hath the Name, we have little Reaſon to believe what he writes; for his Name was Fuce. But he proceeds, he thinks, upon clearer Evidences. The Quakers Lancaſhire Queries 115, 118. To obſerve Ordinances, as ſprinkling Infants, to tell the People of a Sacrament, and following outward Teachings, &c. Where did God Command it?

This Doctrine he eſteems heinous, and thus he undertakes to confute it.

Firſt, ſays he, God hath all along had a People, even under Antichriſt's Reign, whom he calls his ſealed Ones, that have been his faithful Witneſſes; And as God in the Beginning inſtituted Church Offices and Ordinances, ſo hath he ingag'd his Word to continue them unto the World's End; of which Number were the Waldenſes, Albigenſes, Huſſites, Hugonites, Lutherans, and Proteſtants, ('tis well he hath left his Independent, and Presbyterian Brethren out) theſe were ſome of thoſe that did oppoſe Antichriſt, before ever the vain-glorious boaſting Sect of Quakers were heard of in the World, who are the very Synagogue of Satan, I dare affirm.

His Confidence, Ignorance, and Envy, are Great Companions in this Paragraph, which none can think an hard Saying, but ſuch as are dark, both to the Scriptures and the beſt Story; I ſhall not reflect upon his begging the Queſtion, but attend the more ſubſtantial Part of his pretended Anſwer.

2 Theſ. 2, 3. To deny an Apoſtacy (which implies a falling away) is to deny the prophetick Teſtimonies of the Scriptures, for ſaid the Apoſtle Paul, Let no Man deceive you, by any Means; for that Day ſhall not come, except there come a falling away firſt; and that Man of Sin be revealed, the Son of Perdition, &c. the like John in his Epiſtles, Antichriſt is already come; and in his Revelation, he tells us, that the Witneſſes were ſlain, and the Beaſt, and the falſe Prophet, and the Dragon, and the Whore, (Phraſes to expreſs a deviliſh and apoſtatized Church and Power) Reigned and overcame the Saints, and none for a Time appeared to make war with the Beaſt.

Rev. ch. 17, 18, 19.

That this began Immediately after the Death of the Apoſtles, is very evident, from that Account Hiſtory gives Us of the new Inventions and Additions that were ſucceſſively brought into the Church, inſomuch, as that the Worſhipping of Angels was in the earlier Part of the ſecond Century; and though Perſecution did much depreſs that Spirit of Apoſtacy and hinder it's growth, yet no ſooner did Conſtantine begin to favour the Church, than ſhe tranſported with the Apprehenſion of ſo ſudden a Change (as from Perſecution to an eaſie ſplendid Life) forgot the Simplicity of the Chriſtian Life and Doctrine, and ſpur'd hard in the Purſuit of Men's Inventions, till through her multiplied Superſtitions, ſhe had form'd up that Great Whore, who (under all her Pretenſions to be a Virgin, the Lamb's Bride, and Apoſtolick Church) has appeared an open Whore, having defiled the Nations, and made them Drunk with the Cup of her Fornications (conſiſting of Pride, Empire, Idolatry, Error, Avarice, Perſecution, and all other Abominations; and 'tis with the Strength of this Cup, that Jenner is intoxicated, and reels, and rails in his malicious Attempts againſt us) but this was not done at once, the Cup was ſome time in filling, and ſometime in drinking, and the Nations were apoſtatizing, before they were apoſtatized.

Nor does this impeach God of Breach of Promiſe, for theſe Words, I will be with you to the End, &c. were firſt ſpoken to the Apoſtles, not only as Apoſtles, but as Believers, and the Promiſe is therefore extenſive to all, and every individual Perſon of the Faithful.

And ſecondly, They are but conditionally ſaid, ' If you do as I command you, ' but if you fall away, and apoſtatize through the ſubtil Devices of the Man of ' Sin, then I will not be with you, but give you up to believe a Lye, and be dam- ' ned: And this was moſtly the Caſe of the Apoſtacy: If any did diſſent from the univerſally preſt Conformity to the Papacy (that about the Six hundredth Year had mounted the Chair, and rounded the Ears of Princes with an inviſible Power, and unlimited Prerogative) ' It was after a wandring and ſculking Manner, very ' deſtitute of that Church Order, and Ordinances, as the Man would ſuggeſt; ' their work being rather to teſtifie their Diſſent, than poſitive Judgment of Things.

The Waldenſes, the firſt, and oldeſt much, that he mentions, are very young comparatively with the prolix Night of Apoſtacy; for 'tis not Five Hundred and thirteen Years ſince Peter Waldo Citizen of Lyons in France, the firſt publick Renouncer of the Romiſh Church, for her new embrac'd Inventions (from whom they are call'd) began to publiſh his Diſſent from the Romiſh Religion, and higher he durſt not venture.

The Albigenſes, from the Country Albi, were later, and the reſt Succeſſors to both: Beſides, they were not in any Church Capacity, but toſt and diſperſt up and down the World, diverted from all Eſtabliſhment that could be thought the Presbyterian Model of the Man in Hand.

But that which is worthy of our Notice, is, That theſe very Men ſo much renowned by him, held thoſe individual Principles, for which he violently condemns us. 1ſt, They would not ſwear upon any Account. 2d, They declaim'd againſt a ſettled Prieſt-hood, or Miniſtry by Way of Diſtinction; but what this Man ſays of Singers, that all good Chriſtians are Goſpel Choriſters, and therefore they need none by Way of Diſtinction, as under the Law; ſo they ſay of Miniſters, that all good Chriſtians are Miniſters, and have a right according to their Gift and Abilities given of God, to preach to others. 3d, They exclaim'd againſt Tithes; 4th, They did perfectly diſown all Univerſities as conducing to the making of a good Miniſter; And laſtly, They were Enemies to, and Remonſtrators againſt the Inhumanity of Perſecution, which is the beſt Character of Presbyterianiſm, and which it can no more live without, and be, than a Leopard can be ſuch without his Spots. So that he writes againſt, and eſteems Heterodox and Antichriſtian, thoſe very Men that he at the ſame Time implicitly ſtiles Oppoſers of Antichriſt, and ſuch as Worſhip God in the Beauty of Holineſs.

And though he would march away in Triumph over us, as imagining his Advantage ſufficient to juſtify his Glorying, That we ſhould diſown thoſe People, that ſo long ſince diſſented from the Idolatries of Rome, and narrow all Reformation to our ſelves; yet we would have all to know, that (though we do confeſs it is our Faith, that ſo glorious a Viſion, ſince the Primitive Days, has not happened to any, as to us in this our Day) the Praiſe and Honour of which is due only to the Lord, (Yet) this Seed was riſing in theſe Waldenſes, Albigenſes, &c. and by the Virtue and Life, and Power of it, were they quickned and enabled to cry out againſt the Abominations of thoſe Times, and their Teſtimonies we own, their Memories we honour, and their Sufferings we have ſweet Fellowſhip with, knowing they were our Martyr'd Brethren, and that we are raiſ'd by the Almighty Hand of the Lord, to bring forth more to the Light, and compleat that Work, which was but dawning in that Day. And though our Appearance has not been long (perhaps twenty Years) yet Truth is Everlaſting, and we are raiſed to declare it boldly to the Inhabitants of the Earth. And what is frequently objected againſt us, namely, our being but of Yeſterday, is the ſame with that Spirit of Old, which both aſk'd Chriſt, how old he was; and that deſpiſed Timothy's Youth; and that has objected to Proteſtants themſelves their Revolt and Novelty. But Verity and Antiquity (as to preſent Appearances) are two Things; and if Antiquity ſhall be received for a ſufficient Plea, then becauſe the Papiſts were before the Preſbyterians and Independents, they are therefore more Orthodox; if the Preſbyterians and Independents ſhall ſay, what they hold was before Pope or Popery: So ſay we, 'Tis not therefore the Age of Men, or of a Diſpenſation, but the Reaſon and Truth of the Principle or Way that recommends; and in that Senſe we are the Apoſtolick Catholick Chriſtians.

To conclude my Reply to this firſt Anſwer, What if it ſhould be granted him, that there was not ſuch a falling away, ſince the Matter in Debate is about Church-Offices and Orders, which will ye have? There is not one he has named, but has ſomething different one from another, and all from the Scriptures, after his own Senſe of it. O the miſerable Confuſion of this poor Man! I confeſs there is but little Reputation to be gotten by writing againſt one, whoſe Age muſt be an Excuſe for his Folly.

1 Tim. 6. 13, 14. His ſecond great Reaſon, by which he does Eſſay to prove, That there was no ſuch Apoſtacy; contrary to Scriptures, Hiſtory, and his Learned Brother Timothy, the Preface-Man, (is drawn, as he thinks) from Paul's Words to Timothy, That Commandment which Paul gave to Timothy, is to be kept, till the Coming of our Lord Jeſus; but a Viſible Church-Polity, or Church-Order, and Officers, is Part of that Commandment, therefore it is to endure to the End.

How weak, how falſe, and ſcandalous to Senſe and Scripture, is this Way of arguing; methinks it ſhould be obvious to every Half-witted Man.

What was that Commandment? If he means the whole Epiſtle, as Page 119. I ask, If a Diſtinct, Decimating, or Tything Prieſthood be there? If Brawlers, Perſecutors, and Swearers (contrary to Chriſt's Commandment) be there? If any Thing of the Sacrament; Humane Teachers; and that Toy, Foppery, and very Bauble and Abuſe of Religion, Baby-Baptiſm, be there? Read the Epiſtle well, and tell me, If amongſt all thoſe Things, that Paul ſaid, were able to make the Man of God Perfect (and which I grant were enjoyn'd Timothy to follow as Apoſtolical Tradition) theſe recited Grounds of Controverſy betwixt us, and this Man of Strife (with the reſt of his angry Brethren) are to be ſeen or found?

But if the Commandment was particular, then we may obſerve that the Apoſtle was treating of Covetouſneſs, the Root of all Evil, and the Parſon's Trade: Godlineſs with Content (ſays Paul) is great Gain, for we brought nothing into this World, and it is certain we can carry nothing out: And having Food and Raiment, let us be therewith content; but they that will be Rich fall into Temptation; for the Love of Money is the Root of all Evil: But thou, O Man of God, flee theſe Things, and follow after Righteouſneſs, Godlineſs, Faith, Love, Patience, and Meekneſs: I give the Charge, in the Sight of God, that thou keep this Commandment: (without Spot unrebukeable) this the Prieſt left out, he had little mind to let us know Covetouſneſs was reproved (the Sin of his Livery) and that the Miniſters of Chriſt were by poſitive Precept to live irrebukeably; for that they think a moſt Damnable Error. 1 Tim. 6. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14.

Let it ſuffice, that they who peruſe the Epiſtles to Timothy, will find, they moſtly (if not altogether) conſiſt of ſuch Commands as tend to Holineſs of Life and Converſation, rather than to Diſcipline, and Shadowy Ordinances and Inſtitutions. I would the Prieſts dare but to ſtand the Trial of all their Doctrines, and Eccleſiaſtical Government, by thoſe very Epiſtles, the Controverſy would ſoon end in their utter Confutation and Shame: And the trueſt Deſign and Uſe of their Academical Learning, is to learn Evaſions, Equivocations, and dark Fetches, to ſecure themſelves from the very Dint of Scripture and Reaſon, whoſe Nakedneſs God will make bare in the Sight of Nations, to the loathing of their Perſons, and utter Abhorrence of their Siniſter, Simonious Practices.

He proceeds eagerly to vindicate the Church-Diſcipline aſſerted in Paul's Epiſtles to Timothy; and by his Way of Reaſoning, would both perſwade the World, That the Quakers abſolutely deny it; and, if he can, confute them of that great Error. Pag. 120, 121, 122, 123, 124, 125.

But I may ſay of this poor Man, as the Apoſtle did of his Country-men, That he is very unhappy in his Zeal, for it is by no Means according to Knowledge. We not only own Paſtors, Elders and Teachers in the Church of God, and ever did, (if that be his Church-Polity) and are perſwaded 'twill laſt to the End; but are as ready to queſtion, why he will not allow of Apoſtles, Prophets, and Evangeliſts now, as well as then: For he is earneſt, whilſt he abuſes us with the Denial of all, to vindicate himſelf in the Denial of ſome, and (thoſe I think the more material) his Defence of his Opinion is this; That they were but for a Time, becauſe Extraordinary; as if they were not as much wanted now as then; but methinks the Reaſon they give to evince the Non-neceſſity of an immediate Miſſion, carries in it (like the Trojan Horſe) ſuch an Army, to the utter Ruin of the Prieſt's Cauſe, that were they not perfectly blinded, they would be aſhamed to uſe, or urge it for their Defence.

For why ſhould there not be the ſame Need for an extraordinary Miniſtry now, as was then? Is the World more truly Chriſtian, than in the Time of thoſe Churches, when they flouriſht? And if the Word of Reconciliation is to laſt to the End, then that Office to whom it was more eminently committed; but that was the Apoſtleſhip; therefore I will read the Words thus, (and Jenner has taught me ſo to do) Go teach all Nations, ye Diſciples and Apoſtles (in the Name and Perſons of all ſucceeding Diſciples and Apoſtles) Baptizing them into the Name of the Father, Son and Holy Spirit; and lo I am with you (Diſciples and Apoſtles ſucceſſively) to the End of the World; which becauſe Jenner ſays, Page 131. Is not to be reſtrain'd, or confin'd to that Age, (as the Word ſometimes ſignifies) but to the End of the World; and that it cannot Rationally be ſuppoſed, it was meant that they ſhould perſonally live ſo long, I muſt conclude, that 'twas the Office and Calling of the Apoſtleſhip that ſhould ſo indure, and which Chriſt would accompany to the End.

Secondly, The Scriptures expreſly ſay and teſtify, (againſt theſe mumbling Hirelings of the World) That in the Laſt Days God would pour out of his Spirit on all Fleſh, and the Young Men ſhould ſee Viſions, and Old Men dream Dreams, and the Apoſtle encouraged, nay, enjoyn'd the Churches to ſeek after Propheſie, for that was the moſt excellent Gift then in the Churches, which he would never have done, if Prophets had never been to ſucceed in the Chriſtian Church: Follow after Charity, and deſire Spiritual Gifts, but rather that ye may Propheſie; and if the End why Prophets were given, was, that they might readily unfold dark and myſterious Sayings, 'tis ſtrange that there ſhould be any Need for them in thoſe Days of the Apoſtles, when ſuch Great Fathers of Knowledge were living, and none now when the World is ſo fill'd with Contention and Diſpute about the Abſtruſity and Myſteriouſneſs of many eminent Texts; and Jenner himſelf thinks there is no Apoſtle to decide it.

1 Cor. 14. 1.

Thirdly, Since Evangeliſts were to aſſiſt the Apoſtles, and that it is evident the Apoſtleſhip is not terminated, by Conſequence the Office of Evangeliſts is not ended; the Great Reaſon why the Mercenary Prieſts withſtand that Miniſtry which is Supernatural, is, their Self-Conſciouſneſs of Inſufficiency, and dreading the Miſery of being diſpoſſeſt of fat Benefices, who are like Religious Janizaries, that ſtick not to fight the Devil's Battle for Pay, againſt the True Powerful Goſpel-Miniſtration.

He proceeds to charge us with Two Objections, that I think ſo nearly reſemble the Honeſty of our Principles, as we may very well venture to own them, and as readily confute his ſuppos'd Anſwer to them: They are theſe.

Page 27. 28, 29.

Firſt, That they uſe to go to Oxford and Cambridge, to learn the Goſpel, whereas Paul ſaid, He was not taught from Man, nor by Man, &c.

Secondly, That they are Hirelings, becauſe they teach for Hire; and ſo no Goſpel Miniſters.

We own the Charge, but let us hear his Anſwer.

The Iſraelites had Schools of the Prophets at Bethel, Jericho, &c. Eliſha's College was ſo fill'd, they enlarg'd it, and that in thoſe Schools Prophets Propheſy'd not by immediate Revelation is manifeſt, in that Samuel was ſtanding over them, as One appointed thereunto; Had they been immediately taught by God, why was Samuel appointed their Guide and Teacher; we only go to the Univerſities to learn Languages.

'Tis granted the Iſraelites had Schools; but the Queſtion will be, For what End and Purpoſe? To teach their Children the idle Stories of the Heathen Pagan Schools, which make up the preſent Body of the Learning of the Times, or the Sciences truly ſo called?

In ſhort, either the End of thoſe Schools was Inſtruction and Knowledge in Civil or Religious Affairs: If the firſt, We deny they exceeded Propriety of Speech, their own Stories, Writings, and ſuch like common and uſeful Qualifications; and it reſts on the Prieſt's Part to prove the contrary.

But if about Things of Religion, as the Inſtance of Eliſha and Samuel ſeem to import, then let us examine the Texts; That relating to Eliſha only ſays thus much, That the Sons of the Prophets ſaid to Eliſha, Behold the Place where we do dwell, is too ſtrait for us, which does not anſwer the Reaſon of it's Quotation, nor the Context; but the other Inſtance of Samuel is moſt pat.

2 Kings 6. 1.

And Saul ſent Meſſengers to take David, and when they ſaw the Company of the Prophets Propheſying, and Samuel ſtanding (as appointed over them) the Spirit of God was upon the Meſſengers of Saul, and they alſo Propheſy'd: I appeal to all Impartial partial Men, if this be not a Propheſying upon an Inſpiration; and therefore nothing can be more incoherent with the Place, than that Samuel was their efficient, or ſo much as helping Cauſe to their Propheſying; for the Place expreſly ſays, That the Spirit of God was upon Saul's Meſſengers, and they Propheſy'd too, implying, that the Company, or School of the Prophets, Propheſy'd by no other Way. This diſpleaſed Saul, for he ſent Prophets three Times, and ſtill was ſerv'd ſo; and at laſt went to Ramah himſelf, where he propheſy'd alſo; that it was a Proverb, Is Saul alſo amongſt the Prophets. I cannot but here take Notice what a State Jenner and his Brethren would reduce the Chriſtian Adminiſtration to, who do not allow it a School of the Prophets now, when there were many under the Law.

To end this Particular, I would have him tell me, if theſe Schools were faſhion'd after thoſe of Athens, and other Greek Academies? If the perplext Notions, and abſtruſe Metaphyſicks of Epicurus, Ariſtotle, &c. were to be found in their Libraries? Nay, if the vain Quiddities, idle and groſs Terms, and moſt ſophiſtical Ways of Syllogizing, with the reſt of that uſeleſs and injurious Pedantry (to Mankind, brought into the Chriſtian Religion by Popiſh School-Men, and ſo eminently in Vogue in Oxford and Cambridge, and which above all Things fame their Students) were the Subject and Matter of their Study and Learning? He that runs, may read both the Purity and Simplicity of the Ancients Literature, and the Sophiſtry, Uſeleſneſs, and Affectation of the Science, falſly ſo call'd, now in Reputation in the World.

O how evidently from hence, may we obſerve the World's Declenſion from the Primitive Spirit! When for the firſt Hundred Years, ſcarce an Eminent Scholar was to be found amongſt the Chriſtians; and ſuch as were, diſclaim'd all Power in their vain Philoſophy, to convince, or convert them to the Knowledge of the Myſteries of the Chriſtian Religion. And that Men ſend their Sons, One to be a Phyſician, and the other a Prieſt, to the Academies of this Land, is ſuch a Notorious Piece of Matter of Fact, as to deny it, were eminently to prove it: For who at Noon-Day, will ſay it's Midnight, but a Mad-Man: And in the World there are not Places of more Folly, Ignorance, and Impiety, and Fountains ſo impure, as their corrupt Streams, which alone, almoſt infect the whole Land with Debauchery, and at beſt Perſecution, and Anti-Chriſtian clumſy-witted Pedants, and uſeleſs Pragmaticks.

The Prieſts affirming, they only uſe thoſe Places to Skill themſelves in the Languages, is a downright Falſity; for Learning, as to the Philoſophical Part of it they have maintain'd as abſolutely neceſſary to the Qualification of a Goſpel-Miniſter. Beſides, I utterly deny, that Tongues themſelves, are ſo much as Inſtrumental to open the myſterious Senſe of the Goſpel, albeit I acknowledge them very uſeful to correct wrong Tranſlations; but that goes no farther than the Letter, in which the Life and Nature of the Goſpel never ſtood.

His Anſwer to the remaining Objection, is briefly this: That the Prieſts had a full Maintenance under the Law, by God's Appointment in Tythes, Offerings, and Suburbs; this Micah reproved not, but Men-Pleaſers for Hire; the preſent Miniſtry are not blameable in this Particular: Beſides, Chriſt and Paul warranted Wages, tho' not Tythes, and God would have it ſo; and furthermore the Law of the Land has given it to the Miniſtry; and the Tenths are as much theirs, as the Ninths are the People's.

Luke 10. 7.
2 Cor. 8.

To all which I reply with a Good Heart; for no Employment is more pleaſant to me, than uncovering the Wicked Avarice, and Horrid Deceit, of this Decimating Simonious Prieſthood.

'Tis true, that the Maintenance of the Prieſts and Levites was out of the Tythes, Offerings, &c. But what then? Were they to maintain no more? (that the Prieſt was unwilling to inſtance) ſo horribly unjuſt is he, that he does leſſen God's Appointment, to vindicate the Mercenary Appetites of his Brethren, or elſe he would have told us, that the poor Widows and Orphans were provided for out of them: But is he, or are they of Aaron's Prieſthood? If they be, let him or them produce us good Evidence of it; and when they have done, we will have Scripture to prove that England was divided into Tribes, and the Land equally allotted them, only the Tenth for the Prieſthood, the Widow, Poor, and Orphan, &c. If they are not of that Prieſthood, but that the Prieſthood is chang'd, how come they to demand a Maintenance, as peculiar to that Prieſthood, and upheld by the ſame aboliſht Law as the Prieſthood, which was peculiar to the Jewiſh Church?

Next, he belies Micah, and the Holy Ghoſt too, for the Words are far from his Conſtruction of them; yet, were they as he would have them, they are moſt True of him and his Brethren; for they will not undertake a Cure (as they call it) but upon ſuch cloſe-made Contracts, as Market-People truck or ſell their Commodities; and ſuch as moſt contribute, they moſt connive at, and indulge in their Impieties: This is Matter of Fact, that if a large Benefice or People is vacant, or be deſtitute of a Miniſter, they (Courtier-like) make Friends to ſuch Perſons in whoſe Power the Diſpoſal of it is, and make no Scruple (upon Succeſs) of leaving the Leaner (though perhaps honeſter People, or Parſonage) for the more Fat and Beneficial. O true, but moſt horrid Simony, Oppreſſion and Cheat! A Mountebank is an honeſt Man to a Parſon.

And for Chriſt and Paul, their Diſcourſe of Wages, he miſtakes the Matter: For that was only to take or accept (not all that an honeſt free Heart ſhould give, for ſome would have pull'd out their Eyes, and others have ſold all they had, to have accommodated the Apoſtles with a Footſtool; but) ſo much only as was convenient, what was ſet before them, or they ſtood abſolutely in need of: But not to hoard up out of ſet Stipends, and thoſe extorted too, by inhumane Force, and meer Coercive Power. Paul's taking Wages of other Churches to do the Corinthians Service, was no more but this, that the Church of Corinth being high, proud, boaſting, and conceited of her Accurateneſs, Wiſdom and Learning, the Apoſtle would not be ſo free as to accept of them, what would but defray his common Charges whilſt with them, leſt they ſhould have taken Occaſion to ſuſpect he made Advantage to himſelf by them, and that thereby the Dignity of his Goſpel ſhould have been leſſened; which, with the other confirmed Churches, he was not ſo much in fear about.

This I affirm (in a ſound Underſtanding, by the ſame Spirit of Wiſdom, that then guided Paul) that the only Cauſe of his not accepting what might have accommodated him with common Conveniencies, Was his Tenderneſs and Care of, and Regard to the Reputation of the Bleſſed Goſpel, having to do with a People Wiſe, and whoſe evil Eye was not ſo clos'd as that it would not be ready to make the worſt of Things, and that would have thought him more oblig'd than it was fit for the Freedom of an Apoſtle to be in ſuch Reſpect; but Jenner would not tell us that Paul work'd at Rome Two Years at his own hired Houſe. And as for the more modern Inſtitution of Tithes, I am not to inform my ſelf; but would tell Jenner (if he be ignorant of it) or any elſe, whoſe Deſires after the Truth may engage them to peruſe this Diſcourſe, That it was Antichriſtian every where, but more Deviliſh than ordinary in England.

About the Years, three and four Hundred after Chriſt, it was familiar with the Chriſtians, to lay apart a Tenth of the Profit they made of their Eſtates, for the Maintenance of ſuch Members and Miniſters as wanted, but this was not by Inſtitution; for both they might have refuſed it, without any juſt Ground of Cenſure, (though not Charity) and when they did give it, the how much and to whom, was in their Election; for where they found them more or leſs wanting or deſerving, there they gave, and exhibited of their Subſtance.

Gratian. Cauſ p. 16. r. c. decin.

Seld. c. 6. p. 80, 81.

But in ſome Proceſs of Time, the Inſolency and Greatneſs of the Roman Biſhop, obtain'd and enjoyn'd a Tenth from ſeveral Countries, to the Maintenance of a Clergy, by him calculated, to the Promotion and Security of his Antichriſtian Grandeur in the World, as a temporal, as well as ſpiritual Prince.

However, they could not readily get the Engliſh in the Humour, of parting with ſo conſiderable a Share of their Eſtates, ſeeing the Prieſts ſo Proud, Rich, Deboyſt and unthankful already; (For Auſtin the Monk, was denied it by the King) till by a fatal Tragedy, it was introduc'd and confirm'd; namely Murder and Adultery; theſe were the immediate Parents of the Engliſh Decimation, or Tenths; for Offa killing Ethelbert, gave a Tenth of his Goods, to pacifie his Ghoſt; and Edgar, being greatly inamour'd of Ethelwold's Wife, to obtain his impious End, ſtruck not to imploy this infamous Means (viz.) His abominable Murder; the Pope (more doubtleſs out of Love to profit, than any Abhorrence to Sin) ſends forth a Thunderbolt upon the Head of this Homicidious Prince, whom to appeaſe, Edgar confirm'd to the Church, the Tenth of all the Fruits of his Field and Cattle, to them and their Succeſſors: The greater the Sin, the dearer the Pardon; The People's Wickedneſs is the Popes only Fair for coſtly Abſolutions; and the vileſt Miſcreants are his beſt, moſt conſtant (and to be ſure) moſt welcome Cuſtomers.

Seld. p. 67.

Thus were Tithes inſtituted; and Cuſtom and Covetouſneſs have continued them to this very Day: But the Lord God Everlaſting, having ſhin'd in our Hearts, and given us to behold the Myſtery of Iniquity, and that great Apoſtacy which hath been over Nations; and amongſt other Things, endued us with a true Underſtanding, both of the Miniſtry, and their ungodly Ways; which not only hath begotten in us an Abhorrence of their Ways, and a publick Denial of them; but an holy Zeal to teſtifie againſt their filthy Lucre, and horrid Couſenage of the World; and to the Glorious Freedom that is now come from Heaven to Mankind (if they will receive it) from the oppreſſing Yoak, of a Prieſtly Tyranny, and Miniſterial Bondage.

To conclude, and ſum up all; What has Jenner and his Gang to do with the Levitical Prieſt-hood who ſay they are no Jews? (Viſible I mean, for Inviſible and ſpiritual I am ſure they are not.)

What have they to do to inſtance Chriſt and Paul, to vindicate his taking Wages, who is not contented with their Appointment? For the Evangelical Inſtitution was this; No ſooner had Chriſt ſpoke of Wages, than he explains his Meaning thus, Whatever is ſet before you that eat; which ſuppoſes Election in the Man of the Houſe, no poſitive Obligation being farther upon him, than Chriſtian-Charity (which indeed is the greateſt in the World, in one Senſe) and content in the Receiver, without farther Demands, or Contract for larger Allowances.

And though I am well ſatisfied that the Force of a Chriſtian Miniſtry is ſuch, that many Hearts ſtand ready to ſupply the Wants of thoſe that miniſter. Yet I am as well aſſured that the Inconſiſtency betwixt Us and the preſent Prieſts, (in the Matter debated) lies more on the Side of Wages, than any other Thing, and whilſt they pretend to the Vindication of a Chriſtian Miniſtry, it is in very Truth, but a Defence for their unreaſonable Incomes, or that Miniſtry, which proves them dumb Dogs, that ſeek Gain from their Quarters, making War againſt them that put not into their Mouths, as moſt experimentally we have known it, as well under the Presbyterian and Independent, as preſent Epiſcopal Government.

Laſtly, I will not ſtand amaz'd at his Impudency, for I know it ſuits the Perſon's Conſcience, that a Presbyterianized Independent (or religious kind of Hermaphrodite, halting betwixt two) ſhould offer to vindicate the Legality of Tithes, upon ſuch an Abominable Inſtitution; eſpecially, when three Things more are duly conſidered.

Firſt, That they were enjoyn'd by that Power, his learned Brother Timothy, calls the Whore in his Preface, (which, however truly, was but ſaucily done of a Son) and to maintain her Antichriſtian Bratts and Off-Spring; but whilſt they diſown her, they cunningly know themſelves concerned in her Care, and as Men that love the Treaſon, and hate the Traytor; they hugg the Tithes, but ſay they hate the Whore.

Secondly, The Waldenſes and Reformed Churches Abroad; but particularly ſeveral of our Native Martyrs, teſtified againſt the Lawfulneſs of Paying or Receiving them; as W. Thorp, &c. not to particularize the Cloud of Ancients, (I mean the Fathers) as Chryſoſtom, and others, that deteſt them as now exacted.

Uſh. de Ecl. Chr. Succeſs. c. 6. p. 155. Acts and Monum. p. 435. 461. 536, 537.

Thirdly, His Impudence is manifeſted, in pleading for a Maintenance of a Miniſtry that by his Principles he and his Brethren diſown.

But that I may remove the Objection of Proportion, namely, That ſuch as pay not Tenths act injuriouſly, Becauſe they pay but for nine Parts in Rent, or Purchaſe; let the four Particulars be conſider'd, Firſt, That they were extorted; and therefore it is moſt reaſonable that they ſhould be returned to their firſt Owners.

Secondly, That they have not only a Tenth of the Product of the Earth, but of the poor Country Man's Labour; which is wretchedly infamous, That becauſe King Offa committed Murder, and Edgar Adultery, the Farmer and his whole Family ſhould toil and ſweat to pay the Pope a Mulct, or Penitential and Expiatory Tax: It was the Countryman's before, and ſhould be again.

Thirdly, If a poor Man plow up a Piece of Ground unſown, or manur'd in Man's Memory, and by his own Induſtry obtain a Crop; Is this the Increaſe of the Earth, or the Farmer's Labour?

Fourthly, Many Times they ſcarce get their Seed, yet the Tithe of what paid Tithe before, muſt be paid to the Prieſt; for it, being but the Seed that comes again, which paid Tithe the precedent Year, that pays now, It follows that the ſame pays twice, and ſo the Prieſt has Tithes, not becauſe the Earth brings forth her Increaſe, But becauſe ſhe brings forth no Increaſe. O the unjuſt, yet frequent Practices, of the Ungodly Miniſterial Mercenaries of this Age! Either let Jenner and Tayler own their Miniſtry, or diſown their Tithes; ſince the Diſowning the former, and defending the latter, is bnt an Inſtance of Avarice, and an Evaſion of the Suffering that would attend that Teſtimony.

Fifthly, Bnt above all, Conſider that Liberty of Conſcience is deſtroyed by it: For what if I in Conſcience deny that Religion, to whoſe peculiar Uſe and Conſtitution I once allow'd Tithes? Can I in Honeſty pay them? Shall I contribute to a Religion, and the Miniſters of it, which in Judgment I renounce? But in Caſe I don't, Is it rational to perſecute me for not upholding a Religion I diſown? What would not theſe Mungril Independents own? For the Primitive of them deny'd and writ ſharply againſt Tithes.

They diſown a Miniſtry, and allow them Maintenance; and they are for Liberty of Conſcience, and yet would have a Man perſecuted for not paying to a Religion and Miniſtry, which he conſciencioſly diſowns: O the Blindneſs and Folly of theſe Men! Certainly God has given them over to believe a Lye; and I obſerve, as the Light ſhines brighter, they grow darker; and be it known to them, that before the Glory of the reproached Light within, which we confeſs to, and they blaſpheme againſt, ſhall all their Religion vaniſh; as the Shadow of the Night doth fly before the inſuing Brightneſs of the Sun; and all People ſhall ſee an Emptineſs and Inſufficiency in their Ways, to obtain Everlaſting Peace with God: Then ſhall the Nations walk in the Light of the Lamb and be ſaved. So much for Tithes.

CHAP. V.

Chap. V.

HIS next Charge upon us is, A Denial of Church-Ordinances, as uſeleſs to them that have receiv'd the Anointing; Whether Baptiſm, Lord's-Supper, Singing of Pſalms, &c. Which he undertakes to be of a Nature laſting and perpetual: Firſt, he ſays, That there are Ordinances, becauſe the Apoſtle commended the Corinthians for keeping the Ordinances, as he had delivered them unto them: Then he ſays, He ſhall endeavour (though to no Purpoſe) to prove the Continuance of them for ever.

Pag. 129, 130. 131, 132, 133, 134.
1 Cor. 11. 2.

Baptiſm, and the Lord's Supper, are viſible Church Ordinances: But they are to continue to the End of the World: Therefore for ever.

The Aſſumption, as he calls it, or Minor Propoſition, &c. That they are to continue unto the End of the World, he proves out of Scripture, as he thinks, by defending the Perpetuity of that Miſſion, from the Endeavours of ſuch as would ſtint the Greek Word, to that Age, for which I am his Debtor, it being a Work done to my Hand.

Go teach all Nations Baptizing them, &c. and lo I am with you to the End of the World, Mat. 28. (and here he ſhews himſelf not a little ſkilled in the Original, at leaſt he fancies ſo) for as often as ye eat this Bread, and drink this Cup, ye ſhew forth the Lord's Death 'till he come: To all which I reply thus:

I conceive the Man is much beſide his Mark; For that Hinge on which the whole Controverſy turns, he ſeems on Purpoſe to avoid: What if the Apoſtle commended them for keeping the Ordinances committed to them? Does it therefore follow, that he meant the Prieſt's Idle Baby-Baptiſm, their Kind of Supper, and canting of David's ſerious Pſalms, in wretched Meeter? Did he not as heartily recommend his Godly Traditions and Ordinances to Timothy, as he commends the Corinthians? And do we find any one of thoſe now mentioned amongſt them? 'Twas ridiculouſly done in the Prieſt, to endeavour to prove the Perpetuity of Water-Infant-Baptiſm, &c. Before he had prov'd it to be an Ordinance of Chriſt: Firſt, Let him remember in his next to prove them ſuch Ordinances as he commended the Corinthians for keeping: And which he charg'd Timothy ſolemnly to obſerve, before he ſets about their Perpetuity.

Beſides, What Man of Senſe can think his Scriptures pertinenr to his impertinent Matter?

Firſt, Go teach, then Baptize, ſays the Text; upon which I urge thus: Were it a Water-Baby-Baptiſm, none were to be baptiz'd, but ſuch as were firſt taught or diſcipled, But Infants are not capable to be taught and diſcipled, in that ignorant Eſtate: Therefore it could not be intended of Children.

Secondly,

1671. Chap. V. Secondly, I deny that any Water is mention'd, or ſo much as intended: That there is none mention'd, is a Demonſtration from the Text it ſelf: That none can be intended, I prove thus:

Firſt, The Miſſion we all agree is to the End of the World; but Water-Baptiſm is not to the End of the World: Therefore not intended in that Place.

Secondly, That Miſſion was as well Paul's as Peter's, John's, &c. for he came behind none, (as it is ſaid) but Paul deny'd it to be any Part of his Miſſion, in that great Expreſſion, I was not ſent to Baptize, with Water, But to preach; Therefore Water Baptiſm is not perpetual.

Thirdly, If the Text intended Water Baptiſm, then could it Baptiſe, not only ἐν τῶ ὀνόματι, but εἰς τὸ ὄνομα, not in the Name (as falſly rendred) But into the Name of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit: But that Water can never do. (For the Name ſtands for the Nature) Therefore not intended there.

Secondly, As to the Lord's Supper, we know, That Chriſt apprehending the Weakneſs of his Diſciples, did think fit to leave them ſome figurative Mark or Token of Remembrance, for them to be in the Practice of, 'till he was better known to them, Myſtically, or in Spirit; therefore He ſaid, Do this 'till I come, who am the Bread that came down from Heaven, that whoſoever eats thereof ſhall never die. And the living Vine that affords the new Wine in this Kingdom. In ſhort, either the Bread and Wine are the Figure, or Subſtance; Not the Subſtance ſay all (but Papiſts) therefore the Figure. If a Figure, then of ſomething; but they cannot more properly figure to Us, any thing beſides the Heavenly Bread and Wine; therefore they ſo ſignify, viz. Chriſt the Myſtical Bread and Wine, that nouriſh the Soul to Eternal Life; if ſo, (which as I think, none that own the Chriſtian Religion denies) I argue thus:

Figures and Shadows are only of Force 'till the Subſtance come; but the Subſtance was then come in the Apoſtles Days: Therefore in Point of Inſtitution, they were done away.

That the Subſtance was come is evident; for if the Heavenly Bread and Wine (the Things ſignified) were eat and drunk, then were they come, and the Figure in Point of Inſtitution and Duty, at an End: But they did eat and drink of the Heavenly Bread and Wine, conſequently the Repreſentations or Signs were at an End, that they did ſo eat and drink, I prove thus:

If they had not eaten and drunk of the Myſtical Bread and Wine, they had hungred and thirſted again, and died Eternally.

Bun they had Life, for they had Chriſt in them the Hope of Glory; and whoſoever hath the Son, (the Heavenly Bread and Wine) hath Life; therefore they did Eat and Drink thereof: and conſequently the Subſtance was come, and the Shadow or Sign at an End; ſome that ſtand here (ſaith Chriſt) ſhall not taſte of Death, 'till they ſee the Son of Man come in his Kingdom (which is within; and there it is the true Spiritual (and not Hiſtorical, Notional) Believer ſhould ſit down with him at his Table, and drink of the New Wine, &c.) 'Tis true, both were practiſed, but an Example or meer Practice is no Inſtitution: eſpecially when in Point of Precept, and Inſtitution, the Thing in Debate is abſolutely abrogated, and at an End.

Beſides, I have a Diſcourſe on theſe very Subjects more at large, that may for the Sakes of honeſt-hearted Enquirers, come ſuddenly to publick View.

Pag.133,134. As to his Muſical Pſalms, they are utterly deny'd by us to have been a Primitive Practice, or ſo much as in Force upon any kind of Inſtitution, either from Chriſt or his Apoſtles.

Spiritual Songs, or Pſalms in Spirit, their Hearts making Melody to God, &c. are by us own'd, and us'd: But that ever they Sung, made Tunes, and ſet Forms of Pſalms by entire Aſſemblies, of another Man's various States and Conditions, whilſt none of their own (and mockt the Holy God to his Face, with down-right Lyes under a Notion of Devout Singing) we challenge this Ballader to prove: It is a very Shame that he and his Brethren ſhould deny the Common-Prayer-Book, becauſe a Form, and yet have Forms of Singing: Beſides, I would in ſhort obſerve, that a Pſalm was not the State of all in the Primitive Aſſemblies; ſome, nay the greateſt Part might be in a Frame of Sorrow, Contrition, and Prayer for Remiſſion, or Strength, Faith, Victory over Sin, &c. whilſt a Spiritual Song was perhaps the Condition of ſome that had obtained Dominion over Sin, and were not ſo immediately in the Warfare and Battel as their Brethren: But the preſent Singing and Praying of Profeſſors, ſhews, that they are far from having a due Senſe of the Weight of either, ther this Practiſe being ſo much in their own Wills, Forms and Appointments (rather by Way of a Literal Imitation of the Primitive Saints, than from any true Senſe, or Spiritual Motions in themſelves.)

I ſhall here over-look his Charge againſt us, as Enemies to Magiſtracy, with his Deſign therein, referring it to another Chapter, becauſe it has not ſo immediate Relation to the preceding and ſucceding Matter: That which next followeth is our Sixteenth Error, as he calls it, namely, That we hold that the Spirits are not to be tried by the Scripture; which, how true it is in our Senſe, I ſhall proceed to make appear, and that as well from his own Propoſitions, as ours; for I am deſigned to make a ſhort Work with them, believing he grew weary as he grew nearer to the End of his Book: It ſavours ſo rankly of meer Ribaldry and Dotage. Pag. 139, 140. 141, 142, 143.

To confute us, he quotes this Scripture; Dearly beloved, believe not every Spirit, but try whether they be of God, or no: and ſays occaſionally upon it in another Place, viz. My Spirit that is upon thee, and my Words which I have put into thy Mouth ſhall not depart out of thy Mouth, nor out of the Mouth of thy Seed for ever. That the Holy Ghoſt is not only the great Dictator of the Scriptures, but alſo our Guide to the right underſtanding of them. 1 Joh. 4. 1. Iſa. 59. 21.

Now I would be glad to know, if the Man ſets not up a Trial of Spirits by the Spirit, rather than by the Letter of the Scriptures.

Firſt, He cannot but acknowledge, they had then a Rule and Meaſure to try Things by; What was it not the old Teſtament? For that could not be a Rule for Paul to deny Circumciſion and overturn all the Ceremonies of the Law, as in his Epiſtle to the Hebrews; with many other Things by Way of Variation, and Inſtitution.

Nor could it be the new Teſtament, (as it's called) for Jenner ſays, that thoſe Scriptures were not then extant, as in Page 102. Then it muſt needs be the Holy Spirit and Anointing that they had received; for it is not to be ſuppoſed they were without any; and unleſs Jenner will not have the Spirit of Truth to be a more infallible Tryer of Spirits, than the dead Letter of the Scriptures, he muſt allow, that the true Chriſtian Church has the ſame Guide and Rule, if he believes that God is as propitious, and careful, and good to us in theſe laſt Days (of which the greateſt Things were promis'd) as to the Primitive Believers.

But, Secondly, If the Scripture is to try, and yet not without the Interpretation and Senſe of the Holy Spirit, I appeal to the whole World, if the Holy Spirit be not moſt of all and principally the Rule and Guide, as he himſelf contradictorily ſtiles it, Page 144.

Thirdly, To try Spirits by Letters, is moſt improper; the contrary being moſt rational and natural, viz. To try Spirits by the Spirit, and Writings by Writings, if there muſt be a Rule of Judgment.

Fourthly, That very Promiſe by him quoted out of Scripture, intimates the ſame, for if the Reaſon of the Word's being in Chriſt's Mouth, was the Spirit's being upon him: and that the Words of God ſhould not depart out of his Mouth, nor his Seed's Mouth forever (who are his begotten Children.) Then muſt the ſame Holy Spirit, the Author of theſe Words, neceſſarily dwell and abide upon them for ever; and that's the Rule; though I would have the Man to think, we grant the Scriptures to be a Secondary Rule to the Holy Spirit; and to ſuch as believe them, they are very edifying, and Confirmations, though ſtill the intrinſick Ground of Faith, and Knowledge, be the Diſcoveries and Seals of the Holy Spirit of God; For, ſays Jenner himſelf, (to his evident Contradiction) Though the Scriptures be the Touch-ſtone, Page 142, 145.

For, if the Scriptures be not the Rule without the Spirit, the Spirit muſt needs have the greateſt Share in that Office, eſpecially ſince he was a Rule before the Scriptures were ever given forth; and certainly, ſince the Scriptures were indicted by him, ſo as that the dark Sentences and Miſ-tranſlations, are only to be interpreted and rectified by him: The Scriptures are ſo far from being our Rule, and he from being no Rule, that he is the very Scripture's Rule; reſtraining, tranſpoſing and enlarging the Senſe of Words, Verſes, and whole Chapters.

'Tis true, the Touch Stone tries Gold, and that from an intrinſick Virtue, proper, and congenial to the Stone it ſelf; but have the dead Letters of the Scripture that diſtinguiſhing Property and exertive Virtue? Jenner denies it, in the Words juſt now repeated, For without the Spirit, ſays he, they are of no Value or Service to us. Then, ſay I, either God gave them for a compleat Rule, or he did not. If for a compleat Rule, there is no need of any additional Aſſiſtant, as the Spirit; If not, then he gave them for no Rule; becauſe all his Gifts are perfect, and his Rule could not be deficient: And it is to be ſuppos'd, that in what Gift ſoever he ſhould fail to us, he would not in a Rule of Life and Doctrine, the Capital, and moſt Eminent of all: But methinks this our Demonſtration ſhould ſatisfie all; when neither Man nor Scriptures are near us, yet there continually attends us that Spirit of Truth, that immediately informs us of our Thoughts, Words, and Deeds; and gives us True Directions what to do, and what to leave undone; Is not this the Rule of Life? If ye are led by the Spirit of God, then are ye Sons of God. Let this ſuffice to vindicate our Senſe of a true and unerring Rule, which we aſſert not in a Way of Derogation from thoſe Holy Writings, which with Reverence we read, believe, and deſire always to obey the Mind and Will of God therein contain'd; and let that Doctrine be accurſt that would overturn them.

Page 147, 148. His next Cavil, Is at the Plainneſs of our Deportment and Expreſſion; He calls them our Principles; and we are content as well to own them, as to confute his Folly in oppoſing them.

To our not ſaluting any, he oppoſeth that Scripture, If you Salute your Brethren Mat. 5. 47. only, What do you more than others: But the Quakers, ſays he, Salute none but thoſe of their own Sect, though the Apoſtles in their Epiſtles did.

But neither is he juſt to the Senſe of the Scripture quoted, nor the Practiſe of our Friends. (But I perceive the Man would be doing) though he does, he does not know what, or but very little) For Chriſt's Purpoſe in that Scripture, was to admoniſh them to Univerſal Love, as the Context manifeſts; If ye love them that love you, What Reward have you? He ſtruck at the Revenge of thoſe, then under the Law, Who would have an Eye for an Eye, and a Tooth for a Tooth; that made it a ſtanding Maxim, To love their Friends, but hate their Enemies; and not that the Lord Jeſus Chriſt deſign'd ſo much as to encourage People to imitate the vain and flattering Salutes, then, and now practis'd in the World; but did ſeverely reprehend them, when Perſonally in the World, making the Salutations and Greetings Mat. 23. 5, 6, 7, 8, 9. of that Age, a great Mark of it's Apoſtacy; giving it in Charge to his Diſciples, Mark 12. 38. That not only they ſhould not Salute any Man, but alſo to avoid and beware of thoſe that love Salutations; for they ſhall receive greater Damnation: That he belies us, is as evident, as that he wrong'd Chriſt, and the Holy Scriptures; For not only do we take Notice of our Friends, but are, in our Accoſtings of ſuch as are known to us, eſpecially in Caſe of Intimacy or Buſineſs, ready to Salute them, ſo far as ſtands with an honeſt, plain, loving, Chriſtian Mind, and that as well by Epiſtles as other Converſation: But it was ill done of him to urge the Apoſtles Epiſtles, that were only written to the Brethren, to prove we ought to Salute Strangers: I ſuppoſe there is no ſuch Stuff, as, My Lord, your Lordſhip's Moſt Obedient Servant, and My Moſt Humble Service to your Lordſhip, &c. O the deviliſh Flattery, and vain reſpecting of Perſons that is in this wicked World! Well, the God of our Plainneſs will judge for it all; and ſweep theſe Things out of the Earth, which Pride, and Vanity have introduc'd.

He ſays, Our ſecond Principle is, to give no outward Token of Reverence to Ma- Page 149. giſtrates, Parents, Maſters, or any other Perſons: Upon which he makes this Reflection (but we have learned otherwiſe) For Abraham bowed to Heth's Children; Gen. 23. 7, C. 42, 6. Joſeph's Brethren to Joſeph; ſo did Abigail to David; and the Apoſtle ſays, Render Honour to whom Honour is due, &c.

To all which Slander and Ignorance, I give this ſhort Reply, Read my Book, No Croſs, No Crown, Chap. 1, 2. (for I have written largely of it in another Diſcourſe) Reverence and Honour are ſubſtantial Things; and though in all Actions, there is an intrinſick and extrinſick Reſpect, yet 'tis as impoſſible that the Appearance and the Thing ſhould be ſeparated, as that the Reſemblances of Bread and Wine ſhould remain in the Romiſh Euchariſt, and not the very Subſtance of both; ſo that we are for ſuch Reverence and Honour as have a Service in it, to thoſe to whom we ſhew it; for all other Honour is Deceit: And what the Apoſtle ſaith of Science and Philoſophy, I may ſay here, 'Tis a vain Reſpect and Honour, falſly ſo call'd; the Centurion was more honoured by his Servants and Soldiers, in their obeying his Luke 7. 6, 7, 8, 9. Commands, when he ſaid to One, go, and he went; to another, come, and he came; and to a third, do this, and he did it, than by all the mimical Gates and deform'd Cringes, us'd in this Frenchify'd World; for did Reſpects lye in Hats, Kirches, and Bowings, the vileſt Miſcreants, and debaucht Perſons, and moſt void of True Reverence and Honour, would be the moſt expert and accompliſh'd; which is a greater Sin to ſay, than for me not to Cap the old foppiſh Man in Hand.

Page 149, 150. Gen. 24. The third Principle he charges upon us as ſome heinous Offence, is, Our not giving Titles, eſpecially that of Maſter, which Abraham was call'd ſeventeen Times in one Chapter; David call'd Saul Maſter, and one of the Sons of the Prophets, calls Eliſha Maſter, &c.

To which I muſt needs ſay, that People ought to be deeply in Love with thoſe vain Cuſtoms, to practiſe them under no better Covert, Proof, nor Defence, than the Fig-Leaf Arguments and Quotations of this poor Man: We own and uſe that Expreſſion, in the Senſe the Scriptures do allow of it, namely to ſuch as have Rule and Authority over us: It was Abraham's Servant that fetch't Rebecca for his Son Iſaac; But did Rebecca, or her Relations, aſk for Maſter Abraham, or Maſter Iſaac? It ſeems the World knew leſs of Maſterſhip, and Titular Honour at that Time of the Day, than in our Vain-glorious Age.

David call'd Saul ſo, as he was King, and in that he ow'd him a Subjection: But the Caſe is much alter'd; yet they are our Maſters, whom we obey.

Eliſha by his own Confeſſion, Was as an Overſeer to the School of the Prophets, and we never deny'd but Children ought to eſteem, call, and obey them as Maſters, who are their Inſtructors, in Trades, or Literature of any Kind, the like in Apprentices and Servants.

But it is eaſy to obſerve, of how little Force the Words of Chriſt are with a Prieſthood, calculated to pleaſe and daub the World, inſtead of living in that Croſs, which is an Offence, and very Death to the Proud, Who are Pleaſers of Men rather than God, and who have the Perſons of Rich Mortals in Admiration for Reward: Therefore it was, that this Beggarly Prieſt ran up and down (in Ireland) to Great Men's Houſes, with his Books, that he might be gratify'd (as moſt did) Ten-fold more than they coſt him; which he would not have done to the poor and unable to reward him, though their Souls are no whit inferior; but it may be of more Importance in God's Account, and greater Enquirers after Religion; but a Prieſt is too black to bluſh. Well, the Day of the Calamity of this Cut-purſe Generation of Prieſts, the dreadful God of Heaven and Earth is haſtening, and none of them ſhall be able to eſcape the Stroak of his Fury; for his Controverſie is againſt them; and Everlaſting Woes will be their Portion for all their Avarice, Impoſture, and Perſecution in the World.

Let ſuch as are affected with Gaudy Titles, peruſe the ſevere Character Chriſt gives the Scribes and Phariſees, in his Caution of them to his Diſciples, Wo unto them, for they love the uppermoſt Rooms at Feaſts, and Chief Seats in the Synagogues, and Greetings in Market-Places, and to be called of Men Rabbi; neither be ye called Maſters, for One is your Maſter, Chriſt; and all ye are Brethren; but he that is Greateſt amongſt you, ſhall be your Servant. Mat. 23. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11.

There can be but three Significations of the Title Maſter.

Firſt, That of being ſo as a Teacher or Grandee of a Sect, in which Senſe the Scribes and Phariſees then, and Jeſuits and Friars now, receive it; they are ſometimes called Maſter, ſometimes Father.

Secondly, The other, out of meer Formality, there being no Reality in it, becauſe no Power nor Office that could require it.

Thirdly and Laſtly, They may be called ſo, from ſome Office or Place, which they bear; this is a Reality and moſt Reaſonable: Chriſt intends not this by his Prohibition, only the other two; for the firſt robs him of his Honour; who is the alone Maſter and Father in Heavenly Matters; and the ſecond, Is a downright lying Vanity, but the laſt a Reality.

That which the Prieſt pleads for, was Elihu's Caution and Refuſal, I know not (ſays he) to give Flattering Titles: In ſo doing, my Maker would ſoon take me away. He little thought of it, when he complemented the Lord and Lady Donegal with his Copper Rhetorick, Stuff ſo bald and wretched, as deſerves firſt a Peccavi for his Sin; and then an Apology for Stile; Shreds of Latin, and ſuperannuated Pedantry. It cannot be forgotten by the Prieſt, (if ever he did remember it) That the Hebrew, Greek, and Roman Univerſities call'd, ſaluted, and mentioned Perſons and Authors by their bare Names, as Adam, Enoch, Noah, Abraham, &c. Socrates, Plato, Antiſthenes, Zeno, &c. Brutus, Scipio, Cato, Seneca, Epictetus; and beſides that, the Apoſtle James repreſents it as a Great Sin to reſpect Perſons, whether by Titles or Places. Marlorat out of Luther, and Calvin ſays, That it is repugnant to the Jam. 2. 1, 2, 3, 4.

the Light within them, inſomuch, that thoſe that follow ſuch Things, are condemned within themſelves.

Heed not thy Nobility, nor let it be a Reaſon for thee to take Place of any: Eſteem not thoſe of meaner Extraction thy Inferiors; for our Religion admits of no Reſpect of Perſons, ſaid Jerom, (and much more) to the Noble Celantia.

Caſaub. Uſe and Cuſtom, pag. 169.

And ſaid Learned Caſaubon, in his Diſcourſe of Uſe and Cuſtom, He is not counted a Civil Man, now of late Years amongſt us, who thinketh much, or refuſeth to ſubſcribe himſelf Servant, though it be to his Equal or Inferior; yet Sulpitius Severus was very ſharply chid by Paulinus, for ſubſcribing himſelf His Servant, in a Letter of his, ſaying, Take Heed hereafter, how thou being from a Servant called into Liberty, Doſt Subſcribe thy Self Servant unto one who is thy Brother and Fellow-Servant. 'Tis not a Teſtimony of Humility, To pay thoſe Honours to a Man, which are due to the One Lord, One Maſter, and One God.

This was the Senſe and Simplicity of thoſe Times; but they are chang'd, and the Clergy now are as looſe as they were then ſtrict; and inſtead of binding the vain and fooliſh Appetites of Men, they rather daub and indulge them in thoſe Things, whereof both Prieſts and People ought to be aſham'd; but 'tis fit it ſhould be ſo, that they may be manifeſted not to be of God, but Sworn Enemies to his Truth and Servants.

Pag. 151, 152.

The laſt Principle he charges on us as Heterodox, is, Our holding it to be a Duty to (Thou) all Men, becauſe we (Thou) God: And indeed it's Reaſon good enough, and a better than the Man is furniſhed with, to oppoſe or anſwer it, which is this. We thereby are taught to own the Simplicity of the Eſſence of God, and to Men it's us'd only in Civility, as Sir, Maſter, Moſt Honourable, &c. A poor Shift. I grant it properly ſignifies One, and therefore is aptly us'd to God, becauſe He is but One; but if that ſhould be the Reaſon why we ſhould uſe You (which implies more than One) to any ſingle Man, becauſe he is but One, I cannot fathom the Logick of it; if it be a Word fitted to the Singular Number, I ſay becauſe but One; for if there were more, the Civility would be leſſened by the Neceſſity of uſing it, if it be a Word fitted to the Singular Number, (and we have not another) Why ſhould we not as well uſe it in Diſcourſe to a Man, as to God? But above all, that he ſhould urge the Civility of it, as a Reaſon for the Uſe of it to Men, and yet uſe Thou to the Moſt High GOD, is a Saucineſs almoſt impardonable; for if You be therefore us'd in the Place of Thou, becauſe more reſpectful; What follows? But ſince we ſay You to Men, and Thou to God, we expreſs more Civility to our Fellow-Creatures, than to our Great Creator; this Man has ill learnt his Catechiſm: But for him to ſay, That 'tis equivalent with the Words, Sir, Maſter, &c. is an high Inſtance of his little Skill in Languages; for this relates not to Title, but Number: The Queſtion is not, Whether this Man ought to be Maſter? But whether One Man be Two Men? Which, till the Man be able to prove, either let him uſe that Only Word, that denotes a Singular Number, or we ſhall think his Brains ſquint, and that he dreams of Two inſtead of One.

And though he ſcoffingly calls our Obedience in theſe Things, The Croſs, and lyingly ſays, We are otherwiſe ignorant and prophane Creatures, far from the Form, much more the Power of Godlineſs, Yet this I lay upon him, by Way of Anſwer, The Lord God rebuke thee: We make not them to be the Beſt, or only Inſtances of True Quakers, knowing and declaring to the World, That Salvation from Sin, and Juſtification with God, through the Operation of the Power and Spirit of Jeſus Chriſt, is that which chiefly makes a Good Chriſtian, Man, or Woman, and where that Exiſtence is wanting, all Conformity to external Appearances of Self-Denial, will prove unavoidable at the Great Tribunal of God. Yet I muſt tell the Man, That he talks evilly of Things he knows not: For we would have given all we had in this World, that we might have anſwer'd a Good Conſcience to God, and have kept in the Cuſtoms and Friendſhip of this World; but when it was manifeſted to us, how much they pleas'd proud Fleſh, and that they were of the Offspring of a vain, wanton, proud Mind, that pleas'd it ſelf in Flatteries, We were conſtrain'd by God's Spirit alone, to croſs them in thoſe very Particulars, though it greatly croſt our ſelves firſt; which was no ſooner done, but we quickly came to ſee the Value they put upon them, by the Diſpleaſure and ſottiſh Rage that moſt have ſhown at our refuſing to practiſe them: Mordecai could not Bow to Haman; nor can we to the Hamanites of our Age; the Spirit is ſtill the ſame on both Sides.

C H A P.

CHAP. VI.

SINCE I had to do with any of the Adverſaries of Truth, I have not met with one who lays himſelf more open to the ſevere Blows of her Defenders: But indeed, there is little Triumph over ſo feeble an Enemy; for had I not been told, the Man is not reputed in the general Mad (I mean diſtracted in his Naturals) I ſhould have thought him fitter for Bedlam, than to diſcuſs Controverſies: His ſucceeding Matter, if any, is ſo confuſedly huddled together; ſuch are his Repetitions, ſo many his Tautologies, and interwoven with lying Stories (moſt of them mill'd out of the Devil's Mint) and aggravated by him, with all his little Skill and great Envy; that how to rally all into ſuch an order, as may admit of an Anſwer (though little of it can be thought by ſober Men to merit any) I have been greatly at a ſtand: And if he will owe me ill-will for my publick Refutation of his Errors, and Reprehenſion of his Slanders; at leaſt, He ought to think himſelf obliged to my Civility, in methodizing his otherwiſe moſt immethodical Diſcourſe.

I ſhall in this Chapter glean his lying Stories of the ſcattered Seed of falſe Doctrines, held by him, or undeſervedly caſt upon us; in my next following, vindicate our Life and Doctrine from any Inconſiſtency with the Civil Government; in my laſt Juſtifie my Friends from all his Impoſtures and Calumnies.

Firſt, He takes up an whole Chapter in his Endeavours to prove that we deny the Lord that bought us, though very falſly and equally inſucceſsfull.

Becauſe we deny that Perſon (the Son of God) that died at Jeruſalem to be our Redeemer. p. 153, 154.

Which moſt horrid Imputation has been anſwer'd more (I believe) than a Thouſand Times, by declaring that he that laid down his Life, and ſuffered his Body to be crucified by the Jews, without the Gates of Jeruſalem, is Chriſt the only Son of the moſt High God: But that the outward Perſon which ſuffered was properly the Son of God, we utterly deny, and it is a perfect Contradiction to their own Principles; A Body haſt thou prepared me, ſaid the Son, then the Son was not the Body, though the Body was the Son's, this brings him more under the Charge of making him but a meer Man, than us, who acknowledge him to be One with the Father, and of a nature Eternal and Immortal; for he was glorified with the Father before the World was.

But I might invert, that ſuch as live in Sin and plead for it Term of Life, and who are of a perſecuting Spirit and Teach for Hire, and Divine for Money, and maintain ſhadowy Practices in Oppoſition to the Subſtance and Nature of the ſecond Spiritual Covenant, and Appearance of Chriſt without Sin to Salvation, they are the Deniers of Chriſt; or Anti-Chriſts; but ſuch is Jenner with his Brethren; therefore Anti-Chriſts.

Secondly, But he ſays, That we deny Chriſt to be a diſtinct Perſon, therefore we deny the Lord that bought us. p. 154.

In anſwer to this I ſhall make theſe three Offers. Firſt, if he will but bring me One Scripture (for he calls it his Guide and Rule) that has directed him to ſuch a Phraſe, as diſtinct Perſon, or that ſays, I and my Father are two, inſtead of, I and my Father are One. Secondly, If he will but bring me one Piece of Antiquity for the firſt two Hundred Years, that us'd any ſuch Expreſſion. Thirdly, And if he can deny that the Popiſh School-men (through the Aſſiſtance of the Ariſtotelian) (or Infidel) Philoſophy, were not the Grand Fathers and Promoters of ſuch like monſtrous Terms, and uncouth Phraſes, I will be contented to take the Shame upon me of denying proper, apt and ſignificant Phraſes: But till then I will tell him, that if the Son of God did purchaſe our Salvation diſtinctly from the Father, the Father was not concerned in our Salvation, but Chriſt only; and if he did ſo purchaſe it, as God, the Son (diſtinct from the Father) then God the Son, (by his Principles) cannot be the ſame with God the Father; and all the Earth, with all their idle Sophiſms and metaphyſical Quiddities ſhall never be able to withſtand the Concluſion to be; two Gods; otherwiſe, if the Purchaſe was by God the Son, then God the Father was concern'd as well as God the Son, becauſe the ſame God; if not, then either Chriſt's God-head was not concern'd in the Purchaſe, or there muſt be two Gods; ſo that which he calls, a Perſonality diſtinct from the Eſſence, could not do it, and if the Divine Eſſence did it, then the Father and Spirit did it as well as the Son, becauſe the ſame individual Eternal Eſſence: O the fond dotage and dark Conceits of Men about that bleſſed Myſtery! Let Jenner turn to the fifth Chapter of John's firſt Epiſtle; where he may find our Faith at large in the Point; and if he is not ſatisfied therewith, his Refuſal ſhall ſet the very Letter of the Scriptures (his pretended Rule) over his Head, that he would ſuggeſt we deny.

Thirdly, He ſaith, That we own Chriſt to be but meer Man, and that he had his Failings in the World, therefore we deny him. Indeed, if this were as true as it is falſe, his Conſequence would be juſt; but Methinks he ſhould have better ſtudy'd his own Reputation, than to aſſert any Thing ſo contradictory to his preceding Senſe of us,

For no farther off, than the ſame Page, he affirms we deny that Perſon to be Chriſt, that ſuffer'd without the Gates of Jeruſalem, and now he charges us with diſowning him to be Chriſt on any other Account, than that of meer Humanity: So that his Charge is briefly this, They own the true Chriſt not to be a Man; but however they own the true Chriſt to be only a meer Man; and they hold a Perfection, and yet ſay that Chriſt had his Failings: Horrid Weakneſs and Contradiction!

Fourthly, That we hold, All that Chriſt did in the World, was only as a Figure and Example; therefore we deny the Lord that bought us.

This Language he cannot produce in any Author, that is an acknowledged true Quaker; for we affirm, he did many Things, wherein he was neither a Figure nor Example; though, in ſome Senſe, he may be the former; and in many, the latter: For in him we have Life, and by Faith, Atonement in his Blood; yet 'twas the Language of the Apoſtle Peter, For even hereunto were ye called, becauſe Chriſt alſo ſuffer'd for us; leaving us an Example, that we ſhould follow his Steps. 1 Pet. 2. 21.

Fifthly, That we deny Juſtification by the Righteouſneſs which Chriſt hath fulfilled in his own Perſon for us (wholly without us) and therefore deny the Lord that bought us. Pag. 155, 156, 157.

And indeed, this we deny, and boldly affirm it in the Name of the Lord, To be the Doctrine of Devils, and an Arm of the Sea of Corruption, which does now deluge the whole World.

I ſhall not much inſiſt upon this, as I have not upon the other four Particulars; they having been irreconfutably conſider'd, and anſwer'd, by my Friend and Partner in this Diſcourſe, in his firſt Part of this Apology: Only this I ſhall obſerve and add.

Firſt. No Man can be juſtified without Faith (ſays Jenner.)

No Man hath Faith without Works (any more than a Body can live without a Spirit (ſays James.)

Therefore the Works of Righteouſneſs, by the Spirit of Chriſt Jeſus, are neceſſary to Juſtification.

Secondly. If Men may be juſtified, whil'ſt Impure; then God quits the Guilty, contrary to the Scripture; which cannot be.

Thirdly. Death came by actual Sin, not imputative, in his Senſe; therefore Juſtification unto Life comes by actual Righteouſneſs, and not imputative.

Fourthly. This ſpeaks Peace to the Wicked, whilſt wicked; but there is no Peace to the Wicked, ſaith my God.

Fifthly. Men are dead and alive at the ſame Time, by this Doctrine; for they may be dead in Sin, and yet alive in another's Righteouſneſs, not inherent, and conſequently, Men may be damn'd actually, and ſav'd imputatively.

Sixthly. But ſince Men are to reap what they ſow; and that every one ſhall be rewarded according to his Works; and that none are juſtified, but the Children of God; and that none are Children, but who are led by the Spirit of God, and that none are ſo led, but thoſe that bring forth Fruits thereof, which is Holineſs; 'tis not the Oyl in another's Lamp, but in our own only, which will ſerve our turns; I mean, the Rejoycing muſt be in our ſelves, and not in another: Yet to Chriſt's Holy Power alone, do we aſcribe it, who works all our Works in us, and for us.

To conclude this brief Account, I am conſtrain'd, for the ſake of the ſimple-hearted, to publiſh to the World, of our Faith in God, Chriſt, and the Holy Spirit.

We do believe in One only Holy God Almighty, who is an Eternal Spirit, the Creator of all Things.

And in One Lord Jeſus Chriſt, his only Son, and expreſs Image of his Subſtance, who took upon him Fleſh, and was in the World; and in Life, Doctrine, Miracles, Death, Reſurrection, Aſcenſion, and Mediation, perfectly did, and does continue to do the Will of God; to whoſe holy Life, Power, Mediation, and Blood, we only aſcribe our Sanctification, Juſtification, Redemption and perfect Salvation.

And we believe in One Holy Spirit, that proceeds and breaths from the Father and the Son, as the Life and Virtue of both the Father and the Son, a Meaſure of which is given to all to profit with; and he that has one, has all; for thoſe Three are One, who is the Alpha and Omega, the Firſt and the Laſt, God over all, bleſſed for ever, Amen.

Having thus fairly vindicated our Faith in God, Chriſt, and the Eternal Spirit, I ſhall end his following Reflections, which are juſt as true and rational, as the reſt; but that which of all Things I find moſt perplexing in my Purſuit of him, is his interwoven Charges and numerous Repetitions, ſo like their Hour-glaſs way of Preaching. That one would think he were giving us a Sermon, rather than a Diſpute: For inſtance, He takes up ſeveral Pages about our Denying the Lord that bought us; and the Perniciouſneſs of our Ways, and Blaſphemies againſt God and Chriſt (under diſtinct Heads) as if any Body ſhould doubt that, who believes his precedent Doctrinal Charge againſt us; he might have much better imploy'd himſelf to pick Straws, than firſt to beg the Queſtion, and then to tell the World thoſe Conſequences, that are as evident as a Man's Noſe in his Face: But I proceed to Particulars.

In his Diſcourſe of the Perniciouſneſs of our Ways and Practices, he ſays, We perſecute the Truth, and it's Followers, with our bitter Railings and Reproachings. O wretched Impudence! Could any but a Prieſt, brazened with Rage and Folly, ever pronounce ſo great a Lye? Who has moſt reviled, the Quakers, or Jenner? Is not his whole Diſcourſe chequered with Marks of his deepeſt Envy, and blackeſt Blaſphemies againſt God, his Truth, and People? Who ſays, 'They are of the Devil; their Light is an Ignis Fatuus, a Dim Light; the Spirit of the Devil; that we are poſſeſt, are Witches, and acted and moved by Satan; Enemies to God, Chriſt, the Spirit, Religion, and Humane Societies; with abundance more of the like Complexion. Do not thoſe Expreſſions beſpeak the Pit to be the Place from whence they came? But this is the natural Scent of the Presbyterians and Independents Breath; for it always ſtinks of Scurrility and Perſecution. P. 15, 4.

But ſuppoſe we had imploy'd our Tongues or Pens to declare the Rottenneſs and Hypocriſie of that crew of Men he belongs to; 'is that a greater Evil than to caſt us into Goals? To whip our Bodies? and ſometimes murder us by ſtinking Dungeons, and barbarous Beatings? Nay, the very Prieſts have betaken themſelves to their Canes, and Fiſts, when they have had nothing to ſay in defence of their impious Cheat of the Poor: We have a red Catalogue that ſhall ſtand recorded againſt our Presbyterian and Independent Perſecutors, that their Names, and Natures too, may ſtink to Poſterity.

Seventhly, His next is a prophane Reflection upon our trembling, viz. That our Quakings at ſilent Meetings are diabolical: But we are not without precedent Precept in the Point; but I perceive that Jenner (for all his Boaſts) is ſo far from making the Scripture his Rule, that he contemns and prophanes the very Examples and commands, that they moſt evidently hold forth. P. 15, 8.

Moſes was a Quaker; for 'tis ſaid of him, That he exceedingly Trembl'd and Quak'd: Habakkuk ſaid, That his Lips Quiver'd, and Rottenneſs entred into his Bones, and he Trembled within himſelf, that he might have Reſt in the Day of Trouble: And did not the Apoſtle exhort the Churches, That they ſhould work out their Salvation with Fear and Tremblirg? And did he not tell the Hebrews, That God would ſhake both the Heavens and the Earth once more. Read the Scriptures quoted.

Heb. 12. 21.
Hab. 3. 16.
1 Cor. 2. 3.
Ephe. 6, 5.
Phil. 2. 12.
Heb. 12. 26.

But perhaps it will be objected, That we do not ſo Tremble. To which I anſwer, and God bears us record;

'The Holy dreadful Power of the Lord God being upon us, and a deep Senſe of our own Tranſgreſſions (and no Witchcraft or Poſſeſſion, as he moſt wickedly ſuggeſts) were the firſt Ground and Cauſe of our Trembling; and whether he repents, or no, Terror ſhall ſeize on him for this Enterprize; and a Cup of Dread

' and Trembling ſhall he receive at the Hand of the Lord God Almighty, before ' whom we Fear and Quake.

Chap. VI. Pag. 164, 165, 166.

Eighthly, He proceeds to charge us of a Confederacy with the Papiſts, by a fancy'd Unity of Doctrine.

1. That we with them, eſteem the reform'd Miniſters none of Chriſt's.

But herein he ſhews himſelf void, both of Charity and Truth; for ſuch as are truly reformed, we eſteem Chriſt's: But the Queſtion will be, whether they be ſuch? Beſides, If we eſteem them not his Miniſters, 'tis for thoſe very Reaſons, for which (in a larger Senſe) we utterly diſclaim and renounce the Roman Catholicks; Nay, 'Tis for that of Popery, and wherein they are as yet unreformed, that we diſallow them the Title of Chriſt's Miniſters; ſo far are we from any Truce or Confederacy with Papiſts, or that black helliſh Power which they abet and maintain.

2. That we agree in the Juſtification of Man by his Works.

But this is a meer Slander; ſince we diſown any Share in ſuch an Anti-chriſtian Doctrine; we ſay, That all Man's Self-righteouſneſs is but as filthy Rags; and that even thoſe Works, which are wrought by him, through the Aſſiſtance of the Spirit of Chriſt; and that Obedience which he yields thereunto, are not ſtrictly meritorious; only they have an inducing, procuring, and obtaining Power and Virtue in them. That is Merit where there is an Equality betwixt the Work and Wages; but all thoſe Temporary Acts of Righteouſneſs, can never equal Everlaſting Life, Joy, and Happineſs, (being of Grace, and not of Debt) and therefore ſtrictly no Merit; but ſuch good Works may be truly ſaid to obtain Eternal Life and Peace with God, becauſe without them there is no Salvation. But of this the poor Prieſt is ignorant.

3. Farther, he ſays, That with them we deny the Reading of the Scriptures to ignorant and unlearned Men.

But Men had Need to have an Over-ſtock of Charity, to believe (indeed not to reprove) him: Did he not in Pag. 136. accuſe us, for Objectors and Diſputers againſt Learning, as uſeful to a Chriſtian? And does he now make us to inſiſt upon it, as a neceſſary Qualification to the Reading of the Scriptures: Surely he has either miſtaken us, or we are quickly chang'd: Wretched Folly and Contradiction! He wounds himſelf, not us: but we have ſpoken to this before.

4. That a Man may perfectly keep the Law, he charges as an Error in both; the Abſurdity of which is beſt ſeen by the Conſequence of his Apprehenſion, viz. That the End of Chriſt's Coming, is not that through him we ſhould fulfil the Law, but break it: He that does not obey it, is under it; and he only is redeemed from it, that keeps it; David kept it, and ſo did Paul, through the Law of the Spirit of Life in Chriſt Jeſus.

If this were the worſt Principle held (not practiſed) by the Papiſts Anti-chriſt would be nearer to Jenner, and his Brethren, than them.

5. He ſays, We both deny the imputative Righteouſneſs of Chriſt.

As for us, I anſwer, That in the Scripture-uſage of the Word Imputation, we own it; but not the lazy ſophiſticated Stretch, theſe Sin-pleaſing Times have brought it to: Chriſt's Righteouſneſs actually and inherently made ours through Faith, is the great Ground of Juſtification, and another we own not.

6. He charges us with a Denial of the Scripture to be the Supream Rule.

And we do ſo, and have defended our Judgment in that Point, in ſeveral Places in this Diſcourſe, and therefore omit Repetition; a dreaming Faculty, this Man is foully guilty of, in this latter Part of his Book.

7. That we both pretend to Revelation and Miracles.

This we have honeſtly explain'd and defended: That Revelation which is ſober and true, according to Scripture, I have aſſerted in my ſecond Chapter at large: And for Miracles, we confeſs they are not ceaſt; yet, to us, we have a more ſure Word of Propheſy.

8. He tells the World, That we do not know whether Purgatory be revealed in Scripture, or not.

Which, beſides that it's a bad Proof to convince People, that we are Papiſts, who are ſo doubtful of a Point, with them ſo undoubtedly believed and peremptorily aſſerted; we might defy the Devil himſelf to have invented any thing more improbable and void of all Appearance of Truth; for we know that Purgatory is neither in Scripture nor Reaſon: Well may I ſay, and indeed I do, How long, Lord God,

Chap. VI.

God, Holy and True, how long will it be e're thou rebukeſt the Lying Tongue, and ſmiteſt the Lips of thoſe that are given to Leeſing?

We utterly renounce all Concern in the Foppery of that Opinion; and I, my ſelf, have within theſe two Months, publiſht a Diſcourſe againſt the Papiſts, wherein I do particularly refute that Romiſh Phantaſm; and I dare ſay, by Reaſons not borrowed from (nor uſual in) the Diſcourſes of their Enemies, as Jenner has done from ours.

See my Caveat againſt Popery, p. 27, 28.

9. He winds up his Charge of this Nature, with this farther Imputation, That we claim an Infallibility. To which I anſwer,

p. 175, 176.

The Spirit of Truth is infallible, therefore ſuch as are led by it, fail neither in their Judgment nor in their Practiſe; for the Reaſon of Error and Uncertainty, is the not being conform'd to (nor guided by) it, as all the Children of the Lord are. We have not attributed an Infallibility to our ſelves, thereby to involve People more into Failures, as hath the Pope of Rome; but do aſcribe all our In-errableneſs to God's Spirit, whoſe Manifeſtation is univerſal: And thus much for his Accuſation of a Confederacy with the Papiſts.

His Anſwer to that Objection, Of our writing againſt Popery; is only taking with thoſe that reſolve not to be informed; for were they candid, the Folly, Ignorance, and Malice of it were enough to anticipate all our Anſwers: For if we build up Popery by pulling it down, he ought to ſet us up by the Reaſon of Contraries, that he may pull us down; or that in the midſt of our Endeavours to detect the Villainy of the Prieſts, and overthrow the Foundation of Jenner's Building, we are ſeeking the Proſperity of it; but if this be ridiculous, the other cannot be rational.

Next, He has a Mind to leſſen, firſt, Our Troubles and Travels, for the Promotion of the Truth; and next, Our Conſtancy in Suffering, at leaſt the Ground of it; for he ſays, The one is done by the Devil, the other by the Jeſuits.

But how ſober or candid this is, let the Impartial judge: Becauſe Judas was a Man, therefore is every Man Judas? Or, becauſe the Devil is a Spirit, and ſo is Michael; therefore is the Devil Michael? Is it to touch the Merit of our Cauſe, to ſay, The Devil or the Jeſuits do ſo, and ſo; prove that we have the ſame Principles and Ends, and then let us be coupled with them, not before: The End of our Travels has been to convert Men from the unfruitful Works of Darkneſs, and Power of Satan's Kingdom, and not to eſtabliſh his Dominion. And for our Sufferings, we leave both our Reward and our cruel Adverſaries with the Lord; but better had it been for poor Jenner, he had never been born, than thus to revile the Innocent and Perſecuted Family of God.

10th. He would inſinuate a Belief in People, That we bear Witneſs to our ſelves, and therefore are not of God. But that we are of God, I prove, Becauſe we have only born Witneſs to the Truth, and the Effects of our Travels and Labours only unto us. (1ſt,) Our Doctrine againſt Prieſts and Profeſſors, and our Sufferings from them, have all along reſembled the Caſe of Chriſt himſelf. (2d,) As he foretold their Downfal, ſo did we foretel the Downfal of Preſbyterians and Independents, with all their Pride, Strength, and Self-Idolatry; and that is come to paſs. (3d,) We have been Inſtrumental in checking Impiety; and many Thouſands have and do confeſs and teſtify, that our Miniſtry is in Life and Power, and from God: So that our Sufferings, Self-denyal, the Prieſts and Profeſſors Downfal, and the Succeſs God hath given us (or rather his bleſſed Truth) bear Witneſs that we are not of Man, but God.

Read Edw. Burrough & G. Fox, their Epiſt. to the Parliament and Army.

11. As to his idle Repetitions, by way of reiterated Accuſations, concerning the Trinity, God, Chriſt's Offices, and the Holy Spirit, with his Metaphyſical (to him unknown) Perſonality; they have been largely ſpoken to already, only theſe Two Particulars I cannot well omit.

p. 188, 189, 190.

1. That how lately ſoever it was, he accus'd us of Confederacy with the Papiſts, he takes Occaſion in diſcourſing upon the Trinity, to charge us with the Denial of that, which they (he ſays) own; namely, Three diſtinct Perſons: I wonder not that they own it; for they are the Grand Patrons of the Doctrine; nor do I more wonder that he does ſo ſuddenly diſjoyn thoſe he ſo lately put together, though others have Liberty to do it, who know him leſs than I do; for now he denies us to be Papiſts.

p. 198.

2. Amongſt

1671. Chap. VI. p. 190. 2. Amongſt his Lyes of us, relating to our Denial of the Holy Ghoſt, he wedges in this impious and ignorant Aſperſion, viz. That all the Murthers, Whoredoms, and flagitious Wickedneſs, that any of them (Quakers) commit at any Time, they father upon the Holy Ghoſt, who mov'd them thereunto; and thus he proves it, Becauſe we ſay a Meaſure of the Spirit is in every Man.

But what he charges upon us, is moſt properly his own, for as he greatly injures us by ſaying that we commit any of thoſe Impieties, whilſt his Hearers live in them, and he pleads againſt an Impoſſibility of overcoming them; and which is yet worſt of all, in that he ſays, we father any (much more ſuch) groſs and foul Iniquities upon the Holy Spirit (which I am perſwaded all but Jenner and his Crew will clear us from (who had rather we ſhould be ſuch, then they ſhould want Matter againſt us) ſo is he guilty of the higheſt Blaſphemy, in charging the Holy Ghoſt with a Conſent to Sin, becauſe preſent in Man, when Man ſinneth; for he that infers, becauſe the Holy Ghoſt is in Man, when Man ſins, therefore the Holy Ghoſt ſins, outſtrips the whole Record of Scripture in point of Preſident for horrid Ignorance and Blaſphemy.

Did not God give his good Spirit to Iſrael? And did not Iſrael rebel againſt it? Therefore did the Spirit rebel? Is the Blood of the Covenant in Fault, if a Man tread it under Foot? Shall a Third Man in a Room, where two ſeek each other's Blood (after all his Diſſwaſions and Reproof) be accus'd for a Murderer, if one fall by the other's Hand, only for being preſent?

We ſay a Meaſure of Divine Light is in every Tranſgreſſor, even at the Inſtant of his committing the vileſt Sin; yet it conſents not to it, but ſtands a Witneſs for the Lord God againſt the unrighteous Soul. So let the Blaſphemy lie at Jenner*'s Door.*

p. 192, 193. 12th. But he ſays we blaſpheme the Miniſtry, and quotes James Naylor's Expreſſions to his Weathercock Brother a Demas Baxter, which had they been Ten Thouſand Times more ſignificant, earneſt and ſharp againſt that curſed bitter Stock of Hirelings, they had but been enough, and I would then ſay not enough; but that the Reverence I bear to the Holy Spirit would oblige me to acquieſce in whatever he ſhould utter through any Prophet, or Servant of the Lord.

And we have nothing for them, but Woes and Plagues, who have made drunk the Nations, and laid them to Sleep, on the Downy Beds of ſoft Sin-pleaſing Principles, whilſt they have cut their Purſes, and pick'd their Pockets; Tophet's prepar'd for them to act their Eternal Tragedy upon, whoſe Scenes will be the renew'd, direful, anguiſhing Woes of an Eternal Irreconcileable Juſtice.

13th. As to his tedious Account of the Judgments of the Lord upon Impoſtors and Ringleading Hereticks, they may be true for ought he or I know, and yet I will never burn in the Aſſertion of their Verity: But this I ſay to him, that we are unconcern'd in the Recital of them, and 'tis but a meer Begging of the Queſtion, to ſay ſuch Things ſhall inevitably fall on us. Firſt let us be truly and plainly proved theſe Hereticks, and then let him leave our Doom to him whoſe alone Right it is to render it; but the Parſon would hang us firſt, and Try us afterwards. But we expect better Dealings from the Lord, whoſe we are: Though we have no Reaſon but to expect worſe from him: However, this let him know, that if he repent not his Portion will not be leſs from the Lord's Hand, than the hatefulleſt Heretick he has named; nay, but the Meaſure his waſpiſh Spirit does meet to us, will the juſt God of Vengeance recompence upon his Head, in Everlaſting Burnings, which I could heartily deſire might never be his Portion.

Nor are his Deſigns of farther Tendency than to ſcare the Simple-hearted by his ſwelling Words of Vanity, being thoſe raging Waves of the Sea that foam out their own Shame; or elſe by his idle Scribling to procure a Subſiſtence to himſelf, his Books being ſaleable no where but at the Shop of more than treble Gain, and moſtly bought by the Men of Charity.

14th. His next Buſineſs is to ſhew, how many have been deluded by immediate Revelation, but I can find amongſt them all but One, and he One of the beſt Men of his Age; and to whom the Non-Conformiſts have been more beholden, than any of the Primitive Antiquity, and none ſo much admired by them; I am ſure by Dr. J. O. And that is, famous and learned Tertullian; But what was his Crime? Why the ſame that Paul and John were guilty of: Namely, the indwelling of the Holy Spirit, and Obedience to it's Holy Will and Motions: Let him produce me any ſuch delu-deluſive Viſions as he prates of, out of that honeſt Father, and we ſhall willingly quit our Aſſertion; 'till then I ſhall undertake his Vindication.

But O that ever a poor Man ſhould ſo far err from his Creator, as to blaſpheme the immediate Revelation of his Eternal Spirit. My Spirit's griev'd to think of the many Thouſands that are deſtroy'd, by ſuch Soul-Murderers, through their Induſtry to fill their Heads with the like Darkneſs, Error and Prejudice; but thanks be to the Lord God for ever: His Power is known, and bleſſed Light riſen, that will overturn, confound, and for ever ſcatter all before them.

However, by the Way (for as the Proverb ſays, give the Devil his Due) we are obliged to him, that in Page 208, he confeſſes, that in the ſecond Century or Hundred Years from Chriſt, Revelations were in the Church: And whether the ſeventeenth Hundred Years ought to impeach the Second, So ſaucily as Jenner does Tertullian, is a Queſtion that may be aſk'd without the Imputation of Impertinency, eſpecially conſidering he denies Revelation.

And for his Invitation to us, to quit the Table of Revelation, to feed at his hungry Ordinary, where every Diſh we know is ſtolen, I would have him to underſtand us better, we have arriv'd at the Fountain, and diſdain the broken Ciſterns. We have a better than the Pharaonian Task-maſters of Egypt. The Goſpel is preached without Money and without Price: our firſt Love is God, and our firſt Works Righteouſneſs, which we are doing; but the Prieſt's firſt Love, is Money, (the Root of all Evil) and their firſt Work's getting it (though Religion be a Cloak to their Avarice) and this they will do as long as they can.

We therefore knowing the Covetouſneſs, Cruelty, Pedantry and great Ignorance of thoſe pretended Phyſicians, do Call and Charge, and Warn all, in the Name of God (as having receiv'd Authority of the God of Life, Power and Dominion) to come out from amongſt thoſe Merchants of Babylon; that they may hearken to the Voice of Truth; that Leads to Life and Righteouſneſs; for their Ways are Death, and their Paths Everlaſting Deſtruction.

15th. And ſince he hath undertaken to admoniſh the Orthodox (as he calls them) and particularly Miniſters; I ſhall conclude this Chapter with a Word of Advice to both, that they may be truly Orthodox. p. 210 to 215.

Firſt, Know that the Fear of the Lord, that is Wiſdom; and to depart from Iniquity, that is a Good Underſtanding.

Secondly, To do this, Mind that Meaſure of Light and Grace which God hath placed in thy inmoſt Parts; and obey the ſame, for it leads into all Meekneſs and Righteouſneſs.

Thirdly, Deny thy ſelf all that which it would not have thee do, but is offended with thee for ſo doing, and thou ſhalt receive Power to become a Son of God.

Fourthly, This brings thee out of all the Faſhions of the World, and faſhions thee according to the New and Inward Man.

Fifthly, Then wilt thou know what Chriſt's Life, Death, Reſurrection, Aſcenſion, and Mediation mean; and what juſtifies and ſanctifies; and finally ſaves from Sin here, and Wrath hereafter.

Sixthly, And this will beget holy Zeal in thee, to teſtify againſt all the unequal, perſecuting, ſin-pleaſing Ways and Worſhips in the World; and give thee Fellowſhip with the Father, and with the Son, and with the Holy Spirit, and the Spirits of Juſt Men made perfect; and thy Portion ſhall be Bleſſedneſs for ever.

And if thou art a Miniſter, conſider theſe few Things:

1ſt. Renounce thy Call as being of Man.

2d. Thy own Preachments, as being the Invention of thine or other Men's Brains, and not thine own Experience.

3d. Forbear all Perſecution for Conſcience.

4th. Bow to the Teachings of the Light, and become a Child and Scholar of it.

5th. Relinquiſh and teſtify againſt that Oppreſſion of Tenths, as a Simonious and Anti-chriſtian-Yoak; otherwiſe, thou ſhalt never receive the Reward of a Miniſter of Chriſt Jeſus.

Theſe are Truths, that ſhall ſtand juſtified at God's Tribunal, in that great and notable Day, when all ſhall receive their Reward according to their Works, 1 Pet. 1. 17.

O the Calamity of ſuch as ſay, Thus ſaith the Lord, and he never ſpoke to them; and who run, and he never ſent them, that have Taught for Hire, and Divin'd for Money, and prepar'd War againſt all that have not put into their Mouths! Well, if any of them happen to read theſe Things, let them know, that they have been warn'd by a Servant of the Lord, who, in their Rebellion, is clear of their Blood, though the Blood of the whole World ſhould lie at their Door.

Chap. VII.

CHAP. VII.

Pag. 136, 137, 167, 168, 169, 170.

BUT the ſureſt, and moſt crafty Fetch, the Prieſt has through his whole Diſcourſe, is, The Deſign of rendring us inconſiſtent with Government; that what his Tribe has only Will enough to do, they might incenſe the Civil Magiſtrate, and imploy his Power, to accompliſh and inflict upon us; and this he earneſtly endeavours, by an odious Compariſon of us to John of Leiden, Becold, Knipperdolling, &c. But ſince his Deſign is to expoſe us to the Hatred of Government, he would have nearer approach'd the Mark, by a Compariſon of us to his Brother Preſbyters and Independents, whoſe rank Enmity to all Government, and Scorns of Obedience to all Authority (but their own) have given later Evidence how well they love to Head the Stage of Uſurpation, though at the Coſt of Natural Rights, and Natural Privileges: Of which more anon.

He has not dealt with us like a Man, much leſs a Chriſtian, and leaſt of all like a True Miniſter; for he thinks it Reaſon enough, To make us inherit their Miſcarriages, that we might but inherit their Puniſhment: For he has not inſtanc'd any one Fact, by us committed, that either paralleleth that Relation (be it True, or falſe) or in the leaſt affronteth our Native Laws. But ſince ſome may expect that I ſhould ſay ſomething of our Judgment in Point of Civil Government, I proceed briefly thus.

Firſt, We believe it is the Will of God, and Dictate of Nature and Reaſon, That Mankind ſhould aſſociate, or live in Society.

Secondly, That ſuch Society, or Societies, ſhould have Juſt and Righteous Laws.

Thirdly, That theſe Laws be either of a Nature Fundamental (and ſo indiſpenſible) or Superficial (and ſo alterable.) By the firſt we underſtand the Determinations of Right Reaſon, concerning Moral and Juſt Living, with certain Privileges that in the firſt Conſtitution are agreed upon as Eſſentials in Government; as Metes, Bounds, and Land-Marks of Truth, Equity, and Righteouſneſs; that as well confine Rulers, as People. By the Second we underſtand, certain Temporary Laws, Proclamations, or Cuſtoms, that relate to more trivial Matters, and that receive Alteration, with the Reaſon of them, according to that Maxim, Ceſſante ratione Legis ceſſat Lex, of which the People and Rulers are Judges.

Fourthly, We believe that all ſuch Laws ought to be punctually kept, and neither the Innocent to be puniſh'd, nor the Guilty to go free; that no Reſpect be ſhew'd in Judgment.

Fifthly, That no Man be puniſh'd by a Law he never heard of, or doth not underſtand: For where there is no Law, there is no Tranſgreſſion; and therefore it is Reaſonable, that the Laws be both promulgated, and recorded in a Language intelligible by the meaneſt Ruſtick.

Sixthly, That no Delays ſhould be upon any Pretence to Juſtice; nor that the Perſon of any Man ſhould be had in Eſteem for Reward.

Seventhly, That the Puniſhment never exceed the Offence.

Eighthly, That Magiſtrates be not allow'd to commit thoſe Iniquities they chaſtize others for, leſt they puniſh the Effect of their own Example.

Ninthly, As a wicked Magiſtrate is one that converts his Power to pleaſe his Paſſion, feed his Pride, and fill his Purſe, rather than to the well-ordering of the People, over whom he is ſet: So do we eſteem him a Godly and Juſt Magiſtrate, whoſe Mind is exercis'd in the Pure Law of God, to do equal Juſtice, and yet to love Mercy; whoſe Example teaches the People how to live, as not needing Laws whilſt under them. This is the Man that is worthy of double Honour.

Tenthly, As all Magiſtracy was Originally inſtituted for the Good of the People, ſo ought all Magiſtrates to anſwer the End of their Office and Truſt; namely, The Preſervation of the People by their own Example, and the fair and equal Execution of the Laws: And the People ſtand as firmly oblig'd to obey the Magiſtrate, (Conſcience only excepted) and diligently to ſeek the Well-being of that Government; or elſe the Magiſtrate is excus'd in the Denial of the Law's Protection to them: For no People can juſtly claim the Benefit of that Government they ſeek to ruin.

Thus much and enough to confute the angry Prieſt, whoſe Perſonal, or Tribian Quarrel with us, he would make the whole World's; that the Number of our Adverſaries might increaſe with the Degrees of his unjuſt Hate.

His Deſign in rendring of us Enemies to Government, being only to deprive us of the Protection of it: For, 'tis not without Cauſe, that theſe Malicious and Monopolizing Partiſans of our Age, employ themſelves ſo diligently, to raiſe their Duſt of Lies and Slanders, to darken the Magiſtrate's Proſpect of us; leſt by a direct and clearer View of our Juſt Principles and Behaviour, their Pride, Avarice, and Cruelty, ſhould come more to Light; and the Gallows, contriv'd to hang Mordecai, ſhould be the laſt Stage for thoſe proud Hamans to tread and act their Parts upon.

But this open Challenge I make to the Old Man and his Fraternity, That if amongſt the many Plots that have been ſpoken of, and ſeveral have been hang'd for, One (known, and by us eſteem'd a) Quaker, has been found amongſt them? I ſhall confeſs ſo far to his Imputation, as that the Magiſtrate is excuſable in a diſcreet Jealouſie over us.

And in his next, let him challenge me (if he dare) to tell him, Whether they were not all, or moſt of them, either Preſbyterians or Independents that were concern'd. I would have the Man to know, That I am not ſo void of Tenderneſs to all that go under thoſe Denominations, as to expoſe their Reputation to the Scorn of every Reader, as his indiſcreet and falſe Reflections upon us (in Point of Government) would lead me to; only I would be glad to know by the next, whether one T. Jenner was not Chaplain to the Iriſh-Brigade, that went over to Rout (him they called) Sir George Booth in Cheſhire, 1659. I therefore return him his Diſtich thus,

> Region, Eſtate, Rule, (Civil and Divine)
> Religion, all, does Jenner undermine.

I ſhall conclude the Chapter with this One Queſtion to the Man in Hand, Whether thoſe only are not the Men who leaſt deſerve Protection or Liberty from any Government, who whilſt they angrily demand IT for themſelves, are ſo penuriouſly Selfiſh and Unjuſt, as to deny it to other Men? And whether this Principle deſtroys not the Univerſal Empire of the Great God, and does not implicitly accuſe him of His Impartial Raining upon both Juſt and Unjuſt, as well as that it deſtroys the greateſt Part of Civil Society now in the World? I am confident he muſt ſay, Yes.

And more truly dare I ſay to Jenner, Thou art the Man. For, leſt the Magiſtrate ſhould be too ſlow in his Purſuit of us, he ſticks not to provoke him to a Perſecution; that, when againſt themſelves, they eſteem moſt Unchriſtian: Nay, he plainly ſhoweth, that how much ſoever he and his Brethren ſtand in need of a Toleration, he had rather there were none, than that the Poor, Deſpis'd Quakers ſhould have any; as if Perſecution were unlawful againſt none but themſelves, or Unjuſtifiable againſt all but the Quakers.

But how ingenious it is to eſſay the Ruin of us, our Families, and Long-Labours in that Plantation, whether in getting or improving it, let the more Sober of all Perſwaſions judge; how Antichriſtian it is, I know; and heartily could wiſh, The Lord would Convince him of the ſame, leſt his End be Everlaſting Deſtruction.

CHAP. VIII.

Chap. VIII.

THE Buſineſs of this my laſt Chapter, will be a Vindication of our Innocence, againſt the foul Lies, and ſcaring Characters the Devil's Friends have often put upon us, (though by the Friends of TRUTH they have as frequently been detected and return'd upon their Heads) and of which the Man in Hand has made a plentiful Collection, to the End that the Simple-hearted may be deter'd from embracing the Bleſſed Way of Everlaſting Life, which the Lord God Almighty in Great Love and Faithfulneſs, hath brought to Light in theſe Laſt Ages of the World; a Way ſo even and plain, that (as the Prophet ſaid) The Wayfaring Man, though a Fool, cannot err therein. In order to which, I ſhall premiſe Four Things.

Firſt, That it has been very uſual with the Lord, to ſuit his Diſpenſations to the Frame and Capacity of the World to receive them, as the Time before the Law, under the Law, and after the Coming of Chriſt, does evidently ſhew.

Secondly, That thoſe more New and Heavenly Diſcoveries, have with the Perſon that God hath choſen to teſtifie of them to the World, conſtantly been wont to receive very croſs Uſage and inhumane Entertainment, being purſu'd by whole Armies of Lies, Slander, and Reproach, imputing their Succeſs to Witchcraft, as if they had Caſt out Devils by Beelzebub the Prince of Devils; witneſs the Entertainment of the Ancients, as from Abel's Day to the Primitive Perſecutions; not to mention the many Inſtances of that Kind, which the Proteſtants Revolt from Rome, and divers Separations from them, might plentifully furniſh us with.

Thirdly, That we are taught from hence, not to impute Falſhood or Error to any Religion, becauſe diſguis'd or vail'd from the common Eye by thoſe Clouds of Slander and Reproach, her Enemies may have exhal'd, on Purpoſe to eclipſe ſome more engaging Truth and Beauty in her than their own.

Fourthly, This hath been more our Caſe, than any Society of People upon Earth; for, as the Papiſt defam'd the Proteſtant, ſo did the degenerated Proteſtant the Puritan, who falling into a rigid Preſbyterian, became as angry with the Independents, and both diſpleas'd with the Baptiſts; but all enrag'd againſt the Appearance of the Bleſſed Truth; Pilate and Caiaphas combining by Civil Power, and Lying Accuſations, to accompliſh (if poſſible) a perfect Overthrow both of Her and Her Children.

Therefore how Good a Thing is it to embrace the Apoſtle's Exhortation, Try all Things, and hold faſt that which is Good? Which leads me to the Examination of thoſe Stories he frequently takes the Liberty to tell of us in his Diſcourſe.

Firſt, The firſt conſiderable Lye that falls within my Precinct, is in page 153. his Words are theſe, That Penn, another of their Teachers, did boldly affirm to a Friend of mine in Dublin, That whoſoever ſhall expect to be ſav'd by that Jeſus Chriſt that was Born in Judea, and ſuffer'd at Jeruſalem, ſhall be deceiv'd.

To which I anſwer: This is the very Off-ſpring of the Devil, the Father of Lies: For the Lord God, who is Righteous in all his Ways, and Juſt in all his Doings, to whom alone it belongs to ſearch the Heart, and try the Reins, and to recompence every Man according to his Work, he knows, to whom I can make my ſolemn Appeal, That thoſe Words, or any other of that Tendency, did never proceed out of my Mouth.

But if Jenner would have ſhew'd himſelf a Man (for Chriſtian he is none) he ſhould have told me who that Perſon is, that he calls his Friend, that is ſo much mine and his own Enemy: I doubt not but I have Witneſſes of what I ſaid; and methinks nothing but the Fear of his Teſtimony, ſhould have made Jenner to have conceal'd his Name: The Slander in general hath been anſwer'd already, and therefore I omit to enlarge here.

Secondly, His ſecond Lye runs thus, William Spencer lying in Bed with one of the Quakers three Nights, the laſt Night was very troubleſome; on a ſudden he Pag. 158. heard ſomething hiſſing about the Quaker's Head, which affrighted him; he endeavour'd to riſe, but the Quaker perſwaded him to lye ſtill, and expect the Power to come; the Quaker laid his Head on Spencer's Shoulder, and did blow like the Hiſſing of a Gooſe towards his Mouth, which made him cry for a Light. What is this but meer Sorcery and Wickedneſs? Says Jenner.

But beſides, that it is moſt ridiculous to infer Sorcery and Witchcraft from any ſuch fooliſh Actions: It is utterly deny'd that there ever was ſuch a Thing; and becauſe he tells this Tale by Rote, I will refer him to the Perſon moſt concern'd, who is named John Lawſon, a Shopkeeper in Lancaſter, who is known to be an Honeſt Man, and Sufficient Perſon, and able to give Satisfaction in this Point, to the Confuſion of Jenner and his Author.

Thirdly, His next Falſhood and Slander is this: A Miniſter went with ſome Friends to a Meeting of Quakers in Durham, where he pray'd, but his Legs trembled; Pag. 159. whilſt he pray'd to God as a Creature, there was little Diſturbance; but when in the Name of Chriſt, then the Quakers Roar'd, Howl'd, Squeak'd, Yelp'd, with a Humming Noiſe; Half of them were ſo terribly ſhaken, that it was a Wonder they liv'd: One aſk'd him if he were come to Torment them: And as he departed, one ſaid, All the Plagues of God be upon thee. What could be more like the Devil? Says Jenner.

I anſwer: Nothing but this Story, and him that made it, who was a Malicious Anabaptiſt, his Name was Tilham, one that by a deceitful Stratagem, made his Eſcape out of Ipſwich Goal, and ran his Country for his Roguery (holding and practiſing ſuch immoral Principles, as made him deteſtable to all Moral and Sober Men.) It was not at Durham, but at Derwentwater, that he came into a Quaker's Meeting, where, if his Legs Trembl'd, it either was by a Good or Evil Power; if a Good Power, it would have bound the (ſuppos'd) Evil One in the Quakers; but if a Bad One, he was as Criminal as the Story would render them. But is it not prepoſterouſly fooliſh for any to think, That the Quakers ſhould be ſo well ſatisfy'd with his Prayer to God, and yet ſo diſſatisfied when in the Name of Chriſt, Who is God over all, bleſſed for ever?

But what will not Wicked and Ungodly Men do, to proſper their own Ends and Deſigns? But they ſhall never hurt that innocent People, who among the Churches of God are of Good Savour, for their Integrity, and Upright-walking with God.

Pag. ibid.

Fourthly, The next Deviliſh Untruth runs thus, That one in Kent, going to a Quaker's Meeting, was ſo wrought upon, that he fell a Dancing, and went Home diſtemper'd in his Mind, and ſoon after ended his Life.

That this came out of Hell, he refers to a Book call'd, Hell broke looſe; and I refer the Reader to the Anſwer, entitul'd, The Mouth of the Pit Stopt, written by that Judicious Friend, and Faithliful Servant of the Lord, Francis Howgill, where he may receive ample Satisfaction.

Pag. ibid.

Fifthly, The next Story he tells, is of a Woman in Buckinghamſhire, Who being at a Quaker's Meeting, was ſudddenly tranſported with great Raptures; and after fell into grievous Curſing and Blaſpheming, crying, Fox a Devil, Fox a Devil, until ſhe dy'd.

To which I need not give another Anſwer, than I did to the former, for it coming out of the ſame Pit, the ſame Hand hath ſtopt it: Yet that the Reader may be ſatisfied, as well of the Falſeneſs of the Story, as of the Wickedneſs of the Maker, I muſt tell him I was lately in Buckinghamſhire, and have made Enquiry, but can find no Footſteps towards any ſuch impious Matter; but if any ſuch a Thing were, the only Blaſphemy I obſerve from Jenner's Relation, was againſt George Fox, in ſpeaking evilly of the Lord's Servant.

Sixthly, The next Lye he would endeavour to confirm our Adverſaries with, and delude ſimple People to the Belief of, is, The Notorious Story, the Sherburn Witches, of which, ſays he, there were near Two Hundred at a Meeting, moſt of them Quakers and Anabaptiſts; but particularly three Men and two Women, who were formerly Quakers; they tormented Mr. Liford, Miniſter of Sherburn, to Death, and forc'd Mr. Baulfeild, his Succeſſor, out of Town, &c.

I need not go about to prove this to be a Lye, the whole Country will do it for me; for neither had they Power over our Friends, they being preſerv'd by the Eternal Power of God; nor do his Words themſelves imply they had; For, ſaith he, three Men and two Women, formerly Quakers, were committed to Dorſetſhire Goal, &c. But if it were true, they were formerly Quakers, and were committed for Witchcraft, I can give no better Reaſon for it, Than becauſe they remain'd not Quakers ſtill: For had they continu'd in their Moſt Holy Faith, neither had the Prieſt had Ground to ſay, They were formerly Quakers; nor the Magiſtrates Occaſion to commit them for Sorcery: And had their Miniſters been Men choſen and ſent of God, to Preach His Everlaſting Goſpel, and Faithful in their Places, thoſe Infernal Spirits would have had no Power over them, which does clearly evidence on what Foundation that Kind of Prieſthood ſtands.

But whilſt the Man is belying us, he will not hear the Country tell that Story of his Brethren, let him enquire there, and he may be inform'd, How many Presbyterians and Independents were clapt into Dorſetſhire Goal on that Account: Nay, their Prieſts turn'd Wizards too, but that's no Wonder; ſince they have Bewitch't the People ever ſince they have been Prieſts. I hope the Baptiſts will acquit us, if they will not Jenner, for his Story ſtrikes at both: But 'tis Impiety in Grain, firſt to be Witches themſelves, and then lay it upon others; like Jezebel that Bloody Harlot, who firſt bely'd the Lord's People, and then Perſccuted them. But theſe Stories well become his Author, who being Conſcious to himſelf of ſo much Villany, thought it his Wiſeſt Courſe to conceal his Name, and whom the Vengeance of the Almighty will one Day make to wiſh, that he alſo had conceal'd his Book.

Seventhly. He farther adds out of Higginſon, That G. Fox was vehemently ſuſpected for a Sorcerer; and this is one ground, that when Strangers were brought into his Company he would talk with them, and hold them by the Hand.

But as this idle Suſpicion, and ground for it, have been long ſince ſent back to Higginſon in the Anſwer to his Book; ſo may we eaſily infer from the Reaſon us'd to prove George Fox a Sorcerer, that Jenner is a Witch; for, if ſpeaking to People, and taking them by the Hand, can bewitch them; who alive can fling the firſt Stone? But no Lye is too great, nor Story too foul (however confutable from within it ſelf) for an Independent or Presbyterian to embrace againſt the poor Deſpiſed Quakers.

Eighthly, His eighth Story, is his eighth Lye, It is of one Coppinger, That affirm'd to an Ironmonger of Briſtol, That he frequented all publick and private Meetings (and (himſelf being a Franciſcan) ſaid, That two of his Order were chief Speakers among the Quakers, and that he had ſpoken amongſt them thirty Times in London: Henry Denn (ſays he) writes for them in his Book call'd (A Quaker no Papiſt) ſaying, That the preſent Romiſh Church, and no other, is the preſent Spouſe of Chriſt, or elſe there hath been none in all Ages.

This ancient Impoſture hath been twice roundly anſwer'd; firſt, by John Audland, (a Servant and Labourer of the Lord in thoſe Parts, who hath receiv'd his Wages, and is at Reſt) in Anſwer to W. Prinn; and the ſecond Time, ſo effectually by George Whitehead, as Prinn's Courage fail'd in a Rejoynder, and whoſe Share in this Diſcourſe may better acquaint Jenner with his manner of handling the Enemies of Truth.

We utterly deny the Story; and the juſt God, whoſe is Vengeance, will compleatly recompence this Wrong upon the Slanderer's Head.

But the Confuſion of the Man may eaſily manifeſt, that a lying Spirit is his Companion; for, that Henry Denn ſhould write for the Quakers to prove them no Papiſts, and yet conclude that the preſent Romiſh Church is the only Spouſe of Chriſt, is ſuch a Medley of Contradiction; as no Man of Senſe, or in his Wits, could be guilty of.

But Henry Denn writing againſt Smith of Cambridge, in defence of us, as not being Popiſh, he hath either taken Smith's prejudiced Inference of Denn's matter, to be Denn's, or elſe miſtaken Smith's Conſequence as drawn by Denn to be his: For, what Man out of Bedlam, can apprehend that Henry Denn deſigned to prove the Quakers, Papiſts, by his Book entitul'd, A Quaker no Papiſt.

Ninthly, He ſays, that Fox and Whitehead (pretending Infallibility in all Points) ſay, they know all the Fathers of the firſt Three Hundred Years were Papiſts.

But certainly, He thinks we ought to believe himſelf infallible, or elſe he would not impoſe upon us the Credit of Stories unprov'd; nay, that never can be proved; they are both ſo far from the Ignorance of ſuch an Aſſertion, that their better Skill in Antiquity is able to prove, not only the Papiſts had no Share in the firſt three Hundred Years, but that both Presbyterianiſm and Independency (notwithſtanding their Boaſts to Purity) received their Births in after Ages: However, that Inſtance was ill placed to prove the Quakers Papiſts. Beſides, He is beholding to a couple of Libels, being the unſubſcrib'd Spawns of ſome of the croaking Frogs of the Univerſity of Cambridge, which were long ſince refuted by the Perſons concerned.

Tenthly, He ſaith, An Engliſh Jeſuit, bred in Cambridge, confeſt to a Gentleman in London, that there was a good honeſt People, called Quakers (whom he jeer'd at) that did their work at the ſecond Hand.

For this Lye he is beholding to a Book, call'd The Quaker's Folly; but by the Reply to it, proved to be Danſon's. But if the Papiſts are as great Villains, as they repreſent them; Why may they not as well belie us, as they think they injure them: However, The Jeſuit thought us to be honeſt, which he could not think his Deſign to be; ſince People know how little it coſts Jeſuits to lye, they ought not to believe them: For there is no Reaſon why Jenner ſhould believe the Papiſts againſt us, and not againſt himſelf; ſince if they Lye of one, they may Lye of both.

Eleventhly, His eleventh Lye may well be termed the greateſt, becauſe he did it the moſt knowing (and like the Man, his Words (before he printed it) ſhew'd him to be, when he ſaid, I will be revenged of the Quakers) it is concerning one Ann Wright of Caſtle-Dermont in the Nation of Ireland, now deceas'd; of whoſe upright walking, all that knew her (nay, Jenner himſelf) cannot but ſpeak well: I ſhall not undertake the Anſwer of it, becauſe it is ſo well done by her own Husband, who (though no Quaker (as he ſays himſelf) yet) would not have Slanders ſurvive his Wife's Innocency; nor her Name be recorded for an Apoſtate, a Witch (and what not) without a Vindication both of Her and the Truth. The Defence follows.

I William Wright of Caſtle-Dermont, in the County of Kildare in Ireland, being deſired to certifie the very Truth concerning my Wife (now deceaſed) whom Thomas Jenner belies in his Book intituled, Quakeriſm Anatomized, and Confuted; dated at Catherlough, November the 30th, 1670.

I do therefore truly and really certifie the real Truth, which I will maintain before the higheſt Powers in Ireland (if thereunto call'd) or elſewhere; and thus I proceed.

In pag. 126. of the ſaid Book, the ſaid Author Thomas Jenner, goes about to prove George Fox a Sorcerer by divers Inſtances in England, to which he farther adds; ſaying, The laſt Summer the ſaid G. F. (as I am informed) came to the Houſe of one Maſter Wright, near Caſtle Dermont here in Ireland; whoſe Wife had for a long Time refuſed to go to the Quakers Meetings, or to hear them; but as ſoon as the ſaid G. F. came thither, and had ſpoken with her, taking her by the Hand, and ſhe hearing of him, ſhe, without any farther Arguments immediately turns an abſolute profeſt Quaker.

But before I proceed farther, I ſhall clear this Page of his Book (162) his Book was dated November 9. 1670. he ſaith, The laſt Summer G. F. came to my Houſe, as he was informed; and proves it in his Margent by John Taylor (their Servant, ſaith he*)* Now that this is moſt abominable falſe, will eaſily appear; for G. F. was not in Ireland any Part of that Summer. 1670. let any prove it if they can; and if it be denyed, there may be Hundreds and Thouſands, brought in to prove the contrary, and to affirm where he was: And beſides all this, the Witneſs John Taylor is a Carpenter, whom he brings to prove this Lye, an horrible Apoſtate from all Appearance of good; for he hath not only been a zealous and diligent Hearer of Sermons, and a Follower of the beſt and moſt able Miniſters in and about the North Part of Lancaſhire for many Years; but one that writ moſt of their Sermons: But is ſome Years ſince turned a moſt wicked Swearer, and Blaſphemer; inſomuch as I and my Wife heard him ſay, 'That others had ſerved God in Hypocriſie, when he ſerved him in Sincerity; and he ſaw that God had rewarded them in this Life, and rewarded him not; and therefore he was reſolv'd to ſet himſelf againſt God, as much as he could; (I and my Wife being by the Fire ſide, and he at Supper with the reſt of my Servants) at which Words I ſtood a little amazed, not knowing what to ſay; and my Wife not hearing; or not fully underſtanding what he ſaid, aſk'd, What is that he ſaith? And when he underſtood that ſhe heard him not fully, he repeated the ſelf ſame Words again, purpoſely, as I ſuppoſe, to vex and grieve her tender Spirit. And another Time, He being a Suiter to a Widow, that liv'd upon Caſtle-Dermont, ſaid, I wiſh I may have her, though I renounce Heaven for her. And at that Time he was a grievous Enemy to the ſaid Thomas Jenner, who us'd ſometimes to come to my Houſe, and ſtay all Night (and was very welcome) but whenever the ſaid John Taylor (being at work in or about my Houſe) knew that the ſaid Thomas Jenner was in my Houſe, he would find out ſomething or other to find Fault withal, that little concern'd him, that he might come Swearing and Curſing, purpoſely to vex the ſaid Tho. Jenner; becauſe he being a Nonconformiſt, and one that hated ſuch Wickedneſs, he thought it would vex and grieve him, and my Wife.

The like he did in the Sight and hearing of my worthy Friend John Price of Dublin (a Man well known to moſt Men of publick Dealing in Ireland, to be a Man of Truth both in Word and Action) he, ſeeing of the ſaid John Taylor before his Apoſtacy, to be in Want, lent him twenty Shillings, which he promiſ'd to pay him again, but never yet did; the ſaid John Price being at my Houſe, and this John Taylor knowing it (after his Apoſtacy) he came in Swearing and Staring, as if he had been poſſeſt; and I know and believe it was purpoſely to vex the ſaid John Price, whom he knew hated ſuch abominable Wickedneſs, and to grieve me and my poor Wife; whereupon the ſaid John Price deſir'd me to ſtop the ſaid Twenty Shillings out of his Wages, and give it to ſome poor Body; but I never yet could do it conveniently: And this is one of Thomas Jenner's Authors and Witneſſes to his Book full of Lies; with whom alſo he ſent the ſaid Book to the Biſhop of Laughlin for his Approbation (and for ought I knew Benediction upon it) Now let any one judge, whether Thomas Jenner did refuſe to conform to the ſetting up of the Biſhops for pure Conſcience-ſake, or in hopes of a ſudden Change, or a preſent diſcontinuing of them; for if they and their Way had been a Stumbling-Block in my Conſcience, I would never have ſought for Approbation, of any one of them, to any Thing I had writ. And though the ſaid John Taylor did very much hate and envy the ſaid Thomas Jenner, and would abuſe him in my Houſe (inſomuch as I have been forced to put Taylor out of Doors) yet ſince Taylor knew Jenner was writing a Book againſt the Quakers, he hath been his great Friend, and hath told him all Things that have been done in and about my Houſe, that was for his, and their Purpoſe: Beſides, The ſaid Thomas Jenner wrote not his Book impartially, and without Prejudice; but with Prejudice, Malice and Revenge; as appears by his Words to a Friend in Dublin, to whom he ſaid, He would be revenged of the Quakers, as Sampſon on the Philiſtines for his two Eyes, viz. Mr. Wright, and Mrs. Wright.

But to return to his Book (Pag. 162.) he ſaith, As ſoon as G. F. had ſpoken with my Wife, taking her by the Hand, and ſhe hearing of him; ſhe, without any farther Arguments, immediately turn'd an abſolute profeſt Quaker.

Now that is an abſolute Untruth, I do affirm, and can bring in Scores of honeſt Men to do the like; and thus is the Cauſe of my Knowledge, G. F. was at my Houſe near May-day (as it is uſually called) in 1669. (I think it was) but if not, I am ſure it was not after the firſt Week in June; and my Wife was no more moved to be a Quaker by him, or at that Time, than ſhe had been at any Time within eleven or twelve Years before; no, nor about three Months after.

For, the firſt that ſhe heard publickly ſpeak was Robert Lodge, June the 13th 1669. and there was little Appearance of a Quaker till about the End of July next; and yet Thomas Jenner ſaith, in the Margent of his Book, at the lower End of the Page 162. (By her own Confeſſion to my ſelf and others.) which is as falſe, as that the Sun is Darkneſs; for this ſhe ſaid at Dublin, her ſelf, to be a Lye; and ſhe might be believed by all that ever knew her: Beſides, I know it my ſelf to be falſe; for ſhe was no ſuch profeſt Quaker, nor any at all, until near three Months after. But now to the next page, 163.

He ſaith, Formerly ſhe was eſteemed of by the beſt Chriſtians, to be a very Sober, Modeſt, and Religious good Woman; yet ſoon after G. F's meeting with her, &c. ſhe was indefatigable Day and Night in the uſe of all poſſible Means ſhe might by Word and Pen, yea, and by Gifts alſo.

Of this concerning Gifts, I did aſk her in particular, which ſhe deny'd; and I knew her to be of that Uprightneſs of Heart, that ſhe durſt not give away any Thing without my Knowledge and Conſent.

Farther, he ſaith, That of late ſhe went to Dublin in a Frolick: Which is very falſe; for thoſe that go in a Frolick, are commonly Merry and Jocund; but the Lord knows, ſhe parted from me with many Tears.

He farther ſaith, That ſhe cover'd her ſelf with Sack-cloth and Aſhes (that is true) and in that Habit (ſaith he) ſhe paſſing through the Streets in Dublin (that is falſe) She paſt through no Streets in Dublin in that Habit.

He ſaith, She went into a publick Aſſembly, where ſhe ſate her down in the Lord Arch-Biſhop of Dublin's Seat. That ſhe went into a publick Aſſembly is true, *but that ſhe ſate down in any * Seat whatſoever is a Deviliſh Lye*; as may be fully proved by the whole Aſſembly at Patrick's Cathedral in Dublin: The Time when it was done was upon the 17th Day of April, 1670. (being the Lord's-day, or firſt Day of the Week) I name the Time and Place, that all ſuch as deſire to know (and find out) very Truth in every Particular, may enquire and be ſatisfied.

* I under-nam'd do teſtifie that it was a great Miſtake of Thomas Jenner, who ſaid Ann Wright did go into my Lord Arch-Biſhop's Throne or Seat in St. Patrick's in Dublin; and he quoteth me for his Witneſs in his Book, pag. 163.. To what he ſaid of me to wltneſs, for to be true; I ſay, I cannot but ſay it was not true, but his great Miſtake, as aforeſaid; for ſhe did not offer to come into his Seat, but ſtood in the Alley Quietly. Witneſs my Hand this 16th of February, 1670. in Dublin,

He farther proceeds, and ſaith, Now laſt of all, ſhe is departed very lately for England, there (as he ſaith) to endeavour the converſion of the Higher Powers.

Now that ſhe went for England is true, but that ſhe went to convert the higher Powers is falſe, and that ſhe ever ſaid ſo is alſo very falſe; for ſhe was commanded by the Lord God of Heaven and Earth (no doubt) to go through the chief Streets in London, in Sack-cloth of Hair, and Aſhes upon her head, to be a Sign of ſome Judgment yet to come upon the City (except they repent) but after what Manner it was not reveal'd unto her, nor was ſhe to enquire into it: But if Thomas Jenner had ſuch a Command, he would make as much haſt as ſhe did; but it is not the Rich, the Honourable, the Scribe, nor the Wiſe, that God hath choſen to do his extraordinary Work; but the contrary.

He ſaith farther, That ſhe, with her Comrade, the Wife of Maj. Bennet, are bound for Rome, as 'tis ſaid; I wonder he did not bring in his Blaſphemous Witneſs, John Taylor, to prove this Lye alſo; for there was never Word, nor Sign for Motion of any ſuch Thing.

And laſtly, he ſaith poſitively, Their going to Rome was to convert the Pope; which is like all the reſt; for no Doubt but that is altogether impoſſible: For, if Antichriſt, the Man of Sin, or Son of Perdition, may be converted, then may the Pope; which is the ſame Thing.

There are many more Things in the Book, which he charges the Quakers with, which I know to be falſe, as any of theſe; but becauſe they do not concern me in Particular, I ſay no more; knowing his Book is, and will be view'd and anſwer'd by thoſe, whom God hath endued with more excellent Gifts and Graces, and alſo with a more excellent Pen, than is given to me: Yet what I have here ſpoken is Real, Plain, and abſolute Truth. And though I cannot receive all Things, that thoſe People call'd Quakers do hold; yet I judge and believe, that Living Praiſes are amongſt them; and that as Chriſt Jeſus, the true Corner-Stone, was a Stumbling-block and a Rock of Offence to the Scribes and Phariſees, who thought themſelves wiſer than all; ſo I believe the Quakers are appointed by God to be a Stumbling-block, and a Rock of Offence to the great Profeſſors and Wiſemen of this Age: And I pray God, I may not be one of them, that ſhall ſtumble and fall by them. And I wiſh all in the true Fear of the Lord God Almighty, even the God of the Spirits of all Fleſh, the True and Living God, to take Heed, and be careful of ſpeaking more than they know concerning them.

Decem. the 11th, 1670. William Wright.

Thus much from her Huſband (and no Quaker) in Vindication of his Wife and the Truth.

The Reference he made to the Verger of St. Patrick's (as he calls it, and no ſmall Favour too, being from a Preſbyterianiz'd Independent) we have accepted of, and accordingly enquired of him the Matter affirmed, who under his Hand denies it, and charges Jenner with a manifeſt Lye.

Firſt, His Ingratitude in bringing her upon the Stage, to whom he was beholden, and at whoſe Houſe he had lain ſo often, and been ſo Welcome; and that upon a Religious Account.

Secondly, His Folly; in acknowledging ſhe was of the beſt Chriſtians, thereby intimating the worſt ſtaid behind.

Thirdly, His Infamy; in combining with an Apoſtate, a Drunkard, a Blaſphemer (and what not) to vilify our Friends.

Fourthly, His notorious Lying; 1. In ſaying G. F. was there in 1670. 2. In charging A. W. with bribing People to own her Judgment. 3. In ſaying, She paſſed through Dublin Streets in Sackcloth. 4. In ſaying, She did it in a Frolick, a profane and ingrateful Expreſſion, as well as that it was a Lye. 5. In ſaying, She ſate down in the Archbiſhop's Seat. 6. In ſaying, She went over for England to convert the Higher Powers. 7. In ſaying, She and Major Bennet*'s Wife deſign'd for* Rome, to convert the Pope. 8. That ſhe immediately turn'd a profeſs'd Quaker upon G. F*'s ſpeaking to her, and taking her by the Hand.* In ſhort, His whole Charge is but one whole great Lye.

Fifthly, But the laſt Thing I obſerve is, Jenner's Temporizing with the Biſhop of Laughlin and Fernas, about his Book; he, whoſe Principles would lead him to dye his Hoary Head in Epiſcopal Blood, can (however) claw (with their Lordſhips) to ſcratch and tear the Quakers to Pieces; which may inform them what they themſelves ought to expect, from the Spirit of Jenner and his Brethren, had they a Power ſuitable to their Scottiſh Directorian Will.

In ſhort, Who can own him? Who can hear him? Who can poſſibly defend him? Certainly ſo much Folly, Falſeneſs, Ingratitude, and Envy, are not to be excus'd by any, that would not be eſteem'd acceſſary to his Crimes, and a Party with him in his Guilt.

12th. Laſtly, I ſhall wind up his Lies with his moſt blaſphemous Story againſt God, and abuſive of us, viz. Some blaſpheme God, as that blaſphemous Wretch, who ran into the Market-place ſtark Naked, and uttered theſe Words, It is not I, but God that goeth Naked.

O the Devices of the envious Generation of Prieſts, to defame the righteous Heritage of the Lord! For, as we utterly deny any ſuch Saying, ever to have proceeded out of the Mouth of a true Quaker, (nor know we of any under that Name that hath ſo ſaid) ſo is it moſt contrary to our Principles, who admit not of God's Confinement to a Perſon, or viſible local Being, or to conſiſt of any viſible Subſtance; but aſſert him to be the infinite Fulneſs and Eternal Spirit.

However, we deny not, but ſeveral have been mov'd of the Lord to go Naked into Steeple-houſes, Markets, and Cities, for a Sign to the People; but more eſpecially to the Prieſts, of the Nakedneſs of their ſpiritual Conditions; and as ſtript as they were of their Clothes, would the Lord God ſtrip them of their deceitful Garments, and thoſe falſe Coverings, made of their own Will-worſhips and Carnal-performances; that whilſt they thought themſelves Rich and wanting Nothing, they ſhould appear Poor, Naked, and wanting of the Covering of the Lord's Spirit; which is the true Garment, that gives Right to the Marriage-Supper of the Kingdom.

One Thing I cannot omit to obſerve, That amongſt all the Lyes and Slanders I have prov'd him to have caſt upon us, he never offer'd any tolerable Teſtimony for our very Adverſaries to believe the Truth of any one of them, which ſhould be no ſmall Teſtimony, for both our Friends and Enemies to diſbelieve all of them.

But ſince that, Taylor and Jenner have taken ſo much Pains, to exaſperate the Minds of People againſt us and our Principles, by their Collection of Lyes; it may not be improper to the Work in Hand, to tell a few of thoſe many true (but moſt lamentable) Stories, occaſioned by the Cruelty and Oppreſſion of their Brethren, the Presbyterian and Independent Prieſts, upon the Bodies and Eſtates of our dear Friends, during the Time they acted their ungodly Parts upon the late Stage of forſworn Government. We ſhall not take them for our Example; for we ſhall both name the Perſons Suffering, the Reaſon why, the Places where, with their ſeveral Proſecutors; being Facts committed in the Sight of the Sun, and preſented to the then Supream Authority, as our juſt Complaint of our unjuſt Grievances; with ready Proof in Hand.

Firſt, Temperance Hignel, of the City of Briſtol, for ſpeaking to Jacob Brint at Temple Steeplehouſe, was ſtruck down to the Ground by ſome of his Hearers, who were followed with many Blows upon her by the rude Multitude, to the Shedding of her Innocent Blood; ſwelling of her Eyes, and tearing off and taking away her Clothes: And in that barbarous and immodeſt Manner, they endeavour'd to have dragged her to a Pond, and thrown her in; but were prevented: Yet after all this Cruelty was ſhe committed (by J. Knight (that errant Perſecutor) to Bridewell, and from thence to Newgate, where her Illneſs dangerouſly increaſing upon her, ſhe was carried out; but within three Days died.

Secondly, Boniface Norris of Cambridge, being near Eighty Years old, broken and decay'd in Body; not able to travel on Foot, was riding to a Meeting on a Firſt-day, about two Miles from his Houſe, was ſtopt by Conſtables and others, who demanded Money of him for Riding that Day, which he refuſing; Dudly Pope, call'd a Juſtice, cauſed him to be brought to the Seſſions, and there fined him 10 s. which becauſe he denied to pay, he was flung into Priſon: And his old Wife for refuſing the Payment of five Pounds, which the ſame Pope unjuſtly fined her, for only ſpeaking to the Prieſt of Ower: And ſo both kept from their poor Family; the old Man falling ſoon Sick, was only turned out of Priſon to die.

Thirdly, Richard Sale of Hole, for declaring againſt the Wickedneſs of the Prieſt and People in Cheſter, and demanding Juſtice of the Mayor upon a rude Fellow of that City, one Haman Kirks, who had beaten and bruis'd him, and ſhed his Blood; was by the Command of that inhuman Mayor, Peter Leight, put five Times into a Murdering-preſs, which is a Hole hewn in a Rock, call'd Little-Eaſe; the firſt Time eight Hours, the ſecond Time three Hours, the third Time four Hours, the fourth Time four Hours, and the fifth Time five Hours: And the ſaid Richard Sale being a Man of a groſs Body, could not be preſt in under the Force and Strength of four Men, to thruſt him; inſomuch that two or three of the Times the bruiſed and cruſhed Blood guſhed out of his Mouth and Noſe: The laſt of the five Times was in the Firſt Month, called March, 1657, and in the ſixth Month, 1658, he left this Life; during which Time, he was never well in his Body: But thoſe Bruiſes ſo maſh'd his Body, and cauſed ſuch un-natural Swellings, as on his Death-Bed he ſolemnly uttered theſe Words, My Blood will be required of yonder Bloody City; for Peter Leight hath murdered me.

Fourthly, George Humble of Durham, an aged Man, for reproving one George Lilborne, for perſecuting ſome of his Neighbours for ſpeaking to a Prieſt, was ſent by him to Priſon, and there kept a few Days, and died.

Fifthly, Jane Ingrum, for going to viſit ſome of her Friends, who were caſt into Priſon in Cornwall, was, by John Champion, caſt into Priſon at Exeter, and there kept upon Straw 'till ſhe died.

Sixthly, Richard Aſhburner of Gleaſton in Lancaſhire, an old Man, was caſt into Priſon by Prieſt Shaw of Aldingham in Lancaſter Caſtle for Tithes; where after almoſt two Years cruel Impriſonment, in the coldeſt of Winter, he died.

Seventhly, Rebecca Barnes and Elizabeth Holme, within a few Miles off Armſchurch in Lancaſhire, in Company of divers others, met David Elliſon, Prieſt, and his Wife, &c. to whom Elizabeth Holme ſpeaking a few Words, the Prieſt ſet his Wife upon her, crying, Down with her, down with Jezebel; and they knocked her down for dead; and when Capt. Barnes, and Capt. Cubbin, with others, would have preſerv'd her, the Prieſt's Party took Hedge-ſtakes, and fell heavily upon them, ſhedding much Blood; inſomuch that John Barnes kept his Bed; and Rebecca Barnes, by Reaſon of many Bruiſes upon her Breaſt, and elſewhere, took her Bed, and within ſeven Days died.

Eighthly, Thomas Broomby, a poor old Man, and a Thatcher, was impriſon'd by Ralph Holingworth, Prieſt of Fillingham in Lancaſhire, for about Six Shillings Eight Pence, Tithes; and becauſe the Goaler finding him to be Meek and Harmleſs, allow'd him more Liberty than the Felons; the Prieſt firſt ſent his Son, and then came himſelf, and charged the Goaler to keep him Cloſe Priſoner: The Goaler's Mother aſked the Prieſt, what he meant to do with the poor Man? Would he ſtarve him? He anſwered, He owes me Money: She ſaid, What is it? and I will pay it. But the Prieſt, inſtead of regarding her Proffer, petition'd the Judge of Aſſize to have the Goaler fined, for letting the poor Man have Liberty to work for his Family; ſaying, He deſerved to have Irons put on him, and that he would make him an Example. The Goaler's Mother, who had kept the Goal Fifty Years, ſaid, She never knew any uſe more Cruelty to a Priſoner, than this Prieſt did to this poor Man; whom he kept a Priſoner above one Year and five Weeks in the Pit, amongſt the Felons, until he died.

Ninthly, Edward Roberts, at the Suit of Lyonel Godrick Prieſt, was kept cloſe Priſoner for Tithes, one Year and near an half, during which Time, he was ſuffer'd to come forth but once, and then preſently remanded; nor would they ſuffer his Friends to ſee him, not ſo much as his Wife or Children, above twice or thrice during the long Time, till he ſickned: The Prieſt threatned, he would make Roberts an Example to all, that ſhould deny his Miniſtry; ſaying, he ſhould lie and rot in Priſon, and that it was Pity he, and ſuch as he was, ſhould live in a Common-Wealth. Yet, notwithſtanding, this Ungodly Phariſee, had the Man's Body in Priſon, to ſhew himſelf a Thief, as well as a Murderer, He took four Horſes, worth twenty eight Pounds, for Tithes valu'd at three, and Prieſt-like, return'd nothing again. (The like Trick he ſerv'd his Brother) and as if he had not given Evidence enough of his Unrighteous and Hireling Spirit, he farther adds, That if there were not a Law to compel his Pariſh to pay him Tithes, he would chuſe to be their Hogherd, rather than their Teacher. At laſt, The honeſt Man was thruſt into a cloſe Hole, where he fell Sick, and in few Days dy'd.

Tenthly, Elizabeth Fletcher, a young Virgin, (by the World accounted of a great Family) for ſpeaking the Word of the Lord, to the Scholars of John's Colledge in Oxford, was by them dragg'd to a Pump, where they held her Mouth to the Spout, and pumpt until they had almoſt ſtifl'd her to Death: Then they bound a Cord about her Knees, and ſet her upon her Head, and pumpt her again, uſing many brutiſh and obſcene Words, which 'twere a Shame for any modeſt Perſon to repeat; After this, they ty'd her to one Elizabeth Levenſe's Arm, and dragg'd them about the Colledge; and as not content with this, drove them into a Pool: And to conclude the Tragedy, flung Elizabeth Fletcher with ſuch Violence againſt a Grave-Stone, as cauſ'd her to ſpit Blood, which Uſage ſhe complain'd of to her Death.

It is worthy of our Obſervation, that this aggravated Inhumanity, (at which a gallant Roman would bluſh) was acted under the Vice Chancellorſhip, of Doctor John Owen, and Headſhip of his Name-Sake, one John Owen, a great Independent, being, as I remember, then Head of John's Colledge

Eleventhly, John Caſon, was in Priſon in Ipſwich Goal, for not paying Tithes to one John Paget Prieſt of Oldham, and one Prieſt Glanfield; where being put into a cold, wide, open Room, (much annoy'd with Wind and Smoak) for about three Months, in the coldeſt of Winter, through this cruel Uſage, he dy'd.

Twelfthly, It would be almoſt endleſs to particularize the bloody Sufferings and Cruel Perſecutions, that have been inflicted upon the Lord's Witneſſes, by that ungodly Generation of Prieſts and Profeſſors, and therefore I ſhall end my Relation with that notorious, but moſt lamentable Piece of Cruelty, that was inflicted upon our dear deceaſ'd Friend and Brother James Parnel, by the Independent Prieſts of Great Cogſhall in Eſſex, to the immortal Infamy of them, and the reſt of their Murdering Hypocritical Tribe. The Prieſts and People of Cogſhall, keeping a Faſt, againſt the ſpreading of Error, James Parnell came into their Steeple-Houſe, and after they had ended, ſpoke a few Words, and ſo went out again; but one Dionyſius Wakering call'd a Juſtice, follow'd and clapt him on the Shoulder, ſaying, I arreſt you (without, any legal Proceſs) and by the Inſtigation of divers Prieſts, the ſaid Wakering, with three more of his Brethren Injuſtices, committed him to Colcheſter Caſtle; where he was kept cloſe Priſoner in Irons and Chains, Hand and Feet, Day and Night, till brought to Chelmſford Aſſizes, at which Time they took off his Chains, to bring him to the Bar, but left his Hands in Irons as before: His Entertainment was like his Commitment, barbarouſly Unjuſt; For Judge Hill did not only incenſe and over-aw the Jury, but partially deny'd him that Liberty of clearing himſelf to his Jury, contrary to Engliſh Rights and Priviledges; to the Pretence of maintaining of which, did theſe Independent Prieſts preach up, and abet the Neceſſity of the King's Beheading, and that Blood-ſhed, which went before and followed it: But the falſe Prophet hath ever been wont to ride on the Beaſt's Back, and therefore we do the leſs wonder, that Pilate ſhould be ſo ſubject to the Jews.

In ſhort, the Judge fin'd him Forty Pounds, and committed him cloſe Priſoner till Payment; Requiring the Goaler not to admit any of his Friends to him, though they came with Relief: However, the Goaler deny'd not ſuch Entrance, as came to abuſe, Scorn, and beat him; his Wife has ſet her Man upon him, nay, ſhe her ſelf has not ſpar'd to club him ſeveral Times, ſwearing ſhe would have his Blood: Sometimes they would not ſuffer Victuals to be brought to him; at other Times they would ſet the Felons to take it from him: They would not ſuffer our Friends to bring him in ſo much as a Trundle-Bed, to lie on; but cold Stones were his Bed and Pillow too, that in moiſt Weather, would be covered with Water; and though they extorted four Pence a Night, yet did they threaten, if he did but walk in it; and as if this were a Place too good for him, they put him into one call'd, the Hole on the Wall, which was ſo high, that the common Ladder was too ſhort by ſix Foot; and when his Friends would have furniſht him with a Cord and Baſket, to receive his Victuals in, they would not ſuffer them; ſo that he muſt either run the Hazard of his Life, by falling or by ſtarving: At laſt the Lord permitted their murdering Ends, to be in a great Meaſure anſwered; for, after a long ſuffering in this Hole, where nothing preſented, but Miſery to his outward Man, there being neither Air nor Warmth, but a perpetual cold Damp (he being very much benummed in his Joynts) as he was climbing up the Ladder, with his Victuals in one Hand, and catching at the Rope with the other, he miſt the Rope, and fell a very great Diſtance upon the Stones; which Fall ſo exceedingly bruis'd and wounded his Head, Arms and Body, that they took him up for dead: But the Way they took to cure him was this, They put him into a little low Hole, call'd the Oven (not ſo big, though ſomething higher than ſome Baker's) where there was not the leaſt Hole or Window, for any Air to refreſh him; nor would they admit of a little Charcoal to warm him: And when he was in a likely Way to recover, (that they might twice murder the ſame Man) they would not let him take a little Air, to refreſh his (almoſt ſuffocated) Body, though Bonds and Bodies were offered for his Security, to have him dead or alive, forth-coming: Nay, he did but once ſtep into a cloſe ſtinking Yard, belonging to the Caſtle; and for his Puniſhment, they ſhut him out all Night, being a cold Winter Seaſon. Their Rage thus encreaſing, his Sufferings being daily added to, by their inſatiable and malicious Thirſt, after his innocent Blood; and ſeeing his Life could not long continue in that Place and Condition, there was not a little Labour and Means, uſ'd to lay it before the higheſt in Authority; yea, more concerning that Man (that his Life might have been ſaved, and they kept from ſhedding innocent Blood) than ever was concerning any (if not all) that were impriſon'd before him; but no Juſtice nor Compaſſion could be found; and though they were particularly told of his Wounds, Weakneſs, and evil Uſage, yet ſuch was the Deviliſh Inſtigations of the Prieſts, they believ'd not till his Death confirmed our Complaints; and then his Perſecutors were as buſie to cover themſelves, as they had been to kill him, as if he had been acceſſory to his own Death, who, to clear himſelf of all Guilt, did, to a Couple of our Friends, that then ſtood by him (for before they admitted none) thus take his Leave of them and the whole World, HERE I DIE INNOCENTLY: This laſt Expreſſion clos'd the Eyes and Mouth of that Valiant and Faithful Young Man of God, who like young Habbakuk, dy'd by the Hands of the Murdering Prieſts, for boldly declaring the Word of the Lord againſt their Hypocriſies and Abominations; as his own Book, call'd, The Fruits of a Faſt, more particularly manifeſts.

O the Oppreſſion, Envy, Hatred, and Perſecution of that Hypocritical Generation! How have they ſtoned the Servants of the Lord, and murder'd his Prophets that he ſent forth in his Power, to declare of his Love to the Nations? The Spoils and Robberies they have committed, and the Innocent Blood which they have ſhed, ſtill cry, how long Lord God, Holy and True, and they yet remain as a dreadful Hand-writing upon the Wall againſt them.

This is that harmleſs Man, whom Jenner, in Page 157. Reports to have ſtarv'd himſelf at Colcheſter; to whom did that wicked Crew deny, What they treacherouſly pretended before God, Angels and Men, they only ſought and fought for; namely, Liberty of Conſcience, and the free Enjoyment of thoſe Liberties and Priviledges, which are the undoubted Birth-Right of every Engliſh-Man.

And what greater Teſtimony can any give, of their Apoſtacy to the nethermoſt Pit of Blackeſt Hell, than after all thoſe Vows, Declarations, Remonſtrances, Solemn Oaths, Engagements, and Proteſtations (that the then Rulers and Prieſts made to God and the poor People) among whom Taylor and Jenner had their Share) to keep no one Promiſe with him or them, as if it had been both their Duty and their End to break them all.

No Age ever produc't ſuch National Gigantick Treacheries, as theſe; for, ſuch as were once againſt Tithes, perſecuted for them; and thoſe who were for Liberty of Conſcience ſhewed at laſt, That they only intended it for themſelves: Thus have theſe poor Nations been the Stage on which the Mountebank Prieſts and Apoſtatiz'd Julians, have acted their ſeveral Parts of Self-Intereſt, Oppreſſion and Revenge.

'O my Soul! Touch thou not their Secret, neither come within their Dwelling-Place; for they wait, by the Way-Side, in Companies like Robbers, for thy Life; and they are fill'd with Cruelty, their Tongues are like Stings of Aſps, and their Throats as open Sepulchers; they tear off Men's Fleſh with their Teeth, and ſuck out the Marrow from their Bones, and chop them for the Caldron: Therefore it is, when they cry for Deliverance, the Lord God doth not hear them; and when they call upon him for outward Relief, that he hideth his Face from them: For, whilſt they cry Peace, they bite with their Teeth, and againſt him that putteth not into their Mouths, they prepare War.

This farther I would obſerve, that the Lord God purſued ſeveral of theſe Perſecutors, with his Vengeance, particularly Wakering; and they were Spectacles of Aſtoniſhment to the Countries about them: Nor does Jenner's Damnation ſlumber.

The Concluſion, by Way of Exhortation.

THerefore to all you Inhabitants of Ireland, or elſewhere, into whoſe Hands this Book may come, am I conſtrain'd by the Word of Eternal Life, to ſend this one ſhort Exhortation, Obey the Light, that leads out of Darkneſs: Stand in Awe and Sin not; for the Pure and Holy God is Light; and if thou wilt have Fellowſhip with him, thou muſt not walk in the unfruitful Ways of Darkneſs: For, to Fear God, that is Wiſdom; and to depart from Iniquity, that is a good Underſtanding. Your Notions of God and Chriſt will never ſave you: It is the Power of an endleſs Life, that muſt redeem you; and whoever are not by it ranſom'd from the Power of Sin and Satan, but reſt in the Ways and Worſhips of this wicked bloody World, they have no Intereſt in Chriſt Jeſus, the Light of the World; for he is the Power of God, in them that believe, unto Salvation. And this I teſtify in the Name and Authority of the Lord God Almighty, That another Way there is not to Eternal Peace, than through the powerful cleanſing Operation of the Spirit of Truth in the inward Parts: And bleſſed art thou, Man or Woman, who knoweſt Chriſt Jeſus, the Power, Wiſdom, Virtue, and Life of the Father to dwell in thee, and thou in him. This was Abel's Faith, and Enoch's Way, where the Tranſlation is known, from under Satan's Power unto God's. This is the Day of the Revelation of the Myſteries of God's Kingdom; for the Spirit is pour'd forth, and the Anointing is come, and the Days of Refreſhment from the Preſence of the Lord are known: Let the Mouth of the dumb Shepherd be ſtopt, and let the Hireling hold his Peace; neither go you out after his Voice any more, that makes a Prey upon you, and eats you as a Man eateth Bread; but know, that the Covenant of the Lord is with you, if you believe and obey; and your Iniquity ſhall be done away, and your Tranſgreſſions remembred no more; and Heavenly Bread will he give you in your Houſes, and Living Waters will he cauſe to ſpring in your own Wells; and great will be your Peace. But if you will not hearken to the Voice of the True Shepherd within you, that leads out of all Unrighteouſneſs, nor to the Teſtimonies of the Sheep of his Paſture, whom he ſends forth among the Wolves of this Generation, but withſtand the Day of your Viſitation, and Gathering into the Heavenly Fold, (chuſing rather to wander abroad upon the barren Hills and deſert Mountains, as Sheep without a Shepherd (wherever the Wolf of Perſecution comes) feeding upon Shadows, Notions, and Huſky Profeſſions, which give no Nouriſhment unto a Dominion over Sin, nor ſenſible Aſſurance of Life and Peace Everlaſting; but under all which, Envy, Hatred, Backbiting, Lying, Swearing, Drunkenneſs, Uncleanneſs, the Love of this World, and ſlaviſh Fear of Men do live and reign) your Portion ſhall be with them for ever, who ſaid of Old unto God, Depart from us, for we deſire not the Knowledge of thy Ways; and in your Deſires ſhall you cry, but the Lord will not anſwer; and though you ſeek him, yet will he not be found of you; in that Day ſhall your Peace-ſpeaking Hirelings ſtand you in no Stead, and the Narrow Coverings of your empty Profeſſions, never be able to hide your Nakedneſs from the All-ſeeing Eye of God, the Righteous Judge of Heaven and Earth, who will reward all according to their Deeds done in this Mortal Body.

O my Friends! That it may never be your Lot to receive the direful Sentence of Depart from me into Everlaſting Burnings; but that you may have the Oil of Righteouſneſs in your Lamps (even the Anointing within you) that when the Bridegroom comes, though at Midnight, you may enter with him to the Marriage-Supper, fill'd with the Oil of Joy and Gladneſs for evermore.

And as for my own Part, whatever may be the Conſequence of this Undertaking, I am reſign'd to the Orderings of the Lord, having herein ſingly ſought the Glory of His Name, by the Confutation of the Adverſaries of His Truth, and Information of the miſ-led Souls of his Creatures; that through all the Travels, Labours, and Tribulations, that may attend me, He only, who made the Heavens and the Earth, and the Fountains of Water, even the God and Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, who hath Redeem'd me, whoſe Glory I behold, and with whom is my Fellowſhip in Spirit; may have the Honour, Praiſe, and Everlaſting Dominion, who is God over all, God worthy to be Bleſſed for ever. Amen.

An Animadverſory Poſtſcript npon Tim. Taylor's Preface.

Firſt, THO' it be no Wonder, that an Old Man ſhould dote, or a Preſbyterianiz'd Independent be Malicious and Ill-natur'd, yet that Timothy Taylor ſhould turn Prefatorian to ſuch an one, whoſe Politicks he would have us think ſeldom fail him in all his Actions, I confeſs a little ſtartles me: What, at this Time of the Day, when Co-Diſſenters, and a whole Flood of prophane Impiety is deluging the Nations, to eſſay our utter Subverſion, and what in him lies to render us the Young Cockatrices of the Country, who are only fit to be kill'd as ſoon as we are born: Preface, p. 1. But he gives us this for his Excuſe (if it be any) That whilſt ſome are bending all their Forces againſt one Error, they ought to take Heed another more pernicious does not grow up; (for, ſaith he) Little did the Religious Emperor Conſtantine, and his Godly Succeſſors, together with the Holy Paſtors, imagine, that while they were oppoſing the Hereſies of Arrius, Donatus, &c. in the mean Time they were nurſing up Antichriſt.

But how this can juſtifie his Undertaking, or excuſe the wretched Contradiction of his firſt and ſecond Pages, I leave the ſober Reader to determine.

'Tis ſtrange to me, That the growing up of a New Error, ſhould be a Reaſon for not Warring againſt the Old One, On whoſe Legs and Shoulders the New One ſtands; and certainly the Man was not a little beſides himſelf, when he ſays, That Religious Conſtantine, and the Holy Paſtors Nurſt up Antichriſt; for if they Nurſt him with the Beſt of their Civil and Eccleſiaſtical Power, (as they moſt truly did) they can never deſerve the Titles of Religious and Holy from any that are ſo; tho' 'tis Good Reaſon, That the Antichriſtian Off-ſpring ſhould have kind Apprehenſions of their Fathers Foſterers.

Secondly, But above all Things, that T. T. ſhould dare to reckon Donatus with Pag. 2. the Hereticks of thoſe Times, to whoſe very Separation from the then Chriſtians, he and his Brethren moſtly owe the Model of their Independent Polity.

I ſhall not make it my Buſineſs to run through his whole Preface, nor needed he to have writ it, but that he would be buſie, though about what was not to the Purpoſe; only I ſhall obſerve the Intent of the whole, and ſuch particular Paſſages therein, as more immediately concern us.

He writes a Preface to a Book (from Head to Tail, if it has either) againſt the Quakers, and two Thirds of it are wholly bent againſt the Romaniſts, in an Hiſtorical Way of the Riſe and Growth of that Monſtrous Anti-Religion, wherein he can deſign but two Things, Either a ſhewing of himſelf that he can read, and is a little ſkill'd in knowing how to tell a Story; or elſe, As an Induction to the Anatomizing of Quakeriſm; 'tis hard to ſay which moſt wounds his Reputation, for as the firſt ſhews him to be Conceited to no Purpoſe, ſo the other accuſes him of groſs Ignorance: For never yet was there a Religion profeſt, that ſo effectually ſtruck at the Root of the Superſtitious Splendid Pageantry-Religion of Rome in this World, as doth our Spiritual Profeſſion. And that the Jeſuits ſhould ever deſign any Thing ſo remote and averſe from them, to bring People about to them, is a Piece of Ignorance only fit to be credited by ſuch ſilly Women as Taylor and his Brethren lead Captive, who are given up to believe a Lye. However he proceeds thus:

He ſays, That to raiſe up a New Intereſt to weaken the reſt, is the Jeſuit's Maſter-Piece; and that this was that Rapſody of the Hereſies of the Quakers, which is a proper Medium to the Grand Deſign; for they ſtrike at the very Canon of Faith, the Charter of Government.

I queſtion not, but it is the Deſign of Rome to proſper her Intereſt all the World Pag. 19. over, and particularly in theſe Countries; but that ſhe ſhould endeavour it by Mediums, ſo oppoſite to her End, namely, Converſion to Popery, as to imploy a People about it, that are as much farther from Popery, than Taylor; as that they diſown a ſettled Miniſtry, Tithes, Infant-Water-Baptiſm, Swearing, Steeple-Houſes, External and Viſible Signs under a Goſpel-Adminiſtration, the Complements, Faſhions, and Cuſtoms of the World; all highly own'd, venerated, and conform'd to, by Taylor and his Brethren. In ſhort, if the Way to bring about Popery, be to remove fartheſt from it, and the high Road to Papacy, be to ride faſteſt from it, we are never like to come juſtly under his Canting, Weak, and Beggarly Imputation.

And if we hold any Hereſie, 'tis more than we know, or than he has Wit and Truth enough to prove; but this we confeſs, That after the Way which ſuch as he 1671. call Hereſie, do we, and will we, Worſhip the God of our Fathers. But I would deſire all ſober Perſons to take Notice of that one Pedantick, but Dangerous Phraſe, Of the Canon of Faith being the Charter of Government; which, if I underſtand any thing, is this, That T. T's. Faith only gives Right to Government, and conſequently where there is not True Faith in Taylor's Senſe, he wants but as much Power as ſuch want Faith, to Convince them with the Romiſh Argument, of excluding them the Protection (though not the ſevereſt Puniſhments) of Government. This one Doctrine is not only what Jenner charges upon us, pag. 136, but is that very Principle, for the Promotion of which, the Jeſuits are ſo indefatigable and infamous with moſt Princes; for, if the Charter, Bond, and Right of Government ſtand not on the Foundation of Common Juſtice, Reaſon and Property, but upon certain abſtruſe Notions of Faith, farewel the Security of all States, and Political Societies in the World. And indeed, the Treacherous Actings of the latter Part of the late Times, did eminently evidence, How much it was as well his, and his Brethren's Principles to practiſe, as believe, ſuch Murdering Stabs, and Treacherous Steletto's unto Government; elſe, What meant that Hide-bound Scottiſh Covenant, and Calviniz'd Common-Prayer-Book, call'd by the New Name of the Directory, and that ſtrait-laced Engagement, and Model of Faith, hatch'd and fledg'd in Eleven Days Time at the Savoy, That whoever refus'd Compliance therewith, and Conformity thereto, were to be eſteem'd Hereticks to the Church, and Delinquents, (if no Traytors) to the State; to whoſe Door may the Nations lay the Oliverian Tyranny, and alſo that Oppreſſion and Perſecution, which Reign'd during his Uſurpation of His Maſter's Authority: When about Thirty of our Dear Friends were inhumanly murdered, either by Mortal Blows, or Naſty Poyſoning Dungeons (not to ſpeak of the Oppreſſions and Robberies that were then committed by Taylor's Brethren, upon many honeſt Families) for refuſing to pay them Wages, that never ſerved them, nor that they ever hired.

By what other Way was the Republican Model totally deſtroyed, than the Treacherous Combinations of the Prieſts, who feared that the Equity of their Deſigns that moſt befriended it, would queſtion their Miniſtry, at leaſt, abrogate, and finally deſtroy their Tithes, their Belly, their God? Therefore it was they, Boniface like, aſſiſted to the Murthering of the Common-Wealth, (they had ſo Solemnly Sworn to maintain the Intereſt of) that they might inſtal Oliver (the Engliſh Phocus) the mighty Monarch, that he in Gratitude might Eſtabliſh them the Great Dictators of Conſcience in his Territories. This was their Moſes, the Light of their Eyes, and Breath of their Noſtrils; Immortal Oliver. And his Son, (when he was gone) the Good Joſhua, that was to lead them to the Holy Land (whilſt led by the Noſe with every Prieſt-Pedant) as if like Solomon, he were reſerv'd from Blood, that he alone might build the Temple to God. O the unheard of Hypocriſie of that Age! Sycophants in Grain, enough to poiſon the whole World with their Flatteries; whoſe Intereſt was their Conſcience, and Power their Religion; Devotion only ſerving to ſtalk their Stratagems to Promotion: But the Juſt GOD hath ſwept them off the Stage, and their Sun is ſet, and ſhall never riſe more. And here I ſhall inſert his Diſtich.

He is a Tyrant dy'd in Grain,
Who from the Dunghil comes to Reign.

I Anſwer, Preſbyterians and Independents.

If He's a Tyrant dy'd in Grain,
That from the Dunghil comes to Reign;
They muſt be Traytors that have been,
So acceſſory to the Sin:
A Title very fit for them,
That have been Falſe to God and Men,
As Taylor and his Brethren.

Pag. 20. Fourthly, Yet he would have us think better of him, than to imagine that he ſhould believe, One Quaker in an Hundred is a Dogmatical-Formal Papiſt; but he believes, Many Jeſuits are ſtalking under them, and Plowing with their Heifers, that once more they may ſet the Pope's Chair above Chriſt's Throne, and his Mitre above the Crown.

Here he affords us a little better Quarter than his worthy Brother Jenner, who, in pag. 164, and 165, accuſes us of a Compliance with the Papiſts, which implying a Kind of Contract, or Confederacy, 'tis utterly impoſſible we ſhould do it, and yet not One in an Hundred of us know it: But as Taylor preſently after ſays, Like Abſolom's Two Hundred Men, we go out in our Simplicity, and we know not where. 'Tis ſtrange to me, that ſuch a ſimple and in-expert People, ſhould be able to manage the profoundeſt Stratagem of State, that was ever agitated in the World; namely, The Reverſion and Reſtoration of the Papacy. Will People ſell their Wits? or rather pay ſuch Impoſtors for robbing them of their Underſtandings? Can any Thing in Nature be half ſo ridiculous? 'Tis ſtrange, that Men have not Wit enough to ſhew their Malice; nor will we accept of his Apology; we profeſs to know what we ſay and do, and utterly renounce his Fig-leaf Garments of our Ignorance, he, more out of Diſgrace than Friendſhip, would caſt over us. Theſe idle Dreams have ever attended any Revolution or Separation in theſe Nations, ſince the Reformation: and though Time hath worn them much away, yet Taylor's Reproaches upon us, are but the ſecond or third Edition of thoſe the ancient Prelates flung upon the firſt Separatiſts; ſo that he muſt declare himſelf, either a meer Prelatick; or elſe, for ſhame relinquiſh their Abuſes, and quit plowing our Backs with the Biſhop's Heifers. But I ſmile at the Man's Folly, That he cannot be contented to endeavour to laſh others, but he muſt whip himſelf too: Who ever found the Quakers aſpiring to either Mitre or Crown? But has not Taylor's reſtleſs Gang done both? Were not the Babyloniſh Tythes, and Antichriſtian Benefices, Pleaſant, Good, and Chriſtian Conveniencies, when they got them; and that Crown, once of the fourth Monarchy, and Image, that was to be deſtroyed, a goodly Ornament upon the Head of a Private Perſon devoted to their Intereſt?

Fifthly, He ventures to tell a Story of a Jeſuit, That was diſcovered to have preacht at the Bull-and-Mouth in London, as a Quaker, by a Perſon in company with his Friend that told it him; and that the Jeſuit confeſt his Order to him, but conjur'd him Silence, &c.

To which I ſhall ſay no more but this, That he ſhould either have told us his Friend's Name, that we might have fairly enquired into the Matter; or elſe, have held his Tongue: It being neither Chriſtian nor Manly to ſhoot People in the dark, to accuſe, and not bring the Accuſer forth; I therefore charge him to tell us who they were that made this great Lye, or I ſhall poſt him for a Lyar.

But becauſe that ſcruple may be removed from the Minds of ſimple People, let them know, That there is not one, who is in the Lord's Work, eſteem'd by us a Miniſter of the Goſpel, that we do not know him, his Family and Dwelling, which ought to ſatisfie all Minds in doubt concerning us.

Sixthly, He ſays, That one came from the Pope, with perſonal Unction, to preach Notions in England, who joyned with the Antipedo-Baptiſts; and in his preaching expounded Luke 17. 21. The Kingdom of Heaven is within you (that is) not without you in Forms and Ordinances.

To which I anſwer, That (though I have reaſon enough to queſtion the Story, becauſe of the great Lye I ſaw under Timothy Taylor's own Hand, about the River Band in the North Part of Ireland (repreſenting that as a preſaging Miracle of ſtrange and proſperous Revolutions (perhaps to his Dianian Independency) which was but an ordinary and cuſtomary Efflux of the River, as well as that the Antipedo-Baptiſts are high Denyers of the Doctrine preach'd by the Jeſuit; and therefore far from complying with them.) I do not know that it is criminal to hear or receive Truth from any Body, and ſuch I eſteem that Doctrine: For, I boldly affirm, That the Kingdom of God conſiſts of what can never periſh with the uſing, as all External Things muſt undeniably do: And till T. T. has more Senſe, Judgment, and Religion to confute me; I am like to reſt in the ſame Opinion I have of him, and my own Belief.

Seventhly, But he is very angry with Samuel Fiſher, For (ſays he) I would fain know of any rational Man living, if any probable Reaſon can be rendred, why the Pope and his Cardinals, ſhould be ſo indulgent to Mr. Samuel Fiſher, the Quaker, (who was formerly a Man well eſteemed of for his Gifts in his Country) he travelled to Rome, bore his Teſtimony there againſt them, and yet they would not ſuffer him to be medled with.

1671. This Story was coyn'd in Hell, by his learned conceited Mr. Danſon; for tho' S. F. was at Rome, yet did he not only leave his own Country to deliver a Meſſage there, (his Voyage extending much farther) and that he bore his Teſtimony at Rome is moſt true, which Taylor never did, nor dares to do; whilſt he has not Arms for his Succour, or ſome Garriſon to his Relief; a poor white-liver'd Chaplain, that rather knew how to flatter away the Booty of his Regiment after a Prey; and diſſemble them out of the Tythes of their Hard-gotten Spoils, by his hired Thankſgivings.

But he adds, Could a Proteſtant Miniſter have given his Teſtimony againſt the Pope in Rome, and eſcaped the Inquiſition? Which he ſuppoſes a great Diſcovery of our Confederacy.

To which I will only tell him, That perhaps the Pope was ſatisfied, we intended not his Temporal Kingdom; and he knew his Iniquities had ſo long ſince forfeited his Share in an Heavenly one, as he was not at all ſolicitous to mind that, or thoſe that did; but having well experienced the killing Principle of the Proteſtant, and that therein he was a Pig of his own Sow, he ſeemed reſolv'd not to fledge his Young with the Feathers pluck't out of his own Wings.

But I dare undertake, if there muſt be a Pope till Taylor and his Fraternity go to Rome to convert him or his, their Expectations of poſſeſſing the pleaſant Gardens of Italy, will be certainly fruſtrated: No, They have better learnt Self-ſecurity; the Inquiſition muſt firſt be down, a good Stipend ingaged, and an Army for Security, before they will truſt their Skins in a Cardinal's Clutches. All the Difference I know betwixt them, is this, That Taylor and his Gang have the more ſeeming Religious Way of Cheating of the two; the former being grown almoſt out of Date.

In ſhort, S. F. eſcaped their Priſons, as he did yours at home, by the Power and Providence of the Lord, that carried him over the Heads of Pope, Cardinals, Presbyterians, and Independents too: Had the Quakers been Papiſts, they had not been put to Death at Paris and Rome, as they were.

Eighthly, He ſays, Mr. Fiſher, in the Conference with learned Mr. Danſon, affirm'd, That Good Works are the meritorious Cauſe of our Juſtification, which he calls, the Pope's Chappel Divinity, and a Cockatrice ſpringing out of the Root of a Romiſh Serpent.

But ſuch is our Unhappineſs, that whil'ſt we are deſpiſed for Idiots, and Men altogether ignorant and incult, we meet with ſuch Caviliſts, or down-right Pedants, as that the very Words we uſe muſt not import their common Senſe, leſt they ſhould miſs of an Objection againſt our cleareſt Truths.

I would have him know, that the Learning, Honeſty, and Chriſtian Spirit of our dear Friend, S. F. are not to be added to, or diminiſhed from, by all their utmoſt Endeavours (neither of them being his Match in thoſe very Things that did beſpeak him exquiſitly dextrous in their own Schools.)

The Word Merit, ſo much ſnarl'd at, allows a two-fold Signification; the firſt, A Proportion or Equality betwixt the Work and Wages, which is the ſtricteſt Senſe, and that which he leaſt of all intended; the ſecond, Something that may be ſaid to procure, and in ſome Senſe to deſerve or obtain, and ſo Good-works do: Since without them there is no Acceptance with God, nor Title to Life Everlaſting.

Ninthly, As for his Compariſon of us with his Country-man, John Wilſon of Cheſhire, about the Year 1646. Who (he ſays) was bewitched, and after many Exorciſms, particularly of his Reverend Brother Samuel Eaton, (whom God cut off ſoon after his Book of Lyes was printed againſt) his Partner by turns in the Duty of the Day) was compleatly delivered, when he himſelf was calling upon God.

But I have this Reaſon to give, why we are not under this Poſſeſſion; for neither are we guilty of thoſe diabolical Inſtances of Rage and Fury, as he expreſſeth; nor is he able to deliver us (if poſſeſt) but rather turns Devil himſelf; at leaſt, ſtands in need of the ſame Exorciſm to eject that foul Spirit of ſlander, which peſtilentially raigns in him.

But to paſs by his telling us how much more effectual his Prayer was than all the reſt (nay than his very reverend Brother Eaton's too) which I have great Cauſe to queſtion, whilſt he remains poſſeſt with the filthy Spirit of pleading for Sin Term of Life, Perſecution, Tythes, and the reſt of that Complexion) I would gladly know the Engliſh and Senſe of the Gifts of Tongues being the Gift of God, and yet the Gift of the Devil too, as in Wilſon, &c. Have they the ſame Gift too? Are we denied by him to have the Gift of Tongues, becauſe God will not work Miracles to confirm our Lyes? and yet can he ſay in the ſame Page, That Wilſon ſpoke Hebrew, Greek, and Latin (though unlearned) by Reaſon of a Diabolical Poſſeſſion: But beſides, if the Devil has ſuch Power over thoſe Tongues (the firſt called ſacred, becauſe the Jews; and the ſecond not leſs eſteemed ſo, becauſe of the New Teſtament (ſo called) I would gladly know how Taylor can tell when they are given of God, and when of the Devil; or whether the Scripture can give him ſuch an immediate Power of diſcovering, or ſomething more intrinſick and ſpiritual to diſtinguiſh; the Words are the ſame (that is, 'tis Hebrew and Greek ſtill) of which the Scripture may judge; but by his own Confeſſion, the Spirits are not: and who ſhall judge of their Differences? Certainly this overthrows all the Attempts thoſe Men have made againſt Inſpiration and Revelation; wherein they forgot, that 'tis a grand Charge that the Friendly Debate lays againſt their whole Tribe, as being both Aſſertors and Preachers of the ſame; and that it was that kind of Doctrine which firſt drew from the Church of England, into the preſent Noveliſms and Incertainty: 'Tis ſtrange, that what was a main Pillar in the Independent Building, ſhould be a rotten Poſt in ours: But as the Things of God knows no Man, but the Spirit of God; ſo the Scriptures not being that Eternal Spirit, the Spirit, and not the Scriptures, is the Rule of Knowledge in all Divine and Spiritual Things. 1671.

Tenthly, He prays the Lord, To anoint our Eyes with Eye-ſalve, that we may ſee our Hereſie is but of Yeſterday, they began in Lancaſhire in the Year 1652. whereas God hath had a Church and People to himſelf all along, during the Kingdom of the Dragon; and the Gates of Hell, as they have not, ſo ſhall they never prevail againſt it.

But as the Hope of the Hypocrites ſhall periſh, and the Prayer of the Wicked is an Abomination, ſo is his Prayer nothing but Lyes and Contradiction; for neither was our viſible Beginning (or rather Reſtauration) in Lancaſhire, in fifty two: nor can he prove ſuch a Church-Succeſſion as he aſſerts; if there was, I aſk what it was in Conſtantine's Time, and his Succeſſors? Not the Arrians, Donatiſts, &c. ſays T. T. Not Conſtantine, and his Biſhops, ſay I (unleſs Antichriſt's Nurſes were the Church of Chriſt and Heavenly Spouſe) let him in his next tell us how to reconcile ſo much Nonſenſe and Oppoſition.

But where did he find his diminutive Independency? How many Years before Burton? (whom I name with no Diſreputation (his Day conſidered) Was there ſuch a Church-Policy during the Apoſtacy? If not, I have Dr. Owen againſt Dr. Caudery (as they call them) to prove all others were in the Apoſtacy: And where was this pure Primitive Church then?

And if T. T. did not dread the civil Power, he would ſay (as he dares to think) That the Gates of Hell have lately prevailed againſt his beloved Independency.

Eleventhly, But he proceeds to pray, That leaving our Idol, the Light within, we would try all Principles by the Scriptures; that ſo they may be built upon the Foundation of the Apoſtles and Prophets, Chriſt being the chief Corner-ſtone.

But what can be more dark and ſtupid, than this Man's Requeſt? (not to eſteem the Scriptures, for thoſe we reſpect, but the Idleneſs of the Man is moſt notorious) If there be but one Foundation, and that be the Scriptures; then what Foundation had Moſes, the Prophets and Apoſtles, that were ſome before the Old, and others before the New Teſtament (ſo called) was writ? Beſides, can Chriſt be the chief Corner-Stone of ſo many dead Letters, in which are no Stones at all, much leſs Living Stones? But T. T. errs, not knowing the Scriptures, nor the Power of God.

Twelfthly, Says he, O That he that is the True Light, that lighteth every Man that cometh into the World (that is, Natural Men with Natural Light, and Spiritual Men with Spiritual Light) would enlighten theſe poor deluded Souls, to ſee that 'tis in vain for them to attempt the Subverſion of Goſpel Miniſtry and Ordinances, which, maugre all Oppoſition that Devils and Quakers can make, muſt remain.

One would think he were very zealous, and I ſhould believe ſo too, did but his Zeal run parallel with his Weakneſs: I am aſhamed that any Man ſhould quote Chriſt for a Natural Light; nay, I pity, whilſt I muſt reprove, him for his Blaſphemy; for if Chriſt, as the Light of the World, enlightens with a Natural tural Light, then is He a Natural Light; becauſe ſuch as is the Effect, ſuch muſt the Cauſe be, and no Fountain ſends forth Streams of diſtinct Waters: In Him was Life: What? Divine or Natural? Both I grant, as he was God, and as he took Fleſh; yet as there underſtood, It was a Divine Life; for it was his Life, as the Word and Godhead himſelf; therefore an Inviſible, Spiritual and Intellectual Light: Thus the Words following ſhew, And that Life was the Light of Men; which if ſaid properly of his Natural Life, were moſt untrue; for he being viſibly withdrawn, all Natural Light would be withdrawn too: but if ſpoken of his Divine Life (as moſt truly and properly it was) then was the Light not Natural, but Divine. Nay, it ſtands farther to Reaſon; for the Diſpenſation then to be erected was not a Natural, but a Spiritual one; and conſequently the Light of that Diſpenſation, not Natural, but Spiritual: Beſides, I wonder with what Confidence any Man can impeach us of Neglect of Scripture, who in that very Reproach, ſtrays from the ſimple Phraſe of it: Does that Scripture ſay, That is, Natural Men with Natural Light, and Spiritual Men with Spiritual Light, as he has additionally expreſt? Let him know this, and we will ſtand to it, That there is properly but One Natural and One Spiritual Light; the latter is Chriſt Jeſus, the former the viſible Sun; all other uſes of the Word are borrow'd, and Metaphorical.

Thirteenthly, He concludes thus, O that God would fill their Hearts with Trembling for their Scoffing at Chriſt, as Mr. Samuel Clark did to me, I believe thy Chriſt is above the Clouds; and as Thomas Lawrech ſaid to Mr. Caffin.

Indeed I had thought theſe two Petulant Scriblers had agreed better in their Teſtimony; for one ſharply reproves us for Trembling, calling it by a Name no leſs offenſive that that of Witchcraft; and the other as earneſt ſeems to pray, that we might fear and tremble.

As for Caffin's Story, it has been anſwered again and again; though I wonder he ſhould quote an Antipedo-Baptiſt; for ought he knows, the Man's a Jeſuit (I am confident he has Malice, if he had but Wit enough to be one) beſides, there is no ſuch Man as T. Lawrech, his Name is miſtaken.

And for Samuel Clark, he has told me himſelf, that no Man us'd more Craft to inſinuate and work upon him, than T. T. and when he found he was no Fiſh for his Net, but rebuk't his Hypocriſie, Envy, and Covetouſneſs; then 'twas, and not before, that he broke forth into his Wild and Hateful Accuſations againſt both him, and all that ſeemed never ſo little inclined to the Ways of Truth.

Fourteenthly, To conclude, I wonder with what Confidence he dares to come out in Print againſt us, who, being fairly challenged by Me, (with the Man in the tall black Cloak, and the reſt that beſpatter'd us of all Perſwaſions, as holding damnable Errors;) avoided it, by reſolving rather to run the hazard, of not proving their Calumnies, than Thin their Flocks, and loſe their own Reputation, by the dint and foyl of a fair and open Diſputation: 'Tis true, that T. T. and his Brother Maddir, would have met me privately (at leaſt, they talk't ſo to me by Proxy) but till I thought it probable, That a Tradeſ-man would be diſwaded from a full Cuſtom, I had no Reaſon to embrace it, and therefore wholly waved any private Conference; knowing how far, in their Reports, they would have ſmother'd and over-lay'd the Truth, to their Advantage, and great Diſcredit of her Friends.

But if he, or any elſe, will pleaſe to give a fair, full, and free hearing of the Points in Controverſie; we never will baulk ſuch an Appointment (though it be irkſome to us, as Men, to combat every inconſiderable Wrangler, that hath no more Wit than to abuſe what he does not underſtand) But through the Aſſiſtance of the Lord's Power, we ſhall maintain our ſo much reproached Principles (to be the Truth, as it is in Jeſus) againſt the quainteſt Stratagems, and fouleſt Imputations of our Enemies. For, whatever ſome are pleaſed to think or ſay of us, we are engaged in God's Cauſe, and nothing but the Zeal of his Houſe conſtrains us (beyond our natural Temper, or Regard to this World) thus boldly to ſtem the Tides of all Oppoſition, and never to turn our Backs upon the Truth, or flee the fierceſt of her Adverſaries;

For our Reward is Life Everlaſting.

THE

Spirit of TRUTH Vindicated;

1672.

Againſt that of

ERROR and ENVY;

Unſeaſonably Maniſeſted in a late Malicious Libel, intituled,

The Spirit of the Quakers Tried, &c.

By a Friend to Righteouſneſs and Peace, W. P.

Ever Learning, and never able to come to the Knowledge of the Truth. But Evil Men and Seducers ſhall wax worſe and worſe, deceiving and being deceived, 2 Tim. 3. 7, 13.

But unto you that fear my Name, ſhall the Sun of Righteouſneſs ariſe, with Healing in his Wings: And ye ſhall tread down the Wicked; for they ſhall be Aſhes under the Soles of your Feet, Mal. 4. 2, 3.

To the Impartial READER.

I Have at laſt, with ſome Difficulty, obtained a ſmall Reſpite, from more ſerious Affairs, to the Examination of a late Diſcourſe, intituled, The Spirit of the Quakers tried, according to that Diſcovery it hath made of it ſelf in their great Prophet and Patriarch, George Fox, &c. And whilſt I was willing to inform my ſelf of the Deſign and Temper of the Author, by a very careful Peruſal of his Book, (at leaſt, expecting ſomething that might pretend to claim a Reputation in Controverſy, excelling all other of our Adverſaries, (who never ſtruck higher than at our Doctrines) whilſt this Man ventures to tell the World what Spirits we are of) I find him in Reality filled with nothing, but diſingenious Reflection, empty Stories, and unprofitable Cavils, about a few Scriptures, he moſtly confeſſeth, that but one of us hath miſ-cited, either in Reference to a diſorderly Quotation of the Words, or an unſuitable Application of them.

My Judgment I then made of the Man, and ſtill continue in, is this: Had he not wonderfully loved being Somebody in Print, he needed not to have given himſelf or other People the Trouble of ſo many unſerviceable Sheets; nor a ſmall trifling Solicitor for their kind Reception in the World, the Toil of ſo much Inſinuation, even to Nauſeating. But I deſign not to be long, and therefore ſhall briefly contract my Exceptions againſt the Author, to the Reader, into theſe four Particulars.

1672. 1. Then, He hath behaved himſelf the moſt unjuſt of any that ever yet undertook to write againſt us; which ſo ill becomes a Man that would reform others, that it rather incenſeth all worthy Minds, and is Reaſon enough to beget a Jealouſy, both of the Truth of his Cauſe, and his own Honeſty: For who (truly Juſt) would draw a general Charge from a particular Failing (in Caſe it were ſo?) And what good Chriſtian would ſtigmatize an entire Body for the Defects of any individual Member?

He finds Fault with George Fox, and, to be revenged of him, beſpatters a whole Society; ſo that if I ſhould grant him all he would have againſt that Perſon, (whom I doubt not to defend from his baſe Abuſe) yet why he ſhould place his Infirmities (ſuppoſe them ſuch) to our Account, cannot be reſolved me by any that is not willing to ſuffer for other Men's Faults.

George Fox, he thinks, has miſcited a Scripture, Ergo, —— He is an Impoſtor, and the Quakers a Pack of Hereticks:

It is after this lofty Manner of Diſputing, he undertakes our Overthrow; but if this be arguing, the Man is Orthodox with a Witneſs, and deſerves the Chair, Nemine Contradicente.

2. My Second Exception is, That if he had been provoked to any hard Thoughts againſt George Fox, from the peruſal of his Book, it had been handſome, and well-becoming a Chriſtian to have viſited that ſo much miſtaken Perſon (in his Account) and have endeavoured, either a better Underſtanding of him, or his better Information in the Scripture; and not (at a Juncture, when he might underſtand him to be at ſo great a Diſtance as America) exhibit an angry Charge againſt him in England. But his Generoſity here, is much like to his Reaſon elſewhere.

3. But why, above all Times of the World, does the Man chuſe the preſent Seaſon, to ſhower down his Diſpleaſure againſt us; juſt when we ſhould make the beſt of an unexpected Toleration, to the Refreſhment of our afflicted Minds and Bodies, by the late Perſecutions that have been? What! Is he angry that we have Liberty, or does he think that none deſerve it but himſelf? I wonder what Teſtimony there had been, or how few to have received a Liberty of Conſcience, if the Quakers had ſquared their Carriage in the Storm, according to his ſordid creeping into Holes and Corners, or elſe, to publick Places of Protection.

And if he tells us, that he had no Mind to add to our Troubles, he deals deceitfully; for as it is almoſt impoſſible for him to write againſt us, but he muſt expreſly or implicitly contradict the avow'd Principles of the Church, by his ſcatter'd Seeds of Socinianiſm, ſo knowing the Danger that would enſue ſuch Undertakings, as well as the Difficulty of Printing, his Self-Safety, and not Charity to us, was the Hindrance.

4. And Laſtly, But why was he aſham'd of his Name? (I cannot but make his own Words good by ſuch an Inquiry (without concluding him a Prophet) and great Reaſon there is that we ſhould ask him a Reaſon for it, if we may lawfully ask that which his whole Diſcourſe ſeems to character him a Stranger to; for ſince he tells us, That he declines all Ways of Controverſy with us, but that of Matter of Fact; however able we may be to clear our ſelves from ſuch Indictments, yet our Ignorance of his Name deprives us of that Scope we might otherwiſe have, for producing (perhaps) as large a Catalogue of Doctrinal Miſtakes, in what he himſelf, or thoſe to whom he adheres have writ, as he hath of verbal Ones out of any Writings belonging to the People call'd Quakers. And though he ſeems to excuſe the Abſence of his Name, by that Occaſion he pretends we take to abuſe our Adverſaries: Yet the trueſt Reaſon is a Conſciouſneſs of a diſingenious and unjuſtifiable Practice in himſelf; perhaps he alſo was afraid of ſuch Truth as may be ſeaſonably told of him, to the diſcrediting of his Enterprize: But 'till he had been ſo ſerved by us, it had become him not to have reproached us, in the Vindication of other Men, in whoſe Opinions he will by no Means allow himſelf to be concerned otherwiſe than to explode them for Heretical: Thus the Man's for any Game; he cares not whom he defends, if he can but have his End upon the Party he deſigns to miſchief; ſometimes he will be a Church-man againſt a Non-conformiſt, and back again; ſometimes either, againſt a Quaker; then for him, againſt them both; and laſtly, a Socinian againſt them all: His ſeeming Labours againſt us for common Principles, being but a ploughing our Backs with their Heifers, for the Promotion of his Biddlean or Socinian Cauſe; which Owl-light Way of ſtabbing Men, or deceiving People under the Livery of every Perſwaſion (whilſt for none of them) is very remote from being either Chriſtian or Manly; nor will the Righteous God of Heaven and Earth bleſs or proſper ſuch ignoble, clandeſtine Projects, and maſk'd Attempts, as our Adverſary, and his ſmall Cabal, are plentifully guilty of.

'Tis true, I cannot ſay all are equally concealed in their Endeavours againſt us; for when the Man has writ and printed his Book, there is a ſmall Cryer of his, that like an eager officious Broker, runs to and fro to diſperſe it, moſt commonly known by Smelling; his Breath ſmelling of ſuch foul Epithets as, Knave, Puppy, Fool, Raſcal, Loggerhead, Cheat; which with much more of the ſame loathſome Scent he is pleaſed to beſtow upon George Fox, as a neceſſary Introduction to our Adverſary's Confutation of his Book.

Certainly, Reader, we have little Cauſe to eſteem theſe Men, the Reſtorers of Paths to dwell in, Defenders of the true Religion, and Tryers of other Men's Spirits, who give ſuch little Proof of the Knowledge of their own, as to be wanting in the very Alphabet or firſt Principle of Common Civility.

But, Reader, I will not longer detain thee in an Epiſtle, whatever Variety of Matter I may have to invite me; hoping that the enſuing Diſcourſe will abundantly ſatisfy thee in thoſe very Things for which our Adverſary thinks us moſt unfit of all to be believed.

I have not given my ſelf the common Range that other Writers do; few caring to buy, and fewer to read large Diſcourſes; but as the Matter did briefly and naturally riſe upon every Head, without any other Artifice or Dreſs, it is preſented to thee. I omit more than an Hundred Things, that would engage to perſonal Reflection; for my Soul hath no Pleaſure in ſtriving therein, as knowing the Inconſiſtency of that uncharitable virulent Temper with a Chriſtian Spirit, which I am aſſured is quite another Thing, from what is Verboſe, Abuſive, Cavilling, Airy, and meerly Notional; which had our Adverſary duly conſidered, he would have found it more his true Intereſt to have liv'd in a daily Subjection to the pure Grace that brings Salvation, and have kept his Mind diligently exerciſed therein, to the perfecting Holineſs in the Fear of the Lord, than thus to exalt himſelf againſt an inoffenſive People; but I leave all with God, whoſe Will be done; recommending thee (Reader) to his Holy Witneſs in thy Conſcience, to be by that alone Condemned or Juſtified in this Apologetical Undertaking.

William Penn.

The Spirit of Truth Vindicated, &c.

I Cannot but eſteem it a peculiar Providence of Mercy, from the moſt High-God, to us his moſt deſpiſed People, though an Inſtance of great Unkindneſs in our Adverſary; that after our ſeveral Years Preſſure, under the heavy Calumnies of being involved with a Socinian Confederacy, he ſhould ſo ſuffer it to come to paſs, that without the leaſt Provocation given on our Parts, one of that Sort of Men, ſhould become our Compurgator, indeed our beſt Advocate in Pleading againſt us; for whilſt he goes about to detect the Quakers of an erroneous Spirit, it is to be ſuppoſed that he denies them any Share in his; and therefore no Socinians. I hope whatever comes of this Debate, we ſhall no longer ſuffer for being what we are not; it would be hard, that we ſhould both be condemned for Socinians, and then abuſed for refuſing to be ſo: Let them not be offended with me, if I uſe the Word; It's not from any Undervalue of the Man they take it from, nor out of any Reproach to them; but only as a Word of Difference to diſtinguiſh Perſons or Perſwaſions by.

And without any other Prologue or Introduction, I ſhall deſcend to the Book it ſelf.

§. 1. Firſt then, he is pleaſed to allow us, at leaſt, a great many among us, To be Honeſt-Hearted, yet wonderfully deluded, and very dangerous to Chriſtian Religion. I confeſs it is no Wonder, when Men will make themſelves Work, and rather than want it, beſtow their Cavils at the Truth it ſelf, that they ſhould fall into ſtrange and impertinent Contradiction; but that any Man pretending ſo highly to Reaſon and Religion, ſhould ſhew ſo little Underſtanding in either, as to conceive that a 1672. Man can be properly Honeſt-Hearted, and yet deluded, and dangerous to the Chriſtian Religion; I confeſs is beyond my Skill to reconcile.

I deſire, God knows, to be the Honeſt-Hearted Man, and let him take the reſt to himſelf: For that which reduces Man (fallen ſhort of the Glory of God) to an Honeſt Heart, and a Life good and laudable, as our Adverſary ſpeaks of us, muſt be the Grace of God, through Jeſus Chriſt our Lord, and not another Thing; and conſequently, who has that, is not deluded, nor dangerous to the Chriſtian Religion.

Pag. 1. §. 2. If we excel in all Things, as he confeſſeth; which is to ſay, that there are but few Things wherein we don't tranſcend all others; how poſſibly can we be dangerous and diſhonourable to the Chriſtian Religion, among the few Things, wherein we are ſuppoſed wanting, which is the main Thing of all? If ſo, What are the many?

Pag. 1. 2. §. 3. It was ill done, and an Aggravation, not only of his Uncharitableneſs and Incivility, but his great Injuſtice and Deceit, to refuſe us his Name, upon a Pretence of avoiding a Subject for our Perſonal Reflection, whilſt both his Beginning and End is an entire Abuſe, againſt our Perſons and Practices.

And what he owns Praiſe-worthy in us, is not becauſe he would be honeſt to us; but that he might by paying us our Due, in leſſer Matters, the more plauſibly rob us of our Right, to what is of more weighty Importance, namely, The true Life and Doctrine of Chriſtianity, which ſhews how little a Share he has of either.

§. 4. Nor does he leſs, than palpably bely us, in telling the World, We condemn all Virtuous Perſons whatſoever, if not of our own Perſwaſion; ſince we never held nor defended any other, than the Principle of Virtue (there is none good but one, and that is God) and ſuch as are in all Circumſpection conformable to him, thoſe we eſteem our beſt Friends; our Controverſie with the World, not being about dark, abſtruſe, unprofitable Notions, nor Conteſts about Words; but Men's being ſo rich in Profeſſion, and ſo barren in Obedience; they ſaying, they will go, and they do not; praying, thy Will be done, and they never ſet about to do it; which Will is their Sanctification, through the Eternal Spirit, if they would obey the convincing Light thereof, in their own Conſciences; ſince it was given, that all might be convinced of Sin; and in being converted and led by it, they might be adopted Children of God, and Heirs of his Glory.

Pag. 2. §. 5. Chriſt's Perſon (which he prejudicially ſays we deny) is (ſtrictly conſidered) an unſcriptural Expreſſion; for that Place which ſeems moſt to countenance ſuch a Way of Speaking, viz. 2. Cor. 2. 10. Is to be underſtood, and may and ought to be rendred, for Chriſt, by Chriſt's Authority, inſtead of Chriſt, in Chriſts Preſence, on his Account, or the like: and it ill becomes a Man to write againſt others, for perverting of Scriptures, whilſt himſelf is manifeſtly guilty of the ſame Defect. We reverently confeſs to Chriſts Appearance, both in Fleſh and Spirit; and when called to it, ſhall be as ready, Hearty and Chriſtian (God aſſiſting) in our Confeſſion of the ſame, as to the Beginning, Progreſs and End of that bleſſed Manifeſtation, as the Perſon who accuſes us. But we dare not ſay, That the intire Chriſt was that viſible Body that was crucified; as believing (with the Scripture) moſt ſincerely, that he that took upon him the Seed of Abraham, according to the Fleſh, was, and is, and is to come, God over all bleſſed for ever: Which Perſwaſion, I know to be moſt Heretical in this Adverſary's Apprehenſion, and no Part of his Biddlean Creed.

Pag. 2. §. 6. His Darkneſs, in reflecting upon our Heaven within us, denying us to have a due Regard to Things above on Chriſt's Right-Hand, is as thick as Egypt's; for if God's Preſence makes the Heaven, as we have been always taught, and all have believed and confeſt, then, ſince God vouchſafes to Temple and Tabernacle in Men, it follows, that his Heaven is there alſo: But certainly this Conceited Man fancies with Sottiſh Reeve and Muggleton, and the vain Anthropomorphites of old, That God's in the Shape of a Man, and that Heaven is a Viſible Place to be liv'd in, bearing ſome Reſemblance to this Viſible World; which characters him more Mahometan than Chriſtian; otherwiſe he could never be ſo ſtupid or malicious, as to conceive, that becauſe we aſſert a Divine and Heavenly Enjoyment of God's Preſence within us, therefore we deny Chriſt the Dignity of his Father's Right-Hand above us, or that there is no ſuch Thing, As ſetting our Affections on Things that are above: What can be more dark and ignorant than this Man's Inference?

Pag. 2. §. 7. But he farther tells us, That though we are much to be commended for our Courage and Patience, yet we are highly to be diſcommended for our Superſtition and groſs Ignorance. I dare warrant, the Man is highly opinionated of this fine gingling Phraſe: But it's beyond the Ken of his greater Knowledge (as he thinks) to vindicate his own Expreſſion from Folly and Inconſiſtence, as well as juſtifie his Abuſe of us thereby: For I utterly deny, That any Man can be much commendable for his Religious Courage and Patience (Divine Gifts) and yet be ſuperſtitious and groſly ignorant; for the Day is not an Effect of Light, more than Heat, Paſſion, Perſecution, Frowardneſs and Precipitation, are the proper and natural Fruits of Superſtition and groſs Ignorance: But ſuch as have done the Will of God, have need of Patience: Why, becauſe it works Experience, and that Hope which makes not aſhamed, nor afraid; the want of which, made this Man, with the reſt of his Serpentine Aſſociates, creep and cringe to this and the other conforming Chaplain (friendly to their Faith) as the Mountains and Rocks that were only able to cover in the gloomy Day of ſevere Inquiſition after, and Perſecution upon the deſpiſed Quakers; this is the Meaning of his following Words, Whereby you expoſe your ſelves in great Part to thoſe Labours and Hazards you undergo; to render which into better Engliſh, thus, That becauſe you will walk in a Way not conformable to the World, too ſeverely preſs a Chriſtian Life, as that without which you deny all Poſſibility of Salvation, particularly in keeping your Meetings, not forſaking the aſſembling of your ſelves together; and refuſing to acquieſce in the Obedience of thoſe Laws about Oaths and Tithes, and ſometimes going to hear a Sermon, to prevent Excommunication, and the Brand of Phanaticiſm, or Separation, with the like Convenient Prudent Actions, you do unneceſſarily run your ſelves into Sufferings, and bring upon you what you might with Chriſtian Policy and Diſcretion, ſecure your ſelves from.

And if he denies my Comment, I am able to prove it upon better Terms, than he can our Superſtition and Ignorance; for with him and his Brethren, to think Practice more neceſſary than Notion, is want of Diſcretion; and to be Plain in the Profeſſion of our Faith, and Conſtant, is the Superſtition and Headineſs he chargeth us with.

§. 8. But he promiſeth for the future to decline this Way of Procedure, and withal, To avoid the Uſe of both Scripture and Reaſon, in that our Leading-Men have ſo ordered the Matter, that we refuſe our Ear to the moſt demonſtrative Arguments againſt us, and embrace the weakeſt Reaſon on our Side.

I will not give him the Lye, but I hope he will not ſay I am uncivil or unchriſtian, if I tell him, he has already contradicted himſelf, and broke his Word with us; for within eight Lines, he that Promiſed To relinquiſh all Perſonal Reflection, and proceed to his Buſineſs, in the next Sentence lays to our Charge a greater and more unjuſtifiable Crime, than what he left off with before, by how much it is worſe to refuſe Information when clearly given, than to be ſo groſly ignorant as to need it: What fair Dealing we may expect from a Man not juſt to us, no, not to himſelf eight Lines together, let the ſober Reader judge.

§. 9. But when did any of our Leading-Men, as he is pleaſed to call them, refuſe this Idle Boaſter, indeed a very Dreamer, ſuch Sober, Rational Conference, in Publick or Private, by Perſonal Diſcourſe or Writing, as might be to Edification? They were never the Men that deny'd it on thoſe Terms, wherein it might redound to ſuch Chriſtian Advantage, as ſhould be principally aimed at in the like Exerciſes.

§. 10. And for accepting the Weakeſt Reaſon that is on our Side, I ſhall only ſay, That ſo very Grateful is the loweſt Degree of Reaſon to us, whereſoever we find it, that we can no more deny it, or occaſionally refuſe our ſelves the Uſe of it, than the greateſt, ſince it's being ſo does not unreaſon it, or render it no Reaſon in it ſelf; though confeſſedly a leſs Degree of Reaſon: Nor is it poſſible that the meaneſt Appearance of Reaſon can withſtand the greateſt, ſince Reaſon always acknowledgeth and owneth her ſelf in what Degree ſo ever ſhe meets: It is not Stature that makes a Man, nor Magnitude a Tree or Stone, but the Nature and Property of each.

And truly we are well contented with our weak Reaſon (as he is pleaſed to call it) we know it to be God's Light, Grace and Spirit of Truth, that ſince we gave our Minds intirely to be governed and exerciſed by it, We have found that Mortification of Sin and Corruption, that Renewing of Heavenly Divine Life, that Holy Courage and Patience, and it has brought us to ſo good an Underſtanding of the Myſteries of God's Eternal Kingdom, and Aſſurance (as we are faithful to the ſame) of Everlaſting Bleſſedneſs; that 'tis beyond the Power of the Ratling of theſe Leaves of Charge and Reproach, to ſcare us from our Standing, or beget the leaſt Queſtion in 1672. us concerning the Certainty of this Pure Unchangeable Way of God, in which we walk; but is inviſible to his Vulturous Eye, who ſo diſdainfully writes againſt it.

I had ſome Hopes he had done with Perſonal Conteſt, at leaſt againſt the Body; but I find him ſtill in his Reflections, For whilſt you look upon your ſelves as led by an infallible Spirit (though it be indeed nothing but the Fancy of G. Fox, or ſome other of your Teachers) you muſt needs reject the cleareſt Light that God hath given to Men or Angels, when it oppoſes your Sentiments.

Though he could ſcarce ſay any Thing of us more diſingenious and ſcurrilous, rendring us ſuch deluded Sots, and very Idiots, as to captivate our own Underſtandings (if he can think we ever had any) to the Dreams and Fancies of a few illiterate Men, under an Apprehenſion of being led, not by them, but an infallible Spirit: Yet ſince in this one Expreſſion lies wrapt up, if not his great Undervalue of an Infallible Spirit, at leaſt, his Diſbelief of any ſuch Thing, as the Guide of Men, and his unworthy Reflection upon us in crediting any ſuch Doctrine, I am more than ordinarily engag'd to ſtate and vindicate that one neceſſary Doctrine, (viz.) Whether God's Holy and Infallible Spirit be the proper Rule of Faith, Judge of Controverſies, and Guide of a Chriſtian Life, or any other Thing: This I reckon as the main Hinge on which all turns, and I now make it my Poſt, by which in God's Strength I am reſolved to ſtand firm in it's Defence, and that by Scripture and Reaſon, hoping, whatever uncharitable Thoughts he entertains of us, that he is not ſo void of all Senſe of either, as that they may not be uſed with Advantage to him under his preſent Ignorance and Preſumption.

'Tis true, this deſerves an intire Diſcourſe of it ſelf, as that which, above all other Subjects diſputed on in the whole World, deſerves Man's moſt weighty Conſideration; and if the Lord make Way, it may be by ſome or other more diſtinctly and at large handled another Time, in a particular Tract; however, I ſhall ſtate, and briefly defend the Queſtion, I hope to preſent Satisfaction.

The QUESTION Stated.

Whether God's Holy and Unerring Spirit (for I am ſo Charitable as to think he believes God's Spirit to be ſo) is, or ſhould be the proper Judge of Truth, Rule of Faith, and Guide of Life among Men, eſpecially under the Adminiſtration of the Bleſſed Goſpel of our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, or not? I affirm it, and proceed to prove it both by Scripture and Reaſon.

Firſt, Gen. vi. 3. And the Lord ſaid, My Spirit ſhall not always ſtrive with Man, for that he alſo is Fleſh; yet his Days ſhall be an Hundred and Twenty Years, &c.

If God's unerring Spirit has been wont to ſtrive with Men, either to convince them of, and convert them from the Evil of their Thoughts, Words and Deeds; or elſe, to provoke them yet more fully to do the Will of God, ſo as to preſs on from one Degree of Glory to another, then Men have had an Unerring Spirit to be their Teacher, and Judge and Rule, and Guide of that Truth, concerning that Faith, and in that moſt Holy Way which leads to Eternal Life: But the Scripture proves the firſt Propoſition, That God's Spirit has frequently ſtrove with Men, and for the Ends before-mentioned; and conſequently, They have not been without an Holy Unerring Spirit to Teach, Judge, Regulate, and Guide them.

Secondly, Neh. ix. 19, 20. Yet thou in thy manifold Mercies forſookeſt them not in the Wilderneſs; the Pillar of the Cloud departed not from them by Day, to lead them in the Way; neither the Pillar of Fire by Night, to ſhew them Light, and the Way wherein they ſhould go.

Thou gaveſt alſo thy Good Spirit to inſtruct them, &c.

If under the Diſpenſation of the Law, God gave his good Spirit to inſtruct his People, which is to ſay, that it ſhould teach them, rule them, and guide them in whatever was neceſſary for them to know or do; otherwiſe God's Spirit would have been lame and defective in his holy Inſtruction (which far be it from any ſober Man to affirm) then will it follow, that much more ſhould the ſame Eternal Spirit be poured out under the glorious Diſpenſation of the Goſpel: But all that acknowledge the Divine Authority of the Scriptures muſt confeſs to God's Goodneſs to his People in the outward Wilderneſs, in the free Gift of his Eternal Spirit; therefore the Eternal Spirit was and is the Teacher, Judge, Rule, and Guide of his People: Beſides, that State was but Figurative of the Myſtical Travel of the true Church in the Days of the Goſpel; and how is God ſo propitious now as then, if he be not as a Pillar of Cloud by Day, and of Fire by Night, I mean Spiritually and Inviſibly, ſo to illuminate his People concerning the Way he would have them to walk in.

Thirdly, Job 32. 8. Prov. 2. 6. But there is a Spirit in Man, and the Inſpiration of the Almighty giveth them Underſtanding.

For the Lord giveth Wiſdom; out of his Mouth cometh Knowledge and Underſtanding.

If the Spirit in Man, be not of Man, as the foregoing Words ſhew, and therefore is that Divine Spirit, by and from which comes the Inſpiration of the Almighty; and if the Underſtanding, moſtly intended, be of Divine and Eternal Matters, as the whole Subject treated on in the preceding and following Chapters, as well as that in which the Words are, manifeſts; then is it not from the Strength of Man's Reaſon, Memory, or utmoſt Creaturely Ability, that his Knowledge of Religious and Heavenly Things comes; but from the Revelation and Diſcovery of the Inſpiration of the Almighty? And if by ſuch Divine Inſpirings it be that the Will of God comes to be underſtood, then certainly muſt God's unerring Spirit be the Judge of what is God's Will from what is not, and the Rule how, and in what we ought to believe unto Salvation, and that Guide which infallibly leads in the Way that is moſt acceptable with the Lord. Nothing can be more Natural than theſe Conſequences.

Fourthly, Pſal. 139, 7. Whither ſhall I go from thy Spirit, or whither ſhall I flee from thy Preſence.

If God's unerring Spirit be ſo nigh, and the Senſe of it ſo certain, it muſt either be to reprove for Evil done, or to inform, uphold, lead, and preſerve in Reference to all Good: Now in which of the two Senſes it ſhall be taken, the Preſence of God's Eternal Spirit, and his being the Saints Inſtructor, Judge, Rule and Guide, are evidently deduceable from the Words.

Fifthly, Pſal. 143. 10. Teach me to do thy Will; for thou art my God; thy Spirit is Good; lead me into the Land of Uprightneſs.

The Queſtion will be, Whether it was David's Intent, and the Scope of his Deſire, that God ſhould teach and lead him by his good Spirit, or ſome other Thing; but methinks it is reſolvable in the Affirmative in two Reſpects,

1. In that David is ſo very frequent in his Deſire to the Lord for the Aſſiſtance, Strength, Teaching, and Guidance of God's unerring Spirit; otherwiſe declaring, How that the Word was hid in his Heart; and largely ſpeaking of the Force of that Internal Law, Word and Spirit of God, which plentifully ſhews, how much he was an Enthuſiaſt and Quaker, in the Senſe this Man eſteems us moſt Heterodox.

2. The very Words imply the Thing we urge them for, and can import no other Senſe, viz. That God would pleaſe to teach him to do his Will, and lead him into the Land of Uprightneſs by his Good Spirit: Elſe, what did that Clauſe do there, the Unerring Spirit being that by which God vouchſafes to diſcover his Divine Knowledge, and convey his moſt Spiritual Succour and Conſolation to his People? And conſequently his Saints have ever known, and do, more eſpecially under the Goſpel, Enjoy an infallible Judge, Rule and Guide in and about Faith and Worſhip.

Sixthly, Iſa. 30. 1. Wo to the Rebellious Children, ſaith the Lord, that take Counſel, but not of me, and that cover with a Covering, but not of my Spirit; that they may add Sin to Sin.

From whence I plainly argue thus:

If they are Rebellious againſt God, and add Sin to Sin, who take not Counſel of him, and are not covered with his Holy Unerring Spirit, that leads into all Truth, Innocence, Patience, Faith, Hope, Charity, and every good Word and Work. Then

1. God's Children have an immediate Councellor, and need not another; and are covered, or encompaſt about by the infallible Spirit of God to all Soundneſs of Mind, and Holineſs of Life. And

2. They muſt be Heinous Offenders, and obſtinately Rebellious, and Adders of Sin to Sin with a Witneſs, that not only neglect, or refuſe to be ſo counſel'd and cover'd; but diſpute fervently againſt it, as a meer Whimſie, and Effect of an Ignorant, Erroneous Spirit; for beſides that ſuch deprive themſelves and others of the unſpeakable Benefit that comes thereby, they are moſt ingrateful to God, and do certainly incur his fierce Wrath, in their ſo wicked Requital of him for his Heavenly Gift.

Seventhly, Iſa. 59. 21. As for me, this is my Covenant with them, ſaith the Lord, My Spirit that is upon thee, and my Words which I have put in thy Mouth, ſhall not depart out of the Mouth of thy Seed's Seed, ſaith the Lord, from henceforth and for ever.

I think it is granted by all that own the Chriſtian Religion, that this remarkable Place refers to Chriſt, the true Seed and Heir of Promiſe, who bruiſeth the Head of the Serpent, in whom alone all Nations of them that believe come to obtain the Bleſſing: But whether it will be allowed, or another Interpretation alloted (as that the Promiſe was to the Church) to be ſure here is enough to maintain our Poſition, viz. That God, in the Days of the Goſpel more particularly, has given his good Spirit for an Inſtructor, Judge, Rule and Guide, in all that concerns the Eternal Well-being of the Souls of Believers, as I proceed to prove.

If that very ſame Eternal, Holy and unerring Spirit, which God poured out upon his only begotten Son, be in a Way of ſucceſſion ordained to continue with and upon all the Faithful, his Seed, and Seed's Seed, begotten unto a lively Hope by the raiſing of Chriſt Jeſus from the dead, and ſo become Members of his own Glorious Body, then are not the Children of God deſtitute of his unerring Spirit, nor left to their own frail, and fallible Judgments, to determine of what is Right or Wrong, what Men ſhould believe, and what not, how they ſhould walk, and how not.

But ſo gracious is the Promiſe, and ſo certain is the Performance (as we livingly witneſs againſt all dry cavilling Letter-mongers in the World (who quarrel about the Holy Men's Words, and are Strangers to the Convictions, Judgments, Trials, Tribulations, Temptations and Travels they underwent, in order to that Knowledge they had (and which frets their ſerpentine Natures, whoſe vulturous Eye would in it's unregenerate State of Worldly Wiſdom, that knows not God, fain (without the Death of the Croſs) creep into the Knowledge of the Myſtery of the Reſurrection, which State alone knows the Things that are above, at the Right-Hand of God.

Therefore I conclude, That God's unerring Spirit under the Goſpel, does attend, aſſiſt, direct, and finally eſtabliſh his Children in the Way of Truth; and that his ſo doing is but the Anſwer or Accompliſhment of the moſt eminent Propheſies, refering to the Tranſcendent Glory of the laſt Ages of the Church.

Eighthly, Ezek. 36. 27. And I will put my Spirit within you, and cauſe you to walk in my Statutes, and ye ſhall keep my Judgments, and do them.

Behold a moſt pregnant Inſtance in the expreſs Language of the Holy Ghoſt, brought to the Proof of our Aſſertion, that (with Reverence we would ſay it) ſcarcely could it have been more exactly and emphatically worded, as I proceed to ſhew.

1. That this Paſſage has a relation to the Times of Reformation, or Coming of the Meſſiah, and Days of the Goſpel Covenant; read the whole Chapter. I know not that it was ever doubted, or otherwiſe taken by any, no not the very Rabbies themſelves, who from ſuch Places have obſerved the Coming of a Meſſiah, and glorious Times that would enſue.

2. That if it be granted, then the Unerring Spirit of God was to be placed within the Hearts and Conſciences of his People, and conſequently they could not be properly and truly under the new Covenant, and be without it, ſince the having of that Eternal Spirit for the Ends and Purpoſes afore-mentioned, is the very Badge, Condition, and Mark of the New and Laſt Covenant.

3. It ſeems to be the Means under the Goſpel, by which God cauſes his Children to keep his Statutes, &c. I will put my Spirit within you, and cauſe you to walk in my Statutes; and ye ſhall keep my Judgments, and do them.

To conclude (to ſpeak ſtrictly) If in the Days of the ſecond Covenant, which began from Chriſt's viſible Appearance, God put his Spirit within his People, as ſaith the Apoſtle to the Hebrews, and that it was thereby he did and doth cauſe them to walk in his Statutes and keep his Judgments; then God's Children are not without an infallible Teacher and Leader in the Things that appertain to their Eternal Salvation: But we plainly ſee and read from the very Letter of the Scriptures, that God gives his Spirit; or Light within, to Judge, Lead and Guide; and conſequently, the oppoſit Doctrine is both falſe and very pernicious. I might farther argue thus, That if God's unerring Spirit only enables Men to walk in his Statutes, and keep his Judgments to do them, then ſince all are required to walk therein, none are exempted from a ſufficient Meaſure of that unerring Spirit in order to it. Much might be argued hereon, but this ſhall ſuffice.

Ninthly, Joel 2. 28, 29. And it ſhall come to paſs afterward, that I will pour out my Spirit upon all Fleſh, and your Sons and your Daughters ſhall Propheſie, your Old Men ſhall dream Dreams, your Young Men ſhall ſee Viſions: And alſo upon the Servants and upon the Hand-maids in thoſe Days will I pour out of my Spirit.

That this is generally believed, and frequently quoted as a Proof of Goſpel-Times, is well known to moſt who are inquiſitive after Matters of Religion, and how hard it bears upon the Anti-ſpiritual Opinion of our cavilling Adverſary, though very evident; yet we ſhall farther proceed to ſhew,

1. Here is God's Royal Engagement, to effuſe or pour forth of his bleſſed Spirit in the Days of the New Covenant.

2. Here is on whom it is to be poured forth, expreſt in two Words, All Fleſh; in more Words, Young and Old, Men and Women, Maſters, and Servants: Mark the Univerſality of God's Mercy and Grace. Now from hence I argue,

If God's Unerring Spirit be to be poured out on all under the New Covenant, and that this is the Time thereof, then has God poured out of his Unerring Spirit, as aforeſaid; that the Spirit is to be poured out under the Adminiſtration of the Goſpel the Text proves; that this is the Time he himſelf confeſſes, pag. 1, 12, 13, 45. therefore the Concluſion is undeniable, viz. That God has poured forth of his Holy and Unerring Spirit.

Again, If the Spirit of God is that, without which none can obtain Propheſie and Viſion, and that Propheſie and Viſion are Chriſtian-Church Gifts, then, ſince the Church of Chriſt is not to be without Propheſies and Viſion to the End of the World; it follows, ſhe cannot be without an infallible Spirit to the End of the World.

Or thus, If without having the Spirit none can have Propheſie and Viſion, and that Propheſie and Viſion are both to be and to continue in Chriſt's Church univerſally; then it will naturally follow, that ſhe cannot be without that Unerring Spirit; and that ſuch as are, cannot in that State be Members of the true Church; then conſequently Hereticks, as concerning the true Faith.

Tenthly, Hag. 2. 5. According to the Word that I Covenanted with you when ye came out of Egypt, ſo my Spirit remaineth among you, fear not.

This Place doth very emphatically prove my Aſſertion, concerning the Judgſhip and Guidance of God's Spirit, two Things ſeem clear.

1. That it was a part of God's Old Covenant, to wit, That his Spirit ſhould remain amongſt them.

2. That the Spirit's ſo remaining was to ſome eminent Service; for ſaid the Lord, Fear not; as much as to ſay, don't faint in your Minds, concerning the Work you have to do, neither be ye filled with Doubts or Scruples, who ſhall inform us, who direct us, or we want a Leader in this difficult Matter, ſome one to remove our Objections and Fears, and to preſide or be as Judge among us, how to order and regulate us to the Doing of the Service expected from us; for thus ſaith the Lord, My Spirit remains among you, fear not; He is ſufficient for you, He ſhall teach and counſel you, repair to Him, adviſe with Him, and you ſhall be ſupplied with all Things neceſſary for you: Don't rebel againſt my Good Spirit, and you are ſafe; it ſhall be well with you. In ſhort,

If it was a Condition of the Old Covenant, That God ſhould accompany his then Children with the Aſſiſtance and Preſence of his good Spirit, and accordingly he teſtified by his Prophet, That his Holy Spirit remained among them, then much more reaſonable it is to believe, that the Preſence of that Eternal Spirit ſhould continually accompany his Children under the New and Laſt Teſtament: The firſt part the Place proves, the ſecond is made good by the plain Import of the following prophetick Verſes, where he ſaith, I will ſhake all Nations, and the Deſire of all Nations ſhall come: And I will fill this Houſe with Glory; and the Glory of this latter Houſe ſhall be greater than of the former, ſaith the Lord of Hoſts.

How then can it poſſibly be, That God's Evangelical Houſe and Tabernacle ſhould be a dry, empty, barren erroneous Man, always enquiring, but never coming to the infallible Knowledge of the only True God, and Jeſus Chriſt whom he hath ſent, whom to know by the Revelation of the Eternal Spirit is Life Everlaſting?

Nay, who ſo great, who ſo pernicious Enemies to the tranſcendent Glory of the latter Houſe, and Temple of God, as the cavilling Anti-ſpiritual Men of our Age, who are ſo angry with thoſe that own a Conviction, Faith and Worſhip grounded 1672. upon an infallible Inſpiration, that their Rage leads them (becauſe they feel it not) to the utter denying of any ſuch Things: but I will aſſure them, they ſhall yet grope in the dark, till they come into the daily Obedience of the Light, and there reſt contented to know only as they Experience; and not from a ravening comprehending Brain, that would in it's unregenerated State, graſp at the clear Myſteries of the Kingdom; into which, fleſhly Comprehenſions and Notions can never enter: but all muſt be unlearned from their firſt Birth, Education and traditional read Knowledge, as well as unmanned, that is, again become a little Child, before the Secrets of God's Work come to be made known; therefore ſaid our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of Heaven and Earth, that thou haſt hid theſe Things from the Prudent, and revealed them unto Babes.

Eleventhly, John 3. 5. Jeſus anſwered, Verily, verily I ſay unto thee, Except a Man be born of Water and of the Spirit he cannot enter into the Kingdom of God.

This moſt weighty Scripture, containing the very Work of Regeneration, and, ſine quâ non, or that only certain Means, and Condition Requiſit, without which there can be no obtaining of Eternal Life and Salvation; requires our beſt Notice and Conſideration: in order to which I ſhall divide the Place into theſe two Heads, and briefly raiſe my Argument thereon.

1. Chriſt's moſt poſitive Excluſion of all from any Portion in God's Kingdom who were not born again (in anſwer to Nicodemus his carnal Conceit of the Impoſſibility of an old Man's entring a ſecond Time into his Mother's Womb.)

2. That the Birth which all ſuch as would inherit God's Kingdom ſhould be Witneſſes of, was and is the Birth of Water and the Spirit; upon which I thus proceed to argue,

If none can Inherit God's Holy Kingdom, but thoſe who are regenerated of Water and the Spirit, then none can inherit God's Holy Kingdom, but ſuch as are cleanſed by Water, and taught, led and guided by God's Holy Spirit.

The firſt none can deny that own the Scripture, it being a Part of the very verſe quoted; the ſecond I evidently prove thus.

If Water and Spirit be the only operative to Regeneration, and Regeneration the alone Way to the Kingdom of God, then can no Man inherit God's Kingdom, that is not regenerated; neither can any Man be regenerated, that is not waſhed by the Water of Life, begotten, wrought, formed, inſpired and acted by that Eternal Spirit to Newneſs of Life.

That to be begotten, is to be principally guided and acted by that by which any is ſo begotten, I prove.

No Man can live, move, be ſenſible, or act, but from the original Heat, Life, Motion and Action of that which did beget him; becauſe the Nature of that which begets, being conveyed to the begotten, truly renders him begotten, or elſe there were no ſuch Thing; but every regenerate Man is the Begotten of the Eternal Spirit, ſo far as concerns his Renovation or Regeneration; therefore every ſuch regenerated Man was and is led, motion'd and acted by that Eternal Spirit which begot him; and conſequently, the Saints which are the regenerated, are not left deſtitute of an infallible Teacher, Judge, Rule and Guide amongſt them.

In ſhort, We look upon being born of Water and the Spirit to be, Our being cleanſed from all Filthineſs, and quickned, informed, ruled and guided by the moſt pure and perfect Dictates and Operations of God's Eternal Spirit; And how a regenerated Man can be made or continued ſuch, without the daily Guidance of that infallible Spirit, and the Scriptures kept clear from the Reflection of Contradiction, if not groſs Error, is a Riddle too hard for me to explain, and a Task I may without Preſumption ſay too great for our trifling Antagoniſts to perform.

Twelfthly, John 14. 16, 17, 18, 20. and 16. 13. And I will pray the Father, and he ſhall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you for ever: Even the Spirit of Truth, whom the World cannot receive, becauſe it ſeeth Him not, neither knoweth Him; but ye know him; for he dwelleth with you, and ſhall be in you. I will not leave you comfortleſs, I will come to you; at that Day ye ſhall know, that I am in my Father, and you in me, and I in you.

Again, Howbeit, when he the Spirit of Truth is come, he will guide you into all Truth.

Upon theſe Divine Paſſages, thus particularly expreſt by the Holy Ghoſt, I offer theſe ſhort Arguments,

1. If the Spirit of Truth, or moſt Infallible Spirit, be God's Gift to his Servants, in Goſpel Times, to abide with them for ever; then are they accompanied with an Infallible Spirit: but we ſee the plain Text proves, that God gives his Spirit of Truth to his Servants, that they might be aſſiſted in all their Wants; and therefore they are not without ſuch an Infallible Spirit. And our Adverſary is more to blame to reflect upon the Guidance of an Infallible Spirit, which is ſo conſonant with the expreſs Letter of a Multitude of Scripture-Paſſages, than we are becauſe we credit G. F. upon Conviction.

And if he tells us, That unleſs we believe what our Eyes ſee of Contradictions (as he pretends) by him collected out of G. F's Book, that he will not believe whatever we ſhall ſay or affirm; we may on much better Grounds conclude, never to believe what he aſſerts, and wholly to decline Writing or Speaking to him (to uſe his own Words) if hereafter he will dare to continue in the Belief of ſo Anti-ſcriptural and Anti-goſpel an Apprehenſion, as that there is no Infallible Spirit to guide Men in the Way of Salvation; which is as expreſly evident from many naked Texts of Scripture, as that God is Truth; elſe never did any Writing more delude Mankind, becauſe none could be more particular and plain in the Promiſe and Allowance of it: But let God and his Written Will be true, and our Unſpiritual Adverſary in his confeſt Fallible Judgment of us a very Lyar.

2. If the not ſeeing and knowing of the Spirit of Truth be the Reaſon rendred by our Lord Jeſus, why the World receives it not, then may we moſt juſtly infer, that they never ſaw it, neither know it; but are of the World, who cannot receive it, but write againſt it, in Reference to it's greateſt Office, viz. Of being the Saints Teacher, Leader and Comforter. And indeed, becauſe the Spirit is not ſome viſible Elementary Thing, that may be ſeen by their outward Eyes, and be comprehended by their dark confuſed and diſputative Brains (which is contrary to the Decree and Way of God's manifeſting of his Will from the Conviction of the leaſt Sin, to the Enjoyment of the higheſt Glory) therefore they diſ-regard it as contemptible, and diſ-believe it as incredible.

3. If the Ground of the Saints Knowledge of that Infallible Spirit, be the Spirit's inhabiting them (for, He dwelleth with you, and ſhall be in you) then were they not without that Spirit; and conſequently they were attended with an Infallible Guide within them.

4. If the Lord Jeſus would not leave them comfortleſs, but though viſibly withdrawn, yet in a more Spiritual and Inviſible Manner, would come to them again; and that at that Day they ſhould know, that he was in his Father, they in him, and he in them: Then were his Servants not deſtitute of an infallible Judge, Leader and Guide, becauſe they had him, that was the Way, Truth and Life, to whom all Power and Judgment were committed.

5. If both the Spirit of Truth, was promiſed to come, and when come, to guide into all Truth; that is to ſay, that whatever they ſcrupled, were ignorant in, or ought to know and practiſe, with what they were obliged to reject and teſtifie againſt, ſhould be by that Eternal Spirit diſcovered unto them, then undoubtedly they were not without an infallible Spirit, to Judge, Regulate and Guide them, in all that concerned Faith, Worſhip and Converſation: But the firſt Propoſition is purely Scriptural, and therefore the Conſequent not deniable by ſuch as own the Divine Truths contained in thoſe Writings.

Nor is the Dint of this to be avoided by Saying, that theſe Promiſes were only to the Apoſtles, and no Body denies them to have had all this; for if we are to walk, as having them for our Examples; we are to have the like Sufficiency and Guide. Nor does Chriſt leave the Matter there; for in his moſt ſolemn Prayer to his Father, he thus ſpeaks, Neither pray I for theſe alone, but for all them that ſhall believe on me, through their Word, that they all may be one, as thou Father art in me, and I in thee, that they may all be one in me: Which, how it is poſſible for thoſe, who then believed, and us of after Generations to be, without being born of and baptized, and drinking into the ſame one Eternal Spirit, I know not how to believe, neither can any Man, that gives himſelf the Uſe of his own Underſtanding.

Thirteenth. Rom. 8. 1. 9. 14. There is therefore, now no Condemnation to them which are in Chriſt Jeſus, who walk not afer the Fleſh, but after the Spirit, but you are not in the Fleſh, but in the Spirit, if ſo be that the Spirit of God dwell in you: Now if any Man have not the Spirit of Chriſt, he is none of his. For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the Sons of God.

1. If to be brought and kept out of Condemnation, Men muſt walk according to the Leadings and Guidings of the Spirit of God, and that it is a State unto which Chriſtian Men ſhould come, then are they not without God's infallible Spirit, to lead and direct them, in what Way they ought to walk, and conſequently, the contrary Opinion is perniciouſly falſe; ſince ſuch much needs live ever under Condemnation, who are ſo far frow walking after the Leadings of God's unerring Spirit, that they deny Men to have any ſuch Thing. Again.

2. If to have the Spirit of Chriſt dwelling (that is, ruling) in us, be to live no more after the Fleſh; and not to have that infallible Spirit of Chriſt, ruling in us, be to be none of Chriſt's; then both Chriſtian Men ſhould not be without Chriſt's Spirit dwelling in them; and ſuch as are without that Spirit are none of Chriſt's: But we plainly ſee, that the Apoſtle aſſerts, that every Man that walks not after the Fleſh, has that Spirit dwelling in him, and is guided thereby; and that ſuch as have not the holy Spirit of Chriſt, are none of Chriſt's; therefore it follows, That Chriſtian Men are led by an infallible Spirit. But,

3. If as many as are led by the Spirit of God, are the Sons of God, as ſaith the Apoſtle, then both God's Children are led by an infallible Spirit, and ſuch as are not we utterly deny to have any Part or Portion in him, notwithſtanding their Praying, Preaching, Writing, Reading and Diſputing: But the plain unalterable Words of Scripture teſtifie, that both God has given his good Spirit to lead Men into that holy Life, Nature and Converſation, by which they truly become his Image and Children; and that ſuch (and we may ſay only ſuch) are his own begotten Children, and Heirs of Eternal Glory.

Fourteenth, 1 Cor. 2. 10, 11, 12, 14, 15. But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit; for the Spirit teacheth all Things, yea, the deep Things of God.

For what Man knoweth the Things of a Man, ſave the Spirit of a Man, which is in him; even ſo the Things of God, knows no Man but the Spirit of God.

Now we have received not the Spirit of this World, but the Spirit which is of God, that we might know the Things that are freely given to us of God.

But the natural Man, receiveth not the Things of the Spirit of God; for they are Fooliſhneſs uuto him; neither can he know them, becauſe they are ſpiritually diſcerned.

But he that is ſpiritual judgeth (or diſcerneth) all Things, yet he himſelf is judged (or diſcerned) of no Man.

Methinks the bare Recital of theſe Pathetical Sayings of the holy Ghoſt; on the Matter in Controverſie, might be ſufficient Proof for the Affirmative of the Queſtion, did not our Adverſary, under all his Pretences of honouring the Scriptures, either implicitly, deny them their juſt Authority, or by falſe Gloſſes diſguiſe and pervert them, to his ſiniſter Perſwaſions, and ſo I proceed, as before, to offer my Argument upon them.

1. If the bleſſed Things which God hath prepared for them that love him, are not revealable, but by his Spirit, and were then thereby revealed, as ſays the Scripture quoted, and Context, then ſince there were thoſe at that Time who loved God, and that there be many now who love God, it will naturally follow, That both then and now, the Things that God has laid up for ſuch, both then were, and now are revealed by his Eternal Spirit; and conſequently, God's People are not without a familiar Communion with the holy Spirit of God.

2. If the Spirit of a Man, or humane intelligent Spirit, be that by which Man comes to an Underſtanding of thoſe Things, that ſtrictly and properly concern him, in an humane Capacity; and that the Spirit of God is that only by which Man comes to know the Things of God, becauſe the Things of God knoweth no Man, but the Spirit of God; then it is utterly impoſſible for our Adverſary himſelf, or any elſe to obtain the Knowledge of the Things of God, or his Kingdom, (but by the pure unmixt Revelation of God's Eternal Spirit) from all the Comprehenſions, Conceivings, or Imaginations of Man's utmoſt Strength or Science (For (as ſaith the Apoſtle) the Spirit ſearcheth all Things, yea the deep Things of God.

3. If the Knowledge of thoſe Things that are freely given of God, is only to be had from the Revelation of his holy Spirit; then ſince in every Age, from the moſt primitive Times, it has behoved every Chriſtian Man to underſtand thoſe Good and Heavenly Things, it follows, That it has behoved them, and ſtill does all, to wait for the Knowledge and Enjoyment of thoſe bleſſed Advantages which only are revealed by the Eternal Spirit: And is not that Science infallible? Which the Spirit of this World ever was, and will be a Stranger too, under all its diſguiſed Shews of Religious Worſhip, with which it has deceitfully adorned it ſelf, in a Way of Scorn of and Oppoſition, to the moſt Spiritual Appearance of God, making good the Apoſtle's Saying, For they are but Fooliſhneſs unto them. To conclude,

4. If the ſpiritual Man, or that Man in whom dwelleth the Spirit of God, and who is led by it, diſcerneth and judgeth all Things, and is not judged, or cannot be ſeen or diſcerned (he being in the Light, and the natural Man in the Dark) then is or ſhould God's holy Spirit be the right Judge, Leader and Guide of all, becauſe it alone gives true Diſcerning, ſound Judgment, and leads in the Path of Life Eternal: For it ſearcheth the deep Things of God, which all natural Underſtanding can never fathom, becauſe they are ſpiritually to be diſcerned.

Fifteenth, 1 Cor. 6. 19. What? know you not that your Body is the Temple of the Holy Ghoſt which is in you, which ye have of God? and ye are not your own.

The Apoſtle treating of the great nearneſs that every Believer ſtands in to the Lord, and that bleſſed Union, which the Diſpenſation of the Goſpel brings to, by putting away the Filthineſs of the Fleſh and Spirit, and by the Anſwer of a good Conſcience before God; in winding up this Subject, he thus ſmartly; and as if his Query were enough, to clear up all that he had to ſay to them, as to their Duty, and his Exhortation, aſks, What? know ye not that your Body is the Temple of the Holy Ghoſt, which is in you: From whence I draw this Argument,

If Believers be the Temple, in which the holy Ghoſt dwells, as evidently ſpeaks the Scripture, then are they not left without an infallible Spirit, as Judge, Rule, and Guide to repair to; but it is apparent to Senſe, that the holy Ghoſt is, by the Apoſtle affirmed, to inhabit, or take up his Abode in Believers; therefore they muſt needs be attended with an infallible Spirit; and for what? if not the End before mentioned.

Sixteenth, 1 Cor. 12, 13. For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one Body, whether we be Jews or Gentiles, whether we be Bond or Free; and have been all made to drink into one Spirit.

By which Divine Senſe of the Apoſtle, we cannot but allow, that if they were both baptized by one Spirit, into one Body, and made to drink into the ſame Spirit, that the Saints were not without an infallible Spirit; ſince ſuch Baptizing and Drinking, do emphatically imply the whole Work of the Spirit in their Regeneration, and their daily Union with, and intimate Enjoyment of it, the whole Courſe of their Lives. And certainly, if by that Eternal Spirit, they were baptized into that one Body Chriſt, It was as impoſſible for them, as Members thereof to live without the Life, Virtue and Spirit of Chriſt their Head, as for any natural Body to live without the ſame Life, Blood, Heat and Motion, which belongs to it's Head. And how this Man can be eſteemed a good Chriſtian, who would render Chriſt Jeſus the Head of a fallible Body, by diveſting Chriſtians of an infallible Spirit, I leave to Perſons of better Judgment, more honeſty, and greater Moderation than himſelf to judge.

Seventeenth, 2. Cor. 3. 18. But we all with open Face, beholding as in a Glaſs the Glory of the Lord, are changed into the ſame Image, from Glory to Glory, even as by the Spirit of the Lord.

This whole Chapter is an admirable Account of the Super-Excellency of the Goſpel Adminiſtration of Life, to that of the Law, how far it did tranſcend it, as to all Spiritual Knowledge, Privilege and Enjoyment, which I deſire the Reader ſeriouſly to read, as well as to conſider what is offered from the Verſe cited.

If a Chriſtian's Change into God's Image, from Glory to Glory, be the Work of the Eternal Spirit in Men, it follows neceſſarily, That Chriſtians can no more be without the Diſcoveries, Leadings and Orderings of God's Spirit, than they can be his Children without his Image, (ſince whatever they think, ſay or do, in Reference to Religion, ſhould bear a near Relation to that Reſemblance of God, which above all Things they ought to act correſpondently with) but we ſee how very expreſly and profoundly the Apoſtle deſcribes the exceeding Bleſſedneſs of the New Covenant, namely, A being changed into the Image of God, from Glory to Glory; not by our own Notions or Comprehenſions, from the Strength of our Natural Reaſon, or any Book without us; but by the Spirit of the Lord operating in us; therefore God's Children are not without an infallible Spirit, unleſs he ſhould deny God's Spirit to be ſuch, which methinks I cannot believe him to do.

Gal. 3. 3. Are ye ſo fooliſh, having begun in the Spirit, are ye now made perfect in the Fleſh?

If Chriſtians are both to begin and end in the Spirit, or if a Chriſtian throughout the whole Courſe of his Life, from the firſt Step or Meaſure to the Fulneſs and Perfection of his Stature, is to be informed, regulated and guided by the infallible fallible Spirit of God, as the Apoſtle's Reproof of the Galatians, for their declining to be ordered thereby, evidently proves; then Chriſtians ought to begin and end in the Strength, Knowledge, Wiſdom and Guidance of an Infallible Spirit; and conſequently, that Doctrine which denies ſuch an unerring Spirit to be the Judge, Rule and Guide of Chriſtians, is Anti-chriſtian.

Gal. 4. 6. Becauſe ye are Sons, God hath ſent forth the Spirit of his Son into your Hearts.

If God ſends forth his Spirit into the Hearts of his Children, then are they not without an Infallible Spirit; but the expreſs Letter of the Scripture affirms it: And conſequently, our Adverſary's Reflection upon us, for making it Part of our Belief, is unſound, and condemnable.

Gal. 5. 16. 18. This I ſay then, Walk in the Spirit, and ye ſhall not fulfil the Luſts of the Fleſh.

They that walk by the Spirit, muſt firſt have it; and next, be led by it: But the Apoſtle exhorted the Church ſo to walk; therefore the Church had, and Chriſtians have the Spirit, and ſhould walk in or by it; that is, according to the Motions, Leadings, and Rule of it.

Eph. 1. 17. That the God of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, the Father of Glory, may give unto you the Spirit of Wiſdom and Revelation in the Knowledge of Him.

If the Heavenly Wiſdom, and Revelation in the Knowledge of God, be through the Spirit; then, as without Revelation, there is no Knowledge of God, ſo without the Spirit there is no Divine Wiſdom and Revelation: And if the Church was attended with that Wiſdom and Revelation, then with that Spirit from whence they came; and conſequently Chriſt's Church is not without that Eternal Unerring Spirit; as ſaith the Apoſtle in the 5th Chapter, Be not drunk with Wine, wherein is Exceſs; but be filled with the Spirit: Which ſignifies the Apoſtle's Mind to be quite another Thing, from the Judgment of our Adverſary, who thinks, All Men ought to be empty of it; eſteeming ſuch as are filled therewith, as the Jews did Paul, Drunk with New Wine.

1. Theſ. 15. 19. Quench not the Spirit.

If thoſe could not quench the Spirit, who had it not, then thoſe to whom he gave that Caution had the Spirit, conſequently the Primitive Churches were not without an Unerring Spirit; becauſe they were not without the Spirit of God, which is Unerring.

1 John 2. 27. But the Anointing which ye have received of him, abideth in you; and ye need not that any Man teach you, but as the ſame Anointing teacheth you of all Things, and is Truth, and is no Lye; and even as it hath taught you, ye ſhall abide in him.

If the Judge of Truth from Falſhood, the Rule of what ought to be received and embraced, and the Guide of Life, be the Anointing, which none denies (that I know of) to be the Spirit of God, then both the only Way to be taught all Things neceſſary to be believed and performed, is the Anointing, and that Anointing is in Believers reſpectively; but the Scripture ſo aſſerts: And conſequently, the right Chriſtian is not without that Infallible Spirit, to teach and lead him into all Truth.

1 John 3. 24. And he that keepeth his Commandments dwelleth in him, and he in him; and hereby we know that he abideth in us, by the Spirit which he hath given us.

If the Union betwixt Chriſt and his Children be, that they dwell in him, and he in them; and that they thereby know it, by the Spirit that he hath given them; which implies, that they had the Unerring Spirit of Chriſt: then true believers are not without Chriſt and his Spirit dwelling in them, to Guide, Rule and Inſtruct them in all Things neceſſary to Eternal Life and Salvation: He that denies the firſt, denies the Scripture, and he that rejects the ſecond Propoſition, had as good deny that Day is an Effect of Light.

Jude 5. 19, 20. Theſe be they who ſeparate themſelves, ſenſual, having not the Spirit. But, ye Beloved, building up your ſelves in your moſt Holy Faith, praying in the Holy Ghoſt, &c.

If ſuch as have not the Spirit are ſenſual, then, becauſe the true Children of God are not ſenſual, it follows, that they have the Spirit; and that thoſe who have it not, are not the Children of God, becauſe ſuch are ſenſual.

This the Apoſtle farther minifeſts to be his Mind, becauſe, leaving the Senſualiſts, he addreſſes himſelf to the Sanctified of God, exhorting them, To build up one another in their moſt holy Faith, Praying in the Holy Ghoſt: Which ſhews, that they performed their Worſhip to God in the Motion of the Eternal Spirit; and conſequently, they could not be deſtitute of an Unerring Spirit in what concerned them, either towards God or Men.

Thus have I briefly run through the Scriptures of Truth, and doubt not but I have made it appear, That God has afforded his People in all Ages ſuch a Meaſure of his Eternal Spirit, as hath been ſufficient to Inform, Rule and Guide them, infallibly, in and about thoſe Things which are abſolutely neceſſary to be known or done unto Eternal Life.

It remains, That I evidence the Truth of my Aſſertion by Reaſon alſo, which I ſhall endeavour with what convenient Brevity I can.

That Chriſtian Men have an Infallible Principle to Judge, Rule, and Guide them, I prove by REASON.

Firſt, I Shall take it for granted, That no Man, whom either Education or Conviction gives to believe there is a God, can be ſo unreaſonable as to think, That any Man may be farther able to underſtand what this God is, and his Divine Pleaſure concerning him, than the ſame is diſcovered to him by ſome external or internal Operation from the ſame infinite Being: This then muſt either be by the viſible Creation, or that inviſible Taſte or Reliſh the Soul has by Virtue of the Divine Touches, Influences and Diſcoveries, that the Almighty Inviſible God is pleaſed to approach his Creatures by, as the next cleareſt Way to communicate unto them the Knowledge of himſelf.

Secondly, And as I know not any, who profeſſeth Religion, that makes the leaſt Scruple of this; ſo how is it poſſible, that ſuch Diſcoveries as God himſelf is pleaſed to make, ſhould be fallible, or ſubject to any Defect in themſelves; for, were that admitted (as muſt be, upon the Principles of our Adverſary) then muſt we conclude an imperfect Knowledge; nay, an uncertain (not to ſay erroneous) Knowledge of, and Faith in God, to be from God's own defective Manifeſtations of himſelf; which however truly deduced from his Poſitions, is a moſt Unworthy and Falſe Reflection upon the Mercy and Goodneſs of God.

Thirdly, There is an abſolute Neceſſity, That what it is convenient for Man to know, ſhould be certainly and infallibly diſcovered to him, becauſe of that great Corruption, Idolatry and Superſtition, which through that miſty and uncertain Proſpect they ſay Man has of the Divine Will, he may be ſubject to fall into; and like the vain Worſhippers of old, conceit an Ape, Serpent, or Crocadile to be a Deity, or ſome other Beings, or Fancies, though leſs Groſs, yet too groſs for a Chriſtian Man.

Fourthly, Upon our Adverſary's Principles, there can be no aſſured Ground of Comfort; for when a Man ſhall think he hath wrought out his Salvation in the Way he conceives moſt acceptable with God, perhaps he hath followed an erroneous Judgment, and unſubjected Affection; and when Repentance may be too late, he is to be fobbed off with ſuch an Award as this, You had no Infallible Knowledge, and having lived in an erroneous Senſe of your own, you muſt inherit the Diſpleaſure that follows: thereby making well or ill believing or doing, a meer Lottery, or doing of Things by Chance, and not from any certain Knowledge in themſelves of what God required of them: A Conceit worthy to be diſdained by every ſober Man.

Fifthly, And were I as our Adverſary, I would never beat my Brain about what is True or Falſe; ſince upon his Principles, when Truth meets me, I know her not from Error; and after I ſhould have writ Volumes, I am as certain of the Truth of what I oppoſe, as of what I aſſert; ſo that the Quakers may be in the Right for ought he knows; nor have they any certain Grounds from him on which to alter, or believe the contrary.

Sixthly, Nor does this Opinion of our Adverſary (that there is no ſuch Thing, as Man's being now led by an Infallible Spirit) end there; for it rendereth the Almighty more unjuſt than the worſt of Men; ſince firſt he ſeems to offer Men the cleareſt Diſcoveries of ſo much of his Will as he requires them to live conformable unto; yet, means nothing leſs, by leaving Mankind to labour under the Perplexi-

Methinks then, If theſe Things ſeem unreaſonable, (though the genuine Effects of a Fallible Guide) our Adverſary ſhould by this Time think fit to allow us,

1. That God cannot be known, but by the Diſcoveries he makes of himſelf through his Eternal Power and Spirit unto Mankind.
2. That though ſuch Diſcoveries may be imperfect in Degree, yet not in Kind.
3. That ſuch Revelation, Diſcovery or Inſtruction is infallibly true, and that there is nothing wanting on God's Part, to accommodate Man with a Spiritual, Certain, Infallible Diſcovery and Knowledge of Almighty God his Creator; and therefore Man has to rectify and aſſiſt his Fallible Judgment, an Unerring, Certain, Infallible Spirit, Power, or Principle; which as Man liſtens unto, and follows, his Underſtanding becomes illuminated, his Reaſon purified, and a ſound Judgment reſtored; and in all Things is he made a fit Tabernacle for the Glorious God to live in: Thus is he King of Saints, and will he be King of Nations, who is God over all, Heaven and Earth, bleſſed for ever, Amen.

There be two Objections, which I foreſee may be made by ſome to the Way I have taken to prove, That a Chriſtian's Judge, Rule and Guide is the Unerring Spirit of God; which I ſhall endeavour to anſwer.

Obj. 1. Though you have ſaid a great deal to prove, that Chriſtians ſhould have an Infallible Spirit in general; yet you prove nothing diſtinctly; but confound a Judge, Rule and Guide together. To which I anſwer, Anſw. 1. That to me there is no more Difference, than eſſentially there can be in the Wiſdom, Juſtice and Holineſs of God, which are but ſo many Words, that agree to expreſs the Perfection of one and the ſame Being; and ſo that as the one cannot be without the other; but the ſame Eternal Godhead is all, and that in all: for he is truly Wiſe, in being Juſt, and both, in being Holy; and back again, they are ſo interwoven, that the one goes not without the other; thus it is in being a Judge, Rule and Guide: for that which gives me a right Senſe or Judgment of Truth from Error, is as well to me a Rule, what I ſhould believe, or diſ-believe; and a Guide, what I ſhould practice, or not practice; as at firſt it was my Judge, of what was Truth from what was Error. So that the ſame Informing Convincing Spirit, is that Ruling and Guiding Spirit (and not a diſtinct Spirit, or Medium) by which ſuch as are convinced through the Illumination and Reproof of it, are to be ruled and guided in all they believe and practice, about Matters relating to God and his Worſhip.

Obj. 2. But at this Rate, you utterly contemn and ſeclude the Scriptures, as having no Part nor Portion in being a Judge, Rule or Guide to Chriſtians.

Anſw. 2. By no Means; for though we acknowledge it to be our Principle, That the Eternal Spirit, who in ſeveral Generations hath revealed a great Part of the Things contained in the Scriptures, is ſuperior to theſe Writings; yet far be it from us for ever, to deny the abſolute Neceſſity of our Conformity to ſuch weighty Chriſtian Truths and Principles, as are therein expreſſed, and urged upon the Churches, as what are indiſpenſable to Eternal Salvation: So that we plead not, that the Spirit of God ſhould be a Judge, Rule and Guide contrary to the Truth declared in Scripture, not yet excluſive of the Scripture; but as the Holy Men of old Time were ordered, ruled and guided by that Eternal Spirit, in Reference to thoſe weighty Things, which the Prophets and Apoſtles were moved to exhort thoſe of that Time to preſs after; ſo that it is impoſſible for Men now to come into a right Chriſtian Frame, and keep therein, but by the Spirit's being their Judge, Rule and Guide, as he was to the Ancients, who truſted in God, and obtained a good Report.

In ſhort, The Scripture is much like the Shadow of the True Rule, which may give us ſome Ground to gueſs what the Rule it ſelf is; as a Chart, or Map of a Country, how it lies, yet not be the very Place it ſelf: and in this Reſpect it may be a Kind of Secondary Rule, carrying with it a Teſtimonial Confirmation, that what we are led by is the True Spirit, becauſe the People of God, in old Time, enjoyed the ſame, as the Eternal Spirit firſt of all confirms the Divine Authority of the Scriptures unqueſtionably to us, That they are a Declaration of the Will and Pleaſure of Almighty God to the Sons of Men in ſeveral Ages of the World.

He that is ſo inward with a Prince, as to know, vivâ voce what his Mind is, heeds not ſo much the ſame when he meets it in Print (becauſe in Print) as becauſe he has received a more living Touch and ſenſible Impreſſion from the Prince himſelf, to whoſe Secrets he is privy. And this the Scriptures teach us to believe is a right Chriſtian's State and Privilege; for ſaid the Apoſtle, We have the Mind of Chriſt; and the Secrets of God are with them that fear Him; and guide me by thy Counſel, and bring me to thy Glory.

To Conclude; The Scriptures we own, and the Divine Truths therein contained, we reverence and eſteem, as the Mind and Will of God to Men; and we believe that they ought to be conformed to, according to the true Intent of the Holy Spirit therein; and we know, that all good People will reſpect them, read them, believe and endeavour to fulfil or obey them: And thoſe who trade either Miniſterially or Controverſially with them, and are out of that Cleanſed, Holy and Self-denying State they teſtify of, and believe it not attainable, the Plagues therein declared of ſhall be their Portion for ever.

I know that Authorities are of no great force with him, but ſince I write more out of an Expectation of Benefit to others, on whom this Libel has taken any Hold, perhaps it may not be unſeaſonable to ſubjoin a few, and the rather ſince we have not only the Suffrage of ſome, who are called Socinians, whom he pretends to follow; but thereby we may juſtly take Occaſion to detect him of Contradiction to their Sentiments, whilſt one of them.

1. Then firſt, Upon that remarkable Place in John, where Chriſt promiſed to ſend his Holy Spirit, Howbeit, when the Spirit of Truth is come, he will guide you into all Truth, &c. Thoſe two famous Commentators (I mean ſo accounted by the Romaniſts) Tolletus and Maldonatus, and the laſt very frequently, and with great Reſpect commemorated and quoted by Crellius, one of the moſt redoubted of the Socinian Party. 1 John 26. 13.

Tollet thus, " He ſhall, when he is come, manifeſt all thoſe Things which ye are " not able to bear, and diſcover to you all that Doctrine, that is fit for my " Church to believe and practiſe. He ſhall teach you the compleat Truth; and " to this End God gives it to the Faithful, and to his Church, that in Doctrine, " Life, and Government, ſhe may inerrably be guided. Tol. in 16. c. Joan. com.

Maldonat. Shall lead you into all Truth: that is, ſays he, " Diſcover unto " them, and to the Church of God, all that Truth which is convenient or fit " for them to know concerning Salvation. Thus ſays Cyril. Theophylact, Auguſtine, and Beda too. Mald. in 16. cap. Joan. comm.

Beza tells us, " That Proteſtants believe God to have given his Spirit, not only " to his Apoſtles, but to his Church, that by her Teſtimony the World may be " convinced of Sin, that many Conſciences may be compelled to confeſs, that " they have ſinned in not believing on him, &c. Bez. in 16. c. 9. comm.

Dr. Hammond thus: " But when the Holy Ghoſt comes, whoſe Title is the " Spirit of Truth, he ſhall inſtruct you what is to be done, which he ſhall reveal " to you. And I will aſk my Father, and he ſhall ſend you the Holy Ghoſt, to In- " terceed, Exhort and Comfort; and when he is come, he ſhall abide with you; " that is, all that ſhall ſucceed you in the Faith for ever. As in his Comment on the 28th Chapter of Matthew, upon theſe Words, I am with you always, even unto the End of the World. " And though I ſhall now ſhortly part with you, yet I " will, by ſending the Spirit upon you, to lead you into all Truth, and by my " perpetual Preſence and Aſſiſtance afforded you, and by that Authority that I have " received of my Father, and now commit unto you, John 20. 21, 22. continue " with you and your Succeſſors unto the End of the World. D. H. H. Parap. on Evang.

Now, If we read that Scripture he quotes, as an Interpretation of what he underſtands by Chriſt's being with them and their Succeſſors to the End of the World, we ſhall find it to be this: Then ſaid Jeſus to them again, Peace be unto you: As my Father hath ſent me, even ſo ſend I you: And when he had ſaid this, he breathed on them, and ſaith unto them, Receive ye the Holy Ghoſt. What can be 1672. fuller, than that in his Apprehenſion, Not only the Apoſtles, but their Succeſſors in the Faith, were to have continued unto them the perpetual Preſence and Aſſiſtance of the Holy Ghoſt.

Hutc. comm. on John.

And ſays no mean Proteſtant upon the Place, and very truly: “ It is by the Spirit “ only, that Men who do not profit under outward Means, will be enabled to “ profit; who, when he cometh, reveals Truths clearly, and bears them in with “ Life and Power upon the Heart, and doth renew Men's Spirits to embrace and “ ſubmit to them. And on the 14th Chapter thus: “ The Spirit of God in Be“ lievers is not only a Comforter, to apply and bear in the Conſolations of God, “ purchaſed by Chriſt upon their Hearts, but is their Advocate alſo, who pleads “ their Cauſe with God, by furniſhing them with Prayers and Groans that cannot “ be uttered.

I ſhall now produce the Senſe of ſeveral Perſons ſo Great in the Socinian Way, conformable to what has been aſſerted concerning the Holy Spirit, that one would think our Adverſary ought to be concluded by it.

Socin. Explic. loc. Script. p. 101.

And the firſt ſhall be Socinus himſelf, who in his Explication of the firſt Verſe of the 8th Chapter to the Romans, ſpeaks in ſhort thus: “ Neque enim jam carni “ ſed ſpiritui obſequuntur; ſpiritus namq; vitalis imperium, cui & ego, & omnes “ qui Chriſti ſunt ſubduntur, nos a jugo peccati & mortis aſſeruit: For neither do they now follow, or live after the Fleſh, but the Spirit; for the Power of the Living Spirit (to which, both I and all who are Chriſt's, are ſubdued) hath freed us from the Yoak of Sin and Death.

Slicht. in Joan. Evang. comm. c. 16.

Slichtingius, who in his Comment upon the Paſſage already mentioned, eſpecially that Part, He ſhall lead you into all Truth, gives us his Mind thus, “ Quando autem veniet ille, nempe Paracletus, ſpiritus ille veritatis, ducet vos, “ nempè, internâ illuminatione, in omnem veritatem, nempè, ad ſalutem æternam “ pertinentem, ita ut omnia ſciatis, & intelligatis quæ vera ſunt & ad ſalutem per“ tinent. That is, When the Paraclet, to wit, the Spirit of Truth ſhall come, by his internal Illumination, or inward Enlightening, he will lead into all Truth, and to the Knowledge and Underſtanding of all thoſe Things which are True and Neceſſary, and do pertain to Eternal Life.

Now, ſince all are concerned in the End, namely, Eternal Life, methinks it is moſt Reaſonable, that all ſhould Share in the Means to it; I mean, The Teachings and Guidings of that Unerring Spirit. Thus much for this Place: I will inſtance one Place more, and the Thoughts of theſe Men upon it, I mean this laſt cited, and one not leſs Famous in the ſame Way.

Crell. in Epiſt. Paul. ad Rom.

Crellius, in his Comment upon the Romans, Chap. viii. Verſ. 14, and 15. For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, are Sons of God, for ye have not received the Spirit of Bondage, &c. ſays, “ Etenim quotquot ſpiritui illi divino ſe regendos tra“ dunt, ejuſq; ductum ſequuntur, quemadmodum ſanè faciunt ij, qui ejus ope “ carnis opera in ſe perimunt, eaq; non admittunt, illi Dei ipſius ſunt Filij: qui “ quemadmodum jam naturæ ipſius ſunt quodammodo participes; ejuſq; ſimiles; “ Ita etiam viciſſim Deo filiorum loco habentur, ab eoq; ſunt adoptati, & in Filio“ rum jus adſciti. Eos autem qui a Deo inſtar Filiorum diliguntur, vitæ ſempi“ ternæ fore participes, quanquam per ſe unicuique videtur patere, mox ta‘ men planum faciam. Certainly then our Adverſary, if he hath any Re“ gard for Crellius, will not oppoſe himſelf to the Neceſſity of Chriſtians being accompanied by an infallible Spirit, when this Author plainly tells us, That without that Spirit of God, and the Operation of it to a Regeneration of Soul, there is no being a True Child of God, and Heir to the Poſſeſſion of Glory, as he farther ſpeaks upon the 17th Verſe.

Slicht. in Ep. ad Rom. com. c. 8.

Slichtingius gives us the ſame Interpretation, differing only in the Expreſſion, ſays he, “ Probant illos victuros eſſe, ſi ſpiritu actiones corporis mortificent. Again, “ Spiritu Dei agi, ferri, impelli, regi, & ſpiritu actiones corporis perimere. They prove themſelves to be Conquerors, if by the Spirit they mortifie the Deeds of the Body. Again, To be acted, led, moved, perſwaded, governed, ruled and directed, and to overthrow and deſtroy the Works of the Fleſh, by the Spirit of God, this is to be a True Child of God.

Crell. in prior Epiſt. ad com. cap. 2. v. 12.

Crellius is moſt expreſs upon the 12th Verſe of the ſecond Chapter of Paul's Firſt Epiſtle to the Corinthians, “ Sed ſpiritum qui eſt ex Deo, id eſt, qui ex Deo pro“ ficiſcitur ſeu derivatur in homines, ideoq; Dei Spiritus meritò vocatur. But the Spirit which is of God, that is, which proceedeth from God, or is derived from God into Men, and therefore is deſervedly called the Spirit of God.

Crell. Epiſt. ad Cor. com. cap. 2. v. 15.

Crellius, upon that remarkable Paſſage of the ſame Apoſtle, and in the ſame Chapter, But the Spiritual Man judgeth all Things, &c. ſpeaks thus, “ Opponit animali homini ſpiritualem, Spiritualis autem homo ille eſt, qui non ſolum ſpiritu Dei præditus eſt, ſed etiam ejus ductum ſequitur, & a ſpiritu ipſo totus pendet.

Says he, The Apoſtle oppoſeth the Spiritual to the Natural Man; that is, the Spiritual Man who is not only endued with God's Spirit, but is alſo under the Spirit's Conduct, and wholly depends upon it.

What Man ſpeaks more pathetically for Inſpiration, than Crellius doth, in whom our Adverſary pretends to believe.

Slicht. inrer Epiſt. ad Cor. comm. c. 2.

Nor is Slichtingius much behind him, who on the ſame Place gives us his Mind thus: “ Spiritualis autem, id eſt, homo divino ſpiritu non tantum præditus, ſed illi etiam totus deditus.

But the Spiritual Man, that is (ſaith he) not only the Man, who is endued with (and guided as by his Good Angel,) the Holy Spirit; but who is alſo rendered or yielded wholly to his Government.

“ Dijudicat quidem omnia; id eſt, omnia quæ dicuntur cognoſcit, qualia ſint, an divina ſint, an prophana; de omnibus judicandi habet facultatem.

Judgeth all Things, that is, ſays Slichtingius, He meaſureth and knoweth all Things that are ſpoken, of what Sort ſoever they may be, whether they be Divine or Prophane, becauſe he has the Faculty or Gift of Right Judgment concerning all Things. Thus far Slichtingius concerning this Place: I ſhall mention one more of this Kind, and then I ſhall conclude.

Crell. in Ep. Paul ad Gal. comm.

Crellius, upon that Paſſage to the Galatians, God hath ſent forth the Spirit of his Son into your Hearts, farther obſerves, “ Quia in cordibus hominum vim ſuam exſerat. Again, Spiritus iſtius operationis eſt, ut nos ex paterno Dei in nos amore certos reddat, & filialem erga eum fiduciam nobis ingeneret.

What can we deſire beyond this againſt our Adverſary in this Point, to prove, that the Primitive Socinians, as they are called, believed God to have given, and ſtill to give his Good Spirit unto Believers, as without which they could not, neither can be Children of God? It is God's diſplaying his Power in the Hearts of Men, and it is by the Operation of his Spirit, that he makes us acquainted with his Fatherly Love to us, who begets in us a Filial, or Son-like Faithfulneſs towards him.

Slicht. in prim Epiſt. Joan. c. 2. v. 27.

Slichtingius, on that notable Saying of the Apoſtle John, in his firſt Epiſtle and ſecond Chapter, But the Anointing which ye have received of him, abideth in you; and ye need not that any Man teach you, but as the ſame Anointing teacheth you, commenteth,

Certainly, either our Adverſary ought to relinquiſh his great Opinion of theſe Men, or elſe conclude, That Enthuſiaſm, or Spiritual Motions, Revelations, Teachings, Rulings, and Guidings, are not Things abſurd, fantaſtical, or inconſiſtent with Chriſtianity; but moſt agreeable with, and ſuitable to the Nature of it, as that without which no Man can poſſibly be a Right Chriſtian.

Crell. of One God the Father, p. 197.

But neither is Crellius of this Mind in his Commentaries only, where the Weight of Scripture tends him to theſe Interpretations; but in his Book of One God the Father, he frequently takes Occaſion to declare himſelf, I think moſt plainly; I wiſh he had been as Sound and Clear in his Underſtanding of all other Points: “ The Holy Spirit is the Power or Efficacy of God; namely (that we may explain it) which proceedeth from God, and iſſuing unto Men, doth Sanctifie and Conſecrate them, and produce various and admirable Effects in them; which Power and Efficacy of God they are wont to call Divine Inſpiration. Again, That the Holy Spirit is given to Men by God, and that Men obtain, receive, and have Him from God by Prayers, as numberleſs Places of the Holy Scripture ſhew, out of which it is ſufficient to have looked into but theſe few, Luke 11. 13. John 7. 39. and 14. 16, 17. (a Place by me quoted to the ſame Purpoſe) Acts 5. 32. and 1672. “ 15. 8. Cor. 6. 19. By the Holy Spirit in theſe Places, is underſtood, Some Divine and Holy Inſpiration, or ſome Power flowing from God; which is as it were Pag. 205. breathed into Man. Again, The Holy Spirit is properly given unto Men, and not Metonymically nor Metalepſically; that is, the Gift of the Holy Ghoſt, is ſimply and plainly to be taken as expreſt: Which (ſays Crellius) was not un- Pag. 208. known even to the Gentiles themſelves; although in the mean Time, they did moſt grievouſly err in the Thing, taking a Falſe Inſpiration for a True One, a Deviliſh for a Divine. It would be tedious to inſtance a fourth Part of what he argumentatively writes on this; only I will produce a few of thoſe Scriptures Pag. 218, 219. which he ſo underſtands, and applies, 2 Cor. 1. 22. and 5. 5. — Epheſ. 1. 14. here a Pledge and Earneſt are mentioned. “ Next, ſays he, all thoſe Places, where the Pag. 221. Holy Spirit is ſaid to be poured out on Men, as Iſa. 44. 3. Joel (by us cited) chap. 2. 28, 29. Zachariah 12. 10. Tit. 3. 6. Where (ſays he) Men are ſaid to be Baptized in, or with it. Again, agrees to it that of Chriſt, who in John, inviting Men to the Participation of ſo excellent a Gift, thus ſaith, If any Man thirſt, let him come to me and drink: Underſtand it (ſays Crellius) of that Living Water, which, it is manifeſt, is the Holy Spirit: Let thoſe Places be added (ſays he) in which Chriſt himſelf is ſaid to be Anointed, or others are ſignified to be Anointed with the Holy Spirit, John 7. 37. Iſa. 61. 1. Luke 4. 18. Acts 8. 38. Heb. 1. 9. Pſal. 51. 8. 2 Cor. 1. 21. 1 John 2. 20, 21, 27. He proceeds to ſeveral Arguments upon divers other Scripture-Heads, as all Scriptures touching Divine Pag. 222, 223, 224, 235. Participation, not quenching the Spirit, the Holy Spirit being ſent, The Spirit ſearching all Things, &c. But above all, I ſhall conclude his whole Diſcourſe with this one Expreſſion, viz. “ In this we know that we dwell in him, and he in us, becauſe he hath given us his Spirit, which we have expreſſed, is both perfect, and plainly expreſſeth the Thing given, and ſuch indeed, as may demonſtrate moſt clearly that God dwells in us, in ſome moſt Singular and Divine Manner, and we in him, and that there is a moſt ſtreight Bond of Love and Conjunction betwixt us and him; for how could we be more ſtreightly joyned with him, or he with us, than when he hath imparted to us of his Holy Spirit.

Curcell. adverſ. Mareſ. diſſert. prim. pag. 114. Curcellæus ſhall conclude theſe Teſtimonies: “ Nec enim deſinunt fideles eſſe Templum ſpiritus ſancti; nimium quia Deus in ipſis per ſpiritum ſuum habitat. That is, Neither do the Faithful ceaſe to be the Temple of the Holy Ghoſt: Why? Becauſe God by his Spirit dwells in them.

Thus much for the Firſt Part of this Diſcourſe, I ſhall now apply my ſelf to the Second, which concerns a Vindication of George Fox, and his Citation of Scripture, from the Reproach and unworthy Dealing of our Adverſary.

A Vindication of George Fox, and the Truth by him Vindicated; particularly his Quotation of Scripture, from the Calumny and Cavil of this Libeller.

WE ſhall ſay nothing here of the Diſingenuity of the Man, in writing againſt a particular Perſon, to prove a Charge againſt a People, having already pointed at it in another Place; but ſhall fall to the Charge it ſelf, which I will faithfully lay down in his own Words, and the rather, ſince it is one main Part of his Proof aginſt G. F. That he is an Impoſtor, becauſe he renders not the very Words of Scripture, though Words importing the ſame Senſe.

Pag. 3. If you will but allow us Competent Witneſſes to prove that G. Fox killed a Man, ſuppoſing we have ſeen him at Noon-Day thruſt him through the Heart with a Sword; Or if you will grant that we can read Engliſh, and know that A. B. is not C. O. then upon theſe Conceſſions we will undertake to prove, that G. Fox is a Falſe Prophet, a Lyar, or Impoſtor.

This Reader is the Charge: And doſt thou not think it is rarely drawn up? Well may I ſay rarely, for I dare ſay, it is the firſt of the Sort that is extant in the World.

I muſt confeſs I am at a Stand what he intends with his ſuppoſitory Introduction to it; for I as little underſtand what the Man means by allowing Us Competent Witneſſes, 1672.

Witneſſes, (when the Us are to ſee the Thing done) as he can pretend Difficulty in the obſcureſt Paſſage in G. Fox's Writings: For either he ſhould have ſaid, If you will but allow Us (to be) Competent Witneſſes, ſuppoſing we have ſeen him at Noon-Day, &c. or if, as by him already phras'd, viz. If you will but allow Us Competent Witneſſes (leaving out to be) then ſay I, it ſhould be, ſuppoſing They, (and not We) have ſeen him at Noon-Day, &c. for as expreſt, they are Competent Witneſſes: But if this be ſo trivial, as that our Time might have been better ſpent, and our Charity have overlookt it, as a Slip of the Man's Pen, or in the Compoſitor's Setting: Methinks he was as laviſh of his Time as Penurious in his Charity, that, without any Juſt Provocation, he ſhould trouble the World with an entire Book, containing little elſe but a Collection of ſuch ſlender (at moſt) Omiſſions, enlarg'd with his own Malicious Comments.

Well, but it is now Time, that we ſhould ſee this wonderful Diſcovery he has made of George Fox, and that ſo plain, as killing a Man at Noon-Day (which unhandſom Compariſon is no mean Inſtance of his own vexed, baſe, and murdering Spirit) or as his Mathematical Demonſtration, that A. B. is not C. O. for which peculiar and eaſie Way of well-expreſſing of a Charge, we remain his Debtors.

To prove this Charge (the only Thing we want, for of falſe Accuſers and Accuſations we have enough) he thus goes about it, to uſe his own Words.

> If G. Fox, in Matters of Concernment, not only to Men's Bodies and Eſtates, but alſo to their Souls and Eternal Eſtates, affirm that to be True, which to your own Eyes is manifeſtly Falſe, or that to be Falſe, which is True. Again, If G. F. doth belye not an ordinary Perſon, a mortal Man or Prince, but God Almighty, our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and the Holy Ghoſt. Moreover, If he deal thus through Deſign and Purpoſe, then he is what I have ſaid, viz. a Falſe Prophet, Lyar, and Impoſtor with a Witneſs.

This is but Petitio Principii, or a meer begging of the Queſtion, nothing more is proved here than in the Charge it ſelf; nay, it is but the Repetition of the Charge, expreſſed in other Terms; yet to it ſo expreſſed, I return in ſhort thus much.

Firſt, I deny George Fox's affirming Things to be True which are Falſe, and Falſe which are True, to be obvious to our Eyes or Senſes; for we can ſee no ſuch Thing: And ſince we are ſo to ſee them, in order to the Concluſion, it follows, that He is no Falſe Prophet, Lyar, or Impoſtor, by his own Rule.

But Secondly, I utterly deny, that George Fox's ſo affirming or aſſerting, ſuppoſing as our Adverſary ſays of him, renders him either a Falſe Prophet or Impoſtor; ſince he only is a Falſe Prophet, that either runs to inſtruct or teach People, and is not ſent of God, but ſpeaks other Men's Words, not his own Viſions; or who propheſies ſuch Things to come, as never come to paſs, but happen quite contrary, in neither of which Acceptations is George Fox proved a Falſe Prophet; therefore none. The like may be urged to clear him from Impoſture, ſince he only is an Impoſtor, that aſſumes to himſelf the Dignity of an Extraordinary Ambaſſador from God, and proves a Cheat, as Simon Magus among the Samaritans and Romans, Mahomet among the Turks, and the late Jew in Italy. So that if George Fox had ſingly affirm'd that to be True which were Falſe, it prov'd him No Falſe Prophet or Impoſtor; and therefore our Adverſary ſhews himſelf a raw Diſputant, and meer Novice, in the ſound framing of an Argument; For what Man that underſtands an Horſe from a Cow, would thus argue? If G. Fox, in Matters of Concernment, not only to Men's Bodies and Eſtates (then in Matters of Concernment, in Part to Men's Bodies and Eſtates) affirm that to be True which is Falſe, he is a Falſe Prophet and Impoſtor; He might as well have ſaid, If George Fox affirms he gave Ten Pound for an Horſe, when he gave but Five, then G. Fox is a Falſe Prophet and Impoſtor with a witneſs: But I think it will not hurt us, to let him have to himſelf the whole Reputation of this Kind of proving to People's Senſes the Truth of his Charge, who, had he not been void of all Senſe himſelf, and Reaſon too, would never have ſuffer'd ſo much Weakneſs and Untruth to paſs the Preſs without Correction.

Nay, though he could make it appear (which neither his Wickedneſs nor Prejudice will ever be able to do) that George Fox has deſignedly, and on Purpoſe belied the Almighty God, the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and the Holy Ghoſt, as he chargeth him to have done; yet ſtill I affirm, that he could not properly and ſtrictly be term'd a Falſe Prophet or Impoſtor, though all, but ſuch, would juſtly conclude him as Wicked as our Adverſary is malicious: For might not a deboiſt Fellow, that mocks at God and Godlineſs, when he kills, lyes, or commits Adultery, ſay in his 1672. Deſence, as the Apoſtle did, on a more ſerious Account, in another Caſe, that his Spirit was willing to have avoided ſuch Things, but the Fleſh was weak, and that it was not he which did thoſe Things, but Sin in him, hereby belying the Holy Ghoſt, which in the Apoſtle intended quite another Thing: Yet I hope, none in their Wits, would count ſuch a Fellow a Falſe Prophet or Impoſtor, though very impious and prophane.

And that there are too many, who from Nathan's Words to David, in the Caſe of Uriah's Wife, and from the Liberty taken by ſome of the Ancients, have interpreted and concluded, that their boundleſs Luſts are by Scripture irreprehenſible; thereby making at firſt Sight, the Holy Ghoſt an Acceſſory to their Licentious Practices, who was the Author of the Truth therein contained, (which is belying him with a Witneſs) I ſuppoſe, our Adverſaries Obſervation in the World cannot but give him to underſtand: Yet how we can properly Character ſuch Libidinoſo's, or inordinate Perſons, Falſe Prophets, or Impoſtors, is left with the ingenious Reader to conſider.

I hope by this Time, the Way he takes to prove George Fox what he wickedly ſays him to be, is evidently detected of Inſufficiency, and that upon his own Poſitions, George Fox cannot be concluded either an Impoſtor or Falſe Prophet. I ſhall now make it appear, that he is as well miſtaken in the Proof of the Truth of his Charge, as in the Way he took to ſtate it, and that no Man in that Compaſs, could well have manifeſted more Weakneſs, Folly, Malice, and Untruth (as well in defending of his own, as in oppoſing our Principles) than this our Adverſary we have in Hand.

To follow him into every Abſurdity, would not only be more than he deſerves at our Hands, or any Man's that loves Time better than to loſe it; but it would needleſly ſwell the Diſcourſe, beyond both my Intention, and the Service it is deſigned to; I ſhall therefore contract and divide his Exceptions to George Fox's Quotation of Scriptures, into theſe three Sorts.

1. Such as may refer to Doctrinal Difference, I mean wherein he oppoſeth us.
2. Such as refer to his Socinian Interpretation of the Scriptures, wherein Chriſt's Divinity is aſſerted, where we oppoſe him.
3. Such as are meerly trivial, in which there can be no Pretence for accuſing George Fox of any Alteration, as to what himſelf judges generally to be the Senſe of the Places, only perhaps a tranſpoſing of the Words, or the uſing of a Word of equal Force, but not the ſame, no ways detracting or varying from the Mind of the Scripture.

But that a Man ſhould make fifty Doctrinal Cavils, to no ſolid Purpoſe, befits no Man that loves to be profitably employed; but it therefore ſuits him, that is ſo over-run with the Lazy, as I am really perſwaded, he buſies not himſelf in one ſerviceable Work in a Week together; only ſits upon his own Saturnal Dreams till he has with Difficulty hatcht them into ſome ſeeming Conſiſtency, and then they are to flutter abroad upon his Paper Wings (ſcarce Good enough for Waſte) to the Shop, which trafficks in ſuch Kind of Ware) till Perſecution comes, with the Scorch of which they are wont to ſinge and wrap up like a Scrole: But enough of this. Now for his Doctrinal Exceptions.

He begins with what we confeſs to God's Glory to be our Beginning, and ſtumbles at it, as much as did the Jews of Old; I mean Chriſt Jeſus the Great Sun of Righteouſneſs, and Light of the Inviſible and Spiritual World, by which the Inviſible Souls and Spirits of Men come to obtain the Saving Knowledge of God, and what is required from them, in order to their Eternal Salvation. What can we expect then but Darkneſs, from him that ſeeketh to diſparage the Light. But let us hear him.

The firſt Scripture which I ſhall pitch upon as miſrecited (in his Language (that is George Fox's, perverted and corrupted) ſhall be that in John 1. 9. He cites it almoſt as often Wrong as Right. The Scripture runs thus in our Tranſlation, That was the True Light that lighteth every Man that cometh into the World. A long Porch, where's the Houſe) ſays he, in the Greek it is coming, (not that cometh) and ſo it may refer to Light as well as Man. But George Fox hath it thus, John ſaid, Every Man that cometh into the World is Enlightned, and ſeveral Sayings of the like Tendency. But now hath he obſerved that Exactneſs, which he requires in others? May there be no Difference between Lighteth and Enlightneth; Muſt every Man of Neceſſity be Enlightned, becauſe the Light lighteth him?

Wonderful Diſtinction! Certainly this Man ſets up for a New Claſs of Criticks: I wonder into what Labyrinth he hath travell'd for this Notable Gloſs! A Body would think he had left his Wits (if ever he had any) behind in Exchange. But I anſwer, 1672.

I look upon it as Conceited and Preſumptuous, for any Man to undertake what he cannot prove, and not leſs baſe, to affirm a Man miſcites, perverts, and corrupts Scripture, when he renders the Genuine Senſe of it. And this I briefly prove,

If I grant to this Pſeudo-Linguiſt that ἐρχόμενον is a Participle, and not a Verb, as our Engliſh renders it, What then? Muſt it needs follow, that it refers to τὸ φῶς and not to πάντα ἄνθρωπον? Has he made no better Uſe of his Greek Grammar? 'Tis ſtrange that any Man ſo mean in that Tongue, ſhould undertake to thwart the current of all indifferent Tranſlators, whom he ſticks not to make Uſe of at other Times.

I have taken a View of the moſt and beſt Editions, both of Greek, Syriack, Arabick, Æthiopick, and Latin, I could at preſent find; beſides, ſeveral other Languages, amongſt others, a Gothick and Anglo-Saxonick Teſtament, which I ſuppoſe I underſtand as much as he doth Greek, or thereabouts, which I ſhall alſo produce for his Satisfaction.

The Greek.
Ἦν τὸ φῶς τὸ ἀληθινὸν ὃ φωτίζει πάντα ἄνθρωπον ἐρχόμενον εἰς τὸν κόσμον.	He was the True Light, which enlighteneth every Man coming into the World.

The Syriack Verſion has it, Omnem venientem in mundum; All coming into the World: Which, ſays Druſius, is ſufficient.

The Arabick hath it thus, That was the True Light, which Enlightens every Man; making Coming to begin the next Verſe, which I ſuppoſe was a Miſtake in the Verſion of it; however, it gives no Force to our Adverſary, ſince he is ſaid, To Enlighten all Men before his Coming, or being come into the World, is mention'd by the Evangeliſt, In Him was Life, and that Life was the Light of Men; He was the Light of Men.

In the Æthiopick Verſion we find it thus, And He is the Light of Righteouſneſs, which Enlightens all Men coming into the World.

I know not any Verſions or Copies extant but what are of the ſame Import with theſe already cited. That which ſeems farther neceſſary is, what hath been the Judgment of Ancient and Modern Writers in the Point.

Gregorius Nazianzenus, concione de Baptiſmate, is very expreſs in this particular, τοῦ ἀληθινοῦ φωτὸς τοῦ φωτίζοντος πάντα ἄνθρωπον ἐρχόμενον εἰς τὸν κόσμον.

Chryſoſtom largely and earneſtly diſcuſſes this Thing, and concludes, that ἐρχόμενον ought to be joyned to ἄνθρωπον and not to φῶς and in explicating this Queſtion, Whether then is not every one (ſavingly) enlightened? he very truly and to purpoſe ſaith, It is not any defect in the Light, but their Fault who will not admit of it, and yield to it; Ἡ μὲν γὰρ χάρις ἐκκέχυται, πάντας μετὰ τῆς ἴσης καλοῦσα τιμῆς, οἱ δὲ οὐκ ἐθέλοντες ἀπολαῦσαι τῆς δωρεᾶς, ἑαυτοῖς δίκαιοι ταύτην ἂν εἶεν λογίσασθαι τὴν πήρωσιν which is as much as to ſay, The Grace is impartially ſhed abroad (or held forth) unto all; but who wilfully refuſe that Heavenly Gift, muſt impute their Blindneſs to themſelves.

Thus alſo Lactantius taught, withal, not only applying the Participle ἐρχόμενον to ἄνθρωπον; but in Honour of that Light, aſſerts it to have an ἐνέργειαν, an Efficacy, or effectual Operation in all ſuch as believe in it, and walk up to it.

I ſhall now briefly touch upon the Opinion of ſome approved Men of Learning in this Point.

Eraſmus gives this paraphraſtical Account upon the Place, ‘ Non erat Johannes ‘ lumen illud de quo loquor, nam lumen hoc, de quo loquor, erat lumen verum ‘ quod illuminat omnem hominem venientem in hunc mundum. Making, the Evangeliſt thus to ſpeak, John was not that true Light, of which I ſpeak; for this Light I ſpeak of, was the true Light, which enlightens every Man that comes into this World: And anſwering the ſame Objection (as our Adverſary maketh) Ambiguitatem ſuſtuliſſet additus articulus τὸν ἐρχόμενον: that is, The τὸν not being in the Greek, renders the Senſe too ambiguous.

Beza is peremptory in the Matter, for making the Objection our Adverſary doth, he anſwereth; ‘ Venientem in mundum, ἐρχόμενον εἰς τὸν κόσμον, id eſt, naſ‘ centem, ut explicat Chriſtus ipſe hoc dicendi genus infra 18. 37. Et additum ‘ eſt iſtud partim emphatico Pleonaſmo, partim ut tollatur Judæorum et Gentium diſcrimen. Act. 10. 35. Rom. 11. 25. & Gal. 13: 26. Quod autem nonnulli Participium ἐρχόμενον putant poſſe ad τὸ φῶς referri, ut ita convertas; Hæc erat illa Lux vera, quæ, veniens in mundum, illuminat omnem hominem: id, inquam, videtur violentum, & tractationem hujus argumenti, id eſt, manifeſtationes Chriſti confundere; Malo igitur ſignificari, nullum hominem naſci hujus Lucis expertem. Coming into the World, that is, being born, as Chriſt himſelf explains this Manner of ſpeaking below in the 18th Chap. 37 verſ. And that is added partly by an emphatical redundancy, partly to remove that Diſtinction which was between Jews and Gentiles. Acts 10. 35. Rom. 11. 25. & Gal. 3. 26. But becauſe ſome think the Participle ἐρχόμενον may be tranſpoſed to τὸ φῶς to be conſtrued thus; This is the true Light, which coming into the World, enlightens every Man: which with me ſeems to confound the handling of this Argument (that is of Chriſt's Manifeſtation) as unnatural and extorted; I had much rather it ſhould ſignifie, that no Man is born void of this Light.

Maldonatus, whom Crellius often cites with great reſpect, ſays; ‘ Quem ſenſum Cyrillus et alij quidam ſecuti ſunt, eſtq; non falſus, non abſurdus, ſed meâ ſententiâ non proprius. Nam ut alia non eſſet ratio, nomen hominis proxime adhærens jure ſibi hoc participium vendicaret. Et Chriſtus non ſolum in hunc mundum veniens, ſed et poſtquam venit, et antequam veniret, erat Lux vera quæ illuminabat omnem hominem venientem in hunc mundum. Et alii Auctores omnes ita intellexerunt, ut non Chriſtus veniens, ſed Chriſtus omnem hominem venientem in hunc mundum dicatur illuminaſſe, Auguſt. Chryſoſt. Beda, Theophylact. Euthym. That is to ſay: Which Opinion Cyrillus and ſome others followed, and it is neither falſe nor abſurd, but in my Judgment not proper: For, though there ſhould be no other Reaſon, Man, being the next Noun, ſhould of right challenge this Participle to himſelf. And Chriſt was, not only when he came into this World, but before and after he came, the true Light, that enlightneth every Man that cometh into the World, And all other Authors, as Auguſtin, Chryſoſtom, Beda, Theophylact, and Euthymius, &c. underſtood it thus; It can not be ſaid, that Chriſt coming into the World enlightens all Men, but that Chriſt enlightens all Men coming into the World.

And of this Mind alſo is Druſius, upon the text, ‘ omnem hominem venientem in mundum; Satis erat omnes venientes in mundum. Sed homo dicitur antequam in mundum venit: in mundum venit cum naſcitur. Igitur homo veniens in mundum, non eſt homo ſimpliciter, ſed homo natus, aut qui naſcitur. Ebræi tamen באי עולם vocant omnes homines. Lib. Muſar. c. 5. Si congregarentur omnes venientes in mundum, ad creationem pulicis & ad infundendam animam, non poſſent. In Munere novo (Liber eſt ejus nominis) videbunt omnes venientes mundi, i. e. in mundum, 78. 2. & alibi ſæpe. Pheſictha 2. 1. Teſtimonio ſunt omnibus venientibus in mundum, quod inter eos ſit Divinitas. That is to ſay: Every Man coming into the World, ſays he, All coming into the World, had been ſufficient. But he may be called Man before he comes into the World: he comes into the World when he is born; Therefore Man coming into the World is not ſimply a Man, but a Man born. But the Hebrews call all Men באי עולם that is, coming or being born into the World. Lib. Muſar. c. 5. If all that come into the World, ſhould meet to make a Flea, and to infuſe a Soul, they could not do it: In Munere novo (a Book ſo called) All coming of the World, that is, into the World ſhall ſee, 78. 2. and often elſewhere. Pheſictha 2. 1. ‘ All coming into the World have a Teſtimony, that there is a Deity among them. Thus much concerning the Senſe of Learned Men upon the Place controverted, which if it doth no good, will I hope do no hurt, though a Man would think that ſo many able to teach him Greek, might conclude him, unleſs he has more to tell us, than in his Libel.

Overlooking then ſome other Authors, I ſhall, as I am able, give my own Reaſons, why ἐρχόμενον more properly belongs to Man than Light.

Firſt, If Chriſt be that true Light by way of Eminency, which not only the Scriptures moſt plainly character him to be, but all Criticks and Interpreters agree to be the import of the Place, then will it neceſſarily follow upon their Notion, who generally make coming the Participle of Light rather than Man, that true Light never ſaw the World, or rather the World true Light, till the Meſſiah's viſible coming, and that conſequently all Antecedent Livers to his External Appearance, however good and holy Men, were deſtitute of the true or ſaving Light, as having never roſe upon them, nor they been illuminated or refreſht with the Divine Light

1672. and Heat thereof; which, as it is a moſt irreverent Thought of God, and uncharitable towards many deceaſed Generations, ſo it is for ever to be exploded for falſe, and inconſiſtent with the Impreſſions incident to every Man, as well as the Teſtimonies of the Scripture. For who living can believe, that before the Meſſiah's Coming there was not a ſufficient Light given to thoſe Holy Patriarchs and Prophets, which if true, Chriſt as that true Light, by way of Eminency, muſt have been before ſuch Manifeſtation. We ſhall eaſily grant, that in reference to the Traſcendency of it's Appearance, as to what had been it might be ſaid more eminently to come at that Time, but to exclude all leſſer Degrees of Illumination by the ſame ſaving Light, antecedent to it's brighter Diſcoveries in that Day, we can never do; but do and ſhall maintain the contrary, knowing, that it is not a diſtinct, or other Light that ſaves now, than formerly did; but a more large Diſcovery of the ſame.

To which agrees that of Chriſt himſelf, Job. 8. 56, 58. before Abraham was I am; Abraham ſaw my Day, and was glad; And that of the Apoſtle 1 Cor. 10. 4. for they drank of that Spiritual Rock that followed them, and that Rock was Chriſt. The Way of the Juſt is a ſhining Light.

2. Beſides, what ſhall we ſay upon their Tranſpoſition of the Words, as to the Time then preſent? I mean when the Light after their Senſe, was coming into the World; for that the Scriptures will be moſt falſe, methinks they themſelves ſhould ſee; ſince it is notorious, that neither whilſt he was coming, nor come, one quarter of Mankind was any whit extraordinarily enlightned, much leſs ſavingly by him; but they remained Infidels as before.

3. Nor is this all, for at this rate, We, ſince his Departure, are left as deſtitute as they before his Coming, and as they who heard not of him, when he was come were wholly ignorant; for how is it poſſible, upon their Interpretation, that we ſhould have any ſaving Light? Chriſt, in whom was that excellent Light and Power, is gone, ſay they: The Scriptures in many Points are left dubious, as Peter teſtifies of Paul's Epiſtles, ſay I: neither is there any unerring Interpreter or Guide to be obtained at this Time, ſay they again: Certainly then, there can be but little true Knowledge, ſound Faith, or well-grounded Comfort in ſo ill-founded a Religion, whoſe Belief is a kind of Fiction, and their Hope but a better Sort of Deſpair. To conclude.

4. We therefore think it a wrong done to the Text, becauſe of the Participle's unſuitableneſs to Light, and it's natural Agreement to Man; for Men are continually coming into the World, and as ſuch enlightned, which cannot be ſaid of Light in their Senſe. The Meſſiah don't viſibly appear as formerly; That Light is eclipſt, as he himſelf ſaid it was convenient to be, or the Comforter would not come; but that Divine intellectual Light, which was moſt excellent, he promiſed ſhould endure with his to the End; by a Degree of which alſo the Holy Patriarchs of old ſaw the Glory of his Day, and Evangelical Diſpenſation, though as to the then State of the World, it was altogether unfit for it; wherefore it is ſaid, that they deſired to ſee his Day and ſaw it not; How? Did they not ſee it as to themſelves? By no Means; for many of them ſaw it, but they never ſaw it break forth as God's Diſpenſation to the World (though they much deſired it) becauſe of the World's Incapacity to receive it.

What ſhall I farther ſay? If coming cannot ſo properly be ſaid of Light in their Senſe, as of Man in ours, (ſince ſo every Man in all Ages comes to have the Benefit of that Light offer'd unto him, which in the other Senſe muſt be loſt to Thouſands, or they loſe the Advantage of it (being not then born in that Age, in which that Sun (though for a little Seaſon) was pleaſed to viſit the World) then let it not be Light coming, but Man coming into the World. In ſhort, take it in their Senſe, and one Age is hardly befitted, take it in ours, and all Mankind is illuminated.

As to the Drift of our Adverſary in his Tranſpoſition of the Participle, viz. The Diveſting Chriſt of all Right to Eternal Divinity, (which is the Snake in the Graſs) I ſhall anon ſufficiently, I hope, vindicate that great Truth; though I cannot but wonder, ſince we without damage can allow him, that the Words may be true both Ways, as I have already, and may yet farther demonſtrate, that he would deſire only to receive them in one, as if on purpoſe he had a mind to dethrone Chriſt from the Seat of his Eternal Majeſty; For what if John had chiefly intended a Deſcription of the Heavenly Structure of the New World, and Chriſt to have been the Enlighner of all that come into it ; and farther, that the Meſſiah, then coming, was Author of that moſt excellent Creation ; muſt it needs therefore follow, that he was not antecedent to that Work, that he never enlightned the Fathers and holy Men of Old, with a ſufficient Meaſure of that ſame Light, which, without Meaſure, appeared in him, and far greater than before, to the Sons of Men? I appeal to any modeſt intelligent Man, if this be not Ingratitude, nay Sacrilege in the higheſt Degree. Certainly, therefore it can be no Injury to the Scripture, if we ſay, that He who enlightned the Patriarchs and Prophets of old, hath, in a more excellent Manner and ſuitable to the Spirituality of his own Divine Nature, revealed himſelf in this Goſpel-Adminiſtration, the which may aptly be compared to a well-built Temple, which has been of old begun, but left to theſe latter Days of Chriſt's more eminent Manifeſtation, to ſuperſtruct, compleat, adorn and fit for him the eternal Light of Life and Righteouſneſs to be worſhipped in ; ſo that there is a great Difference, as Grotius in other Words doth well obſerve, between the Beginning of an Adminiſtration, and of the Author of it, That might be the Beginning of thoſe large Diſcoveries, but not the Light that gave them ; and conſequently, notwithſtanding John ſhould have intended a Divine Creation, yet it will not neceſſarily follow, that the Light, which is that Creator, was not in being antecedently to that Divine Creation ; and ſo God, both by Pre-exiſtence, and Omnipotency. But I ſhall ſay no more of this, I mean the Tranſpoſition of the Participle ἐρχόμενον, till our Adverſary ſays more to the contrary, if we may then think it worth our Notice.

But it may be fit to obſerve, that the Man ſhows a wavering in his own Judgment, which is not only manifeſt from his Saying, it may as well be referred to Light as Man, but in a Manuſcript to a Friend of ours, he affirmed it to be unreaſonable, to refer Coming to Man, and not to the true Light ; all we can ſay is this, that though it ſhow him to be unſettled in his own Thoughts, yet he was willing to be a little more modeſt in Print, than in his Manuſcript.

For his Diſtinction between Lighteth, and Enlightneth, I confeſs my Self troubled, not at his great Skill, but Folly ; It ſhows, he would ſay ſomething, if he could tell what, and to uſe a familiar Proverb, The poor Man will be playing at ſmall Game, rather than ſtand out. Then, let's to the Word, ſince he would be thought a Critick φωτίζει we read in the Greek, in the Latin Illuminat, and ſhould in the Engliſh Enlightneth ; the Defect is not in the Original, or Latin Verſions, but our Engliſh only, I perceive, whether it be Original, or Tranſlation, which makes moſt for him, that is the infallible Text, till it happens to contradict him, and then, if in the Original, the Word is foiſted in, or thus to be tranſpoſed, or rendred ; if in any of the Verſions, then it is not ſo in the Original, it is lamely rendred, and the like. But this Challenge I make to the Man, that if he can find one Verſion in three, (and three to one that's odds) which renders it different from what we underſtand by it, I ſhall acknowledge him a Critick, and our ſelves ignorant in Words. All the Greek Copies and Latin Tranſlations, I ever ſaw or heard of, import no other thing than Illumination or Enlightning. All that I have hitherto mention'd, ſo give it us, quæ illuminat omnem Hominem, &c.

That this is the conſtant Uſe of the Word, throughout both the Old and New Teſtament (ſo called) is evident : It is ſaid, of Jonathan, that after he had taſted a little of that honey, into which he put his Rod, his Eyes were enlightned, כי־ארו עיני quia illuminati ſunt Oculi mei. See, ſaith Jonathan, I pray you, how mine Eyes have been enlightned. The Chaldee Verſion hath it, illuxerunt Oculi mei, how my Eyes ſhined ; The Syriack thus, my Eyes have received Light : The Arabick thus, quomodo illuſtrata eſt Acies mea, how is my Eye-Sight clear'd ; but the Septuagint expreſſeth it thus ; Ἴδε διότι εἶδον οἱ ὀφθαλμοί μȣ, Behold how my Eyes have ſeen ; which in a myſtical Senſe is the ſame now, for that eternal Light or Word of Life, is that Honey out of the true Rock, and Milk that the Prophet exhorteth the Jews to buy without Money, and without Price ; And who taſte of that in Faith, receive that bleſſed Effect, namely, true Illumination, Thus Job, to bring his Soul from the Pit, that is from Darkneſs, Death and Sin, לאור ad Lucendum in Luce viventium, to be enlightned with the Light of the Living, The Chaldee has it after this Manner, that my Soul may ſhine by the Light of the Living : The Syriack and Arabick, that it may ſee the Light of Life ; Job. 33. 30. and upon v. 28. which ſpeaks to the ſame Purpoſe, ſays Vatablus, De Luce illâ Cœleſti intelligit, fruetur Dei conſpectu, which is, He means by that heavenly Light, he ſhall enjoy the Preſence of God. Likewiſe David moſt emphatically uſeth the ſame Verb, and that to our Purpoſe undeniably.

Pſal. 18. 28. 29. Quoniam tu illuminabis Lucernam meam, Deus meus illuminabit Tenebroſitatem meam: For thou wilt light my Candle; the Lord my God will enlighten my Darkneſs. The Chaldee has it thus, becauſe thou wilt enlighten the Candle of Iſrael: The Lord my God will bring me out of Darkneſs into Light: A notable Addition, at leaſt Explanation of the Place, yet this is in the Chaldee Verſion. The Syriack, Æthiopick and Septuagint are the ſame; the Arabick differs only in Tenſes, thou doſt enlighten, for wilt enlighten, and he hath enlightned my Darkneſs, for he will enlighten my Darkneſs. And if the Spirit of Man, be the Candle of the Lord, and that God only can light it, then certainly, ſince Man's Spirit is within him, it is not more unſound, nor any more violating the Scripture Senſe, to ſay, that God enlightens, than that he lightens every Man within, by communicating of his own Light to Man's Spirit, which receiving it, becomes lighted by it, to all right Knowledge and good Works. Farther, if David's Darkneſs was within him, in his Soul and Underſtanding, as certainly he meant it ſo, when he ſpeaks of it, then muſt that Light which was to ſhine there, ſhine in David's Soul and Underſtanding. And what falſe Doctrine or Engliſh it is, or Perverſion of Scripture, to ſay that Man is then enlightned, let ſober People judge.

Ep. 1. 18. Bez. in nov. fæd. It is thus expreſt in the Greek Copies of the new Teſtament alſo, and the Latin Verſions of them, witneſs the Apoſtle Paul to the Epheſians, πεφωτισμένους τοὺς ὀφθαλμοὺς τῆς καρδίας ὑμῶν &c. Illuminatos Oculos Cordis Veſtri. Beza has it in his Copy and Verſion, πεφωτισμένους τοὺς ὀφθαλμοὺς τῆς διανοίας μου illuminatos Oculos Mentis meæ, The Syriack has it, that the Eyes of your Hearts may be enlightned, The Arabick thus, enlightning the Eyes of your Hearts: The Æthiopick thus, and may enlighten the Eyes of your Hearts; all agreeing in the Word Illuminating or enlightning, only one ſays of the Heart, and the other of the Mind, τῆς διανοίας, from διὰ & νόος νοῦς that is, Mens, or the Mind of Man, which indeed are but ſo many Words to the ſame Purpoſe; certainly then this Word, Enlighten, is not of ſo dangerous Conſequence nor inconſonant to Scripture Language, as this idle and ignorant Perſon would render it.

Heb. 6. 4. The like we find in the Epiſtle to the Hebrews, for it is impoſſible for thoſe being once φωτισθέντας, Illuſtratos, or inſhined: But, ſayes Beza, Illuminati, Enlightned, if they fall away to renew them again, &c. they change in their Caſes and Words, but not Senſe; for to ſhine in the Underſtanding, or lighten the Underſtanding, or enlighten it, are the ſame with me, that love Time better, and my own Reputation, than to loſe both by vain conceited Diſtinctions, that only ſhow the Emptineſs of the Head from whence they come.

Heb. 10. 32. The like we may read in the tenth Chapter of the ſame Epiſtle, but call to Remembrance the former Days, ἐν αἷς φωτισθέντες, in quibus illuminati, in which ye were enlightned, ſays Montanus, quibus poſtquam illuſtrati fuiſſetis, by which ye were ſhined into, ſays Beza, that is, enlightned, ſay I. To which, agree moſt of the Verſions, made Uſe of in this Diſcourſe, whether Oriental, or any other; Alſo Zegerus, Druſius, Grotius and others, are wont to give this Interpretation upon it, both in their Places before mentioned, and elſe where, that φωτίζω imports as much, as to enlighten the Eyes of Men's Underſtandings unto the Knowledge of Chriſt, alſo to indoctrinate or baptize them into the Knowledge of Evangelical Truths.

Crell. in Epiſt. ad Heb. c. 10. verſe. 32. comm. Crellius ſhall conclude the Matter, who in his Comment upon that Place of the Hebrews, ſaith, ' Illuminati: Luce nimirum Evangelicâ, per quam, ut Apoſtolus " loquitur, Vitam & Incorruptibilitatem Chriſtus illuminavit, per quam omnes er- " rores, omnem mentis caliginem & cæcitatem expulit. The Engliſh Conſtruction is, Enlightned, that is to ſay, with the Goſpel Light, by which (as ſaith the Apoſtle) Chriſt brought Life and Immortality to Light, and by which he expelled all Error and all Darkneſs and Blindneſs of Mind. Certainly he was for Illumination, and ſuch too as is infallible, (a Stumbling-block to our Erroneous Adverſary, and his Brawling Aſſociate, T. F.)

By which it evidently appears, that not only the word φωτίζω in the Text controverted, whether as Verb, Adjective, or Participle, ſignifies, and is uſed to expreſs what We underſtand by Illumination or Enlightning, and ſo rendred by Tranſlators and Commentators; but alſo the Holy Pen-men have employed it to that very Purpoſe, in moſt of thoſe Places throughout the New Teſtament, (ſo called) wherein they have treated of Divine Enlightnings, Inſpirings or Illuminations. But after what hath been urged in Defence of our Uſe of the Word, and for which he impertinently reflects upon G. F. What, if I ſhould grant him his two empty Exceptions, (that are like Waſps without Stings) viz. Coming to refer to Light, and that Lighteth and Enlightneth are different Terms. Firſt, As for Coming, it's referring to Light, it would amount to no more than this, that being to give an Account of the Evangelical Teſtament, and Goſpel Adminiſtration, he might tell us, that the breaking forth, Appearance or Coming thereof gave Light to, or illuminated all Men; or, God was now fulfilling his Promiſe by his Son; namely, that he would pour out his Spirit upon all Fleſh, that is, every one ſhould be enlightned with that bleſſed Sun of Righteouſneſs, who then roſe in a more extraordinary Manner than before. Now, this being the beſt Uſe that could be made of referring Coming to Light, and not to Man; What great Matter ſhould We loſe by it. O, ſay theſe Followers of Biddle, and Mungrel Socinians, but We ſhould get by it; for We ſhould thereby be in Hopes of ſhutting Chriſt out of all Pretences to an Eternal Divinity, by reſtraining his Beginning to Chriſt's being born of the Virgin. By being with God, We ſhould have it, that he was bodily taken up into the higheſt Heavens, and there perſonally taught by God, upon ſolemn Conference betwixt them, what He ſhould do on Earth, where He received his Verbal Commiſſion, and deſcended.

And by the Words, being God, that upon his doing what was commanded him, here in the World (for his Faithfulneſs) he was godded; that is, not a God by Nature, but by Office, by Favour, and Acquiſition. O ſtrange Imagination! Be theſe the Men that are not for Meanings, Allegories, and ſtrained Gloſſes, but the Punctual, Literal, Rational Scripturiſts, whoſe Maxim is, Non credimus quia non legimus, We don't believe becauſe we don't read it. If G. F. or any Quaker in England, had undertaken to have impoſed ſuch an Interpretation upon the World, in Favour of his Belief, how inflamed would our Adverſaries have been againſt us? and that this Fancy ſhould be the firſt Corner and Foundation-Stone of their Building, is very unhappy: And I heartily pity ſome of the firſt Inventers of this Notion, (indeed a very Fiction) that being ſo very rational in ſome other Principles, eſpecially againſt Infidels, Jews, Papiſts, and Atheiſts, they ſhould notwithſtanding draw a Cloud over the Brightneſs of their other Labours, by the unjuſtifiable Scandal this one Conceit brings upon them, which I verily believe to be buoy'd up in the Opinions of ſeveral, by the Reputation that may be due to ſome other more ſcriptural and truly rational Doctrines.

Secondly, What if it ſhould, contrary to the Current of almoſt all Verſions, be allowed, that φωτίζει is Lighteth, and not Enlightneth? For my Part, I ſee no other Loſs in it, than that it is not ſo forcibly expreſt; For Man being compoſed of Soul and Body, the Soul is the Interior, the Body is the Exterior Part of Man; ſo that when the Body is lightned by the Sun, or, any other Fire, we may ſay the External Part is lighted about it's Buſineſs or Occaſions; and when the Internal Part, the Soul, is lighted, We may in Reference to the whole Man ſay, He is enlightned or lightned within, becauſe the Soul may properly be ſaid to be Internal or Within, or the moſt hidden and Spiritual Part of Man. Behold then the Redoubtableneſs of this Adverſary, his Will is good, I mean bad, as the Apoſtle ſaith in a more ſerious Caſe, To will Miſchief to us was preſent with the Man, but how to perform he knew not; yet this pedling Controvertiſt will be doing, though as little to Purpoſe as need be: Witneſs one material Part of his Obſervation againſt G. F. if it hath any Matter at all in it, viz. that he changed the Phraſe, and Tenſe or Time. Alas, poor Man! And what then? Ergo, ſaith he, G. F. is a Falſe Prophet, a Lyar, and an Impoſtor: Boldly ſaid; but prove it, who can, or will, for him. But what then will become of the Man that would have the Text controverted thus rendred, Hæc eſt Lux illa vera quæ venientem in mundum illuminat omnem hominem: This were as ingrammatical altogether, but we ſpare him, though we muſt remember him; for we cannot eſteem it Doctrinal Error for a Man to miſs a Tenſe, and would have him and all Men know, that our Religion ſtands not in Grammatical Tenſes, but the Fear of God, and Faith in Chriſt Jeſus, whoſe Blood cleanſeth from all Sin ſuch as walk in his Light. Nor did the Prophets and Apoſtles ſtand upon Tenſes, eſpecially Jeremiah and John, whoſe Hebrew and Greek don't much exceed the Quakers Engliſh. G. F. was not ſent to preach up Propriety of Speech, the World is but too curious and proud in ſuch Human Science and Acquiſition; But like a Faithful Miniſter of God, by his Eternal Spirit and Power to turn People from 1672. Darkneſs to the Light (in which the Ranſomed walk, with Everlaſting Joy upon their Heads) and from the Power and Kingdom of Satan, which ſtand in the Luſt of the Eye, Luſt of the Fleſh, and Pride of Life, unto God, and his Holy Kingdom, which ſtands in Righteouſneſs and Peace, and Joy in the Holy Ghoſt, Rom. 14. 17. And as ſuch it is that G. F. is owned and reſpected with other publick Labourers amongſt us, who ſeek not Honour from Men, as our Adverſary and moſt of the reſt of Men do; but that which is from God and his Wiſdom, which is firſt pure, then John 5. 44. Iſaiah 3. 17. Peaceable, Gentle, and eaſy to be entreated; which is not of this World, but by the Children thereof eſteemed Fooliſhneſs and meer Enthuſiaſm, and that in a Way of Deriſion: and we know that we are of God, and the Generality of the World lies in Wickedneſs, either of Fleſh or Spirit.

Darkneſs

Having, I hope, ſufficiently prov'd, that the Participle ἐρχόμενον, Venientem, or Coming, is to be referred to Men, and not to Light; and that φωτίζει is properly Illuminat, and that Enlighten: Nay, in Caſe they were not ſo, that it would prove little prejudicial to our Senſe (as the Difference hath been already explained) I am now willing to make appear, that the Light, of which we have been ſo treating, is no natural nor created Light; but, a Supernatural and Eternal Light, which done, we ſhall conclude, at leaſt on this Subject, the Controverſy.

John 1. 1,2,3. 1. If Man be enlightned by that Word, which was with God, and was God, and that before the World was; then Man is enlightned by a Supernatural and Eternal Light: but the Scripture in the firſt, ſecond, and third Verſes of John's firſt Chapter, proves Man to be ſo enlightned, and that Light to be ſuch, as before ſaid; therefore Man is illuminated by a Supernatural Eternal Light.

If he object another Senſe of theſe Verſes, than the Words ſimply and nakedly ſeem to import; for Inſtance, that the Beginning, there mentioned, relates not to the World, and viſible elementary Creation, but the inviſible Creation, as I know is their common Refuge. I reply, Verſe 3. 2. If all things were made by him, and without him nothing made that was made; then, either John ſpake Equivocatingly, not meaning what he ſaid; or elſe, plainly and properly, and conſequently all Things (of which the World is the greateſt Part) were made by him; and therefore He muſt needs have been before all created Things.

Verſe 9. 3. If he were that true Light, by Way of Exemption to all others, (as the Socinians are wont to interpret God to be true God, John 17. 3. and there is no Reaſon to the contrary) then was he Light in himſelf; and conſequently, did not illuminate by a receiv'd or borrow'd Light, from another; but ex ſe, out of himſelf, and from himſelf only, and therefore God; as ſaith John in his firſt Epiſtle, This then is the Meſſage which we have heard from him, That God is Light, &c. The firſt Pro- 1 Jo. 1. poſition is Scriptural, and needs no Proof; and the ſecond I prove thus,

Verſe 4. 4. If the Divine Life of this creating Word be that True Light by Way of Excellency and Excluſion of all others, with which he enlightens every Man, coming into this World, then muſt he be Light in Himſelf, and from Himſelf; unleſs he can be Himſelf without that Divine Life which is in Him; which becauſe he cannot, it will follow, that he is ſuch a true Light as hath been aſſerted; and conſequently, muſt be God, inaſmuch as he, who is the Fountain of true Life, is God. Which I farther prove thus,

Verſe 7. 5. If he, who is eminently that true Light, by whom only all Mankind is enlightned, neither is, nor can be that Light, as any Part of Mankind, however immaculate (ſince ſo he would be a light unto himſelf, which is both abſurd and impoſſible) then that Creating Word, which is that Divine Life, which is evidently that true Light, by which all Men are enlightned, neither is nor could be a Mortal Man, however Holy; and properly therefore it was not Chriſt, as Man, but as God, that was and is eminently the Light of Men. Which I farther prove.

If that Light, in which all Men ought indiſpenſibly to believe for Salvation, be the Light, with which Men are enlightned; then are all Men ſavingly and ſupernaturally enlightned: But the Scripture here quoted proves the Light in which all ſhould believe, and which illuminates all, to be the ſame; and conſequently, the Light, wherewith Men are enlightned, is Saving and Supernatural.

7. If that World was made by him, in which he was, and which knew him not; then, becauſe this Elementary World was the World in which he was, and Mankind then in it, thoſe that knew him not, it follows, that this viſible Elementary World, and Mankind in it, were made by him; and if made by him, then neceſſarily he muſt have been before them: aud ſince this Word is that Light, by which Men are enlightned, it followeth, that they are illuminated by a Supernatural and Eternal Light.

8. If to as many as receive him, (the true Light enlightning all) to them he gives Power to become the Sons of God; then the Way to be a Son of God is, to obey the Light, or to receive and obey the Light is the Way to be a Child of God; not born of Blood, nor of the Will of the Fleſh, nor of the Will of Man, but of God; but the Scripture plainly teſtifies that to be the Way: therefore the Light is Saving and Supernatural.

Thus much in ſhort from Scripture: I have a few Arguments to offer from Reaſon.

It is, I think, granted on all Hands, That God has enlightned Mankind with ſome Light or other; the Queſtion then will be this, What Nature this Light is of, Saving or Inſufficient, Natural or Supernatural? I prove it to be Supernatural and Saving thus:

1. If the Light, with which God has enlightned Men, were natural, then could it inform Men only in and about natural Affairs; but we ſee that Men do thereby in Meaſure know and diſcern Things that are Supernatural; therefore this Light is not Natural, but is Supernatural, and conſequently Saving.

2. That it gives Men ſome Knowledge of Divine Things, I ſuppoſe all believe; however, I thus prove it: God gave it for ſome End, or no End; for no End we cannot, we dare not ſuppoſe; if for ſome End, then not in Reference to Natural Things, becauſe they are knowable by the Spirit of Man as ſuch; conſequently it muſt be in and about Things relating to Man's Duty to God and his Neighbour, in which conſiſts the Salvation of his own Soul: If ſo, then I prove it's Sufficiency thus:

3. Whatever God gives to any Man for any End, is ſufficient for that End for which he gives it him: But God has given his Light unto Men, in order to their Duty to Him and their Neighbour, in which conſiſts the Salvation of their Souls; and conſequently that Light is ſufficient to that End.

That what God Gives to any End is ſufficient to compaſs it, I thus prove;

4. God requires all Men ſtrictly to ſerve and obey him, and to work out their Salvation with Fear and Trembling; or elſe, their End ſhall be Deſtruction: But this the Almighty (with Reverence I ſay it) could not juſtly do, unleſs the Light with which he enlightens Men, were ſufficient and ſaving; therefore, unleſs our Adverſary will impeach him of manifeſt Injuſtice, or deny that he thus requires Men to fear him, and work out their own Salvation, he muſt grant, that not only God hath illuminated all Men, but that the Light, wherewith he hath illuminated them to that great End, is Saving and Supernatural.

Object. I know the Objection that is on theſe Occaſions frequently ſtarted, viz. How cometh it then that all Men have not a clearer View of this Light whereof you ſpeak?

But Men muſt have a Care of concluding the Light ever the leſs Divine in it ſelf, becauſe of that dim and imperfect Sight their own Infirmities cauſe them to have of it; perhaps ſome are as incapable to behold the Light as it is, as an Infant to make a true Proſpect by the Natural Day: Others are grievouſly infeſted with Rheums, Bloodſhed, and many other Diſtempers; whilſt not a few either wilfully cloſe their Eyes, are blinded with Motes and Beams, run into obſcure Places, or by their continued Obſtinacy in Wickedneſs, come at laſt wholly to loſe both the Light, and their Capacity of ſeeing it. Such are thoſe on whom the Night comes, in which none can work; and this was impenitent Jeruſalem's Caſe, which is too too frequently and lamentably parallelled in our Days. Men muſt not think to ſee all at once; and becauſe their inquiſitive, impatient and wand'ring Mind is not anſwered by whole Heaps of glittering Diſcoveries; therefore, in a brittle unſubject Nature, fling off all Regard to the Light of God, and vainly think to compaſs Salvation in their own unwarrantable Strivings.

Let Men conſider ſeriouſly their own dark State, how long the Light hath ſhined there uncomprehended; and ſince it has pleaſed the Eternal God to viſit them with ſuch a Miniſtry and Teſtimony as turns them unto that bleſſed and unchangeable Light, diligently adhere to it, and be humbly contented to Practiſe what they know, (for, to that only End and Purpoſe does God cauſe it to ſhine in their Hearts) before they look after other Diſcoveries, from that graſping, ravenous, comprehending Spirit in Man, which would know the End before it practiſeth the Beginning, which is curſed of God, and is for Eternal Judgment; this loſt Adam his Paradiſe, and obſtructs Thouſands from entring into the Way of God at this very Day.

Wherefore bleſſed are they, who knowing their own Weakneſs, wait diligently upon the Lord, for ſuch daily Dawnings of his own ſaving Light, as ſuit their own States, as to their daily Temptation, Preſervation and Increaſe, in the Experimental Knowledge of the Way of God: Such are not wiſe above what's written in their Hearts, by the Finger of God; and ſpeak and declare of God, and his unchangeable Way, according as they have felt and handled; I mean, as he hath revealed himſelf both in Judgment and Mercy, through the In-ſhining Light of his Son.

And this I publiſh to the whole World, That I never knew God truly and heartily, to be of purer Eyes than to behold Iniquity, I was never conſcientiouſly convinced of any Evil, I never was brought into true Repentance, I never experienced real Atonement, I never had right Faith in Chriſt, nor did I ever inwardly come to feel a Cleanſing from any Sin, and a being juſtified by his Blood, by which to know him my Mediator, Saviour and Redeemer, but by the Reproofs of that Light, wherewith Chriſt has enlightned me, and by turning to it, and walking in it with all Godly Fear and Subjection, according to it's Bleſſed Diſcoveries and Requirings. Wherefore I boldly call it, A Sufficient, Saving and Supernatural Light: And according to the Truth of this, ſo let my Soul find Mercy with my God by Jeſus Chriſt.

I ſhall ſum up my Senſe briefly thus:

All Mankind have been Benighted,
All Men have Degenerated;
In that State, all are Ignorant;
In that State, all are Corrupted;
And in that State, all are Damned:
And this Certainly.

God would have all Men be ſaved;
But they can never be Saved,
'Till they be Regenerated:
To be that, they muſt be Waſhed;
To be Waſhed, they muſt Believe;
And to Believe, they muſt Repent;
And to Repent, they muſt ſee why,
And to do this, they muſt have Light:
And all this Certainly.

This Light muſt give true and right Sight;
This Light muſt be ſufficient;
Then this Light is infallible;
Then this Light muſt needs be Saving:
And all this is True.

This, by their own Principle, cannot be deny'd, as well as that it is true in it ſelf.

I conclude, therefore, That all Men of themſelves want Light; that God, ſince he would have all be ſaved, has given all Light; that this Light muſt give a certain Diſcerning; and that ſuch as are guided by it are conſequently certainly led. In ſhort, The Light is both Univerſal, Supernatural, and Infallible.

That

That this is not our Judgment only, I ſhall mention a few of many, that aſſert it to be a SAVING LIGHT.

1. Thus believed Origen. Φῶς δὲ Ἐθνῶν ἐν τῷ Ἡσαΐᾳ ὡς προείπομεν παρατιθέμενοι τό Ἰδοὺ τέθεικά σε εἰς φῶς Ἐθνῶν, τοῦ εἶναί σε εἰς σωτηρίαν ἕως ἐσχάτου τῆς γῆς —— ὁ δὲ σωτὴρ ἐλάμπων τοῖς λογικοῖς, καὶ ἡγεμονικοῖς, ἵνα αὐτῶν ὁ νοῦς τὰ ἴδια ὁρατὰ βλέπῃ, τοῦ νοὸς τοῦ κόσμου ἐστὶ φῶς. He is truly called the Light of Nations, or the Gentiles, by Iſaiah; I have given thee for a Light, to lighten the Gentiles, and for my Salvation to the uttermoſt Parts of the Earth — But truly, our Saviour is the great Light of the intelligible World, enlightning thoſe in the moſt excellent Parts of their Souls, who are capable of Reaſon, that the Mind may diſcern and perceive to it ſelf thoſe Things that are moſt proper and worthy of Men's Purſuit after. Orig. in Joan. c. 1. v. 9.

2. Chryſoſtom poſitively declared his Judgment in the Matter, as we have obſerved before.

3. Eraſmus, upon the ſame Place tells us, "That it's Import, ſo far as concerned "the Nature of the Light, lies here; Illa lux, erat Fons Luminis, unde ipſi quoq; "Johanni ſuum fluxit Lumen: That Light was the Fountain of Light, from whence John himſelf received that Light he had. If ſo, then a ſupernatural and ſaving Light, then God, and conſequently more than a Man; becauſe as ſuch, John was before him, and could not be enlightned by him. Eraſm. in prim. cap. Joan. comm.

4. Beza, though he reſtraineth that Light to a particular Number, which is not the Point in Controverſie, yet he confeſſeth it to be a Saving Light, at leaſt, to as many as God hath deſtinated it: "Quaſi de regenerationis gratiâ hic agitur, "quæ Filiis Dei peculiariter eſt deſtinata. Bez. in nov. fæd.

5. Tollet ſpeaks very notably on this Occaſion: "Sunt vero tres illius lucis "proprietates: antiquitas, veritas, & communitas, quæ cum Johanni non inſint, "rectè concluditur illum lucem illam non eſſe — quæ illuminat omnem hominem "venientem in Mundum; non in Judæos ſolum, ſed et in omnes gentes Lumen "ſuum diffundit — Dicitur autem Lux illa omnem hominem illuminare, ſicut & "Sol, qui ſufficiens lumen expandit, & omnes illuminat & omnibus propoſitus eſt, "ut videant: quod ſi qui non vident, defectus Solis non eſt; ſic Chriſtus in hoc "Mundo, omnibus quidem hominibus, quantum eſt in ſe, & ex efficaciâ Lucis "ſuæ lucet. That is, There be three Properties which are peculiar to the Light; Antiquity, which (ſays he elſewhere) is Eternity; Truth, by Way of Excellency; and Community, in that all Men who are born into the World partake of it, or are enlightned by it. — But that Light, like unto the Sun, is ſaid to enlighten all Men; who ſtreams forth Light ſufficient, that it may give Light to all; and He is ſet before all, that all may ſee. Thus doth Chriſt on his Part, illuminate all Men with His Efficacious Light. Toll. in prim. cap. Joan. com. pag. 39.

6. Maldonatus, to the ſame Purpoſe thus: "Nonnulli hoc de naturali rationis "lumine intellexerunt. Sed minime dubium eſt de ſpirituali lumine intelligendum, "de doctrinâ, de fide, de gratiâ, de vita illâ de quâ dixerat; & vita erat Lux ho"minum, Cypri. lib. 1. & Chriſtus non ſolum in hunc Mundum veniens, ſed & poſt"quam & antequam veniret erat Lux vera quæ illuminabat omnem hominem venientem in hunc Mundum. Which is to ſay, "Some have underſtood this Place "as treating of the Light of Nature or Reaſon; but, ſays he, there is little Doubt, "But it is to be underſtood of a Spiritual Light, of Doctrine, of Faith, of Grace, "and of that Life, concerning which he (viz. John) had ſaid, and that Life was the "Light of Men, as ſays Cyprian, lib. 1. — And not only at Chriſt's coming, but both "before and after he came, He was the True Light, which enlightens every Man "coming into the World. Maldon. in prim. Joan. cap. comm. p. 411, 412.

7. Vatablus has it in the ſame Senſe with Eraſmus, He was the Fountain of Light it ſelf, "Unde etiam Johannes quicquid habebat Lucis. From whence John received what Light he had. Vat. in prim. cap. Joan. comm.

Zegerus, though not on theſe very Words, yet to the Context, In him was Life, &c. ſpeaks thus: "Et Vita erat Lux hominum, & Lux in tenebris lucet; illa in"quit, vita per quam condita ſunt omnia, illa vita quæ eſt Verbum, imo quæ "Deus omnis Vitæ Fons, ipſa ſemper fuit, & eſt Lux omnium hominum, quæ om"nibus impertit naturalis luminis & gratiæ beneficium: & hæc Lux in tenebris "animarum noſtrarum lucet, quas animas obſcurârat Princeps iſte tenebrarum Diabolus. And that Life was the Light of Men, and the Light ſhines in Darkneſs, &c That Life, ſays he, by which all Things were made; that Life which is the Word, yea, Zeg. in prim. cap. Joan com.

1672. yea, which is God, the Fountain of all Life; that very Life ever was, and is the Light of Men, which furniſheth all both with the Advantage of Natural (or Worldly) Light, and the Light of God's Grace: And this Light ſhineth in the Clouds, or dark Places of our Hearts, which the Devil, that Prince of Darkneſs, hath vailed.

Com. in Joan. cap. 1. com. Cameron alſo is not foreign in his Expoſition, but ſeems to conceive the ſame Thing: "Etſi verum eſt omnem humanæ mentis Lucem eſſe ab illo Sole, attamen "intelligendum eſt præcipuè de illa Luce quæ eſt ad ſalutem, & quâ fit ut tenebris "peccati & mortis liberemur. And though it be True, that what Light Man hath, it proceeds from that Sun, yet it is chiefly to be underſtood of that Light which leads to Salvation, and by which we may be freed from the Darkneſs, or Grave of Sin and Death.

Thus much as to the Judgment of theſe Grandees (in the World's Account) as to their concurrent Expoſition of this Place, by which it may be ſeen, that Men famous for acute Learning, have had that Senſe of the Truth of the Letter of the Scripture, which we have been reputed Hereticks, indeed what not, for maintaining as an Article of Chriſtian Faith: It is to be hoped, that People will accept of Truth from them, if their Prejudice will not admit them to embrace it from us; but ſince it is not our own Praiſe we ſeek, but the Glory of Him that made us, and the Salvation of others, We ſhall not be diſpleaſed if they receive the Truth at any Hand, ſo they receive it as it is in JESUS.

Here I would fain break off, but that I feel my ſelf ſomewhat preſt with a few Paſſages which refer to the Light, towards the Concluſion of the Libel, that may not improperly be conſidered under this Head.

Certainly it would be thought very ſtrange, and that I have ſpent my Time as unprofitably as the Emperor that would be all Day a killing of Flies, if at laſt I ſhould make this Man ſpeak the Language of the Light, nay, to be a Defender of it too, againſt whom I have been all this While defending it; but who can help it, if Men will ſelf-contradict, and put Weapons into their Oppoſer's Hands, to diſarm and conquer themſelves?

Tho' in one Page he tauntingly ſays, He is perſwaded that ſome of us have ſuch an Opinion of the Light, our Great Fundamental, that though an Angel from Heaven ſhould Preach any other Doctrine, than that which G. F. hath preached, they could not give Ear to it (which ſaying one would think abuſive enough of the Light) yet he makes amends in the next, where he thus addreſſeth himſelf to us, Or rather that ſo much reproached Light; I appeal to the Light in every one of you, whether he is not guilty himſelf in a much higher Degree of ſuch Things as he condemns in others. Monſtrum horrendum! What Man of tolerable Senſe would thus write his own Reproof, and in leſs than two Pages give himſelf the Lye? But it is Juſt with God that ſuch Men ſhould be ſtrongly infatuated. Is it not ſtrange that he ſhould mock at our deſiring to be informed by the Light at the Bottom of one Page, and make his own Appeal unto it at the Top of the very next? Is it fit to direct us in, and about what he writes, and not concerning the Writings of other Men? Or, Is it a true and approved Light when it concurs with him, and but a weak, deluſive, and what not Light, when it leads us to oppoſe him? But out of his own Mouth let him be judged. I ſhall therefore contract the Benefit I make of his own Appeal into theſe Two Arguments.

1. That unto which he makes an Appeal muſt be capable of giving an infallible Judgment, and ſo A True Judge, or elſe he appeals fooliſhly. But the Light within, is that unto which he makes his Appeal, and we would not think him to do it to a Thing not fit to give to a certain Judgment; therefore the Light is an infallible Judge by his own Appeal.

2. If it be appealed to by him as competent Judge; nay, that by which we ſhould ſatisfie our own Conſciences, touching the Things he lays to G. F's Charge, namely, Impoſtor, &c. and ſince thoſe Things are of the higheſt Nature in Religion, or againſt it, then will it follow, That the Light is to be the Judge of George Fox, and not only of him, but concerning thoſe weighty Points of Religion wherein he is abuſively charged by the Libeller; And if ſo, I would both tell him, That G. F. is pronounced not Guilty by the Verdict of that Light, from which there is no Appeal; and himſelf firſt Guilty of charging him with what he has not proved; and ſecondly, of abuſing, degrading, and contemning the Light; and then, contradictorily to himſelf, of making his Solemn Reference and Appeal to the Light, as the moſt Impartial and Unerring Judge,

Tell me now, what could we have ſaid more in Praiſe of the Light, ſo far as meer Words go? And what could he have ſaid more againſt himſelf? 1672.

He farther adds, That 'tis the Proteſtant Principle, as well as ours; that it is evident by their Diſſent from the Church of Rome, who pretends to be the Infallible Guide in Religion. No, ſays the Proteſtant, Every Man is Judge for himſelf. Farther, That God has for that End, endued every Man with ſuch a Light of Common and Certain Principles, written in every Man's Heart, that if a Prophet ſhould come, and give them a Sign or Wonder, to draw them away from the Obſervation of that Light, and thoſe Principles, they ought not to adhere to that Prophet (ſee Deut. 12. 1, 2, 3.) Moreover, God, they ſay, has promiſed His Holy Spirit to thoſe that humbly implore it, in the Obedience of that Light. Farther, That we have entertained it under New Names; that the Contention between us and our Adverſaries, is about Words; Natural Light, ſay they, quoting that of the Romans, For when the Gentiles, that have not the Law, do by Nature the Things contained in the Law, they having not the Law, are a Law unto themſelves. Divine Light, ſay you, John 1. 9. Is not the Difference betwixt you and others about Names; for whether God hath given it Men by Nature or not, it is of God in reſpect of it's proceeding from Him, and tending to Him. Thus an eminent Preacher, in a great Aſſembly of late upon the Text, “ And ſo far the Quakers are in the Right, That every Man “ hath the Motions of Good and Evil within him; which, in plain Caſes of Good “ and Evil, Right and Wrong, will tell him what he ought to do, and what he ought “ to avoid, by which he ought to be directed; and that his Conſcience will acquit and “ excuſe if he do the one, and accuſe and condemn him if he do the other. Thus far our Adverſary and his Eminent Preacher.

To the firſt I ſhall ſay, that taking it for granted, he is as Orthodox as a Proteſtant, whoſe Cauſe he would ſeem to vindicate, yet he groſly contradicts himſelf, compared with his ſeveral leſſening Expreſſions of the Light: But I hope, now he has told us that both the Proteſtants and himſelf receive and aſſert the Light to be the right Judge and Guide, that both will never more be angry with the poor Quakers for being of that Mind; And that our Adverſary will particularly retract his Manuſcript to G. W. in Defence of the Scriptures being the Judge, Rule, and Guide, or to that Effect.

As for his refuſing us the Reputation of having ſhown them the Way to ſuch Belief, ſaying, It was always theirs; We are contented to ſit down without the Glory of being ſo much as Inſtrumental to ſuch Convictions. In ſhort, If the Light within be a more certain Ground than very Signs and Wonders; Nay, that excellent Gift, with which God has endu'd Man in order to the ſafe Conduct of his Life, as our Adverſary hath plentifully confeſt, then have we obtained our Poſt (viz. that the Light is an Infallible Guide) and need no more contend about what is ſo expreſly yielded to us, and the accord confirmed by the Conceſſions of an Eminent Preacher too, whom I wiſh as Eminent a Practitioner, and not leſs ſound in his Life than Pulpit. But alas! ſuch is our Man's Uncertainty to himſelf as well as others, that it ſeems Impoſſible with him, to write two Pages, and they not quarrel with each other, and both Mutiny againſt their Author; for after his Elogies beſtowed upon the Light, he is once more come to unbeſpeak them, like the Sullen Cow, that ſpills the Milk ſhe gives.

And that which is more to be wondred at, this miſerable Man begins to except againſt the Sufficiency of the Light, from thoſe very Reaſons, for which he ſeems to have aſſerted it in an high rate, thus; And this helps me to ſhew in the third Place, that you extend the Doctrine of the Light in every Man farther than you ought; for it is not to be extended to all Caſes whatever, as if every Man that attends to the Light in him, did certainly know, what is good, what is Evil, Right or Wrong in every Caſe.

I heartily pity the Man, and am really afraid he has overcharged the Strength of his Brain, for with me ſuch manifeſt Contradiction is but a ſmaller Degree of Diſtraction; I would fain have a rational Anſwer from him, if he be yet capable of one. How can the Light be Judge of Good and Evil, and yet not be ſo, and all within the Space of ten Lines? If the Light, as by him acknowledged, be a Judge of Good from Evil, and the contrary, then in all Caſes, where Good and Evil, Right and Wrong make up the Queſtion, the Light cannot be ſecluded as wanting in true Judgment, becauſe Good and Evil are part of the Queſtion, in the granted Propoſition; Deny that the Light is ſufficient in any Caſe of Right or Wrong, and deny all. But to me it ſeems very ſtrange, that the very ſame Light, which was 1672. at t'other Side of the Leaf the great Judge of Doctrinal Truth, and with which God had endu'd Men to their ſingular Benefit, ſhould at laſt be denied the Ability of giving Right Judgment in Matters that ſtrictly belong to Good and Evil. What is this but to ſay, it is a Judge of Good and Evil; But is not a Judge of Good and Evil God's Gift, to guide us, yet in many Things it may err? Well, but what are all theſe Things of Moment into which this Light is unable to wade? O! many Difficulties, even Good Men differ in their Judgments about them, ſo we ſee among the Saints at Rome, to whom Paul wrote, One (ſaith he) believes that he may eat all Things, another who is weak eats Herbs; One Man eſteemeth one Day above another, another eſteemeth every Day alike, Rom. 14. 2, 5. O ſtupendious Folly! This Way of Reaſoning well becomes him; for what is it but to ſay, This Light of which I ſpeak, hath Sufficiency in it to diſcover the Nature of Things of greateſt Concernment, but not theſe minute and trivial Matters, ſhe can judge of Doctrines, but not of Ceremonies, and can try Spirits but not Infirmities, whether they be ſuch or not. But I hope that Men in their Wits, and I write to no other, will never abandon their Reaſon ſo far, as to think thoſe Perſons not being as yet ſo clearly diſentangled from the Jewiſh Ceremonies and needleſs Obſervations of that exterior Worſhip, ſhall be interpreted a defect in the Light about difficult Matters; for neither are ſuch Things difficult, but diſcerned to be ſometimes the needleſs Scruples of Weakneſs, ſometimes the Dotage of Superſtition, many Times Will-Worſhip: nor can any Blame be caſt more upon the Light, or the Light juſtly ſuffer the Imputation of Deficiency, than the External Sun, becauſe ſome People have ſuch ſore Eyes that they cannot ſtrongly behold the Light.

'Tis true, perhaps Abſtinence may be both beſt, and often enjoyned ſome Perſons, either by Way of Teſtimony againſt Exceſs in others, or having been too apt to give themſelves an undue Liberty, and on all, that they may eat and drink in fear, as ſaith the Apoſtle; I keep under my Body, and bring it into Subjection, leſt having preacht to others, I my ſelf ſhould become a Caſt-away. But what then? Muſt the Light be no whit concerned therein becauſe of the great Difficulty in the Point? By no Means, the Light dictates and requires theſe Things in their Times and Seaſons; for whatever our Adverſary does, no ſober Man can believe that the Light is ſufficient to the moſt weighty Things that concern Man's Salvation, and yet unable to judge of thoſe Differences mentioned by the Apoſtle, which were ſuch Weakneſſes as needed Chriſtian Charity to bear with them.

Nay, it was by the Light that their Weakneſs was ſeen, neither could it have been born, or they ever have grown ſtronger than to Place Diſſents in thoſe trivial Things, but by walking up to the Light, which was alone able to give them Right Diſcerning in the Caſe. I conclude therefore that in the Inſtance made by our Adverſary, there could be no Difficulty too great for the Light, nay that the Inſtance is ſo trivial in Compariſon of the excellent Knowledge, and Judgment, which are received by the Light, that it makes but the more for us to the Diſparagement of him that hath alledged it.

And thus much (though a Knock to himſelf, even whilſt he thinks us under his blow) when he ſays, And where is the Infallibility you ſpeak of in particular Perſons, in all Caſes? I am perſwaded if you conſider this well, you will perceive that the Light in every Man (eſpecially in thoſe whoſe Judgments have been prepoſſeſs'd into falſe Notions, as many of you have been before you were Quakers) doth not teach him all Things whatſoever, but all Things that are neceſſary for him to know in order to an Holy Truſt in God, and ſincere Obedience in the general Courſe of his Life. Well! before I would undertake Controverſies, and thus give away my Cauſe, nay ſo wofully, yea, frequently contradict my ſelf, I would never write while I live. But to make my Advantage of this too;

Infallibility of Perſons, any farther than as they are joyned, and conformed to the Light of God, we never affirmed; and Fallibility of the Light, becauſe of the Fallibility of Perſons, We never owned, and now deny as a moſt Ridiculous and Falſe Conſequence.

He tells us of Contrary Judgments in our Aſſemblies of Buſineſs, and from thence queries, Where is the Infallibility of Perſons? What then, in Caſe that were true, as we diſclaim it? Why I am perſwaded the Light in every Man doth not teach him all Things. This New Way of Demonſtration I am a Stranger to; What is it but to ſay? You ſometimes differ, therefore the Light is fallible; or thus, Every Man that ſins is enlightned, therefore the Light in every Man ſins; If this be Abſurd and Wicked, let our Adverſary purge himſelf if he can.

Well, but Infallibility in all Caſes doth ſuppoſe, that though not in all, yet in many, at leaſt in ſome Caſes, Man may be infallible; If ſo, I aſk, in what? Surely in thoſe wherein they walk conformably to the Light: If ſo, then what's the Conſequence but this; When Men live up in all Things to the Light, they are Infallible, but when they go from it, they are not. Surely then the Man has but hitherto beat the Air.

And why may We not make the moſt of what he ſays for us, and infer, If that before We were Quakers, and come to live under the Holy Conduct of this Light, we were poſſeſs'd with falſe Notions, he means (or at leaſt the Expreſſion will bear it) that ſince we were Quakers we came to be poſſeſs'd with true ones. Well, but the extent of the Light is not to all Things, yet, (ſays he) what is it to, ſay I? Why only to all that is neceſſary for him to know, in order to an Holy Truſt in God, and ſincere Obedience in the general Courſe of his Life. Very well, I would now fain underſtand the Difference, of knowing all, or Right or Wrong, in all Caſes wherein a Man is concerned; and knowing all Things neceſſary for him to know, unleſs he will confeſs, when he ſaid the Light was not ſufficient to determine the Right and Wrong of all Caſes, that he meant of Caſes that did not concern Men to know; and then we will with him conclude ſo too. But if the Light be ſufficient to diſcover unto Man all that is fit for him to know, in reference to God, and his own Soul, and yet in ſome Caſe it cannot determine the Right from the Wrong, in which Man's Good is concerned, it is manifeſt to all the World, that this will be the direct Conſequence, the Light is not ſufficient to give Men the Knowledge of all that is fit for them to know, but the Light is ſufficient to diſcover unto them all that which is neceſſary for them to know.

But he is wonderful Jealous that We neglect the Means the Light doth dictate unto us the great need and uſe of; namely, the Scriptures, and other diligent Study, and here he falls down right upon us: Muſt God be bound with his Divine Light and Inſpiration to ſupply the Defects of our Idleneſs and Pride? for when other Men count it great Mercy in God, that he is pleaſed through the vileſt Means that may be, and through their earneſt Study and Diligence, to grant them the Knowledge of his Will, enlightening their Mind by his Holy Spirit; You muſt have it like the Angels that always behold his Face by immediate Revelation, and without Labour and Induſtry.

Methinks he is both Angry, Uncivil, and Irreverent. Angry, that others ſhould enjoy through their unfeigned Repentance, and humble conſtant walking with that Holy Light, which convinced them, through daily Diſcoveries from the Lord, of their Duty towards him, and all Men, with renewed Refreſhment and Conſolation, which he by all his poring, beating of his Brains, and daily ſtriving can never obtain; But the Scriptures are herein fulfilled, the Holy Way the Vulturous Eye did never ſee. Some would have the Kingdom of God by Violence, and many ſtrove to enter, but could not; And that ſame Ravenous Spirit after Knowledge, our Adverſary muſt come to know judged, and caſt out of himſelf, as what rob'd Man of Paradiſe at firſt, and keeps Thouſands out at this Day, and ſee himſelf to be Low, and Empty, and Poor, and Naked, before he be exalted as Full, Rich, and wanting nothing.

Uncivil, that he ſhould fall in that rough and reflecting Manner upon us (who neither knows us to be Idle, or Proud, and leaſt of all in any Thing which concerns him) but if our diligent waiting to receive from God Strength, Knowledge and Comfort (and not running in our Own Wills) be Idleneſs, in that Senſe We evermore deſire to be Idle. It is by the ſame Figure that we are Proud, namely, We rejoyce with Boldneſs in the God of our Salvation, declaring to the World what God hath done for us, not flinching in Times of Tempeſt, neither ſuffering ſuch Creeping Spirits as his to be owned by us, as Men walking in the Light, and ranſomed from this Ungodly World by the precious Blood of the Lamb of God that takes away the Sin thereof.

Irreverent, in that he makes God to convey the Knowledge of himſelf through the vileſt Means, Vile had been more than enough, he might have kept Vileſt to himſelf. I have not read in all the Scriptures of Truth any ſuch Expreſſion; 'Tis true, David in anſwer to thoſe who counted his ſerving of God a Vile Thing, ſaid then, He would be Vile ſtill: but that is no Warrant. And God's Judgment pronounced upon Eli's Houſe, much leſs, becauſe his Sons made themſelves Vile, and he reſtrained them not; therefore have I ſworn to the Houſe of Eli, that the Iniquity ty of Eli*'s Houſe ſhall not be purged with Sacrifice nor Offering for ever.* And the Apoſtle Paul uſeth the ſame Word in the ſame Senſe, For this Cauſe God gave them up to vile Affections, &c. Now for any Man to expect that God by vileſt ways ſhould make himſelf known is an unſcriptural and irreverent Saying: but this may ſhow how dark and vile the Man is in the uſe of ſuch unſuitable and unſavory Expreſſions.

However, He once more hopes to make amends, if his laſt Will and Teſtament may ſtand; I mean his laſt Account of his wavering Belief of the Light, then the Light is what we have ſaid it to be, viz. Supernatural and Saving. Hear him:

So now my Friends, I deny not that there is a Light in every Man, which he is obliged, under Pain of the diſpleaſure of the Almighty, diligently to eye and follow; that ſo doing, it will lead him by Degrees into all neceſſary Truth, and at length to Eternal Life.

A large Confeſſion to the Light, and as large a Contradiction to pag. 38, 40, 41. which becauſe we have already obſerved and improved to the Benefit of our own Belief; let this ſuffice, that at laſt we have obtained what we have ſought for, viz. That the Light is a Saving Light: I ſhall conclude this Subject with this friendly Caution, That they will ever hereafter do exceedingly well to remain conſtant to their own Grants, and not through any diſguſt at the uſe we have made thereof, in re-handling the ſame Controverſie, like Children, firſt give and then take away again.

And now let none be diſpleaſed that I have been ſo particular in handling this Point of the Controverſie, which concerns the Light, ſince I confeſs it to be the moſt eminent Article of our Faith, Chriſt the true Light enlightening every Man that comes into the World with ſaving Light, and therefore deſerves of ſuch as ſo believe, to be defended with all the Circumſpection and Advantage they are capable of; and I am not conſcious to my ſelf of any neglect in the Caſe. For what concerns the remainder, though I eſteem it leſs worthy, yet not wholly unworthy our Notice, and therefore ſhall briefly conſider it, I hope to Satisfaction.

His ſecond Doctrinal Cavil, or that part of our Faith which he ſeems to ſingle out for Combat is, Not Swearing, and that upon Occaſion of G. F's Complaint of the Tranſlators in thoſe Words. G. F. ſaith, 1 Cor. 15. 31. I proteſt by your Rejoycing, &c. now I proteſt is added, for there is nothing for it in the Greek, Καθ ἡμέραν ἀποθνήσκω: To which, that I may paſs by his Reflections upon G. F's Greek, or rather the Overſight of ſome Tranſcribers, to be ſure no Doctrinal Error, and therefore might have eſcaped ſo much inſulting Reproof: He thus anſwereth, My Greek Grammar ſaith, that Μὰ ma and νὴ ne, are Adverbs of Swearing, & Scapula*'s* Lexicon ſaith, νὴ is a Participle of Granting and Affirming, and with an Oath. The Grammar gives for Example, νὴ Δία, ſo it is, by Jupiter; neither may any one excuſe him by ſaying, that ne ſignifies by, and not I proteſt; for νὴ being a Participle that imports Swearing; and by is ſometimes uſed when there is no Swearing, it ſeems to have been neceſſary for the Tranſlators to put in I proteſt, or ſome other Word equivalent: How very trivial this Objection is, and with what Weakneſs and Deceit he manageth it, I hope very evidently to make appear.

'Tis granted to him what his Grammar tells him, that Μὰ & νὴ both are Adverbs of Swearing, or have been frequently uſed among the Greeks in their Oaths; though νὴ had been enough for him to inſtance, unleſs he would have us think him learned in Adverbs, at leaſt, ſuch as concern Right Swearing; alſo Scapula intimates as much; but what then? Becauſe by is often uſed to expreſs an Oath, muſt it neceſſarily follow, that whereever by is uſed it is to import an Oath, or Swearing is implyed? And herein he dealt unfairly with us; for, though out of his own Words we might well infer as much, viz. that νὴ is a Participle of Granting or Affirming, and with an Oath; yet that is, both beſide and with, not always with an Oath; he ſhould have told what Scapula ſaid a little lower, Νὴ particula eſt, interdum indirectè ponitur, nullâ præcedente interrogatione, pro utique, equidem, profectò: Νὴ, ſays Scapula, is a Particle, and is ſometimes placed indirectly, with never an Interrogation before, for verily, indeed, truly, &c. I will not inſiſt upon the ſuitableneſs of ſuch a Signification in this Place; but ſhall tell the Man, that allowing it to be anciently in the beſt Copies (which Chryſoſtom, if not Theophylact, does more than doubt) yet it can have no other Force or uſe in this Place than to render the Verſe thus (viz.) Upon the Account of your Joy, or for the Sake of your Encreaſe in Chriſt, which is the Ground of our Joy, I dye daily, or rather, I am daily ready to be offered up: And indeed unleſs Men by Zeal or Prejudice have vailed their own Underſtandings, the Place it ſelf, and context plainly intimates ſo much. For firſt, it is abſurd to ſuppoſe, that the Apoſtle ſhould Swear by what is not a real Ens or Exiſtence; and ſhould we grant, that all Swearing was not by Chriſt prohibited, (as we never can) yet our Adverſaries conclude, That all Swearing by any other Thing than God Himſelf is prohibited: now the Corinthians rejoycing was not Almighty God, by whom alone they ſay Men ſhould ſwear. Beſides, let the Context be weighed, and it has reference to the Glorious Kingdom, which all Men, who are Partakers of the firſt Reſurrection, come to inherit; of which ſays Paul, If there were any doubt, why are any baptized for the Dead, and why ſtand we in Jeopardy every Moment? But as if he ſhould have ſaid, So far am I from doubting or fearing, that upon the Account of your farther Sufficiency or increaſe (in Chriſt the Ground of Rejoycing) I dye, or am ready to dye daily; that is, I am ready to ſeal it with my Blood: an hearty Encouragement to the Corinthians to go on, and not that they ſhould think there was no Reward for all their Faith and Tribulation. Let this be well weighed with our common Engliſh Verſion, and I perſwade my ſelf, that not only this will ſeem very Conſonant, but the Vulgar very abrupt and incoherent; and however improper the Man is pleaſed to be himſelf, I caution him hereafter of rendring the Apoſtle ſo.

See Orig. in Mat. p. 487.

Now for the Right Senſe of the Greek COPY, with the Confirmation of ſome other Verſions, and Judgment of both Ancient Fathers and Modern Criticks.

Καθ' ἡμέραν ἀποθνήσκω, νὴ τὴν ὑμετέραν καύχησιν, ἣν ἔχω ἐν χριστῷ Ἰησοῦ τῷ Κυρίῳ ἡμῶν.

It is vulgarly rendred thus, Per diem morior, Per veſtram gloriationem quam habeo in Chriſto Jeſu Domino noſtro.

That is,

I dye every Day, through (or upon the Account of) your Joy, which I have in Chriſt Jeſus our Lord.

In the Latin Interpretation of the Arabick Verſion, it is thus render'd.

Et ego quidem ſingulis diebus morior per realitatem Gloriæ veſtræ, quam habeo in Jeſu Chriſto Domino noſtro.

In Engliſh thus.

And I indeed dye every Day, through (or by Means of) the Reality or Truth of your Joy, which I have in Chriſt Jeſus our Lord.

The Æthiopick Verſion thus Latined; wherein I dye daily, is omitted.

Et quare igitur nos laboramus, omni hora & trucidamur? & propter gloriationem noſtram, Fratres noſtri, quæ in Domino noſtro Jeſu Chriſto eſt.

In Engliſh thus.

And wherefore do we labour, and are ſlain every Hour? even (our Brethren) for our Rejoycing, which is in our Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

This laſt ſeems to carry with it ſomething of Difference from the Greek Copy, and other Verſions; yet if the Senſe I have given of the Place be received, the Alteration will be only, the Omiſſion of I dye daily, and our for your Rejoycing? Which is not much to Purpoſe, it being truly the Joy of both: For, Whether your Rejoycing relates to the preceding Queries, or I dye daily, it ſtill remains firm, that all thoſe Jeopardies, Sufferings and Deaths, were on the Account of that Truth, Hope, Rejoycing and Glory mentioned, or implyed in the Text; where let it be obſerved, that ſlain, and dye daily, which ſtrictly would ſignifie a Time paſt, as well as preſent, are to be accepted in this Senſe, That they were daily in Hazard of their Lives through grievous Sufferings; and were freely and daily given up for their Teſtimony unto Death it ſelf.

I forbear to inſtance in many of the preſent uſed Languages, deſigning to be ſhort; and ſhall therefore haſten to give the Senſe of ſome of the Ancient and Modern Writers in the Point.

Jerom, who lived about the Year 383, thus rendreth the Words in Controverſie, Propter veſtram ſalutem; not through your Rejoycing, but for your Salvation; which is yet more emphatical than I have rendered it, though to the ſame Purpoſe.

Jerom. on the Place.

Chryſ. on the Place.

Chryſoſtom obſerves upon this Paſſage to the Corinthians, "Profectum ideo dic "gloriam, ne videretur exprobrare quod tam aſpera paſſus eſſet ob Evangelium, "cum ob hæc non ſolum non doleret, ſed duplici nomine gauderet, & quod ea "paſſus eſſet ob Evangelium Chriſti, & quod ea quæ paſſus erat ceſſerant in pro-"fectum Corinthiorum; That is, Chryſoſtom believes Profit therefore to be called Rejoycing, that he might not ſeem to upbraid for ſo hard Things as he ſuffered for the Goſpel, Who was not only not troubled, but in a double Senſe rejoyced, both that he had ſuffered thoſe Things for the Goſpel of Chriſt; and that thoſe Things which he did ſuffer, turned to the Profit, or Spiritual Benefit of the Corinthians. He therefore accounts, Per veſtram Gloriam mendoſè ſcriptam, not ſo expreſſed in the ancient Copy, but corruptly written.

Amb. on the Place.

Ambroſe alſo took it in that ſame Senſe with Chryſoſtom, not Νὴ, or by; but διὰ, propter, or for the Sake of your Joy.

Theophy. on the Place.

Theophylact is more peremptory and clear in the Matter, that is, Διὰ ὑμετέραν καύχησιν, Propter veſtram Gloriationem; or rather thus, Veſtri profectus gratiâ; for the Cauſe of your profiting, or on the Account of your Increaſe in the Knowledge of the Truth, which adminiſters True Joy.

Zeg. in 1 Cor. c. 15. v. 31. Ann.

Zegerus is of this Mind upon the Place, and takes not a little Pains to confute the other Notion.

Grot. in prim. Epiſt. ad Cor. c. 15. Ann.

Grotius, although he does not altogether ſeem to acquieſce in that which I have already urged, yet is he very remote from the common Tranſlation, and ſo near to it, that it may not be amiſs to offer him: "Quam verè (ſays he, in the Perſon of the Apoſtle) "ego gaudeo de veſtro profectu in Chriſto, ita verum eſt me quotidie "paratum mori. As I truly rejoyce at your profiting in Chriſt, ſo True it is that I am daily ready to dye (for it is wanting, but may be underſtood.) To this of Grotius, a conſiderable, but nameleſs Engliſh Annotator, does agree.

Var. Lect.

And let me farther add, that the various Lections have it by Way of Correction, propter, not per; for, and not by.

And now it may be Time for me to tell our Adverſary in general, and mine in particular, that though I don't bluſh to read his Impertinencies (perhaps I am not ingenious enough, for ſuch he ſays will) he ought at leaſt to be aſhamed of writing them: And I am truly in Pain for him, that he ſhould both afflict himſelf, (for the poor Man has an irkſome Way of telling his Tale, and is fain to Churn long before any Thing comes) and alſo diſturb others with any Thing ſo meanly inviting, and little profiting the People.

To Conclude, If any would in ſhort know the plain and honeſt Reaſon of our refuſing to Swear, (to omit the many Arguments that might be urged (what Gloſſes might be given, or Authorities produced) 'tis this, That as Chriſt Jeſus is the Author of ſo perfect a Religion, that the leaſt Affirmative or Negative, be it but Yea or Nay, is compleatly and unqueſtionably True; ſo it is below His Evangelical Righteouſneſs, and ſuch as are gathered not only to the Belief, but Poſſeſſion of it, to ſo much as admit of an Oath, as being fitter to be enjoyned equivocating Phariſees, than Honeſt-Hearted Diſciples, with whom it is the ſame Thing to Lye as to Forſwear: For, an Oath having been made from the Diſtruſt of Honeſty in Him that was to take it, where the Cauſe is removed (Lyes, Equivocations, Mental Reſerves, &c.) the Effect, or that extraordinary and ſcrupulous Way of Evidence would ceaſe. And if any object the Law of the Land, or the Ignorance of Magiſtrates of our Truth and Innocency, I anſwer, The Law is either anſwered by Truth being ſpoken, or ſatisfied by an Infliction of the ſame Penalty upon the Lyar that is incurred by a Perjured Perſon; we need no Fines, Racks, nor heavy Imprecations, to ſcare us into Truth-ſpeaking, who Believe in, Fear and Worſhip the God of all Truth, and that in Spirit and Truth.

Pag. 31. Mat. 23.

The next abuſe of us, ſo far as concerns our Belief, belongs to reſpecting of Perſons; he calls it, our Great Doctrine, in a Way of Reproach, and often cavilling, not without his wonted Folly, at G. F's Wo unto them that are called of Men Maſter (in which he only ſays what is certainly imply'd in Chriſt's Prohibition (which he ſhould have firſt confuted) he undertakes the Refutation of it thus:

True indeed, ſays Chriſt, Be not ye called Rabbi; for one is your Maſter, even Chriſt, and all ye are Brethren, &c. Now I will take the Liberty to argue a little, becauſe the Text ſeems to be ſo plain on your Side: Firſt, You do reſtrain it from excluding all Men from being called Maſter, whilſt you allow your Servants to call you Maſters, becauſe you are their Maſters (which Exception is not in the Text) why may not another call you Maſters, becauſe you have Servants, and are Maſters?

I anſwer, Firſt then, he has broke his Word with us, which in plainer Engliſh is, he has told us a Lye, in aſſuring us at the Beginning, He would deal with us neither from Scripture nor Reaſon, and yet undertakes both: Certainly he is ill able to maintain Right Swearing, that is wanting in True Speaking, or writing at leaſt. We may well ſuppoſe his Evidence, ſo much boaſted of, has left him now, that he betakes himſelf to Scripture and Reaſon for Defence; but conſidering how little they will prove friendly to his Cauſe, he is no otherwiſe to be complained of for Breach of Word, than that the Will may be accepted for the Deed.

But next, The Text alſo muſt be blam'd; Why? May an honeſt-hearted Man ſay, Becauſe upon our Adverſary's Principles it ſeems to be againſt Men's being call'd Rabbi, and yet is not: Strange Irreverence to Holy Writ. What, make it ſay one Thing in moſt expreſs Terms, as much as, Thou ſhalt not Steal, and yet mean the quite contrary: Who makes it their Rule now, We or our Adverſary? But let's examine his Meaning: and he is ſo abſurd, that I am confident I have heard a better Argument out of Bedlam; however, let us once more repeat it, If you call Men Maſters, that are really your Maſters, why may you not call your very Servants Maſters, if they have Servants? which is as much as to ſay, If you call Men Maſters that are really your Maſters, why ſhould not you call other Men Maſters, tho' they are not really your Maſters? O! but they are other Men's Maſters; Are they? Then let other Men call them ſo: For there is no more Reaſon that we ſhould call other Men Maſters, that are not our Maſters, becauſe they are really ſome bodies Maſters, then that we ſhould call other Men Fathers, and Servants, and other Women Wives, that are not our Fathers, Servants, nor Wives, becauſe they are really Fathers, Servants, and Wives to other Perſons.

We can call Him Maſter, Father, Servant, or Her Wife, who really is ſo to us; but in doing it otherwiſe, we believe we ſhould Err. A Maſter and Father, of Old, I confeſs to have ſignified a Religious as well as Civil Honour (I mean, Sect-Maſters) among the Jews; but ſince both are as well repugnant to common Truth, as the Chriſtian Religion, we renounce the Title; and are the rather ſo to do, becauſe of that great Thirſt, which this Age, as well as that in which our Lord ſo ſeverely reproved it, has after that very Vanity, Deceit and Wickedneſs; and this ſimple honeſt Practice, and Zeal for it, we are not aſham'd to have weighed in the Ballance of God's Sanctuary, againſt all the flattering, cringing Cuſtoms of Perſonal Reſpect, whether by Word or Geſture, now practiſed in the World.

Well, But he is of the Mind, that the Scripture is not a little for him, ſince the Apoſtle, both in his Epiſtle to the Epheſians, and in that to the Coloſſians, exhorts Fathers not to provoke their Children, and Maſters to give what was equal to their Servants: In which the poor Man is as much beſide himſelf, at leaſt the Matter, as in all the reſt; for, he might as well argue againſt what he takes for granted, viz. That we refuſe not to call ſuch Maſters, as really are our Maſters; as to ſuppoſe we deny, that an Apoſtle or Miniſter of Chriſt might exhort the Fathers of Children to be tender to them, and Maſters of Servants to be juſt to them. Certainly none can be ſo ſtupid as to imagine, that the Apoſtle called them Fathers and Maſters in a Way of Title, or upon ſingular Reſpect: We may as well ſuppoſe, that becauſe he doth reciprocally exhort Children and Servants, that therefore he ſtiled them ſo in a ſingular Reſpect. Either let our Adverſary deny that particular Homage and Reſpect intended by the vulgar Titles of Maſter, Lord, &c. or elſe prove, That the Apoſtle had the ſame Intention with theſe of our Times, in their Titles of Reſpect to one another, when He wrote to Fathers, Children, Maſters, and Servants.

But let it ſuffice, that he was laying down a general Rule for both, as in Reference to ſuch Relations, without having any particular Perſons or Titles in his Eye; and unleſs he had known and mentioned all the Names of thoſe that then were, and hereafter ſhould be Fathers and Children, Maſters and Servants, he could not otherwiſe have expreſſed his Mind.

But why ſhould I farther contend with ſo much Weakneſs! yet he ſeems to have a little Greek for his Ignorance; let's hear what it ſays, Κύριος, Διδάσκαλος, Ραββι, Επιστάτης, Καθηγητὴς, Δεσπότης, are all rendred Maſter: But that which is uſed by Chriſt in this Text, Mat. 23. 10. is, Καθηγητὴς, Katheegeetees, which ſignifies (as the Learned tell us) a Leader of the Way, or Guide; but as for the Word Κύριος, Kyrios, which the Apoſtle Paul uſeth to the Epheſians and Coloſſians, and is tranſlated ſometimes Maſter, and ſometimes Sir, moſt often Lord; we find that the Apoſtles, both ſingu-

1672. Page 31. ſingularly and plurally ſuffered themſelves to be called by it, as the Greeks called Philip, Sir, we would ſee Jeſus, John 12. 21. and the Jaylor came Trembling, and fell down before Paul and Silas, and ſaid, Sirs, or Maſters, what muſt I do to be ſaved? I Anſwer,

This makes nothing for the Buſineſs, though it makes Buſineſs; for none queſtions the Uſe of ſeveral Words upon ſeveral Occaſions in Scripture, as the Apoſtle to the Epheſians and Coloſſians doth, Father, Maſter, &c. which I have already explained, and proved nothing to the Matter in Hand. Κύριος may ſignify a Lord or Maſter thus, becauſe it properly imports Authority, or One having Power, a Governour, or the like; But this makes for us; ſuch as are our Governours we do diſtinguiſh by Titles that plainly expreſs their Authority, though not with all thoſe gaudy Flatteries, that Men in Deceitfulneſs invent, and uſe to gratify the Proud Part in any Man. But what is this to calling Men Maſter; ſince we deny not the Uſe of Maſter, Father, Son, Servant, &c. where they are ſignificantly, and not improperly and Sycophantly uſed? And for the Greeks, that deſired to ſee Jeſus; and the Jaylor, that tremblingly cry'd out, Sirs, What ſhall I do to be ſaved? They are no Inſtances of Advantage to him; unleſs we ſhould be ſo very ridiculous as to think, that becauſe any Man cuſtomarily calls me Maſter, therefore I muſt call him or other Men Maſter, And that I thought it well done in him to call me ſo; or, becauſe any Man commits an Evil, and our Adverſary does not immediately reprove him, therefore it is no Evil in it ſelf, and he commits the like: So, What if Philip, Paul and Silas were called Sirs, (not either to Tempt, Jeer, or Flatter them, but in a cuſtomary Manner, in which many ſcarce think what they ſay) muſt it follow, that the Practice was not after the Proud Faſhions of the Gentile Nations; or that they were guilty of the ſame Practice, becauſe they did not juſt then reprove it, when the poor Greeks look'd for a Saviour; and God's heavy Judgments had taken hold on the Jaylor, cauſing him to poſſeſs the Sins of his Youth, which made him a Quaker indeed (for he came fearing and trembling unto them) No, no, the Matter was then of greater Moment, the Salvation of Souls: had they talked to them of the Title Maſter, or Maſters, that would have been no Anſwer to their weighty Queſtion, nor any Allay to that earneſt Enquiry and deep Agony the Queriers were under, Shew us the Saviour; O! what muſt I do to be ſaved? So that how Reproveable ſoever that had been in it ſelf, or at another Time, yet it did not ſeem then to the Holy Ghoſt to be the Time; the Matter in Hand was how to bring them to the Light and Knowledge of that Jeſus which was given for a Saviour; and when they had found him, and he had diſcipled them, to call no man Maſter, nor to look for it, becauſe One was their Maſter, would all naturally follow, as relative to that Evangelical Religion?

p. 33. John 20. 13, 14, 15, 16. Well, but ſays he, Mary Magdalen called Jeſus Sir, (ſuppoſing he had been the Gard'ner) and you will not ſay that Jeſus ſuffered her to Sin in his Preſence without reproving her (which I abhor to think.) Yet this won't ſerve his Turn; for firſt, that Sir was not of that Force and Emphaſis, which Maſter was (the Title moſtly inſiſted on) the next Verſe tells us, where Jeſus ſaid unto her Mary, and ſhe turned her ſelf, and ſaid unto him Rabboni, which is to ſay Maſter, as if ſhe had firſt recalled her ſelf, and then ſtyled him by a more reverent Title than ſhe gave him as the ſuppoſed Gard'ner. Next, We know that 'till the pouring out of the Holy Spirit (which was to bring all Things to their Remembrance, that Jeſus had at Times ſaid unto them, and to lead them into all Truth) the Diſciples, among whom ſhe was not the leaſt, were in the Practice of more Cuſtoms than that, which after they grew up in a more mature Knowledge of Chriſt and his inviſible Kingdom, they declined and finally rejected. Nor doth it follow that ſhe therefore did well, becauſe ſhe was not reproved of Jeſus (where the Streſs ſeems to lie) or did that which in the true State of Chriſtianity was ſo much as allowable: for Chriſt never particularly check'd Peter for denying him, that we read of, and I ſuppoſe all grant Peter did amiſs; yet by our Adverſary's inconſequent Way of arguing, he either would make Peter not to have done ill in denying the Lord, or Jeſus ſo, in not reproving for doing it, which let me tell him, we alſo abhor to think.

But now he doubtleſs pleas'd himſelf with the Conceit of having irrecoverably caught us in that Paſſage of Stephen's, where he ſaith, That He, a Man full of Faith and Power, ſaid to the Council of the Jews, Men, Brethren and Fathers, They were not his Fathers, but they were Fathers. In which his Good-will is ſeen, but how to effect what he would have, is as difficult as before; for the Jews being a People

People peculiarly ſeparated from all other Nations in Compariſon of others, might not unfitly be called a great Family, as being lineally deſcended of Twelve Brethren, ſo that it was frequent among them, inſtead of Anceſtors, to ſay, our Fathers did ſo and ſo; And this Way of Speech Chriſt himſelf uſed, when he ſaid, Your Fathers eat Manna in the Wilderneſs; wherefore what Stephen ſaid, might be both allowable and true. They were Men, that is not diſputed; They were Brethren, as being of the ſame Blood, and Fathers, as Elders of the Tribes under that particular Conſtitution. Beſides, both his own and (if Married) his Wife's Fathers and Grandfathers might be then living, and either of the Council; or concurring with it.

In ſhort, We therefore refuſe the Style of Maſter, and are very Cautious of being in the leaſt laviſh in Titles of Worldly Honour, becauſe We with Lamentation behold, through the Illumination of God's bleſſed Light, the Spoil, Cruelty and manifold Evils that Proud, Flattering, Honour-ſeeking and Honour-giving Spirit has made amongſt the Sons of Men, which to compaſs unjuſt Dominion, hath ſacrificed the Blood, Wealth, and Peace of Nations to it's ambitious Aims, and eſteem'd it no ſmall Acceſſion to the Magnificence of her Exploits, that almoſt in all Ages ſhe hath led the Rights, Properties, and Perſons too, of Millions as Captives in Triumph after her, and through the Gulph of Rapine and Blood lanch'd into the vaſt Ocean of unlimited Power, What Impiety is there in the World that may not in ſome Senſe be reſolv'd into that of Pride or Covetouſneſs after Honour, as it's proper Center; Men's over-value of themſelves, and their Diſpleaſure againſt ſuch as have not the like Thoughts of them, beget Revenge, which taking it's Opportunity, breaks forth into Blood and Murder: O! let Men learn to dread the Living God, and fear all their Days before him, and that will ſweep the Mind of theſe vain Thoughts, and bring it from ſuch exalted Conceits, and it's inſatiable Thirſt after Honour, and will eſtabliſh it in the Humility and Lovely Plainneſs of a Meek and Quiet Spirit, which is of great Price in the Sight of the Almighty God; which becauſe the World is not adorn'd with, but doth both ſeek and give worldly Honour, and Perſonal Reſpect, whilſt perhaps ſuch entertain deadly Hatred againſt each other, and reſolve one another's Ruin for outward Ends, we are conſtrained by the Meek and Lowly Spirit of Chriſt Jeſus our Lord to teſtify againſt the World's Vain Honours, and to hold forth an Example to them, what they muſt all expect to come to, before they can receive that Honour which is from God. And this is that honeſt Reaſon, why We of this Age, do with Elihu ſay, We know not (how) to give flattering Titles, for in ſo doing, our Maker would ſoon take us away. Thus much in Anſwer to his Cavils, whoſe Emptineſs might have been enough to ſound out their own indeſert of any: but for the Sake of the Honeſt-Hearted I have ſaid ſomething, enough for the Place and Occaſion; If any deſire farther Satisfaction, they may pleaſe to peruſe a Book entituled, No Croſs, No Crown, and the Serious Apology for the Principles and Practices of the People call'd Quakers, Page 139, 140, 141, 142. which with ſeveral others, ſufficiently vindicate both our Principle and Practice in this particular, as alſo others of the ſame Nature and Tendency.

His fourth Fling at us is about Women's Speaking in the Church, in which Point he would ſeem to Triumph not a little over G. F. Let your Women keep Silence in the Churches, for it is not permitted unto them to ſpeak; but they are commanded to be under Obedience, as alſo ſaith the Law. And if they will learn any Thing, let them aſk their Huſbands at Home; for it is a Shame for Women to ſpeak in the Church, 1 Cor. 14. 34, 35. Here if the Apoſtle (ſays he) doth not command Silence to Women by Sex, in thoſe Caſes, wherein he allows Men by Sex to ſpeak, I underſtand nothing that is written; But G. F. Page 380, ſays, —— 'Now the Woman 'here hath an Huſband to aſk, and not uſurp Authority over the Man; but Chriſt 'in the Male, as in the Female, who redeems from under the Law, and makes 'free from the Law, that Man may ſpeak, &c. Now if we may take Liberty to expound the Scripture thus, it will be a Noſe of Wax, that may be turned which Way we pleaſe: Beſides, it ſeems to be built upon a Miſ-reading of Huſband for Huſbands, becauſe Chriſt, who is but One, is made the Huſbands that muſt be aſked at Home. So one of your Authors ſaith, "But what Huſbands have Widows to "learn of but Chriſt? And was not Chriſt the Huſband of Philip's Four Daugh-"ters? And may not they that learn of their Huſbands ſpeak then? P. 30.

But before I go any farther it may be obſerved, how very ſlight his Return is to G. F's Senſe of the Place; and eſpecially, that though he quotes another 1672. Friend's Query on the Matter, he never offers to give it any Anſwer, and I am really perſwaded, he was confounded by it.

Friend's

However, Why is it ſo abuſive of the Scripture, to ſay that which the Scripture ſaith it ſelf? Are not the Spirits of Believers properly the Lamb's Bride, as being the True Church, to which he is a Bridegroom, and of which he is the Head? Methinks he muſt never have read, or at leaſt have forgot what he read in the Scriptures of Truth, who denies this: If ſo then, Why is it improper or abuſive as he calls it, to ſay, that when Men's Spirits of themſelves, eſpecially in the unlearned State, ſpeak, it is that Woman, which is forbidden to ſpeak of her ſelf, ſince the Context ſaith, that though they may all ſpeak one by one, yet it is if any thing be revealed to them, which becauſe that cannot be without Chriſt reveal it, whom the Father hath ordained to be his Eternal Word, by which to declare to Man the inviſible Things of his Kingdom; it follows, that it is Chriſt the Bridegroom and Husband of his People, who by his Power ſpeaks through his People, to the Edification of his Body? And as the Woman is the Weaker Veſſel, ſo is Man in Compariſon of Chriſt; and therefore may not unfitly be accounted a Woman, from his comparative Imbecillity: So that as Chriſt Preſides or Governs in the Aſſemblies of his People, it may be rather ſaid, the Man, that is, the Bridegroom and Husband of his People ſpeaks in them, and by them, than they themſelves, who without him, are but as the Strength of a Woman, and it being her Place to yield to the Sovereignty of her Lord and Husband, to whom is ordained the Rule, ſhe ought to receive the Law from his Mouth, who is the Everlaſting High-Prieſt, and Prophet of his People.

But now, Suppoſe I ſhould yield it to him that the Apoſtle chiefly intended the Words in a literal Senſe, and not ſo myſtically, as we have already diſcours'd, will it therefore be untrue myſtically? By no Means; it is frequent to find both a myſtical and literal Senſe in the ſame Paſſage, as when the Evangeliſt alludes to Iſaiah's Prophecy, Chap. 5. 3. proving it to be fulfilled by Chriſt's bodily Cures; which is true in that Senſe, yet hath one more inward and myſtical. But to be ſhort, I utterly deny from the literal Text, that Women are prohibited to preach, ſingly as Women, or of that Sex, and for no other Reaſon, and conſequently that ſome Women may preach, I prove thus: Mat. 8. 17.

If the Apoſtle had Companions and Fellow-Labourers in the Goſpel that were Women, then we ought to believe, that all Women, as Women only, were not by him denied to ſpeak in the Church: But the Apoſtles had Female Fellow-Labourers in the Goſpel; therefore not all Women, but ſome Women only, are excluded. That he had ſuch Companions, he himſelf is Witneſs; I commend unto you, (Romans) Phebe, our Siſter, which is a Servant of the Church which is at Cenchrea. Greet Priſcilla and Aquila, my Helpers in Chriſt Jeſus. Again, Salute Tryphena and Tryphoſa, who labour in the Lord: Salute the Beloved Perſis, which labour'd much in the Lord: who were all Women, Aquila excepted. Rom. 16. 1. 3.

Next, If the Prophecy of Joel refer to the Times of the Goſpel, in which God promiſed, To pour out of his Spirit on all Fleſh; and your Sons and your Daughters ſhall Prophecy, &c. as is remembred, and ſo applied by Peter, when the Holy Ghoſt was poured forth at Jeruſalem; then Women were not exempted, as Women, from the Gift of the Holy Ghoſt, and Prophecy thereby: But it was never yet queſtion'd by any that I know; and therefore Women, as Women, are ſo far from being excluded, that they are to partake of the Promiſe as well as Men. Joel 2. 21.

Again, If Anna preached to the People in the Temple at Jeruſalem, the Glorious Day of Iſrael*'s Redemption*; as may be read in Luke: and if Philip*'s four Daughters were Propheteſſes:* and if Priſcilla expounded to Apollos, as well as her Husband, the Way of God more perfectly, even at that Time, when he was a Preacher among the People, as may be read at large in the Acts; then, ſay I, with good Reaſon, Women, as Women, are not denied by the Apoſtle to teach and inſtruct in the Ways of God. But the Scripture evidently proveth, That ſuch Women there have been; and conſequently, Women, as Women, are not prohibited.

And methinks the Place, urged by him, againſt it, clearly intimates as much; For, the Apoſtle is not treating in that Chapter, who, or what Sex ſhall propheſie, and what not; but of that Order and Decency, which ſuch as propheſie ought to obſerve: For when he ſaid, You may all propheſie one by one, if it had been aſked, Who, Men or Women? Doubtleſs he would have anſwered, All, or every one, provided any Thing be revealed to you: So that then this Prohibition of the Apoſtle, extends only to their Diſorder in the Church, occaſioned by their Ignorance, which put them upon the propoſing of their Doubts, and Scruples unſeaſonably; that is, ſuch of them as were unlearned, and not an Anna, a Priſcilla, a Tryphena, a Tryphoſa, or a Beloved Perſis, who preached Iſrael's Redemption, and expounded the Way of the Lord, and were Fellow-Labourers in the Work and Goſpel of Chriſt; So then the Words are to be read thus, I permit not an unlearned, or Ignorant Woman, to ſpeak in the Church; and if ſhe will learn any Thing, let it be at Home of her Huſband; for 'tis a Shame, that ſuch a Perſon ſhould be ſuffered to trouble the Church with her unſeaſonable and unlearned Queſtions.

And to this Senſe, Grotius himſelf does more than incline, as may be read in his Annotations upon this very Place; ſays he, Intelligendum verò cum Exceptione afflatus Prophetici, ut diximus ſupra: It is always to be underſtood with an Exception to Prophetick Motions or Inſpirations, as we ſaid before, which implies a plain Contradiction to the Opinion of our Adverſary, who vainly ſuppoſeth, That Women, as Women, are exempted. Again he tells us, That ſuch Women are the Subjects of the Apoſtle's Diſcourſe, who being Ignorant, and not well underſtanding what may have been ſpoken by the Teacher in the Congregation; were not to interrupt the Speakers: Ne interrumpant Loquentes, ſed Mares Domus ſuæ interrogent, qui aut reſpondebunt ex ſe, aut conſulent Peritiores: But aſk their Huſbands at Home, who will either anſwer themſelves, or conſult thoſe who may be more experienced.

Thus much on this particular, and I believe enough to reconcile all ſober Minds to the ſerious Exhortations and Reproofs, as well of good and holy Women as Men; who are alſo Witneſſes of his Reſurrection, who was dead, but is alive; and lives for ever.

Scriptures Socinianiz'd.

I Shall not attend his Sophiſtication of ſeveral Scriptures, in which his Diſpleaſure againſt G. F. comes not from his ardent Love to any common Principles, which he has hitherto ſeem'd to militate for; but his great Regard to Socinianiſm, both againſt G. F. and them.

Page 9. Col. 3. 10. The firſt is, his Exception to G. F's Citation of that Scripture, And have put on the New Man, which is renewed in Knowledge after the Image of him that created him; where G. F. puts Them for Him, making the Saints the antecedent to Them, whereas the New-Man is the antecedent to Him, and ſhows, that the New Man is created, which G. F. is not willing to allow; for he corrects his Adverſary for ſaying, The Light is a Creature, which is to ſay, Chriſt, who is called the Light, is here called, a New Man, and ſuch a one as is created; and conſequently is not God, but a Creature: A Doctrine that well becomes our Adverſary.

Col. 3. 8. 9. To which I anſwer, That the New Man, who is there ſaid to be created, is put in Oppoſition to the old Man, mention'd in the Verſe before, who is thus deſcribed by the Apoſtle, But now you alſo put off all theſe, Anger, Wrath, Malice, Blaſphemy, filthy Communication out of your Mouth: Lye not one to another, ſeeing that ye have put off the old Man. Which ſhews, he meant by the Old Man, thoſe Habits and Cuſtoms of Evil (which were almoſt become natural) that they were before addicted to; and conſequently, that the New Man was the inward Regeneration, or New Creation of the Soul, Mind and Spirit, with the Inclinations and Affections thereof; ſo that the Image of the New Man, may be created or begotten in Believers, and on that Account be call'd the New Man; but not that Chriſt Jeſus is the created New Man: For, it is he, by their own Principle, That creates all Things in the Heavenly World of the Goſpel, who having all Power, begets his People into a new State, renewing them in all Divine Knowledge after the Image (or that they may be the Likeneſs) of him that created him; that is, that Image: For nothing can be renewed that was not loſt; but Chriſt was never loſt (to ſpeak properly) in our Adverſary's Senſe, as well as ours; but the Image of Chriſt has been loſt, almoſt from the Foundation of the World; Therefore it is not Chriſt, but his Image, that is renewed, and anew created; So that if G. F. did put Them for Him, it is not falſe; for to create them anew in his Image, or a new Image in them, is all one; and the Words will bear it, that Chriſt creates new Men after his own Image; in which Senſe, the Image of Chriſt is by him renewed and created in right Believers, and they made new Creatures by bearing his Image. Read John 1. 16.

John 2. 17. 5.

His next Perverſion of Scripture is that in John, which he ſaith, G. F. often uſeth, and always abuſeth, as he remembers: I doubt his Memory much; but let's hear it, And now, O Father, glorifie thou me with thine own ſelf, with the Glory which I had with thee before the World was. Thus the Scripture, but G. F. thus, Chriſt, who was glorified before the World began. On which read his Comment. You will ſay perhaps, his Words and Chriſt's are the ſame in Senſe; but doth God give G. F. his Infallible Spirit to correct his Son Chriſt's Words. Sottiſh Ignorance, and Enmity with a Witneſs! What, is every Variation of a Word or Syllable, a Wrong done to the Meaning of the Scripture? And did ever Chriſt, his Apoſtles or any ſober Man living, chide or reprove a Perſon, if through Defect of Memory, or for Brevity, or in a Way of Paraphraſe he did leave out, or put in, or change a Word, not in the leaſt perverting the Senſe? So uncharitable a Perſon I know not ever to have heard of, fitter to be ſeverely reproved, than anſwered: And to whom Silence had been the beſt Confutation, had it not been more for the Sake of others than his: To dare to conclude a Man a Lyar, Impoſtor, Falſe Prophet, and I know not what more, becauſe he expreſſes the ſame Matter with a ſmall Variation in the Words: But I ſhall ſay more of this elſe-where.

He proceeds, ‘Nay doth not G. F. take his Phraſe in a divers Senſe, from what ‘Chriſt intended by his; for (ſays he) it is manifeſt that Jeſus prayed now to ‘be glorified with the Glory, wherewith he was not then glorified, but God was ‘glorious before the World was, therefore Jeſus intended by the Glory he had ‘with the Father before the World was, the Glory he had given him in Decree ‘before the World was.

The Clinch is fooliſh, and his Conſequence falſe and pernicious. For what if Chriſt was not then glorified, muſt it therefore follow, that he was not in being, much leſs glorified before the World was? Can he be ſo great a Stranger to the Apoſtle's Doctrine, delivered in his Epiſtle to the Philippians, where we find him firſt Equal with God, as being in his very Form or Eſſence; next, making himſelf of no Reputation; then appearing in the Faſhion or Likeneſs of Men, and laſtly, that he humbled himſelf, and became obedient unto Death, even the Death of the Croſs, which ſhews that he was in an exalted and glorified Eſtate, before he humbled himſelf, elſe how was he humbled? And it is a Piece of Sacrilege and Ingratitude, I almoſt tremble to think on, that becauſe he was pleaſed to deſcend in the Likeneſs of Men, in Order to the Salvation of Mankind (in which our Adverſary may alſo have his Share, if he unfeignedly repent) he ſhould unworthily rob him of all Pre-exiſtence in the Form of God, whilſt he himſelf thought it no Robbery to be equal with God; So that though in his humble Eſtate and Faſhion of a Man, He could not properly be ſaid to be glorified, and therefore prayed to be ſo, yet it is no right Conſequence, that therefore he never was before; For that would be to ſay, becauſe an Earthly Prince, may for a certain Time debaſe himſelf, and take upon him the Condition of an Inferior Perſon, for ſome great Benefit, that he thereby deſigns to do his Country, if after having affected it, he deſires to be received again, into that Glory and Splendor he enjoyed before, that therefore he never had any before, only in Decree; if this would be both falſe and abſurd, the other is much more. This is the great Myſtery of the Socinians, indeed the Rock on which they ſplit; they do not diſtinguiſh betwixt the Form of God and Likeneſs of Men, that which came into the World, to do the Will of God, and the Body he took, in which to perform it.

John 7. 39.

Nor does this Scripture at all make for his Opinion; for Jeſus was not yet glorified, ſince it might as well have been ſaid, he has not yet died the Death of the Croſs, neither is riſen and aſcended, which was the Period of that State, unto which he has from the Form of God Humbled Himſelf, even to the being of no Reputation, which he thus expreſſeth himſelf: I have glorified thee on Earth, I have finiſhed the Work thou gaveſt me to do: And in another Place thus, I came forth from the Father, and am come into the World.

John 16. 28.

Again, I leave the World, and go to the Father: Where is the ſame Reaſon that we ſhould believe he was with the Father before he came into the World, as that he did come into the World, and afterwards go to the Father again, elſe, why is it again going to the Father. But now let me aſk him, if he can be ſo brazen'd as to think, that God allows him, not only to correct his Son Chriſt's Words, but the very Subſtance of his Prayer? Was it ſo great a Crime (in his Account) for G. F. to

ſay

1672. ſay * who was glorified before the World began, inſtead of, glorifie thou me with thy own ſelf, with the Glory which I had with thee, before the World was? And is it no Ways reprovable in him, inſtead of the laſt Clauſe, to turn it thus, Glorifie thou me with thy own ſelf, with the Glory which I had with thee, not actually, but in Decree only, before the World began? That ever any Man ſhould undertake to correct others in that, which doth not deſerve it, whilſt the Beam is in his own Eye, and he is himſelf moſt guilty! My Soul bleſſeth God, that our Religion is above theſe ſlight Shiſts, and pitiful ſtarting Holes: I would tell the Man in his own Words of us, though more ſeriouſly, that he, whom G. F. and all of us call Chriſt, by Way of Excellency, was, in the Senſe aforementioned, glorified before the World began: And if what he calls Chriſt, was not, it is to us a Proof, that he was not that True Chriſt, which both appeared to the Fathers of old (for the Rock followed them, and that Rock was Chriſt) and in the Faſhion of a Man in theſe latter Times, humbling himſelf to the Death of the Croſs. Thus much in the clearing of this Place.

3dly He is very angry with G. F. that he makes Chriſt ſpeak theſe Words by the Prophet Amos, Behold I am preſſed under you, as a Cart is preſſed with Sheaves, which ſays he, belongs to the Lord * or Jehovah. Grant it, does it not therefore belong unto Chriſt, who is God over all bleſſed for ever; that ſaid, before Abraham was I am? But he gives us no Reaſon to the contrary; and till he does let this ſuffice, that as Chriſt has been a Lamb ſlain through Sin and Iniquity, ſo alſo has he been preſſed thereby, as a Cart is with Sheaves, and that ſince the Foundation of the World. Page 15.

4thly, He quotes G. F. thus, ‘ The Promiſe is to the Seed; the Seed is Chriſt; ‘ and Chriſt is all: To which he ſays, the Apoſtle has it thus, And when all Things ‘ ſhall be ſubdued unto him, that God (not Chriſt) may be all in all: He could ‘ not have done a greater Injury to the holy Spirit's Words, than to put Chriſt ‘ for God. Page 15.

It will not be hard to clear this Miſtake in our Adverſary, and that to his great Shame; For who will think him fit to manage Controverſies, that is ignorant in the very Letter of the Scripture? It is evident, that he denies Chriſt to be all, and in all; and that G. F's ſo aſſerting him to be, is the Cauſe of his Cavil at him: Now hear what the Apoſtle ſays in the Matter, Col. 3. 11. Where there is neither Greek nor Jew, Circumciſion nor Uncircumciſion, Barbarian Scythian, Bond nor Free; but Chriſt is all and in all: And if Chriſt be all, and in all, and he that is all, and in all, be the true and Living God; then, becauſe Chriſt is all, and in all, Chriſt is the true and living God.

Now, who has done the Injury to the Holy Writ, G. F. or this obſtinate and peeviſh Adverſary to Jeſus Chriſt, the only Lord of Glory?

5thly, His next Socinian Claſh at G. F's. Citation of Scripture, is in the ſame Page with the former, and it is at his Saying God is the Word, inſtead of, the Word was God, adding, That though the Word was made Fleſh, (or was Fleſh) yet no conſiderate Man will ſay, that Fleſh is the Word. A great Deal of do, for Fear Chriſt ſhould be God; but from this notable Diſtinction of his, we are not without a Relief: If the Word was God, and the Word be God, then God muſt needs be the Word; that is, if he that is called God, be the ſame Being with him that is called the Word, as the Word may be called God; for Inſtance, if Chriſt and Jeſus agree equally to one and the ſame Being, what is the Difference betwixt ſaying, Jeſus was Chriſt, or Chriſt was Jeſus? Certainly we may juſtly ſay of him, what he in a Way of Reflection ſays of G. F. Methinks he is more Nice than Wiſe. And for his Inſtance about the Word's being made Fleſh, that is, (ſays he) was Fleſh: I deny his Paraphraſe; for it is neither properly to be read, was made Fleſh, nor was Fleſh; but rather, The Word took Fleſh, and pitcht his Tent or Tabernacle in us: Thus Clarius, and almoſt all agree it to import a more ſpiritual Signification; ſo Eraſmus and Grotius eſpecially; and for the Ancients, they were poſitive, Ireneus, Juſtinus, Tertullianus, Origen, &c. but above the reſt, Tertullian adv. Praxeam; but this is not ſo very material to the Point. However, if the very Word had become very Fleſh, I mean viſible to carnal Eyes, it would not be inconſiderate in Page 15.

* Remember the Prophet Micah, Chap. 15. 2. But thou Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the Thouſands of Judah, yet out of thee ſhall he come forth unto me, that is to be a Ruler in Iſrael; whoſe Goings forth have been from of Old, from Everlaſting.

* Read Mal. 3. 1. & 4. 5. and obſerve that Chriſt is called Lord by Way of Excellency.

1672. any Man to ſay, the Fleſh is or was the Word: And if our Adverſary underſtood himſelf, he would perceive, that there would be only a Tranſpoſition of Words, and no material Alteration: For that which is now Fleſh, or (as the Hebrews have it) Man, is the Word; as that which is God, is alſo the Word. But enough for this, only we may obſerve by the Way, that the Man is not ſo hearty an Enemy to Tranſubſtantiation as he would have us believe, pag. 44. who can think the Word was properly made Fleſh.

6thly, His Objection againſt G. F. for joyning Chriſt with God, ſaying, His Father and He are greater than all, is Irreverent and frivolous; For, who dares deny it? and what abuſe is it to Scripture? Sure I am his ſaying ſo, and that without any Reaſon, ſhews him to be a Man of unreaſonable Confidence.

7thly, He is angry that when G. F. mentions this Paſſage, To whom every Knee muſt bow, and Tongue confeſs to the Glory of God, that he adds not Father. I could not have believed, that any Man, who loves Seriouſneſs, ſhould beſtow his Time ſo idly: Is this the earneſt and deep Study he talkt of, by which he hopes to obtain Divine Knowledge? But, ſays he, Why did he not add the Term Father to God, nor inſert, that Jeſus Chriſt is Lord? But the Truth of this Scripture, that the Father and Son are one, conſiſts not with their Doctrine. I confeſs it is ſomewhat hard to underſtand what he would be at; but let it ſuffice, that he who is called God, is called Lord above an Hundred Times, therefore one; to which Chriſt Himſelf bears Record, I and my Father are one, my Father worketh hitherto, and I work; for, whatſoever Things he doth, thoſe doth the Son. To us a Child is born, to us a Son is given, and the Government ſhall be upon His Shoulders; and his Name ſhall be called Wonderful, Counſellor, the Mighty God, the Everlaſting Father, the Prince of Peace; the ſame Power, Spirit, Light, Life, Wiſdom and Being for ever.

8thly, His next Antichriſtian Cavil is at G. F's making the Holy Spirit as well to proceed from the Son, as from the Father: The Scripture runs thus, ‘But ‘when the Comforter is come, the Spirit of Truth, whom I will ſend unto you ‘from the Father [even] the Spirit of Truth, which proceeds from the Father, ‘He ſhall teſtifie of Me: But, ſays he, according to G. F. thus, Chriſt is in the Fa‘ther and the Father in Him, and He will ſend them the Comforter, that proceeds ‘from the Father and the Son: And for this quotes an Epiſtle writ by G. F. and J. S. and prefixt to G. W's Book of the Divinity of Chriſt. It is paſt my Skill to underſtand the Difference, unleſs it be this, That he makes the Spirit to proceed as well from the Son as from the Father, and ſo it doth if I underſtand Scripture; for the Place it ſelf ſaith it: But when the Comforter is come, whom I will ſend unto you from the Father; which ſhews, that not only God, but Chriſt alſo, ſends forth the Holy Spirit into the Faithful. Alſo, But if I depart, I will ſend Him unto you: He ſhall not ſpeak of Himſelf, but whatſoever He ſhall hear— He ſhall glorifie me and ſhall ſhew it unto you—And when he had ſaid this (Peace be unto you; my Father hath ſent me, even ſo ſend I you) He breathed on them, and ſaid unto them, Receive ye the Holy Ghoſt. In ſhort, If the Holy Spirit be ſent by Chriſt, and received of Chriſt, and is breathed on His by Chriſt, then the Spirit muſt needs proceed or come from Chriſt; and conſequently, what G. F. ſaid is ſound and ſcriptural, and our Adverſary's Clamours are Vain and Envious: For, whilſt he quotes G. F's calling upon Vincent, Danſon, and others, for plain Scripture, and would ſuggeſt, becauſe doth proceed is mentioned inſtead of is ſent, that he himſelf is unſcriptural. He omits to tell the World what it was G. F. made that Demand for, viz. to prove Three Diſtinct and Separate Perſons in the Godhead. Now whether there is the ſame Reaſon for the one as for the other, I leave to all ſober Men to judge, yea, to our Adverſary himſelf, if he dare be juſt.

9thly, His laſt Socinian Objection to G. F's Citation and Application of Scripture, is this, That whereas the Scripture ſays, ‘For this End Chriſt both dyed and roſe, ‘and revived, that He might be Lord both of the Dead and Living: He ſays, That he might be God both of the Dead and Living. Alſo, where the Scripture ſays, Let the Word of Chriſt dwell in you richly: G. F. has it, Let the Word of God dwell richly in you: By all which it is eaſie to obſerve, how averſe he is from allowing Chriſt the leaſt Share in an Eternal Divinity, making it his Buſineſs to abſtract from every Scripture that may in the leaſt Favour ſuch a Thing, and imperiouſly rant it over us in the abuſiveſt Terms, as Impoſtor, Lyar, Falſe Prophet, Forger, void of all Reaſon, with abundance of the like Complexion, the proper Language of Brutiſh Malice, and not a True Diſciple.]

But let us anſwer to his Objection, If Chriſt be God over all, as ſaith the Apoſtle, then why not God both of the Dead and of the Living, as well as Lord both of the Dead and Living; and likewiſe, why not, let the Word of God, as well as let the Word of Chriſt dwell in you richly; for if the Word of Chriſt be the Word of God, and if God be the Lord, and the Lord, God, then why not God in both Places as well as Lord? Firſt, I am well aſſured that God is called Judge of Quick and Dead, and if ſo, then becauſe Chriſt is Lord of Quick and Dead, Chriſt the Lord is God of both Quick and Dead, unleſs there be more Lords of the Living, and the Dead, than the One Almighty God and Lord of Heaven and Earth.

Beſides, methinks this Critick might have conſider'd, that it is not expreſly in the Greek, that he might be Lord, but that he might Reign over the Dead and the Living, ſo ſaith the Arabick; but the Æthiopick has it, That he might judge both the Dead and the Living. In ſhort, Chriſt is called both God, Lord and Judge; and ſince there is but one only True God, Lord and Judge of right Chriſtians, we therefore believe, Chriſt to be that only True God, Lord, and Judge of both Quick and Dead.

And here let me caution the Man of his eager Oppoſition to Chriſt's Divinity, ſince ſuppoſing it ſhould not be true, there can be no Detraction; and if it ſhould prove true, as he may one Day know, he will be guilty of robbing Chriſt of that, for which he thought it no robbery himſelf to be equal with God; that is, to be the only True God Himſelf.

A Summary Conſideration of ſuch Scripture Citations, as be trivially Objects againſt; not ſo much about Matter of Doctrine, as in Point of imperfect Quotation and Tranſpoſition of Words.

Firſt, GEorge Fox, in anſwer to a Prieſt thus ‘Contrary to John's Doctrine and Chriſt's, who ſaith, The Light that doth enlighten every Man that cometh into the World, is the true Light, that Man through the Light might believe. Our Adverſary anſwers, That it is through Him, that is, John Baptiſt. Now granting it to be ſo; yet John was no more Inſtrumental than as by the Light fitted to be ſo; as Eraſmus well ſaid, and others, Whatſoever Light John had, he received it from Chriſt the Fountain of Life: So that ſtill the Light was that Medium or Inſtrument. Beſides, he does not poſitively charge G. F. with referring thoſe Words to that Verſe; and to be ſure that is no Doctrinal Miſtake, ſince moſt true in it ſelf.

Secondly, His next Criticiſm is this, whereas the Scripture runs thus, ‘For God, who commanded Light to ſhine out of Darkneſs, hath ſhined in our Hearts, to give the Knowledge of the Glory of God in the Face of Jeſus Chriſt. He brings in G. F. citing it thus, The Light which ſhined in their Hearts to give the Knowledge of the Glory of God in the Face of Jeſus Chriſt. Again, Which was the Work of the true Apoſtles, to bring People to the Light within, that ſhined in their Hearts, to give, &c. Again, he ſays, The Light, that which gives the Knowledge’. But, ſays he, if he had recited it right, it would then have appeared, not only that God was the Giver, but alſo, that it is the Light of Knowledge, and created; for God cauſeth Light to ſhine out of Darkneſs by creating it, Gen. 1. 3, 4. Thus far this impertinent Man.

To all which I ſay, that firſt he obtrudes an arrant Lye upon our very Senſes, to ſay, that G. F. has not rightly cited it, for ſo much as he did cite; For God cauſed the Light to ſhine, where? in their Hearts: So ſays G. F. But for what? to give of the Knowledge of the Glory of God in the Face of Jeſus Chriſt: And doth not G. F. ſay the ſame? Wretched Scribler! How Idle, how Frivolous, and how very Troubleſom is he with his ridiculous Remarks?

Thirdly, That the Knowledge comes by the Light, all but ſuch Bats as himſelf muſt needs ſee; For why did God give his outward Light, if not to give External Sight, and Diſcerning? And to what purpoſe did He cauſe his Inviſible Spiritual Light to ſhine, if not to give an Internal Knowledge of the Glory of God in the Face of Jeſus Chriſt? Beſides, God himſelf is Light, He is that Great Supernatural Sun, that ſhines throughout the Intellectual World, offering unto Men the Knowledge 1672. of his Divine Glory, and that in the Face of Jeſus Chriſt. This is our Meſſage, as it was the true Meſſengers of Old; And who talk of the Creation of this Light, becauſe it gives Knowledge, may as well ſay, God who was the Fountain of it was created too, becauſe He gives Knowledge; I would have him give us one Scripture that therefore calls the Light created, becauſe it gives Divine Knowledge; or if he can, but one Reaſon; who fools himſelf, and would others, with the Conceit that he is a great Maſter of it: For what groſſer Darkneſs can be, than to aſſert the Creation of the Light upon that very Account, for which we ought moſt truly to believe it Spiritual and Eternal; But enough for this.

Fourthly, G. F. ſaith, But the Word is nigh thee in thy Heart. Deut. 30. Moſes ſaith our Adverſary, ſays, But the Word is very nigh thee in thy Mouth, and in thy Heart, that thou mayſt do it; Where obſerve, that the only Difference lies, in leaving out, in his Mouth, though it be imply'd; for where it is in the Heart, it will be in the Mouth. But Reader, doſt thou not think this a New Way of proving a Man an Impoſtor, Lyar, Falſe Prophet, and what not? Bnt I dare tell him, that he will not grow over-rich with the Spoils he is like to gain by ſuch Conqueſts, though his Fancy be ſtrong, which is the Diſeaſe that follows him.

Fifthly, However he is reſolved to proceed, that what each Cavil wants of Strength in it ſelf, ſhall be ſupply'd by the loud Suffrage of their Number, G. F. ſays, And the Angel ſaid unto them that went to the Grave without, Why ſeek ye the Living among the Dead? He is riſen; which our Adverſary corrects thus, Now the Angels Words runs thus; Why ſeek ye the Living among the Dead? He is not here, but is riſen: So G. F. leaves out, He is not here, out of the middle of the Citation, for that would have overthrown his Opinion of Chriſt within. I ſtill intreat the Reader to obſerve what Slight Grounds he hath to build his infamous Charge upon: But what will not Envy do? but, he greatly errs, if he thinks that the putting in, or leaving out of thoſe Words doth overthrow our Hearty Belief of Chriſt's manifeſting of Himſelf within; For if the Angel chiefly intended the Reſurrection of that Viſible Body which was ſlain a few Days before, will it therefore follow, that the Plaee may not alſo be very aptly uſed to expreſs the Myſtical Reſurrection of the Divine Life (which for many Ages hath as well by Jews as Pilates, Circumciſion as Uncircumciſion, Profeſſors as Prophane, been crucified, laid as in a Grave, and a Stone rowl'd over it, yea and guarded too, by Bands of Soldiers, leſt that which is ſo deſtructive of the Pride, Glory, Pleaſures, and Religions of this World ſhould riſe again to teſtifie againſt them all) which has been the Cauſe why Truth hath ever met with rugged Entertainment from the Men of the World? And it is evident that the Angel's Reproof imply'd an Inſtruction of them concerning what Faith they ought to have had in the Promiſe of his Reſurrection, which did direct them to an inward Power, whereby they might have had a more Heavenly Senſe of a Reſurrection and Life in themſelves, far more beneficial to them, than coming thither in an affectionate haſte after his Viſible Appearance, which it was expedient for them ſhould be with-drawn.

Sixthly, G. F. He is riſen, and the Saints ſits with Him in Heavenly Places. Our Adverſary adds (we muſt take no Notice of the Failure in Syntax, for that's frequent) Now Paul ſays Epheſ. 2. 6. And made us ſit together in Heavenly Places in Chriſt Jeſus. Now there may be a different Senſe of ſitting with Chriſt, and ſitting in Him; For the People of a State may be ſaid to ſit in their Ambaſſadour when He is ſeated, but ſcarcely with him, I anſwer, Firſt, he wrongs G. F. in ſaying he has abuſed the Scripture by putting with for in, ſince there is no Difference at all in what he would Fantaſtically have to be one; for if the People are in the Ambaſſadour, and the Ambaſſadour ſits, then the People ſit, or I don't underſtand Words: for who can the Ambaſſadour repreſent but the People? If then the Ambaſſadour ſits, certainly the People ſit repreſentatively. Now though the Similitude be lame, yet it plainly refutes him as to the Uſe for which he brought it: I conclude therefore that ſuch as ſit in the Heavenly Places in Chriſt Jeſus, can't be ſaid to ſtand with Him, if He be there ſeated, and conſequently they ſit with Him, ſuitable to that Expreſſion of his, Ye are they which have continued with me in my Temptations, and I appoint nnto you a Kingdom as my Father has appointed unto me, that ye may eat and drink at my Table in my Kingdom, and ſit on Thrones, judging the Twelve Tribes of Iſrael. Secondly, He tells us a plain Lye, for finding Fault with G. F's Syntax, viz. Sits for Sit, he ſays, that he muſt take no Notice of that which at the ſame Time he flings in his Diſh, and almoſt continually; but with ſuch Diſdain of him, as if he were the only Maſter of the Sentences, Doctor of the Chair, or Grand Critick of the Age; who to ſpeak Truth, ſhews himſelf a Scholar, much at the ſame Rate, and by the ſame Figure that Pedlars are called Merchants.

Seventhly, But now he thinks he has enough againſt G. F. and manages it, not with a little Triumph; And ſo to the Word Chriſt Jeſus, Him by whom the World was made, before it was made. This he thinks ſtabs our Cauſe to the very Heart, and proves that good Man an Impoſtor, Lyar, Falſe Prophet, Deceitful Chapman, and what elſe you will, without controul. But let not his frothy Spirit boaſt ſo much ſaying he deſpairs of Information, &c. ſince if ſo, it was fooliſhly done of him to ſolicit for an Anſwer, and would not have been much wiſer in us to have gratified him, if a Benefit to others had not invited us to it.

But is there no Allowance to be had for Curt Expreſſions, Eſcapes of the Pen, Overſight in Compoſitors, and Errors in the Preſs? Doth he deal candidly, or as he would be dealt by? But ſuppoſe the worſt that may be (for we would not indebt our ſelves to his Favour) can we make no Senſe of it? Suppoſe a Comma at the firſt made, and read it thus; Chriſt Jeſus, Him by whom the World was made, before it was made; where, and, being underſtood, explaineth the Senſe, was, maketh it more clear: And how frequent are ſuch Words, nay, of more Moment, left to be underſtood? Read the Scriptures, and how many Words are there that have none in the Original, and read but the other Words once without them, and G. F's. Expreſſion will not ſeem abſurd or paradoxal. Beſides, it is allow'd by all, if the Tranſpoſing of the Words will make out the Senſe intended, that it removes of right, the Exception: Now read the Words thus, And ſo to the Word Chriſt Jeſus, before the World was made, Him by whom it was made, and then let our Adverſary quarrel his Fill.

However, we have one Way of reading theſe Words, yet, and that by Figure he hath taught us, viz. Chriſt Jeſus, Him by whom the World was made in Decree, before it was actually made; for ſo he ſays, Chriſt had of his Father's Glory before the World began, not actually, but by Decree only, which if it ſeem Ridiculous, I hope he may have a better Underſtanding both of himſelf and the Place. But to proceed:

[Seventhly,] G. F. anſwering a Prieſt that denies Conſcience can juſtifie, ſays, which is contrary to plain Scripture, where the Apoſtle ſaith, their Conſciences either accuſing or excuſing. But hear our peeviſh Adverſary, who would think that G. F. ſhould have either ſo little Wit or Conſcience as to write in this Manner? For the Scripture Words are theſe, their Couſciences alſo bearing Witneſs, and their Thoughts the mean while accuſing or excuſing one another. The Difference (I mean Doctrinal) in this Place I don't ſee; It becomes a Man of his Wit and larger Conſcience to perceive it, who can make and fling Dirt for the Alteration or Omiſſion of a Word not abſolutely neceſſary: for how can we ſuppoſe he meant thoſe good Gentiles that became a Law unto themſelves, to have Thoughts different from their Conſcience, ſo far as concerned Evil or Good, and the Peace or Trouble that followed the doing of the one, or the committing of the other? For to what did their Conſcience bear them Witneſs, if not to their Doing Well or Ill, and conſequently to acquit or accuſe? Therefore their Conſcience did bear Witneſs to the Accuſing or Excuſing as well as their Thoughts, for that their Thoughts and Opinion of one another's Innocency or Guilt are ſquared by the Witneſs that their Conſcience did give, the Place ſtrongly implies. In ſhort, they could not make that Judgment of one another without a certain Knowledge of the ſame Thing in themſelves, and they muſt have received that only by the Teſtimony of their own Conſcience; which is no more but this, the Judgment of a Man concerning his own Good or Ill State, by the In-ſhining and Diſcoveries of God's Holy Light: and this the Gentiles had in Meaſure, and our Adverſary granteth it, as well as his Eminent Preacher, Page 40.

Eighthly, G. F. ſays, in anſwer to the Prieſt, that denied him to be perfect who bridled his Tongue, which is contrary to the Apoſtle James, who ſaith he is; which our Adverſary calls belying the Apoſtle, who ſays, If any Man offend not in Word, the ſame is perfect. And what difference is there now? One ſays, He that bridles or rules the Tongue, and the other ſaith, He that offends not in Word is the perfect Man: Unleſs a Man's Tongue can be ſaid to be bridled or ruled when it offends (which cannot be ſuppoſed by any, but Perſons of this Man's Ignorance.) In ſhort, Not to offend in Word, or bridle that which would utter it, is one and the 1672. ſame Thing; for that which bridles the Tongue bridles the Body, which is the perfect Man that offends not in Word.

ſame

Page 14. 1 Cor. 12. 6. Eph. 3. 20. Phil. 2. 13. P. 16. Ninthly, G. F. ſays, That God works all in us and for us; for which he reflects upon him as at other Times, ſaying, He knows no ſuch Place; but it is ſtrange that he never heard or read, And there are Diverſities of Operations, but it is the ſame God which worketh all in all——according to the Power that worketh in us; for it is God that worketh in you both to will and to do. Now, unleſs when God works all in all, &c. we are to exempt his working in us, (and ſo give the Scripture the Lye) or, if wrought in us, yet not for us; which is to give our Underſtanding the Lye; it will follow, and doth follow, That God, who worketh all in all, — according to his Power in us, both to Will and to Do, does work it both in us, and for us. But, O the Vanity of this poor Man! that thinks by theſe Paper-Pellets his Malice caſts at us, either to wound us in our ſelves, or in the Minds of ſober People.

P. 16. Tenthly, But he thinks he has done G. F's Buſineſs for him now, where bringing him in, ſaying, through the Power of God the Goſpel; Again, the Goſpel is the Power of God: He thus adventures to correct him, The Apoſtle ſaith, I am not aſhamed of the Goſpel of Chriſt, for it is the Power of God unto Salvation, &c.

Now where to find out that Difference, which this Quick-ſighted Man abuſes G. F. for (ſaying, it proceeds from the ſame bitter Root in him that perverts the Senſe of Scripture) is paſt my Skill; for, if the Goſpel be God's Power, then is God's Power the Goſpel: In one of the Paſſages it is as he would have it, which may ſhow, that G. F. meant by the other Tranſpoſition of the Word: No New Senſe or Doctrine; Groſs Folly, Incharity, and Carping.

P. 16. 2 Pet. 2. 1. Eleventhly, But if he ſtiffly charges him with Miſ-citation in this Paſſage, G. F. And ſo deny Chriſt the Lord that bought them. Peter ſaith only, Denying the Lord that bought them. Which, ſays he, may as well agree to God the Father, as Chriſt the Son.

We may gueſs at his Meaning without an Interpretation; But muſt Chriſt be Lord, and not Lord, at every Turn, when this preſumptuous Perſon will? If the foregoing Chapter be conſider'd, it will appear, That Chriſt is that Lord that ſome ſhould deny, after they had made Profeſſion of him. In ſhort, If a Man's believing Chriſt to be that Lord, muſt conclude him an Impoſtor, &c. who is true; let all the World read, and obſerve of what Ungodly Stuff and very Traſh his Libel doth conſiſt,

P. 19. Twelfthly, the Scripture (ſaith our Adverſary, and his own) runs thus, He that believeth on Chriſt, out of his Belly ſhall flow Rivers of Living Water; where His Belly is plainly ſpoken of Him that believeth: But G. F. applies it to the Light Chriſt, out of whoſe Belly flowed Rivers of Living Water, the Light, the Light muſt be magnified by G. F.

To which I ſhall only ſay, That it is no improper Senſe at all; for no Man's Belly can be filled, but from Him; therefore He is the Fountain of Living Water Himſelf, from whoſe Belly ours come to be filled. Beſides, If a Scripture will admit of two diſtinct Senſes, without Contradiction, it may be uſed in both thoſe Senſes, upon Occaſion: So Chriſt the Light (whom we will magnify above our Adverſary's Darkneſs) is that Belly and Fountain; and ſuch as believe in Him, ſhall have their Bellies filled with the Rivers of Living Water, that come from him: He is the Fountain that is ſet open for Judah and Jeruſalem, and the River that makes glad the City of God.

P. 19. Epheſ. 5. 25. 27. Thirteenth, G. F. The Church is the Pillar and Ground of Truth, without Spot or Wrinkle, or Blemiſh, or any ſuch Thing. Our Adverſary thus, And the Apoſtle ſaith, That He might preſent it unto Himſelf a glorious Church, not having Spot or Wrinkle, or any ſuch Thing. He ſaith, that might and ſhould, not that it is; but this is the old deviliſh Diſtinction of Sin-pleaſers, that would never have the Church Compleat:

Two Things follow hence: Firſt, A Diſbelief of the Perfection of the preſent Myſtical Church, by which Chriſt is rendred the Head of a ſpotted Body. Secondly, That he is himſelf in a ſpotted and wrinkled Condition, and every ſuch Thing; and therefore an unfit Perſon to maintain the Faith of the true unſpotted Church of Chriſt.

P. 19. Fourteenth, G. F. True Chriſtians are Fleſh of His Fleſh, and Bone of his Bone. But the Apoſtle, ſays our Adverſary, has it thus, For we are Members of his Body, of his Fleſh, and of his Bones. The Fault is this, that he left out, For we are Members; hoping that it ſufficiently proves Chriſt to be in Heaven, abſent from his Church; not conſidering, that a Body can be no more without it's Head, than Fleſh; nay, it can better diſpenſe with the Loſs of much Fleſh and many Bones, than the Head; for, if that be abſent, the Body quickly dies: Chriſt is the Head, Root, and Life of his Church, without which ſhe can never live one Comfortable Day. Beſides, it contradicts poſitive Scripture, I will not leave you Comfortleſs, I will come to you; I will be with you to the End of the World: becauſe I live you live alſo. He that is with you ſhall be in you, &c. John 14. 18, 19. Mat. 28.

P. 20. 1 Cor. 2. 10. Fifteenth, G. F. and the Apoſtle ſaid, The deep Things of God was revealed by the Spirit of God. But the Apoſtle, ſaith our Adverſary, ſpeaketh not ſo, But God hath revealed them unto us by his Spirit; for the Spirit ſearcheth all Things, yea, the deep Things of God.

Let all ſober People judge, whether this Man does not groundleſly cavil at us: For, if God reveals his deep Things by his Spirit, then does the Spirit give unto us the Revelation of the deep Things of God. Could he bluſh, he might be aſham'd to ſhew himſelf ſuch a frivolous Buſy-body.

P. 21. Sixteenth, G. F. And ſo, who is in Chriſt is a New Creature, old Things paſs away. Our Adverſary, The Apoſtle thus, Therefore if any be in Chriſt, he is a New Creature, old Things are paſſed away, behold all Things are become New, 2 Cor. 15, 17. The Apoſtle ſpeaks of the New Creation, as done; G. F. as a Thing doing; but with great Patience (for a little would be tired.) I anſwer, Where old Things are done away, and all Things become New, there the New Creation is done; But in ſuch as he, that believes the Church of Chriſt to be ſpotted, wrinkled, &c. all Things are far from being made New, ſince old Things are not paſſed away; and in ſuch there can be no New Creation as yet.

P. 21. 2 Cor. 16. Seventeenth, G. F. For it is the Savour of Death to the Death, and Life to the Life. The Apoſtle, ſaith our Adverſary, thus, To the one the Savour of Death unto Death, to the other the Savour of Life unto Life. Thus, that he may be true to his Way, he undertakes the Confutation of G. F. and Proof of him to be an Impoſtor: The Difference between the Apoſtle's Saying, and G. F's Citation, is, in putting the before Death and Life, which is the ſame in Senſe and Intention. But again, Eighteenth, The Scripture quoted by our Adverſary thus, Of this Sort are they which Creep into Houſes. and lead captive ſilly Women, laden with Sins, and led away with divers Luſts, ever learning, but never able to come to the Knowledge of the Truth: But G. F. ſaith, “Of ſuch as have got the Words, &c. who are Reprobates concerning the Faith; which crept into Houſes before the Apoſtle's Deceaſe; which have kept always Learning, and never able to come to the Knowledge of the Truth; led away with divers Luſts. Very well; and what's the Error or Perverſion here? Why, the Apoſtle does not attribute to theſe falſe Teachers, that they kept People always learning, but they led captive ſuch as were ſo. And what then? therefore is it not true in the Senſe in which G. F. quotes it? What Wrong is there done to the Text, or ſuch Teachers either? For who knows not that falſe Teachers do keep People always learning, but never bring them to the Knowledge of the Truth? And certainly they cannot be falſe Teachers that are not led away of divers Luſts; therefore they are both led away of divers Luſts, and they lead others too. But it is worth our Notice, that he who has ſo frequently, and with ſuch Deriſion, reflected upon G. F's Syntax and falſe Engliſh, is ſo far from being Unblameable himſelf as to make that Elegant Apoſtle guilty; for in the Epiſtle it is, They which Creep; in his Quotation, They which CREEPS. But we delight not to ſpend our Time ſo unprofitably; ſuch are his Conteſts about the Hebrew, Greek, and Latin, being ſet over Chriſt's Head by his Crucifiers; for he would have it written as ſaid in the Scriptures; and G. F. ſays, Set atop of Chriſt, that is, over His Head; and true it is what he obſerves, That all Languages have crucified Him; and thoſe that have been moſt Learned, have been fartheſt from the Kingdom that is reſembled to little Children: I thank thee, O Father, Lord of Heaven and Earth, that thou haſt hid theſe Things from the Wiſe and Prudent, and revealed them unto Babes.

P. 22. 23. Nineteenth, G. F. ſays, the Goſpel is preached in every Creature; Our Adverſary ſays, was preached to every Creature; and both are true; for in Time paſt it was, and now I hope he will not deny but it is: In every Creature, or To every Creature may be the ſame; For when the Goſpel of Repentance and Faith in God, are by his Light and Spirit ſecretly revealed and declared in every Heart, doubtleſs 'tis alſo to the Heart as well as in it; And though there may be outward 1672. Preaching of the Goſpel, yet that which is Effectual, comes from the Spirit and Power of the Goſpel, and reacheth into the Innermoſt Parts, and the ſame Spirit gives there the true Diſcerning and Senſe, and makes the Effectual Application thereof, ſo that his Carping there is like all the reſt, Malicious and Troubleſome! But he hath ſomething to the ſame Purpoſe.

Page 23, 24. XX. Again G. F. If Chriſt be not within People, they are Reprobates. The Apoſtle and Tranſlators ſay, Know you not your own ſelves that Chriſt is in you, except ye be Reprobates, 2 Cor. 15. 5. as if in you could admit of no other Senſe but within you. Let us ſee if the Words of Chriſt will always admit that Senſe, Mat. 20. 26, 27. But it ſhall not be ſo within you, but whoſoever will be Great within you, let him be your Miniſter, &c. thus far our Adverſary. But certainly the Man can't think, that becauſe Ἐν may ſometimes ſignify among, that therefore in all Caſes it muſt do ſo; for let us read the Verſe cited ſo, Know you not your own ſelves that Chriſt Jeſus is among you except ye be Reprobates? This, in his Opinion, of Chriſt's Reſidence, would be moſt falſe: Beſides, if it ſhould be read within you, it might be underſtood thus, within your Precinct, Company, or Society; and the Senſe very good ſtill. However, it ſhews he hath but little to do, who ſhall employ his Time in within you for in you, ſince whatever is in any Thing, is within that in which it is, or elſe I know nothing. But he tells us that G. F. is guilty of the like Fault in Relation to John 2. 27. where the Apoſtle ſpeaketh of the Anointing, which abides in you; but he thus, the Apoſtles brought the Saints to the Anointing within them; To which I ſay, that He is guilty of the like Fault of Fooling as before; For a School-boy would be whipt for ſo much Ignorance and Ill-ſpent Time: He might have learn't better his Greek Grammar; but indeed, I have Cauſe to queſtion his Proficiency: Ἐν δυσὶν ἢ τρισὶν ἡμέραις, ſays Xenophon, Intra duos vel tres dies, within two or three Days, where Ἐν is uſed to expreſs within.

P. 24. XXI. His Cavil at G. F's calling the Kingdom of God, the Kingdom of Heaven, and then ſaying it is the groſſeſt Forgery, is as ſolvable as the reſt: For firſt, the Kingdom of God and the Kingdom of Heaven are all one, unleſs when Men are in the Kingdom of Heaven, they are not in the Kingdom of God; and ſo contrary-wiſe.

Mat. 3. 2. Thus John called that very Kingdom which in the Text is ſtyled the Kingdom of God, the Kingdom of Heaven; The like may be read in the 10th of Mark. If then the Kingdom of God and Kingdom of Heaven be all one, certainly if the Luke 17. 20. Kingdom of God be confeſt to be within, the Kingdom of Heaven muſt be there too. If this be the groſſeſt Forgery, G. F. is far from an Impoſtor.

P. 24, 25. XXII. He quotes Iſaiah, To the Law and to the Teſtimony, if they ſpeak not according to this Word, it is becauſe there is no Light in them, Iſaiah 8. 20. but G. F. thus; For Iſaiah bid them come to the Law and to the Teſtimony, and you that come not to that Rule, it is becauſe you hate the Light in you; where he is much diſpleaſed that it is hate the Light, and not rather, that they have no Light; But this proceeds from that ungodly narrow Spirit, that would not all ſhould be Enlightned, and would rather lay the Blame of not Living up to the Law and Teſtimony to God's not giving Men Light, than to his and other Men's hating of it: but every one has Light, though every one hath not the Benefit of it through their own Diſobedience to it.

P. 25. XXIII. G. F. The Letter was dead, and did not give Life; but, ſays he, I am to ſeek for the Scripture, I find indeed the Apoſtle Paul ſaith, 2 Cor. 3. 6. The Letter killeth. But here he is not Juſt to his Promiſe, as in ſeveral other Places; he finds G. F. uſing ſome Scripture Words mixt with the like Matter, and preſently ſays, He knows not to what Place they do agree, if not to ſuch a Saying of this or that Apoſtle, making him to quote that which it may be was not in his Mind to quote. Next, the Literal Knowledge does kill, and not make alive; and the Letter may alſo be called Dead, becauſe it makes Dead by Killing, as well as that in another Senſe, there is no Life in it: But we know the ſtrict Senſe of the Place to relate to the Diſpenſation of the firſt Covenant.

P. 26. XXIV. But now he thinks he has unveil'd all, and detected G. F. to the Purpoſe. G. F. in Anſwer to a Prieſt about the Reſurrection of the Body, he ſays, anſwers thus, Chriſt, — is the Reſurrection and the Life, and thy dead Body ſhall live with my dead Body: This is Scripture; but he calls it the greateſt Vanity, and Lightneſs, beſides Forgery, that he has obſerved, in citing of Scripture. And behold his Refutation! Is not this Man a ſtrange Kind of Champion, who, beſides his Abuſe, gives us no Knowledge that he takes any Notice of G. F. in the Matter. For my Part, I think the Anſwer is Good; for Chriſt is the Reſurrection, and we do confeſs to a Reſurrection of the Dead out of the Graves in the Judgment-Day, by the Voice and Power of Chriſt Jeſus our Lord, that Men may be Faſhion'd like unto His Glorious Body, which is Spiritual, and Glorious, and Immortal. 1672.

XXV. But he chargeth G. F. with wrong Citation and Paraphraſe, Mat. 5. 37. But let your Communication be Yea, Yea, Nay, Nay; for whatſoever is more than this, cometh of Evil. G. F. thus, He (Chriſt) ſays, In all your Communication let your Yea be Yea, and your Nay Nay, for whatſoever is contrary is Evil: Why not here as he has it afterwards? Whatſoever is more is Evil, charging us with calling God to Witneſs in Communication, &c. P. 27.

'Tis ſtrange to me, that one, who not long ago was for Swearing, ſhould now think the Quakers, that are againſt it, go too far in calling God to Witneſs. But let the Man know, that by contrary G. F. underſtands the Extraordinary Ways of Affirmations, as Oaths, and the like, eſpecially in Caſes of Evidence, wherein an Evangelical Righteouſneſs is more than ordinarily concerned: This he might have collected from thoſe Words he after cites; but he wanted that Candor, that Generous Adverſaries ſhew.

XXVI. He is very angry with G. F. for putting is for was; God is in Chriſt, reconciling the World unto himſelf, 2 Cor. 5. But methinks, if he conſiders as he believes, that all Men are not actually reconcil'd, then Men are at moſt but a reconciling, and that's the Time preſent: Wherefore, if God in Chriſt only can reconcile the World unto himſelf, then ſince there is the greateſt Part of the World unreconcil'd, though the Work be going on in ſome; it will follow, That either none now can be reconcil'd, or elſe God is as well (though not by ſo Viſible an Appearance) in Chriſt now reconciling the World unto himſelf as formerly; therefore is, may be as proper as was. P. 27.

XXVII. But he brings in G. F. anſwering a Prieſt about the Saints enjoying the Divine Nature thus: Doth not the Apoſtle ſay, that the Divine Nature the Saints were made Partakers of: But ſaith our Adverſary, Where doth any Apoſtle ſay ſo? Peter ſaith, 2. Pet. 1. 4. Whereby are given unto us exceeding Great and Precious Promiſes, that by theſe you might be Partakers of the Divine Nature; in which I ſee no Difference at all, that would have given any Sober Perſon the leaſt Scruple; for both import a Participation of the Divine Nature. Doubtleſs it griev'd the Man he had no more againſt God's People partaking of the Divine Nature; for he ſeems to deſire to work out all himſelf, and to be as little indebted to God as he can; but, poor Man, his Works will be burnt. Pag. 28.

XXVIII. G. F. quotes this Scripture, Heb. 10. 26, 27. And he that ſinneth after he hath received the Truth, there remaineth no more Sacrifice for Sin, but a fearful looking for of Judgment. But ſaith our Adverſary, The Scripture hath it, For if we ſin wilfully after that we have received the Knowledge of the Truth, &c. ſo that the Difference, as he confeſſeth, lies in the Word Wilfully. But as all Men ſin not of Compulſion, but wilfully, ſo it was never our Principle to make God an hard Maſter, or an unmerciful Judge, as he well knows; and methinks he ſhould have had more Reſpect to the Juſt GOD, and his own Soul, than to inſinuate what in his own Conſcience he knows to be a plain Falſhood, on Purpoſe to bring us into Suſpicion and Diſgrace. But I wiſh him Repentance and Remiſſion for this Wilful Sin. Pag. 28.

XXIX. Here he does not ſo much charge G. F. with corrupting Scripture, as with Idleneſs and Ignorance in making Uſe of it: Now let us ſee wherein; why G. F. will have the Scriptures to be the Words; but not the Word of God by Way of Excellency, as in Luke 1. Acts 1. Rev. 22. alſo Moſes himſelf call'd them Words; to which our Adverſary replies, That in the Inſtance out of the Acts, that Word which is Engliſhed Treatiſe, is the ſame with that in the firſt of John, which is called the Word. But this is Weak; for the ſame Word may be uſed to ſeveral Ends; I mean, that the ſame Word which ſignifies the Word of God, as an Excellent Being, may be ſimply uſed at an other Time for Diſcourſe, Reaſon, Speaking, or the like; and great Care is to be taken in rendring of Words, that they may bear the Senſe they are employed for in that Place. So in the Acts, it was an Hiſtorical Diſcourſe, or Narrative of the Actions of the Apoſtles, and therefore would have been ill appropriated to another Signification. Thus φῶς may be taken ſimply for the Sun in the Firmament, or the Sun of Righteouſneſs, and the Light of the inviſible Word. Pag. 28, 29.

But that which is unanſwerable is this, that the Word of God cannot be ſubject to thoſe Corruptions by Tranſlations, Fire, Water, Age, and abundance of Caſualties, which the Scriptures are; therefore the Scriptures being ſubject to theſe 1672. Things, They cannot be eminently the Word of God, but Chriſt the Light only; yet the Words of God, or Treatiſe and Declaration of His Will, that is, ſo much of it, as was given forth by the Holy Ghoſt. I am ſorry the Man is ſo over-run with an envious Scurvy (who once promiſed better Things) as to employ his precious Time about Things of ſo little Moment, or Advantage to the World.

Pag. 33. XXXI. I ſhall now conclude theſe Obſervations with his Concluſion; and I am very glad we are ſo near the End (of what has ſcarce either Head or Tail). But let's ſee what Leave he takes, and how he winds up his Criminal Animadverſions upon George Fox, which he doth thus, G. F. God juſtified Job and ſaid, Job did not ſin with his Mouth: But, ſays he, the Scripture has it thus, Job did not ſin with his Lips; which he ſays, Is far from not ſinning with his Mouth; but which Way I know not: For Lips are often by Synecdoche put for Mouth; ſo that if the Lips did not ſin, the Mouth did not ſin. But after this Art of Evaſion, a Man may ſay himſelf, or Faith, to be almoſt any Thing; and for his Defence urge, It was not he (reſerving) but his Lips that ſaid ſo. I would have the Man to know, That we deſpiſe his Shuffles, and eſteem him, though not a leſs malicious, yet a far leſs formidable Adverſary, than ſome we have met with: Neither have I been thus Liberal for his Libel's Sake, but having an Opportunity (after much Buſineſs on another Subject) to inſiſt upon theſe Serious Doctrines herein handled, I found my ſelf deeply engaged to do what I did effectually. But I have a few Things yet to offer, which done, we ſhall conclude this Controverſie, at leaſt for this Time.

Firſt, I would deſire all that read our Diſcourſe, to obſerve, That what makes up the far greateſt Part of the Libel, is the Author's Snarls at G. F's imperfect, or defective Quotation of Scriptures; moſtly confeſſing, that the Alteration lies more in the Words, than Senſe of the Places by him cited. If therefore I ſhall make it appear, that both Chriſt and his Apoſtles have not obſerved ſuch Exactneſs, as he ſo ſeverely reproves G. F. for the Want of, it is to be hoped, that he will either retract his unworthy Abuſe of that Innocent and Good Man; or elſe, not think it hard in us, to charge this Blaſphemous Inference upon him, namely, That he makes Chriſt Jeſus and His Apoſtles, Perverters of Scripture, and what elſe he wickedly concludes againſt G. Fox.

Scriptural Quotations of Scripture, not Verbatim, by JESUS CHRIST, and His APOSTLES.

FOR I ſay unto you, that this that is written, muſt yet be accompliſhed in me; and he was reckoned amongſt the Tranſgreſſors: For the Things concerning me have an End. Luke 22. 37.

Therefore will I divide him a Portion with the Great, and He ſhall divide the Spoil with the Strong, becauſe he hath poured forth his Soul unto Death; and he was numbred with the Tranſgreſſors, and he bare the Sins of many, and made Interceſſion for the Tranſgreſſors, Iſa. 53. 12.

Obſervation 1. Where, take Notice, we have reckoned for numbred, and amongſt inſtead of with; beſides, abundance omitted and added, as the laſt Clauſe in Luke: And is not this as imperfect, as Before the World began, for Before the World was?

For this is He of whom it is written, Behold I ſend my Meſſenger before thy Face, which ſhall prepare thy Way before thee, Mat. 11. 10.

Behold I will ſend my Meſſenger, he ſhall prepare the Way before thee, and the Lord whom ye ſeek, ſhall ſuddenly come to his Temple, &c. Mal. 3. 1.

Obſerv. 2. Let it be remarkt, that will is left out before ſend, that before thy Face is added; and that we have which ſhall, for and he ſhall, with much not mention'd: Certainly this had been very heinous in G. F. when it was an Inſtance of his Impoſture to cite Mouth for Lips. Thus much in Brief of Chriſt's Quotation of the Prophets; now for his Apoſtles, whether out of the Evangeliſts, or other Epiſtles.

That it mght be fulfilled which was ſpoken by the Prophet, ſaying, I will open my Mouth in Parables, I will utter Things which have been kept Secret from the Foundation of the World, Mat. 13. 35.

There is no ſuch Scripture in theſe Words, that I can find; only David, ſpeaking of himſelf, ſaith thus, I will open my Mouth in a Parable, I will utter dark Sayings of old, Pſal. 78. 2.

As it is written in the Book of the Words of Eſaias the Prophet, ſaying, The Voice of one crying in the Wilderneſs, Prepare ye the Way of the Lord; make his Paths ſtraight, Luke 3. 4.

The Voice of one crying in the Wilderneſs, Prepare ye the Way of the Lord; make ſtraight in the Deſert an High-way for our God, Iſa. 40. 3.

Obſerv. 3. I hope this may a little ſhew the Man himſelf, and that G. F. is not ſuch a bitter Enemy to Scriptures, and Perverter of the Text, as he would repreſent him; ſince we have, make his Paths ſtraight, for, make ſtraight in the Deſert an High-way for our God: Certainly this muſt be a groſſer Failure, I mean in our Adverſary's Opinion, than G. F's ſaying, enlightneth for lighteth, or Chriſt within you for Chriſt in you.

For thus it is written by the Prophet, And thou Bethlehem, in the Land of Judah, art not the leaſt among the Princes of Judah; for out of thee ſhall come a Governour, that ſhall Rule (or Feed) my People Iſrael, Mat. 2. 5, 6.

But thou Bethlehem Ephratah, though thou be little among the Thouſands of Judah, yet out of thee ſhall he come forth unto me that is to be Ruler in Iſrael, whoſe Goings forth have been from of Old, from Everlaſting (the Hebrews phraſe it, from the Days of Eternity.) Mic. 5. 2.

Obſerv. 4. Where we have and for but; Ephratah not quoted; though thou be little, for, thou art the leaſt; among the Princes, for, among the Thouſands; out forth, and ſhall come a Governor, that ſhall Rule my People Iſrael, we have for, ſhall he come unto me, that is to be Ruler in Iſrael, whoſe Goings forth have been from of Old, from Everlaſting.

For it is written in the Law of Moſes, Thou ſhalt not muzzle the Mouth of the Ox that treadeth out the Corn, 1 Cor. 9. 9.

Thou ſhalt not muzzle the Ox when he treadeth out the Corn, Deut. 25. 4.

Obſerv. 5. In this Paſſage we alſo have an Addition and Alteration, the Mouth of the Ox, for the Ox; and that treadeth, for when he treadeth, &c. which tho' all one in Senſe, yet had been Matter of Crime enough againſt G. F. had he but made the ſame Alteration.

Of this Man's Seed (that is, David, the Son of Jeſſe) hath God, according to his Promiſe, raiſed unto Iſrael a Saviour Jeſus, Acts 13, 22.

And there ſhall come forth a Rod out of the Stem of Jeſſe, and a Branch ſhall grow out of his Roots, Iſa. 11. 1.

Obſerv. 6. The great Difference of which, I mean as to Expreſſion, one would think might ſufficiently juſtifie G. F. and I believe will in the Judgment of all ſuch as reverence the Scriptures of Truth; for I don't ſee that there be four Words alike, yet the Senſe one.

Then ſhall be brought to paſs the Saying that is written, Death is ſwallowed up in Victory. O Death, where is thy Sting? O Grave, where is thy Victory? 1 Cor. 15.

He will ſwallow up Death in Victory, Iſa. 25. 8. O Death, I will be thy Plagues; O Grave, I will be thy Deſtruction, Hoſ. 13. 14.

Obſerv. 7. The Alteration here is manifeſt alſo, Death is ſwallowed up, for He will ſwallow up Death; and, O Death, where is thy Sting, for O Death, I will be thy Plagues, &c. We ſhall conclude with one more out of the Epiſtle to the Hebrews, 1672.

But unto the Son he ſaith, Thy Throne, O God is for ever and ever; a Scepter of Righteouſneſs is the Scepter of thy Kingdom, Heb. 1. 8.

Thy Throne, O God, is for ever and ever; the Scepter of thy Kingdom is a Right Scepter; thou loveſt Righteouſneſs, Pſal. 45. 6, 7.

Obſerv. 8. Here we have A Scepter of Righteouſneſs is the Scepter of thy Kingdom, for The Scepter of thy Kingdom is a Right Scepter.

Thus (beſide many more Places, paſt over for Brevity Sake) have I made it evidently appear, that G. F. cannot be accuſed by any, that would not accuſe Chriſt Jeſus and his Apoſtles themſelves, as to Miſ-citation of Scriptures; if their not Citing of theſe expreſs Words may be juſtly ſo reputed, which, though I utterly reject it, yet ſince our Adverſary hath made a Crime ſo capital in G. F. it may not be unſeaſonable to offer, That he doth inevitably conclude Chriſt Jeſus and his Apoſtles under the ſame Fault, which how ſuitable ſoever it may be to his Religion, we have more Godly Fear and Reverence upon our Spirits, than ſo much as to admit of any the leaſt Detraction from them any where, and leaſt of all would our Underſtandings let us on this Occaſion.

But what if we were unable to render thoſe obvious Reaſons already offered? Would it follow, that G. F. muſt neceſſarily be condemned as a Perverter of Scripture; and as having cenſured others for that, wherein he is as inexcuſable himſelf? By no Means: For it is granted on all Hands, that what moſt of all aggravates the Blame of any Diſputant, is erring from, or falling ſhort of, or contradicting his own avow'd Principles. This was the Caſe of the Prieſts G. F. diſputed againſt, but not his. They ſay, That the Scriptures, or Writings of the Holy Men of God, as they are tranſmitted to us, with every Point, Iota, or Parcel of them, are ſuch a Sufficient, Infallible, Perſpicuous and Conſtant Rule, as that God hath not left, or given unto Men, any Thing more clear, certain, &c. But G. F. and we who are called Quakers, although we heartily acknowledge the Scriptures ſo given forth, to be a Declaration of the Mind of God, ſo far as it pleaſed him to diſcover it; and that Men ought to believe, read, obey and fulfil them, as the Ancients did: Yet that the Eternal Spirit is by Way of Excellency, the Rule and Guide of Chriſtians, Who Convinceth the World of Sin, Re*proves for, and Redeems from it, into the perfect Liberty of the Sons of God, as received and obeyed:* And this only gives the Knowledge of the Truth of the Scriptures, and brings into thoſe States of which the Scriptures are but a Godly Narrative: And that this Infallible, Living, Divine Spirit, is therefore the moſt certain and unerring Rule, above and beyond the meer Letter, which hath been, and is ſubject to many Miſcarriages: Wherefore G. F. had good Reaſon to put the Prieſts upon Scripture Proof, and that ſo Critically, as that they might not foiſt in any Doctrines upon abſtruſe and diſputable Conſequences of their own drawing, but grounded on expreſs Texts of Scripture: For, if they defended the Scriptures in every Iota, to be the very Word of God, and only Standing Rule of Faith, Worſhip and Converſation under the Goſpel; it was but Reaſonable in him to tye them to their own Rule; whilſt, on the contrary, G. F. not believing them to be that alone moſt excellent ſtanding Rule of Chriſtians, (however he might otherwiſe eſteem them) as rightly believing, That not a Law Engraven on Tables of Stone (much leſs writ on Paper) but an inviſible Spiritual Law of Life, writ in the Hearts and Conſciences of Men and Women, was, and is the Great, Living, Infallible, and Perſonal Goſpel-Rule; he was not confined to the very expreſs Words and Points thereof as his Rule.

So that there is not, there cannot be the ſame Reaſon for reproving G. F. of what they are moſt deſerving of ſevere Cenſure. Nay, G. F. is very excuſable, in what they by their own Principle are condemnable. And therefore he cannot be upon the ſame Terms with them: For it would be to ſay, That becauſe I oblige a Man with Strictneſs to his own Rule, therefore I am an Impoſtor if I do not as preciſely ſquare my ſelf by the ſame; which is to beg more than becomes a Modeſt Man to aſk, or a Reaſonable Man to grant: For it is the very Thing controverted, Whether that Light, Life, Power and Spirit, which gave forth the Scriptures at ſeveral Times, on ſeveral Occaſions, be that only Infallible Rule of Chriſtians, or the Letter, ſo ſubject to Variety of Corruptions, Additions, Diminutions, &c. either in it's Original, or the numerous Tranſlations that are in the World, whereof ſcarcely Two agree. We ſay, Not the Letter, but the Life it ſelf is the Evangelical Rule:

They ſay, not any ſuch Divine Life, by any Internal Diſcoveries or Operations, but the bare ſingle Letter, or Scriptures containing ſo many expreſs Words, Points, &c. are that only Goſpel-Rule.

Wherefore to make G. F. as condemnable as the Prieſts, they muſt firſt prove him to hold the ſame Principle that they do; which becauſe he does not, he is not liable to the ſame Reproof with them, indeed to none at all. Where let it be farther conſidered, That they affirm the Scriptures to be their Rule, wholly excluding the Spirit of God: And we believe the Eternal Spirit to be our Rule, not excluding the Serious Uſe of Scriptures, ſuitable to that Saying, They that are led by the Spirit of God, are the Sons of God; and, I will write my Law in their Hearts, and put my Fear in their inward Parts: The Scriptures teſtifie of me, but ye will not come unto me that ye may have Life.

But before I conclude this Subject, I muſt needs tell the Man that he hath not only taken as well a New as Inſufficient Way, to prove G. F. an Impoſtor, &c. but he has equally manifeſted his Ignorance, and Want of Candour in what he has done: For who is there that ever underſtood the Laws of Tranſlation, that would revile a Man for giving the ſame Senſe in Words, as forcible, though not the very ſame? Or, Who would count a Man an Impoſtor, Falſe Prophet, &c. becauſe of a meer Verbal Alteration in a Sentence, where the Matter remains intire, and unviolated. Certain I am, that the beſt Tranſlators in the World, have endeavoured to make their Authors ſpeak their Matter in the Phraſe and Propriety of that Language, into which they have been rendered, which had been utterly impoſſible, if they had been turned Verbatim, and after the Genuine Phraſe and Mode of their Original Tongues: Such Verſions being like the wrong Side of the Cloth, or reading Words backward. Let our Adverſary inform himſelf, after what Manner all the Claſſick Authors, Great Philoſophers, and Famous Hiſtorians, are made French by the Criticks of that Tongue, in their New Academy at Paris: Nor is our Country wholly void of Inſtances: As the Tranſlation of Thucydides, Polybius, Juſtinus, Cæſar's Commentaries, Quintus Curtius, Livius, Seneca, Tacitus, Homer, Virgil, Ovid, Lucan, Council of Trent, Campanella, Du-Pleſſy, Grotius, Bocolini, Malvetzy, St. Amour, and forty more Pieces, in which I dare affirm, that neither Verbs, Nouns, Pronouns, Participles, Gerunds, Adjectives, Conjunctives, Copulates, Subjunctives, Prepoſitions, Adverbs, Tenſes, Caſes, Numbers, &c. are ſo much as conſidered in their Tranſlation, but only how the Matter ſo expreſt in it's Original Tongue, may be moſt aptly rendered into our own: If then this Scope is both practiſed by, and allowed to all Tranſlators, I would fain know why it ſhould be ſo Criminal in G. F. to have given the Scope and whole Tendency of Scripture-Texts, in other Words than what are in our common Tranſlations.

But certainly, this ſhews that Rank Enmity which lodgeth in the Man's Mind, and is to me a plain Demonſtration of his implacable Malice, that (like the Black Jaundice) has ſo over-run him, as I fear it will almoſt be impoſſible that he ſhould ever recover to any tolerable Moderation, though We could deſire he might come to a Sight and Senſe of his Folly, Ignorance, and Bitterneſs againſt us, and no longer continue to kick againſt the Pricks in himſelf, nor to endeavour (however he miſs his Aim) to gore the Sides of an Innocent People, with his falſe Gloſſes and Calumnious Accuſations; for certainly the Righteous God of Heaven and Earth will effectually judge for theſe Things, by whoſe Eternal Power and Spirit, and for whoſe Cauſe on Earth we are what we are at this very Day: And though the Contradiction of Obſtinate Sinful Men, be truly Burthenſome on their Account; and and this continual Toil of Controverſy very unpleaſant to our ſelves; yet for the alone Sake of God's unchangeable Truth, and Heavenly Way to Life Eternal, we do cheerfully overlook our own Trouble, Weight and Exerciſe, counting it our Duty (and therein our Satisfaction) to be at all Times ready for the Service of it, let what will enſue. And be it known to all the World, that as our Religion ſtands not in the Doctrines, Meanings, Preachings, or Notions of Men's deviſing or deducting from the Scriptures themſelves, but in the Living Quickning Power of the Eternal God, which plainly diſcovers Sin, and wounds deeply for it; and as obeyed, ranſoms the Soul from Death, Hell, and the Grave, to ſerve the Living Lord God, in His New, Living, and Spiritual Way: So do we proclaim it to the Nations, that all Religions ſhort of this, are but the Form without the Power, and make up but that Whore with her Golden Cup, which has bewitched Tongues, and Kindreds, and People, She that has a Name to Live as the Lamb's Bride, True Church, &c. whilſt indeed She is but that Great Harlot, that has committed all manner of Abomination 1672. nation with whole Kingdoms, under the ſpecious Shew of Religion: Wherefore every one of you, to whom this Book comes, ſearch and examine in the Dread and Fear of Almighty God, how it ſtands with thee: Haſt thou ever been prickt to the Heart, and repented with that Repentance which ſorrows for Sin paſt, and turns from Sin to come; which is never to be repented of? And doſt thou feel the Living, Powerful Workings of God's Power and Spirit in thy Heart, regenerating thee, without which thou canſt not be a Child of God, and Heir of Glory? I ſay, O Man! Unleſs thou comeſt to know the Work of thy Soul's Redemption from the Pit, and Deliverance of thy Mind from the Snares and Temptations of the Devil begun in thy ſelf, by which to live to God, and to have the Teſtimony of His Eternal Spirit in thy Conſcience, that thou haſt turned at the Reproof of Inſtruction, and haſt felt the Blood of Cleanſing, and art now walking on in the ſtrait and narrow Way of Life and Righteouſneſs, which crucifies the Earthly Mind, thy Praying, Preaching, Obſervations, and whole Religion are vain, and will prove all of none Effect, in the Day when the Lord God Eternal ſhall make ſtrict Inquiſition and Search after what Fruits have been by every one brought forth.

Wherefore be ye all awakened to the Fear of the Lord, and mind diligently that Bleſſed Light, which ſhines in your Hearts, and is able to give unto you the Knowledge of God in the Face of Jeſus Chriſt, which is the True Knowledge and Wiſdom that comes from above, that make Wiſe to Life Eternal. For, the Wiſdom that is from below, may ſtudy, carp, contend about Scriptures and Religion, and from thence frame and imagine how thoſe Things are wrought, that are mentioned therein, and I know doth, but can never give True Unfeigned Repentance, nor Living Faith, by which to overcome the World, and to live unſpotted in it, walking with God till the Time of Diſſolution comes. O! this is the Life of Chriſtians indeed; and Bleſſed are they for ever, who having found that Living Holy Light and Power, abide with it; certainly it will never fail them in any Time of Streight, or Hour of Temptation; but will always reveal it ſelf to their Defence and Protection (as their Minds are circumſpectly Eying the ſame) though whole Armies ſhould beſiege them, both within and without, to their utter Ruin and Deſtruction. This is that Foundation which can never be moved, and that durable Rock which the Gates of Hell could never ſhake, nor prevail againſt them that built thereon in any Age; for which the Holy Hoſt of Heaven, and we on Earth, Magnifie the Name of GOD, and return and aſcribe to Him, by JESUS CHRIST, all Honour, Glory, Praiſe, Wiſdom, Power, Strength, Majeſty and Dominion, who alone is worthy, now and for ever.

Pag. 43, 44. THUS in the Fear of God, and in a Meaſure of Good Underſtanding, which I have received from Him, have I gone through what I promiſed in the Beginning, And do believe the Lord will make my Labour effectual to the Vindication of His Righteous Truth and Servants in the Hearts of many, which is the alone Mark I have in my Eye, and not to gratifie their Deſire, or as eſteeming my ſelf (though they do) the Single Man that was beſt able to encounter them, which, tho' fawning enough, cannot but manifeſt the Contradiction of that Perſon from whom it came, who, a little after that creeping Invitation to anſwer him, ſays, That if I do, he ſhall ever after have a better Opinion of the Popiſh Writers that defend Tranſubſtantiation, implying, That I ſhould be the abſurdeſt of Men, by how much there is not a more ridiculous Poſition in any Religion than that. But this Abſurdity and Abuſe I return upon himſelf, ſince no ſuch Writer could ſpend his Time more unprofitably than our Adverſary, in his trivial Objections againſt G. F. and perhaps ſcarce ſo ſcurrilouſly.

I forgive him his ſmall Eſſays at me, (for they pinch me not) only I will tell him, that the Eighteen-Pence Apology he would ſeem to laſh both me and G. W. for, contains that Truth, Reaſon and Evidence, as are not refutable by a greater Man than himſelf; and will ſtand over the Heads of thoſe peeviſh, perverſe Spirits concerned in it, for ever.

Pag. 44. And for the Excuſe he makes, why he ſcruples to tell us who he is, I have already anſwered it, and therefore need not reiterate the ſame Things, only one Paſſage may be farther conſidered, and that is, where he ſays, If you had my Name, it muſt be conſidered what Party I am of, whether Epiſcopal, Preſbyterian, Independent, &c. And accordingly all that is odious, either in the Doctrine or Practice of the whole Party, or any Particular Perſon thereof, muſt be reckoned up againſt me; or if I ſhould

I ſhould chance to be an Old Man, as your Adverſary Jenner, that would help to render me Doting at every Turn; or if I have been a Braſier, or a Taylor, the World muſt be told my Name, with Tinker and Taylor at the End on't; and if this won't do, you have a Way of ſuggeſting (as G. Whitehead againſt Mr. Danſon, that he was given to Gaming, Bowls, and Nine-Pins) and if it prove Falſe, you may come off as he, by ſaying, You did but Query, &c.

To all which I ſay, Firſt, That he horribly belies us, for we never charged the Infirmities of a Single Perſon farther, than upon that Guilty Perſon, unleſs he were connived at, or juſtified in his Wickedneſs by any whole Party. I charge him to give us one Inſtance to prove his Reflection. Secondly, We know him to be neither Epiſcopal, Preſbyterian, nor Independent, but a Vizarded Socinian, either aſhamed, or afraid of his Profeſſion. Thirdly, In the worſt Senſe he is an Old Man, for Malice, Slander, Pride and Enmity, reign in him, the Nature of the Old Man that is Accurſt. And, if he be otherwiſe Young, he is ſo much the more blameable, that he ſhould dote before he is old. Fourthly, We never told the World Men's Trades in a Way of Detraction, or Reproach; our Souls abhor it; it is well known what we are our ſelves, not of the Great Tribes of the Earth, and therefore ought the leſs to deſpiſe others for being Mechanicks, whilſt we are moſtly ſuch our ſelves; though were we what we are not, It were a Token of Pride and Incivility, as the other would be of Inſolency, to diſdain either Poverty or Labour. It may be indeed, that the Trade of ſome Man may more generally denote him, than his Name, becauſe there may be many of the ſame Name, but not of the ſame Calling; as many Bunnians, but not many Bunnians that are Tinkers; and being generally ſo ſtiled, not in Reproach (that we know of) (ſince that Title neither adds nor diminiſhes) but in a Way of Diſtinction, perhaps we may have ſo diſtinguiſhed him; but certainly if our Adverſary were either of an honeſt Calling, or ſought not after a Reputation in the World above it, he need not be aſhamed of telling us who he is.

Laſtly, his baſe Suggeſtion of G. W. is manifeſt; for who knows not that the Prieſts give themſelves the Liberty of more than that, what Game (almoſt) do they ſcruple to play at: But indeed their Religious Game they are moſt conſtant and expert in, which they get moſt by; for in other Sports they ſometimes loſe, but in that Game they always win, the poor People are the Loſers: And if G. W. to detect the Prieſt, ſince others gave themſelves that looſe, did therefore make that Query; muſt it therefore be taken for granted that he concluded him ſuch? Would this malicious Adverſary be ſo ſerved in every Query that may be put by him? But I appeal to all the Reaſonable Men that ſhall ever read us, if his Apprehenſion of our Calumniating him, be a Good Reaſon for him to refuſe us his Name, Whilſt he takes his whole Fill in abuſing of us, and that by Name too; thereby condemning that in others, by Way of Anticipation, which he is actually Guilty of himſelf.

Well, but the Holy, and Juſt God, will certainly one Day avenge our Innocency, upon the Head of this malicious Slanderer, and all ſuch as wilfully take Part with him to traduce it, unto whom we recommend our ſelves in all our Endeavours, for the Promotion of His Holy Truth, being freely reſigned to do his Will in our Generation, knowing that He is a plentiful Rewarder of thoſe that truly fear him, tho' the Time haſtens that he will alſo take Vengeance upon the Ungodly; and I doubt not but in that Day, our Adverſary will wiſh he had as well concealed his Book a His Name.

POSTSCRIPT.

I Am to adviſe the Man, if he intends any farther Controverſie with us, That he ſhould not loſe his Time, nor trouble us in the Defence of any common Principles, wherein we are judged to Err, For we have common Adverſaries enough upon our Hands (eſpecially ſince he cannot but be Conſcious of Hypocriſie to himſelf in ſuch a Work, that not being the Ground of his Diſpleaſure againſt us) but if he pleaſe to be ſo open with us, as to come forth in what we have ſome Ground to believe his Complexion, that is to ſay, If he will tell us, that Chriſt is but Purus Homo, purely a Man; that the Holy Spirit is a Creature; that Father, Son, and Spirit are Three diſtinct Eſſences and Perſons; that God is in a Bodily Shape in Heaven, like a Man; a groſs Conceit borrowed from the Egyptian Monks (therefore called Anthropophormites) that the Soul is Mortal, with ſome other the like Articles of his Biddlean Creed, then I hope we ſhall endeavour to maintain the Truth as it is in JESUS, and to give a ſufficient Reaſon of the Hope that is in us.

New Witneſſes prov'd Old Hereticks:
OR,
Information to the Ignorant; in which the Doctrines of John Reeve and Lodowick Muggleton, which they ſtile, Myſteries never before known, revealed, or heard of from the Foundation of the World, are proved to be moſtly ancient Whimſies, Blaſphemies and Hereſies, from the Evidence of Scripture, Reaſon, and ſeveral Hiſtorians.

An Account of ſome Diſcourſe betwixt L M. and my ſelf, by which his Blaſphemous, Ignorant and Unſavoury Spirit is clearly and truly manifeſted, in Love to the Immortal Souls of thoſe Few, who are concern'd in the Belief of his Impoſtures.

By a Living True Witneſs to that One Eternal Way of God, revealed in the Light of Righteouſneſs, W. Penn.

Now as Jannes and Jambres withſtood Moſes, ſo do theſe (Reeve and Muggleton) alſo reſiſt the Truth, Men of corrupt Minds, reprobate concerning the Faith. But they ſhall proceed no farther, for their Folly ſhall be manifeſt unto all Men, as theirs alſo was, 2 Tim. 3. 8, 9.

To the READER.

READER,

AMongſt the many ſtrange Pretenſions, that have been made to Religion, and the Authors and Abettors of variety of Sects, through every Generation, from the moſt primitive Chriſtian Times, there has not appeared (though not a leſs formidable yet) a more compleat Monſter on the Stage of Controverſie and Opinion than this of John Reeve and Lodowick Muggleton, Brethren and Aſſociates in the blackeſt Work that ever fallen Men or Angels could probably have ſet themſelves upon: What many Ages ſingly were infeſted by, we are aſſaulted with at once; and as if the ſcattered Limbs of Hereſie had rallied and re-enforced themſelves for a new Combate; no ſooner was the Glorious Truth appearing, than they were ready to make their utmoſt Oppoſition, either by their Enchantments, to delude the Souls of ſome; or through their unparallel'd ſottiſh Folly, to ſcandalize the World in general againſt all Religion, as ridiculous; and amongſt others, the true as alſo Fabulous: Yet the Lord God of Eternal Power, whoſe Thoughts and Ways are not as Mortal Men's, but Infinite and Almighty, like himſelf, having decreed the Redemption of the fallen Souls of Men, by the Illumination of their Underſtandings, ſtandings, and Quickening of their Minds, dead in Treſpaſſes and Sins, by the living powerful Operation of his own Eternal Spirit of Holineſs, did appear in ſo great Glory and Majeſty, that thoſe Fogs and Miſts, which began to over-ſpread the Earth, were ſoon ſcattered, and the Everlaſting Light aroſe, and hath effectually ſhined forth unto the Convincement and Converſion of Thouſands from the Ungodlineſs of this preſent evil World, and the Fruitleſs Religions that are profeſt therein, to live a Sober, Heavenly, Righteous Life and Converſation.

But alas! Some few have ſtrayed by the Way, one hither, and another thither, for want of that Subjection and Holy Watch they ought to have lived in, unto the Bleſſed Living Truth of God: And as many Snares have been preſented to delude, ſo amongſt others, their ſottiſh Imaginations have not been without the Power of a Temptation, and too effectual upon ſome, the Lord knoweth, which though their Number be but very ſmall, yet the Concernment of their Immortal Souls is great: For who living, that have taſted of the ſure Mercies of God, and enjoyed of the Reward of Faithfulneſs to the Truth, but muſt needs Pity, Sorrow and Lament on their Behalf; ſome that might have run well, and would not; others that began to do it, and Satan hindred?

No ſooner were Adam and Eve made ſenſible of the Bleſſedneſs of their Innocent State, than the Serpent endeavoured to beguile them; How? by preaching Righteouſneſs, Holineſs, Watchfulneſs and Godly Fear, as without which none ſhould ever ſee the Lord? No, nothing leſs, but by Idle Dreams, Luciferian Thoughts and Exalted Imaginations, above the lowly Awe and Fear, they ought to have lived in towards their Almighty Creator: And thus in ſome Meaſure hath it fared with a few unhappy Souls, that have been beguiled by theſe Impoſtors.

I ſhall not altogether make it my Buſineſs to confute their Tenets; but ſince they more than once, with an intolerable Pride, boaſt of theſe Things, as New Revelations, and challenge the whole World to diſprove them, and upon this ſingle Credit it is that their credulous Adherents are ſo mightily perſwaded of their Patrons Sincerity and Infallibility (it being their firſt Leſſon at entrance, To abandon all Scripture or inward Witneſs) And that Muggleton to my Knowledge, in his Diſcourſes, and otherwiſe, makes it his brag, That he not only knows more than all all Men ever did or ſhall know to Eternity; but that the Doctrines Reeve and he ſay they are deputed to declare (by Virtue of an immediate oral Commiſſion from God himſelf) are ſuch divine Revelations, as were never known to Men or Angels before them.

And conſequently, ſince their Followers have nothing for Proof beſides their bare Aſſertion (which is moſt arrogant and falſe (for they deny all inward Witneſs) It will appear both reaſonable and neceſſary, that by an external Judge and Witneſs they ſhould be tryed; and if upon their Arraignment at the Bar, they be found only to have patcht up old Phantaſms together, and publiſhed them under the Name of Tranſcendent Spiritual Treatiſes, Divine Looking-Glaſſes, and the like; I hope they will be judg'd by every ſober Perſon to be both horrible Impoſtors, and their Commiſſion to be a meer Counterfeit.

The New Witneſſes Prov'd Old Hereticks, &c.

I now proceed to perform what has been promiſed by moſt Undeniable Proof.

Firſt, REeve and Muggleton declare as a great Secret to the World, That God is not an Infinite Spirit in every Place at all Times (contrary to the Scriptures, which ſay, He meaſures out the Heavens with his Span, nor can the Heaven of Heavens contain him) but againſt Men and Angels, and by Authority from the Holy Spirit (to uſe their own Words) God is but in the Shape of a Man; and that Man, in reſpect of his Body, is the Image of God. Tranſ. Spirit. Treat. pag. 15. Div. Look. Glaſs pag. 3, 4.

That this is againſt Scripture we prove.

Firſt, There is none like to the God of Jeſhurun, who rideth upon the Heaven in thy Help, and in his Excellency on the Sky: The Eternal God is thy Refuge, and underneath are the Everlaſting Arms, Deut. 33. 26, 27.

If the God of Jeſhurun be the true God, and none be like to him, then cannot Man's bodily Shape be the Likeneſs of the true God; conſequently, if Muggleton's God be in the Likeneſs of Man's bodily Shape, he is not the True God, becauſe he is not that God of Jeſhurun, which none is like unto.

Again, If the Almighty God were but of the Dimenſion of a middle ſtatured Man, how could he be ſaid to ride upon the Heavens and the Sky; and to have his Everlaſting Arms under a People, many of whom are ſingly bigger than himſelf; for by Muggleton's Principles, We are ſtill to keep to the Literal Senſe.

Secondly, But will God indeed dwell on the Earth? behold the Heaven and Heaven of Heavens cannot contain him, 1 Kings 8. 27. 2 Chron. 2. 6. chap. 6. 18.

If the Earth, on which dwell ſo many Millions of Men, be not able to receive God, as he is, and in Compariſon of limiting him to any Place, (ſuitable to ſuch a Body as Muggleton ſaith he hath) the very Heaven and Heaven of Heavens cannot contain him; Certainly this immenſe and infinite Being muſt be of a larger extent, than the Proportion of a mortal Man, his own Creature.

Thirdly, Who hath meaſured the Waters in the hollow of His Hand, and meted out the Heaven with a Span, and comprehended the Duſt of the Earth in a Meaſure, and weighed the Mountains in Scales, and the Hills in a Balance, Iſa. 40. 12.

He that cannot meaſure the Waters in the hollow of his Hand and mete out the Heaven with his Span, and comprehend the Duſt of the Earth in a Meaſure, and weigh the Mountains in Scales, and the Hills in a Balance, is not the true God; but a God of Man's Stature can never do that; therefore the true God is not ſuch an one, neither can ſuch an one be the true God.

Fourthly, To whom then will ye liken God? What Likeneſs will ye compare unto Him? The Workman melteth a Graven Image, and the Gold-ſmith ſpreadeth it over with Gold: Have ye not known? have ye not heard? hath it not been told you from the Beginning? have ye not underſtood from the Foundations of the Earth? It is he that ſits upon the Circle of the Earth, and the Inhabitants thereof are as Graſs-Hoppers, that ſtretches out the Heavens as a Curtain, and ſpreads them out as a Tent to dwell in. Iſa. 40. 18, 19, 21. 22.

In this Paſſage is a moſt pregnant Overthrow of this vain Opinion.

1. That God of whom Man can make a Likeneſs, is not the true God; but ſuch an one is Muggleton's, therefore not the true God.

2. If God was of Man's Figure and Stature, then Gold-ſmiths were able to make His Likeneſs; but this the Scriptures utterly deny, and aſk, what likeneſs will ye compare unto Him? Therefore God is not in the bodily Shape of a Man.

3 God by his Prophet diſdained all ſuch vain Conceits, and leſt any ſhould think ſo meanly of Him, he gives his own Character, Have ye not heard? hath it not been told you from the Beginning? It is he that ſitteth on the Circle of the Earth, and to whom the Inhabitants thereof are as Graſs-Hoppers; who ſtretches out the Heavens as a Curtain, and ſpreads them out as a Tent to dwell in.

Fifthly, God is a Spirit, and they that worſhip him muſt worſhip him in Spirit and in Truth, John 4. 24.

If God be a Spirit, he is either a finite or an infinite Spirit; a finite he cannot be, and be God; therefore an infinite one.

If God be an infinite and immenſe Spirit (which are Terms reciprocal) then not a Body of a little more than five Foot high, as blaſphemous, ignorant and ſottiſh Reeve and Muggleton darkly imagine; but the only wiſe and inviſible God is that infinite Spirit, therefore not confin'd to any bodily Shape.

Sixthly, For what the Law could not do in that it was weak through the Fleſh, God ſending his own Son in the Likeneſs of ſinful Fleſh, for ſin condemned ſin in the Fleſh, Rom. 8. 3. But made himſelf of no Reputation, and took upon him the Form of a Servant, and was made in the Likeneſs of Men, Phil. 2. 7.

By the Likeneſs of ſinful Fleſh, and was made in the Likeneſs of Men, we underſtand and grant Chriſt's taking upon him not only the Shape of a Man, but the Fleſh and Blood of a Virgin; the Queſtion will then be this, Whether Chriſt had this Shape before he took it? If he had, he took it after he had it, which is abſurd; if not, he was before he had it; and if he was before he had it, either he was like his Father, or he was not; if not, then not his Son; if he was, then becauſe the Scripture declares him to have taken upon him the Likeneſs of a Man, which ſuppoſeth him to have had a Being before he took it: God is not in the Likeneſs of ſinful Fleſh, nor made in the Likeneſs of Men; but is the Divine Immortal Subſtance, of which Chriſt was the expreſs Image before he took upon him the Form of a Servant, or was made in the Likeneſs of Men, which take Notice are both joyned together, as Expreſſions of his Condeſcenſion, as the following Verſe alſo ſhews; and in being found in the faſhion of a Man (as being a new and uncouth Thing to him) he humbled himſelf, and became obedient unto Death, &c. This was in the Day he took upon him the Form of a Servant and likeneſs of Man, making himſelf of no Reputation; and not whilſt he was in the Form of God, when he thought it no Robbery, to be equal with God.

In ſhort, If that only makes equal with God, which is found in the Form of God; then that which is in the Form of a Servant, and in the Likeneſs of Men, is not in that State equal to God; and if that be ſo, as it is, if Scripture be true, certainly there is ground to believe, that Reeve and Muggleton are not a little out of the Way, in aſſerting, That God's Form is the Pattern or Image Man's body was made by.

But here I expect to meet with an Objection, that it may be fit to remove, as that only one which can carry any Colour of an Anſwer with it.

Object. Moſt of thoſe Scriptures, eſpecially out of the Prophets, only intend to ſhew God's Sovereign Power, and not that he is not a Perſon, as I aſſert him to be. Thus far Muggleton and his Company.

I Reply, All Scriptures either import a literal or a myſtical Senſe, and either would ſerve us againſt this falſe Witneſs; if he ſays they ſhould be conſtrued myſtically, I will tell him, that he muſt give us the ſame Liberty in that Place to do the like, Let us make Man after our own Image; for they only collected from that Paſſage God's Image by Man's Likeneſs; but in many of the Places urged by me, thoſe Members, which in a literal Senſe denote a Body like to Man's, are particularly mention'd: We will never allow him to allegorize the more literal, and literize the more allegorical; if the one muſt be literal, let the other be ſo too, eſpecially there being more ground for it.

To Conclude, if he will interpret God's Hands, and Arms, and Span to ſignifie his Power, as is moſt true; then will I alſo explain God's Image to be Holineſs, which is alſo true. But if he will have it, that becauſe God made Man after his Image, and that Man has an Head, Eyes, Noſe, Mouth, Ears, Hands, &c. Therefore God has ſuch too, I will infer, becauſe the Scriptures ſay, He ſpan'd the Heavens with his Right Hand, and rid upon the Circle of the Earth, That he really and bodily did ſo ſpan the Heavens with a great Hand, and rid with a mighty Body upon the Circle of the Earth; which how ridiculous and falſe ſoever it is, is as true as Reeve's or Muggleton's Conceit: Thus far indeed they would be in the right, by ſuch a Conſequence, That Almighty God would have a Body, but they would groſly lye in the Dimenſions of it, who ſay, 'Tis no bigger than a middle ſtatured Man. Thus much, if not too much upon this Piece of old vain Anthropomorphitiſm.

That this idle Opinion is againſt that Underſtanding which God has given Men to judge of the Difference of Things, we alſo prove.

Firſt, If God were a Perſon of Man's Stature, it would deſtroy his Ubiquity or Omnipreſence, which is one of his moſt Divine Properties, rightly attributed to him: For, how is it poſſible ſo inconſiderable a Body can be at all Places at one and the ſame Time, by which to ſee and underſtand all Things, or to adminiſter Strength and Comfort to his ſcatter'd Flock throughout the World?

Secondly, If they would ſay, he is preſent by his Spirit (as read Reeve's Epiſtle to his Divine Looking-Glaſs) I affirm againſt all Muggletonians upon Earth, That then not that Body, but that Omnipreſent Spirit is the truly Infinite God.

1672. Thirdly, But I would fain know how God and his Spirit can be divided or ſeparated; Can any Man be truly ſuch, whoſe Spirit is abſent from him? What Body is a living Body without a Spirit, any more than Faith can be living without Works? How then can God's Body, no bigger than a Mortal Man's, be contained in Reeve's and Muggleton's conceited Heaven, and his Spirit every where? Where God's Spirit is, God is; he can never be divided from his own Life and Spirit; for God is that Spirit, or that Spirit is God; they are ſynonimouſly or equivalently to be taken. This the Apoſtle believed, when he told the Athenians, That God was nigh to every one of them, and in him they lived, moved, and had their Being.

Fourthly, How was it poſſible for Reeve to hear God ſpeak with a Voice of Words from beyond the Stars, as one Body ſpeaks to another, and no Body hear beſides himſelf, nor the viſible Firmament or Air to receive any Alteration or Diſcompoſure, as ever was when Voices of Words have been uttered, whether to Moſes, or of Chriſt, or otherwiſe?

If any ſay, It was a ſpiritual Voice, ſuch talk ſottiſhly; no Carnal Ear can hear a Spiritual Voice, as Reeve himſelf teacheth, p. 47. T. S. T. concerning which ſomething may be fitly hinted elſe-where.

Fifthly, But I would add from their wicked Principles, That if Man be God's Image, in Reference to his Body, then, becauſe Reeve and Muggleton declare that a ſelect Number of Men's Bodies and Souls are pre-ordain'd to be eternally damned, therefore God has decreed his own Image to Everlaſting Vengeance, and that to glorify himſelf too; which one Horrible Impiety I deſire all to weigh, and then there needs no farther Undertaking to his Confutation.

That this is OLD, and alſo Exploded HERESY, I prove.

This wonderful dark Secret is to be read in Theodorus of Hereſy, the 4th Book, and 10th Chapter, where he ſpeaks of one Audæus, who liv'd in Cœloſyria, in the Time of Conſtantius the Emperor, and grounded his Conjecture upon theſe Words, Let us make Man after our Image. Alſo ſeveral Monks inhabiting Ægypt conceited the God that made Heaven and Earth to be no bigger than a Man. Of which Opinion, with Muggleton, was one Theophilus of Alexandria, and others, they were called Anthropomorphites, as may at large be ſeen in Euſebius Pamphilus's 6th Book and 36th Chapter; alſo in Socrates Scholaſticus in his 6th and 7th Books: This was about the Year after Chriſt 403, and One Thouſand Two Hundred Sixty Nine Years ſince.

Secondly, THEIR ſecond Secret is, That God did not create the Heavens and Earth out of Nothing, but the Subſtance was with God from Eternity, T. S. T. Page 12.

That this is alſo inconſiſtent with SCRIPTURE we prove.

Firſt, In the Beginning God created the Heavens and the Earth, and the Earth was without Form and void, Gen. 1. 1, 2.

If they were created before they were formed, as ſaith the Place, then Creation and Formation are not one and the ſame Thing, as Reeve and Muggleton aſſert in their Tranſcendent Spiritual Treatiſe, p. 16. ſo that either the Authority of Scripture muſt be denied, or elſe Creation is firſt a bringing forth of the Chaos or rude Subſtance, and Formation the Diſpoſition of it into ſuch Parts, and Deſignation unto ſuch Ends or Services, as that all-wiſe Creator might think moſt befitting his great Work. Enough might be ſaid on this one Particular to confute all with whom the Scriptures remain of any Force.

Secondly, Hearken unto me, O Jacob, and Iſrael my called; I am he, I am the firſt, I alſo am the laſt; my Hand alſo has laid the Foundation of the Earth, Iſaiah 48. 12, 13.

To be firſt, and to have laid the very Foundation of another's Being, ſuppoſeth that Thing neither to be before it, nor ſo much as in Time equal with it; and therefore denotes Priority and Superiority: Wherefore thus I argue, If God was before ſo much as the Foundation of the Earth was laid, then was neither the Earth, nor Foundation of it, from Eternity with God. But the Text affirms, That God was firſt, or before the very Foundation was ever laid; therefore neither the Earth, nor Superſtructure, as to it's Form, nor yet it's Foundation or firſt material Principle was Co-eternal.

In ſhort, Nothing can be ſaid to create any Thing that is equal in Time with it, becauſe ſuch Creation ſuppoſeth the one to receive it's Being from the other: and ſince God gave it's Foundation, or firſt Bottom, the very material Principle, it follows, there could be no Co-eternity betwixt them.

Thirdly, ——— And the Word was God: All Things were made by him, John 1. 1. 3.

If all Things were made by him, then both Heaven and Earth, becauſe they are Part of all Things, were made by him; but the Place ſays, all Things (or whatever has Being) were made by him; therefore all Co-eternity of Earth or Heaven with the Everlaſting God is excluded and refuted.

To this anſwers that Paſſage of the Apoſtle Paul in the Acts, God that made the World, and all Things therein, &c.

Fourthly, To conclude this Head, For by him were all Things created; and he is before all Things; and by him all Things conſiſt, Coloſ. 1. 16, 17. And thou Lord in the Beginning haſt laid the Foundation of the Earth, and the Heavens are the Works of thy Hands, Heb. 1. 10.

That which had a Beginning, which was made, and which was and is upheld by another, neither can have been contemporary nor co-eterndl with that from which it received it's Being; but that did the Heaven and the Earth, and from Almighty God, as the Place proves: Therefore not Co-eternal with him.

Nor can their idle Shift any Ways ſecure them from the Dint of theſe Scriptures, nor the Arguments built upon them, viz. making is faſhioning, ſo God made the Heavens and the Earth, as a Carpenter makes a Door or a Cheſt; he faſhions it of Wood, but he does not make the Wood: A Diſtinction fitter for Bedlam, than Men pretending to be in their Wits: Can any rationally think, that when God is ſaid to lay the Foundation of the Earth, and to make the Heavens, and all that live therein, that he only faſhion'd them up? Who made the Trees, Plants, Beaſts, Fowls, Fiſhes, and rational Creatures? Do they ſtrain at a Gnat, and ſwallow a Camel? Can they think that it was harder to Almighty God, to create out of Nothing the more inanimate or lifeleſs Part of Heaven and Earth, than to compoſe that Variety of excellent Creatures, and to infuſe that great Spirit and Soul, by which they are reſpectively inſtincted or acted.

But how pertinent his Diſtinction is betwixt faſhioning and making, we will manifeſt by that remarkable Paſſage to our Purpoſe in Paul's Epiſtle to the Philippians, Chap. 2. And being found in Faſhion as a Man, he humbled himſelf, &c.

Was Chriſt a real Man, or not? If not, then Reeve's and Muggleton's Fleſhly Mortal Notions, of the Immortal Son of God, fall to the Ground; if a real Man, then to be faſhion'd may import to be, and the Faſhion of a Thing paſſeth for the Being of a Thing.

Of what Value now their Diſtinction is, they may conſider if they pleaſe.

Bur this Opinion is alſo againſt REASON.

Firſt, It is the Nature of what is Eternal, or from all Everlaſting to be Infinite, Unalterable and Almighty; for it oweth no Original or Preſervation to another, and is equivalent in all other Properties to Eternity: Now where there is not Proportion, it is highly to be ſuſpected, That there is no ſuch Thing at all; but is a meer Chimera, and real only in a Fiction.

Secondly, That there is no Reſemblance is manifeſt, the whole viſible World is full of Time, inconſiſtent with Eternity, as having Beginning and End; the Heavens have their ſet Motions, the Earth her diſtinct Seaſons, in which are various Revolutions, and both filled with divers Temporary Agitations and Motions: Therefore it is impoſſible that Heaven and Earth could have been from Eternity, which are ſo filled with and made up of all the Inſtances of Time and Mutation; for ſhould they, The Sun muſt always ſhine, the Rain deſcend, the Tide flow, the Winds blow, the Winter laſt, and every Alteration that is in Time be perpetual.

Thirdly, It is utterly impoſſible, that Temporal Beings could receive their Suſtenance and Growth from what is by Nature Eternal; there being as great Contrariety, at leaſt, Difference between them, as there is betwixt viſible and inviſible, Spiritual and Carnal Things.

1672. Fourthly, Such as is the Food, ſuch ſhould the Life be; now if this viſible World ſhould be Eternal, then the Food that ſprings from it ſhould nouriſh to a Life as Eternal as that World which does produce it. Nay, ſince Man's Body was made of the Earth, we might well infer, That Man's Body, as ſo made, is Eternal; and if Eternal, as ſuch, not Mortal, which Experience tells us is an idle Tale. But let this ſuffice at preſent.

But that this Conjecture had other Founders than Reeve and Muggleton, I prove, and that by two Inſtances.

Auguſtine ſays, That there were ſeveral that affirmed, That the Water was not made by God, but was Co-eternal. Next, a certain Sect called Seluciani taught, That the Subſtance of the Creation, or whereof the World was made, was not made by God, but Eternally with God (then no Creature, and then God) as may at large be read in the ſaid Auguſtine's Book of Hereſies; this Hereſy reigned about Anno 300 after Chriſt. To ſay nothing of that known Philoſopher Ariſtotle, who was ſometimes Idolater, ſometimes Atheiſt.

Thirdly, THE third Secret, which only was revealed to Reeve and Muggleton, if we will believe them, is, That the Soul of Man is generated or got by the Man and Woman with the Body, and that the Body and Soul are inſeparable. T. S. T. p. 42.

That this is contrary to SCRIPTURE TESTIMONY, I prove.

Firſt, And the Spirit to God that gave it, Eccl. 12. 7.

No Carnal Generation can bring forth a pure Spirit; External Matter producing only External Matter of it's own Kind.

But the Soul of Man is a Spirit, as the Words expreſs it in Reeve's and Muggleton's own T. S. T. p. 44. Therefore no Man gets the Soul or Spirit of a Man when he generates the Body.

Secondly, That which returns to God came from God; but the Soul of every Man returns to God, and conſequently came from him.

I omit mentioning more Scriptures, becauſe the following Principle being a Conſequence of this; what I prove there is proved here, namely, The Immortality of the Soul, againſt their Atheiſtical Aſſertion, of the Soul's Mortality with the Body: For where there is no Corruption, there could be no proper Generation; and if the Soul be Immortal, it was not deſcended of Mortal Race, or begotten of elementary viſible Matter.

That this is againſt all Right UNDERSTANDING, I prove.

Firſt, Such as is the Soul, ſuch muſt that be which produceth it; but it is Spiritual. Now that which generates the Body of Man, being only and meerly viſible Matter, it cannot produce or generate an intellectual Soul or Spirit.

Secondly, If Man got the Soul, then would that Soul be as well the Image of the Father as the Body, and partake as intirely of the Father's Nature and Diſpoſition in all Reſpects: But Experience ſhews us, That Sober Parents have Wild Children, and Religious Children Debauched Parents; therefore Parents do not generate the Soul.

Thirdly, If Soul and Body be inſeparably generated, then the Sexes as well belong to Souls as Bodies; the which as it is abſurd, ſo would there be Men and Women in that very Diſtinction to all Eternity: And who ever read of She Souls or Female Souls?

Fourthly, If Soul and Body were intermixedly and inſeparably generated by Man, then in all Anatomies it were no more difficult to find out the Soul than any other Part: and in Caſe of Opening or Diſſecting of Living Men, as I have at the Univerſity ſeen living Beaſts by Anatomiſts, it would not be impoſſible, but rational, that one ſhould behold the very Thoughts, Purpoſes, and Intents of ſuch Men's Hearts and Souls. But becauſe this were moſt Vain, we ſhall conclude, The Soul is not generated with, nor inſeparable from the Body, but of an immaterial Nature.

That this is no newer than the reſt, and was eſteemed Hereſy in the Primitive Times, I will Evidence.

There was a Seƈt called Luciferians, from one Lucifer of Sardinia, and the Tertullianiſts, who held, That the Soul was transfuſed by Generation from the Parents to their Children, and that the Soul is of the Fleſh, and Subſtance of the Fleſh; of which read Socrates Scholaſticus, in his 3d Book, and 7th Chapter; alſo Auguſtine of Hereſies; and Theodorus, his 3d Book and 5th Chapter, about Anno 350.

Fourth, THE Fourth ſublime Myſtery of thoſe Phantaſtick and Imaginary Perſons is a Conſequence of the former, namely, the Mortality of the Soul, That the Soul and Body go to Duſt, and riſe together at a General Reſurreƈtion. T. S. T. p. 43, 44.

That it is conſiſtent with Scripture, I prove.

Firſt, And the Lord God formed Man of the Duſt of the Ground, and breathed into his Noſtrils the Breath of Life, and Man became a Living Soul, Gen. 2. 7.

If the Breath of Life made a dead Body live, then the Privation of the Breath of Life, makes a living Body dead; ſince the Life it has was from and is whilſt that Breath inſpired remains in it; and if ſo, then not the Soul, but the Body dies.

2. This is farther prov'd thus, If it was living Breath before it entered into the Body, it muſt be living Breath after it is withdrawn from the Body; ſince the Body makes no Alteration upon it, but it upon the Body; as from a life-leſs Heap to a living Body, and from a living to a dead Body again.

3. Though ſome of thoſe Things which are living may die, becauſe they live by the borrowed or lent Life of another; yet every Life, as Life, cannot die; for ſince Life and Death are contrary, as Light and Darkneſs, becauſe very Light can never in it ſelf be utterly extinguiſh'd by Darkneſs, ſo as to become very Darkneſs, nor Truth Untruth by Error, it is impoſſible that the Breath of Life, or Soul of Man, can ſuffer Death, as here underſtood; for that were very Annihilation it ſelf, or being from an intelligent Something made Nothing.

Secondly, And he cried unto the Lord, and ſaid, O Lord my God, haſt thou alſo brought Evil upon the Widow with whom I ſojourn, by ſlaying her Son? And he ſtretched himſelf over the Child Three Times, and cried and ſaid, O Lord my God, I pray thee, Let this Chila's Soul come into him again: And the Lord heard the Voice of Elijah, and the Soul of the Child came into him again, and he revived, 1 Kings 17. 20, 21, 22.

If the Soul was withdrawn when the Body lay dead, as the Place proveth, then the Soul lay not dead from all Motion, Life and Heat, in the Body, as one inſeparable Lump. But the Soul was ſeparated, and when it did return, according to Elijah's Prayer, and had reſumed it's forſaken dead Body, it revived the Body again; therefore the Soul died not with the Body, nor at all; inaſmuch as if it had died, when ſeparated, it could not have revived the dead Body, when returned.

In ſhort, This Place moſt expreſly proves, 1ſt, The Bodie's Death, from the Soul's Separation: 2dly, The Soul's certain Departure from the Body: 3dly, The Soul's living after Separation.

Thirdly, Then ſhall the Duſt return to the Duſt, as it was; and the Spirit to God, that gave it, Eccl. 12. 7.

This Place very evidently harmonizeth with the former, and is a pregnant Inſtance to the Confutation of that Atheiſtical Opinion, and as pertinent here, as where mentioned. For, as Man is compoſed of Body and Spirit, ſo they have two Originals; the one from below, Duſt; the other from above, the Breath of Life; They have alſo two Dooms, the Duſt to the Duſt, from whence it came; the Soul to God, from whence it came, to be by him ſentenced to the Bleſſed or Curſed State for ever, according to the End of that Chapter, For God will bring every Secret Thing to Judgment; from whence I argue,

1. That only can properly return to Earth that came from it, that is, Duſt.

But the Soul never came from Duſt nor Earth, as Reeve and Muggleton affirm, p. 45. T. S. T.

Therefore

1672. Therefore it is impoſſible that the Soul can truly be ſaid to return to the Earth.

2. That which returns to God is what more immediately and eminently came from him, and that cannot die.

But the Soul doth return to the End aforeſaid.

Therefore the Soul came from him, and dieth not, neither can it with the Body return to Duſt.

Fourthly, Be not afraid of them that kill the Body, and after that have no more that they can do, Luke 12. 4.

If Reeve and Muggleton ſpeak Truth, then he that kills the Body kills the Soul too; for he cannot kill the one without the other.

But Chriſt Jeſus, the Author of Truth and Salvation, ſaith, The Body may be killed by Man, and the Soul remain alive; therefore Reeve and Muggleton are Lyars againſt Chriſt and his Doctrine.

The Body's Death is Natural, the Soul's Spiritual; Man's Power extendeth but to one, and conſequently the latter is independent of the former.

Fifthly, For me to live is Chriſt, to die is Gain; but if I live in the Fleſh, (or Body) this is the Fruit of my Labour: yet what I ſhall chuſe, I wot not; for I am in a Streight betwixt two, having a Deſire to depart, and be with Chriſt, which is far better, Phil. 1. 21, 22, 23. From whence I plainly argue,

1. If to die was Gain, then he was not to enjoy leſs of that Divine Conſolation which he had living, ſince to live was Chriſt. But he that has lain Body and Soul One Thouſand Six Hundred Years in the Grave, and may for ought we know One Thouſand Six Hundred more, muſt needs have loſt not only a little, but all that he enjoyed Living, inſtead of farther Gain: Therefore I infer, Their Principle of the Soul's Mortality is contrary to the Teſtimony of the Apoſtle; for with him to die was Gain. That this was the Apoſtle's Senſe, I proceed yet farther to make appear from his own Words.

2. The Reaſon of his Streight was, Whether to live to ſerve Chriſt, or die to enjoy him: But this had been no Streight, if he was to loſe what he had, and not to enjoy him after Departure in any Senſe, as the Dead don't; therefore it was not the Apoſtle's Judgment, though it is Wicked Reeve's, and Blaſphemous Muggleton's, That the Soul is deprived with the Body by Death, of all Divine Enjoyments of God, or Puniſhment from him, 'till the Day of Reſurrection. For the Apoſtle counted it far better, to depart, and be with Chriſt; which had been a Vain, if an In-obtainable Deſire, as would follow from their Anti-Scriptural Opinion.

Sixthly, And when he had opened the Fifth Seal, I ſaw under the Altar the Souls of them that were ſlain for the Word of God, and for the Teſtimony which they had held; and they cried with a loud Voice, ſaying, How long, O Lord, Holy and True, doſt thou not Judge and Avenge our Blood on them that dwell on the Earth? Revel. 6. 9. 10.

If their Souls liv'd after their Bodies were ſlain, then they did not die together; but the Scripture proves, their Souls lived after their Bodies were Slain: for they cried for Vengeance on the Blood-thirſty Inhabitants of the World; therefore Souls are not Mortal, as Bodies are.

In ſhort, Their Bodies were Slain, their Souls were alive; their Bodies were in the Grave, their Souls under the Altar, worſhipping God Day and Night for ever and ever.

That this is againſt Reason, I farther prove.

Firſt, There is nothing Mortal that is not Elementary, or compoſed of viſible Matter or Subſtance; but the Body is that only Part of Man, which is ſo compoſed.

And conſequently, the Body is the only Mortal Part of Man.

Secondly, That only can be ſubject to viſible and material Generations, Agitations, Motions, Privations, Diminutions, Increaſes, Alterations, Operations and Corruptions, which is of a Viſible, Elementary, and Corporal Subſtance, (for an Inviſible none ever ſaw ſubject to any one of them) but of ſuch is the Body, and not the Soul (by Reeve and Muggleton their own Aſſertion, of Man's Nature to be of the Faith which is God's Nature.)

Therefore the Body is ſubject only to Generation and Corruption, and not the Soul, 1672.

That the Soul is not of the ſame Nature as the Body, I thus prove;

Thirdly, That which is intellectual, which in it's pure Nature knows, comprehends, governs and orders all viſible, elementary and corporeal Beings, and yet is Inviſible, Spiritual, Rational, and Internal (as is manifeſt from it's Heavenly Meditations, it's ſecret Thoughts, it's ſerious Reflections, acute Memory, and profound Reaſonings about the Cauſes and Effects of all Things) cannot but be of a Nature more refined, excellent and noble, than to fall under the ſame Generations, Revolutions, and Corruptions, thoſe inferior viſible Beings are ſubject to. But ſuch is the Nature of Man's Soul, as daily Experience manifeſts to all that will not wilfully Blind their Eyes; therefore though Man's Body be Mortal, as being of that groſſer Subſtance and Elementary Nature, yet his Soul is of an immortal Nature, and can receive no Alteration of Being by any that may or can happen to the Body, which is but a Well-Organiz'd and diſpoſed Inſtrument for the Soul to exert or put forth her ſelf by, according to the good Pleaſure of God, and that creaturely Prudence neceſſary to be eyed in and about all Worldly Concernments.

Thus much and enough to this Point.

That this is as Grey-headed as Atheiſm, we may ſuppoſe; and that it is not only their only Revelation I prove:

John the 22th Biſhop of Rome, and ſome in the Countries of Arabia, held this very Doctrine, affirming, That Souls and Bodies dyed and roſe together; of which read Origen, and Euſebius Pamphilus, lib. 6. chap. 36. nor can any be ignorant that converſe with Story, that long before, ſince, and at this Day, where Reeve and Muggleton were never thought on, this wretched Opinion is but too rife, Anno 249. 1423. Years ſince.

Fifthly, BUT their moſt admirable Secret of all is, That God deſcended with his Body in the Shape of a Man, and diſſolved himſelf into the Virgin's Womb, and ſo brought forth himſelf a Man, who after he had lived to ſuch an Age, was Crucified, and really dyed, or ceaſed to be either God or Man for Three Days and Nights: T. S. T. p. 23 to 30.

That this is in three Particulars highly inconſiſtent with Scripture I prove.

Firſt, God did not ſo tranſmute his Divine Nature into Fleſhly Mortal Nature.

1. Your Father Abraham rejoyced to ſee my Day: Then ſaid the Jews unto him, Thou art not yet Fifty Years old, and haſt thou ſeen Abraham? Jeſus ſaid unto them, Verily, Verily, I ſay unto you, Before Abraham was, I am, John 8. 56, 57, 58.

If that which was before Abraham, and yet then in being the ſame, was God, as none that own the Scriptures do deny; then becauſe that outward viſible Body was not before Abraham, that was not God: The firſt all grant, the ſecond none reaſonably doubt; for Chriſt was crucified about the Three and Thirtieth Year of his Life: And then I hope none will believe the Eternal Deity was Tranſmuted, or Tranſubſtantiated into that Viſible Body; for ſo Chriſt's Anſwer would not have been true: for that mortal Body, which ſay Reeve and Muggleton was the Eternal God, had a Beginning, and was of that Age the Jews ſaid it to be.

2. Whoſe are the Fathers, and of whom as concerning the Fleſh Chriſt came, who is over all, God bleſſed for ever, Rom. 9. 5.

If Chriſt, as concerning the Fleſh, was not God, as the Text manifeſtly implieth (by a Diſtinction betwixt his Appearance in that Body of Fleſh, and his Divine Eſſence or Being, with their Originals) then that fleſhly Body was not God, or the Eternal God was not Subſtantially Tranſmuted into that Fleſhly Body.

Secondly, Neither could Elias be God's Deputy to tranſact in his ſtead the Affairs of Heaven, during that Journey which theſe Impoſtors affirm God to have taken, from any Scripture Evidence.

1. For my Father is greater than I, John 14. 28.

And he kneeled down and prayed, Father, if thou be willing, remove this Cup from Me; nevertheleſs, not my Will, but thine be done, Luke 22. 41, 42.

If Elias was that Father which Chriſt ſpake of, and prayed and cryed to, as Reeve and Muggleton aſſert; then either he that cryed to him was not God, but Elias really God (and ſo they both contradict their own Doctrine, who tells us, That he that was born of the Virgin, and dyed on the Croſs, was the Everlaſting Father) or elſe, that which needeth and crieth for Help of another, was greater than that, which was able to ſuccour and deliver it; which how abſurd it is, let all ſober Men judge: Therefore he to whom he cry'd and pray'd in all Streights, and whom he had affirmed to have received all his Doctrine and Commiſſion from, and who was greater than all, was the only true God, and not any glorified Creature. For God could not leave Elias his Deputy, and not leave him his Power, which if he did, he left Himſelf; ſince without his Almighty Power he were not God.

Secondly, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of Heaven and Earth, becauſe thou haſt hid theſe Things from the Wiſe and the Prudent, and revealed them unto Babes. Mat. 11. 25. The Hour is come, glorifie thy Son, that thy Son alſo may glorifie thee. And this is Life Eternal, to know thee, the only True God, and Jeſus Chriſt whom thou haſt ſent. And now Father, glorifie thou me with the Glory which I had with thee before the World was. John 17. 1, 3, 5.

On this Place I raiſe theſe three brief Arguments;

1, If Elias was not the Father of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, nor Lord of Heaven and Earth, but a created Being, as all confeſs, then it was not unto Elias that Jeſus returned that Heavenly Thankſ-giving, but to his own Father, greater than all, who is Lord of Heaven and Earth.

2. If he to whom he prayed be that only true God, and that to know him, and Chriſt Jeſus whom he hath ſent, be Life Eternal, then was it not Elias to whom he prayed, becauſe all grant, that he is not the only true God, nor did he ſo love the World as to ſend his only begotten into the World, that through believing in him it might obtain Eternal Life. This moſt plainly knocks down all Conceit of a Deputed God, that Chriſt ſhould pray unto, becauſe, ſuppoſing that ſuch a Thing could be, yet he could not be that only true God, whom to know were Life Eternal: But this to whom Jeſus prayed, who ſay Reeve and Muggleton was Elias, ſaith Chriſt Jeſus, was the only true God, whom to know is Life Eternal.

3. This God to whom Chriſt prayed, that he would glorifie him, was the ſame Eternal God with whom he had Glory before the World began; but Elias was Two Thouſand Years or more after the World was made, inſtead of being before the World began; and conſequently, Elias was not that God and Father, unto whom the Lord Jeſus made his Supplications.

Object. But Muggleton will tell me, That Elias was enthroned with that Godlike Power, Glory, Wiſdom and Majeſty, that rendred him all that which was needful to make able to anſwer all thoſe Petitions, and what ever elſe was neceſſary.

Anſw. If the Majeſty, Power, Wiſdom and Glory of God were left with Elias, I would fain know what God had to dye with; for 'tis his Power, Glory and Divine Wiſdom that makes him God; If Elias had them, God left himſelf deſtitute of what made him God: For how can a Man leave his Properties alive behind him that truly Man him, and yet be ſaid to dye in Reeve and Muggleton's Senſe, which is, That all thoſe Faculties and Properties dye with a Man? Would one not rather ſay, that ſuch an one does not dye, becauſe that which makes him a true Man lives: So that their Conceit is ſpoiled in the over-turning of this one Thing; for, ſhew the Impoſſibility of God's dying, and yet leaving his Power, Wiſdom and Glory with Elias, and the whole Fabrick, filled with their many Chambers of Imagery, will fall to the Ground; for, ſay they, without a God's dying, and becoming from Immortal Mortal, and from Mortal, Immortal again, the whole Heaven and Earth would be out of order, and no Right Knowledge or Salvation can be procured or arrived at.

Much might be urged from many other Scriptures, as that God raiſed him, and that he is ſet down on the Right-Hand of the Moſt High, but let this ſuffice.

Thirdly, Nor is there any Thing in the whole Scriptures of Truth, that ſo much as incourages any to believe the Mortality of the Immortal God.

1. Even from Everlaſting to Everlaſting, thou art God, Pſal. 90. 2.

He that was from Everlaſting, and is to Everlaſting, never ceaſeth to be, as that which dyes doth; but the true God was from Everlaſting, and is to Everlaſting; therefore Reeve and Muggleton's Mortal God is not the true God; or, the true God never ceaſeth to be.

2. Haſt thou not known, haſt thou not heard, that the Everlaſting God, the Lord, the Creator of the Ends of the Earth, fainteth not? Iſa. 40. 28.

He that could never faint, could never dye, becauſe Death is more than a Degree beyond fainting (though fainting be a Temporary with-drawing of Life) but the true God and Creator of the Ends of the Earth never could faint; therefore the true God could never dye.

3. And one of the Malefactors ſaid, Lord, remember me when thou comeſt into thy Kingdom? And Jeſus ſaid, Verily, verily, I ſay unto thee, To day ſhalt thou be with me in Paradiſe, Luke 23. 42, 43.

If Chriſt, the Author of all Truth, ſpake Truth, as moſt unqueſtionably he did, then both himſelf and the Malefactor were in Paradiſe that Day, and conſequently, it was utterly impoſſible that they ſhould both dye from all viſible and inviſible Life, Senſe, Underſtanding and Enjoyment. But I hope, none are ſo impudent as to ſay, Chriſt ſpake not the very ſimple Truth, and ſo would have deceived the poor Man; and yet I know not how far Muggleton will go in this Matter, ſince he told me, that Moſes in his Diſcourſe of the Creation, ſet the Cart before the Horſe; and that if Paul were alive, he would reprove him, and ſo cenſure that Holy Spirit by which he wrote.

Therefore it was not the Eternal Deity that ſuffered Death, but the Body of outward Fleſh, ſubjected to all thoſe natural Paſſions of Heat, Cold, Hunger, Thirſt, Life and Death (as ours are, ſin only excepted) which the Eternal Infinite Creator had provided, through which to manifeſt his Everlaſting Wiſdom, Counſel and Mercy for the Redemption of Mankind.

That theſe three Branches of this ſottiſh Opinion are all of them greatly repugnant to that Underſtanding God has afforded Men to meaſure and diſtinguiſh Things by, I prove.

Firſt, It was impoſſible for God to tranſubſtantiate himſelf from an Immortal Deity to a mortal Man.

1. It muſt ſuppoſe God's begetting himſelf, which is abſurd, and impoſſible: ſince being begotten, ſuppoſeth him to have had a Beginning (that gave Beginning to all) and to beget, ſuppoſeth him to have been before he was begotten, and ſo before he was.

2. Such as is the Begetter, ſuch muſt the Begotten be: We ſee, Men get Men; Horſes, Horſes; Fiſh, Fiſh; and every Seed has it's own Body, as ſay Reeve and Muggleton; then, by good Conſequence, the Immortal God muſt have begotten himſelf an Immortal God, one that could not dye by the Hand or Cruelty of his own Creature.

3. It is as impoſſible for God to become a Creature, or to diſſolve his own Infinite, Immortal, Eternal Nature into a Finite, Mortal, Created or Generated Nature; as for a Mortal Created Nature to be refined, preferred, and tranſmuted into an Infinite, Immortal, Creating Nature. In ſhort, It is as impoſſible for God, as God, to become a dying Man, as for a dying Man to be changed into an Immortal Eternal God: They are reciprocally impoſſible and Blaſphemous.

Secondly, It is abſurd, and untrue to affirm, that Elias was God's Deputy, and he to whom Chriſt prayed when in that Body of Fleſh.

1. He that is Infinite, is every where, and circumſcribed to no particular Place; but Scripture, Reaſon, and Reeve and Muggleton (yet they are ſeldom of one Mind) own and declare the Infiniteneſs of God, therefore God is every where, and if every where, then not excluded Heaven, the Habitation of his Throne, and conſequently Elias was not God's Deputy, neither was it any ways needful that he ſhould be.

2. That which in any Senſe may be ſaid to want, is not God, who is all in all to himſelf; but who needed a Deputy, neither was Omnipreſent, nor Almighty, and therefore not the only True God.

1672. 3. Either Chriſt did not ſtand in need when on Earth, or he did; if not, then he was not ſincere in his Supplications; if he did, then the Omnipotency was with Elias (he that ſupplies Wants is greater than he that is ſupplied) and conſequently, he that cried was not that Everlaſting God and Father, but Elias.

4. Elias was not ſo conſiderable as Moſes, who was the firſt Grand Commiſſioner of God's Diſpenſations to the Sons of Men (as Reeve and Muggleton affirm) why then ſhould Elias be preferred to Moſes, a meek Man, Iſrael's Leader; and who ſaid of Chriſt himſelf, That a Prophet like unto me ſhall the Lord your God raiſe up unto you, him ſhall you hear in all Things (then not Reeve and Muggleton in any new Thing)' 'Tis ſtrange therefore, that Moſes was not rather of the two, elected to repreſent him in Heaven, who was a Figure of him on Earth. But though Reeve would not tell us ſo, I am of the Mind I know the Reaſon of it, namely, That Chriſt did not call, Moſes, Moſes, but Eli, Eli, when upon the Croſs; and I am perſwaded he had no other Ground for that Conceit, not conſidering that Eli, Eli, are Hebrew Words, importing no more Elias, Elias, than they do Moſes, Moſes, but My God, My God, as the Place expreſly ſhews us.

Much more might be ſaid, but let this ſerve.

Thirdly, That the Immortal God could never Dye, or ceaſe to be, is manifeſt, and the contrary Blaſphemouſly Falſe.

1. If God was he that made all Things, and by whom they are upheld, as all believe, that believe there is a God at all, then had he ceaſed to be, the Created had ceaſed to have been upheld; and conſequently all had fallen into it's firſt Chaos, or elſe the World can ſubſiſt without Him.

2. That he, whoſe Nature it was never to have Beginning, and ever to live without Variation, could never become ſo contrary to his own Nature and Being, as to change, dye or ceaſe to be; but ſuch was the true God, therefore he never dyed.

If Saints live, move, and have their being in God, as ſay Reeve and Muggleton, pag. 201. D. L. G. then either God never dyed, or there were no Saints when the Jews Crucified Chriſt, or the Saints dyed too. They deny them all; they ſay, God Died, and there were Saints, and they Lived, Moved and had their Being in God, though Dead; which how all, or any of them can hang together, let ſober People judge.

4. If God died, who lived, and by whom? For nothing can live of it ſelf, that had beginning from, or Dependence on another, as had all the viſible World on God; therefore becauſe all lived, and was preſerved, that had it's Being from God, He from whom they had their Being, could not be annihilated whilſt they remained in Being.

5. If God was raiſed by Elias, then either Elias was the True God, or Elias the Creature was ſtronger than Jehovah the Great Creator. Let this ſerve to confute, and for ever to overturn theſe idle Chimeras of thoſe filthy Dreamers Reeve and Muggleton.

That this Blaſphemous Conceit of the Immortal God's Mortality, is not new, I ſhall make appear.

Firſt, Valentinus is ſaid, openly to have publiſhed at Rome, That Chriſt brought a Body down from Heaven, and that he after ſome Time paſſed through the Virgin's Body again. Noetus affirmed, That the Father, Son and Holy Ghoſt were Fleſh, or that one Perſon of the Son of Man, or that Perſon ſo long ſince at Jeruſalem, to be Father, Son, and Spirit; and that when he ſuffered on the Croſs, the Father, Son and Holy Spirit died. See Euſeb. his 4th Book and 10th Chap. Ireneus. Epiphanius Hereſ. 31. & 57. about Anno 150. which is 1522. Years ſince. What Stange New Revelation this is!

Laſtly, I May mention another of their Tenets, held at this Day by all Calviniſts abroad, and of ſeveral Sects in theſe Nations; namely, Predeſtination, or that God from all Eternity, without any other Inducement than his own Pleaſure, hath decreed ſome for Salvation, and ſome for Damnation; contrary to which, all their Obedience or Rebellion ſhall be in vain, to alter his Determination. D. L. G. p. 72, 73, 74.

That

1672.

That this Principle is Accurſt by Scripture I prove.

Firſt, The Righteouſneſs of the Righteous ſhall be upon him, and the Wickedneſs of the Wicked ſhall be upon him; but if the Wicked will turn from all his Sins that he hath committed, and keep my Statutes, he ſhall ſurely live, he ſhall not dye, Ezek. 18. 20, 21.

1. If Righteouſneſs or Wickedneſs are the Grounds of God's Rewarding or Puniſhing the Souls of Men, then is there no Predeſtination previous, without Conſideration had to their Works; but the Text affirms this moſt plainly; therefore ſuch Decrees are denied and diſowned.

2. If Man may turn from his Righteouſneſs and Wickedneſs, then are the Means no more inevitably Predeſtinated for Men to uſe, than before-mentioned; but Men may turn from either, and accordingly they will be rewarded; therefore no ſuch Predeſtinated Damnation or Salvation.

Secondly, For it is good and acceptable in the Sight of God our Saviour, who will have all Men to be ſaved, and to come unto the Knowledge of the Truth, 1 Tim. 2. 3, 4.

If the Apoſtle writ by the Spirit of God, that gives to know the Mind of God; then it was the Good Will of God, that all Men, not excluding any upon a Predeſtination, ſhould come to the Knowledge of the Truth, and be ſaved: And conſequently, there is no Predeſtinated Reſtraint upon Men's Underſtandings, from knowing the Truth, nor fore-appointed Bar from their enjoying the End of ſuch True Knowledge, even the Salvation of their Souls.

Thirdly, The Lord is not ſlack concerning his Promiſe (as ſome Men count Slackneſs) but is long-ſuffering to us-ward, not willing that any ſhould periſh, but that all ſhould come to Repentance, 2 Pet. 3. 9.

The Long-ſuffering of God either related to the Elect, or Reprobate, or Neither.

Not to the Elect, becauſe there is no need of fearing their Periſhing.

Not to the Reprobate, for there is no Poſſibility of their Repentance.

Therefore to neither; and conſequently, either the Place is ſpurious, or deceitful; or elſe thoſe Kinds of Elections and Reprobations are meer Phantaſms. Let theſe few Inſtances ſerve, of thoſe Hundreds that might be mentioned, moſt expreſly to confirm the ſame.

That this is highly inconſiſtent with Reason, I briefly prove.

Firſt, it renders God moſt Unwiſe, to make ſo many Thouſand Creatures on purpoſe to Rebel againſt him, to Kill, Lye, Steal, Blaſpheme, and commit all manner of outragious Wickedneſs, to the grieving of his own Spirit, the making him Repent he had made the World, and obſtructing of his Glorious Work of Reformation.

Secondly, It greatly diſparageth his Juſtice, which conſiſts in proportioning Rewards and Puniſhments to the Good and Evil Works of Men, and overturns both, by making their Eternal States neceſſary and unavoidable upon a Predeſtination, without any Regard to their Works; ſo that Man is damn'd for not doing what he can't do, any more than it is poſſible for him to break an Almighty Decree.

Thirdly, It quite deſtroys his Mercy, and renders him the moſt Cruel of all Beings; for inſtead of not being willing, or deſiring the Death of a Sinner, He is here made to deſire, and take Pleaſure in it too; nay, ſo Eſſential is this unutterable Cruelty to his Glory (as ſay the Aſſerters of this Opinion) that it would be leſſened or eclipſed without it: O infamous!

Fourthly, But above all Things, it ſtrikes at the very Root of God's Rectitude, and Faithfulneſs, and makes him worſe than the worſt of Men and Devils: For whilſt he ſays, Your Sins have kept Good Things from you; as I live, I delight not in the Death of a Sinner; Repent, and Iniquity ſhall not be your Ruin; How long would I have gathered you, and ye would not? But now God commands all to Repent; God is no Reſpecter of Perſons, but they that fear him in every Age ſhall be accepted, &c. with many more. They make him but to complement with wicked Men, and ſpeak them fair in Words, meaning nothing leſs in his Heart, having Pre-Ordained them to Eternal Wrath.

Fifthly, This Principle would defile his eternally inherent Holineſs, by making him as well the Father of Sin, as of Deſtruction; for Men are either damned for ſomething, or for nothing; if for nothing, that were moſt Wicked in theſe Predeſtinarians, 1672. deſtinarians Account, then for ſomething: And what is that? Sin: Very well: And how came they to this Sin? They committed it: And how came they to do ſo? They would do it. Why? Could they have avoided it? By no Means. Where's the Difference then betwixt being Damn'd for not doing what they could not, and doing nothing? The Predeſtination was not, that all Evil Men, that wilfully withſtood Mercy, ſhould be Damned; For they were Ordained never to receive it; but that ſuch a Number, conſiſting of ſuch and ſuch particular Perſons, ſhould Unalterably and Unavoidably be Damned, only to Glorifie God.

Sixthly, But this would ſtain the Glory of the Almighty, in that neither in himſelf, nor from the Redemption and Salvation of the Souls of Men, his Glory is great enough, unleſs it be compleated in the Eternal Deſtruction of far the greateſt Part of Mankind.

Seventhly, This deſtroys all Good Works; for, may all ſay, Neither can my Good nor Evil Works make one Hair white or black, add, or diminiſh, in reference to God's unalterable Decree; and therefore will I give my ſelf unto the Liberty of the Fleſh, and enjoy the Pleaſures of this Life, whilſt I can have them.

Eighthly, It deſtroys all Government, ſince who cares how deſperate he is, or what Injury he does, who conceiting to himſelf his Poſt is pitcht, his State ſet, and that unchangeably; but breaking all Laws, takes his Revenge on what would bring him to condign Puniſhment for his Exorbitancies.

To conclude, and come ſomewhat cloſer to the Perſons concerned: What ſignifies their coming to call them to Repent, that cannot be ſaved if they do? Or to warn ſuch to Repent that cannot be Damned? What ſignifies their Commiſſion? Or their Curſing, or Bleſſing? For can they Bleſs him to Life, that is Ordained beforehand to be Damned? Or can they Curſe him to Death, who is Pre-ordained to Eternal Life? If therefore Men are Pre-ordained to Salvation or Damnation, to what Purpoſe ſhould any fear their Curſe, or prize their Bleſſing, ſince neither can alter or change the Condition of any Perſon; and what more contrary to the Mind of the Merciful God, who is willing that all ſhould come unto the Knowledge of the Truth, and be ſaved?

That Antiquity both knew, and abhorr'd this Opinion, is manifeſt.

Read Joſephus, in his 18th Book of Antiquities, and ſecond Chapter. Alſo Epiphanius, in his Preface to his firſt Book of Hereſie. Again, Euſebius, in his fifth Book, Chap. 13. and Socrates in his firſt Book, and Chap. 17. and you will be fully informed of the Abettors of this dangerous and wicked Opinion, namely, a Sect of the Phariſees; alſo Florinus and Blaſtus, againſt whom Ireneus, Biſhop of Lyons in France, wrote two Epiſtles, and a Book call'd Ogdous, wherein he tells Florinus, "That when himſelf was a Child, and with the famous Chriſtian Polycarpus, who converſed with John that converſed with Chriſt, he remembred him to "be buſie about the Emperor's Court; and farther tells him, That had the Apoſtle "John but lived to have heard that Damnable Doctrine, which makes God the Author "of Evil, he would have ſaid, Good God, unto what Times haſt Thou reſerved me! "And tells him, That in publiſhing ſo wicked an Opinion, he had declared that which "all the Hereticks before had never durſt to pronounce plainly, with much more to this Purpoſe, againſt him.

The Sect called Manichees, from one Manes, held, and promoted this Opinion of Fatal Deſtiny, who, Muggleton-like, is reported to have called himſelf Chriſt and the Comforter, and publiſhed the Work of one Buddas in his own Name, calling it, A New Diſpenſation; all which, Reader, I aſſure thee, Hiſtories do inform us, to have been known in the 2d, 3d, 4th, 5th, and 600 Years after Chriſt, which is above a Thouſand Years ſince: In which Time, many were the impudent Spirits that aſſum'd to themſelves as great Authority as Muggleton in Reeve's Abſence doth at this Time; namely, Simon Magus, who had ſo far poſſeſs'd the Romans with his Sorcery, of his (pretended) Divinity (calling himſelf to the Samaritans the Father; to the Jews the Son, to the Gentiles, the Holy Spirit) as that the Heathens erected a Statue or Image of him, in the Time of Claudius at Rome, having this Inſcription, Simoni Deo Sancto, to the Holy God Simon. Next, one Helen a Woman, that accompanied him, whom he called the Principal Underſtanding, much like Muggleton's Daughter, who, Reeve ſaid, Should be the Chiefeſt of Women. Euſebius in his 2d Book, and 12, 13, and 14th Chapters. After this, one Menander, ſaid to have been a Sorcerer, and the Diſciple of Simon, went up and down, deluding

ſilly credulous People, by affirming to them, He was the Great Power of God, come down from Heaven, and that all were to believe in, and be Baptized in his Manner, or they could not be ſaved, but thoſe that did, ſhould never dye. Read Euſebius in his 3d Book, Chap. 23. Ireneus, Book 1. Chap. 21. Epiphan. Hæreſ. 22. Again, Carpocrates is reported to have (like Reeve and Muggleton) patch'd his Opinion (who was ſo Vain-Glorious as to affirm he knew all Things) out of Simon, Menander, Nicholas, (from whence came the Nicolatians in the Revelations) Saturninus, Baſilides, &c. and ſee Epiphan. Hæreſ. 27. alſo Auguſtin of Hereſies. Again, we find that Euſebius tells us of one Montanus (whereof Montaniſts, or Cartaphrygians are called) who taught in Phrygia, that he was the Holy Ghoſt, as may be ſeen in the 5th Book of Euſebius, 13, 14, 15, 16, and 17th Chapters. Alſo that one Buddas affirm'd, That he was born of a Virgin, (as true as Muggleton's being the Laſt Witneſs of God.) This Buddas writ a Book, and in his ſwelling Pride, ſtyl'd it Myſteries, much like the Whimſies of Reeve and Muggleton, in their Tranſcendent Spiritual Treatiſe; next, he wrote a Book, called The Goſpel, of the Nature of Reeve and Muggleton's Divine Looking-Glaſs: His End was to break his Neck: 'Tis to be fear'd that a worſe will be miſerable Muggleton's, even Torment of Spirit, as Reeve is ſaid to have left the World in. To conclude, Noetus, the Ring-Leader of that Great Myſtery, (never revealed till within theſe Twenty Years, ſays Reeve and Muggleton) namely, the Godhead being a Man, and ſo abſolutely Fleſh and Blood, as that when the Body dyed, the Godhead ceaſed, and lay under Death's Power three Days and three Nights. He, through the Height of his Imaginations, called himſelf Moſes, and Aaron his Brother, as Reeve called himſelf and Muggleton, T. S. T. ſee Epiphanius Hæreſ. 57. By all which, Reader, I am not without Hopes, but it does appear, how falſly, and with what Treachery, theſe Perſons have dealt with poor ſilly People, who not being ſatisfied in what they did know, have pin'd their Faith on the Sleeves of ſuch as told them Things they did not know, and ſo have been given up to believe a Lye: For what is more evident, than that in this very Trial he, and his deceaſed Colleague, are found Guilty of Error, Treachery, and great Deceit: Therefore, Reader, delay not to paſs the Juſt Sentence of Impoſtor and Counterfeit upon them, and their Commiſſion, who would raiſe to themſelves a New Sect out of the Ruins of Old Hereſies, and that under the Pretence of Choice Revelations, wherein there is no Proof beyond their bare Aſſertions, and to make them paſs, forge an Authority from Heaven (which loaths both them, and their Lyes) to back and recommend them as unheard of Myſteries.

O! ſell not thy Reaſon, whoever thou art, enſlave not thy Judgment, nor rob God's Light and Grace of it's Office, to guide and teach thee in the Denial of thoſe Evils that are to be forſaken, and in embracing whatſoever ought to be followed: Bring not thy ſelf under the Power of an ignorant, arrogant, blaſphemous, and ſottiſh Man, but remember that God Almighty, who cannot lye, hath promiſed, That in the laſt Days he would be the Teacher of his People by his Spirit of Truth, and where is the Habitation of the Moſt High, but in the Contrite and Humble Hearts of Men? For whatſoever may, or can be known of God, is manifeſted within, who having illuminated all, and given to every a Man a Talent, into it, Reader, have thy Mind retired, and wait to have it ſubject thereunto, and thou ſhalt come to know him (whom to know aright is Life Eternal.) But as I have plainly ſhown their abominable Cheat, in obtruding Old Fables for New Revelations upon People (whereby I have diſcharg'd the firſt Part of my Promiſe) ſo for a Confirmation of my Judgment concerning Muggleton, and to accompliſh this abridg'd Diſcourſe, take my following Relation, with the ſame Impartiality that I give it thee.

I Have been twice to viſit Lodowick Muggleton, and at each Time I ſtaid too long to repeat all, or the very Words which paſſed betwixt us; yet ſhall I faithfully write ſomething of the Matter and Words, as near as I at preſent do remember them.

Penn. Art thou the laſt Witneſs that ever ſhall be?

Mug. Yes; and there ſhall never be another.

P. Who ſent thee?

M. God ſpoke to John Reeve, and he ſpoke to me.

P. Is that all thou haſt to produce, only J. R's Word for it? This he avoided.

Again, P. Thou ſayſt God did not create the Earth and the Heavens, he only faſhion'd them; making them Co-eternal with God; but Moſes ſaid he did: Let me ſee a Bible.

1672. M. Moſes put the Cart before the Horſe.

[This I bore for the next Queſtion's Sake.]

P. Paul the Apoſtle, who alſo wrote, by the Inſpiration of the Holy Ghoſt, ſaith God created all Things, or made them; and the World is a great Part of all Things: Beſides, if it was before he made it, in this Senſe, Muſt it not be God? Since nothing which is uncreated can be a Creature.

M. If Paul were living, I would have reproved him for that: Come not here to diſpute, but believe, I ſay it, that's enough.

P. Canſt thou reprove the Holy Ghoſt; for he ſpake by it?

M. Yes.

P. That's Blaſphemy; beſides, if thou ſayſt it, muſt I therefore believe it, becauſe thou ſayſt it?

At this he grew inraged; and but for an Acquaintance by, and a Friend of his, I had doubtleſs been Curſt at that Time.

The next Time I came (with a Friend in Company) I found him ſitting by the Chimney-Corner, quaffing with ſome of his Followers and Benefactors, as what we ſaw before us did Evidence. My firſt Salute was thus:

P. How is it Lodowick? Methinks thou look'ſt with thy old thread-bare black Suit, like a ſequeſter'd begging Prieſt.

M. I am a Prieſt.

P. Art thou? Of what Order?

M. The Order of Aaron.

P. Aaron! Where be thy Bells then?

M. I have them in the Myſtery.

P. Myſtery! For Shame, don't talk of a Myſtery; for there was no ſuch Thing that did belong to that Order; Things were altogether External, Typical, and Figurative: Methinks this were enough to ſhow, that thou art no Ways concern'd in any Chriſtian Commiſſion, who art not a Prieſt after the Order of Melchiſedeck, but Aaron, whoſe Prieſthood is at an End, as ſaid the Apoſtle to the Hebrews, ch. 7. ſo that thou haſt Unchriſtian'd thy whole Commiſſion, and brought it under the Law of a Carnal Commandment; and therefore haſt no Part nor Portion in the Power of an Endleſs Life, as ſaith the ſame Apoſtle. He interrupted.

M. Have a Care, Life and Death's before thee; therefore chuſe Life and live, &c.

P. But Lodowick, thou pretendeſt to know the Dimenſions of God, how high may he be?

M. Betwixt your Height and his, (meaning a Friend then preſent.)

P. O Abominable! Well, L. Muggleton, God will blaſt thee for ever, thou Preſumptuous and Blaſphemous Wretch, If thou turneſt not from thy Wickedneſs, with much more.

M. Thou ſhalt be Damned, God has decreed thou ſhalt be Damned; thou art of the Seed of the Serpent.

P. Why then didſt thou ſet Life and Death before me juſt now, (ſaying thou hadſt more Mind I ſhould be ſaved, than any of the Quakers) if I am ordain'd to be damn'd? Is it not great Deceit, to exhort a Man to chuſe what he cannot have, though he bid for it, and to refuſe that which he is unable to avoid? But Muggleton, I will not ſay, that I ſerve ſuch a God; no, my God never ordained thee to be damned, whether thou doſt well or ill: This deſtroys all Rewards and Puniſhments, and makes Evil and Good unavoidable.

M. I would not give a Pin for that God which would ſave us both, now I have Damn'd thee.

P. Why doſt thou talk of a God; for thou ſayſt, Thy God can dye; did the Immortal God ever ceaſe to be?

M. I would not give a Ruſh for that God which can't dye.

P. I ſay, thou and thy God ſhall to the Pit, from whence ye came, where is Death and Darkneſs for ever: How can God ceaſe to be, and yet be God; ſince if he ceaſt, every thing that remained in Being, muſt have been greater, ſince below ceaſing to be is nothing? But ſuppoſe this Nonſenſe and Blaſphemies; how roſe he again?

M. God left Elias with Power.

P. Then Elias was greater than God; for that which raiſeth, is greater than that which is raiſed; but if the Power never dyed, the Power was God, and that which dyed, not God: O, Helliſh Impudence and Blaſphemy! O, Muggleton, thy End will be Deſtruction.

M. W. P.

M. W. P. I ſay thou art a Damned Devil; remember Thomas Loe, who was the wickedeſt Devil that ever I knew, who never went out of his Bed after I Curſt him.

P. Thy Curſes are under my Feet; Thomas Loe was known to be an infirm Man in his Natural Conſtitution (as well as by his great Labours) for near theſe ſixteen Years, who is gone to reſt: But art thou not aſhamed to ſay, he never went out of his Bed, who was as well as he uſed to be, and often after abroad? And when he fell ſick, was often up, and changed his Lodging before he dyed, having been ill three Weeks. Is this thy infallible Spirit, that thus ſuggeſts Lyes to thy ſelf and others?

M. I heard ſo.

P. Is that enough for one that pretends to be the laſt Witneſs of the High and Mighty God, to ſay for a Lye, I heard ſo? Cover thy Face for Shame.

M. He writ me a Curſe, and he writ a very good Hand too; but for all that he was a Damned Devil, and thou W. P. art as arrant a Devil as he, and you ſhall be Damn'd together.

P. Lodowick, in this thou haſt told another Lye; for it was an Apprentice that writ it: Where is thy Unerring Spirit now, thou Vile Impoſtor? And for being Devils, and Damn'd together, God rebuke thee; only this know, that I am willing to go where he went, and whither thou canſt not come, without great and unfeigned Repentance.

M. Juſt ſo, many of you Quakers have dyed after my Curſe, amongſt others, William Smith.

P. This is a notorious Lye; for the Man is yet Living: Well, Muggleton, God will reckon with thee for all thy Wickedneſs.

M. Thou art a Cheat, and a Deceiver, W. P. (my Friend ſpoke)

G. W. Muggleton, have a Care what thou ſayſt; for though it is our Religion to forgive Injuries; yet perhaps his Friends would queſtion thee, and make thee prove it.

M. I care not a Fart for him, nor his Friends, nor the Greateſt Man in England.

P. Thy black Mouth is no Slander; but know, Muggleton, That from my Youth I have ſought God, and dared not willingly to abuſe a Worm: And as my Friend has ſaid, thou knoweſt there are Laws, other People make uſe of to vindicate their Credit by, but I forgive thee; thereby thou may'ſt know the Difference betwixt our Gods, and our Religions; thou revileſt, and paſſeſt Curſes upon me, I freely forgive thee.

M. I care not a Turd for you, nor the Law neither.

This, with many more unſavoury foul Expreſſions fell from his Mouth. He alſo affirmed, That God never gave a Law but to Devils; and that Moſes and the Iſraelites were ſo. I aſkt him if he received a Law? He ſaid, Yes. I aſkt him for whom? He ſaid, For the People of theſe Nations to whom he was ſent. I told him, Then that render'd both himſelf, and thoſe to whom he was ſent, Devils by his own Aſſertion.

In ſhort, ſuch Impertinency, ſuch Blaſphemy, ſuch ſottiſh Nonſenſe, and ſuch unſavoury ill-bred Expreſſions, I don't remember to have heard from the Mouth of any Man, pretending to Religion. If this be your Prophet, (you that believe in him) your Laſt Witneſs, the only Meſſenger of the Spiritual Diſpenſation, and Grand Commiſſioner of Heaven, whom all muſt credit, or be damned: For Shame, own not ſo manifeſt an Impoſtor, ſo foul a Wretch, ſo ill an Example; his Arrogancy, his Ignorance, his Sottiſh Life, his Cowardlineſs, and finally, his abominable Lying Spirit is far from the Holy, Patient, Suffering, Self-denying, and Heavenly Life of Chriſt and his Apoſtles, who being Reviled, Bleſſed. I therefore intreat, nay, warn the Reader hereof; and to fear the Infinite Almighty God, whoſe mighty Judgments (for Sin in the Conſciences of Men and Women) are come; and not to Worſhip this Beaſt, nor any Evil Thing, by bowing to his dark Imaginations: For know of a certain, the Time is at hand, when every Word, Faith and Work ſhall be tryed, that they who believe the Truth, and live in it, may have Rejoycing in themſelves, and not in another; when Muggleton's Airy Stories (which may perhaps ſwell and puff up the Minds of ſilly People) ſhall vaniſh; and ſuch as have made his Lyes their Refuge, ſhall be ſwept away, and their Place not be found among the Living. Therefore mind the Light, the Grace, the Gift of God in your ſelves, which leads to Repentance, and all manner of Godly Converſation (a Thing Muggleton meddles not with) that by it your Hearts may be ſanctified, and ſettled in the Belief of the Truth, as it is plainly revealed to every Particular in Chriſt Jeſus, ſhall you obtain a ſound Underſtanding, and poſſeſs the Habitations of true Peace, when Muggleton and his obſtinate Brats ſhall howl in the Lake that burns with Brimſtone and Fire for ever and evermore. W. P.

John Reeve and Lodowick Muggleton, Contradicting Themſelves, and One Another.

IT can be no Wonder unto ſuch as have impartially read thus far, that theſe Men ſhould contradict themſelves, and one another; who are filled in their Diſcourſes (or rather Ravings) with nothing ſober and conſonant; but Confuſion heap'd upon Confuſion, to the aſtoniſhing of every Man that is in earneſt about Religion, and has any due Fear and Reverence for God; but becauſe they lay it down, as the Mark only of the True Commiſſioners of Heaven, in nothing to Jar or Contradict, I am the more induced to add to my own Pains and the Readers, a Compariſon of their Contradictions.

Doth not this Demonſtrate thoſe to be the Commiſſionated Witneſſes of the Unerring Spirit, that are endued with a Divine Gift, to write a Volume as large as the Bible, and as pure a Language as that is, with as much Variety of Matter, without looking in any Writing whatſoever, or Having any Real Contradiction in it, R. & M. Div. Look Glaſs, Page 112.

Contradiction I.

Therefore it is written, Duſt thou art, and unto Duſt thou ſhalt return: When the Lord ſpake thoſe Words, he did not ſpeak to the Fleſh, or outward Form, or Body of the Man; but he ſpake to the Inward Spirit or Soul, that underſtands the Words of a Spirit. Look in his Tranſc. Spiritual Treatiſe, p. 44.

Wherefore it may be queried by ſome, What was that which entred into the Duſt, and brought forth Angelical Bodies; was it any thing elſe, but the Divine Nature of God Himſelf?

Unto this Curious Query, from the true Light of Life I anſwer,

That neither the Spirit of Angels, nor any other Creatures were formed of the Divine Nature; but the Souls of Adam and Eve only, His Divine L. Glaſs, p. 8.

Animadverſion I.

If that which returns to Duſt, cannot be ſaid to return to Duſt, unleſs it firſt came from Duſt; then, if the Soul returns to Duſt, it conſequently came from Duſt; and if from Duſt, then was it not formed of the Divine Nature, as on the other Side is affirmed, and therefore a Contradiction.

Contradiction II.

Again, I declare, That when the Elect are Glorified, they are abſolutely of the very ſame Glorious Nature, both in Spirit and Body, as God is. T. S. T. p. 46.

Therefore the moſt Wiſe and Holy Creator created the Bodies of Angels Spiritual, and their Natures Rational; and he made the Body of the Man Adam Natural, and his Soul Spiritual: For, if their Spirits and Bodies had been both of the Divine Nature, then it would have been impoſſible for them to have been capable of any Sin or Evil, any more than the Creator Himſelf; for what would have been formed, but Creators only, inſtead of Creatures? D. L. G. page 9, 10.

Animadverſion II.

If to be in Body and Spirit Spiritual, be to be Creators, then Gods; and if the Saints are to be of the ſame Body and Spirit, then they are to be Creators, and conſequently Gods; which is abſurd: For if the Reaſon, why Man was not at firſt made all Spiritual, but the Soul Spiritual, and the Body Natural, was, becauſe he had been a Creator, as they ſay, which was impoſſible; then, if Man is to be of the ſame Body and Spirit that God is, as they affirm; Man is to be a Creator in the next World. Monſtrum Horrendum!

Contradiction III.

If the very God-head had not died, (that is) If the very Soul of Chriſt, which is the Eternal Father, had not died in the Body, or with the Body, to quiet or ſatisfy the Cry of the Guilt of Sin in Men's Spirits, all Men would have periſhed to Eternity: Thus the Father and the Son was but one unſeparable Perſon in Immortal Glory, from all Eternity; and became, in Time, one unſeparable Perſon in Mortality. T. S. T. p. 25, 26.

If Angels and Men had been both of God's Divine Nature in their Creation, then inſtead of their being capable to be changed into an higher or lower Condition, at the Divine Pleaſure of the Creator; would they not rather have been Unchangeable Creators, than Changeable Creatures? D. L. G. p. 9.

Animadverſion III.

If the Reaſon why Men and Angels are not of the Divine Nature, be, That they are ſubject to Change, and that if they had been made of it, they would not have been capable of Mutation into lower or higher Degrees, at Divine Pleaſure; then becauſe God is of that Divine Nature, it is conſiſtent with his Nature to Change, or be Tranſmuted, as they often ſpeak, from an higher State to a lower; and ſo, their whole Conceit of the Deity's Mortality, is Vain, and by themſelves Contradicted.

Contradiction IV.

Again, Many ſeeming wiſe Men do imagine the Lord to be a Vaſt Spirit. D. L. G. p. 16.

Others blaſphemouſly ſay, that the Spirit of Man is God, and that the Body only dies: Theſe ſay alſo, God is an Infinite Spirit. T. S. T. p. 44.

Is not that Infinite Spirit, aud it's Glorious Properties, but only one Eſſence, or God-head Subſtance? D. L. G. p. 106.

You may know, that all Things are poſſible and very eaſy for an Infinite Spirit to bring to paſs. D. L. G. p. 114.

Animadverſion. IV.

It can be no Crime, for any to believe, God to be an Infinite or Vaſt Spirit, as one while they would have it, whilſt preſently they call the God-head Subſtance, an Infinite Spirit, and confeſs all Things to be poſſible unto an Infinite Spirit. O Groſs Contradiction!

Contradiction V.

I ſay, In the Great and Notable Day of the Lord, by his Decree, they ſhall every one of them riſe out of the Duſt together; not with the ſame Bodies that died, bacauſe there was ſomewhat of God in thoſe Bodies. T. S. T. p. 11.

So likewiſe that Infinite Spirit abiding within the glorious Body of Chriſt, is ſo unſpeakably fiery Glorious, that no Created Spirit of Man nor Angel is able to bear the In-dwelling Eſſence of it. D.L.G. p. 69.

Animadverſion V.

If ſomething of God dwells in this Life in the Souls and Bodies of Men, then it is not ſo fiery Glorious, but it may abide in them, and they not be conſumed: For God's Nature or Eſſence is irreconcileable to nothing but Sin; the Righteous ſhall behold him Face to Face: So that one while, God dwells in Men; another while, if it ſhould be ſo, Man would be conſumed. Behold the Self-Oppoſition of theſe Miſerable Witneſſes.

Contradiction VI.

How can any Rational Wiſe Man poſſibly think, that Man, or any other Living Forms, ſhould ever be without a Glorious Creator, to give them their Beings at firſt. D. L. G. p. 16.

This was the Creator's very Caſe in the Matter of Creation; and who dares ſpeak againſt it? no Spiritual Wiſe Man, I am ſure, only ſome Luſtful Perſons, may diſpute againſt it, though it be contrary to their own Reaſon, when it is ſober. D. L. G. p. 12.

I confeſs, it is not only contrary to Reaſon, but far above all Reaſon's Reach, truly to underſtand the Myſteries of the Creation. D. L. G.

Animadverſion VI.

If an Appeal be made to rational Men, concerning the Creation by a God, and if it be contrary to ſober Reaſon not to believe ſo, then it is not far above, nor contrary to all Reaſon, to underſtand the Creation; for elſe, why is it rendred by them ſo agreeable to Reaſon, and an Appeal made unto Rational Men concerning it?

Contradiction VII.

Again, For your Information, in whoſe Perſons, the Lord by his Holy Spirit Delights to dwell. T. S. T. p. 22.

Whoever thou art, that boaſteſt of a God, and a Chriſt, and his Ordinances, and of a Glory to come without thee, in the Higheſt Heavens; if thou ſhould'ſt be left to the Pride and Envy of thy Formal Spirit, to condemn the Inviſible Teachings of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt in his Innocent People, becauſe they are contrary to thy Opinion; I ſay, from the Everlaſting Emanuel, That thou art alſo but a Reprobate. D. L. G. p. 68, 69.

For in him dwelleth all the Fulneſs of the Godhead bodily, and from his Fulneſs we all receive, and Grace for Grace. If Chriſt, or his Spirit, were within Men when they uttered thoſe Words, all Faith or Hope, in Reference to Eternal Glory was vain. D. L. G. p. 67, 68.

Animadverſion VII.

If Chriſt delighteth to dwell in the Perſons of his People, by his Eternal Spirit, and that he thereby teacheth their Souls what he requires from them, as ſay they; then it is not in Vain to believe or hope, though Chriſt, or his Spirit, were within, as they alſo ſay: nay, they affirm; That the Souls of the Redeemed is the Throne of God, on which he now ſits, D. L. G. p. 46. And therefore, though Chriſt, or his Spirit were in Believers, yet that would not make their Faith and Hope Void; Why? Becauſe they ſtand therein.

Contradiction VIII.

Is that Eternal Spirit, in it's Heavenly Virtues, any Thing elſe, but Immortal Crowns of bright burning Glories? Tho' the Eternal Spirit, be that Inviſible God, that by the Power of his Almighty Word hath created all Things; and though all Power, Wiſdom and Glory proceeds only from an Inviſible Eternal Spirit, D. L. G. p. 106.

Can this Infinite Spiritual Glory, be ſenſible of it's Divine Excellency, or be a perfect Bleſſedneſs, except he hath a diſtinct Body, ſuitable to his Eternal Spirit; yet without a Body, Face, or Tongue, or a Majeſtical Perſon, like unto Earthly Monarchs, he could not poſſibly have ſpoken diſtinct Words, nor his Glory have been perfect. D. L. G. p. 106.

Animadverſion VIII.

If that which is requiſite to define or render God truly ſuch, be ſingly attributed to the Eternal Spirit, without the Mention of a Body, then is the Eternal Spirit the Inviſible God, as they themſelves prove. If the Eternal Spirit be nothing elſe than Crowns of Immortal Glory, and that it is the Inviſible God, whoſe Power created all Things; and if all Wiſdom, Glory and Power proceed only from this Inviſible Eternal Spirit, as they ſay; then not unto a Body, but unto that, who alone has all Power, Wiſdom and Glory, is the Godhead to be aſcribed; but that is unto the Inviſible Spirit: And if the Eternal Spirit be thus qualify'd, how poſſibly can it's Glory be eclipſt for want of a Body, Face, or Tongue? Is the Eternal Spirit Crowns of Immortal Imperfect Glory? And how can all Glory alone be given unto the Spirit, whoſe Glory is Imperfect, without a Body? He ſhould have ſaid, From the Spirit and Body alone proceedeth all Glory, &c. But this Confuſion is like the reſt.

Contradiction IX.

Moreover, You may know, That thoſe Men called, Independents, Anabaptiſts, Presbyterians, are the Literal Apoſtolical Jews. D. L. G. p. 191.

Furthermore, Thoſe Anabaptiſt, Preſbyterian Men, which hold it lawful to perſecute Men, in their Perſons and Eſtates, upon a Spiritual Account; I ſay from the Eternal Spirit, That they are for the moſt Part, the Off-ſpring of thoſe bloody-minded Jews that Crucified the Lord of Glory upon the Account of Blaſphemy. D. L. G. p. 192.

Animadverſion IX.

That Exception ſhould have been made before: for, if thoſe that are called Independents, Presbyterians, and Anabaptiſts, are Apoſtolical Jews, and yet ſuch as are for Perſecution for Conſcience, are of their Race that put Chriſt to Death, then they are not of the Apoſtolical, but Moſaical Jews: But how can they make that hold together? The Apoſtolical Jew, is one, not outward in the Letter, but in the Heart, and in the Spirit; if ſo, either they are Independents, Preſbyterians, or Anabaptiſts; or elſe thoſe three Opinions are come to be of theirs, ſince at the Diſtance they ſtand, they cannot be under the ſame Covenant and Circumciſion. But to be ſhort, By their declaring them (whilſt not their Followers) Apoſtolical Jews, we may conclude, That Reeve and Muggleton count themſelves none of them, but Men of another Diſpenſation; and therefore not of the Circumciſion in Heart, which is not according to the Letter, but the Spirit; beyond which Diſpenſation, all other Pretenſions are Imaginations and vain Exaltations.

Contradiction X.

It is not thy Natural or Allegorical Whimſies, that can blind the Elect, nor pacify the Judge of Life and Death within thee. D. L. G. p. 268.

And now I deſire no other Witneſs, to bear Record in the Conſciences of Men to this Epiſtle, whether it be Truth, or no, but the Everlaſting Jehovah, or Eternal Spiritual Jeſus himſelf. D. L. G. p. 208.

Again, If every Man have the Spirit of Chriſt living in his Conſcience, as many Men vainly imagine; What then is become of the Spiritual Body of that Jeſus that aſcended into the Throne of his Glory, in the viſible Sight of Men and Angels? D. L. G. p. 68.

Animadverſion X.

If the Judge of Life and Death be in Man, then Chriſt unto whom all Judgment is committed, is in Man, to juſtify or condemn him; therefore Chriſt, or his Spirit, or both are in Man, and conſequently, it is no Impediment to, nor Denial of Chriſt's Aſcenſion with a Glorified Body: Neither is it vain to believe, that the Spirit of Chriſt lives in the Conſciences of Men. Obſerve their Folly, The Judge of Life and Death is within thee; Again, It is vain to imagine, that the Spirit of Chriſt lives in Men's Conſciences: Thus they ſay and unſay almoſt in a Breath. But above all, That the Everlaſting Jehovah, and Eternal Spiritual Jeſus, ſhould be in Men's Conſciences the true Witneſs, and yet not be in Men: Who can underſtand this ſtrange Riddle?

Contradiction XI.

But you may ſay, Did God the third Day ariſe from the Dead, by his own Power, or by the Power of his Deputy, Elias? To which I anſwer, He by his own Decree, and Spiritual Compact, with Elias, and by that Spirit of Faith, in his Innocent Body, the which Faith died in his pure Body, and quickened immediately, and brought forth that Natural Innocent Body, out of the Grave, a pure Spiritual Body. T. S. T. p. 32, 33.

Therefore whoſoever ſaith, that any other Body aſcended into Glory, but that very ſame Body of Fleſh and Bones that ſuffered Death upon the Croſs, he is an Antichriſt, and in utter Spiritual Darkneſs. D. L. G. p. 15.

Animadverſion XI.

If the Body died a Natural Body, and was brought forth, a Spiritual Body; then, unleſs that Spiritual Body laid down it ſelf, and reſum'd it's Natural Body, as at the firſt, it could not be the very ſame Body, of Fleſh, Blood and Bones, that Died, which Aſcended; but it muſt have been a Spiritual Body. In ſhort, If Natural and Spiritual be not all one, as ſay they elſe-where in theſe Contradictions, then was it no more the ſame Body, than Natural is Spiritual, and Mortal Immortal, upon their own Principles; and conſequently, Reeve and Muggleton are the Antichriſts, and in utter Darkneſs.

As for the Three-fold Anſwer he gives to the Objection, it is wretchedly Blaſphemous. 1. God's Decree. 2. His Compact with Elias. 3. His own Spirit of Faith. To the firſt I reply, What did the Decree avail, when the Power was in another, and when he that made it, was dead? To the ſecond I return, That God's Riſing lay on the Side of Elias's Honeſty, in performing Obligation, and keeping Covenant, and not in any other Thing. 3. As to that Spirit of Faith, they confeſs it died, if ſo, how did the Faith raiſe him? Beſides, In whom ſhould God have Faith? In Himſelf? He was dead; In Elias? He could not exerciſe it, when in the Grave. Again, He that believes, enjoys not fully; and has Confidence in one Greater than Himſelf; but God wants nothing, and can have no Object for Faith, and therefore no Faith. O the Unparallelled Sottiſh Folly, and Raving Conceits of theſe Men!

Contradiction XII.

So likewiſe, I poſitively affirm, againſt all Gainſayers under Heaven, That I John Reeve am the laſt commiſſionated Prophet, that ever ſhall declare Divine Secrets, according to the Foundation of Truth, until the Lord Jeſus Chriſt appear on his Throne of Glory. D. L. G. p. 119.

A True Interpretation of all the chief Texts and Myſterious Sayings, and Viſions opened, of the whole Book of the Revelations of St. John; wherein is unfolded, and plainly declared, thoſe wonderful deep Myſteries, and Viſions interpreted, concerning the True God, the Alpha and Omega; with Variety of other Heavenly Secrets, which hath never been opened, nor revealed to any Man, ſince the Creation of the World to this Day, until now: By Lodowick Muggleton, &c.

Animadverſion XII.

Who ſhall we believe of theſe two? they both pretend the ſame Commiſſion, and yet contradict: But how can any Credit be given thereunto? when (though Reeve ſays, he was awake, at the receiving of it, yet preſently after tells us, that) he knew not, whether he was an Immortal God, or a Mortal Man: What ground is there for any Belief, of what Reeve himſelf was ſo far from a clear Knowledge of, of, as that he was not more unable to reſolve, whether he was an Immortal God, or a Mortal Man: than to know the Truth of all his Revelation? O, the Willingneſs in Men to be blind! Certainly if the Devil himſelf ſhould, as a Devil, ſeek Proſelytes, ſome would follow him.

A few Additional Obſervations upon ſome Paſſages, of John Reeve and Lodowick Muggleton, in the before-cited Books.

THe Spirit of Faith and Love, infinitely in the Glorious Perſon of God, overfloweth as a Fountain, continually with Revelation of New Heavenly Wiſdom, from whence flow New Joys, and Glory to Himſelf, T. S. T. p. 46.

Obſervation, That unto which any Thing may be added, cannot be ſaid to be Perfect, and conſequently cannot be God; but he unto whom Wiſdom is renewed. wanted that Wiſdom before he had it, and conſequently was not Perfect, and therefore not the True God; unto whom there is no Encreaſe of Wiſdom, Power or Strength; but was and is, and will be for ever the ſame Unalterable Being; Infinite in Wiſdom, Power, and all other Divine Excellencies, without any Diminution or Addition.

The Reaſon why Men's Bodies in Death, or after Death, do Rot or Stink, in the Grave, and come to Duſt, is, becauſe there was Sin in their Bodies; whilſt they lived; but on the contrary, if Men had no Sin in their Natures or Bodies, they might Live and Dye, and Naturally Riſe again, by their own Power, in their own Time, T. S. T. p. 33.

Obſerv. O the exceeding Folly and Blindneſs of this ſottiſh Man! Why ſhould Sin only cauſe the Body to Rot, Stink and go to Duſt? Does not the Scripture, and Reeve himſelf, in his T. S. T. p. 44. give another Reaſon, namely, That what came from Duſt, is that which muſt go to Duſt? Beſides, If the Fleſh of Beaſts, is capable of Dying, Rotting, and going to Duſt, who never ſinn'd, why ſhould not Man have Dyed, and gone to Duſt, though he had never ſinn'd? For though there is a vaſt Difference betwixt Men and Beaſts, in reference to their Souls, and Bodies too, ſo far as may concern the Diſtinction of Kinds; yet as to their being lyable to one and the ſame External Caſualties, and Sufferings, by Hunger, Thirſt, Sickneſs, Death and Corruption, no Man can rationally contradict: But above all, this deſerves our Obſervation, That ſince Reeve is Dead, Rotten, and gone to Duſt, he was not cleanſed from Sin, as he is ſaid to have pretended; but by Reaſon of his Wickedneſs, Death holds him in the Grave, and conſequently, he cannot have been God's laſt Witneſs, whoſe Witneſſes he hath always cleanſed from that, againſt which they were to Witneſs. And it is farther evident, That Sin is not the Cauſe of Men's Bodies crumbling into Duſt, from Reeve's own Words, who ſaith, The Moſt High God, by his Unſearchable Wiſdom, hath Decreed, that all Light of Life in Man, ſhall become Dead, Duſt, or Earth, D. L. G. p. 17. So that God's Decree, and not Man's Sin, in his own Senſe, muſt be the Reaſon of ſuch Converſion and Corruption.

Therefore you may know, that the Lord's Reaſoning with the Jews, was only by his Prophets, which were Rational Men, like unto themſelves, which were ſent to Convince thoſe ſtony-hearted Jews, by declaring the Glorious God, and his Spiritual Truth unto them, in the Balance of their own Reaſon, D. L. G. p. 117.

Obſerv. It is remarkable, with what unuſual Nonſenſe, and Contradiction he proceeds, in his whole Affair, ſince herein he Contradicts one of his main Foundation Principles; namely, That God hath not in his Glorious Spirit, one Motion of Reaſon inherent, nor yet the Elect of God, as may be ſeen, D. L. G. p. 18. and T. S. T p. 17. Whereas it's manifeſt unto all Men, who would not deny themſelves the Uſe of their Underſtandings, That none can properly reaſon of any Subject, unto whom Reaſon cannot be, or is not inherent; ſo that if God, did both Reaſon with the Jews, and his Prophets were Rational Men, then may we ſafely conclude, That Reaſon is Inherent, to God, and his Elect Children; and that Pure Reaſon is not inconſiſtent with, or diſtinct from the Nature of Love and Faith; not only, becauſe it is moſt rational to believe in, and love God moſt uprightly; but becauſe John Reeve himſelf (that great Enemy to all ſober Reaſon) makes it the Balance, 1672. in which the Prophets Declaration of the Glorious God, and his Spiritual Truth, ſhould be weighed.

Again, I declare from the Holy Spirit, The Lord ſpake by Voice of Words to his Three Commiſſioners, which he hath ſent unto the World; yea, I know God the Father ſpake unto Moſes, as a Man ſpeaks unto his Friend; and I know, that God ſpake unto the Apoſtles, in the Perſon of his Son, becauſe I know the Lord God ſpake unto me in the Perſon of the Holy Ghoſt; only the two former Witneſſes, ſaw the Perſon of God, in Part Viſibly, but I ſaw the Glory of his Perſon Inviſibly, or within me, becauſe I am the Meſſenger of the Holy Inviſible Spirit, T. S. T. p. 35.

Obſerv. Upon all this I make my following Obſervations, as regular as this Irregular Confuſed Matter, will permit me.

Firſt, Then I would fain know, how he came to this Mighty Confidence in God's ſpeaking to Moſes; for it is in no part of his Commiſſion; and Muggleton ſays, Moſes ſet the Cart before the Horſe; and they both of them deſpiſe the Scripture, in Compariſon of their own Writings.

Secondly, Though God might ſpeak in the Perſon of his Son to his Apoſtles, yet I utterly deny, upon Reeve's Principles, that the Lord Jeſus could ſpeak unto him, in the Perſon of the Holy Ghoſt, becauſe this would neceſſarily imply a Trinity of Perſons, which is by him elſewhere abſolutely denyed; therefore the Lord Jeſus could ſpeak to him in no other Perſon, than his own, if at all.

Thirdly, If God ſpake to J. Reeve by Voice of Words, becauſe he affirms him to have ſo ſpoken to Moſes, and the Apoſtles; then may we plainly infer, that God ſhould as well have ſhewn his Perſon unto J. R. as he believes him to have done to Moſes, and the Apoſtles, ſince if he did not decline to utter Words to the Carnal Ear, in this third Commiſſion, as is pretended, any more than in the two former, there is no Reaſon in the World, why John Reeve's Carnal Eye ſhould not have had equal Priviledge with the former Commiſſioners, in viſibly beholding God's Perſon alſo: but ſince he makes God ſo to differ in the one, we ought the leſs to believe him in the other; that is, If his Carnal Eye could never ſee Him, becauſe of the Spirituality of the Commiſſion, his Carnal Ear could never hear him, for one and the ſame Reaſon; therefore all a Counterfeit.

Fourthly, Suppoſe he had ſeen the Glory of God's Perſon within him, yet that had been impoſſible, unleſs God's Perſon had been within him, ſince his Perſon and his Glory are inſeparable, as he largely affirms, D. L. G. p. 106. and if ſo, how manifeſt a Contradiction is it to ſeveral Places of his Writings? particularly this, 'The Spirit or Perſon of Chriſt, may fitly be compared unto the Face of the Natural Sun; you may know, that the Natural Spirit of the Sun, is ſo exceedingly 'Fiery Glorious, that no created Thing, that hath Natural Life in it is capable of 'it's in-dwelling Brightneſs, but it's own Body or Face only: If this be true, then Reeve could not behold the Glory of God's Perſon within him.

Fifthly, But let us ſuppoſe, that by Reeve's Principles, the Glory of God's Perſon, may be beheld, yet it is highly againſt them, that it ſhould be beheld within; for if the Body and Soul of Man, are one individual and inſeparable Subſtance, as he ſays they are, then can there be no Inviſible Eye, diſtinct from that which is Carnal, to behold an Inviſible Glory; and if ſo, then could Reeve never ſee God's Glory Inviſibly within him; and conſequently, he had no Commiſſion: But out of his own Mouth he is prov'd a Lyar and Impoſtor. I ſhall conclude the whole with Queries to L. Muggleton, and his Companions.

Ten Queries Propounded.

I. If J. Reeve and L. Muggleton were the two True Laſt Witneſſes, mention'd in the Revelations; How comes it, that they bear not the ſame Teſtimony, when riſen, that was born before the ſlaying of the Witneſſes; ſince they were not other Witneſſes, that roſe, than thoſe that were ſlain, and conſequently, the Teſtimonies no more vary than the Witneſſes themſelves?

II. If they be the ſame Witneſſes, ſhould they not have Propheſied, 1260. Days, that is Years; and have been ſlain Three Days and an Half in ſpiritual Sodom and Egypt, where our Lord was crucified, and then have riſen from the Dead?

III. How did they Propheſie ſo many Years? How were they (Viſible Witneſſes) ſlain in ſpiritual Sodom and Egypt, where Chriſt was crucified? Does not this ſhow the Witneſſes to be Spiritual and Myſtical, like the Place in which they were ſlain, (the Hearts of Men) and their Death to be the ſame? And were they ever ſuch Witneſſes, ſo ſlain, ſo long ſlain, and in that Place, as in the Revelation expreſt?

IV. If they be the ſame Witneſſes, were they not to Live, and Dye, and Riſe together? Has not Reeve been Dead many Years?

V. If they were the True Witneſſes, When did they ſhut the Heavens, that it Rained not, turn Water into Blood, and Smite the Earth with Plagues?

VI. If John Reeve was the Moſes, or Principal Underſtanding; and L. Muggleton the Aaron, or Mouth only, as ſays Reeve; then whether Muggleton be any Thing, but an Empty Mouth, now his Underſtanding, Moſes, is gone?

VII. How can Muggleton, upon Reeve's Principle, be a Witneſs or Commiſſioner for God, who confeſſeth, He never had any Commiſſion by Voice of Words, but from Reeve only, whom he truſted; though Reeve himſelf affirms, That there is no True Commiſſion, but by Voice of Words to the Party ſent?

VIII. Whether Men's Truſting upon Muggleton (who relied upon Reeve) without any Internal Convictions from the Eternal Spirit, be not as Sandy a Foundation as the darkeſt Popery.

IX. Whether, there ever was a Pope on Earth, that uſurped, or exerciſed a more Arbitrary Enſlaving Power over Men's Conſciences, in Impoſing his Faith upon Penalty of Immediate Curſe, and Eternal Damnation, than J. Reeve and L. Muggleton have done, and the laſt remains to do; by affirming, That whom he Curſeth, God Himſelf cannot Bleſs; and whom he Bleſſeth, God Himſelf cannot Curſe: Though Reeve and Muggleton have Curſt, and Bleſt, and Curſt the ſame Perſon, and that more than once?

X. And laſtly, Whether upon the whole, theſe Men, in their Commiſſions, Doctrines, Juriſdictions, Sentences, Lives and Converſations, are like unto the Laſt Witneſſes of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; or thoſe Ungodly, Proud Boaſters; wandering Stars; Clouds without Rain; Raging Waves, Exalted above all that is called God; Perverters of the Truth, whoſe Belly is their God, who Glory in their Shame, whoſe End is Deſtruction and Perdition?

POSTSCRIPT.

Since the finiſhing of the fore-going Paper, it came into my Mind, that if I affixt a Poſtſcript, touching the Commiſſion it ſelf, that might remove all Credit in the ſame, the reſt would dye of it ſelf. 'Tis true, this might have been better plac'd in the Front, as the beſt Preludium to the Diſcourſe of it ſelf; but it failing of that Place, I was rather willing it ſhould go for a Poſtſcript, than loſe that Service, I am not without Hope, it may perform in Publication of it.

A Brief Examen of REEVE his Commiſſion.

Saith he, 'I Declare from the Lord Jeſus, That no Man can underſtand any 'Thing of thoſe Things that are Inviſible to our Natural Eyes, but by the Spirit 'of Revelation; therefore it is written, That Faith is the Subſtance of Things 'hoped for, and the Evidence of Things not ſeen: In his Tranſcendent Spiritual Treatiſe, as he calls it, pag. 16.

If theſe Things are Inviſible to Natural Eyes, then are they Inaudible by Natural Ears, both being Capable and Natural alike: And if no Man ever can or could See them, no Man could or can ever Hear them; and if no Man could or can, then Reeve never did: And if he never heard with his Carnal Ears, for He implies ſo much, that denies the Power of ſeeing ſuch Spiritual and Inviſible Things to natural Eyes, then was his Commiſſion a Counterfeit; For he affirmed, That the 3d, 4th, and 5th of February, 1651. He Heard God reſident above the Stars, ſpeaking to Him then in Bed on Earth, by a Voice of Words, giving to him his Pretended Commiſſion, T. S. T. pag. 5.

In ſhort, Four Things I recommend to the Serious Conſideration of all Sober-minded People, with a Story to conclude.

1. That a Commiſſion ſhould be given by a Voice of Words, from the fartheſt Heaven to any Man upon Earth, and neither any other Hear the ſame, no, not ſo much as Muggleton Himſelf; nor yet the Heavens nor Air to receive any Impreſſion or Alteration, is an incredible Thing with all Perſons that are in their Wits.

1672. 2. Not only in this doth his Commiſſion ſtrangely vary from that of Moſes, but in the Conſequence thereof moſt dangerouſly, in as much as no Man living is aſſured of the Verity of this Commiſſion, from any Convincing Teſtimony, either from without, or within him; a Credulity God himſelf never exacted, or expected from his Creatures: For, the Reaſon of God's Complaint againſt a Rebellious People, never was for not believing without Convictions; but becauſe the Creation without, and his Good Spirit within, had ſo plentifully proved a God, and that Fear, Reverence and Obedience which were due to Him, and yet that they were not delighted to retain the Moſt High in their Knowledge.

3. That this ſhould beget an utter and perpetual Abhorrence in us of all ſuch Impoſtures; do but call to mind, what an Overthrow this gives to all thoſe famous Propheſies, of God's Tabernacling in His People, His Teaching them, pouring out His Spirit upon them, and of their beholding Him Face to Face; ſince in this one Conceit, all that believe it, are brought under the Verge of theſe Men's Imaginations, without the leaſt convincing Ground for any ſuch Belief, unleſs the Fear of their Inſolent Curſe.

4. To Conclude, if his Commiſſion was after a Viſible External Manner, like Moſes, as he affirms, He muſt needs have Viſible and External Miracles to confirm ſuch a Viſible and External Commiſſion: For, to deny Viſible Miracles to a Viſible Commiſſion, is to deny that Commiſſion; and to pretend Inviſible Ones, is Improper, Unnatural and Untrue.

My Story is this, and not Unknown to ſome of the Creditors of this Counterfeit Commiſſion.

A Conſiderable Commander of the Engliſh Army, in Ireland; and but too ſtiff againſt Lay Preachers (eſteemed Preſbyterian) hearing in his Bed a ſtill Voice, Requiring Him to go Preach the Goſpel to the Indians, was ſo much amaz'd, that he queſtion'd if he were not aſleep, as Reeve did, whether He was an Immortal God, or a Mortal Man; and finding himſelf Awake (though he could rather have wiſht it but a Dream) it greatly Terrified him; to leave his Family, Command and Station, to go Preach the Goſpel (who ſcarcely ever adventur'd to Preach (whatever he did to Pray) in all his Life) was Matter of much Diſquiet to him; till in the End, he rather inclin'd to incur the Curſe that followed his Diſobedience, than to leave his wonted Courſe of Life, and take up one ſo difficult to him, and in which he was ſo unable, as well as Unwilling to acquit himſelf: But it ended not ſo; for, I think, the next Night, or Morning, or in a little Time after, the ſame Voice came to him, with the ſame Command, which increaſed his Perplexity; but ſtill, as I was inform'd, he continued averſe from ſuch a Voyage and Enterprize, till the Third Time of his being thus Alarum'd, and then, as the Story went, he gave (for ought I know, as Freely) up to Preach to the Indians, as Reeve did to go to Muggleton, and J. Robins, &c. and I am ſtrongly of the Mind, the Authority may have been much alike, for it proved in the End, to be the Abuſe of ſome of his Companions, in a way of Unjuſtifiable Waggery and Merriment, through a Trunk, or ſome ſuch hollow Thing, placed with it's Mouth or Muzzle near the Commander's Bed. What ſhall we ſay then of Reeve's Voice of Words? A Man ſwelled with Conceits more ready and deſerving to have been abuſed, than the Perſon concerned in this Story: And concerning whom Muggleton told me, He thought Him Hot-brain'd, and Diſtemper'd in his Head, and that he had told him ſo; a Thing not hardly to be credited by ſuch as read his Folly, Certainly God never gave a Commiſſion yet, in that Way wherein Man's Wit or Malice could Equal it. And I would know, what one Extraordinary Circumſtance attended the giving of this Commiſſion to Reeve, that may groundedly Engage any to the Belief of it? But indeed, it was notably done of Him, to pretend an Authority of which he was the ſole Judge, and Witneſs; and a Power to Curſe all ſuch as Refus'd his Teſtimony, without his rendering a Reaſon for the Hope that was in him. Never did the Devil more befool himſelf, nor any of Mankind, than in his Divulging, and their Believing of theſe Sottiſh Blaſphemies.

Plain-Dealing with a Traducing ANABAPTIST:

OR,

Three LETTERS writ upon Occaſion of ſome Slanderous Reflections, given and promoted againſt William Penn by one John Morſe.

Publiſhed for Common Benefit, that all Impartial People may be better acquainted with the Invective Spirit of ſome ſo called, and their ungodly ſly Way of Defaming ſuch as diſſent from them, eſpecially in their Reſtleſs Endeavours againſt the Poor QUAKERS.

By a Lover of Charity and Sincerity in all, W. Penn.

The PREFACE.

READER,

WIth what Regret of Spirit I behold the Controverſies of our Time, and how unpleaſant it is to me to be concern'd therein, God is Witneſs: And I think it cannot reaſonably be hard for any to believe me, when meer Reputation would forbid a Man to ſubject his Religion or Good Name to the Folly and Malice of every inconſiderable Wrangler.

But ſo intolerable are many Separatiſts, and of them, ſome Anabaptiſts, in their Lyes, Slanders, Traducings, and what not, which may proceed from Wrath and Envy; that, leſt ſome of the Dirt they throw ſhould ſtick, we are neceſſitated to that Defence, we neither think the Truth (otherwiſe) wants, nor our Adverſaries could deſerve at our Hands, and leaſt of all the Man concern'd in theſe Letters.

But we have the leſs Reaſon, I confeſs, to expect good Quarter from him, who denies it to his Church-Siſter, or doubt that he ſhould ſlyly ſuggeſt Evil againſt us, who baſely goes to Law with her, and that before thoſe who by his own Principles he accounts Unbelievers. Only we cannot but think it a ſtrange Uſe that theſe Men make of Toleration, to perſecute by Revilings thoſe that have moſt ſuffered for want of it, as if they would walk Antipodes to the Government: For whilſt that perſecuted, they ſeem'd to pity us; but now that tolerates, they appear to envy us. What? Do they think it a Blemiſh to Toleration, That any ſhould be quiet but themſelves; and therefore will continue that as juſtifiable in them, which they accounted condemnable in the Powers? But this notably ſhows their Spirit, who thus adventure to perſecute without Power: Let who will believe they would not do it if they had Power; for my own Part, I declare my ſelf none of that Number; and think it the beſt Way, both to wiſh, and lawfully endeavour they may never have any to try.

Reader, I have nothing farther to ſay in this Epiſtle, but that the Perſon here concern'd, unworthily reflecting upon me (for ſomething in a Diſcourſe I lately publiſht againſt the cloſe, but faint Endeavours of a vizarded Socinian) as that I was an Erroneous and Blaſphemous Perſon (Terms the moſt hateful to a Chriſtian Man) I writ 1672. him, as in Conſcience oblig'd, a kind of Challenge to make it good, which he vainly endeavour'd by his Anſwer, as my Reply will farther manifeſt. Perhaps their Publication may be ſeaſonable, if not to ſome of their own Way (for which I greatly hope) at leaſt to others; and I am confident to all who cordially love Truth, Righteouſneſs and Peace, above charging God with Hardneſs, and impeaching that People as Erroneous, which moſt vigorouſly believe and aſſert the Univerſality of his Rectitude and Mercy.

William Penn.

PLAIN-DEALING, &c.

John Morſe,

Underſtanding that thou haſt made uſe of my Name to ſo evil a Purpoſe, as to charge upon it Error, if not Blaſphemy, upon Occaſion of a Book lately writ by me, in Defence of the Light and Divinity of Chriſt; and not being unwilling to have ſuch Reflections paſt unexamin'd; Theſe are to let thee know, that I expect thy Proof, if any thou haſt, that if it be true, I may take Shame to my ſelf in the ingenuous Acknowledgment of my Fault; or elſe, that thou doſt confeſs, thou haſt unworthily traduc'd me.

Great is the Truth, and it ſhall prevail; I am therein a Friend to thee and all Men.

In Anſwer to which he ſent me the following Letter, ſo writ and phras'd verbatim.

William Penn,

I*N Anſwer to a Letter* thee ſents me; I ſhall acquaint thee how I came to ſpeak of thee, and to have thy Book: A Friend of thine came to invite me to a Meeting of yours; I aſked her, What moved her to invite me? She ſaid, the Light in her: I aſked her, What that Light was? She told me, It was Chriſt, and that the ſame Light was in me, and in every Man and Women, and if obeyed by me, was ſufficient to ſave me: I aſked her, What was that that came into the Room, when the Diſciples were met together, the Doors being ſhut? She told me, It was a Spirit: I aſked her, How ſhe knew it was a Spirit? She told me, The Light, Chriſt, in her told her ſo: I aſked her, Whether I ſhould believe the Light, ſhe ſaid was Chriſt, or Chriſt's own Words, as thou mayſt ſee in the 24th of Luke, verſe 38, 39. Chriſt ſaid, A Spirit hath not Fleſh and Bones, as ye ſee me have? I ſhewed to her how groſly the Light in her had erred, therefore it could not be Chriſt; for Chriſt cannot err: I might be larger herein, but ſhall forbear, After this thy Friend brought me thy Book to read, and when peruſed it, returned it again, and did ſay, there was Error in it, and that thou contradicts thy ſelf in that Book; ſee page 21. where thou ſayſt; That if God's unerring Spirit only enables Men to walk in his Statutes, and keep his Judgments to do them; then ſince all are required to walk therein, none are exempted from a ſufficient Meaſure of that Unerring Spirit in order to it. And page 22. or thus, If without having the Spirit, none can have Propheſie and Viſion, and both to be and to continue in Chriſt's Church univerſally; then it will naturally follow, that ſhe cannot be without that Unerring Spirit; and that ſuch as are, cannot in that State be Members of the true Church, then conſequently thou ſayſt, Hereticks. Pag. 25. thou ſayſt, The World cannot receive the Spirit of Truth. Again, pag. 34. Jude 19, 20. Theſe be they who ſeparate themſelves, ſenſual, having not the Spirit. Firſt thou ſayſt no Man is exempted from a ſufficient Meaſure of the Unerring Spirit; and after thou ſayſt, Hereticks and Senſualiſts have it not, nor the World cannot receive the Spirit, this judge is Error, and Contradicting of thy ſelf See alſo page 71: where thou chargeſt God Fooliſhly; compare Romans 9. verſe 17, 18. 19, 20, 21, 22. Nay, but, O Man, who art thou that replieſt againſt God? Shall the Thing formed, ſay to him that formed it, Why haſt thou made me thus? Hath not the Potter Power over the Clay of the ſame Lump, to make one Veſſel unto Honour, and another unto Diſhonour? I hope theſe few Lines, although brokenly Pen'd, may prevail with thee, whereby thou may'ſt ingeniouſly acknowledge thy Error, and God ſhall have the Glory. Farewel.

To which I make this Reply.

Rickmanſworth, the 9th of the 11th Month, 1672.

John Morſe,

MY Religion teaches me no Reſpect to Perſons nor Abilities, and therefore I ſhall willingly reply to thy Anſwer that Yeſterday came to my Hand; and if thou knew'ſt my other Occaſions, thou could'ſt not but eſteem thy ſelf indebted to my Charity; for indeed, I have no other Inducement to ſend theſe Lines. Firſt then, I take Notice thou addreſſeſt thy ſelf in the Stile of a Quaker, which for a Man ſo averſe from him, as an angry Anabaptiſt, to do, with me reliſhes either of Jeer, or Hypocriſie; unleſs thou hadſt this Tenderneſs upon thee, thou would'd not offend me; I hope the latter, tho' a Miſtake; for I would have every Thing appear in it's proper Colour: I love no Apes in Religion, and deſire that Foxes ſhould appear in their own Skins, and Lambs in theirs.

Next, thou giveſt me an Account of a Paſſage that fell betwixt thee and one of Anne Stoddard's * Maids, from whence thou collecteſt, That great Error dwells in the Light. I perceive how much more willing thou art the Light ſhould be blamed, than the Laſs. But what if ſo be that an Anabaptiſt ſhould wickedly kill a Man, within an Hour after he had been Dipt, would it be Reaſonable, Charitable, or Chriſtian, to charge that upon his Renouncing the Church of England's Baptiſm (as they call it) and receiving of another? Would it have been good arguing, that becauſe ſome of the Children of Iſrael in the Wilderneſs Rebell'd againſt Moſes unjuſtly, yet as a Tyrant, pretending to a better Way of Government, more eaſie and juſt, therefore the Spirit God had given them was Erroneous, though it was truly grieved thereat. If all the Quakers in England ſhould utter the groſſeſt Errors, the Light wherewith Chriſt, as the Word-God hath, and doth enlighten, ought not to be charged with ſuch Defects, but rather they, for not bringing their Errors to the Light. And I affirm, there is no true knowing either of Evil or Good, but in the Light, wherewith Chriſt hath illuminated Mankind; and if thou knoweſt any thing ſavingly, it is thereby; therefore kick not againſt it; neither fling thy Cavils at it, I warn thee from the Lord; for, if thou ſeekeſt to pervert the Right Way of the Lord, by thy Night-Works againſt the Light, it will certainly be one Day thy woful Condemnation.

* Whom thou haſt deceitfully and obſcurely endeavoured to enſnare.

That which concerns me, is called, Firſt, Error and Contradiction; and, Secondly, Fooliſhly charging of God.

My Error and Contradiction is this, That in one Place, I make all Men to have a Meaſure of the Spirit; and in another I ſay, That ſuch as have it not are Hereticks concerning the Faith; as alſo, that I quote theſe Paſſages, John 14. 16, 17, 18, 20: again, 16, 13. where Chriſt promiſeth to ſend that Spirit which the World cannot receive; alſo that of Jude, Senſual, not having the Spirit, which thou judgeſt to be Error and Contradiction: Did I not know thy Meaning, I ſhould take it for granted, that what thou calleſt the Contradiction, was alſo the Error, namely, That all had not the Spirit: But underſtanding by thy ſecond Carp, the Narrowneſs of thy Soul (for it is Predeſtinarian) I will take it for granted, thou meaneſt quite contrary, namely, That God's Univerſal Love to Mankind, is the horrible Blaſphemy thou in Words (I heard) doſt charge me with, though thou art ſomething more Modeſt in thy Letter, by calling it a Fooliſh charging of God.

In ſhort, I anſwer to this firſt Cavil.

In Page 21. It is a Conſequence drawn from the Place, ſuited to my own Aſſertion. In Page 22. it is a Conſequence I make * their Principle to ſpeak that deny the Univerſality of the Light and Spirit. In the one I ſay, all are illuminated, or have a Meaſure of that Spirit, becauſe all are commanded to keep God's Statutes, which it is impoſſible to do without ſuch Divine Aſſiſtance: In the other Place I make the Conſequence to be, that to be ſure, the Spirit is the Rule to Believers, the Thing chiefly aim'd at in the Queſtion, becauſe without it there would be no Viſion or Propheſie, pheſie, which ſome Profeſſors confeſs are to endure till Chriſt's ſecond Coming perſonally, there, by their own Principle, they muſt be Hereticks concerning the True Faith. But again, it is not ſaid, that ſuch Hereticks have not the Spirit at all, becauſe they have it not as their Rule; for [Having] has a twofold Uſe in Scripture, the one as a Condemner, in which Senſe none is at one Time or another, without a Meaſure of the Divine Light and Spirit to reprove them; and, ſecondly, the ſo having it, as to enjoy and poſſeſs it as A Rule, Guide, and Inviſible Miniſter of Life, Comfort and Refreſhment, in which Senſe the World has it not, that is, received it not, as ſaith the Text; yet the very next Chapter ſays, That it ſhould convince the World of Sin: A Man may hear a Reproof and Inſtruction, yet not follow it; ſo that ſuch as receive not the Spirit, that ſtrives with them, may be truly ſaid, to be ſenſual, * not having the Spirit, becauſe they receive it not to the Ends for which it was, or is ſent. I hope then I ſhall not be longer charged with Error or Contradiction in this Particular.

* That is, ſuch as ſhut Believers from the Guidance of God's Spirit.

* It is not theirs by the Adoption of Believing.

The ſecond Part of the Charge is, That I ſhould fooliſhly charge God (which more hiddenly, I hear, has been ſtyl'd Blaſphemy) Let us hear my Book ſpeak.

Spirit of Truth Vindicated, p. 71.

God Requires all Men ſtrictly to ſerve and obey him, and to work out their Salvation with Fear and Trembling, or elſe their End ſhall be Deſtruction: But this the Almighty (with Reverence I ſay it) could not juſtly do, unleſs the Light, with which he enlightens Men, were Sufficient and Saving.

I own the Words expreſly, and will abide their Defence before Men and Angels; and before I have done, I hope, Blaſphemy ſhall not lie at my Door, in the Senſe of every Man that is not principled to make God an hard Maſter.

Firſt, I ſay, That it is inconſiſtent with the Rectitude of God's Nature, to eſteem that naturally Juſt in himſelf to Man, which by his Law written in the Hearts of all Men, is adjudg'd moſt Unreaſonable, Cruel, and Unjuſt among Men; for ſince whatever is Holy, Good and Upright, is deriv'd to us from God, and that we are to be Perfect, as our Heavenly Father is Perfect, it is utterly impoſſible that He ſhould be Juſt in that which is moſt Unjuſt in Man: For Inſtance;

That it cannot be conſiſtent with the Nature of God, that He ſhould damn any Man, for not improving a Talent He never gave him: Becauſe a Man commanding his Servant to go ſo many Miles within ſuch a ſet Time upon Pain of Death on Foot, whilſt he either fetters him in a dark Cellar, or cuts off his Legs, is Cruel, Unjuſt, and Impious.

Secondly, This Doctrine makes God Partial, which is Infirmity at beſt in a Man; nay, it makes him the worſt of Diſſemblers, which my Soul loaths to think, and my Hand almoſt trembles to write: For to what Purpoſe does he invite, ſaying, Ezek. 18. He delights not in the Damnation of Sinners, but rather that they ſhould Repent, and yet never gives them any Ability whereby to do it. Nay, if thy Principle may be credited, has taken Order by an Eternal Proviſion of Decree that they ſhould not.

What an Affront, nay, down-right Lye doth this Doctrine, oppoſite to what I aſſerted, give to the Scriptures which teſtifie, God ſo loved the World, as to give and ſend his Son, that ſuch as believed might have Life, and yet from Eternity to provide by Decree that perhaps Nine Parts of Ten in the World ſhould have no Light or Spirit to aſſiſt them, But whether they did Well or Ill, ſhould inevitably be Damned; though God declares himſelf, to be a Rewarder of Men according to their Faith and Works, not according to ſuch Decrees.

O Barbarous Cruelty, and moſt aggravated Injuſtice! What! Tell Men, that if they Believe they ſhall be Saved, and yet hinder them from Believing; for if the Reprobate ſhould believe, God's Decree (as they call it) would be broke, which is impoſſible. Again, Warn Men of Damnation, profeſſing no Delight in their Deſtruction, and for Fear they ſhould Repent and be Saved, determine by an irrevocable Decree that they ſhould be Damn'd. O Vile, Hideous, and Blaſphemous Doctrine! It renders the moſt Merciful and Juſt God moſt Cruel and Unjuſt, and alſo turns the Reins upon the Necks of the People, to commit what they will; for indeed who will be bounded, that ſtands upon ſo good or bad Terms as an immutable Decree. This Doctrine may perhaps a little influence ſuch affectionate Minds as conceive themſelves intereſted in that Electionated Love of God: But do not the moſt of thoſe who believe it Buoy up themſelves above the Daily Croſs, and ſo live above the Holy Chaſtiſements of God for Sin, becauſe of this ſure Bottom, as they vainly imagine it, whilſt the Generality are ſo far from being reclaim'd, who know themſelves to be Prodigals, that being diſcourag'd through ſuch a Kind of Predeſtination, they quit all Hope of returning for Mercy, whoſe Ends muſt needs be Deſtruction? O mercileſs Faith, O injurious Aſſertion, both to God and Men! Let my Soul for ever beware of ſuch Impiety.

But becauſe thou ſeem'ſt to charge the Scripture with having led thee into this Fooliſh Charging of God, I ſhall obſerve thy Quotation of 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, of the 9th Chapter to the Romans.

The Apoſtle begins this Chapter, Rom. 9. (or elſe they that divided his Epiſtle into Chapters, made it to begin) with his great Sorrow for his Country-Men, the Jews. He enumerates their Privileges, and could wiſh himſelf accurſt for their Sake; yet whilſt he lamented, that they to whom were the Covenants, Glory, Adoption, and whoſe were the Fathers, and of whom Chriſt himſelf came after the Fleſh, being of the Seed of Abraham, ſhould thus barr themſelves out of Chriſt's Kingdom, and not be of the True Iſrael and Circumciſion in Spirit, read verſe 6. So that the being of the Seed of Abraham, after the Fleſh, or Iſaac, or any other Man ever ſo Righteous, rendered them not Children of Promiſe; albeit it be ſaid, In Iſaac ſhall thy Seed be called, for then would all Iſaac's Seed have belonged to the Promiſe, which in Eſau was not verifi'd, as teſtifies this very Scripture. Neither, becauſe they are the Seed of Abraham, are they all Children, but in Iſaac ſhall thy Seed be called. What is this [Iſaac] and what is this [Calling?] that is, ſaith the Apoſtle, They which are Children of the Fleſh, theſe are not the Children of God; that is, They that are Carnally deſcended, are not the Seed; Iſaac is underſtood myſtically, as ſhewing forth One conceived by the extraordinary Power of God, in whom all Nations ſhould be bleſſed with Freedom and Adoption, as they come to believe and obey; wherefore adds the Apoſtle, The Children of the Promiſe are counted for the Seed; Who are they? The Jews Inward, and the Circumciſion in Heart. So that here is only the Election of the True Seed, [Myſtical Iſaac] or [Iſaac in Spirit] ſuch as through Repentance, Faith, and Good Works, come to be tranſlated into the Pure Nature thereof, who have been refined in the Refiner's Fire, purged and cleanſed, and ſo made Choſen Veſſels of Honour; which Word [Choſen] or [Choice] ſignifies a Thing more precious than ordinary, and therefore Elected.

So on the contrary Hand, when Men have ſinned away their firſt Stock, God is not bound to recruit them again; He may proceed to determinative Judgment if he pleaſe. Here it is, That he will have Mercy on whom he will have Mercy, and whom he will he hardeneth. And though Pharoah, that wicked King, was at laſt hardened by the Lord, yet, if the 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9th Chapters of Exodus be but read, it will appear, firſt that God did not harden Pharaoh, before Pharaoh had grievouſly imbondaged Iſrael, rejected his Counſel, deſpiſed his Viſitations, and ſo hardened his own Heart; and with an audacious Contempt aſked Moſes, Who is the Lord that I ſhould obey his Voice, &c. Secondly, That God raiſing him up, was not from an innocent Child, to be a wicked King, as if God had infuſed a Cruel and Wicked Quality into his Heart; O God forbid! But he ſuffered him not to be quite waſted with the many Judgments that God brought upon him for his Rebellion, who after every Judgment, ſtill increaſed in his Wickedneſs, but raiſed him yet up again, that he might renown his Name, and proclaim his Great Power, as well to puniſh obdurate Sinners, as ranſom his own People. Thus God endured this Veſſel of Wrath, to make his Wonders known. So, what if God did give over Jeruſalem and her Children to Deſtruction, who reſiſted the Heavenly Invitations of his Son, and rather choſe the Gentiles, Who could impeach him? Had he not waited long? Which of the Prophets had they not Slain? And did they not cry of Jeſus himſelf, Let his Blood be upon our Heads, &c. Wherefore if God would harden them he might: Since here He might have Mercy on whom he pleas'd to have Mercy, and whom he would of ſuch Impenitents he might harden. In ſhort, Man was made a Choſen Veſſel, a Right Plant; but through Degeneration, he became a Veſſel of Diſhonour, and a Plant of a ſtrange Vine: Thoſe therefore who are Regenerated by the One Holy Seed, which Seed is Chriſt, Elect and Precious, God makes His Veſſels of Honour for ever; and they who have ſpent their Heavenly Portion, defil'd themſelves, reſiſted the Heavenly Invitations, and are become One Spirit with the God of the World, who Rules in the Hearts of the Children of Diſobedience, ſuch Adulterated Ones God ſeparates from him, as Veſſels of Diſhonour and Wrath, fitted for Deſtruction (but by themſelves, not from the Lord.)

Thus much briefly at this Time, as to the Doctrine of Predeſtination, as it is deſtructively and extravagantly believed by too many Profeſſors of Religion. And to this Ninth Chapter to the Romans, the Intention whereof borders not in the leaſt upon that Ungodly Fancy of Perſonal Election. I ſhall ſum up the whole of both Sides thus,

W. Penn's Faith.	J. Morſe, his Faith.
1. I believe, God hath given unto all Men ſufficient of his Light, Spirit, or Grace; which obeyed, will lead to Bleſſedneſs: Becauſe God would otherwiſe exhort Men to what he ſhould not have given them Power to do; which is unworthy of his Righteouſneſs.	1. I believe, That God requires all Men to hear and obey; or that all have the Goſpel tendered; yet deny, that all have Grace ſufficient to embrace it, or to live up to it, ſo as to be ſaved: For, God may bid Man believe, and be ſaved, and not give him Power to do ſo.
2. I believe, That God hardens no Man to Sin, till Man has firſt hardened himſelf againſt God by Sin; or that Sin goes before Hardening.	2. I believe, That God raiſed up Men, and hardens them on Purpoſe, to Glorifie himſelf in their Deſtruction; not conſidering Sin as the Main and Provocative Cauſe to that Hardening and Deſtruction.

Upon the whole, I leave it with God, and his Witneſs in every Conſcience, whether it be William Penn, or John Morſe, that hath writ Error, Contradiction, and Blaſphemy againſt God, Scripture, and Sound Reaſon?

So truly deſiring thy better Information in theſe weighty Matters, that knowing the Truth, thou may'ſt obey it, and be ſaved; (for God would not that any Man ſhould be Damned, but that all ſhould come to the Knowledge of the Truth, and be ſaved.) I remain

Thy Well-Wiſher, and all Men's, W. P.

An ACCOUNT of ſome Diſcourſe betwixt one Sarah Lane, Quaker, and John Morſe, Anabaptiſt; for the clearing the Truth his Relation abuſes with Forgery.

S. L. John Morſe, *we are to have a Meeting to Day, and I had a Deſire thou ſhould'ſt know of it.

J. M. I have heard your Friends formerly; they deny the Scriptures to be the Word of God.

S. L. We own them to be the Words of God, given forth by the Spirit of God, and a Declaration of the Mind and Will of God; but the Word it ſelf is God. Read the Firſt of John, and there thou wilt find, That the Word was in the Beginning, and all Things were made by it; which cannot be ſaid of the Scriptures.

J. M. But you diſown Baptiſm.

S. L. What Force is there in it?

J. M. There is little in it, only an Outward Ordinance, that we muſt do till Chriſt comes.

S. L. Doſt thou look for Chriſt to come again?

J. M. As for that we muſt leave it, and not preſume too far.

S. L. I do witneſs him Spiritually come; and ſuch as are come to the Subſtance want them not: But if there be little in the Ordinances, as thou ſay'ſt, What great Need is there of doing them? Chriſt came not to continue, but to put an End to Types and Figures. And for Water-Baptiſm, many of us have had it, and been among you that uſe it, and we that did ſo, are come farther, to ſee beyond that, to the Inward Baptiſm, which is the Subſtance, that ends the outward.

J. M. The Scripture tells us it is an Ordinance.

S. L. Doſt thou own Two Baptiſms to continue, contrary to the Scripture? John ſaid, He ſhould decreaſe, that Baptiz'd with Water; and that Chriſt ſhould increaſe, who was to Baptize with the Holy Ghoſt, and with Fire.

J. M. But you own the Light to be in every Man and Woman?

S. L. I own and confeſs, that Chriſt has enlightned every Man and Woman.

J. M. What, Chriſt, the Fulneſs to be in every Man and Woman?

S. L. No, not Chriſt's Fulneſs; but a Meaſure of his Light is given to Every One.

J. M. Every one, What, has every Man a Meaſure?

S. L. Yes.

J. M. What then is the Reaſon that Drunkards and Lewd People live in their Wickedneſs, if they have that Light?

S. L. The Reaſon is, becauſe they do not obey it; there is ſomething in them that ſhews them their Sin, when they have done amiſs, and reproves them; for they will ſay, Lord forgive them, or the like; that muſt needs be good that ſhews them when they have done what they ought not to do.

J. M. I confeſs, there is ſomething that does ſhew Men Sin, but it is not ſufficient.

S. L. It is ſufficient, if it be obeyed; but God ſaid, His Spirit ſhould not always ſtrive with Man: yet every Man has a Day, or a Time to be tried; if they rebel, and won't obey, God then gives them over.

From this he fell to curious and unneceſſary Queſtions; As the Devil did about the Body of Moſes, ſo did he about the Body of Chriſt: But this he inſiſted on moſtly the Second Time.

J. M. What was that which appeared to the Diſciples, when the Windows and Doors were ſhut, was it Fleſh or Spirit?

S. L. Spirit.

J. M. Chriſt himſelf ſaid, he had Fleſh and Bones, when they doubted, thinking he might be a Spirit. But tell me, what became of the Body of Chriſt?

S. L. I ſhall not meddle farther with ſuch Matters, nor run into Things which I have no certain Knowledge of; neither would I have given thee that Advantage by my ſimple Anſwer, if I had been aware of thee. And if I have reply'd unadviſedly, that is nothing to our Friends.

J. M. But, the Light was that which led you into this Miſtake.

S. L. The Light never leads into any Thing that is Wrong.

Reader,

THIS is the very Truth of the Matter, which I the rather add, that what Advantage he may think to have gained, and his Boaſt of it, may receive ſome Allay by a plain and true Relation of the whole, ſo far as could be remembred.

Of what Force then her Miſtake is againſt the Light, is to be learn'd from her own Ingenious Confeſſion; and if John Morſe were Candid, he would have laid the Blame where it was proper, and not have charg'd it upon the Light within.

And indeed, if we conſider, firſt, that Chriſt's Coming in, the Doors being ſhut, is not mention'd in that Scripture, Luke 24. 38, 39. as cited by him, but in John 20. 19, 26. 2dly, That he was not there without his Spirit. 3dly. Were it not unjuſt to ſay, the Light in the Diſciples groſly erred, when they ſuppoſed they had ſeen a Spirit? Luke 24. 37. 4thly, That it was a Fooliſh and Unneceſſary Queſtion on his Part. 5thly. That he took baſe Advantage of it. 6thly, That the Maid ſo particularly Clear'd the Light from leading her into any, the leaſt Miſtake. 7thly, That I could ask him ten Queſtions for his one he put to her, of the like abſtruſe and obſcure Matters, that I have Cauſe to believe he is wholly ignorant of, and the Knowledge of them not neceſſary to Salvation; I ſay, conſidering theſe Particulars, and that all aroſe from her loving Invitation of him to a Meeting, I cannot ſee but he is far more Condemnable than the Maid; and I believe, the Light in every unprejudiced Conſcience will ſay the ſame.

This was my Postscript to my LETTER to him, which ends theſe preſent Letters.

IT comes into my Mind to expreſs thus much farther concerning the Laſs, that the Simplicity of her Anſwer is to be excuſed far ſooner than thy Un-Chriſtian and Un-Charitable Spirit, that lay in Wait to betray, and if ſuch Watchings for Evil be uncondemned of thy Religion, I pronounce it Anti-Chriſtian and Deviliſh, and that in the Name of the Lord; And as for our Light, thou ſhalt never be juſtified, whilſt that condemns thee, and if it be inſufficient as to thee, it is becauſe thou never yet didſt give up thy ſelf to the Holy Conduct thereof, but unworthily diſparageſt that, which I can make appear thou liveſt not up to. Repent, therefore, and be Baptized of Fire, (which conſumes the Thorns and Briars with which you Water-Baptiſts ſcratch and rend at us) and know a Purging from dead Works in the Name of the Lord, or Thou and They of thy Spirit, will be utterly loſt in the Day of the Lord.

THE

Propoſed Comprehenſion

Soberly, and Not Unſeaſonably, Conſider'd.

ALthough the Benefits wherewith Almighty God has univerſally bleſs'd the whole Creation, are a ſufficient Check to the Narrowneſs of their Spirits, who would unreaſonably confine all Comforts of Life within the ſtreight Compaſs of their own Party (as if to recede from their Apprehenſions, whereof themſelves deny any Infallible Aſſurance, were Reaſon good enough to deprive other Diſſenters of Nature's Inheritance, and which is more peculiar, England's Freedoms.) Yet ſince it fares ſo meanly with thoſe Excellent Examples, that many vainly think themſelves then beſt to anſwer the End of their being born into the World, when by a Severity, which leaſt of all reſembles the God of Love, they rigorouſly proſecute the Extirpation of their Brethren: Let it not ſeem Unreaſonable, or Ill-timed, that we offer to your more ſerious Thoughts, the great Partiality and Injuſtice, that ſeem to be the Companions of a Comprehenſion, ſince you only can be concerned at this Time, to prevent it, by a more Large and Generous Freedom.

Firſt, then, Liberty of Conſcience (by which we commonly underſtand the free Exerciſe of any Diſſenting Perſwaſion) is but what has been generally pleaded for, even by the Warmeſt Sticklers for a Comprehenſion, and without which it would be utterly impoſſible they ſhould be comprehended: The Queſtion then will be this, What Ground can there be, why Some, and not All, ſhould be Tolerated? It muſt either reſpect Conſcience or Government: If it be upon Matter of mere Religion, What Reaſon is there that one Party ſhould be Tolerated, and another Reſtrained; ſince all thoſe Reaſons, that may be urged by that Party, which is Comprehended, are every whit as proper to the Party Excluded? For if the Former ſay, They are Orthodox, ſo ſay the Latter too; If the one urge, It is impoſſible they ſhould believe without a Conviction; that the Underſtanding cannot be Forced; that Mildneſs gains moſt; that the True Religion never Perſecuted; that Severity is moſt Unworthy of her; that Sound Reaſon is the only Weapon which can Diſarm the Underſtanding; that Coercion doth rather Obdurate than Soften; and that they therefore chuſe to be ſincere Diſſenters, rather than Hypocritical Conformiſts: The other Party ſays the ſame. In fine, There can be nothing ſaid for Liberty of Conſcience, upon Pure Conſcientious Grounds, by any one Party in England, that every one may not be intereſted in; unleſs Any will undertake to judge that of Five Sorts of Diſſenters, Two are really ſuch on Convictions, and Three upon meer Deſign. But if ſuch Sentence would be lookt upon as moſt Arrogant and Unjuſt, how can it be Reaſonable, that thoſe whom ſome endeavour to exclude, ſhould be thus prejudg'd, and ſuch as are comprehended, be therefore ſo only from a ſtrong Opinion of their Reality: We may conclude then, that ſince Liberty of Conſcience is what in it-ſelf Comprehenders plead, and that it is evident, to affirm this, or that, or the other Party Orthodox, is but a meer Begging of the Queſtion. What may be urged for one, is forceable for any other: Conſcience (not moveable but upon Conviction) being what all pretend themſelves alike concerned in.

But they ſay, that ſuch as are like to be comprehended, are Perſons, not Eſſentially Differing; that it were pity to exclude them whoſe Difference is rather in Minute Matters, than any Thing Subſtantial, whereas you err in Fundamentals. But how Paradoxal ſoever ſuch may pleaſe to think it, that we ſhould therefore plead the Juſtice of taking thoſe in, Some unkindly would have left out, we know not; however, we believe it moſt reaſonable to do ſo; For certainly the Reaſon for Liberty or Toleration, ſhould hold Proportion with the weighty Cauſe of Diſſent, and the Streſs Conſcience puts upon it. Where Matters are Trivial, they are more blameable that make them a Ground for Diſſent, than thoſe who perhaps (were that all the Difference) would never eſteem them worth contending for, much leſs that they ſhould rend from that Church, they otherwiſe confeſs to be a True One: So that whoever are Condemnable, certainly thoſe who have been Authors and Promoters of Separation upon meer Toys and Niceties, are not moſt of all others to be juſtified. Had they conſcientiouſly offer'd ſome Fundamental Diſcontent, and pleaded the Impoſſibility of reconciling ſome Doctrines with their Reaſon or Conſcience, yet promiſing quiet Living, and all Due Subjection to Government, they might have been thus far more excuſable, that People would have had Reaſon to have ſaid; Certainly ſmall Matters could not have induc'd theſe Men to this Diſgraceful Separation, nor any thing of this Life have tempted them to this ſo Great and Troubleſome Alteration: But to take Pet at a Ceremony, then Rend from the Church, ſet up a New Name and Model, gather People, raiſe Animoſity, and only make fit for Blows, by a Furious Zeal kindled in their Heads, againſt a few Ineptiæ, meer Trifles; and being utterly vanquiſh'd from theſe Proceedings, to become moſt earneſt Solicitors for a Comprehenſion; though at the ſame Time of hot Purſuit after this Privilege, to ſeek nothing more than to prevent others of Injoying the ſame Favour, under the Pretence of more Fundamental Difference; Certainly this ſhews, that had ſuch Perſons Power, they would as well Diſallow of a Comprehenſion to thoſe who are the Aſſertors of thoſe Ceremonies they recede from, as that for meer Ceremonies they did at firſt Zealouſly Diſſent, and ever ſince remain more Unjuſtifiably Fierce for ſuch Separation. And truly, If there were no more in it than this, it would be enough for us to ſay, That ſome in England never Rent themſelves from the Church at all, much leſs for little Matters: that they never endeavour'd her Exile, but ſhe found them upon her Return, which they oppoſed not, nor yet ſince have any Ways ſought to inſtall themſelves in her Dignities, or enrich themſelves by her Preferments. We appeal then to all Sober Men, if what is generally called the Epiſcopal Party of England, can with Good Conſcience, and True Honour diſinherit thoſe of their Native Rights, Peace, and Protection, and leave them as Orphans to the wide World, indeed a Naked Prey to the Devourer, who from firſt to laſt have never been concerned, either to endeavour their Ruin, or any Ways withſtand their Return, whilſt it may be ſome of thoſe, who have been the moſt Vigorous in both, and that for Circumſtantial, and not Eſſential Differences, may be reputed more deſerving of a Comprehenſion, than we are of a Toleration.

But it will be yet ſaid, You are Inconſiſtent with Government, They are not, therefore You are Excluded, not out of Partiality, but Neceſſity. What Government beſides their own they are conſiſtent with, we leave on the Side of Story to tell, which can better ſpeak their Mind than we are either able or willing to do: But this give us Leave to ſay in General, If any apprehend us to be ſuch as merit not the Care of our Superiors, becauſe ſuppoſed to be Deſtructive of the Government, let us be call'd forth by Name, and hear our Charge; and if we are not able to anſwer the Unbyaſt Reaſon of Mankind, in Reference to our Conſiſtency with the 1672. Peace, Quiet, Trade, and Tribute of theſe Kingdoms, then, and not before, deny us all Protection. But that Men ſhould be concluded before heard, and ſo ſentenced for what they really are not, is like beheading them before they are Born. We do aver, and can make it appear, that there is no one Party more Quiet, Subject, Induſtrious, and in the Bottom of their very Souls, greater Lovers of the Good Old Engliſh Government and Proſperity of theſe Kingdoms among the Comprehended, than, for ought we yet ſee, may be found among thoſe who are like to be unkindly Excluded; However, if ſuch we were in any one Point, Cure rather than Kill us; and ſeek the Publick Good ſome cheaper way than by our Deſtruction; Is there no Expedient to prevent Ruin? Let Reaſon qualify Zeal, and Conſcience Opinion.

To Conclude, If the Publick may be ſecured, and Conſcience freely exerciſed by all, for the ſame Reaſons, it may by ſome (and ſince Liberty of Conſcience, is Liberty of Conſcience, and the Reaſons for it, equivalent) We ſee not in the whole World, why any ſhould be depriv'd of That, which others for no better Reaſons are like to enjoy.

Let it not then be unworthy of ſuch to remember, that God affords his refreſhing Sun to all; The Dung-hill is no more excepted than the moſt delightful Plain, and his Rain falls alike both upon the Juſt and Unjuſt: He ſtrips not Mankind of what ſuits their Creaturely Preſervation; Chriſtians themſelves have no more peculiar Privilege in the Natural Benefits of Heaven, than Turks or Indians. Would it not then be ſtrange, that Infidels themſelves, much leſs any Sort of Chriſtians, ſhould be deprived of Natural Privileges for meer Opinion, by thoſe who pretend to be the Beſt Servants of that God, who ſhews them quite another Example, by the Univerſality of his Goodneſs as Creator; And Believers in that Chriſt, who himſelf preacht the Perfection of Love, both to Friends and Enemies; and laid down his Life to confirm it when he had done. If Men ſhould love their Enemies, doubtleſs they ought at leaſt to forbear their Friends: And though ſome Differences in Judgment about Religion be a ſufficient Reaſon to excommunicate a Man the Air Eccleſiaſtical, yet nothing certainly of that Sort ought to Diſ-privilege Men of their Air Natural and Civil to breath freely in: And let that Good our Superiors have obſerved to be the Fruit of our Toleration, not be weakned or blaſted by an Untimely Comprehenſion of ſome, to the Excluſion of the reſt; ſince the Reaſon holds the ſame for the leſs formidable Separatiſts, that may not be however any whit leſs Conſcientious.

We will omit to mention, how much more Suitable it were to State-Matters, that all Parties ſhould be kept upon an equal Poize, a Thing moſt true in it ſelf, and moſt ſecure to the Publick Magiſtrate; and will conclude at this Time, That though we no Ways deſign a Miſ-repreſenting of any, much leſs their Exception, and leaſt of all their Perſecution; yet, a Comprehenſion either reſpecting the Perſons and their Qualifications, or their Separation, and the Grounds and Reaſons of it, We ſeriouſly believe, can never be conſiſtent with that Conſcience, Honor, Wiſdom, and Safety, that ought to be the Mark, thoſe who are concerned in it, ſhould take their Aim by. But if a Comprehenſion ſhould at laſt be compaſs'd, it is not doubted by many wiſe Men, but it will be found as Impracticable as other Acts more ſeemingly Severe have been, and at laſt will neceſſitate to that well-order'd univerſal Toleration of all, who both profeſs and practiſe Peace, Obedience, Induſtry, and Good Life, which will beſt pleaſe Almighty God, and rejoyce the Hearts of all Good Men.

ALEXANDER the Copper-Smith
Juſtly Rebuked:
OR,
An Answer to a Late PAMPHLET, Intituled,
The Spirit of the Hat, or the Government of the QUAKERS.
In which the Confederacy is Broken, and the Devil's Champions defeated.

By a True Witneſs of the One Way of God, W. P.

Nevertheleſs the Foundation of God ſtandeth ſure, 2 Tim. 2. 19.

SATAN, that Great Enemy to the Work of God, failing of his End in all thoſe Attempts he hath made to hinder, pervert, or deſtroy it, by the earneſt Endeavours of ſome of the moſt Envious among the many Sects in this Nation, hath at laſt pitcht upon an Old Canker'd Apoſtate (the beſt Spoke in his Wheel) and therefore call'd an Ingenious Quaker by the Publiſher, becauſe he has endeavour'd to promote the Common Deſign of our Overthrow in this World.

It is a manifeſt Token to me, that the Devil is hard beſet, his Affairs brought to a low Ebb, and his Condition Deſperate, that he is fled to his laſt Refuge of Falſe Brethren, and very Apoſtates. A Treachery that ſhall ever more infame this perverſe Alexander with Good Men, and encreaſe his Account with the Great and Terrible Judge of Heaven and Earth.

But is it not ſtrange to ſee, that Independents, Anabaptiſts, and Socinians, now in Arms againſt the Quakers, ſhould ſo heartily hugg the Labours of one they eſteem ſuch, and which is more Remarkable, as a true and primitive One too; as if they had been all this While angry with us, not for being Quakers, but for being not True Ones; which is ſuch a Thing, as would make a Body think them to be the only Right Quakers, at leaſt Well-wiſhers to them; and we but a Pack of Apoſtates. O how Ingenuous is this Author of the Spirit of the HAT! A fit Title for it; in which there is ſo little Head, or at leaſt no more Brains than in an empty Hat; and as little Fear of God, and Honeſty towards Men, as could be well found within ſuch a Compaſs. I ſay, how ingenuous is he to rail againſt Power, and love it; to decry Authority, and ſeek it; to accuſe G. F. for Tyranny, and uſe ſo much in doing ſo; to be Angry, not that there is Rule, but that he has no Share in it; to repute our Cenſure of a Diſturber about ſuch Unprofitable

1673. and Unſeemly Cuſtoms, as to keep on the Hat in Publick Prayer, a Reſemblance of the Church of Rome's Excommunications, and to rebuke a Malapert Stickler againſt the Church's Peace, Uſurpation and Oppreſſion: But, which is rareſt of all, Independents, Anabaptiſts and Socinians, are to fledge their naked Cauſe with this Man's Feathers, and his Lyes are to be their Refuge, and 'tis that very Hat we would have off in Prayer, they deſire to cover their Head with in this Day of Battel againſt the Quakers.

Are they ſuch Friends to that Token of Irreverence to God? Will they ſpit in our Faces for not pulling off our Hats to them, and yet glory in the Envious Labours of a Man that denies it to God himſelf, and therefore cannot be owned of us? Shall we be counted Conceited and Ignorant to forbear that Ceremony to Men; and this vile Apoſtate reputed Ingenious, &c. for making ſo bold with God? What! Is it become a Crime in the Quaker to perform that ſincerely to his Creator, which is with ſo much Formality every Day done by his Oppoſers? O Partial! O Unreaſonable and Down-right Impious Generation! who are not only ready to invent, pervert and miſconſtrue us about Matters of Religion; but can take Part with an Apoſtate, a Clamourer, a meer Alexander, Phygellus, Hermogenes, Hymenæus, Philetus: In ſhort, a very Mutineer in Religion, to beſpatter us and our Principles in the World; and that becauſe we abhor, renounce, and rebuke with Severity that rude Imagination of the Hat on in Publick Prayer, which, did we uſe it, we ſhould be but eſteemed by you the worſe, or you go from your own Principles. Nay, is it not unjuſt with a Witneſs, that we ſhould be ſo vehemently decry'd by ſome, becauſe we preach not with our Hats off; If yet we muſt be run thus furiouſly down for diſowning a Perſon, that in Praying keeps it on; Certainly it muſt needs be manifeſt to all the Impartial World, that ſuch Procedure is freighted with the very Rancour of Malice, Fury and Revenge; and, which is more, with Folly too: They have writ their own Anſwer in their baſe Accuſation, for either they, I mean the Profeſſors, that printed, buy and diſperſe the Pamphlet, own him for a Quaker, or they do not; if not, it is no Diſcredit to us, that he ſhould pretend to be preciſely one, and us to be Apoſtates: If he be one; then either a better or a worſe; if a better, and that by better is underſtood, more ſeparated from the ſeveral Sects of Profeſſors; then behold, how much more kindly they receive a True Quaker in his firſt Principles and Practice, than ſuch as they conceive to have Apoſtatiz'd: It would make one think, that they are no Abettors of thoſe Prieſts and Profeſſors, that writ ſo ſharply againſt them in their firſt Appearance: If worſe, and that by worſe is underſtood Apoſtatized, or gone back; then is not his End anſwered, which he pretends was to teſtify againſt our Apoſtacy, that is, Our Running into Forms, Methods, and Diſcipline, like to other Profeſſions; that is, Preſbyterians, Independents, Anabaptiſts, &c. and if ſo, I wonder with what Confidence thoſe Profeſſors dare undertake our Diſgrace by it, when at the ſame Time that he thinks to render us Odious, he makes the Reaſon of it to be our becoming like unto them. Certainly if our Order, Diſcipline, and Church Authority be Apoſtacy, we cannot be the only People that are concern'd in his Meaning. In ſhort, the Matter is ſo ordered, that whatever they venture to urge againſt us, ſtrikes them ſorely. What then can the Profeſſors do in all this Buſle? Why thus much; a Turbulent Spirit is diſown'd by the Quakers: He contemns their Church-Authority which ſo renounced him: For this he cries; They are like Rome, and are quite Apoſtatized: And if ſo, may the ſober Profeſſor ſay, then we are all Apoſtates too, it being but what we our ſelves do practiſe, and that frequently.

In ſhort, There is nothing, that this Alexander the Copper-Smith hath ſaid more Diſgraceful of the Quakers, than that the moſt uncorrupted of them ſhould deſpiſe Government (his own notorious Fault; and I know not why, unleſs becauſe he is not our Dictator) who underwent, and ſtill do all Hardſhips that befal our Teſtimony; that the Principle of Truth and Righteouſneſs might govern not only Individuals, but whole Societies. We ſhall not think our ſelves nor Principles much put to it, to vindicate theſe Aſſertions: 1. That we are a Religious Body. 2. That we have, as ſuch, a Power within our ſelves. 3. That by the Power and Spirit of the Eternal God, we have condemned, as well as juſtified many Practices. 4. That being in Holy Peace and Unity, and that Singular Spirit of the Hat getting Place with ſome, and Secret Rents, Diviſions, and Animoſities being like to enſue among us, as among the firſt Chriſtians, we did, with ſuch other Carriages, as were reputed unbecoming the Bleſſed Goſpel, condemn that of keeping the Hat on in Time of Publick Prayer to Almighty God, (to whom alone from a ſenſible Mind we perform that Holy and Due Reverence) as introduced by a Singular, Conceited, and Deceitful Spirit. 5. That the Author of the Spirit of the Hat, &c. hath reſiſted many Loving Treaties, Serious Invitations, and abundance of good and wholeſome Advice, for his own Good, and the Church's Peace, and becauſe he is not own'd in that Practice, which, ſhould we do, God's Spirit would diſown us in ſo doing; therefore, as a Man enraged beyond all Bounds of not only Chriſtianity, but Manhood, with Folly, Madneſs, and deſperate Revenge has he endeavoured our Ruin among Men. Now that herein he has not ſhown himſelf the Primitive Quaker, and great Lamenter of our Apoſtacy, as he pretendeth, may be clearly ſeen, in that he doth endeavour to render the Good as well as Bad among us ſuſpected by thoſe, who, he confeſſeth, cannot have that Diſcerning he hath; and conſequently their Lives and Miniſtry ineffectual; Next, to do it at this Time of the Day; What greater Demonſtration of Implacableneſs can there be, when ſo many are againſt us? And that as Quakers in any ſenſe; yea, for owning thoſe Principles, he himſelf aſſerts; their Hands are ſtrengthned thereby. Lamentation, Murder; Mercy, Revenge; our Recovery, our utter Deſtruction; and nothing below it muſt have been ſought by that Diſcourſe; but it all retorts from our Impenetrable Armour upon himſelf, and he will prove at laſt only to have diſcovered his own Nakedneſs by this impious Attempt. Whence, if any Thing appears, it is this, that becauſe he is indeed gone back from what he was, and we remain what we were, the World, that once perſecuted him, and ſtill doth us, count him now a very White Boy; and I am perſwaded, let him but continue to write againſt us, though a pretended Quaker, I dare warrant, they will reckon him a very good Chriſtian.

It is this Sort of unruly Beaſt that the Profeſſors, (who themſelves would have caſt him out an Hundred Times) maintain for an Ingenious Quaker, though their bare Entertainment of him againſt us, were Ground enough to ſuppoſe him either an Impoſtor or Renegade, as indeed he is little better; ſince firſt he pretends to be that in Religion which he is not: And ſecondly, that he is ſlipt from what he once was, or at leaſt pretended to be. I will briefly obſerve the moſt weighty Things of his Libel, and which indeed comprehend the Whole, and ſo cloſe this Animadverſion.

Firſt, That G. Fox ſhould ſay, No Liberty out of the Power; which he compares with the Papiſt, thus: No Liberty out of the Church. What! Liberty to the Sectary? No, What! Liberty to the Heretick? No. And G. Fox, ſays he, thus: What! Liberty to the Preſbyter? No. What! Liberty to the Independents and Baptiſts? No; Liberty is in the Truth.

Upon which he Comments at large: But had this Man but one Grain of that great Stock of Righteouſneſs he unjuſtly pretends to, and ſeems to lament the Abſence of among us, he would never have dared to ſuffer this to be ſo printed to the World. The Truth of the Matter is this: G. Fox having an Occaſion to ſpeak of Liberty of Conſcience, ſaid, He never liked the Word, as commonly us'd; for, Conſcience being an Inward and Spiritual Thing, no mortal Man could bind or inthrall it: He meddled not at all with the Outward Exerciſe of Conſcience, as to the Performance of Worſhip, commonly called, Liberty of Conſcience; wherefore he proceeded, No Liberty out of the Power; that is, The Power of God. Nor in reality is there: For all Conſciences that are defiled, or enſlaved by Wicked Works, they are not truly free; the Power of God has not delivered ſuch into the Glorious Liberty of the Sons of God: And ſince thoſe Perſwaſions Deny Liberty from Sin on this ſide the Grave, at leaſt the immediate Light, Power and Spirit of God, to work it in the Soul, he therefore ſaid, What! Liberty to the Preſbyterians, Independents, Baptiſts? &c. No: That is, What Spiritual Liberty and Freedom of Conſcience? No, for then in vain are we become Quakers, as the World calls us: And why ſhould they deny a State of Freedom? In ſhort, He ſpoke, and meant it of an Inward Liberty of Conſcience from Sin, which is call'd in Scripture, Purging the Conſcience from Dead Works, and If the Truth make you Free, &c. and this Alexander the Copper-Smith, that Vile and Peeviſh Apoſtate, turns to an outward Exerciſe of Religious Worſhip, as if G. F. would have had thoſe Profeſſors perſecuted by the Civil Magiſtrate. O Baſe and Wicked Perverſion of an Innocent Man's true Words! But for all this ſhall the Eternal Juſt God bring him to Judgment.

His next great Cavil is about his pulling off the HAT at Publick Prayer, either upon Conviction, or the Judgment of the Body; wherein he tells us, That not only ſome of us counſell'd, or requir'd him to yield, becauſe the Body would have it; ſaying, 1673. ſaying, That was yielding to the Power: But his not ſo yielding, but perſiſting, is no Diſſenſion; but our Diſowning any Perſon for that Cauſe, is a Breach of the Great Goſpel-Character of Liberty. Let him deny this to be the Strength of his Book if he can or dare; and which is as ſoon blown away, as the Chaff before the Wind.

There is either ſuch a Thing as a Chriſtian Society, ſometimes call'd a Viſible Body, or Church, or there is not: If there be not, all is at an End; and why Contend we at all? If there be; then this Church either has Power or not: If no Power, then no Church. If a Body, Church or Society (for the Word Church ſignifies no more, borrowed from the Aſſemblies of the Athenians) then there muſt be a Power within it ſelf to determine; an Anointing to lead into all Truth. Deny this, and all falls of it ſelf. Well, but this I ſuppoſe, will be confeſſed to: The Queſtion then is this, But, how far may this Church injoyn the Conſciences of Individuals any Performance, ſuppoſing their Diſ-like? I anſwer, It would be firſt enquired into, Whether thoſe Things have been once generally own'd by ſuch a Church or not? Secondly, Or if it be about ſome ſuperadded Ceremony, ſomething over and above what each Member at firſt ſat down contented with?

Now it is manifeſt, that this very perverſe and Quarrelſom Man, when he at firſt came among us, and walkt with us, was not in any ſuch Practice, As keeping on his Hat in Time of Publick Prayer; but believ'd, and in ſome Meaſure walked in the Way we profeſs, conformable as we are, and we hope, for Conſcience-ſake. He dare not alſo ſay, That he enjoy'd not ſome Comfort from thoſe Prayers that came through an Uncovered Head, but acknowledgeth the contrary; and at that Time of Day all was well: It was the Goſpel, the Truth, the Way of God, ſaid he; and others, ſince of his Stamp, were zealous alſo to promote it. This now will be the Queſtion, Whether, If any Perſon that had given thoſe Signal Teſtimonies for a Way and People, and ſo incorporated himſelf with them, finding afterwards Fault with a Practice ſo Innocent, ſo Reverent, as keeping off the Hat in Time of Publick Prayer to Almighty God, ſhould ſtep out of that comely Order, ſet up a New Mark and Standard, whereby ſome ſhould have their Heads covered, others uncovered (a moſt divided, confuſed and unſeemly Sight) the Church in this Caſe may not Admoniſh, and after her due Admonition, and the Parties tenacious, reſolute, and captious Diſputes for that unſuitable Practice, may not juſtly diſown him as a Diſputer about needleſs Queſtions, and one that is gone out of the compleat Union of the Body, and exerciſed by another Spirit? Deny this, and Farewel to all Chriſtian Church-Order and Diſcipline; yea, and Truth it ſelf: For it is an abſolute Inlet to Ranteriſm, and ſo to Atheiſm, near whoſe Borders this Author dwells. I ſay, If the Scripture is to be credited, this is ſound Doctrine; If the ſeveral Societies or Churches then gathered were not to paſs Judgment, till the Hereticks or Schiſmaticks were convinc'd of, and acknowledg'd their Miſtake, they had never done it, ſince upon ſuch Conviction and Acknowledgment they ceaſed to be ſuch; unleſs we ſhould believe, that notwithſtanding they were convinced in their Conſciences of their Errors or Diſſenſions, they ſtill perſiſted in the Belief of them, which I will not affirm. If then a Society or Church ſo anointed, as aforeſaid, have that Power, We do by Authority thereof, as a Chriſtian Society, judge all Perſons concern'd with the Spirit of this Author to be thus far led by a Deluſive, Turbulent, Unchriſtian Spirit, which, if once given way to, there is no Imagination ſo ſordid and ſcandalous, as it would not lead to; and by this will we ſtand in the Day of the Lord, when it will be proved no Popery, but Goſpel, to do ſo with him, and this Novice appear a Wretched Slanderer.

His Objection, Were I among you, could I Marry, if an whole Nation, ſince you deny it to Diſſenters from you? is childiſh in every Thing but the Malice of it. If all the World but he were Believers, he might aſk the Apoſtle Paul that Queſtion, who ſaid, Be ye not unequally yok'd together: It is not the Fault of the Body that he diſſents, but his own Imaginations and Whimſies. His Suggeſtion, that we would then deny him a Burial, becauſe we ſhould deny it him always as one of us; but eſpecially our now uſurping his Property in a burial Place, is a down-right Forgery.

That our Friends require any Man to practiſe what they are not convinc'd of, I utterly renounce in their Name, and that as an Infamous Slander. But that we will be well ſatisfied with any Member's Diſpractice of an orderly Performance, once cheerfully own'd, is alſo true, and moſt reaſonable and orderly.

1673.

That we Exalt our ſelves is a Calumny of his making; but we know our Places in the Body. And for his ſaying, Every Member is Equal; it is falſe: For though it belongs to the ſame Body, yet not to the ſame Service; ſome are in that Senſe more Honourable than others. This ſhows an Aſpiring, Diſcontented Mind in him, that where he can't be Superiour, he would be Equal.

He ſaith, That with ſorrow hath he ſeen pulling down, haling out, and thruſting forth of our Meetings, and that we went as far as our Power, and wanted only more to puniſh. p. 29.

But could we do ſo, as he wickedly and falſly ſuggeſts, we ſhould have been perhaps more formidable to our Inſolent, Envious and Perverſe Oppoſers, who come not for Conſcience-ſake, or to ſeek Satisfaction, which we ſhall never refuſe, but to Diſturb, introduce a Rabble, beget Laughter, or any Thing that might diſquiet our Aſſemblies, and as much as in them lies, render them unprofitable to the People. If we ever ſo us'd any Conſcientious Inquirer or Oppoſer, let us know them. It is Baſeneſs it ſelf to ſuggeſt our Ill-uſing of People in general, and none named: Perhaps we have refuſed and condemn'd the Bawling Oppoſition of ſuch Apoſtate Slanderers as our Adverſary; but we appeal to God's Holy Witneſs in all Conſciences, if that has been, or is our Practice, which is inſinuated againſt us, much leſs that his Uncharitable Expreſſion, If we had Power equal to our Will, we would Puniſh, ſhould have any Place; the Suggeſtion of the common Adverſary.

For his ſaying, That the Miniſters are Ravening Wolves, that prey upon the Flock: and that if they commit a Fault, they are not to be judged by the Laity, but their Peers or Equals. p. 29.

It is eaſie with him to Slander, but hard to prove. What one Miniſter ever made a Prey upon this Author's Perſon or Eſtate, let him give us his Name. If Preaching the Everlaſting Goſpel in Seaſon, and out of Seaſon, Riſing early, and lying down late, Suffering, Travelling, Spending and being ſpent in Body and Eſtate, Sacrificing the Joy, Strength, and Pleaſure of their Youth, to the Service of the Living Eternal God, and the Salvation of People's Souls, if all this makes them Ravenous Wolves of Prey, then hath he rightly denominated them; but if this be Love unfeign'd to God and Men, then will that Righteous Judge certainly reckon with this Apoſtate for all his Slanders and Calumnies againſt his Faithful and Painful Meſſengers.

For not being judg'd by the Laity, but their Peers, as he wickedly diſtinguiſhes; be it known to all, That if any ſuch Perſon have committed an Injury againſt any of thoſe, who are not exerciſed in the Miniſtry; then as well thoſe as the Miniſtry are proper Judges: But in Caſes that may more ſtrictly concern the Exerciſe of his Gift, it is moſt equal and reaſonable, that ſuch other faithful publick Labourers as may be gotten together with ſome of the more approved among us, whom we can call Elders, ſhould be Judges in the Caſe. But how? Only as they are upon ſerious Waiting to receive Counſel and Wiſdom from God, directed of his Holy Spirit to ſpeak, act, or determine. Now what great Matter of Evil, Apoſtacy, Popery, Tyranny, Lordlings, &c. can there be in ſo orderly a Practice? O this Libertine, Ranting Spirit! That therefore hateth us, becauſe we would have it Ruled, Guided and Govern'd with the Curb of Truth; and not under a Pretence of Goſpel-Liberty run out into all Exceſs, in which we have ſome Cauſe to fear this pretended Lamenter hath too deeply involv'd himſelf. True Liberty is not to Commit Sin Innocently, as ſome fancy, but to be freed from Sin, which is ever Nocent, and will prove deſtructive of all who are ſeduced by it.

Nor is he leſs untrue and unrighteous to us, when he ſays, That as others err'd in ſetting up the Scriptures as the Standard, Trial, and Touch-ſtone of Doctrines and Spirits, ſo we do greatly err in ſetting up the Body above the Spirit.

There is no ſuch Doctrine as the Latter maintained among us: It is well known that the Former is by many Profeſſors, yea thoſe, who boaſt in his Treachery and Lyes; But this always hath been, and ſtill is, and we hope, ever will be our Belief, that no meer Body of People, without the Guidance of God's Spirit, are capable of Determining in Matters of Religious Concernment: For it is not an Hundred Perſons (ſingly void of the Holy Spirit) coming together, that makes them any whit more certain in their Judgment. The only and indiſpenſible Qualification to that great Work being Diſcoveries and Aſſiſtance of the Holy Spirit? A Body then, without the Holy Spirit, can be no Touch-ſtone; but a Body, attended with the Holy Spirit, certainly is. The Queſtion then is not, If we prefer 1673. the Body above the Spirit? For that is the Falſe Inſinuation of this Apoſtate, who is inraged, that we ſhould ſo ſeverely cenſure him, and ſuch Contentious Perſons as he is; But, Whether we, as a Believing Body have the Holy Spirit, or no? Of which much hath been ſaid by Way of Vindication already in other Tracts; and we ſhall leave it to God's Witneſs in the Conſciences of thoſe we are concern'd with in Matters of that Import, whether we are acted by that Holy Wiſdom and Direction, which gives true and ſound Judgment. We know we are of God; and the World, whether Apoſtates or others, that thus withſtand our Teſtimony, are in the Gall of Bitterneſs, and Bond of Iniquity.

His Objection, That the Hat on in Prayer is a Trifle, or of no ſuch Moment, as juſtly to occaſion ſuch a Buſle, makes for us; ſince he can't be other than a Trifler at beſt, for all his high Pretences, who hazards the Church's Peace, gives this Diſturbance, bears this Ill-will, and ſhows that Revenge for a Trifle; 'Twere well if his Conſcience were ſo nice in Caſes of more Weight: I fear he is as well a Demas as an Alexander, and that his Cries againſt our Miniſters decent and clean Apparel, is but a better Sort of Cover for his own ruſty phariſaical kind of Garb, the Effect perhaps of his ſordid Avarice, It ſeems by his Letter, that the Quakers mean Clothes made up much of his Convincement at firſt. Truly, that Faith which came in by the outſide, will go out by it too.

But it is a Wonder to me, that the Coſtly Clothes, and Prodigal Feaſt (to Exceſs and Deriſion) of that Exalted J. Pennyman, and his Beloved, Mary Bateman, (who in Token of her Self-Denial, and Attainment to a more excellent Adminiſtration, exchanged her Cloth Waſte-Coat for a Silk Farendine Gown, her Blew Apron for one of Fine Holland, and her ordinary Bodice for Rich Sattin it ſelf; to ſay little of her Riding in Fine Coaches, and ſeveral other Things (once accounted by her Self-Righteouſneſs, Abominable Things) did never offend this Author's Nice and Squeamiſh Stomach: But we are they only, who muſt be Condemned; and I perceive that muſt be reputed a Sin in us, which is accounted a Virtue in them. Away with ſuch Deceit for Shame.

Pag. 18. He ſays, That we deſert the Light, for the Judgment of the Body: A wretched begging of the Queſtion: We do deny that to be Light in him, which oppoſeth it. He at other Times grants the Body has Light, though not ſome Elders: But the Body judgeth him: How will he do then? For him to ſay, He believes the Body to be in the Right, and yet ſubject them to his own Conceits, is what deſerves to be diſdain'd of all Underſtanding Men. He ſhould have gone to thoſe Elders, and cleared himſelf, if he had ought againſt them, and not place their Miſcarriages (as he thinks) to the Acoount of the Whole Body. Were he any Thing of a True Quaker, (and that he pretends to) he would have abhorred to add thus to their Endeavours, that ſtrike at True as well as Falſe. And if by True, is underſtood ſomething more refined than we are, he may be ſaid to add to our Sufferings ſo much the more. What, but a Dark, Envious, Inveterate Man, would have done ſuch a Thing at any Time, but eſpecially at this Juncture and Seaſon?

Behold the Hat now, and what a Notable Spirit it affords us, one Drop of which, by Antipathy, were enough, one would think, to Cure any one, not too far gone in Prejudice and Schiſm! O that all who profeſs the Truth of the Living God, may be kept out of ſuch Temptation, that they may never ſacrifice the Peace of the Church, and Quiet of their own Souls, to the Introduction, or Promotion of any Thing ſo Unſerviceable, Senſeleſs, and Unprofitable, both to Soul and Body; but Eyeing the Bleſſed TRUTH in their inward Parts, may by it be Exerciſed in Body, Soul and Spirit, to all Godly Converſation among Men; ſo will God be Glorified, and they preſerved.

For his other Stories, ſome Things are True, and hurt us not, but ſhow our Care to preſerve Unity and Order, though they will the Judas that both reveal'd and augmented them. Other Paſſages are greatly abuſed, and down-right Lyes told, as before, three of which, I cannot forbear to mark out, with a Challenge to prove them, notwithſtanding the following Teſtimonies, pag. 22, 23, 43. Firſt, That our Miniſtry is Vicious and Wanton, Guilty of Whoredom; and that Strumpets are among them. This we do, in the Name of the Holy God deny, and defie any Man on Earth to prove any Part of this Ungodly, General Charge againſt our Miniſtry, to ſo much as belong to any one Perſon by us accounted of it: If any ſuch Thing be, let the Accuſer, his Witneſſes, and the Accuſed be brought forth, and an Hearing ſhall never be refuſed. But let me aſk this Apoſtate, If ever he knew ſuch an one?

If he admoniſh'd him? If upon Continuance in ſuch Ungodly Living, he told it to the Church, before this Publication of his Ungodly Slanders to the World: If he ſays he did, he adds to his Lyes; be it then True or Falſe in it ſelf, he has done but like a Treacherous Renegade; I faſten an Action of Defamation upon his Head, and that in the High and Holy Court of Heaven, before God the Righteous Judge, who will avenge the Cauſe of the Innocent upon their falſe Accuſers.

Next, That we, with the Papiſts, prefer a looſe Perſon before a Non-Conformiſt, or ſuch like, is an horrid Lye. We own, and cannot but cheriſh Sobriety, and a Conſcientiouſneſs to God in all, which we never could Prophaneneſs; but where Men, like the Phariſees, have a Shew of Religion, and their Fury hath eaten out their Moderation, inſomuch, as that they are become Envious and Perſecuting, ſuch we ſay, Are worſe than Publicans, as ſaith the Scripture, Whoremongers and Adulterers ſhall enter the Kingdom of God before them. But neither is this the Caſe in Hand; for he is far leſs excuſable, who having walked with Upright People, deſerts them, than thoſe Non-Conformiſts that were never of them. Non-Conformity may be Ignorance, but Apoſtacy is wilful diſtorting, and erring from the Faith, Worſhip, and Diſcipline of the True Church: And, as a Chriſtian turn'd Turk, is obſerv'd to be moſt Cruel to the Profeſſion; ſo none ſo great Enemies to the Poor Quakers, as thoſe who have been reputed of them. The worſt Enemies are thoſe of a Man's own Houſe. 'Twas Judas the Diſciple, that betray'd his Lord; and none we hear of, did Paul more Wrong, than Alexander the Copper-Smith.

Laſtly, His Judging their Recantations, that deny'd their former Acts of Diſſenſion, and gave Teſtimony againſt them, to have been done in an Hour of Temptation, is a Lye in it ſelf, and in him high Incharity, and at moſt but a Begging of the Queſtion: I challenge him to prove it; If he can't, he is a Belyer of God's Convictions upon the Soul: Their profeſt Sincerity, and Brokenneſs of Heart, and Contrition of Spirit, had been enough to have melted any Thing, but an Adamantine Alexander, the Apoſtate, who not only was Bad, but we never heard that he proved Good again; the Doom I fear of this Perverter of the Right Way of the Lord, who will certainly reward him according to his Works. But becauſe I deſign not to be long, nor yet to give an Account to the World of our Church-Procedure, nor are we obliged to it for every Nameleſs Accuſer, let this ſuffice to ſhow the Baſeneſs and Revenge both of the Author and his Publiſher, and their great Inconſiſtency with the Deſigns of each other, and his with Sound Reaſon, Scripture, and himſelf.

God will bleſs the Horn of his Salvation above all their Oppoſition; he will Proſper his Truth, Bleſs His People, and Diſſipate every Miſt that Ignorance, Rage, or Malice of Ungodly Men, may for a Time cloud the Beauty of the One, or call in Queſtion the Unſpotted Reputation of the other by; and He ſhall have the Glory, whoſe it is, for ever.

IN WHICH

TRUTH is cleared from Scandals, and the Church of CHRIST, in her Faith, Doctrine, and Juſt Power and Authority in Diſcipline, is clearly and fully Vindicated, againſt the Malicious Endeavours of a Confederacy of ſome Envious Profeſſors, and Vagabond, Apoſtate Quakers.

The INTRODUCTION.

THE Juſt Defence of our ſo much Reviled Principles and Perſons, is ſo ill reſented by our Enemies, that inſtead of publickly Recanting their Injuſtice, they repute us more Criminal for ſo doing, than themſelves in firſt traducing us. It is become a Sort of Petty Treaſon to reprove them, they are grown almoſt incorrigible; and to controul them, though in a Lye, is hateful: So much more do they prefer our Deſtruction, than the Truth it ſelf, or their own. Reputation. Strange! That it ſhould be reputed Innocency to accuſe the Guiltleſs, and Guilt to defend them. Are we of God, then ſhall we ſtand, maugre your Aſſaults; if not, we ſhall fall without them. What need this Clubbing for Miſchief, and Caballing to our Ruin? The Jews, I believe, never ſtudied the Crucifying of Chriſt more vehemently, than you vigorouſly combine and plot the Maſſacring of our Names, Credit and Principles out of the World; yea, and we have Cauſe to ſuſpect our Perſons too, or elſe this Socinian-Defender of the Hat-Spirit, would never have told the World in almoſt ſo many Words, That Blaſphemers were to dye by the Law of God, and the Quakers are Blaſphemers; every Man can make the Concluſion, that underſtands what a Concluſion is. See pag. 23 It's a Work becomes Darkneſs; for ſuch I call your Nameleſs Pamphlet, in which you have abuſed Virtuous and Good People by Name, not daring to ſtand the Teſt of putting your Names to your Abuſes: againſt which can be no Fence but Innocency, and that remains unſhaken by all your Bluſtering Epithets: That reſts with God, who will quell your ſwelling Rage, and ſpeedily rebuke that great Hurricane your Envy has raiſed to over-ſet us in our Voyage to Eternal Reſt. But he that ſaid to Moſes in an Hour of Straight, Stand ſtill, and thou ſhalt ſee my Salvation, has once and again comforted us under all theſe Diſcouragements: Neither are your Combinations Terrible; No, though Evil Spies have been your Informers. Our greateſt Trouble is your own Hardening, and we are ſorry to ſee you make ſo much Haſte to Old Jeruſalem's Portion. For us, we know in whom we have believed: Who, as he feedeth the Fowls of the Air, and clotheth the Lillies of the Field, preſerves us, ſo that your Buffettings may prove our Trials, but in the End your own Judgment. For, however you buoy your ſelves up, by the Acceptance you find with ſome Airy, or Prejudiced Spirits, God will certainly enter into Judgment with you for your Envious Proceedings, who not being able to carry on your own Controverſies, now Liſt your ſelves Combatants for a few Stragling Apoſtates; not out of Love to True Quakers, but Hatred to ſuch as are ſo. What Senſe is there in believing you only intend a Falſe Quaker, who have writ and abetted thoſe Writings that are againſt us as Quakers at all? But what ſhall I ſay? It is an Age grown to that Degree of Impiety, that there is no Friendſhip ſo ſtrait, no Relation ſo near, no Truth ſo evident, nor Life ſo innocent, that ſome Men are not hardy, and wicked enough to break, violate and ſlander, to avenge ſome ſuppoſed Wrong, or gratifie an Emulous Spirit. Controverſie Ended upon Socinian Principles, &c. is riſen now in One, about the Hat on in Prayer. What Variety of Shapes do our Adverſaries put on, to compaſs their Ends? It has been their Practice, firſt to abuſe our Principles, and then rail at our Defences; and for vindicating our Religion, to fall foul upon our Perſons; and thoſe chiefly who are moſt active in that Service. There needs no other Demonſtration of this, than the Scurrilous Libel now to be conſidered; which with me carries ſo miſchievous an Aſpect, that the Parties concerned in theſe Undertakings, do by it proclaim, they only want as much as Power as Will, To ſend us and our Principles to New-England for a Venture. God deliver us from thoſe Magiſtrates, that are as Angry in Government, as theſe Men are in Religion: But this is our Joy, That theſe Enemies ſpeak all Manner of Evil againſt us falſly, for our Lord and Saviour's Sake. We maintain our Principles, that angers them; Miſcarriages joy them, whatever they pretend; and if they can bring ſome Writers and Preachers out of Requeſt, they think they do their Buſineſs. But we cannot believe that Sober and Judicious Perſons will think the worſe of us, or our Cauſe, for theſe Malicious Endeavours againſt it. We have only to do with ſome Old Adverſaries, new Vampt, with the Slanderous Stories of ſome Modern Apoſtates. Had not Judas helpt, the Jews had been to ſeek. A few Vagabond Quakers are their Intelligencers; it's all but a Piece of Treachery and Envy: And truly 'tis fit we ſhould be tryed as well by Falſe Friends as Profeſſed Enemies, that in all Things we may approve our ſelves Compleat Conquerors, through the Inviſible Power, and to the alone Honour of the Eternal TRUTH, profeſſed by us. Aud ſo we enter upon the Libel it ſelf.

Judas and the Jews, &c.

WE are told in the Title Page of the Libel, that it was writ in Defence of a Letter, entituled, The Spirit of the Hat; and, Againſt the Deceitful, Invective, and Railing Anſwer, called, The Spirit of Alexander, &c. Indeed it is wonderful ſtrange, that to reprove an Apoſtate ſhould be reputed Railing; and that this Secretary to this New-founded Cabal, ſhould practiſe it in cenſuring it. He cannot forbear it in his Title Page.

He begins with Tyranny and Hypocriſy Detected; which four Words he explains to us thus: Or, a farther Diſcovery of the Tyrannical Government, Popiſh Principles, and Vile Practices of the now Leading Quakers. In all which, if there be no Reviling, there is no Thing in the World; for theſe Words reach to the End of all Villany. Meek Man, that he would be thought! Who ſeems to engroſs Railing into a Company, and ſeems not ſo angry at it in us, as that we uſe it Unlicenſed of his Cabal; for he exerciſeth it at ſuch a Rate in checking it, as if he might do it Cum Privilegio. But it right-well agrees with the Advocate of an Apoſtate Cauſe. I complain of nothing in this Kind more, than that we muſt not Rebuke ill Language 1673. guage without being Guilty of it: Nay, ſuch is the Peeviſhneſs of our Adverſaries, that to mention theirs, is Criminal: But we ſhall run the Hazard of their Frowns, rather than be Falſe to the Truth, or wanting to our ſelves in it's proper Place. Let it ſuffice that the Title manifeſtly ſpeaks what the Libel vainly condemns.

This Secretary, (I ſuppoſe in the Name of the Cabal) begins his Libel thus, How Dangerous a Thing it is, for a Man to engage himſelf publickly for any Single Party upon the Account of Religion, is greatly manifeſt in the Leading Quakers, and eſpecially in W. Penn, from whoſe Parts and Education, one would expect more than ordinary Candour and Ingenuity.

By which, I perceive, he is, from a Raging Socinian, become an Univerſalian. But why then ſo bitter againſt us? Sure he is of a Party in that; and how dangerous a Thing it is, Time will more fully ſhew. However, he declares himſelf of No Party, by which I ſuppoſe he excludes the Chriſtian; for the Prophane of that Time reputed him a Sectary, and all muſt acknowledge him to be of a Party.

How I came to be of this Way, is beſt known to God; but thus much I muſt ſay, that nothing ſhort of the Divine Word of Life and Power, has wrought that Alteration upon me from what I once was, to what I now am. The Trials, Travels, Tribulations, and Exerciſes, that from Fourteen Years of Age have attended me, but more eſpecially ſince I was brought to own and abet this Holy Way I now profeſs, are too many to be related. And from the Hour I was firſt Convinced of this Eternal TRUTH, to this of writing this Diſcourſe, I can with Boldneſs declare to all the World, I have had no other Aim nor End than God's Honour, the Good of others, and my own Salvation in the Day of the Lord. In ſhort, I have learned to turn my Back to the Smiter, and my Cheek to the Plucker off of the Hair: And it is not for any Adverſary at this Time of Day, under any Pretence of Parts and Education, to diſ-ingage my Affection from this Right Way of the Lord, Remembring, My Lord made himſelf of no Reputation, and, that the Prophet was accounted Mad, and the Apoſtles Drunk.

But he ſays, I having imbarked my ſelf amongſt thoſe People, and having obtained an high Repute among them, I betook my ſelf to ſuch pitiful Shifts, Scurrilities and Bravings (he is pincht) to uphold their Detected Cauſe and Tottering Kingdom, ('twill ſtand for ever) as one would think could not proceed from any Man profeſſing Chriſtianity; witneſs my late Controverſial Writings, ibid.

But I cannot expect to be Well-ſpoken of by mine Enemies, eſpecially when they declare themſelves to be ſuch, becauſe of that Way I ſo earneſtly defend. But this Man is not ſo ignorant ſurely, as to imagine I imbarkt my ſelf among this People, to obtain Repute or Grandeur, who loſt all with Men when I firſt came amongſt them. I would have my implacable Enemies know, that had no more Durable and Eternal Things been in my Eye, I might have had my Share where more is to be got, than amongſt this Deſpiſed People; but Envy is Blind, and Rage Fooliſh. For my Controverſial Writings, they ſtand unanſwered, among the reſt my Spirit of Alexander, &c. the Strength of it being foully over-looked, as we ſhall anon have Occaſion to ſhew.

He tells the World, (pag. 4, 5.) That notwithſtanding we call the Spirit of the Hat, Lyes, Forgery, Defamation, with abundance of Terms of the like Foxonian Leaven (a Scornful Nick-Namer) yet when we come to Particulars, we either firſt confeſs what we deny, with an idle Diſtinction, except ſome few Things; or ſecondly, acknowledge them by Silence; or thirdly, uſe ſome Deceitful Terms of Denial, which the Reader cannot diſcover; or, fourthly, take an Occaſion from ſome Circumſtances, perhaps not rightly ſet down, to deny the whole Matter; which doubtleſs are very bad Things, if True.

He has hereby rendred us, not only No Chriſtians, but the Worſt of Men. All I can ſay at preſent is this, it has never been my Practice to palliate that which cannot be juſtified, or to treat any Adverſary ſo deceitfully. But 'tis expected he ſhould prove what he ſays, or elſe we muſt invert the Character upon himſelf.

He tells us (I ſuppoſe, in order to prove what he hath ſaid,) That W. P. doth in the Name of the Quakers acknowledge, That the Complaint made in the Spirit of the Hat, is True, namely, “That we required him to yield [to our Determination againſt his Conſcience] “becauſe the Body would have it ſo; ſaying, that was yielding to the Power: And that I undertake in Oppoſition to the Author, That his “not ſo yielding, but perſiſting, is Diſſenſion; but our Diſowning [Excommunicating, and Depriving of a Liberty, of Marrying, Burying, &c.] any Perſon for “that Cauſe, is no Breach of the Great Goſpel-Charter: This, he ſays I labour to do with the ſame Arguments Papiſts uſe againſt Proteſtants, who pretend to no ſuch Power, and that they may be found every where anſwered in Proteſtant Writings. A mean Anſwer, but a Notable Go-by, in Caſe I had ſo expreſt my ſelf, but moſt forgedly does he deliver my Words, and Tendency of them.

Was this Man choſen for your prime Tool of Controverſie, who can only tell One Big Lye, and then run away? My Argument (forſooth) are Popiſh, there's Confutation enough; But with whom? Ignorance and Prejudice? An eaſie Way to brand Reaſon, and render the cleareſt Truth ſuſpected in a Nation as abhorrent of Popery, as this we live in; a ſhameful Injuſtice, that Sectaries ſhould traduce us with that, which was once their own Suffering from others. But what if I had us'd any Argument for the True Church, which is employed by the Papiſt in Defence of a Falſe One, Muſt Truth not be Truth in it ſelf, becauſe miſ-applyed? And ſuppoſe the Proteſtant has anſwered the Papiſt, Is that any Anſwer to me? How great an Untruth has he told in his Title Page, when he calls his Pamphlet, A Defence of the Spirit of the Hat, againſt the Spirit of Alexander; who in four Pages after tells us, He intends not to meddle with the Arguments of it. But perhaps he will Fault me (for theſe People are very full of finding Fault, though they mend none in themſelves) in that he has referred us to Proteſtant-Writers; a Defence boldly begged, but never to be accepted of by me. Does he think I muſt turn over Melancthon, Chemnitius, Oecolampadius, Jewell, Whitaker, Reynolds, and others, for an Anſwer to the Spirit of Alexander the Copper-Smith? After this Rate, it were far eaſier to Anſwer than Accuſe. I am of Opinion, that Dr. Stillingfleet's Adverſaries would look upon their Cauſe as little injured by any bare Reference to Ancient Proteſtant-Writers, how excellently ſoever they acquitted themſelves at that Time of Day; freſh Oppoſition requires freſh Vindication. If I had been Popiſh, the Man ſhould have ſhewn me in what; and when he had done, have ſoundly confuted it, and not in the midſt of his Exclamations againſt Shifters, give ſuch juſt Occaſion to ſay, thou art the Man. I am willing to forgive him at this Time; But let him be better inſtructed of his Cabal againſt the next, and ſee if he can learn more Truth, than to call his Libels Anſwers, whilſt they prove themſelves Evaſions; For Truth will work through all odious Names: And it is not pinning the Pope upon our Tail, and crying, Popery, Popery, that will confute our Principles; However, till we are better known, it may diſrepute our Perſons.

But let his baſe Conſtructions be conſidered. Our Reproving Men for going out of the decent Order and happy Unity of the Body, he calls Requiring Men to ſet down by our Determination againſt their Conſcience; And our diſowning that Breach upon Perſiſtance, Excommunication from Burying and Marrying. They ejected themſelves by their Novelties, and we are not aſhamed to repute ſuch as Publicans and Heathens that will not hear the Church of Chriſt, Mat. 18. Had they Faith? they might have kept it to themſelves, and not have diſturbed the Church's Peace with their new Practices, indeed Inſtitutions; for what was it leſs than to require our not practiſing of the Hat off in Prayer, who called pulling it off a Popiſh Tradition, unleſs Men are not to leave of Popiſh Traditions: So that they, and not we were to blame, as the Sequel will farther prove; But I could not paſs by this Part of the Diſingenuity of this Libeller.

As the Libel, ſo our Diſcourſe will conſiſt, of Matter of Argument, and Matter of Fact. I ſhall begin with Matter of Argument, which ſhall conſiſt of a farther Defence of what is aſſerted in my Book, entituled, The Spirit of Alexander the Copper-Smith revived and rebuked.

The grand Cauſe of that Diſſenſion which was begun by Jo. Perrot, long ſince happily ended among our ſelves, though renewed, divulged and aggravated, for the Strengthening of the Hands of our common Enemy, by certain Perverſe Apoſtates, as delivered in the Spirit of the Hat, and Defence of the ſame, they muſt with me grant to be this.

The Quakers teach that every Man is enlightned with a ſufficient Light to Salvation, And that all Faith in, and Worſhip to God ought to ſtand upon the Convictions, and in the Leadings thereof; yet we are obliged by their Body unto that, which we have no Motion for, but rather againſt, and upon our Refuſal of ſuch Compliance as they expect, we are diſowned as not of them: So that the Sufficiency, Convictions and Leadings of the Light muſt vail to the Body, and not the Body to the Light; wherefore not the Light, but the Body is become the Quakers Rule. Thus Thomas Hicks's Con. Dial. p. 63, 64, 65. Spir. Hat. p. 11, 12, 13. Defence of it, p. 5, 6, 7. Their Common Aggravations, eſpecially of the two latter are theſe, That they are denied Marrying, Burying, Trading, that they are diſtracted and ſo deprived of all both Eccleſiaſtical and Civil Privileges. The Aggravations we ſhall conſider in their Place; And firſt to their Objection or Argument, as I have fairly, fully and faithfully laid it down.

'Tis a Truth, and as true, that we urge, both the Univerſality and Sufficiency of the Light to Salvation; and that every Man ought to follow only the Teachings of it about Faith and Worſhip. This is granted on all Hands, even by the Cabal to credit their preſent Work, and obtain their envious Ends upon us and our Principles; Therefore no Part of the Queſtion to be controverted. The Matter in Difference ſtrictly lies here, that is, by reſolving theſe four following Queſtions, the Objection will be fully and plainly anſwered.

2. Whether Chriſt has given to his Church, conſiſting of faithful Believers, and obedient Walkers by the Light or Spirit within, ſuch a Senſe, Taſt, Reliſh and Savour of the Nature of Spirits, as upon all Occaſions the great Enemy of Chriſt and his People may take upon him (under never ſo ſeeming innocent Appearances and Transformations) to condemn any Thing by his Church practiſed, or innovate any Thing by the Church never practiſed, but condemned, Yea, or Nay?

2. Whether ſuch a Society, Body or Church, after due Admonition given to any diſſenting or innovating Perſon, may not Lawfully and Chriſtianly deny their Communion in Teſtimony againſt that wrong Spirit, ſuch Perſon or Perſons may be acted by?

3. Whether ſuch Perſon or Perſons may not hold this granted fundamental Principle of the Light, &c. before recited, in the Underſtanding, and yet be acted by a wrong Spirit to Diviſions, and then plead againſt the Church, under the Pretence of acting by the Light within; and conſequently, whether he can, or ought to be judged by any for ſo doing, becauſe every one ought to act according to the Light that is within them? And laſtly,

4. Whether the Body of the Quakers, or their preſent Oppoſers be that Church, Yea, or Nay?

The firſt is ſo evident in the Affirmative, That to reject it, is nothing leſs than to deny Scripture it ſelf. It was the expreſs Promiſe of Chriſt, to ſend the Comforter, the Spirit of Truth to lead into all Truth; which the Apoſtle John aſſures us, was made good, not only to the Diſciples, but the then Churches of Chriſt, to whom he writ theſe unanſwerable Paſſages, Ye have an Unction from the Holy One, and Ye ſhall know all Things. Again, But the Anointing, which ye have received of him, abideth in you, and you need not that any Man teach you, but as the ſame Anointing teacheth you of All Things, and is Truth and is no Lye; And even as it hath taught you, ye ſhall abide in him. By which it is evident, that the Church of Chriſt had an Infallible Spirit, by which to diſcern the Spirit of a Sheep, from the Spirit of a Wolf, though he came in Sheep's Clothing. This Doctrine Chriſt himſelf taught us, when he ſaid, Beware of Falſe Prophets, which come to you in Sheep's Clothing. Again, Take heed that no Man deceive you; For many ſhall come in my Name, ſaying I am Chriſt, and ſhall deceive many. Whence it follows, that there ſhould be Falſe Prophets, yet in Sheep's Clothing, which is a deceitful Spirit, acting under refined Appearances; and to compaſs it's Deceit the better, ſhall palliate it, with the Pretence of being led by the Spirit or Light of Chriſt within: So that as Deceitful Spirits were foretold, the Way to know them was both promiſed and enjoyed; My Sheep hear my Voice, ſaid the great Shepherd, and a Stranger will they not hear. Who is this Stranger? Not always Falſe Doctrine, but a Falſe Spirit, covered with True Doctrine, They ſhall come in my Name, that is, pretending Authority from me, and ſpeaking my Words, not having my Spirit: Chriſt's Spirit within, is his Voice within, and 'tis that alone gives to diſcern the Strange Voice, let it come with never ſuch True Words. Had Chriſt left his Churches deſtitute of this Touch-Stone, they had been impoſed upon by every Falſe Spirit, and his Flock devoured by every Wolf in Sheep's Clothing. Sheep know Sheep, not only by Sight, but Inſtinct, and Wolves too; For if Shepherds be of Authority, they tell us, that if a Wolf be near, though out of Sight, the Sheep will bleat their Antipathy: So do the Sheep of Chriſt know each other by the Inſtinct of that Divine Nature they are mutually Partakers of, and by it do they diſcern the Wolf within, notwithſtanding the Sheep's clothing without. It was for this End they were to have Salt in themſelves, the Anointing and Spirit in themſelves, that they might ſee, reliſh and diſcern thereby, who were ſo Salted, Anointed and Spirited, which in the Ground could never be viſibly diſcerned.

2dly. The ſecond Queſtion I alſo take in the Affirmative, and for which there is both expreſs Scripture, and Unanſwerable Reaſon. This is ſeen in the very Caſe of Alexander the Copper-Smith, who was denied and rejected, notwithſtanding that he made Profeſſion of Chriſtianity; And there is cauſe to believe, that the Difference began from his emulous Spirit's taking Occaſion againſt the Apoſtles Authority, and the Power of the Elders in the Church. It was doubtleſs for ſomething not unlike to this, that Paul complained of him to Timothy, Alexander the Copper-Smith did me much wrong, of whom be thou ware alſo; for he hath greatly withſtood our Words. Which is the very State and Character of the preſent Apoſtates, Who pretend with Alexander, not to withſtand Truth or Chriſtianity; but a Lordly Paul, Timothy, or ſuch like eminent Labourers: They pretend to own the Churches, but deny ſome of their Leading Miniſters. That this was Alexander's Diſeaſe, the next Verſe proves; At my firſt Anſwer no Man ſtood with me, but all Men forſook me. I pray God it may not be laid to their Charge. Who was this People but the Church? For of the Heathen it could not be ſaid. And what was Alexander's aim beſides Ambition? I mean, to diſcredit the Apoſtle, that he might gain the Repute, and bring him down from that Authority God had given him in the Church, that he might uſurp it to himſelf. What did the Apoſtle do in the like Caſe? ſhrink? No; hear him: For though I ſhould boaſt ſomewhat more of our Authority (which the Lord hath given us for Edification, and not for your Deſtruction) I ſhould not be aſhamed. 2 Cor. 10. 8. But no more of this at preſent. That Chriſt as well gave his Church Power to reject as to try Spirits, is not hard to prove. That notable Paſſage, Go, tell the Church, does it to our Hand: For if in Caſe of private Offence betwixt Brethren, the Church is made abſolute Judge, from whom there is no Appeal in this World; how much more in any the leaſt Caſe that concerns the Nature, Being, Faith and Worſhip of the Church her ſelf? The Judgment Chriſt paſſeth in the Matter, is ſufficient to the Reſolution of our Queſtion; But if he neglect to hear the Church, let him be unto thee as an Heathen and a Publican. This I ſay on the Account of thoſe Apoſtates, who pretend to be the Men they ever were; For this Man that works with their Tools, is upon his own Principle, as much an Heathen and a Publican as any Thing elſe, and tells us to boot, that it is dangerous to be of any one Party; Therefore not of the true Church's Party. I omit any particular recital of the Apoſtle Paul's frequent and earneſt Dehortations from ſo much as keeping Company with perverſe Diſputers about needleſs Queſtions, or any that infeſted the Church, and diſturbed her Peace, and that Practice, in which ſhe was at firſt ſetled, with unprofitable Novelties, under what Pretence ſoever: They that can read, may find in his Epiſtles enough to this Purpoſe. 'Tis true, They uſed no corporal Violence, or any civil Power to puniſh ſuch obſtinate Diſſenters; nor is that Unchriſtian Practice ſo much as any Part of the Queſtion: But firſt, to reprove and admoniſh, and in Caſe of Perſiſtance, then to diſown and reject, which is a Part of the Queſtion, and a Part of the Scripture too. And indeed it is moſt reaſonable, that as a Civil, ſo a Chriſtian Society ſhould have this Power to preſerve it ſelf from the Taints and Infections of hurtful Spirits, for ſuch tend not to farther Knowledge, Increaſe in Holineſs, or Peace, but Strifes and Diviſions, Animoſities and Rents, Backbitings and Revenge, to the laying waſte of God's Holy Heritage.

3dly, The third Queſtion we alſo accept in the Affirmative. That Men may believe, confeſs and ſubſcribe to the Truth of the Doctrine of the Univerſality, Sufficiency, and immediate Teachings of the Light, as to Faith and Worſhip, and yet be declined from the Living Senſe, Power and Ordering of it, ſo as to be acted by a wrong Spirit to Diviſions, and notwithſtanding plead his Following of the Light within againſt the Judgment of the Church, who reproves him for ſo doing. In ſhort, That a Man may follow a Wrong Spirit when he thinks he follows the Right; and though he ought to follow the Light and Spirit, yet is to be judged when he does not act thereby (though he may think he doth) by ſuch as walk thereby. In this, the Scriptures of Truth are very poſitive. The Jews owned the Law at what Time they rebelled againſt it, and thought they acted according to Scripture, when by their Traditions they made it of none Effect. There was a certain Generation that were pure in their own Eyes, That is, believed themſelves to be of a Right Spirit, whom the Holy Ghoſt reproved for being guided by a Wrong one. It was no other State than 1673. this that Chriſt ſpoke of, when he ſaid, If therefore the Light that is in thee, be Darkneſs, how great is that Darkneſs? Some doubtleſs acted by Virtue of this Darkneſs, not as Darkneſs, but as Light; was it therefore Light, becauſe they thought ſo? when it is manifeſt, that they were againſt Chriſt, the true Light, as you are now. Or, would the Plea of ſuch an one be ſo valid againſt the Body of a Church, walking in the true Light, as to diſengage any from her Judgment? Or, muſt we therefore conclude, that the Light is not a Rule for Men to walk by, becauſe ſome miſtake, or ſwerve from it? Or, that he who calls his dark Imagination, a Motion of Light, is therefore not to be condemned, becauſe 'tis every Man's Duty, to follow the true Light? Shall this Poſition, I ſay, that all Men ought to follow the Light in themſelves, deprive the Church of the Power of judging that for a dark Imagination, which from the Savour and Senſe of God's Light and Truth, ſhe feels to be ſo, becauſe ſome Perſon or Perſons, plead that they therein follow the Light? This opens a Door to all Licentiouſneſs, and furniſheth every Libertine with a Plea. What might have been ſaid in this Caſe againſt the ancient Chriſtians? Every Man ought to walk in the Spirit and to be led by the Spirit; ſhall therefore any Man's Pretence to be led by the Spirit, that is not, ſecure him from the Judgment of thoſe that are really led by the Spirit? Or, ſhall the Judgments of thoſe, who are led by the Spirit, againſt him that pretends to be ſo led, be reputed Tyranny, and a going from the Leadings and Judgment of the Spirit, to the Leadings and Judgment of Men? Or, becauſe of granting the Light to be obey'd in all it's Leadings; And it's Leadings to be waited for, in Order to Faith and Worſhip; that therefore, there is no Way left to judge, which are in the Wrong of the two, that equally ſay, they are led by the ſame Light? For if Men would come to the Salt, Grace, Truth, and faithful Witneſs in themſelves, which only gives to diſcern and ſavour true Spirits from falſe Ones, they would hereby arrive at certain Knowledge in the Matter, but where People ſtand, they can never diſtinguiſh, becauſe they are from under the Conduct of that Spirit, which alone reveals the deep Things of God. In ſhort, as no Man's Saying, he is in the Right, ought to conclude him to be in the Right; ſo neither can that hinder that he ſhould not be found out by ſuch as are in the right Spirit, to be in the Wrong, if in it. He that ſays, he is ruled by the Scripture, may err, as well as he that ſays, he is led by the Light; therefore is he not to be cenſured? Or, is there no certain Way of knowing him to be in the Wrong? It is the Spirit of Truth, that opens the Truth of Scripture; much more can it only give to reliſh Spirits. Which leads to the laſt Queſtion.

Whether the People called Quakers, or thoſe few ſtragling Fellows of John Perrot are this True Church, and acted by this divine Light and Spirit, yea or nay? To anſwer this Queſtion, I ſhall keep very cloſe to the Conceſſions of theſe preſent Apoſtates, for it is not ſo much my Buſineſs at this Time, to prove us a true Church to them, that had never any Relation to us, as againſt thoſe who acknowledge themſelves once to have been of us, but now decline us.

That God ſent forth a ſpiritual Miniſtry, that many were gathered by it, and ſettled in the Way of Everlaſting Peace, and called by the World, Quakers, the Author of the Spirit of the Hat, fully confeſſeth, pag. 9. That it was then the Church of God, four Lines after undeniably prove. And the Lord did daily add unto the Church, and raiſed up many to go forth in the Power, to preach the Everlaſting Goſpel; whereby the Church multiplied and encreaſed, to the Aſtoniſhment of the Nations. By this we ſee, it was then the Church in their Opinion, without Diſpute; I would fain know how it comes now to be no Church? Has her refuſing to conform to John Perrot's Innovation of the Hat on in Time of publick Prayer, unchurched her? I have hitherto thought, that a Society's going from, or adding to, what it was when truly called a Church, was that which only did unchurch it, and not continuing as it was; And if this be good arguing, the People called Quakers, remain ſtill the ſame Church, but their Adverſaries are not the ſame Members. In ſhort, where the firſt Occaſion of Offence was given, there was the firſt Breach of Unity. Had the Church impoſed upon them, there would be ſome Reaſon for varying of her Character, and condemning her as fallen; But the Innovation being their own, ſhe is not accountable unto them, but they to her, for ſuch unwarrantable Novelties: So that the Queſtion is not, whether the Quakers impoſe, but whether they did not innovate? All was well till this Imagination was hatched; The Spirit of Judgment and Burning had it's Courſe, their Veſſels were filled with Refreſhment, Springs of Life broke out in their Bellies, and Bread of Life dwelt within them;

Spirit of the Hat. p. 10.

they wanted no good Thing, as that Letter of the Hat relates. If this may be credited, how comes ſo ſudden a Revolution, that in a Year's Time, the Mighty ſhould be fallen, the Stars ceaſed to give their Light, the Poor diſtreſſed, the Young ones bruiſed, and Conſcience impoſed upon by a Law? which wretched Deceit, methinks, ſhould be obvious to every impartial Reader. There is no Wiſdom to believe Men ſo inconſtant to their own Apprehenſions, and who, of all Times in which to prove this great Alteration, ſhould make Choice of that, in which was ſo great a Perſecution, and ſo noble a Teſtimony, born for the Truth, viz. 1662. But the Truth of the Matter is this. John Perrot (who if he had been as faithful as his Companion, might with him, have been hanged at Rome, (as we have been informed) to his own Comfort, the Truth's Honour, and the Church's Peace) came Home as filled with Conceit, as he pretended his Body had been oppreſſed with Sufferings, which kindling ſo great a Love in the Hearts of ſome Tender Friends, as that they unwarily became Incouragers of his Ambition, in their too high exalting and lamenting his Sufferings, which having rendred him Maſter of their Affections, they moſt of them eaſily became Embracers of his Invention. We had Reaſon to believe it had almoſt been impoſſible for him ever to have made one Proſelyte, had not the Noiſe of his foreign Tryals diſpoſed the Hearts of ſome affectionate People to receive his Impreſſion; he that will pleaſe to conſider the improbable Account he vainly gave of his own Sufferings, ſaying, that ſince Adam's Day, none had ever undergone the like; his ſingular Style; Proverbial Chapters, in Imitation of Solomon; his toyiſh conceited Rythms; his Title Page of the Wren in the Burning Buſh, waving her Wings of Contraction, &c. His peculiar Subſcription, which was generally John (and could not be ſo, becauſe there was no more of that Name among us, but becauſe he would be the John of Johns) and which is yet more ridiculous, in a Letter to ſeveral grave Women, your tender Siſter John, with his abſurd new fangled bodily Greetings, his moſt papal Salutations to G. Fox. E. Burroughs, and others (by them rejected, and himſelf reproved) as if he had ſpent his Time in learning all the ſuperlative Complements of Rome: I ſay, he that pleaſes to conſider theſe Things, muſt needs think, that the Man had loſt his Guide, and was dangerouſly elevated above the holy Fear of God, and heavenly Life of the Truth; and his Standing being ſoon diſcerned by ſeveral weighty Friends, he was ſoberly, ſecretly, and frequently dealt withal: His Condition repreſented, his Danger ſhewn, and a Station of Safety pointed to him: It was the daily Travel of many, who ſought his Wel-fare, and the Church's Peace, to bring him to a Senſe of his own Condition; But no Argument or Entreaties could prevail, no Sighs or Tears could ſoften him, but reſolved he was for a Sect-Maſter, and his Mark muſt be, the Hat on in Time of publick Prayer. That which yet whetted many ſimple Hearts to follow his Example, was with his Sufferings, his Phariſaical Pretences, to an higher Diſpenſation, but inſtead of ſhewing them a readier Way, to an higher State of Holineſs, he diverted their Minds from the more weighty Things of the Law of the Spirit of Life in Chriſt Jeſus, to contend for that rude and unprofitable Practice of the Hat on in Time of Publick Prayer; an Invention to no Edification, but to the great Diſturbance of the Church: Thus began what Rent he ſought to make amongſt us. Before this, we were at Peace, our Sion proſperous; and theſe Apoſtate Adverſaries allowed us to be God's Church, his choſen People. I appeal now to the whole World of moderate and impartial People, whether we acted herein, unlike Chriſtians, ſober and prudent Men? And if any of our publick Enemies, who pretend to own a Church-Authority (ſome of them alſo being Members and Leaders) would not have done the like? Muſt we ſuffer for that which they juſtifie? We rejected a Practice we had no Authority for, neither without, nor within: We ſaw who brought it in, and what acted him, with the Bent and Tendency of it; And it was as much our Duty to withſtand the Entrance of that which was wrong, as to continue in the Practice, of that which was right, and ſettled in the Power of God long among us: We might invert their Plea much more truly; the Light within enjoyned us to diſown them, had we not then ſinned, to have declined? Or, is our Light, Darkneſs, becauſe they call their Darkneſs, Light? In ſhort, the Church never knew it, when ſo much admired by her preſent Enemies, and becauſe when it came, ſhe rejected it, therefore are they become her Enemies, which proves Them, and not the Church to be changed. But ſuppoſing we had nothing of this to our Defence, what is become of the once acknowledged bleſſed Church, and her powerful Miniſtry? If we have loſt both, who has found them? If due to any Body, in Caſe our Adverſaries be in the Right, it muſt be to them: But I

1673. know of no Church, nor do I hear of any Miniſtry they have, nor the Power of God manifeſt among them, either for the Building up of themſelves, or the Gathering of others. What! Is the Church already returned into the Wilderneſs? And is the Power loſt, which they acknowledge, was once amongſt us, and to God's Eternal Praiſe, we daily witneſs in City and Country to attend our Travels? But as they were not of God in their Diſſenſions; ſo neither have they ſtood. We ſuffer as we did; The World loves them more than it did; They are Friends, but both Enemies to us. Their Sect-Maſter return'd with the Dog to the Vomit, to Swearing, Fighting, fine Cloaths, Cap and Knee to Men, who could ſit on his B—— with his Hat on his Head, when he prayed to the Moſt High God. Some of his Followers ran into Looſeneſs and Rantiſm; others into Enmity and Earthly Mindedneſs; but far the more conſiderable returned to their firſt Love and Works, whom God hath ſince frequently bleſt with his heavenly Preſence, and ſealed to them the Comfort of the Holy Communion of the Brethren.

To ſum up what we have been ſaying, Firſt, The True Church of Chriſt, by the Gift of the Holy Spirit, from Chriſt, the Head, is enabled to try, ſavour and reliſh Wrong Spirits under never ſuch Right Appearances, as that, without which ſhe could never be preſerved from the Wolves that are in Sheep's Cloathing, nor the Deceivers that come with Chriſt's Words out of Chriſt's Power and Life. Secondly, That this Church hath as well Power to reject the falſe Spirit, as to try it. Thirdly, That Men may be in the Words and not the Spirit of Truth; that notwithſtanding it is the Duty of all Men, to act by the Light and Spirit within, that hinders not, that ſuch as walk not according to the Light within, though they may pretend to do it, ſhould be known and judged of them that really do ſo. Fourthly, That we were this True Church of God by our Apoſtate Adverſary's own Confeſſion: And we have proved, that not we, but our Adverſaries have altered (ſince the Time that large Confeſſion mentions) by giving the Offence, and making the firſt Breach of Unity, notwithſtanding the many Chriſtian Courſes that were taken to reſtore them, and preſerve Concord among Brethren: Therefore our Judgment of them is not that of a Dark, Dead Body, but a Living, Spiritual Society, and in the Gift, Diſcerning and Authority of God's Holy and Unerring Spirit, which they acknowledge we once had, and cannot prove, when, and by what we loſt it. And bleſſed be the Lord God of Heaven and Earth, his Living Power is with us, he owns our Miniſtry and Fellowſhip in the Hearts of Thouſands, yea Ten Thouſands have bowed to the Righteouſneſs of his Scepter, ſince the Day that perverſe Core firſt troubled our Iſrael. No Tryals have ſcattered us, nor Sufferings worn us out; but, to the Honour of the bleſſed Name of the Lord, we have been by it kept to this Day, whoſe Goodneſs renews with the Morning, and whoſe Mercies endure for ever. Bleſſed are they that fear him, ſuch will he always keep in perfect Peace.

But the Author of the Spirit of the Hat, and his Tyrannical and Hypocritical Defender in his Libel, call'd, Tyranny and Hypocriſy Detected, cry out, This is Arrant Popery. But I will tell ſuch Licentious Spirits, That it is plainly Scriptural; What if a Falſe Church aſſume the Privilege of a True One, does that make the True Church a Falſe One, for pleading that Privilege? The Papiſts ſay, God ought to be worſhipped; muſt we not therefore worſhip him, becauſe they ſay ſo? 'Tis juſt as good as to ſay, That becauſe one Man cheatingly calls himſelf by another Man's Name, therefore that other Man muſt renounce his own Name. Prove Diſcerning, and Judgment by the Holy Ghoſt, in any Body, or Society, to be the Mark of a Falſe Church, and ye do your Buſineſs, otherwiſe you muſt acknowledge it to be the Privilege of a True Church; but deny it to be ours, as we do, that it is the Church of Rome's. But we have prov'd out of your own Pamphlets, that you acknowledge us to have been the True Church, and in our own Diſcourſe, that we have continued that, which we ever were: And that God's powerful convincing and converting Miniſtry remains amongſt us; Therefore that Privilege upon your own Principles, does belong to us.

But perhaps they will endeavour to avoid the Dint of theſe convincing Arguments, thus, We deny not the Body of the People called Quakers, nor as they act in the Light, that they have true Judgment: But we complain againſt your Foxonian Unity, which conſiſts of certain Miniſters and Elders, which lift up G. Fox for a Biſhop, a Pope, and a King, making his Papers Edicts, and then entitling them, the Judgment of the Body; whereas indeed 'tis but the Mind of a Cabal of Foxonians; the Leaders are the Men we ſtrike at. See Spirit of the Hat, Page 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16. Tyran. Defend.

But ſhould we allow this to be True, as we reject it for a Slander, 'tis granted to us, that the Body of the People, called Quakers, is not their Aim, but ſome few Particulars that make not up the hundredth Part of the Church (and who will in the Things objected, ſufficiently clear themſelves) ſo that the Judgment of the Body is not deny'd, becauſe of the Judgment of ſome few Elders that diſpleaſe them. The Queſtion then will be, whether the Body in all Places concerned has given it's Judgment againſt that innovating Spirit of John Perrot, yea or nay? The Determination of which Queſtion gives a great Inſight into the preſent Controverſy; In order to which I offer two Things to be conſidered: Firſt, That in all Places where Jo. Perrot's Spirit and Practice made any Appearance through the Churches in this or other Nations, there has been a two-fold Judgment given. 1. That of the Church, in the Fear and Preſence of the Eternal God ſhe worſhips, according to his free Spirit, and that Diſcerning which was given her of him, concerning which, if there be any Scruple, in the publick Canvas of this Matter, we can readily produce a Multitude of Certificates to verify it. 2. The Judgment of many conſiderable Perſons againſt themſelves and their own Practice, whoſe Simplicity was betray'd by that diſſenſious Spirit. But it ſo happens, that ſome of them, of how good Report ſoever, are now not to be credited, becauſe it croſſeth the Humour of thoſe Envious Authors, and their prejudiced Adherents. What Name ſhall we call this Partiality by? Who praiſed their Honeſty when they eſpouſed the Hat, and now queſtion their Conſcience in declaring their Miſtake: And ſuch is the Fool-Hardineſs and Vanity of this Socinian Apologizer in the Defence of the Hat on in Prayer, That in a great Marginal Note, he cries out, What's become of John Oſgood's Integrity, that he ſhould put his Name among ſuch Men as theſe? As if we had committed all the Infamies prohibited in the firſt and ſecond Table of God's Law, rather than ſeaſonably given Check to the boundleſs Novelties of an Imaginary Innovator. This is your Univerſalian, that tells us how dangerous it is to be of a Party, who has beſtow'd an whole Pamphlet in Defence of one, built upon no better Foundation than the irreverent Practice of the Hat on in Time of Publick Prayer. But his own Revilings and unjuſtifiable Officiouſneſs have prov'd it dangerous to be of ſuch a Party indeed.

But why muſt not the reſt be credited? Are they deceived in Returning? Shew it. Was it impoſed upon them, as they ſuggeſt? Prove it. John Pennyman, if he has not loſt all Conſcience and Memory, can tell them another Story; For, as became the People of God, for the Deciſion of this Controverſy, a very great Meeting was deſired and appointed, unto which both Sorts willingly reſorted; So that it was not Impoſition, but Choice: In which great and earneſt were the Deſires and Travels of thoſe who had oppoſed the Spirit of John Perrot, that the Lord himſelf would pleaſe, in ſome ſignal Manner, to break forth amongſt them, that the Judgment which ſhould paſs among them, in order to a Reconciliation, might not be accounted the Judgment of Man, but the Judgment of God. Theſe faithful Cries entred the Ears of the God of Peace, whoſe Compaſſions fail not, That with an high Hand and an out-ſtretched Arm, he rent through the Meeting, that both Sorts were greatly broken, and humbled before the Lord. In which deep and tender Senſe, J. P. J. C. (though never in the Practice of the Hat) J. O. J. C. W. P. W. G. G. W. and John Pennyman himſelf, with very many more (not now to be mentioned) in Fear and Trembling, and great Brokenneſs of Spirit, to the Aſtoniſhment of all Beholders, plainly and fully teſtified againſt the Spirit and Practice of J. Perrot, as being out of the Life of the Truth, and Unity of the Body. And who was more Expreſs, Earneſt, Frequent in the Judging that Spirit than this Envious Apoſtatiz'd J. Pennyman? Did he not ſay of thoſe that oppoſed J. Perrot's Spirit: You are more Righteous than we? And if you had not ſtood we had periſht? And did not he call that Spirit of J. Perrot that led to keep on the Hat in Publick Prayer, The Spirit of Witchcraft and of the Devil, and to that Purpoſe? And is he not now in Defence of that Spirit? What ſhall we ſay then upon his preſent Diſtance and Enmity? Hath he not pronounced his own Character and Sentence hereby? What Heed is to be given to ſuch a Changeable Self-Contradicting Perſon? Now, that the Government of our Chriſtian Body ſhould be called Tyranny, and the Confeſſions of theſe Men Hypocriſy, tell me, tell me, thou, that art my impartial Reader, what Sort of Conſcience our preſent Enemies have, thus to treat both the one and the other: How evident is it, that theſe great Enemies of Impoſition would have been the Task-maſters themſelves, who are Inſolent and Uncharitable enough to cenſure theſe Men in pulling off their Hats again, to be guilty 1673. of Hypocriſy, who in Fear to God, and the Senſe of his Spirit, condemned the keeping of it on. Deceit! Oh, how unworthily have they dealt with us? and how ill an Uſe have they made of all wholeſome Counſel to reclaim them? That little Yielding, that our Friends at firſt ſhewed to re-gain them, they made Uſe of to confirm them; and their Obſtinacy leading us to more Severity, like Baſtard Children, they ran away with open Mouth, bauling into the very Ears of ſome Envious and Buſy-body Profeſſors, Impoſition, Popery, Tyranny, Arbitrary Government; and theſe are become Themes for ſuch prejudiced Perſons as this Adverſary, to declaim againſt the poor Quakers upon. Where it may not be unſeaſonably obſerv'd; That if we ſhould as ill beſtow our Time in gathering up all the Villainous and Impious Miſcarriages of many profeſſed Members of the ſeveral Religious Ways within this Kingdom, I doubt not but we might cut them out more Work than they would be willing to have. Had we thus begun with them, How Condemnable would they have thought it? But it having been their Practice towards us, we muſt not chide them for Injuſtice, leſt we be reputed Railers; For ſo big is the Beam in their own Eyes, that the vileſt Abuſes againſt us paſs for Innocent and Juſtifiable Things with them.

The ſecond Thing I have to offer in order to a full Determination, is this; That either the whole Church, or that Part of it which never was concerned in theſe Debates, particularly the North of England, remote from us, yet conſiſting of a very great Part of the Body of our Friends, both in Number and Solidity, and who have never varied from their firſt Station, upon any general Propoſal the preſent Hat-Men ſhall make for the Demand of their Judgment, provided it may be concluſive with them, (at leaſt ſo far as to clear Particulars from that high Charge of Tyranny and Hypocriſy) will, we do believe, freely declare themſelves, according to that Senſe and Underſtanding they ſhall receive of the Mind of Chriſt therein, from him alone, who is the Leader and Shepherd of his People. If none of all this will do, let them take their Courſe, and furniſh theſe Iſhmaelites and Uncircumciſed Philiſtines with all they can, to our Trouble, God will bring us through it all; And for that Diſhonour, they have hereby brought on the Way and People of the Lord in General, by putting their pretended Exceptions againſt ſome few Particulars into the Hands of thoſe Men (who do not ſo much ſtudy the Diſgrace of a few Publick Labourers, as the Overthrow of the whole People and Way, (improving all they can ſcrape, how much ſoever interlined with Falſhood, to that very End) will God, the Righteous and Terrible Judge of Heaven and Earth, require an Account; and Wo, Sorrow and Eternal Perplexity will be the ſwift Recompence of your Treacherous Doings, unleſs you find a Place for Repentance, and can yet wipe away all theſe Scores by true Contrition.

Some farther Ground of our Satisfaction in Proceeding againſt keeping on the Hat in Time of Publick Prayer, eſpecially, as we are now concerned with theſe Sort of Apoſtate-Adverſaries; which is not to diſpute, but farther to declare our Belief, and the Reaſon of our Practice in the Matter, and ſo leave all with the Lord.

I. AS Man conſiſts of Soul and Body, and as the Body is a Kind of Form to the Soul, ſo, whilſt Body and Soul remain unſeparated, there will and muſt be ſome Form ſuited to the Body, whereby to expreſs the publick, Spiritual Worſhip performed by the Soul: Such are Places, Words, and Geſtures; and, in the Performance of ſuch Worſhip, the Body can no more be exempted from ſome Form or Expreſſion, than can the Soul in it's inward and ſpiritual Station. To deny this, is to denote a Man void of Senſe and Reaſon; ſo that though we grant the Outward and Inward Coming of Chriſt, to have abrogated ſuch Types and Figures as foreſhewed a farther Glory, yet Tokens and Demonſtrations of preſent inward Reverence and Divine Honour to God in Publick Performance of Worſhip, we not only never denied, but do affirm them to be as adequate or proper to the Body, as are Reverence and Honour to the Soul.

II. It hath ſeemed Good to the Holy Ghoſt, and to us, in the ſolemn and publick Performance of Prayer unto the Lord, to pull off our Hats, to expreſs the Unveiling of our Spirits, and that reverent Submiſſion and Supplication, which becomes poor Petitioners to come in, and offer up their Deſires with, to the Great King of Glory, and God of the Spirits of all Fleſh. And God has made it a Token of inward Homage by the Requirings of his own Truth. And it is fit it ſhould be obſerved, That theſe preſent Oppoſers not only acknowledged the People, called Quakers, to be a true Church whilſt in this Practice (which I deny any Church to be that continues in the World's Rudiments) and that they have frequently ſuggeſted us on this Occaſion to be Retainers of; But that they have received heavenly Refreſhment by thoſe Prayers, that have been offered up by uncover'd Heads: And that God ſhould ſend forth ſuch a Spiritual Miniſtry, ſo richly furniſhed, and rarely qualified, by the Divine Power and Wiſdom of God a few Years before, as the Author of The Spirit of the Hat confeſſeth, and that in their Performance of Worſhip to God, they ſhould be Worldly, and vainly Ceremonious, can be no Ways conſiſtent. And I do here appeal to all ſober Perſons, if after ſo large a Teſtimony, given to the People called Quakers, as a True Church, and her Miniſtry and Worſhip as Powerful and Pure, before ever this Imagination came forth, it could be any Thing Solid, Seaſonable, or Edifying to Introduce or Trouble the Church with that Practice, which they acknowledge She was Bleſt, and Proſperous without.

III. But again, It denotes and ſignifies the Difference that is between Worſhip to God, and Miniſtry to Man; there is not equal Homage, indeed none at all, in declaring God's Will to Man, but the other is all Matter of pure Homage, and to diſcover this Difference by ſome due and ſuitable Poſture, is ſo far from being unlawful, that the contrary is very condemnable.

IV. It is never to be thought reaſonable by People not out of their Senſes, at leaſt upon our Adverſary's Principles, that a Man ſhould be mov'd to Pray, and yet in that Motion not moved to ſhew it. What! would they have a Man, when he is moved to Pray, wait for another Motion to be led to diſcover it? But above all the reſt, How do they that ſtand with their Hats on, teſtify their Unity with him that prays (as they confeſs a Man may by the Spirit of the Lord) with his Hat off? I ſay, What greater Token do they give of their joining with ſuch Prayers, than the Publican or Phariſee, who by that very Poſture teſtify their Diſlike. But yet farther, Suppoſe an Hat-Man be moved to pray with his Hat off, as they confeſs he may, What becomes of the reſt of that Opinion in the Meeting? If they pull it off meerly as having Unity with his Prayer, then they are gone; for that is our Ground, who ſay, that Soul and Body, Prayer and Geſture muſt go together. If they ſay, it is upon them not to pull it off, Two Things will follow: Firſt, The Spirit of the Lord moveth People in the ſame Meeting, at the ſame Inſtant of Time, and in one and the ſame Duty, unto two contrary Things. 2dly, That they may have Unity with the Prayer, and not with the Geſture; with one Motion, and not the other. That they have Unity with the Prayer, and give, and wrap up their Spirits in the preſent Senſe that's ſtirring in the Aſſembly, with his that is the Mouth, without an extraordinary Impulſe to pray with him in their own Spirits; yet require ſuch a Motion to join with the Geſture; ſo that they can pray with the Man moved, but not pull of their Hat with the Man ſo moved. The Confuſion, Contradiction and Abſurdity of this Imagination, ought for ever to juſtify the Quakers Seaſonable, Solid and Chriſtian Proceedings againſt the Introducers and Abettors of it; for a Contradiction in Geſture, when Geſture ſtands upon Motion, is (proportionably) as real a Reſiſtance againſt the Spirit, and committing of Diſorder in Chriſtian Aſſemblies, as in Matter of Doctrine, or any other eſſential Part of Worſhip.

V. The Generality of the Friends in the Nation renounced it; where I cannot but take an Opportunity to defend a Paſſage in a Private Letter writ by me, upon the Intreaty of one of John Perrot's Diſciples, in much Kindneſs, to ſatisfy and reclaim him, and cited by the Envious Author of Tyranny and Hypocriſy Detected, Page 25.

W. P. ſaith

* W. P. ſaith, that God hath given greater Judgment to his Church, than to the individual Members of it, is a true Poſition, and the Church of Rome errs not in that, but in accounting themſelves a true Church: Theſe are not my very Words; a Diſingenuity, if I am not miſtaken this Author wrote once almoſt a whole Book againſt; however, I abide by the Paſſage: For if Chriſt bid Individuals tell the Church, and yet the Church has no more Diſcerning or Judgment than they had in themſelves before ſuch Appeal, and which can't be better'd by it, away with Reaſon: If in the Multitude of Counſellors there be Safety, reſpecting Worldly Matters, why not reſpecting Spiritual Matters? Suppoſing, as we ever did, that God's Power, Spirit, and Preſence preſide in any ſuch Church, Body, or Aſſembly. This is more than the Cavil deſerves, but I was willing to expreſs my Mind more fully for the Reader's Satisfaction.

VI. This Innovation brought with it Diviſion, inſtead of Unity; Confuſion, inſtead of Order; Heart Burnings, inſtead of Love; and diverted the Minds of ſome from the more weighty Things of God's Living and Spiritual Law.

VII. Had it been never ſo Innocent, it coſt more than it was worth, and their inſiſting ſo much upon it, to the Diſturbance of the Church's Concord, was no ſmall Evidence of the Wrongneſs of that Spirit, which introduced and maintained it. This ſhall ſufficiently rebuke and judge both it and them, that it added nothing to Life and Salvation, nor to the Edification of the Body of Chriſt, which is the End of every True Motion; for it carried neither interior, nor exterior Homage, Service or Benefit in the leaſt, either to Perſons in their own Particulars, or to the Church in General.

And whereas they frequently have accuſed the Body of our Friends, which ſtill remains, as they once confeſt, the Body of Chriſt, of being Guilty of Popiſh Cuſtoms, in not being Guilty of their Irreverence; and that the Minds of People were not yet inwardly and ſpiritually exerciſed in Worſhip, it is evident, that their new-fangled Practice, Diſſent about it, and continual Defence of it, did more draw out the Minds of ſome People, and exerciſe and perplex them about Poſtures and Geſtures, than ever they were before: So that what they falſly charge upon the Church, is their own proper Character. Our Friends prudent Stop to this troubleſom and endleſs Sort of Innovation, deſerves none of thoſe Hard Names theſe Scurrilous Libels give both them and their Proceedings.

But they object ſomething G. F. and my ſelf have writ againſt Hat-Honour, as, That we ſhould repute it an Earthly, Vain, and Mean Thing, minded only of Men in the Fall; that if pulling off the Hat were true Honouring or Reſpecting, Vile Perſons would be the moſt Civil; Real Reſpect is a more Subſtantial Thing, manifeſted by Obedience. This our Adverſary quotes out of G. F's Book, called, True Honour among the Jews; and mine, entituled, No Croſs, No Crown; but they forgot to be ſo ingenious, or on Purpoſe would not be ſo Juſt, as to tell People, That we writ againſt the Fallen Honour of the Hat to Men. Becauſe we deny it to Men, muſt we therefore deny it to God? No: But we therefore deny it to Men, becauſe we give it only to God, as one of thoſe Geſtures, which outwardly diſtinguiſhes Worſhip to God, from Miniſtry to Man. But this is their Drift and Ground of their citing thoſe Paſſages, That if it be ſo Mean and Earthly a Thing, to pull off the Hat to Man, how comes it ſo Eminent a Geſture in Worſhip, and why not eſteemed as earthly and empty a Thing, in reſpect to Worſhip as Civil Honour? I think I give the Force of their Objection, and ſhall as eaſily anſwer it.

That which gives Weight to any Geſture, is the Reaſon inducing to it, and both the End and Frame of the Mind in uſing of it. God's Spirit has required this before ever J. Perrot was born into ſo much as the Profeſſion of our Living Way, as a Teſtimony againſt the Ranting Spirits, that were then very riſe in this * Nation, and hath continued it amongſt us a Goſpel, Decent, and Reverent Expreſſion, or Token of the Unveiling of our Spirits to God in Prayer. Now ſtrip this Geſture, or rather empty it of this ſolid Reaſon inducing, and both take away that End, and remove that Frame of Spirit, in which that Geſture is uſed; and truly we may then very well repute it, A mean and beggarly Thing for the Sons of Men to bluſter about. To have it in the Senſe it is given to God, they cannot: To have it without that Senſe, is to have an empty, inſignificant Geſture. And ſhould we allow of it, what Diſtinction could be found to ſave us from performing that to Man which we do to God? Since the Geſture denotes none, neither can (and our Adverſary denies a Way to judge the Meanings of an Inward Spirit by) beſides Man's requiring, upon an earneſt Thirſt after Honour, that Poſture which we only give to God, in his own pure Worſhip, makes the Doing of it Sinful, if there were nothing elſe in it; and therefore we deny it to Men, at what Time in the Reverence and deep Humility of our Spirits, we give it to God; out of which Senſe it is nothing, but in it, acceptable and requiſite. We alſo know that Men in the Fall, can give but Fallen Honour; and where Geſtures are invented or practiſed by a Fallen and Earthly Spirit, the Reſpect they ſet upon them, is not the True Honour and Reſpect, but Fallen and Earthly; in this Senſe it is we call it Fallen, Earthly, and Vain. More Subſtantial Things may be ſo reputed, as Prayer, &c. when not proceeding from a right Ground, much more a Geſture relating to it. Our Adverſaries do ill, to conclude ſo generally; they ſhould have weighed, that as we can give it to God only, in the Reſtoration out of the fallen Ways and Worſhips of Men, ſo the Uſe of it in that Eſtate, muſt needs render it a Fallen, Mean, Earthly, and Empty Thing, as indeed are all their Worſhips, who ſtand not in the Power and Spirit of God; much more, when any the like Practice is uſed to Mortal Man. But they farther object a Paſſage in a Letter to J. Perrot, from R. Hubberthorn, (ibid. p. 24.) Then no ſuch Reaſonings had we had, if ſo be the Free Spirit of the Lord had been minded, which is not to be limited, neither to the keeping on the Hat, nor putting off the Hat in Time of Prayer. But what adds this to their Cauſe, in Defence of which they brought it, who go about to limit the Spirit, and not we, as R. H. alſo ſays, for our Buſineſs is to be limited by the Spirit, and not to limit it, or, to out-run it. I hope, none will infer from thence, that Men ought to keep their Hats on: Or, that the ſame Spirit would lead to thoſe contrary Geſtures, as ſay ſome of J. Perrot's Followers: For R. H. meant nothing leſs; but he was ſure, if they had kept to that Free Spirit (that had already limited to, and confirmed the pulling it off) there would not have been ſuch Reaſonings about keeping of it on, or off; And why? Becauſe they would have felt a Pre-concluſion, which would have ſettled them out of the Reach of the Bondage that Spirit of Deluſion had brought them into: For the Liberty of the Spirit ſtands not in being moved to contrary Things, that is Ranteriſm; but in being freed from every high Thought, and exalted Imagination, to abide in the Order of the Goſpel. But our Adverſary, who can at Times, and for his own Ends engage for any Cauſe, tells us in J. Perrot's Defence, That he did not enjoyn the Practice; for he left all to the Free, Univerſal Spirit, pag. 24. But after this, our Adverſary, if he would have defended J. P. to Purpoſe, he ſhould not have told us Pag. 32, 33, that J. Perrot had received Command againſt it from the Lord God of Heaven and Earth in his Captivity at Rome, to teſtify againſt the Cuſtom and Tradition of Taking off the Hat by Men, when they go to pray to God: And the Truth is, he did at other Times call it a Romiſh Tradition. But what follows from theſe two Paſſages that ſo greatly juſtle at one another? Does not the firſt imply, that a Man may lawfully pull off the Hat in Prayer; and the latter expreſly judge it as a Tradition of Men? Either his Command was falſe, or he was Deceitful in his Anſwer to our Friends; For that a Man may be left to his Liberty, whether he ſhall practiſe the Traditions of Men in the Worſhip of God (upon J. Perrot's Pretences to Divine Motions altogether in Worſhip) is the Height of all Contradiction; yet this is the Doctrine of J. Perrot, as we have it delivered to us by his Apologizer: To give Liberty to pull it off or put it on, as it was with People to do, and yet that he was commanded of God to teſtify againſt it poſitively and generally, as a Tradition of Man; As if People might uſe, nay, be moved of God, to perform in his Worſhip any of the Traditions of Men, which God himſelf had given expreſs Sentence againſt. It is not ſhort of Blaſphemy it ſelf. And for our Friends, that is, G. F. G. W. and others, which this Man ſays, owned J. Perrot's Motion for Rome, and counted him a good Friend, p. 32. They do aver that they denied that Motion, and never ſo reputed him. However it be, this Apologiſt, vowed to our Diſgrace, beſtirs himſelf not a little in Defence of J. Perrot and his Followers, as if firſt he lov'd the Hat on in Time of Prayer

* How came this Letter into the Socinian's Hand? Doth not this prove a Cabal? And that Quondam Quakers, now Apoſtates, are their Spies? Was this my Reward for a Loving and Courteous Letter, which kindly invited him to my Houſe, for farther Satisfaction? Treacherous Perſon! to give it up into proclaimed Enemies Hands, (ſuch Baſeneſs is like an Apoſtate) and not to grapple with one Part of it's Strength, ſo diſingenuous an Adverſary.

* As Dr. Gell and a certain Perſon of worldly Quality, ſaid, "That had not the Quakers come, the "Ranters had over-run the Nation.

1673. Prayer, which he denies in it ſelf; Secondly, As if he believed and allow'd of Motions, which he both denies and ſcorns; Thirdly, As if he liked a true Quaker, and was not ſo much diſpleaſed at the Light, as at People's Leaving or Confining it in it's Leadings and Requirings; Who by his great Envy to our Perſons, ſhews his Hate to true Quakers; and by his baſe Concluſion from the Pretences of both Parties to have been led to a contrary Thing by the Light within, That the Light is a Kind of Miſerable, Uncertain Thing; and waiting to be ordered by it, a very dubious Piece of Buſineſs, to the Diſgrace of Chriſt's Light; Reviling then, as well the one Sort as the other, and bringing his Blow well-nigh as hard upon the Hat-Men as upon us, ſee Page 23, 24, 25, 71, and ult. In which the Drift of his Buſineſs is to drive People off from the Leadings of the Light, inſtead of pleading on the Behalf of theſe Apoſtates being led into that Practice by it, as he vainly doth, Page 32, 33. Let Diſingenuous W. M. and Furious J. Pennyman ſee to what Paſs they have brought their Affairs, who, under the Pretence of proving the Quakers Apoſtacy from the Teachings of the Light, have furniſht a Man with Complaints againſt us, who could ſo little diſſemble his Diſlike againſt the Principle it ſelf, as to conclude Uncertainty, Confuſion and Blaſphemy to attend that very Aſſertion about the Light's Teaching, which the People, called Quakers, in the Beginning made, and is by this Adverſary, in other Places, on theſe Apoſtates Account ſeemingly pleaded for. Let them glory in this Man's Endeavours, if they will; Their wicked Hypocriſy and great Treachery are herein manifeſt beyond what may at this Time be ſaid by us: They loved the Motions of the Principle at an odd Rate that ſet a Man to defend them that is an Enemy to them. His Concluſions prove what I ſaid in mine Introduction, that it was againſt the True Quakers and their ancient confeſt Principle he chiefly levelled his Scoffs, Nick-Names, Reflections and groſs Perverſions, and not meerly againſt us as Falſe Quakers, or Perſons gone from our firſt Principle.

To prove this, behold how, and why he triumphs! That our Principle admits of no Means whereby to diſcern one immediate Teaching from another. Perrot ſays one Thing, and Fox another; Who is in the Right? or to that Purpoſe.

It would have done well if W. M. and J. P. had anſwered this Objection, before they furniſht him to plead their Cauſe and defend them to be in the Right, from thoſe Motions their own Apologiſt denies any Certainty to; and I may now take Occaſion to aſk him, why he is ſo peremptory in his Cenſures of us to be in the Wrong, who denies any Certainty of Judgment of either Side? How comes he ſo certain in Condemning and Juſtifying? Partial Man! But no greater Evidence can well be given of the Wrongneſs of J. Perrot's Spirit, than has been already related, viz. The Diſturbance of the Church; The Unprofitableneſs of the Thing; The ſcandalous Lapſe and Apoſtacy of himſelf and ſeveral of his Followers, and the Judgment others zealouſly paſt againſt themſelves whoſe Simplicity had been betrayed. The Fruits teſtify what Spirit it was, though, upon our Adverſary's ſaying, that there is no inward Teſt or Trial of Spirits, at leaſt implying ſo much, he contradicts Scripture, and undervalues the Gift of God; For he had as good ſay, That a wrong Spirit, covered with fair and undeniable Pretences, is not diſcernable by the Light and Spirit of God within; A Man may be wrong within, and Right without, have the exact Form, but not the Power of Godlineſs. What can try Spirits, but the Spirit? No Writing can tell me a Wrong from a Right Spirit in the Ground, though it may deſcribe good and bad Fruits, and from ſuch Actions Men may by a Writing deſcribe the Right from the Wrong; But what gives to reliſh, taſte, ſavour, a Wrong Spirit in Sheep's Clothing, beſide the Heavenly Inſtinct of the Divine Nature? As People are turned to that they can diſcern, as ſaith the Apoſtle, The Spiritual Man judgeth all Things, (that is, of Right he may) and is judged of no Man (that is, not diſcerningly of the meer Natural Man) And as the Spiritual Man's Diſcerning is from the Spirit that ſearcheth out the deep Things of God, ſo is God the Judge and Law-giver to his People under this Diſpenſation. If the Goſpel-Fellowſhip be in Spirit, True Chriſtians muſt have an Inward Taſte and Senſe of one another's Spirits; and what gives to ſavour a right, at the ſame Time, gives to reliſh a Wrong Spirit. The ſame Objection he makes againſt the Light may be made againſt the Spirit, (which is but another Name for the ſame Principle) and I hope, he will not dare to ſay that any Confuſion can follow upon holding that Men under the Goſpel ought to be led by it: Yet, this granted, ſuppoſe Men pretending to be led by the Spirit, to be gone from the Spirit, or that Men equally pretending to be guided by it, differ, as Paul and Barnabas and Peter, what ſhould ſhould determine? No Writings of the Old Teſtament could, at leaſt without Meanings; and the ſame Difficulty lies about the Meanings of Scripture, as about being led by the Spirit. In this Caſe what ſhall be done? Surely the Spirit muſt not be upbraided nor branded: Neither will it follow, That there is no Judge; for Chriſt is the great Judge, appointed of God, the Spiritual great Prophet that ſpeaks from Heaven, and in his own Time will give Judgment to the View of all Men. In the mean while he ſatisfies the Minds of thoſe who are truly led by his Spirit; and Withering, Decay, Murmuring, Complaining, and finally Apoſtacy will follow upon the Pretenders, as is fulfilled in the preſent Judaſſes. This hath been largely argued elſewhere, yet I was not willing to let this Paſſage of our Enemy's paſs unconſider'd, which indeed is the Strength of his Book, and what the ableſt of our Adverſaries can ſay againſt us on this Account.

I have proceeded thus far more particularly in Defence of the Church, againſt the Apoſtate Adverſaries and their Apologiſt, about the Argument by them made about the Hat, and thoſe Diſcords that enſued; In which I hope, I have not exceeded the Bounds of Truth and Moderation.

For the latter Objection, which is directed not ſo much againſt the Body of our Friends, as a ſelect Number of Miniſters and Elders devoted, as he falſly and ſcoffingly ſuggeſts, to the Promotion of G. F's Authority and Intereſt, I can with all Clearneſs and Sincerity, and that in the Name of many Brethren, give this following Teſtimony.

G. F. I would have all to know, ſeeks not Himſelf, but Chriſt, and as becomes a true Apoſtle, and Servant of his Lord and Maſter, Jeſus Chriſt, Early and Late, in Seaſon and out of Seaſon, with inceſſant Pains and Care, (not being Burthenſome unto any) endeavours to promote the Work of God in the Earth; and is ſo far from Lording it over any, that he daily ſerves all for the Truth's Sake, thinking no Labour too great, nor Condeſcenſion too mean, whereby he may be ſerviceable to any, in what concerns their eternal Well-fare; and this ſome of theſe Apoſtates muſt needs know He has approved himſelf, and ſtill doth among us, to be a Man of God, and a True Prophet of the Lord; and as ſuch, we do value him, and the Rage of Men ſhall not Diſ-ſettle us from our Senſe and Regard of him, who ſeeks not himſelf, nor his own Things, but the Things of God, that Chriſt, and his Power alone may be exalted in the Hearts of all People, and all Fleſh humbled; and for this alone are all publick Labourers of Value with our Friends, and no otherwiſe Reſpected or Regarded than in the Lord, which is not Tyranny, but Duty: Wherefore thoſe Terms, of Foxonian, King George Fox, Foxonian Leaven, G. Fox and his Party or Adherents, are with many more, Words of Scorn and Abuſe; he has no ſuch intended Lordſhip, nor are we of his Party, but God's Free-Men, and True Chriſtians, being with him Baptized by One Spirit into One Body; the Unity of which theſe ſmiting Apoſtates and their abuſive Libeller can never break.

I ſhall touch upon their Aggravations about not Marrying, Burying, &c. before I come to thoſe other Reflections made againſt G. F. our Miniſtry, and My ſelf, and all before I end my Share in this Re-joinder.

Firſt, He is pleaſed to ſay, That we deny Trading, Marrying, Burying, and all Eccleſiaſtical and Civil Privileges to thoſe that diſſent from us, p. 7. Theſe were the Aggravations I before promiſed to obſerve.

But alas! What ſhall we ſay to a Man thus hardy, and reſolv'd to be Wicked, that he may render us ſo? Did we ever forbid Men Trading, or endeavour to take People off from Trading with them? J. Pennyman can ſay no ſuch Thing without Lying; for ſeveral have lovingly frequented his Shop, ſince he enviouſly viſited and diſturbed our Meetings: And how many do we daily trade with, that are not of us, in Love and full Aſſurance of their Honeſty.

For Marrying, I referred the Author of the Spirit of the Hat to the Apoſtle's Dehortation, Be ye not unequally Yoked together. It ſeems, if we cannot own Perſons to be of us, that are not of us, we muſt be abuſed. This made the preſent Apologizer (if I am not out of my Gueſs) Angry and Enraged with us at firſt. 'Tis not meer Talking of Chriſt, and hammering out a few Notions in the meer Strength of Man's Will and Wiſdom, that makes a True Chriſtian; therefore we could not receive him for our Sect-Maſter, that angers him. And for Marriage, 1673. we cannot have Unity with any in that Solemn Performance of Marrying, who are acted by a Wrong Spirit, and ſo gone out of the Union of the Body of Friends: We do not deny them that are ſo Married, to be Married at all, as this Enemy would conclude, though to be Married in the Unity we can never own them.

As to our denying of Burial unto ſuch Apoſtates, my Words in the Book, called, The Spirit of Alexander the Copper-ſmith Rebuked, carry no ſuch unnatural Senſe. Two Things I denied (1.) That we therefore denyed them a Burial, becauſe we ſhould always refuſe it as of us, whilſt they continued in that Diſſenting Spirit from us. (2.) That we Uſurped their Property. To the firſt, ſays our Adverſary, They (Quakers) would not ſuffer ſuch to ſtink above Ground, but he ſhould be buried, not among the Catholicks; but as Hereticks in Spain or Italy, p. 19.

Behold the Candor of this Interpreter! What a ſtrange Improvement has he made of my Sayings? much more reſembling the Carriage of that Sort of Catholicks (he likens us to) againſt ſuch pretended Hereticks, as the poor Waldenſes, than we do in the Caſe of Burial.

I ſay again, That as our Friends intended upon their firſt Purchaſe of a Burying Place, that their Dead Bodies ſhould lie together from the People of diſtinct Ways, which is warrantable from Abraham's Practice in Geneſis; ſo do they not deſire, that ſuch as have been of them, and have afterwards run out, ſhould lie among them, unleſs it be the Deſire of the Deceaſing Parties, or that they declare their Unity with Friends: yet we would not by any Means be thought to deny any Perſon whatever, a Burying-Place, though we could never allow it to them as one of us, ſince that were moſt unnatural. I would fain know, if this Adverſary would obſerve no Diſtinction in this Caſe? or what Injury there is done, in making that Difference, when Dead, which was obſerved by the deceaſt Party himſelf, when Alive? For the Property that he ſays ſome of them have, 'tis true, and was never denyed; but that we uſurpt it, we did and do reject as a Slander: They never deſired their Part of the Collection that bought it, nor did we ever refuſe to repay it, but are ready to be quit with them when they will; a Perverſe Apoſtatized Generation! For Eccleſiaſtical Privileges, I know not what he means; and thoſe Scoffs ill become a Man that pretends to Religion: Such Privileges, as are the peculiar Right of every true Member of Chriſt's Church, it muſt be confeſt, that ſuch Starters aſide from the Primitive Fellowſhip of it, do deprive themſelves of Church-Privileges; we don't. But this, ſays he, is more than any beſide the Papiſt dare pretend to; the Proteſtant, or Church of England challenges no ſuch Power, p. 5. But he that has ventured to tell ſo many falſe Things of us, may dare to beſtow one upon her, eſpecially when it is conſidered, that he is a Concealed Perſon, and may be Falſe and Baſe with Security. Does not the Church of England, both Excommunicate, and ſtir up the Civil Magiſtrate againſt ſuch as diſſent from her in meer Circumſtances? Does not the long Difference between her and the ancient Puritans, Presbyterians and Independents, Baptiſts, and Us more particularly, ſufficiently Diſprove that bold Aſſertion? But we pretend not to imitate any; but really act according to that Underſtanding and Senſe which God has given us in theſe Things, and in which we commend our ſelves to him, being herein willing to abide his Judgment.

To the Reſt of thoſe Cruelties he makes us guilty of, he doth, with the Author of the Spirit of the Hat, charge us with Pulling down, Haling out of our Meetings, and conſequently wanted only Power to puniſh them; adding, That my Appeal to God's Witneſs in all Conſciences, for our Vindication, ſhows me greatly to be lamented, as either Blind or Impudent; That we have alſo Puſht, Pincht, Kickt and Trod upon Feet and Toes, ſending us to Francis Chadwell for Proof thereof.

But, to ſay nothing of his Ill-Language, my Appeal ſtands as it did; and as before, ſo now I will put it between Impartial and Moderate Men, if ever we ſo uſed any Conſciencious Inquirer, or Oppoſer? No, nor any elſe after that Manner repreſented by our Adverſary; and God will plead our Innocency againſt him, in the Hour of his Righteous Judgments, he ſhall not go Uncondemned down to his Grave.

For Francis Chadwell, he is a Man of no Conſcience, nor Credit, in what relates to us; I my ſelf have known him groſly guilty both of Lying and Tipling: No frothy Stager is leſs to be regarded in Religion, than this Man's Witneſs, a Light, Scoffing, Taunting, Tumultuous Perſon; who after an Hundred Solid Confutations, One of which had been enough to ſtrike an ingenuous Man to the Heart, has continued to Bawl and Diſquiet our Meetings, Time after Time: His Aim hath been to raiſe up an Envious and Scoffing Spirit in People againſt us, Jeering, Laughing, Houting, with ſuch unſeemly Carriage, as wholly unbefit him for a Witneſs againſt us; He had as good as confeſt, that he has been Hired by ſome Profeſſors to diſturb us; and told me, If I would give him Five Hundred Pounds he would be a Quaker too; yet, this is our Socinian Adverſary's Serious, Conſcientious Inquirer, or Oppoſer.

He alſo brings in one William King, whom he ſays, We Haled out of our Gallery in Grace-Church-Street, with ſuch Violence, that he hath ſcarce felt the Stairs, but that he hath often felt our Cruel Hands, witneſs G. Whitehead's Pinching him in the Arm, at Jer. Clark's Houſe; and that We would not ſuffer him a Priſoner among us, though for the ſame Cauſe, and all this for ſome Diſagreement in Judgment.

I confeſs, I have no great Acquaintance with the Man; but firſt, deny that ever he was haled out of Grace-Church-Street, or any where elſe; but it may ſo happen, that he offering to keep the Meeting when ended by our Friends, the People preſſing out, and he ſpeaking, might bear him away with a Croud, which hath fallen out to many that have been Speakers, and not Oppoſers: Perhaps ſome diſturbed and hindred of Hearing, may on their own Account have ſhov'd him, or put him by; what's that to us?

For G. Whitehead's Pinching him, it is like the reſt, full of Slander; He is known to be a Man of more Temperance and Command of himſelf, if he had been provoked. 'Tis true, He took him by the Sleeve to turn him to a Looking-Glaſs, that he might behold his Envious and Paſſionate Countenance, as G. W. avers, and others preſent: But had it been true, how one Pinch can prove that he had Often felt our Cruel Hands; Unbyaſſed Readers may beſt judge.

That he was a Priſoner is confeſſed; that we Refuſed him to be among us, is denied: But that we were not in Unity with him, we are not afraid to own. I know not that I ever ſpoke to him but once, and that was in Newgate, being a Priſoner my ſelf; and if he will ſpeak Truth, he can ſay nothing bad of me. For G. Whitehead's Charging Henry Pawſon not to entertain him, it is falſe; For what is it but to ſuggeſt, that we would Refuſe him common Hoſpitality? 'Tis true, that G. W. as in Conſcience-bound, warned them of him, as one of the Ancient Creepers into Houſes, Diſaffected to the Brethren, and Prone to Diſcords (as by his frequent Diſturbances in our Meetings is evident) therefore not to entertain him as one in Unity with us; but if he, or any of them want (ſuppoſing firſt their Lawful Endeavours to procure ſufficient Maintenance) I know not one among us, who would not readily Adminiſter to their Neceſſities.

But we gave out a Paper againſt John Pennyman when he was in Priſon, and would not ſpare that grave, ancient Gentle-Woman Ann Mud, who being Moved to ſpeak a few Words, T. Matthews pulled her away by Violence, and that we were the People in former Days that vexed, and diſquieted all Sorts of Religious Aſſemblies, and clamoured againſt thoſe as Perſecutors, that obtained their Peace by Thruſting and Carrying us out.

But I will tell him firſt, that our Paper againſt John Pennyman was as neceſſary to clear us from that Inſtigation of the Devil that led him to give up to burn the Scriptures of Truth, and the Writings of Friends (which were ſome of thoſe Papers) this Apologizer (fitted for all turns of Deceitful Evaſion) calleth Waſt, p. 37. under the Pretence of the Motion of God's Spirit, as for an Innocent Man, in Sight of a Murder, to clear himſelf from being guilty of ſo heinous a Fact. We delighted not at his Impriſonment, for we were wounded by the Cauſe of it; and had great Reaſon to deny that Action, which brought a Reproach upon our Principle and Practice, that never belonged to either. God's Spirit hath hitherto led us to Read, Believe, Obey and Witneſs the Scriptures, and not to tear them, as did our Adverſary's Orthodox Elizabeth Barnes (p. 52.) in the Height of Rage before mine Eyes; and offer to burn them, as did his ſo much Commended and Defended John Pennyman. I perceive, this Socinian Author denies our Teſtimony by his Diſlike of it, and conſequently owns that Wicked Poſition, That the Spirit of God may lead a Man to burn the Scriptures of God; againſt which our Teſtimony was mainly directed.

For his ancient, grave Gentle-Woman (as he calls her) ſhe hath been ſo Unhappy as through her Exceſs of Affection to J. Pennyman, to be a Sharer with him in his perverſe Out-cries againſt us; yet I can ſcarcely think that ſhe will atteſt any ſuch 1673. Thing: But if it were true, as I believe it to be falſe, it can be no valid Argument againſt the Faith, Worſhip or Actions of the Body of the Quakers. But, why Moved? Methinks, here and in J. P's Caſe, he hath learned to pronounce Moved, as if he believed the Spirit in theſe Days uſed any ſuch Thing. Is he angry with us for reſiſting Ann Mud's Motion, who himſelf, p. 32, 33, 71. denies the Certainty of any ſuch Thing? but Envy blinds Men. We ſhall alſo grant that we are the Men whom the Eternal God from Time to Time raiſed to teſtifie againſt the Hireling Teachers that took Money for that which was not Bread, but were like Wolves in Sheep's Clothing, devoured the Flock, and made a Prey of the People; and God hath bleſſed us in that Service, for before a Gathering, there was to be a Scattering: And God made us Inſtrumental to turn People from Darkneſs to Light, from the Power of Satan unto God, by directing their Minds to the Gift of His Holy Light and Spirit, which diſcovers the Deeds of Darkneſs, convinceth the World of Sin, revealeth the Mind and Will of God, and gives Power to the Creature that believes in it, to obey and do it.

For this Teſtimony in the Hirelings Synagogues, did the Falſe Jew, or Chriſtian, Hale, Tear, Beat, Bruiſe, Knock down, Stock, Whip, Impriſon, with many ſuch like Horrid and Inhuman Actions, which became not our Adverſary's Intereſt (had he been an Impartial Hiſtorian) to mention: But, have we been no otherwiſe diſturbed? or have we ſo uſed our Diſturbers? Our Faithful Chronicles of the Bloody Tragedies of that Profeſſing Generation will tell future Ages other Things. O the Partiality of this Socinian Apologizer for our Diſturbers! But to cloſe this. Either our Adverſary condemns our former Teſtimonies againſt the Prieſts in their Steeple-Houſes, or he does not; if he does, he cannot juſtifie the Senſeleſs Bawlings of Proud and Envious J. Pennyman, Francis Chadwel and the like Diſturbers of our Aſſemblies, upon his own Compariſon. If he juſtifies their Diſturbances of us, eſpecially thoſe given by his Prime and Singular Witneſs, F. Chadwel, with what Face can he cenſure our Serious and Solemn Admonitions, or Reproofs in the National Synagogues: Let it be as it will with him, we expect an higher Judgment, and to that ſhall we gladly yield.

And for thoſe Two or Three Stories of the Wantonneſs and Uncleanneſs of ſome particular Perſons among us, though it is ſpoken to in ſome following Teſtimonies, yet I have thus much to ſay; J. W's Name is Baſely and Falſly uſed by the Libeller, though he could not have mentioned it but upon Information from ſome of theſe Defaming Apoſtates, whom God will judge, for endeavouring to Murder the Reputation of an Ancient, Solid, Faithful Labourer in God's Work. Shall Ifs and may be's conclude Men Guilty? It is not the firſt Miſtake W. M. if he be their Informer, hath committed, whoſe Jealous Surmiſing Soul can ſcarce do any Thing elſe in Caſes relating unto us, as I have experienced: His Worth is lighter to the Man, his Name is brought in to ſlander, than the Chaff to the Wheat.

For the two Young Women, concerning whom M. T's Information is cited, they were examined; Childiſh, Toyiſh, and unſeemly Carriages were with much Contrition confeſt: but for any ſuch groſs Wickedneſs, as was and is ſuggeſted by theſe Men, they ſaid it was falſe, if there was a God in Heaven. For M. T. we ſhall ſay no more till we have a more expreſs Account of his Concernment in that Libel, or Information mentioned therein: We ſee no Name to it, and might as well ſuſpect that with other Things; however, our Friends behaved themſelves in that Matter as became God's People to do.

For T. M. One Story is cleared by the Woman's Teſtimony, and W. M's Malice diſcovered. For his common Uncleanneſs under Pretence of Phyſick, &c. We know not how to allow it for Truth, as expreſt: But this is certain, that he has been ſeveral Years ſince dealt withal by our Friends, and in particular by a Phyſician about it; and in what there was any juſt Ground to Condemn him for, he was judged, his other Unwatchful Carriages denied, and his Converſation turned from by our Friends.

Laſtly, Suppoſe theſe Enemies of God, and his Work, and People, could Say and Prove Ten Times as much; ſhall thoſe Miſcarriages bring many Thouſands of People out of Requeſt, and go for an utter Blaſt upon their Faith, or Way? Vain Men! Should we tell the Stories of the Abominable Practices of both ſuch Apoſtates, and ſome envious Profeſſors; what of Sin could we not find ſeveral that have profeſt their Way guilty of? But we will make no Muſick for the Atheiſt.

Has not every Miſcarriage, as Known, been Reproved? Yes; Every Unfruitful Work of Darkneſs, as by the Light within, when known only by the Party Offending, ſo by the Light in our Friends, as a Church, when known to them. Is not this Goſpel-Order? Or muſt ſome raw Slips of Unwatchful Perſons Antichriſtian our whole Society?

Reader, Theſe Things and Perſons objected, have been ſeveral Years ſince examined; who were Innocent, Acquitted; and who were Guilty, Condemned, according to the Righteous Law of God: And upon this old Condemned Stuff our Enemies feed, with this they Arm themſelves againſt us, and upon this Quagmire, as their beſt Foundation, they ſtand. In ſhort, They have been Falſe to God, Abuſive to his People, Hurtful to the Moderate, and baſely Treacherous to their Ancient Friends. If being Baſe to God and Men can render Men Chriſtian, then they deſerve to be ſo accounted of: But till Religion cometh to be read Backwards, let them go for Enemies to Chriſtianity, and Murderers of Natural Affection.

To conclude, Our Miniſtry is of God; it ſtands in the Power of the Living Spiritual Gift of God, to teſtifie againſt all Ungodlineſs: And if any Particular has ever ſlipt, and brought Diſhonour to the Truth, ſuch hath been Reproved in Righteouſneſs, and only Received upon Unfeigned Repentance; which is God's Way. But to Publiſh, Proclaim and Aggravate Miſcarriages of Any to the World, who profeſs Religion, committed many Years ago, Examin'd, Judg'd, and they Forgiven, upon Repentance, by the Lord, and therefore Received again by us; and all this done with Deſign to blaſt our Credit, Diſgrace the Way we profeſs (tho' they were no way concerned to meddle or interpoſe) To do all this, I ſay, is not to be acted by the Spirit of God, but That, of an Accurſed Ham, and Treacherous Judas; and the Lord will avenge our Cauſe, we doubt not, in due Time.

But an Heinous Blaſphemy is laid to the Memory of Joſiah Coale, by this Angry Agent, in Behalf of theſe Apoſtates; and that is, a Paſſage in a Letter writ anciently by him, in his Life-time to G. Fox, viz.

That G. F. was the Father of many Nations.

But what Blaſphemy is in this? Is it any more than to ſay, That by him, as an Inſtrument in the Hand of God, People of many Nations have been begotten to God? Was not Paul a Father of many Nations, who begot the Corinthians, that were Greeks, and the Romans, that were Latins? But farther, Whoſe Life hath reached through us thy Children, even to the Iſles afar off, to the begetting of many again unto a lively Hope, for which Generations to come ſhall call thee Bleſſed.

Very well; And what Blaſphemy lodges in theſe Words? Is not that which is the Life of one Good Man the Life of another? Were not the Chriſtians of old by One Spirit baptized into One Body? What Life G. F. had was from Chriſt Jeſus and it was no other Life J. Coale writ of: And I hope, The Life of Chriſt is one in All; and who can limit it? And Joſiah Coale, with others, were Children in the Senſe afore-mentioned; and that Life through thoſe Children, by him (inſtrumentally) begotten, did reach to thoſe Iſles afar off, unto which he and others went to preach the Everlaſting Goſpel. Paul reached to the Churches, though afar off, 2 Cor. 13. 10. He was Preſent in Spirit, though Abſent in Body; for, I verily, as Abſent in Body, But Preſent In Spirit, have judged already, as though I were preſent——In the Name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, when ye are gathered, and My Spirit in the Power of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, caſt forth (and taken in too upon Repentance, without going to the Lord Mayor and Alderman) 1 Cor. 5. 3, 4. His Life and Hope was through Timothy, Titus, and others, extended unto many. And why ſhall not Generations to come call an Apoſtle Bleſſed; and bleſs the Name of the Lord for him, reſpecting the Benefit any ſuch one might be in God's Power to a People? Is not the Memory of the Juſt Bleſſed? Prov. 10. 7. And did not the Lord by his Prophet ſay of Iſrael his People, I will make thee an Eternal Excellency, and the Joy of many Generations? Iſa. 60. 57. What if J. Coale had ſo ſpoke of G. F. and God's Iſrael now? Would it have been Blaſphemy? But theſe Err, not knowing the Scriptures, nor the Power of God, like the Jews of old.

But yet again, whoſe Being and Habitation is in the Power of the Higheſt.

And ſo is the Being and Habitation of every Child of God, or elſe he is in the Power of the Loweſt, the God of the World, whoſe Habitation is in Darkneſs. Are we not to turn away from ſuch as ſtand not in the Power of Godlineſs? And did not the Apoſtle go, to turn People from the Power of Satan unto the Power of God,

1673. God, which is the Power of the Higheſt? And is it notwithſtanding Blaſphemy to ſtand in it, or teſtifie of one that doth ſtand in it, that he doth ſo ſtand? O the Idle Oppoſition! but great Envy of our Enemies! They ſeek nothing leſs than the Blood of this Upright Man, as the next Words, and their Aggravation of them prove.

In which Thou Ruleſt and Governeſt in Righteouſneſs, and thy Kingdom is eſtabliſht in Peace, and the Increaſe thereof is without End.

Upon this our Adverſary takes frequent Occaſion ſcoffingly to call him, King George; ſuggeſting him to be ſo vile an Impoſtor, as to aſſume unto himſelf the Compleat and Peculiar Dignity, Dominion and Authority due to Chriſt. See Pag. 53, 54, 55. Which Blaſphemy, I am of the Mind, our Adverſary thinks deſervedly Puniſhable after the Severeſt Sort of Death. But he unworthily traduceth that Good Man, and lays the Harmleſs Scripture-Expreſſions of a departed Servant of the Lord, upon the Tenters or Rack, that he may ſtretch them to his own Vile and Bloody Purpoſes. Hath this Man forgot that there were ever ſuch Paſſages writ, as theſe? The Good Seed are the Children of the Kingdom, Mat. 13. 28. The Kingdom of God is within, Luke 17. 20. The Saints ſhall judge the World, 1 Cor. 6. 2, 3. But ye are a Royal Prieſthood, 1 Pet. 9. 2. And thou (the Lamb) haſt made us unto our God Kings and Prieſts, and we ſhall Reign on the Earth, Rev. 5. 10. And I appoint unto you a Kingdom, as my Father hath appointed unto me, that ye may Eat and Drink at my Table in my Kingdom, and Judge on Thrones the Twelve Tribes of Iſrael, Luke 22. 29, 30. It is the Father's good Pleaſure to give you a Kingdom, Luke 12. 23. who hath tranſlated us into the Kingdom of his dear Son, 1 Col. 13. [the Untranſlated therefore Rage] Wherefore we have received a Kingdom that cannot be ſhaken, Hebr. 12. 28. [they then had it] I beheld, and the ſame Horn made War with the Saints, and prevailed againſt them, until the Ancient of Days came, and Judgment was given to the Saints of the Moſt High; and the Time came that the Saints poſſeſſed the Kingdom, whoſe Kingdom is an everlaſting Kingdom, Dan. 7. 21, 22, 27. By all which it is manifeſt, that it is the Privilege of every Saint and Child of God to be a King, a Royal Prieſt, to have a Kingdom, and to Rule, Govern, and Reign in Righteouſneſs and Peace without End. So that Joſiah Coale, and every Heir and Co-heir with Chriſt, Rom. 8. 17. doth as well reign in an Everlaſting Kingdom of Righteouſneſs as G. F. doth, or ſhall do; for we have One Faith, One Baptiſm, One Power, One Lord, One Kingdom. Where let it be noted, that by all theſe Titles and Privileges, we only mean and underſtand, Dominion over, Not Bodies nor Souls, Not Fleſh nor Blood; but in the Senſe of the Apoſtle, Epheſ. 6. 12. Principalities and Powers, the Rulers of the Darkneſs of this World, and Spiritual Wickedneſſes in High Places, which center in the Inviſible, Dark Power of the God of the World, that ſince the Beginning hath drawn and acted Man out of God's Counſel and Power, in which the Kingdom ſtands: For though we walk in the Fleſh or Body, we do not War after the Fleſh; for the Weapons of our Warfare are not Carnal, but Mighty through God, to the pulling down ſtrong Holds, caſting down Imaginations, and every high Thing, that exalts it ſelf againſt the Knowledge of God, 1 Cor. 10. 4, 5. And as our War and Weapons, ſo our Kingdom is not Carnal, but Spiritual; not of this World, but that which is without End; and of this we are not aſham'd.

It may not be unſeaſonable to take Notice of that Paſſage in his Book ſo often mention'd, eagerly inſiſted upon, and aggravated to the Height of Ananias's Belying the Holy Ghoſt, viz. That G. Fox, this Great Prophet (as he in Abuſe calls him) ſhould break open and alter the Contents of John Whitehead's Letter, which (as he ſaid) was writ in the Name of the Lord, and that to a quite contrary Senſe; making the Letter to judge thoſe that kept the Hat on, whereas J. W. therein juſtified both, thoſe that kept it off, or on. Thus, ſaith our Adverſary, doth G. Fox bely both John Whitehead and the Holy Spirit of God, and that knowingly. He proceeds, O prodigious Impudence! He that counterfeits any Man's Name in a Matter of any Concernment deſerves to be expoſed on the Pillory, and to loſe his Ears; How much greater * Puniſhment doth he deſerve that Counterfeits both the Name of God and Man, in a Matter of Religious Concern. This, ſays he, is the Courſe that G. F. took to make his Injunctions to be obſerved.

But this is the Courſe more truly to make the Impiety of this Adverſary more Notorious. For firſt, G. Fox never opened his Letter, nor made any Alteration in it at all, that I dare affirm in ſo many Words; much leſs did he belie the Holy Spirit; and, leaſt of all, do it willingly. I perceive by his Concluſion, ſion, he acknowledges that the Holy Ghoſt as really mov'd in J. Whitehead as in Peter, contrary to his own Principle. Any Thing will they all grant, that they may Slander or Injure us in the Minds of the People. How knows he it was a true Motion? Doth he not deny it may be known? If ſo then, How dare he be ſo poſitive in the Cenſure of G. Fox? Will he make the Motion uncertain, and yet certainly judge G. F. for a Forger, who was yet Innocent? I leave it to the Reader, what to call this Part of his Tale. Secondly, J. Whitehead gave Power by Letter at that Time to the Brethren of London, to ſuperviſe and alter it, as they ſhould ſee convenient: and no otherwiſe was G. F. concerned in it, than as one aſſenting with other of our Friends, that, according to Power given and their beſt Underſtanding, did alter it for the better, and herein did J. W. teſtifie his Unity and Fellowſhip; for the Spirits of the Prophets are ſubject to the Prophets: So that what was done, was no more than what J. Whitehead left Power to do, and which the Scripture juſtifies. Wherefore Prodigious Impudence belongs not to G. F. but this hardy Adverſary; and Prodigious Cruelty, Perſecution, if not Murder too, is he guilty of that would have him not only Pillory'd, and loſe his Ears, but his Life too, or ſomething very near a-kin to it. This is confirmed pag. 33. where he charges us to be Blaſphemers, and that ſuch ought to Dye by the Law of God in former Times; The Conſequence is plainer than his Power to execute it. O the Miſeries! O the Forgiveneſs of theſe exceeding Meek, Suffering, Bruiſed Little Ones! As they would have us think: But, O Deceitful and Blood-thirſty Generation! Who have endeavoured what in you lies, to betray with your Treacherous Kiſs of pretended Love to our Souls, our Faith, Reputations and Lives too, into the Hands of ſome Bloody-minded Jews, who are not of the Circumciſion in Spirit, but luſt againſt thoſe that are, that they may be ſtirred up againſt us; But God will reckon with you and them too, for theſe Things.

This Adverſary takes an Occaſion to faſten a Lye upon a Paper ſet forth in the Name of the Quakers; but he ſays, writ chiefly by G. F. and G. W. in ſaying, That we have paid our Taxes and other Dues more than any People, according to our Abilities. When (ſays our Adverſary) their Neighbours know all over England there are (at leaſt) ſome Taxes or Aſſeſſments, which they have peremptorily refuſed. But why muſt we be branded for Lyars becauſe of that Saying, or our Adverſary's baſe Aggravation? I do affirm, That we have been overſeſt more than any; and Paying thoſe Extream Aſſeſſments gives good Ground for Saying what we did. But indeed, ſome Hat-Spirits perhaps could not ſay ſo; but why? Becauſe ſome of them are ſo leavened into another Spirit, that they almoſt queſtion the Payment of any, as M. Boreman, now called M. Pennyman, did.

I muſt not be plainer, leſt the Cabal farther repreſent me as one that expoſes Perſons to the Laſh of * Government. Wherein we can pay we do, what ever they come for, and in ſome Caſes, wherein we cannot anſwer their Demands for Chriſt's Peaceable Goſpel-ſake, They commonly Take Three Times the Value, ſeldom, if ever, Returning any again; But this our Adverſary calls no Paying: Sure I am, it is Loſing more than our Adverſary dare adventure; for if I miſtake not, he can ſend out all thoſe Things rather than ſuffer, though perhaps againſt his Conſcience alſo.

Well, but, if we will believe him, there is ſuch an Arrogant, Imperious and Audacious Paper given forth by R. Farnſworth, A Parker, G. Whitehead, J. Coale, J. Whitehead, T. Loe, S. Criſp, T. Green, T. Moon, and J. Parks, as he thinks was never given forth by Mortals. A Charge ſo great, and a Reflection ſo ſharp, that it had need be one of the worſt Papers that was ever writ. Now let us hear what it is.

1. They allow not ſuch to have Dominion in the Church, who exalt themſelves above the Body of Good and Ancient Friends.

Now, what hateful Thing did they deliver in this wholeſome Chriſtian Saying? It ſeems, this Enemy of God, and true Righteouſneſs, would have liked us better, if Bad Friends had been ſuffered to exerciſe the Dominion over the Body of Good and Ancient Friends. But he ſtarts out thus, That by the Body of Good and

* But is not this to render us Obnoxious to the Government? I abhor that Practice: But baſe and ſelf-ended Spirits are to be humbled, and not think themſelves fit to cry down other People's Religion, that have by Treachery, Perſecution and Falſeneſs too much reproacht all Religion; Let them leave Scribling and Snarling with their Writings, and Repent.

1673. Ancient Friends is meant G. Fox and his Adherents; which Sort of Interpretation well becomes ſuch a Cabaliſtick Writer; for after thoſe Allowances, I could miſrender the beſt Cauſe, Pretences or Actions in the World. It is an arrant Falſhood: He was then far from them; Neither had they him in their Eye in doing it, but God's Honour, and the Church's Peace.

2. That ſuch as are not in the Unity with the Miniſtry and Body, have no Goſpel-Authority to be Judges in the Church: And that it is abominable Pride, when any Particular will not yield To the Witneſs of God in Friends.

But what is the Matter with our Adverſary? Hath he loſt his Wits that he makes this ſo Criminal? Are any to be Judges in that Church they have no Unity with? and amongſt the Miniſtry they deny, or are at Diſtance from? Strange Contradiction!

But why is it ſo Heinous, to call ſuch Proud or Self-willed, who reſiſt the Witneſs of God in Friends? Certainly the Expreſſions are ſound, unleſs Scripture be defective: He that can ſee any Thing in them, that deſerveth ſuch hard Words, as this Billingſ-gate Rhetorician beſtoweth upon us, has better Eyes than I.

3dly, But they ſay, That the Church (without Diſſenters) has Power to Determine Controverſies.

Very well; and is it not true? Are the Diſſenters from the Church Part of the Church they diſſent from? For Shame! Thou Learned, and talk ſo Idly? Scripture declares, That God has given the Power of Determination to his Church: All the World knows, That Diſſenters are not of that Church they diſſent from; therefore the Church without Diſſenters, has that Power of Determination.

4ly, and 5ly, But they add, That ſuch diſapproved Miniſters, ought to leave off Miniſtring till they are Reconciled to the Church: And If approved Miniſters degenerate to Diviſion, the Church has Authority to deal with them in the ſame Manner; and that no ſuch Perſons Writings ſhould be publiſht with Conſent, &c.

What of all this? He that can call this Imperious, Audacious, &c. can call any Thing. To allow, that Diſſenſious Preachers and Writers are by the Church they diſſent from to be approved of in the Courſe of that Miniſtry and Writing, is ſuch a Bedlam, Boundleſs Piece of Stuff, that none but one, who thinks it Dangerous to be of any Party, would be the Author of ſuch a Wild Expreſſion.

6ly, But they adviſe, That ſuch whom the Holy Ghoſt had made Over-ſeers ſhould not admit of the Weak to that Truſt, nor ſuch as ſeek not the Good of all: Which All this Diſingenuous Wreſter interprets, The great Body of George Fox and his Party; But Men of Wiſdom and Moderation will not, I am confident, ſo ſpoil the Text with his Comment.

This is the ſeventh Time in two Pages that G. Fox is brought in, as to the Explanation of the Word Body, who was then cloſe Priſoner at Scarbrough, where no Letter was ſuffered to come to him, and who never knew of any Paper till ſome Time after it's being out. O the Implacable Envy of theſe Men! I have hitherto waited for that Arrogant, Imperious and Audacious Paſſage, which might have raiſed up our Adverſary's Choler, and whetted him to this Degree of Scolding; but find no worſe than what I have tranſcribed and juſtified, this laſt excepted, and I think it juſtifies it ſelf: ſuch as ſeek the Good of all are certainly Fitteſt. If he dare tell us his Name, and meet me by Day (as he can poſt up his Scurrilous Title Pages on the City Poſts, with Flambeux or Links, and a Guard by Night) I will any where, and in any ſober Auditory maintain the Truth of all theſe Particulars, and their clear Conſiſtency with Scripture and Reaſon, on whom he has beſtowed ſo many hard Names.

But 'tis to be lamented of his Cabal, that he ſhould with his Paſſion and Hate divulge ſo much Ignorance, as to cry out, That (he thinks) the Pope himſelf hath never taken ſuch Power as to determine in Matters of this Nature and Manner, but in a general Council. Poor Man! Brand us he would one way or other: Has he never read the Council of Trent, nor conſidered, among many others, the Life of Paul the Third? Is he to be informed of that Controverſie long on foot between the Jeſuits and the Doctors of Sorbon, and the Followers of Janſenius? I thought Councils had ſometimes been as meer Cyphers in Italy, as Parliaments are in France.

But this Man is as Kind to Elizabeth Barns, one of that Backſliding Spirit, as he repreſents me elſewhere Unjuſt to M. Boreman that was; For though ſhe has Torn the Bible (calling it in my hearing, the Pope's Idol, the Profeſſor's Idol, and the Quaker's Idol (an incredible Thing with J. Faldo and T. Hicks) and committed more than a ſmall Hiſtory of ſhameful Miſcarriages ſince; yet is he pleaſed to tell us, That ſhe, ſeeing the Miniſters exalted themſelves, cried out, while R. Farnſworth was preaching, You have whored from the Lord. Farnſworth (ſays our Adverſary) replied, Thou art a Whore; but for fear of being too great a Forger, he brings it afterwards thus in a Parentheſis, or the Whore; This Michael Stancliſt called Unſavoury: For which, ſays this Secretary, he was caſt out, as calling the Spirit of Truth Unſavoury.

O the wretched Work theſe People make! Will our Adverſary juſtifie her Interruption of R. F. in Preaching, who condemned it in us, that did it after a more ſeaſonable and juſtifiable Manner, a little before? Yes, that he will. But does he think R. F's Reply Unſavoury, and not E. Barns Out-Cry, who only returned her own Word to her ſelf? Yes, that he does. Strange! But does he take E. Barns's Word, Whore, in a ſpiritual Senſe, as Degenerating; and will he ſeem to underſtand R. F's Word, Whore, only in a Common and Proper Acceptation, as a Diſhoneſt Woman? Yes, that he does. Well, but was it Unſavoury ſo to reply, and not in E. Barns, ſo to interrupt and ſpeak? Yes, that it was, implies this preſent Apologiſt, both of himſelf and M. S. O Monſtrous! O Partial! But perhaps M. S. apprehended that R. F. meant by Whore, an Unclean or Diſhoneſt Woman in the Senſe before-mentioned, and then there might have been ſome Ground for his Anſwer; but if M. S. took R. F. in the Senſe in which he ſpoke it, to wit, that ſhe was gone out of her Habitation (that is, the Truth) turned Harlot in Spirit, and ſo was become Clamorous (as ſpeaks the Wiſe Man) and ſhould notwithſtanding call that Unſavoury, it was a Sign, that he had more Unity with that Unclean, Ranting, and Envious Spirit in E. B. than the Friends of Truth, that generally judged her: And truly in that Caſe it was Time for them to tell that Angry Old Man their Mind of him; In which, they did but that, which I dare anſwer for, before the great and Terrible Judge of Heaven and Earth.

Mine own DEFENCE from the moſt Conſiderable Reflections, made by this Libeller againſt Me.

§. 1. HE is pleaſed both to Jeer and be Prophane, upon this Paſſage in the Spirit of Alexander the Copper-Smith Rebuked, We require not Men to practiſe what they are not convinc'd of; but we will be well ſatisfied with any Member's Diſpractice of an Orderly Performance, once Chearfully owned. For this he calls me a Deep-ſtudied Man, and the Paſſage, a Learned Diſtinction. Let the Learned (ſays he) vail to W. Penn; but (as one recalling himſelf) probably he writ by Revelation.

But what Anſwer do all theſe Words give? O, but 'tis all one; for two Negatives (ſays he) make an Affirmative in Engliſh. What, if there be but one, for two I cannot find? But he at laſt, like a Dim-ſighted Man, has fumbled out the Matter, as he thinks, to wit, That we require not Men to leave off to practiſe what they have practiſed, Cujus Contrarium verum. For ſhame! What! no more Underſtanding, and yet pretend to write Books? Are not my Words expreſly otherwiſe? But I ſay again, 'Tis one Thing to introduce a Practice not at firſt known, when our Adverſaries ſpoke ſuch Glorious Things of our Faith, Worſhip, Order and Miniſtry, and require the Conformity of any of the Church to it; and quite another Buſineſs, for any of the Church to diſpractiſe, as a Romiſh Tradition, and Tradition of Men, or leave off any orderly Cuſtom God brought his Church firſt forth in, and which all once own'd and were in the Practice of. But I begin to deſpair of making this Cabaliſtick Libeller any honeſter towards the poor Quakers.

§. 2. But the Author of this Libel hath ſo little Conſcience, as yet to ſay, That the Quakers allow no Liberty to Preſbyterians, Independents and Baptiſts, becauſe they are not in the Power of Truth: but ſays he, W. P. never wants a Salvo for George, let him ſay what he will; he meant it, ſays W. P. not of Outward, but of 1673. Inward Liberty, and yet W. P. knew it was ſpoken to one who pleaded for Liberty of Conſcience about his Hat.

But, thou Libeller, was he a Preſbyterian, Independent, or Baptiſt? Or does this prove that I would defend G. F. Let him ſay what he will? Art thou a Man pretending to Truth or Honeſty, that art ſo untrue and diſhoneſt to thy Oppoſer? But I know no ſuch Thing that it was ſpoken of a Hat-Man; this I know from G. F's own Mouth, and what I have frequently heard him ſay on this Subject, That the Conſcience was within, and nothing could give it Liberty from the Thraldom of Sin, but the Power of God within. He thus diſtinguiſht from the common Uſe of the Word, which is the publick Exerciſe of Conſcience; ſo that what he meant of the Inward State of the Conſcience to God, they pervert to the outward Exerciſe of publick Worſhip. Now, becauſe the Preſbyterian, Independent and Baptiſt generally deny, that ever the Conſcience can be Free, or at Liberty from Sin, he queried, What! Liberty to the Preſbyter, &c. and anſwered thus, No Liberty out of the Power of God, Chriſt Jeſus; and ſuch as have Liberty, but not in Chriſt Jeſus, the Power of God, it is in Old Adam, and are to be turned from. No Man that is not eaten up with Prejudice, and a Party with theſe Traducers, can think that G. F. ever intended any other Liberty than what was internal, as the Conſcience is. I could deſire that both Sides in this very Inſtance, might be the Meaſure of the Truth, or Diſhoneſty of either; for I am in no one Thing of this Kind better ſatisfied, than in the wilful Abuſe of our Adverſaries, and our own unblemiſht Innocence. God will reward all according to their Works. Amen.

§. 3. He tells us, There was a Complaint againſt me of divers Lyes, Calumnies and Abuſes, committed by me, in my Book (pag. 43.) entituled, The Spirit of Truth, &c. carried to the Bull and Mouth, to the Body of the Quakers then ſitting there, by Half a Score of Citizens and others, but they were not admitted.

Anſw. 'Tis true that I writ ſuch a Book, and that they came with ſuch a Complaint; but a Lye, a Calumny and Abuſe, that God will Revenge, if not Repented of, to call any Part or Parcel of it either Lyes, Calumnies, or Abuſes. H. Hedworth was nipt for his Nameleſs, Scurrilous Letter; Dull and Angry Man! He could never anſwer it, therefore ſtrove how he could defame it's Author. Notable Controvertiſts indeed! Firſt write Books againſt Perſons, and inſtead of anſwering, cry out for Juſtice, as if I had committed ſome enormous Fact in confuting his Libel: But what Nonſenſe is it for People to come to a Body for Juſtice, which they ſo manifeſtly diſown, and theſe nameleſs Authors conſtantly vilifie? Indeed they are grown ſo angry at our honeſt and quick Defences, that ſome are fallen to Perſonal Criminations, and others to downright menacing us with Judges, Courts of Juſtice, and Corporal Puniſhments; A Crew of Petulant Diſputants, and Bloody-minded Adverſaries. Well, but what Reception found they? G. Whitehead, ſays he, told them, He would ſhew it to W. Penn, if they would ſet their Hands to it. And was not this Reaſonable? Should Men complain and not Subſcribe the Complaint? Such Dark-Lanthorn Acts become not Good Men. But it was ſhewn to Stephen Criſp alſo, and left Signed in his Hands, who told them, that he had ſhewn it to me, and that I had anſwered it in Print. And was not that the beſt Way, that what came by Print, ſhould go by Print? They know their Malice is ready, and they think their Wits are ſo too; and all know, they have their Preſſes open. What! Muſt we not defend our ſelves without being brought upon Tryals? Before what Court did we endeavour to bring them for beginning with us? The World may by this ſee, what a Way ſuch Peeviſh Perſons would take to be uncontrouled in their Writings, had they ſo much Power as they have Pride and Paſſion. But this is not all; for upon my Saying in my Winding-Sheet, That Anabaptiſts came to Bull and Mouth to demand Judgment againſt W. P. for All being in the Place of Many, and aſking, whether they were not well imployed; at which he cries out in the Strain of ſome Great Don. What Penn. Is this the Cuſtom of G. Fox's Court, to jeer the Poor Petitioners? No, Libeller, 'tis neither G. Fox's Court (as thou ſcoffingly calleſt it) nor did I jeer; nor were they that came, Petitioners: We neither ſcorn nor bely them, as is falſely charged upon us. And though there were more Particulars, yet that the Printers putting All inſtead of Many, was one of them is granted; and that I never ſaid, They came with no more, what I did ſay will ſufficiently clear; therefore this Libeller hath both ſcorned and bely'd me, and abus'd and jeer'd G. Fox, &c. which indeed is moſt Times the Work of a concealed Author. Well, but 'tis for this he is pleaſed to confer upon me the Knighthood of the Poſt, which I thus far accept of, that I ſtood my Poſt when he ran away; but be it as it will, his Reeling upon it hath broken his own Head againſt it, whether I would or no. But one Reaſon why he ſo entitles me, is, my Swearing the Truth of what I either know to be Falſe, or do not know to be True. This, I ſuppoſe, may ſtartle every Reader that remembers I am called a Quaker, and have writ againſt Swearing: But the Man had a notable Way to come off, in which he is ſingular. 1. In Caſe our Words go for Oaths: 2*dly, In that our Appealing to God is an Oath*, pag. 49. But before his Charge will reach us, he muſt firſt prove, That we ever broke our Words ſo ſolemnly given, as he pretends; and ſecondly, That an Appeal to any Thing is a Swearing by that unto which the Appeal is made: But the Man being of late Years turned Scholar, may be forgiven his Ignorance in Definitions, as I heartily do his Malice.

See Plain-Dealing, p. 7.

§. 4. In Page 44. he tells me, That ſince I love not to be called bare William, as the Quakers do, but do almoſt beg my due Title of J. Morſe, he thinks it to be equal that he calls me Mr. Penn. But I could wiſh he would let us know what to call him, who ſcarcely ſtudies our Deſtruction more, then to conceal himſelf in compaſſing it? I am contented to be called by my Name; but this ſcornful Libeller, beſides his Nick-Names, often robs me of Half of it, and that after this very Paſſage, which ſhews how little Heed is to be given to his Words. But becauſe he quotes us a Book to prove my Ambition, I will give the Reader an Account of the Matter. Some Letters paſt betwixt J. M. and me; on his Part he uſed Thou and Thee, conforming himſelf to that Language to me, which I knew he practiſed not to other People: I told him it ill became one as angry with the Quakers as himſelf, to imitate them in Uſing that Diſtinction in Language, which he otherwiſe denied, ſaying, I loved Foxes ſhould appear in their own Skins. This is the Subſtance of that Petition, this preſent Adverſary repreſents me to have made for Titles of Honour, againſt which he knows I have writ, and blamed me for ſo doing; but what Twigs will not ſuch drowning Cauſes and Defenders catch at, to endeavour to ſave an irrecoverable Life.

Pag. 48, 58, 59.

§. 5. I am now come to what our Adverſary takes high Advantage at, as if he had enough to blow us all away at one Breath: That I ſhould exclaim for Proof of that Paſſage in the Spirit of the Hat, that our Miniſtry was Vicious and Wanton, and that Strumpets were amongſt them. And that John Pennyman was willing, as he publickly declared in Gracious-Street, to anſwer my Challenge, and that I ſhould come with J. Oſgood, J. Claypole, and William Brand, to his Houſe next Day for a particular Charge, which (ſays this Adverſary) he ſoon drew up and ſent to W. Penn, to which (he ſays) according to my wonted Modeſty; I replied, That we wondred to ſee ſo empty an Account, after ſo great a Charge publickly exhibited, that before we met about it, we would know if this were all he intended; for we would not have our Charge by Piece-Meal. Thus, ſaith this Libeller, Theſe great Champions evaded, &c.

To all which, Reader, take this faithful Anſwer. A Challenge I made to prove that infamous Charge; and it is as True that J. Pennyman made us believe ſome ſuch Thing as is ſaid (to ſay nothing of his inſolent Carriage) But this I boldly affirm, for I have his Letter by me, there was ſcarce one of theſe twenty four Particulars that ſo much as relared to that infamous Charge, upon which my Challenge was grounded. To accept my Challenge upon one Thing, and to offer to anſwer it with another, ſhows their own Shortneſs, and not our Cowardice. What he ſaid to the Purpoſe, was no more than the Charge it ſelf contained, and that in a Way of Poſtſcript too: He gave us this General Anſwer, He could ſay this, and he could ſay that, but he cared not to meddle with ſuch dirty Matters. Is this to anſwer our Challenge? Unjuſt Men! That in your Nameleſs Pamphlets would Rape us of our Reputation, which you have never yet dared to our Faces to Queſtion. God can beſt rejoyn to ſuch Replies, and with him we leave both our Cauſe and Innocency. O, but ſays our Adverſary, we will come to a Trial with you before Twelve Judges, Six of each Side, equally diſintereſted, and in Caſe we fail of ſuch a Number of Perſons, we are willing in Caſe of Difference about them, to refer the Umpirage to the Lord Mayor of London, or any Aldermen or Common-Council-Men. But as great Knaves as ye would make us, I hope, ye do not think us ſuch Fools, as to accept a Challenge from no Body; for ſuch I call an hidden Author: Let us ſee who he is, and what he would be at? Can any Wiſe Man think, that if ſuch Infirmities were, this ſcurrilous and blindfold Way of uſing us ought to prevail with us? No, as we deny far the greateſt Part of his Stories, eſpecially as aggravated, ſo ſhall we not debaſe our Chriſtian Authority ſo far, as to be accountable to every Fleering, Scoffing, Buſy-Body Adverſary: We can Reprove and Exhort, and Exerciſe 1673. Church-Diſcipline in the Power of Chriſt Jeſus, without running to Twelve Judges, Let theſe Nameleſs and Shameleſs Adverſaries firſt go with the Ungodly, Numerous Miſcarriages of their own Parties, and make them Judges in that Reſpect. We need none to give us Diſcerning or Judgment; Chriſt has furniſht us already, and doth in all Occaſions. But had theſe Things been all True, as repreſented, yet not being injurious to any of our Adverſaries, it no Ways concerneth them to be ſatisfied in our Proceedings; nor are we accountable to them by any Law of God or Man, upon their Envious Requirings. Renegados Informations are no Proofs. Hath any Wronged them, they ſhall be Righted ſo far as we are able; But have any ſlipt, muſt we therefore divulge it? Or are we therefore no Body of Chriſtians? Though the Principle be never ſo Perfect, Men are no longer ſo than in Conformity to it. The Ancient Chriſtian Churches had the Spirit of Truth; yet ſome Failures attended ſome of their Members for want of keeping that Watch they ought, muſt the whole Church of Chriſt therefore be defiled or condemned, and the Eminent, and Laborious Servants of God therefore diſcredited? Or ſhould the Apoſtles have gratified the Inquiſitive Jews, Heathens, or Backſliders, about any Miſcarriages within themſelves, who were too apt to charge them with far more Vile Practices than any inſtanced in either of theſe Two Malicious Pamphlets. There is no Church, or Religious Society whatever, that thinks it ſelf obliged to inform every Envious Buſy-Body with the Infirmities of any accounted Members, which is to publiſh it in Gath, and tell it in Aſkalon: Or the Time, Manner, and Matter of any of her Cenſures, unleſs the Facts themſelves have been Notorious, or are Injurious to thoſe without: Let any of them give me an Inſtance to the contrary if they can. It is Prejudice to Religion it ſelf, to divulge Cenſures beyond the Reach of Offences, ſince it is to divulge the Offence it ſelf; We ſhall therefore give no ſuch ill Prefident, by gratifying the Minds of our Clamorous Adverſaries, and ſome Vagabond, Treacherous Quakers. The Church is neither accountable to her publick Enemies, nor her Apoſtate and diſowned Friends. J. Pennyman and William Mucklow, with the reſt of the Coriſh Company, firſt cry out of Evils committed, and next, againſt the Order eſtabliſht to prevent and judge them. The one muſt be called, The Camp Defiled, and the next, Tyranny, or, Arbitrary Government. This hath been judged Years ſince, and they now feed upon. In ſhort, the Libel is hereby anſwered: What is Right is Defended, and what is Wrong, was long ſince, and in the Order of the Goſpel, Condemned. And if this will not ſatisfie, we recommend our Cauſe and Perſons to God, who is haſtening to bring forth that Fatal and Unanſwerable Argument of Aſtoniſhing Judgment upon the Inhabitants of the Earth, which will prove us to be the People which God hath gathered by the Power of the Reſurrection of Jeſus Chriſt from the Dead, who is become our Light and Life, the Head of our Body, in whom we ſtand, and for whom we now ſuffer upon the Earth, to whom be Glory and Dominion for ever.

§. 6. But to render me yet farther Odious, and as a great Teſtimony for G. Fox's being accounted King of the Quakers, and that Lordlineſs we exerciſe, he tells the World, (pag. 55.) That William Penn did not ſpeak unadviſedly, when he writes of his Memberſhip in the Quaker's Body. That it is an Honour more deſirable than to be a Companion of Kings.

Reader, his wreſting lies here; whereas I, in the Humiliation of my Soul, preferred that Living and Spiritual Memberſhip, Almighty God in his Rich Mercy hath given me among this People (whoſe Portion outwardly, hath been Suffering of all Sorts) abundantly before the viſible Pomp, Grandeur and Pleaſure, of being the Companion of Earthly Kings, he turns it to the being a Companion to King G. Fox, as he mockingly calls him; beſides the Abſurdity which follows ſuch a Conſtruction: For what is it but to ſay, That I prefer my being a Companion of a King, before being the Companion of Kings, and that of ſuch an one too (if he muſt be one) as hath not One to a Thouſand, if to Ten Thouſand with other Kings. This is to render me Fooliſh and not Ambitious. But I never underſtood that Memberſhip in any Body, was to have a Principality before, eſpecially as I placed the Compariſon. I am perſwaded, if he thought one ſo eaſily obtainable, he would not long decline being of ſome one Party or other, though now upon his preſent Principles, a very Stragler; every Thing and Nothing.

Well, though what I am, is far enough from being either Prince, or Prince's Fellow, in our Adverſary's Senſe; yet I have found ſuch a Station, in which is that Peace, which I juſtly prefer before all Worldly Dominion.

§. 7. But this Libeller angrily proceeds; For ought I ſee W. P. calls all of us that are Married, Rogues, our Wives Whores, and our Children Baſtards. But the Drift of this Scurrilous Conſequence is to bring me and my Relations under theſe hateful Epithets. This is like a Man, that would tell a Lye of himſelf to faſten an ill Thing upon another; But he will not be thought to be without a Reaſon for this Unreaſonable Conſequence; For he will not call her, ſays he, by his, but her Widow's Name, conſequently, ſhe is a Whore, and her Child a Baſtard. Such dirty Names become ſo dirty a Pamphlet. I adminiſtred no juſt Occaſion for ſuch Reflection: I called her not by that Name to faſten Diſhoneſty upon her; for I never intended any Thing ſo groſs, but to denote who ſhe was, being better known in her Singularities by her old, than by her new Name. But if this Man had travelled no farther than Holland it ſelf, he might have learned, that Women are ſeldom, if ever, called by their Husband's Name: Are their Husband's therefore Rogues, their Wives Whores, and their Children Baſtards?

But that he may ſtoutly vindicate them, and wreak his Diſpleaſure upon me, he proceeds. Is it becauſe they were not married by the Law of the Land? that is as ſtrong againſt himſelf; therefore the true Reaſon of his abuſing them, muſt be their not being married in the Way of the Quakers?

Anſw. Suppoſe us neither to have been married by the Law of the Land, this officious Apologiſt might have ſaved the Compariſon 'till I and my Wife had proved our ſelves as great Bedlams as they ſhewed themſelves at Merchant Taylor's Hall, to the great Scandal of Religion, the Trouble of Wiſe and Sober Men, and the Deriſion of the Multitude. Is that which was once by you improv'd to the Diſgrace of the Quakers, now vindicated againſt them? It ſeems it had been ill done in the Quakers, but is very defenſible in John Pennyman. We are contented with the Diſtinction, and the Apology for it. No Wonder their Books are printed for Francis Smith the Anabaptiſt to vend, who (as I am informed) was one of the Orderers of the Diſorderly Feaſt, being ſeen with ſeveral others of that Sect, that Day, as buſy among the many Paſties, as he hath been ſince in ſelling their Libels; who, by the Way, promiſed in my Hearing, Never to get Printed, or Sell any Books that contained Perſonal Reflections; but Gain with ſuch is Godlineſs. All I can ſay, is, We are not deceived in him. There is a certain Harmony amongſt them, that very well ſuits the Cauſe they promote.

But he ſays, I am not ſingular in judging ſo hardly concerning Perſons not married after our Way; For, ſays he, other Foxonians (a Scoff) have done the like in their Writings.

This Author will by no Means paſs for either Lyar or Reviler, who, as in other Paſſages, ſo in this, hath proved himſelf both: We deny not thoſe to be Marriages which are not according to our Way, but we ſhould unjuſtifiably differ from the Common Way, if we did not believe our own to be moſt according to the Example of the Holy Men and Women of Old. We countenance no Clandeſtine Marriages, as we have Reaſon to believe John Pennyman's was: for he came not to Merchant-Taylor's Hall to be Married, but to declare he had taken Mary Boreman to be his Wife, whoſe Conſent was only gueſſed at by her Silence; but when, how, and before whom he did it, is known to few, if any: We could aſk Queſtions, that would put them very hard to it, but we delight not in meddling with ſuch Stuff. To conclude, We therefore call her his Wife, becauſe he confeſſeth her to be ſuch; but not upon thoſe plain, publick and orderly Proceedings towards God, Relations and Friends, which are owned and practiſed by us the People of God, called Quakers.

But he hath not done with me yet; for he counts it ſpecial Malice, that I ſo deſcribed Mary Pennyman in her Apparel, as if, ſaith he, W. P. were as intimate with her, as he is ſaid to be with Gulielma Maria. But M. Pennyman is better known for an Honeſt Woman, than W. P. is for a Man.

There is little Reaſon that I ſhould believe, that this Man hath Courage enough to queſtion my Honeſty to my Face, who was afraid to put his Name to his Slander. I envy not M. Pennyman her Honeſty, and am very well contented with mine own; however it may be repreſented by mine Enemies, who are too Partial to be Judges, and inſtead of Confuting, can only Revile me, which ſhews no great Store of Honeſty in this Slanderer. My Reflection upon M. Pennyman's Apparel was Juſt and Righteous; I ſtruck her own Spirit with her own Weapon. Were our Miniſters degenerated becauſe they wore better Clothes? And was M. Pennyman more regenerated in leaving off her mean ones? Yes, for ſhe ſays, that having come through her Sorrow, the Outſide is little to her. Would not the ſame Excuſe ſerve us? It ſeems it is no hard Matter for her to endure Richer Apparel, that is, on her own Back, but not upon another's; Ranteriſm is lodged under this Liberty, which leads to what ſhe once judged as unbecoming Truth. But methinks her higher Attainments might allow her Equals and Betters to wear Camlet, whilſt ſhe wears Silk; they are all, I know, good in their Places; but Hypocritical, Self-Righteous Pretences are not to paſs without Rebuke. But I cannot imagine, what ſhould induce this Libeller to reflect upon my Intimacy with Gulielma Maria, and that in ſuch ſuſpected Terms, as if ſhe were another than the Party he repreſented me to be married to a little before; for he preſently reflects Diſhoneſty upon that ſaid Intimacy, telling us at the Tail of it, That M. P. is better known for Honeſty than I am; as if that Intimacy rendred me as culpable, as if it had happened between M. Pennyman and my ſelf. It were well, if he had been ſo cautious elſewhere in telling of Lyes, as he is here in ſpeaking the Truth; But do what we can, the Folk of this Man's Strain will make that a Ground of Reflection upon a Quaker, which is very allowable in themſelves. He tells you above, I was married, and had a Child, and a little below that, I was ſaid to be Intimate with G. M. that is, with the Perſon that is my Wife, as if it were to render a Man ſuſpect to be intimate with one's own Wife. Whether there be moſt of Folly expreſt, or Slander intended in this Way of Writing, let the Moderate Reader judge. But becauſe the Reflection as well extends it ſelf to her as to me, I will only ſay thus much in her Defence, She needs none; and to be queſtioned from ſo foul a Mouth, is a great Addition to her Credit, but his own Guilt. His Compariſon of her with M. Pennyman, that formal Piece of Hypocriſy, giveth but ſuch as know both, the better Means to judge of either; The well-known Innocence, Meekneſs and Faithfulneſs of the one, more lively ſetting out the Deceitfulneſs, Pride and Treacherous Apoſtaſy of the other.

In ſhort; Who would be well ſpoken of by ſuch that chuſe Virtuous Perſons to ſpeak Evil of, and Apoſtates to Commend? But all this, and many more Rude and Defaming Speeches muſt I and mine expect from this Perverſe Generation, who have rewarded us Evil for Good. What Scurrility, Railing, Nick-Names, Mocks and Jeers are vented againſt us, with other Servants of the Lord? But in all theſe Things our Eye is to him, for whoſe Sake alone (he is our Record) we are become Marks for Furious Men to ſhoot their Arrows at; But the Lord is our Pavilion, and his Strength our Fortreſs: He covers our Heads in theſe and all other Battels (at what Time theſe Creeping Judaſſes and Envious Libellers lurk and hide) ſo that we are not moved. We recommend our ſelves to his peculiar Care and Providence, that in his Holy Truth we may live, and rather than relapſe, for it conſtantly die, that, whether we live, or whether we die, God may be magnified in the Earth, and that ſhall be our exceeding great Recompence of Reward.

And for theſe Apoſtates, who once dipt with us into the ſame Diſh, and fed at the ſame Table, who have taſted of the Word of God, and the Power of the World to come; but have betrayed the Spirit of Truth to the Spirit of Deluſion in themſelves, and given him and his Motions into the Hands of the Falſe Chriſtian of this Day, to Deride and Scorn, and who have had ſo little Regard to the Profeſſion, as to bring it under Reproach, and to the Common Law of Friendſhip, as Treacherouſly to divulge the Secrets of ſome of their ancient Acquaintance; and finally, who have endeavoured the Diſgrace and Hazard of the Lives and Liberties of ſome of the Servants of God, becauſe of their Faithful Teſtimony againſt their Apoſtaſy; I muſt tell them, and do in the Counſel of God, Their Bands ſhall be made ſtrong, and that Eternal Power at which they ſtrike, reigns over their Dark, Dividing Envious Spirit, in the Hearts of that People, they have called by ſo many Scoffing Names; and more than a Mill-ſtone will it be about their Necks, and the Weight of all theſe Wicked and Treacherous Doings, will God bring upon them, in a Day, and an Hour, when they ſhall not be able to eſcape the Rod of his Fury. Ah! Poor Men! What have ye been doing? Verily, your Damnation ſlumbers not; and the God, whoſe Name you have cauſed to be blaſphemed amongſt the Heathen, will one Day require theſe Things at your Hands, and Recompenſe Vengeance in Flames of Fire, for all your Hard Speeches and Sinful Contradictions againſt the Holy Spirit of Truth, and thoſe who are led by it. I am not in any Rage, God knows; but I am grieved for you. I could wiſh a Place of Repentance might be found, if the Lord ſaw Good, though I rather fear, your many and grievous Provocations have ſhut the Door againſt you: For as Core and his Aſſociates were outwardly ſwallowed up of the Earth, ſo hath the Earthly, Senſual and Deviliſh Spirit of the World received you into the Bowels of it, and you are become as really One againſt our Lord and his Anointed in this Generation, as ever Pilate, Herod, Judas and the Jews were combined againſt Him and His in the Days of his Fleſh; Who have ſtrengthned the Hands of the Mocker and Scoffer; greatned the Envy of the Profeſſors, and made the Atheiſt glad. But may this Lamentable Courſe your Diſobedient, Watching-for-Evil, Slippery, Backbiting and Exalted Spirit hath brought you into, with the ſad Conſequence of being hardned therein, be a perpetual Warning upon the Minds of all, who make Profeſſion of God's Eternal Truth, that they be not High-minded, but fear; minding their own Conditions, and their Growth and Increaſe in the Work of the Lord, that ſo Love and Unity may be preſerv'd, and all Watchings for Evil, Diſtruſts, Surmiſings, Emulations, and whatever makes for Diſcord or Diſ-affection, may be judged out, and the Sourneſs of that Spirit that leads thereunto, turned from, and rebuk'd in the Power and Authority of God, who is able to keep us and preſerve us unto his Heavenly Kingdom, to whom be everlaſting Glory and Dominion, Amen. 1673.

Now, The Juſt ſhall live by Faith; but if any Man draw back, my Soul ſhall have no Pleaſure in him, Hebr. 10. 38.

And becauſe Iniquity ſhall abound, the Love of many ſhall wax cold. But he that ſhall endure unto the End, the ſame ſhall be ſaved. Matth. 24. 12, 13.

And THIS GOSPEL of the Kingdom ſhall be preached in all the World, for a Witneſs unto all Nations, and then ſhall the End come. Ver. 14.

Note, Several Teſtimonies printed at the End of this Treatiſe, are here Omitted, not being penn'd by this Author.

A POSTSCRIPT to the Reader, Concerning the Unity of our Adverſaries againſt us, amidſt the great Diſcord they are at amongſt themſelves.

HOW hearty theſe Men are in their Envy againſt Us, and Hatred to the Way we profeſs, is very diſcernable from their cloſe Confederacy and ſtrict Union, who are as remote, and differing from, and abſolutely contradictory to one another in their Faith, Worſhip and Diſcipline, as to the Quakers themſelves, againſt whom they have Combined. They are made up of ſome Preſbyterians, Independents, Anabaptiſts, Socinians, and Apoſtates from Us. A ſtrange Medley of Adverſaries, and ſtranger, that there ſhould be ſuch Union to Miſchief! But let us view ſome of their Principles.

Firſt, The Preſbyterians, Independents, and Anabaptiſts, believe that the Father, the Son, and the Spirit, (though three Names, denoting Three Perſonalities or Subſiſtences) are One, Infinite, Eternal and Omnipotent God, At which the Modern Socinian cries, Blaſphemy and Idolatry; For, ſays he, Chriſt is but purely a Man, and the Spirit but a Creature. Now come in theſe Apoſtates againſt the Preſbyterians, Independents, Anabaptiſts. We deny your Perſonalities and Subſiſtences; And to the Socinians, We own Chriſt and the Spirit to be of one Nature and Being with God the Father; And it is Blaſphemy to ſay, that Chriſt and the Spirit are Creatures. Here's the firſt Diſcord or Jumble between our Adverſaries.

Secondly, The Preſbyterians, Independents, Anabaptiſts, and theſe Apoſtates, aſſert God to be a Spirit, At which theſe Socinianiz'd Followers of John Bidle, ſay, There's no ſuch Thing; but, with J. Reeve and L. Muggleton, That he has a Body like to a Man, and inhabits a certain Place.

Thirdly,

1673. Thirdly, The Presbyterians, Independents, and Anabaptiſts, concerned chiefly againſt us, hold, That God from all Eternity elected a certain Number to Salvation, and reprobated the Reſidue to Eternal Damnation, without reſpect to any Condition of Obedience or Diſobedience, thereby to illuſtrate his own Sovereignty and Glory; which Principle theſe Apoſtates have ſo much Underſtanding yet left, as to repute pernicious and damnable. The like do ſome of theſe Socinians we have to do with; others of them having wheel'd off a few Years ſince to the Geneva Predeſtinarian Side.

Fourthly, The Presbyterians, Independents, and Anabaptiſts believe, That by Chriſt's Life and Sufferings wholly without, God's Juſtice was ſatisfied for Sins, and Juſtification compleatly wrought for the Elect, not only by forgiving Sins paſt, but reputing them really Juſt and Righteous whilſt actually Sinful; which Kind of Doctrine theſe Apoſtates deny, as alſo doth the Socinian, affirming, That God needed no ſuch rigid Satisfaction; that this is not to make him Righteous, but Revengeful; and that Chriſt cannot ſo properly be ſaid to be the Cauſe as the Effect of the Father's Love; For God ſo loved the World, that he gave his only begotten Son, &c. And though ſuch are forgiven who truly Repent, and that Remiſſion was ſealed by Chriſt's Blood, as a Sacrifice; yet Men are not made really Righteous within, by any Imputation from another's Righteouſneſs without, while they are really Unrighteous within. This is the 4th Contradiction.

Fifthly, Presbyterians, Independents, and Anabaptiſts, believe Chriſt to have now in Heaven an Human Body, or one of Fleſh, Blood and Bones. The Socinian and theſe Apoſtates ſay, he hath no ſuch Body, but that which he hath is more Spiritual and Glorified.

Sixthly, The Presbyterians, Independents, Anabaptiſts, and theſe Apoſtates, affirm the Immortality of the Soul. The Socinians deny it.

Seventhly, The Preſbyterians, Independents, Anabaptiſts and Socinians, deny the Light that ſhines within, to be Chriſt in his Spiritual Appearance. Theſe Apoſtates, though erred from it, yet affirm it to be ſuch.

Eighthly, The Presbyterians, Independents, Anabaptiſts, deny that it can lead Men that obey it unto Salvation. The Socinian, with theſe Apoſtates, affirm, that it is able to lead ſuch as follow it to Eternal Life.

Ninthly, The Presbyterian, Independent, Anabaptiſt and Socinian, deny the Spirit to be poured out in theſe, as former Ages; or that Men ought to wait for the Motions of it to Preach, Pray, or Praiſe God. Theſe Apoſtates, in Words, confeſs to maintain the contrary.

Tenthly, The Presbyterian, Independent, Anabaptiſt and Socinian, affirm, That the Scriptures are the only ſtanding Rule, to meaſure and try Doctrines, and Spirits by, under the Goſpel: Theſe Apoſtates believe no ſuch Thing.

Eleventhly, The Presbyterians, Independents, Anabaptiſts and Socinians, diſown the Practice of keeping on the Hat in Time of Publick Prayer; Theſe Apoſtates call the Pulling of it off, a Tradition of Men, a Romiſh Tradition, &c.

Yet, Reader, for our ſeaſonable and due Proceeding againſt them, as Innovators upon the Church of Chriſt, and Diſturbers of our Peace, by this new, unprofitable, and irreverent Practice, denying them in their Perſiſtence, and rejecting their Motions, as not coming from the Spirit of God, are we furiouſly fallen upon by ſome of each of thoſe fore-mentioned Parties; (who as Men forgetting their own Eſſential Differences, and that Perſecution they have followed one another with for Years) like the ancient Scribes, Sadducees, and Phariſees, unanimouſly endeavour our Diſgrace and Overthrow in the World; as if they were all of one Faith in Doctrine, who ſcarcely in any two moſt weighty Points hit: which ſhews, that Men under divers Fundamental Differences, may be acted by one and the ſame Spirit of Envy and Bitterneſs againſt the Truth, and them that live therein. What elſe can I call that which has given theſe Apoſtates that Place in their Hearts, (that while Faithful, hated them, as they ſtill do us) who Judas like have run away from us, to inform our Enemies which Way they may take us at an Advantage?

Theſe Men they hug, commend and vindicate at ſo high a Rate, as if they were the only great Patrons on Earth for Righteouſneſs, (as much as they differ) and us, as a Crew of Tyrants and Hypocrites. Their Innovation muſt be called Goſpel-Liberty; but our Religious Government, Tyranny: They juſtify the Motions of theſe Apoſtates, and condemn Us for refuſing them, whom themſelves both deny Motions, and the Way to know them. They put me in Mind of the Jews of old, who were ſeldom wanting in the Promotion of the Chriſtians Sufferings by the Heathen; nay, they were glad, and improved the leaſt Occaſion to ſet the Infidels upon their Backs: Always the Jew and Heathen ſaid Amen to the Deſtruction of the Chriſtians; yea, that very Thing for which the Jew in his Time ſuffered from the Heathen, to wit, That they worſhipped an Aſſe's Head, was after abuſively made the Reproach of Chriſtians, both by Jew and Heathen. What other have we received from the Separatiſts of this Age? Who make us to inherit that Sort of Suffering which they once thought Ungodly in their Adverſaries. How welcome was a Renegado Chriſtian to the Heathen, or a Backſlider to the Jew? How chary were they of ſuch an one's Intelligence? And how apt to aggravate it to the Wrong of Chriſtianity? But if that was nevertheleſs True, becauſe of the Unfaithfulneſs and Treachery of it's Profeſſors; neither is our Way to be concluded Falſe, nor our Society Criminal, becauſe a few ſtragling Renegadoes have in their Diſcontents, furniſht ſome common Enemies with a broken and imperfect Account of our Church Proceedings: But as this will turn little to their Credit, with Wiſe and Juſt Men, ſo have we Confidence in God, that having brought us through many Difficulties, he will continue to preſerve us through the Peril of Falſe Brethren, and all other Tribulations, which do, and will but work a far more exceeding Weight of Glory, yea of that Glory which was with the Father before the World began; and in the Poſſeſſion of which, the now deſpiſed Flock of God ſhall reſt with him in that World which never had Beginning, and is without End.

QUAKERISM

A New Nick-Name for Old Christianity, &c.

CHAP. I.

Chap. I.

The Introduction. Our Adverſary's Definition of Chriſtianity Defective. True Chriſtianity Stated. Quakeriſm Miſtaken by him. It is proved True Chriſtianity, and a Quaker a Right Chriſtian.

§. 1. Among many other Perſons, that have of late Induſtriouſly eſſayed the Miſ-repreſenting the Quakers, and their Religion (overcaſting the Sincerity of the One, and darkning the Excellent Beauty of the Other, by their Miſts of Ignorance and Prejudice) John Faldo, though the Laſt, has not been the Leaſt concern'd.

§. 2. I am truly Sorry to ſee, that among the ſeveral Arguments, ſome Men's Prudence render'd, for Toleration, that of giving Diſſenters Liberty, and they would War within themſelves, ſhould be ſo amply verified by their Unchriſtian Irruption upon us (diſturbing thoſe by Slanderous Pamphlets, who would not be concern'd in their Heats.) But this Folly and Uncharitableneſs, I am to tell the World, lies not at the Quaker's Door, who ſeek Peace with all Men; but ſome Reſtleſs Spirits among other Perſwaſions, whoſe whole Food ſeems to turn into Conteſt, and ſhew they can no more live without it, than the Air they breath in. What ſhall we do then? Suffer their Slanders, Detractions, Additions, and Down-right Abuſes of us to paſs Unanſwer'd? No: for then we ſhall be concluded, either Guilty or Vanquiſht. What then? Why we will defend our ſelves with Truth and Moderation; and that I hope, with God's Aſſiſtance, to do in this ſhort Treatiſe, to the Confuſion of our Enemies, and Renowning the Truth, and Clearing our Innocence to the World.

§. 3. The Author is pleas'd to call his Book, Quakeriſm no Chriſtianity. A Title of more Reproach and Infamy, than became a Chriſtian Man to give. But let's hear what he means by Chriſtianity.

§. 4. By Chriſtianity, we are not to underſtand all thoſe Matters of Faith and Practice, which Chriſtianity doth oblige us unto.

A ſtrange Definition of true Chriſtianity: For, if to Believe, and Do all Chriſtianity requireth, be not Chriſtianity, then there is ſomething beyond all that Chriſtianity requires to be believ'd and done that is Chriſtianity; elſe I underſtand nothing. But ſaith he, It takes in whatever is worthy in thoſe Religions, it hath ſuperſeded, yea, the very Heathens. What then? Is it not therefore Chriſtianity? Egregious Weakneſs! What an Hair has he ſplit? but it flies in his Eyes: Is it not therefore Chriſtianity, becauſe Chriſtianity takes it in? If Chriſtianity takes in whatever is worthy in other Religions; then, ſince Chriſtianity is Worthineſs it ſelf, Comprehenſive of whatever was in any Degree Excellent among Jews or Heathens;

Heathens; will it not follow, That, to Believe and Practiſe all that Chriſtianity requires, is Chriſtianity; unleſs we are to underſtand, That Chriſtianity does not require what was Worthy and Commendable among Jews or Heathens, which he ſays, we are.

§. 5. This then does not make Chriſtianity a Diſtinct Thing in kind, from what was Worthy, as he calls it, that is, Godly, among either Jews or Heathen: but that Chriſt did by his Viſible Appearance benefit the World with a more glorious Manifeſtion of the ſame Divine Power, Purity, Truth, Wiſdom and Righteouſneſs, than former Ages were either capable of, or attended with. To exclude then all Antecedent Times from any ſhare in Chriſtianity, is both Weak, and Cruel; ſince it plainly ſhuts them out of all Hopes of Eternal Salvation: For if no Name be given but the Name of Chriſt, under the whole Heaven, by which Men can be ſaved; then, either Chriſt was always in ſome Meaſure or other a Saviour, and ſuch as were ſaved, in ſome Degree or other, Chriſtians; or there was one Saviour before Chriſt's outward Coming, and another ſince; or laſtly, all that were antecedent to that Appearance, were damn'd.

§. 6. I appeal then to the Conſciences and Underſtandings of all impartial People, if our Belief be not the moſt Juſt, Merciful and True; that however it pleaſed God to ſend his Son a Light into the World at that Time more eminently than before, yet that he was ſo far Spiritually manifeſted in all Ages, as the Word of God nigh in the Heart, and great Commandment in the Conſciences of Men, as who believed and obey'd, obtain'd Remiſſion of Sins and Eternal Salvation. This is clear; for if no Man could ever ſee, or know the Father but the Son, and he to whom the Son reveals him, then becauſe many of the Holy Ancients both ſpiritually ſaw and knew God (otherwiſe they could never be ſaved) it follows, that Chriſt did in all Ages reveal God, who being Light, and that it is Light alone which can Reveal or Manifeſt; it was a Light within, that he communicated unto the Soul of Man, which is within Man, the Knowledge of the Pure God: Whatever may be known of God is manifeſt within Man, for God hath ſhewed it unto him: So that the Contradiction and Error of the Man's Definition of Chriſtianity is evident.

§. 7. But yet a little farther: He plainly Heathenizes that notable Chriſtian Paſſage of the Apoſtle, refuſing it all Privilege within the Bounds of Chriſtianity, viz. Whatſoever Things are True, Honeſt, Juſt, Pure, Lovely, of Good Report; if there be any Virtue, if there be any Praiſe, think on theſe Things. Now if this Religious Chymiſt ſhall once extract all Things that are Honeſt, Juſt, Pure, Lovely, and of Good Report, from Chriſtianity (which the Apoſtle maketh the Sum of what he had been writing (unleſs it is not a Chriſtian Epiſtle) and therefore ends with a Finally, my Brethren) tell me, O ſober Reader, what a kind of Chriſtianity there would be in the World! O Monſtrous Impiety! Is this Man fit to write of Chriſtianity that places it beneath the loweſt Step of Purity; making manifeſt Difference betwixt being a Child of God, and a Chriſtian? True, the outward Hiſtory of Chriſt's exceeding Love to Mankind, deſerves all humble and reverent Credit as a Godly Tradition, and it ſhould for ever bind Men to receive and fear and worſhip him: Yet I boldly affirm, that though the Manifeſtation was clearer; yet Salvation was Salvation, and a Child of God, a Child of God in all Ages. For what is it but to ſay, that Pure Religion and Undefiled, which is to keep our ſelves unſpotted from the World, belongs not ſtrictly to the Chriſtian, but Jewiſh or Pagan Religion; and that James was but a moral Man in the Matter, and not writing on a Chriſtian Subject. What an empty Trunk, a Vox, & præterea nihil, a ſounding Braſs and Tinkling Cymbal would this Man make of true Chriſtianity! Yet thus far we may force him to ſpeak Truth, though in double Contradiction to himſelf; that ſince Chriſtianity takes in all that was worthy in all Ages (not as Alien then, but related to her ſelf) ſomething of the Nature of true Chriſtianity was in the World before that more Viſible and Glorious Manifeſtation of it; unleſs Chriſtianity be ſuppoſed to take into it ſelf what is not of it's own Nature: Thus was Chriſt the Rock the Ancients built on before Abraham was, whoſe Day he had a Sight and Senſe of, and from it rejoyced greatly.

§. 8. Chriſtianity then is not an Hiſtorical Belief of the Exterior Acts, the true Chriſt did in that bodily Appearance, which is but Hiſtorical Chriſtianity, as our Adverſary weakly argues; for that was the leaſt Part of it, ſince Chriſtianity is that which brings to God, which Thouſands that believe only the other will never arrive at: but a firm Belief in him that ſo Appeared, Lived, Died, Roſe and Aſ- cended, both as teſtified of in the Scriptures of Truth, and more eſpecially as he breaks in upon the Soul by his Divine Diſcoveries, as the True Light enlightning every Man, this I call Chriſtianity; and that Man is a Child of Light, who obeys that Light; a true Chriſtian, who is Chriſt-like; a Child of God, and Heir of the Promiſe, who is inwardly renewed and begot anew of the Incorruptible Seed, and Word of God: For thoſe who were Chriſtians of old, were ſuch as came to know Chriſt, no more after the Fleſh, but as the ſecond Adam, the Lord from Heaven, the Quickning Spirit, who ſaid, I am the Reſurrection and the Life; really witneſſing him to be that in themſelves, wherefore they Believed, and upon Repentance, received Remiſſion of Sins and Eternal Salvation. And I do affirm, that Chriſtianity ſtands in the Manifeſtation of a Meaſure of that Righteous Power, Wiſdom, Truth and Life in the Soul, which appear'd ſo largely and gloriouſly in that Body at Jeruſalem, to work Repentance, then give Remiſſion, ſo Renew, Redeem, and finally Save: And who came to be made ſenſible of that Heavenly Treaſure in their mortal Bodies, and to improve it as good Stewards, were Poſſeſſors of true Chriſtianity, and therefore Right Chriſtians. The Diſtinction betwixt Moral and Chriſtian, the making Holy Life Legal, and Faith in the Hiſtory of Chriſt's outward Manifeſtation only, have been a deadly Poyſon theſe latter Ages have been infected with, to the Deſtruction of Godly Living, and Apoſtatizing of thoſe Churches, in whom there might once have been begotten, ſome Earneſt, Living Thirſt after the Inward Life of Righteouſneſs.

§. 9. By this, I think it may be pretty well known, what we mean by Chriſtianity, and a True Chriſtian: How far this will agree with his Definition of Quakeriſm, and a Quaker, I will proceed to examine.

Quakeriſm is an heap of Tenets, with the uſurped Names of true Chriſtian Principles, which are yet really no ſuch Thing, but ſubverting both Foundation and Fabrick of true Chriſtianity; And I call him a Quaker that profeſſes the Light within every Man to be the Lord, and Saviour, and very God: So that then I ſay Quakeriſm is no Chriſtianity.

§. 10. Indeed, if Quakeriſm, reſpecting us, were this, I would ſay ſo too: But becauſe it is juſtly a Stranger to any ſuch Imputation, I rightly faſten that of Ignorance or great Malice upon our Adverſary. I have already expreſt our Judgment of Chriſtianity, which I ſuppoſe to be the Quakeriſm ſtruck at, whatever may be pretended, at leaſt, what is our Quakeriſm, or Chriſtianity rather: And we leave our Belief with that God who made it ſo, to juſtifie it, and us, who thus ſtedfaſtly hold, and daily, yet patiently ſuffer for it, by his own Diſcoveries in the Conſciences of Men. But this I will add, That ſince he has rendred us to be one Thing in Shew, and another in Reality, our Appeal is to the God that made Heaven and Earth, to right us in the Minds of all.

§. 11. We dare not Believe or Practiſe what comes not in by True Conviction (Things meerly Hiſtorical excepted, and yet there is a Conviction for them too) The Devils who knew Chriſt and trembled, were more ſenſible than thoſe who know him only by Hear-ſay, and make a Mock of that Trembling, which ſeizeth the Contrite Souls of Men for Sin. We declare in the Preſence of the Eternal God, that it was the Strivings of the Holy Spirit in us, that firſt moved us to ſolid Repentance, and as we came to be judged by it, and reconciled unto God in our Minds, ſo have we appear'd before all Men; therefore it is utterly Falſe, that We cover our Tenets with the Names of Chriſtian Principles, ſince theſe following, which are ours, are truly Chriſtian and Scriptural (1.) God created Man Innocent, in his own Image created He him. (2.) That Man or all Mankind has faln ſhort of the Glory of God through Diſobedience. (3.) That in the Seed promiſed Redemption can only be had. (4.) That this Seed is He that in Time was called Chriſt. (5.) That by this Holy Seed, both before and ſince that Coming, the Serpent's Head hath been perticularly bruiſed in all who have been redeemed or ſaved, as the Holy Men and Women of Old, and ſuch in every Age as have known a Sanctification. (6.) That this Seed appeared in the Fulneſs and Stature of a Man in that Outward Body prepared of God above 1660. Years ſince, and in it encounter'd and conquer'd Satan, and trod him under His Feet. (7.) That he bore the Sin of the World. (8.) That he laid down his Life a Ranſom for all. (9.) That ſuch as Believ'd and Follow'd him as he then appear'd, receiv'd Remiſſion of Sins, and Eternal Life. (10.) That what was then outwardly done, did ſtill refer and had Relation to an Inward Work in the Souls of Men: The Holy Life put forth it ſelf to work Inward Conviction, and drive the 1673. Chap. I. Mind into a Meaſure of the ſame in it ſelf; for the whole End of it was, to draw the Minds of Men more Inward, to a Manifeſtation of that ſame Life, Virtue, Power, Wiſdom, and Righteouſneſs in each Particular, which appeared in that Body in General, and qualified it to that great Work, and ſuſtain'd it under all it's Sufferings, and put that Great Value upon them, which really was in them: Wherefore, to the Divine Power firſt, and to the Holy Manhood next, do we aſcribe that Grace and Wonderful Benefit that thereby came unto the World.

§. 12. But next, we muſt deny his Quaker, as well as his Quakeriſm: Indeed, they go together; who miſſeth one, it is unlikely he ſhould hit the other. We never ſaid, That the Light in every Man was the only Lord, and Saviour, and very God. Let him but ſhow us any ſuch Paſſage of any one acknowledg'd to be a Quaker, and he will ſay ſomething: But methinks he that has quoted ſo many Paſſages out of our Friends Books, to ſo little Purpoſe, ſhould not have neglected to inſtance in ſome one of us, that hath ſo expreſt our ſelves; it ſhows, that either he thinks to be believ'd Hand over Head, or really there is no ſuch Doctrine by us aſſerted, and conſequently he knew no ſuch Place to cite. But for the Upright-hearted in all Forms, who are deſirous of the Subſtance, that will give Life to the Soul, and who ſtand only at a Diſtance from us, on the Account of the many frightful Characters their Teachers give of us, I ſhall briefly open our Faith in this Matter.

§. 13. Firſt, We aſſert, That all Men are enlightned (let it be Lighted in their Souls or Underſtandings, if our Adverſaries will) This is prov'd from John 1. 9. Alſo, Whatever may be known of God, is manifeſt within, for God has ſhewn it unto them. Again, Whatever is reproved, is made manifeſt by the Light; for whatever makes manifeſt, is Light. All Knowledge of God comes by the Light he gives into the Soul, as well as that all have that Light, though few obey it.

§. 14. Secondly, This Light is Divine, becauſe it is the very Life of the Word, which is God; not an Effect of it's Power, as a Created Light, which ſome vainly fancy; but in Him, or It, the Word, was Life, and that Life (Numerical) was the Light of Men: What is Life in the Word, is Light in Men, and who follow that Light as a Reprover of the Deeds of Darkneſs, ſhall be made Children of Light, and have the Light of Life.

§. 15. Thirdly, Though we ſay, that all are enlightned by it, or receive Light from it, yet far be it from us to aſſert, Every ſuch Illumination is the only Lord, and Saviour, and very God. By no Means, but rather thus, That the only Lord, and Saviour, and very God, is the Great Sun and Light of Righteouſneſs to the Inviſible World of Souls and Spirits (if I may ſo ſpeak) who manifeſts unto every Particular, that which concerns the State of every Individual; but not that every ſuch Enlightning ſhould be the Intire Lord, Saviour, God; ſo that this Prieſt is already found deficient in his Work: He ſhould better have underſtood us before he had given an Account of us, and diſcovered his Oppoſition to us. What Superſtructure can we expect from ſo infirm a Foundation; how ſhall J. Faldo prove Quakeriſm No Chriſtianity, who is defective in his Definition of both? Certainly the Quaker may be the Beſt of Chriſtians for ought he has groundedly oppoſed to him: I am ſure he would have thought ſuch a Miſtake in us moſt heinous; to ſay nothing of that Advantage he would have taken to ſhew his little Wit, and great Prejudice in aggravating our Ignorance to the World.

CHAP. II.

How Chriſtianity was introduc'd, hurts not the Quakers. The Queſtion is not of Chriſt's Viſible Coming; that is owned by them. Nor is their Religion a New One from that of Chriſtianity; but the Recovery of Loſt Primitive Chriſtianity, ſince the Reign of Anti Chriſt in the World. That Quakeriſm, as call'd, made its Way by Purity, Sorrow and Rejoycing, as well as Chriſtianity. The Prieſts Vilifying Expreſſions Rebuk'd. That the Diſtinct Times of their Appearance, is no Argument againſt their Harmony, or being but Two Words for the ſame Thing, ſince the ſame Truth may appear at Two Diſtinct Ages of the World. It would ſtrike out J. Faldo as well as the Quakers, if the contrary were admitted. That he groſly contradicts himſelf as to Time. Chriſtianity hath more or leſs been in the World where Godly Men and Women have been, as well before as ſince that Appearance. We intend no New Diſpenſation, but the Renewed Revelation of the ſame Power, which is the True Goſpel.

§. 1. THE next Miſ-Repreſentation, is of the Manner of our Appearance, and the Time of it, by Way of Compariſon with that of Chriſtianity, little to his Purpoſe, and in my Judgment, much againſt him.

§. 2. Chriſtianity was introduc'd by Preaching the Promiſed Meſſias, and Pointing at His Human Perſon: But Quakeriſm by Preaching a Light within.

I anſwer, that this is nothing injurious to the Quakers at all, but highly on their Side; for had they preach'd Chriſt now coming in the Fleſh, they had deny'd his True and only great Viſible Appearance, at Jeruſalem, which all True Quakers own. Since then they believe that Appearance, and therefore need not preach what is not to be again; and that the whole Chriſtian World beſides, have ſo long and lazily depended on it, without their thirſting after His Inward Holy Appearance in the Conſcience, to bind the Strong Man, Spoil his Goods, and Caſt him out; in ſhort, to diſcover Sin, Wound for it, and make an End of it by the Brightneſs of his Spiritual Coming into the Souls of all ſuch as wait for him, and will receive him (in which Senſe he was revealed in ſuch, and became in the Saints of Old the Hope of their Glory) I ſay, ſince he has been ſo much talk'd of, and depended on, as to his then Viſible Manifeſtation of himſelf, and ſo little, if at all, deſired after, as to his Spiritual and Inviſible Coming into the Hearts of Men, to finiſh Tranſgreſſion and bring in Everlaſting Righteouſneſs: Therefore God raiſed us up, and we are now gone forth into the World to declare, That He is Spiritually Manifeſted; as then fully in that Body, ſo now meaſurably in the Conſciences of all People, a Divine Light, Reproving every Unfruitful Work of Darkneſs: So that here is the Miſchief, the Malice and Ignorance of our Enemies do us in the World, that becauſe we Speak ſo much of, and Preach up, and Write for Chriſt's Inward and Spiritual Appearance, as a Light to Mankind, therefore they conclude with a mighty Confidence, That we deny his outward Coming, Life, Death, Reſurrection, and Aſcenſion, and the Benefits thereof. O Darkneſs it ſelf! We have our Witneſs with the Lord of Heaven and Earth, that we own him to be the Saviour General of the whole World, as to that Appearance, and that he obtained Precious Gifts for Men; but we ſay (and our Adverſaries have not wherewith reaſonably to unſay it) that firſt the Divine Light, Life, or Power, that ſhined through that Bleſſed Manhood, was excellently the Saviour, and the Manhood but Inſtrumentally: Thus the Scripture, There is no Saviour beſides me, ſaith God; a Body haſt thou prepared me: He then was greater than his Body; for it is call'd a Veil, and very properly; for it veil'd much of that Divine Life, which when it was withdrawn (as he himſelf ſaid, it was expedient) the Saints did witneſs inwardly Reveal'd, Chriſt in them, their Hope of Glory. And ſecondly, No Man or Woman in the World, is ſavingly benefited by his then appearing as a Saviour, and obtaining precious Gifts for Men, but as every ſuch Individual Perſon comes to experience his Internal Manifeſtation, to Convince, Condemn, Wound, Heal, Break, Bind up, Slay, make Alive, in the Newneſs of the Spirit: This is the State of Right Redemption and Salvation, and thus is he particularly a Saviour, and every ſuch one is greatly benefited by him, as he was in that former Appearance the General Saviour of Mankind. Behold then, O you that are Impartial! How unworthily he hath injur'd us? To make People believe, That we teſtifie to Chriſt's Inward Appearance in Oppoſition to, and Denial of his Outward; which is far from our Hearts ſo much as to conceive.

§. 3. But again he tells us, (Pag. 9, 10, 11.) That Chriſtianity made it's Way by the Purity of it's Doctrine, the Gracious Words that Chriſt ſpoke, by Signs and Wonders; but Quakeriſm by Blaſphemies againſt the Lord Jeſus Chriſt; and quotes E. B. ſaying, Tour imagin'd God above the Stars; and G. Fox, There are Miracles among Believers in the Spirit, &c. frothily querying, Whether it ſmells more of the Fox, or the Gooſe.

'Tis true, the Purity of it's Doctrine was, and is, an admirable Enforcement it had, and hath above all other: Nor can he faſten juſtly any Impurity upon what we profeſs, though he endeavours to detract from it by baſe Aſperſions, for indeed it is the ſame. Sweet were the Words of Chriſt, I grant, but altogether Severe and Terrible, to Phariſaical Hypocrites, who were both the greateſt Scripturians, and Haters of Him, in that Age.

Chap. II.

§. 4. Nor is it true that E. Burrough ſo expreſt himſelf in Deriſion of God's Preſence above the Stars; but of People's imagining him to be in the Likeneſs of Man, and ſo denying his Omnipreſence, that He ſhould not be as well below as above.

§. 5. But Wonders and Miracles were wrought. What then? Are not the Quakers True Chriſtians without them? See the Wickedneſs of this Spirit that works againſt us; unleſs we will work Miracles to confirm that Doctrine in this Generation, which was confirmed by Miracles Sixteen Hundred Years ago, either it is not True, or we have no Right to it. But by the Way, obſerve their Folly, for they Unchriſtian at once Chriſtianity and themſelves too; ſince Chriſtianity muſt either be no longer ſuch, nor they Chriſtians, whilſt they cannot work Wonders to prove it, or themſelves to be ſuch; or elſe the Quakers are never the leſs True Chriſtians, for not working thoſe Wonders they boldly require from us. We pretend not to a New Miniſtration, and ſince the Queſtion is not about the Viſible Coming of the Meſſiah, which call'd for Viſible Miracles (for that's granted on all Hands in Europe) but the Spiritual Appearance of the Meſſiah in the Hearts and Conſciences of his People, that he might not have a bare and empty Title when he was call'd JESUS, but really ſave his People (now as then) from their Sins; the Caſe is plainly alter'd as to obvious Miracles to our Carnal Senſes; the preſent Work being to open the blind Eye, and unſtop the deaf Ear of the Mind; blinded and ſtopt by the God of this World. And theſe are greater Things, of more Weight, and the Conſequence of them of far greater Importance. And judge you, how Vain, Light, and unbecoming a Miniſter of the Goſpel of Chriſt Jeſus, that requires an Account for every idle Word, was it in J. Faldo, when treating of Chriſtianity, to ſay, Whether it ſmells more like the Fox or the Gooſe? Vain and Frothy?

§. 6. But once more, (Pag. 11, 12.) Chriſtianity entred the World with Raviſhing Songs, and Hallelujahs of the Angels, Healing all Diſeaſes, Caſting out Devils, Preaching Peace: But Quakeriſm entred the World, as if Hell had broke looſe, and Poſſeſſions by Satan had made Way, and fitted Souls for the Quaker's Spirit. ——— O the Hell-dark Expreſſions of the Quaker's Spirit, Frightful, and Amazing Words, Bitter Curſes, Howlings and Roarings! And what elſe J. Faldo's Devil pleaſeth, by which to render the Quakers Odious. Well! But to Anſwer him.

It was a Time of Joy, and a Time of Sorrow; the Spirits of the Juſt rejoyced that he was born forth into the World, and that Sun of Righteouſneſs riſen, whoſe Diſcovering Light, and Refreſhing Beams would renew the World, that had been in great Meaſure bewilder'd, ſince it's firſt innocent State: But therefore was it not a Time of Wo, Sorrow, Terror, and Grievous Diſtreſs to all the Workers of Iniquity? Did not Chriſt come to bring War as well as Peace; a Sword, a Fire upon Earth? Did not his Fore-runner come in an Aſtoniſhing Manner, in differing Attire, of another Diet, and from a Deſolate Place to Preach Repentance, and to Warn them, With an O Generation of Vipers, to flee the Wrath to come? Did he not ſay, that an Ax, (a ſharp and terrible Inſtrument) ſhould be laid to every Unfruitful Tree? And did not the Apoſtles Preach to the Pricking of the Hearts of Thouſands; and Paul by Name, that Felix himſelf trembled? And all, as knowing the Terrors of the Lord themſelves, they warn'd others? Wherefore Judgment is ſaid to have begun at the Houſe of God. Finally, Did not the Devils Howl, Roar, and Tremble, foreſeeing they ſhould be diſlodg'd by One Stronger than themſelves, Chriſt, the Son of the Living God? And was there no Terror, Dread and Amazement in all this? I perceive it may be a Virtue in the Primitive Chriſtians, but a Vice in the Quakers, at leaſt in J. Faldo's Account.

But this know, O impartial People, the Quakers were overtaken by the mighty Hand of God, and great were their Travels and Pangs of Sorrow, under the Righteous Terrors of the Lord, whoſe Hour of Juſt Judgments was come; and being thereby made Witneſſes of his Handy Work, and redeem'd through Judgment, they became Miniſters of Judgment unto others; and the Terror of it ſtruck Thouſands; the Devils trembled, and all Fleſh (at leaſt in ſome) was as Graſs, and the Beauty of their Carnal, Outſide Religion, but as the Flower of the Field; which, in the Name of the Lord we teſtify, fell, and wither'd before the Brightneſs of his Appearance to us; who put on Strength like a Giant that was to run his Race, and girded himſelf with Power; and who was able to ſtand before him? The Hills melted at his Preſence, and the Mountains fled before him into the Sea.

And art thou given up, J. Faldo, to call Light, Darkneſs; and Darkneſs, Light; the Terrors of God, the Poſſeſſions of Satan; and Remorſe of Conſcience, Hell broke Looſe? O Unhappy Man! The Lord will reckon with thee for this Blaſphemous phemous Impiety: And this I ſay to thee, and all thy Aſſociates, That Eternal Miſery will be the End of you, for all your ſweet Notions of Religion, unleſs you obtain Mercy through the Fire; the fiery Judgments of the Lord revealed in your Conſciences. For that End is Chriſt now, as formerly, manifeſted, that Judgment might be laid to the Line, and Righteouſneſs to the Plummet in all: And becauſe we earneſtly contend for the Inward Work of Chriſt, as the moſt Beneficial to Mankind, therefore it is that you Prieſts have us in Hatred, Scorn, and Deriſion, all the Day long; and indeed, we are grievouſly wronged by your Wickedneſs and Cruelty; But the Lord is our Strength, of whom therefore ſhould we be afraid? And why do you Rage, and imagine a Vain Thing concerning us?

§. 7. Now for the Time when Chriſtianity and Quakeriſm came (as he is pleas'd to diſtinguiſh them) Pag. 13. 14, 15. Some, ſays he, date Chriſtianity from the Birth of Chriſt. Others, With much more Reaſon, from the Reſurrection of Chriſt, witneſs that Place, All Power is given unto me in Heaven and in Earth.

The Conſequence of this Aſſertion is thus much, That Chriſt taught not Chriſtianity; That his Diſciples who believed in him, were but a better Kind of Carnal Jews: That Chriſt's Life, Doctrine and Miracles, were not perform'd under a State of Chriſtianity; That he had not all Power before his Reſurrection, contrary to the Scripture. In ſhort, That Chriſt and Chriſtianity did not go together; and if you will, That Chriſt was not Chriſt, but a Good Extraordinary Jew, before his Reſurrection; for I am ſure his Notion of the Beginning of Chriſtianity, warrants the Conſequence. O the Orthodoxality of this Whiffling-Prieſt, Buſy-Body, and Conceited enough.

Well, but this is not all, we have Contradiction to add to his Burden; Chriſtianity made its's Way by many Signs and Wonders wrought before Multitudes, and that not only by Chriſt himſelf, but alſo by his Diſciples and Servants, Both Before, And After His Death. If this be not Giving and Taking, Granting and Denying, there is no ſuch Thing in the World: For here is Chriſtianity before Chriſt's Death, and yet with much more Reaſon, here is a Denial of that Aſſertion, and Affirming that it took it's Riſe after His Reſurrection. Truly, we need not much fear the Conſequence of ſuch Encounters, when our Adverſary puts Weapons into our Hands to his own Shame and Overthrow.

§. 8. But that he may be farther kind to us, he proceeds, The Diſciples were called Chriſtians at Antioch, Acts 11. 26. But the Thing Chriſtian, might well be before the Name Chriſtian. Enough for us, ſober Reader, to defend our Firſt Chapter (but a woful Contradiction to himſelf) where we ſay, that what was call'd Chriſt, was before the Name, and ſomething of the Excellent Nature of Truth, Purity, Holineſs, which leads to Salvation, &c. which the Word Chriſtianity with us imports at large (unleſs they ſhould be excluded as any Parts thereof, which ſuppoſeth a Chriſtianity Deſtitute of Truth, Purity, Holineſs, &c. like that of this Age) though in no Appearance ſo clear, as in that, in which Chriſt viſibly manifeſted himſelf.

§. 9. But upon Peter's Words, If any Man ſuffer as a Chriſtian, let him not be aſhamed, 1. Pet. 4. He obſerves, here Chriſtianity is diſtinguiſht both from Judaiſm and Heatheniſm. Both the Gentiles and the Jews were bitter Enemies to the Chriſtian Name; and that not for the Name, but the Thing's Sake.

This muſt either regard the Apoſtate Jew and Gentile, and ſo we cloſe; or the Jew and Gentile upon their Inward Knowledge of God, and Obedience to Him; and here we recede, and muſt deny his Aſſertion (nay, it would be a Contradiction to that Juſtice, Purity, and Worth he allows them to have had, ſince it were to ſay, that ſuch Qualifications could be Ignorant of Chriſtianity, the Perfection of them) for the Good among them became Diſciples, at leaſt Lovers of the Chriſtian Religion, then not Haters of either Name or Thing: For where among Jews or Gentiles, their Hearts were Upright to God, according to that Diſcovery he made of himſelf to them, and that they kept to the Divine Senſe and Reliſh which they had of the Love, Purity, Juſtice, Mercy, Goodneſs, and Recompence of God (for ſuch as in any Age could come to God, did firſt know that God was, and that He was a Rewarder of all thoſe that did draw nigh unto Him, to obtain which Knowledge, God had manifeſted it in Man; for he had ſhewn it there unto him) I ſay, thoſe who ſo retained the Senſe of God in their Knowledge, were not aggriev'd, Chriſtianity ſhould take Place; for they meaſuring Things as they inwardly felt them, were proper Judges of God's Riſing and Breaking forth among the Sons of Men; they could feel Him leading out of, and beyond the Uſe of thoſe Elements which were once added becauſe of Weakneſs, and now became Beggarly by a brighter Glory: An inward Senſe being that they kept to, as the more ſure Word, as they felt a with-drawing of the Divine Life, Power, Spirit, out of thoſe inferiour Inſtitutions, they followed it, not ſtaying in any outward Diſpenſation, becauſe God had been there, if he had once left it: But ſuch as were Literal, Formal, Exact, Critical, they were the Perſons, who having leaſt of the Divine Sight and Senſe of God's Goings among the Sons of Men, they contended for God's Exterior Appointments; as that they were ſignally given; Good Men had practiſed them, and are we Wiſer then our Fathers? No, we will have our Reaſons (indeed Darkneſs) ſatisfied in the Matter. Behold the Phariſee and Greek of Old, to whom Chriſt's outward Appearance was to the one a Stumbling Block, and to the other Fooliſhneſs; and the many-headed Profeſſor now, who eſteems no better of his Spiritual Manifeſtation in the Hearts of the Children of Men. O! What will the End be, of the Gaudy, Obſtinate Hypocrites of this Age, who reſiſt ſo great Salvation? Tribulation and Anguiſh for ever, unleſs they Repent; for what Men Sow, that ſhall they Reap; and, who have improved their Talent, ſhall enter into the Joy of their Lord.

§. 10. Well, But when came this Quakeriſm into the World? He tells us, (Pag. 15. 16, 17.) about the Year 1651. quoting E. B's Epiſtle before G. F's Great Myſtery; alſo a ſmall Treatiſe writ by J. Whitehead, and J. Pennington; from whence he infers, That Quakeriſm is a late Diſpenſation, therefore not that of Chriſtianity. But certainly this Man hath taken a very quick Courſe to Unchriſtian himſelf and all the Presbyterians, Independents, and Anabaptiſts in the World, as well as the Quakers. For I would aſk him, if there was not a Time ſince the Primitive Age, wherein Darkneſs had overſpread the Earth, the Beaſt did Reign, and the Pure Religion was wholly Wilderneſt? If ſo, conſequently the Reſurrection of Truth is no more a New Diſpenſation, or not that of Chriſtianity, than a Man that is exiled his Country, is not eſſentially the ſame Man, when he returns, that he was before. And ſo far is my Argument for thoſe Separatiſts, that though I take them to be ſhort of the True Evangelical Faith and Righteouſneſs, yet I acknowledge them to have a Reformation unknown in that thick Apoſtacy, which had cover'd the World, and eclipſt the Bleſſed Light of the Glorious Goſpel that ſhin'd in the firſt Ages after Chriſt: But ſince we are of another Religion by his Account, than the Chriſtian, becauſe we cannot ſay, that we were always ſucceſſively from the Apoſtle's Time, I will argue, that the Presbyterians, Independents, and Anabaptiſts, are not Chriſtians, nor is what they profeſs, to be eſteem'd Chriſtianity, becauſe they cannot prove a Regular Succeſſion from the Apoſtle's Times, their Date alſo being of later Years. What will they ſay then? The Church was fled into the Wilderneſs; Truth exil'd; God as a Stranger in the Earth; yet Truth ſtill the ſame in it ſelf. Very well, ſo ſay we: God was pleas'd to renew the Right Chriſtian Diſpenſation to us, and by us, according to John's Viſion, That the Everlaſting Goſpel was preacht again, intimating, That there had been a Time wherein it was not preacht. If this be not a New Goſpel, becauſe a-new, or again, preacht, neither is that which J. Faldo calls Quakeriſm, a New Diſpenſation, becauſe it is Preaching a-new the Everlaſting Goſpel to the Sons of Men; which is God's Power inwardly manifeſted for the Conviction, Converſion, Redemption, and Salvation of the Souls of ſuch as believe it.

§. 11. And tho' he particularly ſeems to triumph over Iſaac Pennington's diſtinguiſhing between the Diſpenſation of Moſes, Chriſt, and His Apoſtles, and This of our Day, as if they had been Three ſeveral Diſpenſations, and conſequently, if Chriſt's was not that of Moſes, becauſe it ſwallow'd it up; neither this the Diſpenſation of Chriſt, which J. Pennington ſaith, it ſwallows up; yet to me it ſeems a pitiful Catch; and ſhows, he knows not how to take Things with that Candor they are writ. J. P. means not a Diſtinct Adminiſtration in Kind, but Diſpenſation of one and the ſame Light, Life, and Power by Nature, at ſeveral Times, and ſundry Manners to the World: Chriſt was before the Law, under the Law, with the Prophets, but never ſo revealed as in that Holy Manhood; will it therefore follow, he was not Antecedent to that Appearance, or He, that appeared then more Glorioully, had never ſhown himſelf before? Or, becauſe of a Difference in Manifeſtation, therefore not the ſame HE (through all thoſe ſeveral Manifeſtations) in Himſelf? Certainly this Man is very Unjuſt to J. P. eſpecially, when the Words above quoted, that ſpeak of a Diſpenſation he experienced a little before God broke forth by us called Quakers, could have informed him, that he meant the divers Breakings forth of God's Light and Truth, in order to the full Diſcovery, and Recovery of Loſt Primitive Chriſtianity. So that this preſent Appearance ſwallowing up all going before it (had he ſo term'd it, as he doth not, and is therefore wrong'd) is no more than God's Retrieving to us the Ancient Goſpel, with additional Bleſſings and Aſſiſtances, giving us the ſame Life and Foundation they had, and what elſe He pleaſed by Way of Improvement; which alters not the Nature, no more than a Child in Chriſt is not that Numerical Creature, but another Diſtinct Being, when a Man. And if this Account of Things will not ſatisfie him, he may chuſe: I have thus far cleared the TRUTH, and thoſe who ſincerely profeſs it, and therein my own Conſcience, both to God and the World.

CHAP. III.

Chap. III.

J. Faldo's Charge. That the Scriptures are not the Word of God, Reaſons for it. The Scriptures by him urg'd againſt us, clear'd, and prov'd to be for us. They are the Words of the Word, a Declaration of the Great Law, Word, or Commandment, but not that Law, Word, or Commandment.

§. 1. THIS Chapter will concern the Scriptures more directly, in which we hope to prove, that not we, but our Adverſary, is miſtaken with reſpect to what he chargeth upon us.

§. 2. (Pag. 18. 19, 20.) He intitles his Chapter thus: That the Quakers Deny the Scriptures.

I was almoſt aſtoniſht at it, becauſe he pretended to prove all out of our own Books, and none ſuch had ever yet come to my Hand: But upon my ſober Peruſal of the Matter, I found this to be the Upſhot, That the Quakers Deny them to be the Word of God; therefore they deny them altogether: Whence I take good Heart to ſhow his Ignorance, or great Diſhoneſty.

§. 3. I will allow to him, without going any farther, that the People called Quakers, do deny the Scriptures to be the Word of God, and therefore ſhall take for granted, what he quotes out of J. N. F. Howgil, J. Parnel, and W. Smith. But that we do conſequently deny the Scriptures, we ſhall oppoſe, we hope, to the Death.

§. 4. I do declare to the whole World, that We believe the Scriptures to contain a Declaration of the Mind and Will of God, in and to thoſe Ages in which they were written, being given forth by the Holy Ghoſt, moving in the Hearts of Holy Men of God; That they ought alſo to be Believed, Read, and Fulfill'd in our Day, being Uſeful for Reproof and Inſtruction, that the Man of God may be perfect: And that they have been, and are Inſtrumental to great Good upon the Spirits of People, by the ſecret Power of God, which often ſtrikes, and preſſeth home to the very Conſcience, the weighty Truths declar'd therein; yet We do deny them to be the Word of God, aſcribing that alone to Chriſt Himſelf, and that not without Scripture and Reaſon.

§. 5. Firſt, It is granted on all Hands, that CHRIST is expreſly called in Scripture The Word of GOD, but no where, that the Scriptures are ſo ſtiled.

Secondly, That tho' I ſhould allow it to be a Figurative Expreſſion, and therefore ſays our Adverſary, improper, yet becauſe a Word among Men, conveys the Mind of one unto another, and that Chriſt is the Great Word of God, that in all Ages hath convey'd, or ſpoken the Mind of God unto Mankind (and ſo the Author of all Good Works) He only may by Way of Right and Excellency, be ſo ſtil'd of us.

Thirdly, I ſhall eaſily grant to him, that one Word may ſtand Repreſentative of many; and that the Ten Words were not Ten Numerical Words, becauſe each Word contained many: Yet this I will ſay, that Word in Scripture is taken for Commandment, and they have an equivalent Signification, as in Deuteronomy may be ſeen. And ſince that was the Import of the Ten Words, to wit, Ten Commandments, each Word has it's own Commandment; Therefore it is no more againſt us, to allow thoſe Ten Words, to be more than Ten Words, than Ten Commandments, to have more than Ten Words.

And whatever our Adverſaries may ſay, or think of us, we therefore decline to call the Scriptures the Word of God, becauſe we believe it to be a Title only due to that Living, Quickning Word, by which God vouchſafes to diſcloſe His Mind and Will unto Mankind, Chriſt, the Way to the Father.

§. 6. But ſays our Adverſary to this Argument, The Word was God, therefore the Scriptures cannot be the Word, becauſe they are not God: Let me tell you, that the Scripture may be the Word, and Chriſt the Word alſo; and yet though Chriſt be the

the Word of God, the Scriptures the Word may be quite another Thing. Certain I am, this is quite another Thing than good Doctrine: How can the Scriptures be the Word of God, and Chriſt the Word of God too? Are there two Diſtinct Words of God, the one quite another Thing from the other? O ſhameful Arguing! If he had ſaid, Chriſt is the Word of God, and the Scriptures a Word of God, he would have hit the Mark a little better: But to aſſert Two General Comprehenſive Words of God, ſounds harſh and inconſiſtent. I would fain know, in Caſe we ſhould admit this abſurd Aſſertion, how he would diſtinguiſh between theſe Two General Comprehenſive Words? For my Part; I think it as good Senſe, to call a King's Letters, King; or an Ambaſſador's Credential's Ambaſſador. O no, ſays our Adverſary, you miſtake; Chriſt is called a Light, a Rock, a Lyon, will it thence follow, that there are no other Lights, Rocks, or Lyons. I anſwer, There is no other Light, Rock or Lyon than Chriſt, with reſpect to That for which He is ſo called; Neither is there any other Word than Chriſt, with reſpect to that for which he is ſo ſtyl'd, to wit, God's Living, Powerful Word: And this decides the Controverſy, and plainly adjudges us the Matter againſt the utmoſt Force of our Adverſary, to the Contrary: For if he is therefore a Light, becauſe he only can, and doth diſcover the unfruitful Works of Darkneſs; a Rock, becauſe whoever build on him, is ſafe; and a Lyon, becauſe the King of all, whoſe Utterings are able to terrify all Deſtruction from his Walks, but what he brings upon his Adverſaries, and therefore there is not another Light to inlighten Man's Soul, or Rock for Chriſt's Church to be built on, neither any other Lyon to ſecure them from the Devourer: conſequently, becauſe he is the Living, Spiritual, Powerful Word of God, there is not another, that's the Word of God.

§. 7. But he farther ſays, That the Word of God is ſo expreſt in Scripture, as it muſt needs be underſtood not of Chriſt, but the Scriptures. He that regardeth not the Word of the Lord. He that feared the Word of the Lord. Stand thou ſtill a While, that I may ſhew thee the Word of God, the Sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God. And the Cares of the World — choak the Word, and it becometh Unfruitful, Mark 4. 19. which, ſaith he, cannot be underſtood of Chriſt or God, and that a little Skill in the Original would free us from thoſe Miſtakes, and to that Purpoſe.

To which I anſwer, That the Word of the Lord mention'd in Exodus and Samuel are properly to be underſtood of the Living, Spiritual Word of God, which ſpoke to the People through thoſe Servants of the Lord; For who received or rejected the Mind of that Word, expreſt in many Words, received the Word, and it had a Place in their Hearts; or elſe rejected it, and it had no Place in them: This makes nothing againſt us in the leaſt. For that Paſſage in the Epheſians, Beza, whom he quotes, I ſuppoſe as embracing his Judgment, has determin'd the Matter; for he has it, the Spiritual Sword. Then let us read the Word thus, The Spiritual Sword is the Word of God, or The Word of God is the Spiritual Sword. For Chriſt is as truly a Sword, an Axe, a Fire, which the Word of God is called, as a Lyon, a Rock, a Door. And for the laſt Paſſage of Mark, which ſeems to carry moſt of Weight in it for our Adverſary, it may rightly be underſtood of that Truth, which Chriſt, the Word, livingly ſows in the Hearts of Men and Women, the Word of Advice, Reproof, Instruction, and the like: But of the Scriptures it cannot be underſtood, as neither can any of the other Places.

For Firſt, Thoſe two Paſſages in Exodus and Samuel concern only particular Caſes, at a Time, when not a third Part of the Scriptures were written, as our Adverſary will confeſs. And for that in the Epheſians, 'tis manifeſt that the Scriptures, which are ſubject to ſo many Caſualties as they are, are not the Spiritual Sword, or Sword of the Spirit, therefore not the Word of God, whoſe Edge never blunts; For as is the Spirit, ſuch is the Sword, and ſuch the Word, to wit, Living, Spiritual, Powerful, which the Scriptures of themſelves (I think; all will, or ſhould acknowledge) are not. I will not ſtick to confeſs alſo, that a Word of Advice, a Word of Counſel, a Word of Reproof, and a Word of Comfort lodge in the Scripture; or the Scriptures, with Reſpect to the Times, wherein they were given forth, (and now daily, as brought Home to the Conſcience by the One Word of God, who gave them firſt forth) are Words of Truth, Knowledge, Wiſdom, Love, Reproof, Exhortation, Edification, &c. yet never can we be brought to attribute unto the Declaration that Title, which is peculiarly due to Him, whoſe Declaration it is. A Prince may expreſs his Mind in Words, but thoſe Words are not that Prince; neither can any one of his Titles, as a living Prince, be properly given to his ſaid Declaration. Nor have we any other Way to diſtinguiſh between the Word and Words, Commandment and Commandments, the Thing It ſelf, and thoſe Expreſſions by which it doth declare it ſelf, than the Word of God, and the Words of the Word, which are the Words of God, or Holy Writings: Holy with Reſpect to the Matter or Truth they treat of.

§. 8. But here J. Faldo ſteps in, and ſeems to offer an Expedient in this Streight; Says he, Though you ſay they are not the Word of God eminently, and I believe ſo too; for the Scriptures cannot be the Word of God in that Senſe wherein Chriſt is, yet you may call them the Written Word of God, for ſo we diſtinguiſh them.

Truly, this ſeems pretty modeſt, though here we muſt part too, unleſs he will come a little nearer; For neither can the Word of God properly be ſaid to be written: The Words by which the Mind or Will of the Word is expreſt, may be recorded, and, as ſuch, a True Declaration; but it is as impoſſible for the Word of God to be written, as it would be for a Prince, or Senate to be written, or contained in Letters, though their Will and Pleaſure may be largely declared by a Writing; becauſe it would be to ſay, that the Word of God could grow Old, Decay, be Loſt, Miſ-rendred, Corrupted, Tranſcribed, Re-printed, Corrected, and be Subjected to Fire, Water, Vermin, &c. which were impoſſible. So would it be an abſolute Derogation from the Dignity peculiarly Due to the Living Word of God, to give that which is it's proper Title to any Thing beneath it's Living, Powerful, Quickning Self. He has a Scripture or two for us; I have written to him the great Things of my Law; A ſharp Rebuke, ſays he, to the Objectors againſt the Written Word of God, but I don't ſee it for my Share. The great Things of the Law, Word, or Commandment, which are required, may be written, but that doth not follow, that the Eternal Law, Word, or Commandment Requiring, is a written Law, Word, or Commandment, but the Contrary; And for Moſes's Writings, of which Chriſt ſpoke, 'tis manifeſt, they were not called the Word of God, but the Word of God himſelf called them Writings. p. 33.

§. 9. But J. Faldo objects on t'other Hand, that he much feareth, the Scriptures will loſe of their Authority with People, in caſe they ſhould not be ſo acknowledged; and at laſt he falls ſo downright upon us, that he boldly, but weakly concludes, who deny the Scriptures to be the Word of God, deny them in every Reſpect: For who denies them that Title, denies what they have been generally known by, diſtinguiſht from, and lifted up above all other Writings; and that Appellation, on which is grounded their Authority, and which puts an Awe upon the Conſciences of Men. How weak and vain this is, I could freely leave to the Reader, without any farther Conſideration; But that it might not be thought by any therefore Unanſwerable, I will ſay, That to call them the Words of God, and declared Mind and Will of God to Mankind, is no ſuch Diminutive Title, but altogether Worthy of them.

§. 10. If we do deny to them what has been wrongly attributed, that no Ways leſſens their Authority, but corrects the Miſtake of thoſe who thought of them beyond what they really are; It is a poor begging of the Queſtion, to ſay, We deny them, that which many have aſcrib'd to them. Their Authority is grounded upon the Living Word of God, and who comes to that, Honours the Scripture aright; and who err from the Holy Conduct of it, their Verbal Praiſes of the Scripture, are but like the Phariſees Painting the Prophets Sepulchres, whilſt they were Perſecutors of One greater than the Prophets: And who knows not, how much the Shell hath had aſcrib'd unto it the Honour, only due to it's Subſtance, by thoſe Watchmen of the Night, whoſe Dark Minds could ſee no farther?

§. 11. And for the Awe they have upon Men, this is my Judgment, and I am not aſham'd of it, that attributing ſo much to the Letter of the Scriptures, and declining that Regard Men ought to have had unto the Holy Living Word of God, that alone creates all Things New, and was the Author of, and Rule to thoſe ſound Words themſelves, hath robbed the Living Word of God of it's True and Rightful Honour, and rendred Men's Hearts more formal, and leſs Awful than they would otherwiſe have been; So that the only Way for People to come to a True Sight of, Sincere Reſpect for, and Grounded Belief in the Holy Scriptures, is, to be turned to the Voice of the Living, Powerful Word of God, from whom they came, which is nigh unto every one, to direct, and order, and Diſcipline to, and in that Way of Holineſs, they teſtify of, and which leads to Eternal Happineſs.

CHAP.

CHAP. IV.

His Charge. What he quotes proves it not. Revelation, Infallibility, and Inſpiration conſidered. The Prieſt prov'd uncertain of his own Faith. Our Friends debaſe not the Scriptures, but lift them up. His Objection againſt our Books Titles anſwer'd. The Uſe of Scripture aſſerted. The Light vindicated from Inſufficiency. Something of the True Light.

§. 1. THIS Fourth and next Chapter to be examined, endeavours to prove, That we equal our Writings and Sayings to the Scriptures, and prefer them before the Scriptures.

In this Undertaking, he muſt either prove, what he aſſerts, from our own Writings expreſly, or Conſequentially. To run through every Quotation he makes, would be as Tedious, as Impertinent; But a few of what make moſt to his Purpoſe, I will faithfully obſerve with his Inferences.

§. 2. He begins with a Book, intituled, Love to the Loſt; (and ſo will I) The Things following which I have declared of, are not the Things of Man, nor by Man did I receive them, but by the Revelation of Jeſus Chriſt: W. Dewſberry thus, The Word of the Lord to his Beloved City, through your Brother and Companion in the Tribulation and Kingdom of Patience in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt.

Now what to ſay here in their Defence, when he lays nothing to their Charge, but what hath been generally expreſt, I know not; Certain it is, that No Man knows the Father but the Son, and Him to whom the Son Reveals him. The Inſpiration of the Almighty giveth Underſtanding; and, No Man can know the Things of God but by the Spirit of God. Well may we conclude then, that J. Faldo knows God no better than I do Terra Incognita; for he denies all Knowledge of him by any Internal Diſcoveries: What he knows, is by Man, and from Man.

What Offence, or Undervalue, I would fain know, can it be to the Scriptures, that Men ſhould know God that only Way, by which they teſtify, God can be known of Men? Or, Why ſhould he be angry at this Author, for Confeſſing to have known God that very Way, by which the Scriptures declare him only to be known? But indeed, it happens ill to the Prieſt, for all this is to prove too, that We deny the Scriptures, though hereby we fulfil them.

§. 3. For W. D's Words, they are alſo firm; for God promiſed the Re-pouring out of his Spirit, and the Re-preaching of his Everlaſting Goſpel: And ſince the Queſtion is not, whether we have it; but, whether it be an Invalidating the Scriptures, for any, under the Plentiful Pourings out of the Spirit, and Power of God, to ſay, This is the Word of the Lord; I ſay, it is firm, that ſo ſaying may therefore be in the Latter as well as Former Days allowable, and no Detraction at all from the Scriptures: And for the Concluſion of his Epiſtle, it is what every good Chriſtian Man can ſay. What Folly, what Impudence is it in J. Faldo, to make that an Equaling our Writings to Scripture, or Preferring them before it, which both his own Tribe (I am able to make appear) hath frequently uſed, though by them irreproveably? And which indeed is the Condition of every good Chriſtian-Man, namely, to be a Brother, and Companion to the Children and Family of God, in the Tribulation and Kingdom of Patience in the Lord Jeſus. Well! If this Man's manifeſt Weakneſs make not for our Cauſe, I ſhould very greatly wonder.

§. 4. And therefore, ſays he, Pennington prays ſeriouſly, My Upright Deſire to the Lord for you is — That he would ſtrip you of your Knowledge of the Scriptures, according to the Fleſh; By Fleſh, ſays he, their Senſe is, the Uſe of our Underſtandings (though Sanctified) as will appear in the Key, &c.

But this Expreſſion ſerves for a Notable Key to open his Ignorance and Diſhoneſty: His Ignorance is evident in Reputing it a Slight of the Scriptures, to deſire that Men might be ſtript of their Fleſhly Knowledge of them. I do affirm it to be both Seaſonable and Serious; and did not J. Faldo ſtand upon a tottering Baſis, he would not ſo declaim againſt us for Undermining it. But let all behold his Diſhoneſty, to ſay, that we deſire to be ſtript of the Knowledge of the Scriptures after our Sanctified Underſtanding, and that Fleſh which can never inherit the Kingdom of God, to wit, the Carnal, Dead, Dark, Unregenerated Underſtanding to be all one. O Diſingenuous Man! Art thou fit to be a Goſpel-Miniſter, who haſt not learnt to do as thou wouldſt be done by? I leave it with the Conſcience of the Reader, Reader, how juſtly or unjuſtly thou haſt dealt with us in this Matter, and what all or any of it concerns the Scriptures; For if Men will not underſtand them as they are, is it the Fault of the Scriptures? No, ſurely; ſhall then Iſaac Penington's Deſire, that they might be ſtript of their wrong Knowledge of thoſe weighty and holy Writings, be interpreted a Diſreſpect to them, and a preferring our own Writings before them, which ſo heartily ſeeks their Right Knowledge of them? If this be the Way to prove Quakeriſm no Chriſtianity, we need not much fear the Iſſue of his Attempt.

§. 5. But he proceeds to prove our Equaling of the Scriptures two Ways: Firſt, From our pretending to Infallibility. Secondly, Our Plea for the Neceſſity of Inſpiration. He quotes G. Whitehead's Letter to him, Whether Infallibility be attainable by any in theſe Days? Which we affirm, is to true Believers; which if thou denieſt, we queſtion thy Call. Of Inſpiration he cites J. Story's ſhort Diſcovery thus, Therefore may I ſay, much more, it is not in the Power of that little Book, either to throw down Self-will in any, in whom it is not yet ſubdued, or to exalt the Truth in general, becauſe it is only Queries gather'd by the Author from the Letter of the Scriptures without, and no Meſſage of Heavenly Propheſy, Doctrine or Exhortation receiv'd by the Author from the Lord through the Divine Inſpiration of his Light and Spirit within; Therefore I ſay, It is a very Vain and Idolatrous Exhortation. To all which ſober Matter I have no other Anſwer from him, than that the Quakers Writings are full to this Purpoſe. Indeed I am glad of it, or we had little Reaſon to ſuffer what we do for our Diſſent from the Carnal Profeſſors of Religion in the World: But I have this to ſay to him; He that doth not infallibly know what he knows of God or Religion, knows nothing certainly, which concerns either. Now if Men cannot attain to any ſuch Certainty, Farewel all Religion; For, That a Man ſhould affirm, and not know whereof; That he ſhould profeſs God and Religion, yet be uncertain of both: But that J. Faldo ſhould Preach of both, and profeſs himſelf Errable in all ſuch Doctrine; Who ought to believe him? Why ſpends he his Breath at a Venture? Rather let him eat, drink, for to Morrow he ſhall Dye; for Death is certain. This is your Independent, Fallible, Errable, Uncertain J. Faldo, Preacher to a People at Barnet, and, God knows, a Lamentable one too. What Reaſon have any to Believe him againſt Us, who is Uncertain of the Truth of what he ſays againſt us, by his own Principle?

§. 6. For Inſpiration, the Scriptures are not more expreſs in any one Thing. No Man can know the Things of God by the bare Spirit of a Man: But, the Spirit of a Man, or a Man diſtinctly conſidered from the Inſpiration of the Almighty, can read Scripture, and form Queries, and call them Chriſtian too; yet, who will dare affirm this Man's Queries to be Chriſtian? Can they beat down Self-will? They may talk of it, or exalt the Living Truth, that came not from it. This is the Scope of J. Story's Anſwer to the Queſtioner; For, what is this but Stealing the Prophets and Apoſtles Words, when they are made Uſe of out of that Senſe in which they were given forth, and to another End, than that for which they were given forth, which proves to us, that the Senſe, and not the Words, ſhews the End of their being ſo given forth. The Scriptures are a Sealed Book to all, but thoſe who know them by the ſame Hand, which Originally gave them. So that however common they may be in the World, they are Strangers to them that underſtand them not: And though Old, reſpecting the Time, when they were revealed to the Saints, yet New to every Age; ſo that we aſſert not a Revelation of new Things, but renewed Revelation of thoſe Things God made former Ages Witneſſes of; otherwiſe Men are no more benefited by them; And to be benefited, they muſt be made ours by the Spirit, which made them the Holy Ancients.

§. 7. In ſhort, No Man can underſtand Spiritual Things, but the Spiritually Diſcerning; None can ſo be without the Inſpiration of the Almighty, or Spirit of God. This is Scripture. Now the Author of thoſe Queries, and J. Faldo alſo, denying Inſpiration, they conſequently deny themſelves to be Spiritually Diſcerning; and for Men not Spiritual, to Judge of Religious and Spiritual Matters, much leſs to write of them, and bid their Writings go, and throw down Self-will, and exalt the Truth, is Vain and Idolatrous; For, the Scriptures themſelves, conſider'd meerly as ſuch, are unable, much leſs Writings founded on the Authority of Self-will; for it is the alone Privilege of God's Power and Spirit, and no Writing whatever, diſtinct from it, can perform that Great and Mighty Work in Man.

Chap. IV.

§. 8. And, for Equaling our Writings with the Scriptures, becauſe we aſſert Inſpiration, and that what we have received, and do declare of the Things of God, is from the Revelation of his Spirit in our Hearts, it is a fooliſh Inference: Truth was and is Truth all the World over, and there was and is but one Way to come to it in all Ages, I mean Inſpiration. The Scriptures are True, and our Writings are True; but will it therefore follow, that we bring them upon a Vie? Is this your Diſputant? But to determine this Caſe, He ſhould firſt have prov'd, if he could, what Power God gave to the Ancients, and what to Us. How much of his Spirit to thoſe Ages, and what to this; or elſe he loſeth himſelf. If he can Experimentally tell, what were their Diſcoveries and Experiences, and what are Ours, he would be a proper Judge: But to think to run us down by Exalting them, or to leſſen what we are, by Increaſing their Praiſe, is an Old Artifice of the Devil; and Sober Men will be more true to themſelves, and juſt to the Matter, than ſo to cenſure us. Cannot one Man be another Man's Brother, and not the Elder Brother? Doth it follow, that becauſe God has made what we know our own, by his Holy Inſpirations and Operations, that therefore we put our ſelves upon the Compariſon with the Ancients? If true Chriſtianity fill up, or add to Chriſt's Sufferings, yet behind, why ſhould their Writings be ſhuffled out of all Relation to the Scriptures? There may be a Relation, where there is not an Equality, much leſs a Preference, and that we do aſſert againſt all Oppoſers.

§. 9. But now let us ſee what he ſays of our ſetting the Scriptures beneath our own Writings; and I will take his own Way to do it.

The Characters of the Scriptures, given by the Quakers, as ſays J. Faldo.	Characters of their own Teachers Writings, and Sayings, given by them.
Feeding Death with Death. The Letter which Killeth. [Declar. from the Miniſt. of the Word, p. 7.]	The Voice of the Son of God was utter'd forth by him, by which the Dead was rais'd. [F. H. Life of E. B. p. 20.]
Seeking the Living among the Dead [J. Parn. Shield.]	His Words Miniſtred Grace to the Hearers [Fox jun. Life E. B.] A Miſtake, for he dy'd before E. B.

Reconciled: Death is a State without the Living Experimental Knowledge of God, and his Work in the Heart; And that State will talk of the Fame of Wiſdom, as ſaith the Scripture, and that from the Scripture, that is, from, or in the Words of Scripture, being Ignorant of the true Senſe of the Scripture, thinking there to have Life; which Literal Knowledge it feeds upon, and contents it ſelf with, where Nations have lain Apoſtatized from the Life of God, and Power of Godlineſs. The Letter Killeth, that is, the Literal Knowledge (or rather their Imaginations from the Letter, not being Divinely Inſpir'd, ſo as to underſtand it) by which Men buoy and lift up themſelves as Chriſtians in the World, and yet are Strangers to the inward ſenſible Work of God: And it does Kill the Soul, with reſpect to that true Life the Spirit and Power of God begets in all right Chriſtians, through whom the Voice of the Son of God has, does, and will utter it ſelf, to the Ends of the Earth, for the Raiſing the Dead in Treſpaſſes and Sins, as that worthy Servant of God did, who is now with his Lord. This diſreputes not the Scriptures, but thoſe who make a wrong Uſe of them; nor is there any Compariſon betwixt Reading what God's Spirit requires, and immediate Hearing his Voice, and being ſenſible of his preſent living Touches upon the Soul: Writings are but Holy Things at ſecond Hand; a Living Miniſtry is the very Life, Power and Spirit preſent, and more immediate. In ſhort, the Teſtimony of F. H. we prefer not before the Teſtimony Luke gives of Holy Stephen. We prefer the Scriptures before all Writings, but before God's immediate Power we dare not.

Paper, Ink, and Writing the ſame, pag. 7.	A Shield of the Truth, [Title J. F's Book.]

Reconcil. What's this to the Purpoſe? We ſay that the Scriptures, or the Writings, not the Things written of (mark that) are Paper, Ink and Writing, which was ſpoken abſtractively, and upon a Compariſon of them with the Word of God (that was with God, and was, and is God over all, bleſſed for ever) Doth any Man think, that we believe greater Things of J. Parnel's Book? By no Means, He call'd not his Book, conſiſting of ſo much Writing, Ink, and Paper, a Shield of Truth; but that of which it treated, was the Truth, and with reſpect to the Controverſial Part of it, as it was writ in Defence of the Truth, it might be term'd a Shield; in which Senſe the Scriptures by him urged, have the upperhand of his Writing, by whoſe greater Authority with Men, he abets and maintains the Doctrine contended for.

Shews you (I ſuppoſe the Light) your own Faces, which the Scriptures cannot do [Scorned Quak. Account, p. 20.]	A Spiritual Glaſs opened [Smith's Catech. &c. & Morn. Watch.]

Reconcil. This can be no way hard to reconcile; For, when we ſay, the Scriptures cannot ſhow Men at all Times, and in all States, their Conditions, but the Secret In-ſhining Light of God alone, we are not ſo unworthy as to intend, that any Book of ours can; No, but with Reſpect to that Principle which it directs to, and is able to tell a Man All that ever he did, The only Spiritual Glaſs, and which the beſt of Writings fall ſhort of.

Precepts and Traditions of Men [Morn. Watch, p. 18.]	Truth's Principles [Title of Crook's Book.]

Reconcil. It is deny'd that ever any ſuch Words were ever ſpoken, or written of the Holy Scriptures, as Precepts and Traditions of Men; for they contain the Holy Precepts and Traditions of the Word of God, who is God himſelf; it is baſe and unworthy, thus to mince and miſ-repreſent our Writings. For Truth's Principles ſignifies no more, than the Declaration of what we believe, as the very Beginning of the Book expreſly proves.

That Light is in the Scriptures, prove that; or tell me what one Scripture hath Light in it [Lip of Truth, p. 7.]	Light riſen out of Darkneſs. Title of Farnſworth's Book.

Reconcil. There is not Light in the Scriptures, that is, there is not Living, Spiritual, Eſſential Light in the Scriptures, or by Way of Excellency; but a deſcriptive and declarative Light they carry with them of the true Light, the Author of thoſe excellent Things therein mentioned; In which Senſe alone do we underſtand Richard Farnſworth's Title. God having cauſed his Light to ſpring out of Darkneſs, and he being then the Witneſs of it, teſtified to the Truth thereof, by a Declaration to the World of what he knew in the Matter. He did not ſay, That Book was that Light; for ſo it had never been before him that writ it, and the Writings of it; and what Caſualties the Book was, or is liable to, would fall upon the Light, though he bears Record to an Everlaſting Spiritual Light, that ſhines Within, where his Book cannot be. But rather, that he knew and witneſſed the Viſitation of the Day-ſpring of God's Eternal Light of Life to the World, he writ his Book, to give Notice thereof, calling it by that Name, becauſe his Subject treated on, doth manifeſtly import ſo much; not that the Book was that Holy and Eternal Light.

§. 10. Let it ſuffice to all impartial People, that we only deſire to make Difference betwixt the Writings, and the Thing written of; and to the Eternal Overthrow of our Adverſaries (not wholly without their own Help) ſince they think, the Titles we give our Books (very Glorious in themſelves) moſt unworthy of them, but proper to the Scriptures, which they ſay, we ſlight. Let it be conſider'd that not one of thoſe Books is deſtitute of Scripture; but is either generally in a Scripture Stile, or particularly defended by Plenty of expreſs Scriptures cited; therefore of Neceſſity, they, the Scriptures, muſt alſo partake with them in Common of thoſe famous Titles: And thus far have they the Preference, that they are quoted on Purpoſe, to give the Truth we write of, greater Credit; what is that greater Credit, but to be exactly agreeable with themſelves? So that our Adverſaries Argument amounts to thus much; They therefore prefer their own Writings before the Scriptures, becauſe they in all their Writings earneſtly endeavour by numerous Quotations to prove, what they write, to be according to the Scriptures. Behold Reader, der, how at one blow we fall! The whole Chapter of this Fallible, Errable, Uncertain, Buſie Prieſt, with reſpect to his Charge of our preferring our own Writings before the Scriptures.

§. 11. But there remain two Things to be conſidered before we cloſe this Chapter. Firſt, his untrue Inferences; Secondly, his baſe Compariſon of us with the Papiſts, with Deſign to render us Odious to all that abominate their Idolatry.

Firſt, That the Scriptures both are, and ever were Superfluous; for, the Light within (as they pretend) was always fitted to Inſpire every Man and Woman in the ſame Manner, and to all Intents aud Purpoſes, as they were inſpired, and written.

Which, how juſt and true it is, we do reſerve the Examination of to God's Witneſs in the Conſcience of the Reader. Only, thus much I will ſay; that tho' all Ability was, and is in Him, whom we declare to be the Light of all Mankind, to Reveal the whole Mind of God, yet, inaſmuch as very few in all Ages were ſo reſigned up to the Holy Conduct of it, as they ought to have been, the Lord hath put it into the Hearts of Many, to ſtir up the Negligent and Slothful, by a Reminding them with that Counſel, in outward Writings or other Verbal Teſtimonies, which they had long ſlighted in themſelves, that it might Inſtrumentally work upon them unfeigned Repentance and Converſion to God. Therefore went God's Meſſengers forth, Line upon Line, and Precept upon Precept; here a little, and there a little; But this I affirm, and that in the Name of the Lord, againſt the uttermoſt Strength of this Buſie Prieſt, that, had thoſe Prodigals in all Ages lived up to that Meaſure of Divine Light (the Talent God gave to every Individual) there had not been any ſuch need for thoſe Meſſages: Wherefore the Occaſion of them was not for want of any ſufficient Gift from God, but becauſe of their own Rebellion. Nay, they were the Teſtimonies of the very Light of Chriſt (in the Prophets and Apoſtles, who were Heirs and Children of Light) which they gave forth at divers Times in their ſeveral Ages, as God pleaſed to move upon their Spirits with reſpect to Mankind; ſo that ſtill it was the Light within, which ſo reproved and exhorted. But, ſuppoſe that the World had not been ſo Rebellious, neither will it follow, but that a ſlow-Improvement of the Heavenly Gift, might have occaſioned many Divine Exhortations; yea, the Exerciſes of Men's Spirits, as David's for Inſtance, in reference to the Spiritual Travel, might for the Benefit of others have been written. Let us ſuppoſe the higheſt State of Deliverance, and Praiſe, Men are capable of arriving at in this World; yet Epiſtles of Divine Love, Experience, heavenly Praiſes, &c. might have been tranſmitted from Church to Church, as of the Flock and Family of God. Therefore I utterly deny, that the Perfection of Light's Teachings make the Scriptures ſuperfluous, much leſs the general beſt Attainments that have been, and now are in the World.

§. 12. But that any Man, ſo conceited of his Abilities, as J. Faldo, ſhould ſo baſely miſtake Reaſon, and abuſe his Reader, as to infer from the Ability of the Light in It ſelf, whether obey'd, or not obey'd, the Uſeleſneſs of the Scriptures, or Teſtimonies of Holy Men to the World, is Ground for juſt Cenſure and ſevere Rebuke; for it were to ſay, that becauſe a Maſter is of himſelf able enough, therefore all Books are ſuperfluous. The Scripture don't argue the Inſufficiency of the Light, ſince ſo, the Inſtrument would riſe againſt it's Principal; but the Inſufficiency of the Creature, in which Condition Line upon Line, and Precept upon Precept may, by the Light within good Men, be given forth to invite and encourag- Man to yield Obedience to the Conviction of the Light within every ſuch Rebellious Perſon; in which the Love of God is marvellouſly expreſſed, who by his Holy Light within, and it's Teſtimonies without, endeavours the Conviction and Reformation of the Children of Men.

§. 13. But hear him in his ſecond and laſt Inference; upon the ſame Ground, the Tenets and Aſſertions of all the Heathens are to be received as of equal Authority with the Scriptures; for they reſulted from their Light Within, improved much more orderly and to the Purpoſe than the Quakers do theirs. Yea, the bitter Scoffs of Lucian, and Julian the Apoſtate muſt be admitted into the ſame Order, for if it be admitted, they did not Viliſie, and Scorn, and Deride the Scripture and Chriſtianity, according to the Dictates of their Conſciences; it cannot be denied, that they therein acted from the Power within, which whether it were the Power of Darkneſs, or not, the Quakers having no Rule to judge it by, but their own Sentiments, it is left by them undetermined; And I know not hardly any Worſe they ſaid of Jeſus of Nazareth, the Scripture, and Chriſtianity, than the Quakers have done under other Names.

This Paſſage Impertinent enough to the Purpoſe, and as Black as Hell it ſelf in Malice againſt that deſpiſed Remnant of People called Quakers, by God's Aſſiſtance, I will effectually anſwer, to the ſhame of this ungodly Slanderer.

The Gentiles Light was one in Nature with that, which the Evangeliſt ſaith, enlightneth all Men (a Text, whoſe Plainneſs and Expreſſneſs yields that Advantage to us, againſt the utmoſt Force of all our Adverſaries, which they are Angry at, but can never Invalidate) I ſay, one in Nature with that Divine Being; and as ſuch, tranſcending all Writings whatever: Yet that the Gentiles had that Light in a more excellent Degree, than that in which the Prophets and Apoſtles enjoyed it, whence came thoſe excellent Writings, I utterly deny, and that in the Name of all true Quakers. I ſay again, that, though the leaſt Meaſure of Pure Light it ſelf, is to be preferred before all the Writings in the World, as meer Writings; yet that it may not be comparable to that Degree and farther Diſcovery of Light, which was witneſſed by thoſe who gave forth thoſe Writings, I grant: So that to bring the Sayings and the Aſſertions of the Heathens upon an Equality with the Writings of the Holy Prophets and Apoſtles, we dare not aſſent to; but vehemently oppoſe any ſuch Inference made to be the Product of our Belief. For though, as I ſaid before, any meaſure of Light it ſelf is beyond the moſt excellent meer Writings of a far greater; yet the Writings or Sayings given forth by that leſſer Appearance, are not to be brought into Compariſon with thoſe of a greater Diſcovery, no more than the Degrees of Diſcovery, or Manifeſtation of the Light it ſelf. This the Apoſtle Paul practiſed; who, notwithſtanding that he rightly knew that Adminiſtration to ſuperſede, and tranſcend what went before, ſtuck not to remind the Heathens of their own Authors, as Aratus, Menander, &c. by an apt Application of them to this Purpoſe, in Defence of his Doctrine. And if Thoſe who became a Law unto themſelves, Doing the Things contained in the Law, were to be preferred before the Circumciſion, who kept not the Law, and that, who lived without Law outward——yet according to Law inward, ſhould be judged by Law inward, which was ſubſtantially the ſame (as teſtifies the Apoſtle) with what was required by the Law outward; Then their Law within Subſtantially conſider'd, did not fall ſhort of that Law without, nor they who kept it of the Circumciſion themſelves; which moſt clearly overturns that Ignorant or Malicious Cavil, to wit, that the Quakers have no Mean by which to judge of the Ground of Wrong and Right Actions; For if the Scriptures be that only Judge, then there could have been no Knowledge of right or wrong Actions, Spirits or Powers, before they were given forth: Which becauſe the Patriarchs, and Gentiles had an evident Sight and true Senſe of, by that Internal Law of Light in the Heart and Conſcience, without Scripture, it follows, that the Quakers owning the ſame Light, and that, in a more eminent Diſcovery, cannot be guilty of ſuch an Ignorance.

§. 14. But a little farther to inſpect his Argument: If the having no Outward Rule was to be without all Rule, whereby to Try a Right from a Wrong Power; I would gladly know, how the Prophets themſelves were aſſured of the Truth of their Motions, being without any outward Touch-Stone; and by what Means the Apoſtles knew, that the Spirit or Power which acted them to reject and decry the whole Service of the Jews, which God had ſo peculiarly Inſtituted (Circumciſion for Inſtance, that was given for a Sign FOR EVER) was the right Spirit or Power? I aſk, Was it the Scripture without, or the Son of God, otherwiſe called the Light or Word of God, revealed in them? But I will yet proceed; Suppoſe any Man who is call'd an Independent, and owns the Scripture to be that which J. Faldo reputes them, ſhould pretend a Viſion of very ſtrange and unwonted Things, ſhould imitate a Trance, and perſonate ſome Extraordinary Inſpired Perſon, by what Place of Scripture would J. Faldo aſſure himſelf or others, of the Sincerity or Impoſture of ſuch a Perſon? His Rationals being otherwiſe Sound; his Life Sober, and his Pretences no way anti-Scriptural? O Weak Man! Is thy Religion without a ſecret Light, Life, Power, Virtue, Sight or Reliſh of the Root and Ground of Things; or rather doſt thou conclude, that all Mankind, however Chriſtian, are left Deſtitute of any Inward Power to Try or Diſcern Spirits, becauſe it is thine own State of Darkneſs? I affirm to thee and all the World, that in this Caſe, no outward Mean whatſoever decides the Matter, or clears the Doubt; only the inviſible Light, Power or Spirit of God: Yea, and that in far leſs Caſes too.

1673. Chap. IV.

In which Senſe chiefly, it is the Diſpenſation of the Goſpel, ſo call'd, and juſtly preferr'd before all other.

And this I leave with him; that nothing can judge of the Root and Ground of Evil, but the Root and Ground of Good. The Works of Evil, the Scriptures tell us, are abominable; But the Queſtion is, How do I know, what they declare to be Evil, is ſo? What works the Conviction in me? And where an Evil Spirit brings it ſelf not forth into thoſe Works, what ſhall diſcern him, except it be the Good Spirit? It is the Power of God within, that cruſheth the Power of the Devil within. The Scriptures without Reprove his Works without; But ſince the Things contained in the Scriptures were ſuch in themſelves, and true, and experienc'd before they were written: Will it not follow, that the inward Power was both a ſufficient Judge, and their Author too, and conſequently Greater.

§. 15. But above all, the Impudence of his Wickedneſs; both to charge the Impiety of Julian and Lucian upon the Light within, by placing them in the ſame Order with the beſt of Heathens, and Quakers, walking up to the Light within; and to affirm, for all that the Quakers have to judge to the contrary, they acted by a Divine Power; Ranking the Quakers Faith in Chriſt, upon an Equality in Evil, with their horrid Blaſphemies. The Top of all Uncharitableneſs, and a very Lye; for this is to ſay, That the beſt and worſt of Heathens were all alike: That they wanting Scriptures, could not rightly diſcern the Difference between the Bad and Good; that thoſe who live up to that Light (As he cannot deny the Quakers to do in a great Meaſure) are but in Julian the Apoſtate, and ſcoffing Lucian's Rank; In ſhort, that the Quakers Believing in one God; that he has Enlightned all Men; that he has Striven by his Light and Spirit in the Conſciences of Men through all Ages, and by it, in the Hearts and Mouths of his Prophets; and above all, by that bleſſed Appearance of Chriſt Jeſus, who Tabernacl'd among Men in that Body prepared for that purpoſe; who therein preach'd the Heavenly Kingdom within; wrought Miracles; laid down his Life for the World, roſe again, and aſcended to the Father; leading Captivity captive, and gave Gifts for Men; that who believes in him, and takes up his Croſs, ſhall be his Diſciple, and preſevering, have Everlaſting Life: That the Quaker's Faith, (I ſay) in this Solemn and Conſcientious Manner, upon which they Place the Eternal Happineſs of their Souls, ſhould ſcarcely be a Jot better, than the Apoſtacy of Julian, and the Impiety of Lucian; and but only ſerve, to render us as Great Deſpiſers and Contemners of Chriſt and all his Religion, as they were. O ſtrange Compariſon! Well, they tell us of a Book coming out of our Hard Sayings to our Oppoſers; But match this, impartial Reader! But however the Devil blinds and hardens this J. Faldo; ſure I am, the Devil himſelf knows better. What ſhall I ſay? Truly nothing more; but leave it with the Righteous God of Heaven and Earth, to plead our Cauſe in the Hearts of all People, and avenge himſelf upon his Adverſaries, to whom Vengeance belongs.

§. 16. For his Compariſon of us with the Papiſts, we little heed it. He tells the World, the Papiſts own Revelation (which he proves at large) and the Quakers hold Revelation alſo; Therefore the Quakers are Papiſts, or very near them, as his Story, indeed an arrant Lye (either in him or the Papiſt) will inform us; where he ſays, (Pag. 55.) That a Papiſt upon being aſkt, which of all Sects in England approach'd them moſt? Replied, The Quakers. How near we are to the Papiſts, in Faith, Worſhip, and Diſcipline, ſhall be left to them that know, and have ſeen more than this Conceited Prieſt. But Argumentum ad hominem. Thus, the Papiſts own a God, and a Trinity of Perſons, &c. and J. Faldo owns a God, and a Trinity of Perſons alſo; therefore J. Faldo is a Papiſt, or very near a-Kin to one. Would this be Juſt? If not, neither is his Concluſion of Force againſt us. What is Truth, is not diſcommendable, where-ever, and by whomſoever held. It is high Weakneſs to exclaim againſt True Chriſtians, for holding any Truth in common with the very Turks, and much more condemnable to conclude them Turks. But we muſt be run down if they can, and therefore no Matter what Ugly Skin they caſt over us, ſo the Dogs will but faſten. The Lord God plead our Cauſe on Earth.

CHAP. V.

The Charge Stated, not Proved. The Scriptures not the Moſt Excellent, or Only General Rule. God may ſpeak by Inſtruments. The Inſtruments not the Rule, but that which uſeth them. That the Scriptures being Obligatory, does not conclude it the General Rule under the Goſpel. The Diſingenuity of our Adverſary, in citing the Apoſtle's Words, Reprehended. The Scriptures no Judge in that Senſe wherein they are not the General Rule. The Scriptures confeſt to.

§. 1. HIS Fifth Chapter deſigns to Prove, That we Deny the Scriptures to be a Rule of Faith, and Judge of Controverſies; (Pag. 65, 66.) And that he may ſufficiently prejudice his Reader againſt us, and our Moſt Holy Faith, he not only tells him, that to deny them to be the Word of God, is a good Reaſon, why he ſhould conclude us to deny them to be a Rule (though at the ſame Time, it manifeſtly ſhows, that we would acknowledge them to be ſuch, were they the Word of God, and that therefore the Word of God is our Rule) but he ſuggeſts, that we believe a Conformity to their Guidance, cannot render a Prophane Man leſs Prophane. To prove this, he quotes James Parnel thus: And he alſo that ſaith, The Letter is the Rule and Guide of the People of God, is without, feeding upon the Huſks, and is ignorant of the True Light, which was before the Letter was. Shield of Truth, pag. 10.

William Smith thus: And if thou lookeſt upon the Scripture to be for a Rule, and for Trying, thou giveſt that unto them, which is due unto Chriſt; for He is the Rule, and leads His People; and He alone ſearches the Hearts, and tries the Reins, and not the Scripture. Again, But if you will ſee a Mouth full of Blaſphemies againſt the Authority of the Scripture, read with Horror and Amazement, the following Words. God is at Liberty to ſpeak to His People by them, if he pleaſe, and where they are given by Inſpiration, he doth ſo; but ſays J. Faldo, The Sting is behind, and in the Tail of this Non-ſuch Sentence: And ſo He is at Liberty to ſpeak by any other created Thing, as to Balaam by his Aſs. Naylor's Light of Chriſt, &c. pag. 19.

In Anſwer to all which, he ſays juſt nothing; but thinks it is enough to have cited theſe Paſſages, and ſeems to triumph, as Reaſonably, as the Man which dreamt he did Eat, but Awake and Hungry, delighteth himſelf in his Sleeping Feaſt. Let us try to rouſe him out of this Lethargy of Ignorance and Conceit.

§. 2. I ſhall freely confeſs, that for the ſame Reaſons, that we deny the Scriptures to be the Word of God, we cannot own them as the General Rule of Faith. But alſo, as we acknowledge them to be the Words of the Holy, Living, and Powerful Word of God; ſo that they expreſs and declare unto us many Holy Rules for Godlineſs: And I declare in the Name of all the Right-Born Quakers in the World, That we utterly reject all ſuch, as Deny the Scriptures to be Profitable for Reprehenſion, Inſtruction, Exhortation, and Edification. How Vain then is this Man's Impeachment of us, as Perſons void of all True Reſpect for them?

§. 3. In ſhort, as the Scriptures are not the Word of God, but a Declaration of the Word of God, ſo the Scriptures are not the General Rule, but a Declaration of the True General Rule; which I prove thus.

That which always was, and is a more General Rule than the Scriptures, muſt needs be, and is moſt properly The General Rule, and not the Scriptures; but that was, and is the Light of God in the Hearts of Men; conſequently not the Scriptures, but the Light was, and is moſt properly, The General Rule. The Middle Propoſition only to be accepted againſt is clear, in that before the Scriptures were writ, and ſince, where they have not been known, Men have been, and are Convinc'd, Reprov'd, Inclined, Taught, Order'd and Ruled by the inward Appearance of God's Light in the Conſcience. And among thoſe who are called Chriſtians, let them be juſt to God and their own Souls, and they muſt confeſs, that there is ſomething very near them, when the Scriptures are quite remote, both from their Perſons, and their Thoughts, which upon any Miſcarriage is a ſwift Witneſs, to ſmite: And upon the Approach of Temptation is as quick to warn, and diſſwade the Mind from falling into the Foulneſs of it. Is not this then more Living, Immediate and General, that neither Sea nor Land, Day nor Night, nor any Condition, but a Seared Conſcience, can exempt People, or deliver them from the Secret, Living, and Senſible Touches of this Holy Witneſs, whether they be to Counſel, Juſtifie, or Condemn?

demn? This ſearcheth the Heart, this tryeth the Reins; of which David ſaid, It had made him Wiſer than his Teachers, who read and expounded the outward Law unto him.

§. 4. And indeed, it is unworthy of the Excellency of the Adminiſtration of Life it ſelf, more Glorious than that of Condemnation, the State of the Law, that an outward Book, though Declaratory of never ſo much Good, and not the Good it ſelf, ſhould be the Sole General Rule of ſuch as are under it. What is it, but to ſubject the Spirituality of the Goſpel to the Letter of the Law? And thus much worſe, that then they had either the Daily Living Voice of God, or a Law Engraven on Stone, whilſt the Scriptures, which they call the preſent Goſpel Rule, are but on Paper. But can any True Chriſtian think, that God is ſo wanting to his Promiſe, who promiſed to Write a Law in the Hearts of his People, as to bound them by meer Literal Preſcripts? No ſurely, but much rather, that the Law of the Spirit of Life in Chriſt Jeſus, which he promiſed to write in the Hearts of Men and Women, ſhould be the Rule of this Adminiſtration, which is a Living, Powerful Rule, preſent upon all Occaſions, and in all Straights, and ready to aſſiſt with Counſel, Wiſdom, and Knowledge, all who act agreeably to the Mind of God, who will reward every Man according to his Works: So that J. Parnel, and W. S. their Expreſſions are clear'd. For J. N's, the Laſt of the Three, it was not written in Deriſion of Scripture, as is unworthily ſuggeſted; but to prove, that God is not limited to Inſtruments. God, whoſe Holy Spirit is the Living, Subſtantial Rule, may appear after divers Manners, either by bringing into the very Conſcience the Truth of ſome weighty Paſſage in the Scripture, or by a Miniſtry, or any other Way; yea, by Balaam's Aſs to Balaam, and that without Blaſphemy or Prophaneneſs; For by whom, or what, may not the Almighty direct the Sons of Men? Still it was not ſo mean a Creature as an Aſs (which God ſpoke by, to aggravate the Stupidity of Balaam, and Greaten the Miracle) No; Nor the Apoſtles themſelves, much leſs their Writings; But the Word of the Lord, that was as a Fire, to the Workers of Iniquity, and Sanctification, and Reconciliation to them that believe it. That was the True Rule; wherefore ſaid the Prophet, Hear the Word of the Lord. What Word? That, nigh in the Heart, which Moſes and Paul Preach'd. Still the outward Inſtrument is not the Rule; the Prophet is not the Rule; the Apoſtle is not the Rule, much leſs are their Writings, ſeeing they are all but External Inſtruments: And this I will abide by, againſt all the Inſtruments of our Enemies by God's Aſſiſtance, both that they are but ſuch Inſtruments, and that ſuch Inſtruments are not the Goſpel-Rule, but that Light, Life, Power or Spirit, which uſeth them. And who attributes that Honour to the Inſtrument, which is due to the Chief Mover in it, or by it, commits down-right Idolatry; therefore what is flung upon the Quakers by their Adverſaries, is more juſtly chargeable upon their Adverſaries. But we cannot help it, if that People will not work through the Outward to the Inward; the Writings or Perſons, to the Light, Life, and Power, that employ them for any Uſe or Service in the World! Nor ſhall we ever be condemned of God, that we therefore decline to attribute thoſe Titles to the Scriptures (otherwiſe worthy above all Books) which are only due to that which gave them forth; eſpecially, ſince what we believe in the Matter, is with an Holy Fear and Reverence towards our God, and Good-Will towards all Men.

§. 5. But he objects, (Pag. 68, 59, 70, 71.) (1.) That what is therein affirmed by the Lord, we ought to believe; proved from Chriſt's Words, O Fools, and ſlow of Heart, to believe all that the Prophets have ſpoken! Luke 24. 25. (2.) That what is thereby commanded (not being repeal'd by the Coming of Chriſt) it is our Duty to obey, Deut. 5. 34. (3.) That the Holy Scriptures do in their Kind determine, or diſcover to us, whether we believe and walk, or practice aright or not, proved hence; All Scripture is given by Inſpiration of God, and is profitable for Doctrine, for Reproof, for Correction, for Inſtruction in Righteouſneſs, that the Man of God may be Perfect, throughly furniſhed unto all Good Works; and herein [all Things which are written in the Law and the Prophets] do I exerciſe my ſelf to have a Conſcience void of Offence. 2 Tim. 3. 16, 17. Acts 24. 16.

To all which I ſay, we do with him acknowledge, that, whatever the Lord hath by his Prophets and Apoſtles, who writ the Scripture, affirmed, and required (taking in his Exception about Chriſt's Coming) it is our Duty both to Believe and Obey; ſo that there is no Difficulty in that Matter. For the laſt Paſſage, there is ſome ſober Scruple in our Minds about it; for there are manifeſt Conteſts in the World, both about Faith and Practice. They reſult not from the Scriptures, I grant; but that they proceed from Men's wrong Apprehenſions of Scripture in a great Meaſure, that I affirm; and I know no Man ſo ſtupid, as to deny. Now, I would fain know, which Way thoſe wrong Apprehenſions are to be rectified: He ſays, By Scripture. I ſay, Not; for the Key is wanting. What is that Key, may ſome ſay? The Spirit of Truth, who gave them forth. Who can explain any Man's Mind ſo well as himſelf, in a Matter, wherein he is not rightly underſtood; or it is hard to underſtand him? And if none but what is endued with Reaſon, is capable of underſtanding a Rational Propoſition, neither can any Man whatever underſtand Spiritual Propoſitions, or Propoſitions about Spiritual Matters in the Scriptures, but by the Illumination of the Holy Spirit in ſome Degree or other. This is ſo clear, that the Sun is not more obvious at Noon-Day, in a clear Sky, than this muſt be to all Diſcerning Minds; ſo that the Scriptures, though profeſſedly own'd by us to be Inſtrumental to the Knowledge of that Doctrine of Reproof and Inſtruction in Righteouſneſs (weightily mention'd by the Apoſtle Paul, (for certainly they do declare to us very excellent Precepts and Rules) yet, they are ſo far from being THE General and Abſolute Rule, that the very Light or Spirit of Chriſt is, and ought to be our Rule, how far, which Way, and to what End, we are to believe and practiſe them. And I cannot forbear at this Time (though I have done ſo) to ſhew the horrible Perverſion of Scripture, this Man is guilty of in the laſt of theſe Two Scriptures, by him quoted for Proof of the Third Head. The Apoſtle in his Defence againſt the Publick Orator of the Jews, tells the Governour then preſent, among other Paſſages, that though he was no Diſturber, as accuſed; yet, ſaid he, I confeſs, that after the Way which they call Hereſie, do I worſhip the God of my Fathers, Believing all Things which are written in the Law and the Prophets, and have Hope towards God, which they themſelves alſo allow, that there ſhall be a Reſurrection of the Dead, both of the Juſt and the Unjuſt.

§. 6. Now brings in J. Faldo theſe Words [all Things which are written in the Law and the Prophets] do I exerciſe my ſelf to have a Conſcience void of Offence towards God and toward Men. I do ſay, this is a Perverſion of Scripture; for he hath Firſt, left out that which is more applicable to the Words, and put that only in, which is leaſt ſo: And Next, he has done it in the ſame Character, by which common Readers may be miſtakenly ſtrengthned againſt us; this is plain: And for the former, I affirm, that it could not be ſo proper in the Apoſtle to ſay, He was exerciſed in his Belief of the Law and the Prophets, as in that Way of Worſhip, they call'd Hereſie, and his Hope of a Reſurrection; both left out by our Adverſary. Nor is ſuch an Uſe of his Words ſuitable to the Condition Paul was in: For he having out-ſtript both the Law and Prophets, and being brought to a Brighter Day, and more Excellent Diſpenſation, he cannot be ſo rightly ſaid to have been exerciſed in that he had left behind him, as in the Work of his own Day, which fulfill'd and ſwallow'd up the other Diſpenſations, as but Fore-runners of it; which was but that Spiritual Worſhip Chriſt ſet up, and he worſhipp'd the God of his Fathers in, and endeavour'd to gather others to, though they reputed it Hereſie, and that Hope of the Reſurrection of both Juſt and Unjuſt, which they themſelves pretended to own. What then could be Paul's Meaning in that Confeſſion to the Law and Prophets? I anſwer, what is ours to the World, before whom we ſtand charg'd by the Profeſſors Tertullus, J. Faldo, at this Day; namely, that though he preach'd a farther Glory, and they therefore accuſed him of Undervaluing the Law and the Prophets, becoming an Heretick, Seducer, and what not; as this Man doth us: He then (as we are now) made his Defence, confeſt to the Law and the Prophets, yet teſtified to a more Spiritual Worſhip, but unto which they prophetically tended. Whence we obſerve (1.) The greateſt Enemies to the Spirituality of that Evangelical Diſpenſation, were the greateſt Profeſſors of a Literal Religion, the only ſeeming Admirers of the Scriptures, and earneſt Contenders for the Faith and Religion once delivered to the Fathers, at leaſt as they pretended. (2.) That they were wont to account ſuch as were eminent Promoters of the Goſpel, Contemners, at leaſt Slighters of the Law and the Prophets. What need I ſay any more: Behold a Parallel, as plain as Light it ſelf; The Literal Jews then, the Literal Chriſtians now; the Spiritual Jews then, the Spiritual Chriſtians now.

§. 7. But one Paſſage more. (Pag. 71.) The Holy Scriptures determine according to their Kind, or as much as a WRITING can do, whether we believe or practiſe aright or not; For, ſays he, Thoſe who come under the Executive Determination of Laws, do find, that Proceſs in Writing doth not loſe it's Force, for the Decrees and Sentences being put into that Form.

Chap. V.

To his Aſſertion, and the Inſtance he brings to prove it, I will return this Anſwer.

To ſay the Scriptures determine as far as a WRITING CAN, does our Adverſaries Buſineſs, I mean, for us; ſince it manifeſtly implies, That it is no ſo determinative of all Caſes, as ſome Thing elſe may be, which is a more Living, Immediate and Infallible Judge than a WRITING is, or can be; and we will grant, that the Scriptures do determine, as much as any Writing in the World can do, unleſs God would pleaſe immediately, and more fully, to Reveal ſomething, leſs clearly laid down in the Scriptures, and then ſhould require that Revelation to be written, for Men muſt have a Care of limiting either his Power or Will. If J. Faldo had at the Beginning of his Oppoſition to the Quaker's Belief in the Scriptures, well conſider'd this, I am of Opinion, that either he would have never given himſelf and us the Trouble of ſo much needleſs Diſcourſe, or have been ſo careful of his Cauſe, as never to have wounded it with this fatal Blow, that the Scriptures can determine as far as a Writing will go: Nothing to the Queſtion at all, which lyes here, Whether any the beſt Writing, or the Spirit of Truth, that gave it forth, is Judge; and as far from his Purpoſe, as quite loſing of his Cauſe amounts to. Again,

§. 8. His Inſtance about the Law is lame, for the Good Laws of any Land, are but Reaſon written, or rather declared by Writing, which is obliging againſt the Corruption of a Judge, but not the Reaſon of the Judge. Neither is the Law the Judge, but there is a Judge, who interprets, and ſpeaks from the freſh Diſcoveries of his own Reaſon, the Meaning and Intendment of thoſe written Laws. If the Laws be ſufficient without a Judge, why is there a Judge? If then they are Dark, Obſcure, and Doubtful in many Caſes, ſo as to need a Judge and Interpreter, which I call Living and Immediate Reaſon, then ſince the Scriptures are Writings, in which are many Things very difficult to be underſtood, it follows, that there muſt be an immediate Living Judge; which muſt be therefore the Spirit of Truth that gave them forth; becauſe, None knows the Things of God, ſave the Spirit of God; and that thoſe who are the Makers of Laws, are the only Perſons who are fit to to judge and determine in Caſe of Difficulty, by a Declaration of their Mind or Intention in any ſuch obſcure Paſſage. So that if J. Faldo ſhould write a Thouſand Years againſt the Quakers, he would never be able to weather this one Paſſage, in which he has moſt evidently ſubjected the Scriptures to a more Living, Spiritual, and Immediate Judge, then any meer Writing poſſibly can be, which he makes them but to be.

§. 9. In ſhort, either the Scriptures are not obſcure (a Thing we daily ſee) or if ſo, yet ſufficient, which is impoſſible, or they muſt have a Judge, which is moſt True and Neceſſary; and what Judge, but the Spirit of Truth, which leads into all Truth? And ſo far are Decrees from determining, becauſe written, that they are therefore Determinative of Controverſie, becauſe of that Conviction, the Power from whence they came, works upon the Conſcience. So that, though what is True in it ſelf, is not the leſs ſo, becauſe written; yet is not the Writing (ſubject to an hundred Caſualties) nor Matter therein declared, as there, eminently the Rule, much leſs the Judge, after our Adverſaries Notion of a Judge; but that Living, Powerful Spirit, which gave it forth, and who are made Spiritual Men by it: For the Spiritual Man judges all Things. Such Writings may be Declaratory of the Mind and Determination of the Living Rule or Judge, I grant; but alſo I utterly deny, that the Writings themſelves are that Rule, how People are to believe them; and a Judge, how to determine of the Difficulties and Obſcurities within themſelves. A meer begging of the Queſtion, and a Thing altogether abſurd.

We cannot end this Chapter without an Acknowledgment of the Goodneſs of God, in opening Things ſo clearly, to the making known His Divine Light and Truth, and manifeſtly diſcovering the Great Darkneſs and Blindneſs of it's Oppoſers.

Chap. VI.

CHAP. VI.

We deny the Charge. His Proof, no Proof; but againſt himſelf. We own, Believe, and deſire to Obey the Scriptures; they afford Comfort, and are as Lights in the World; but not that True Light. The Light and Spirit Superior to them.

§. 1. THE next Charge he brings againſt us, is a Conſequence of his already miſtaken Judgment, and untrue Aſſertions concerning us, viz. (pag. 78.) That we take People off from Reading the Scriptures, and Looking into them for Inſtruction ſtruction and Comfort; to prove which, as he thinks (for none elſe can, that is not either as deeply ignorant of us, or as malicious againſt us, as J. Faldo ſhows himſelf in almoſt every Particular) he brings out W. Smith, ſpeaking thus in his Catechiſm, pag. 95. And this is the Meaning of our Doctrine, to bring People to the Everlaſting Word of God in themſelves. O Ungodly Man! What Evil Spirit hath poſſeſt J. Faldo into this wretched and impious Conſequence? Certainly he is groſly blind, or he has ſinned againſt the Light of his own Conſcience, if he hath Conſcience enough to think it a Sin, which I profeſs, I doubt, when the Malignity, Frothineſs, Envy, and Impious Injuſtice of the Man are ſet before me. For (1.) let any tell me, if it be a Sin, to bring People to the Everlaſting Word of God in themſelves; though he Dirts us not a little for ſo doing. (2.) If we do hereby take Men off from Reading and Looking into the Scriptures, I do affirm againſt this Ungodly Prieſt, and that by Authority from God, the Scriptures, Reaſon, and the firſt Reformers too, that no Man on Earth can underſtand them, but by being firſt brought to the Everlaſting Word of God nigh in the Heart, by which the Lord ſpeaks forth his Will to the Creature; and the Scriptures themſelves direct to this, and never ſaid that of themſelves, ſome Overdoing Prieſts aſſert concerning them; whoſe whole End is this, that by Exalting the Letter, and Excluding the Spirit, they may lock up all Knowledge in their own Arcanum, and plead the Impoſſibility of knowing the Things of God any other Way, than by their Literal Miniſtration; for ſhould Men but be turned to the Certain Witneſs of God in their own Conſciences, there placed of the Lord, their whole Trade, Power and Reputation, would fall, and their Deceits be made manifeſt in the View of the World; which God, the Righteous Judge of Heaven and Earth, is now accompliſhing.

See Calv. Inſt. Eraſ. in Nov. Teſt. 1 Cor. 2. 2 Pet. 1. 19. Bez. ibid.

§. 2. But he ſays, (pag. 79.) That J. Parnel cenſures ſuch that draw People's Minds from the Light within to the Light without, putting the Letter for the Light, Shield of Tr. pag. 10. And what then? Becauſe we ſay, That he who Enlightens all Men, GOD, that is the Sun, and Fountain of all Divine Light, and in whom there is no Darkneſs at all, is Greater than the Scriptures; therefore will it follow, that we take People off from Reading, or Looking in them. Behold your Prieſt, you that hear him! Is this Man to be accounted of as a Miniſter of the Goſpel, that thus unrighteouſly deals with us? But God will recompenſe upon his Head in the Day of his Terrible Vengeance, for all his Hard and Ungodly Sayings againſt us.

We do ſay, and that rightly, Whoever puts the Letter in Oppoſition to, or above the Spirit, is an Idolater; For there can be no Compariſon rightly made between them; the Heavens don't excel the Earth more, than the Spirit does the Letter, and the Power the Form: But if we do not therefore deny the Form of Godlineſs, becauſe we prefer, and preſs more earneſtly the Power; neither do we exclude the Scriptures, becauſe we prefer, and preſs the Everlaſting Word of God nigh in the Heart: And this I will tell him, That, to buſie the Minds of Men with the Depth of thoſe Truths the Scriptures declare of by Reading, and Exerciſing their Minds, in Meditating thereon, before they have been turned unto the Meaſure of the Light, or Grace of God in the Heart, to believe and obey that in it's Secret Diſcoveries, Reproofs and Strivings, is, to ſet Men about Images, to conceive a God, a Chriſt, a Salvation, a Damnation, an Heaven, an Hell; by which the inward Work of God is over-lookt, and they become Rich in Notion, whilſt moſt Barren in Obedience, and of all People that live upon the Earth, the Greateſt Idolaters; becauſe they bow down to their own Imaginations for Real Truths: And this is the State of every Oppoſer to the Sacred Light within, how full ſo ever of the meer Literal Knowledge of the very Scriptures themſelves: For indeed, who knows the New Birth, though the Scriptures declare of it, but who really experience it?

§. 3. But J. Story he thinks, has contributed much to prove his Aſſertion in this Paſſage. And although the Holy Scripture without, and the Saint's Practices are as Lights in the World; yet, far be it from all True Chriſtian Men, ſo to Idolize them, as to ſet them in Eſteem above the Light, which is ſufficient to guide, or to eſteem them equal with the Light and Spirit of God within. J. S's Short Diſcourſe. p. 2. To this he objects, That J. S. confeſſes them to be as Lights, but not a Light, and that our Commendations of that Idol the Light within, are ſuch, that if they were True, he were a ſtark Fool, that would direct his Eyes to the Scripture.

But here the Prieſt fails egregiouſly: For if the Scriptures are as Lights, I cannot ſee how they ſhould be denied to be as in the Nature of a Light; unleſs to acknowledge their Teſtimonies to be as Lights, be to deny them to have any Light at all. Is this the Great Originalian, Linguiſt, Critick, Philoſopher, and what elſe his own Conceit will have him? What is it but to ſay, That Six Burning Candles are Six Lights? But not that they give a Light, either jointly or ſeparately; But 'tis below us to purſue every Advantage his Ignorance gives us: I find him more in Words than Matter, a great Deal, and I ſuppoſe, more are of that Mind, or elſe what means his great Pains to be made Waſte Paper of already? Quakeriſm No Chriſtianity, has exchang'd the Book-Seller's Stalls for the Tobacco-Shops. Poor Man! Perhaps he will write another Book, to complain of the Deadneſs of Profeſſor's Hearts, that they make ſo ill Uſe of the Labours of Painful Miniſters. I am confident, nothing but his Fear of loſing by it, could divert him from ſuch a Lamentation.

But to his Reflection upon the Light, as our Idol; and their Folly, who attend upon the Scriptures, when they have ſo excellent a Light in their own Boſoms; the Subſtance of the reſt of the Chapter, I thus return. God is that Light which hath Enlightned Mankind, and to have the higheſt Reverence for him, and believe in him, can be therefore no Idolatry: And for the Scriptures all grant, that there is a State above them; for I hope, the Man does not think, that People ſhall have Bibles in Heaven, and the more any approach to the Heavenly Life, and Glory, the leſs Need there will be, and yet not the leſs Value of them. But this we alſo ſay, That they are profitable for Inſtruction, and Comfort in this World: And God hath ſpoke, does, and yet will by the Scriptures, ſpeak to the Conſciences of Men: For being given forth by the Spirit of God, they do declare that Reproof, Exhortation, and thoſe Promiſes, which being felt in ſome Senſe of the ſame Divine Light, do adminiſter Knowledge and Refreſhment. But we do alſo and again declare it as our Faith, That the Pouring out of the Spirit, is a Goſpel-Privilege, yea, the very proper and peculiar Promiſe and Bleſſing of the Father in that State; and that, as the Spirit is ſuperior to the Letter, ſo we earneſtly contend not againſt the Scriptures, but for that Living, Experimental Knowledge of them, which all witneſs, who are truly taught and led by the Spirit, and which can't be obtained by any meer Writings whatſoever. Nor does it follow, (p. 81.) that becauſe God has given a ſufficient Light, therefore all other Means ſhould be ſuperfluous. Certain I am, this Argument is fitter for Bedlam, than one who more than once Vaunts himſelf to be a Critick (indeed a Quibler) For what is it but to ſay, that though every Man has Reaſon enough in him to know, that Intemperance is below a very Brute, yet becauſe he is Intemperate, his Reaſon is not ſufficient to inform him better; Or, if it be ſufficient, he ought to deſpiſe another's Admonitions however ſeaſonable, his Reaſon being enough to his Information: Was Nathan of no Uſe to David, who had ſo ſecret, and ſufficient a Teacher? And here I do obſerve, that all our Oppoſers ſplit themſelves, and will for ever, unleſs better inform'd: They ignorantly, or baſely infer a Fallibility, or Inſufficiency to be in the Light, from the Fallibility and Rebellion of thoſe Perſons, who, we ſay, are Lightned by it: And on the contrary Hand, That all ſhould be neceſſarily Infallible, who are Enlightned by an Infallible Light, not conſidering, that neither is the Grace of God Inſufficient to Save, becauſe Men refuſe to be Saved by it; nor, though it be Sufficient, and Infallible in it ſelf, that therefore all thoſe to whom it is tender'd, are ſav'd; or therefore are Infallible, without any Conſideration had to their Obedience. How Falſe? How Injurious? How (almoſt) Unpardonable is this Prieſt then? Who ſeems to charge us with believing, (pag. 81.) That all Power in Heaven and in Earth, is in every Particular Man, becauſe, ſays he, This Light in every One is God, Chriſt, Spirit, &c. For, though we confeſs, that as to every individual Perſon, all the Power, which is required to redeem that Soul from the Pollutions of the World, unto the Pure and Undefiled Religion, is in that Divine Principle, which, with Reſpect to the Great Darkneſs of the World, is very aptly denominated Light, yet that therefore the whole Light and Power of it ſhould be comprehended by, or contained in every individual Soul, I utterly Renounce as no Conſequence of our Doctrine; for that were to ſay, In every Room where the Sun ſhines, there is a diſtinct Sun. Theſe are but ſome of the Prieſts Old Bulbeggars, to ſcare the Simple, and they will at laſt do as much for their Inventors, It ſhall ſuffice us (1.) that though the Light ſhines not alike into all Habitable Places, yet the ſame Light, by Nature, ſhines into all ſuch Places. For Illuſtration only; if a Man has Six Rooms expos'd to the Sun, there may be more Light in ſome one than another, yet not therefore another Sun or Light. (2.) If People refuſe to ſee by it, it implies no Deficiency in the Light, but argues manifeſt Rebellion in the Party. (3.) That, whatever Means it may pleaſe God to uſe, to ſtir up Men to obſerve and obey the Light they withſtand, they ought not to be thought ſuperfluous, or the Light thereof Inſufficient. (4.) That all ſuch Means as can be effectual, proceed from that Divine Principle in others, and with Deſign of turning the Rebellious to the Grace which they reſiſt in themſelves. So notwithſtanding the Quakers do own, and aſſert the Spirit to be Superior to the Scriptures, eſpecially in this Adminiſtration, yet they by no Means deny the Scripture all Service or Benefit, but Believe, it ought to be Read, Believ'd, Honour'd, and Obey'd, as that, by which God has, doth, and may yet reach to the Hearts and Conſciences of People. And to the Righteous Lord God of Heaven and Earth, who is the Searcher of the Hearts of all Men, do we make our Appeal in this Matter, againſt the Unrighteous Dealing of this Traducing Prieſt.

CHAP. VII.

Chap. VII.

Commands upon Conviction to be obey'd. All General Commands Obligatory; Particular Not, but upon Particular Commiſſion. Our Adverſaries Diſingenuity. The Scriptures a Means, by which God may be known; but Not the Principle.

§. 1. THO' indeed we need not concern our ſelves any farther in this Subject, after the Diſpute of his Premiſſes, namely, That becauſe the Quakers Deny the Scriptures to be the Word of God, therefore they Deny them to all Intents and Purpoſes, much leſs, that we ſhould eſteem our ſelves obliged to conſider what remains after ſuch plentiful Confutation, being but Conſequences of the Prieſt's drawing from his own Falſe Aſſertions already enervated; or a miſtaken Underſtanding of ours, plainly diſcover'd, and which indeed ſeems both to reſemble, and follow the Old Way of Two and Twentiethly, Beloved, to ſpin out the Hour-Glaſs, I mean, ſaying over the ſame Things in other Words; yet, that we may remove all Ground of Scruple, I will lay down the ſeveral Charges of the remaining Chapters, concerning the Scriptures, and the beſt Proofs he brings for them, and briefly examine both.

§. 2. (Pag. 87.) The Quakers affirm, the Doctrines, Commands, Promiſes, Holy Examples expreſſed in the Scriptures, as ſuch, not at all to be binding to us. This, ſays he, is a Denying of the Scriptures, and the Authority of the God of the Scriptures. For the Proof of this, he brings out E. Burrough's ſpeaking thus: That is no Command of God to me, what he Commanded to another; neither did any of the Saints which we read of in the Scripture, act by that Command, which was to another, not having the Command to themſelves; I challenge to find an Example to it.

To this I anſwer briefly, and plainly. Edward Burroughs's Expreſſion may be taken Two Ways, and both Safe enough, to the Honour and Credit of the Scriptures, though not to the Charity or Honeſty of J. Faldo. No Command in the Scripture is any farther obliging upon any Man, than as he finds a Conviction upon his Conſcience; otherwiſe Men ſhould be engaged without, if not againſt Conviction; a Thing Unreaſonable in a Man. Therefore the Apoſtle, when he wrote to the Churches, exhorted them, Not to do thoſe Things whereof they were aſhamed, to ſhun what was manifeſted to be Evil; and affirms, That whatever might be known of God, was manifeſted Within; for God had ſhown it unto them. So that Conviction can only oblige to Obedience; and ſince what works that Conviction, is the Manifeſting Light, Univerſal Grace, or Quickning Spirit in the Heart of Mankind, it follows, that the Principal Ground for our Faith in the Scriptures, and Reaſon of our Obedience to the Holy Precepts therein contained, is the Manifeſtation, Conviction, and Secret Drawings of the Light, or Spirit of God in the Conſcience: And thus E. B's Words are Sound and Scriptural; for the Scriptures are chiefly believed to be True upon Conviction, therefore every Practice therein. And when any Man is Convinced, that what was Commanded another, is required of him, then, and not till then, he is rightly authoriz'd to perform it. Again,

§. 3. Such Commands are either relating to Ordinary or Extraordinary Caſes: By Ordinary Caſes, I mean, ſuch as chiefly concern Faith and Holy Life, which are General, Permanent, and Indiſpenſible; and then I deny his Conſequence. By Extraordinary Caſes, I underſtand, Moſes's going to Pharaoh; the Prophets ſeveral Manners of Appearance to the Kings, Prieſts, and People of Iſrael, with other Temporary Commands relating to Outward Services, &c. And ſo we do ſay, that what is Commanded one Man, is not binding, as ſuch, upon another. But when the Lord ſhall ſay, If thou Sinneſt thou ſhalt Dye; If thou keepeſt my Commands, thou ſhalt Live;

Live; Be ye Holy, for I the Lord your God am Holy. Alſo in Caſe of Example, as the Prieſt cites, Whoſe Faith follow, conſidering the End of their Converſation. Leaving us an Example, that we ſhould follow his Steps. For your ſelves know you not, how you ought to follow us. For after this Manner in the Old Time, the Holy Women alſo, who truſted in God, adorn'd themſelves. I ſay, theſe Precepts and Examples are obliging upon all: Why? Becauſe they more or leſs meet with a Conviction in the Conſciences of all: For I am perſwaded, none that have a Reaſonable Soul, who have not out-lived their Day, and on whom the Night is not come, among the Indians themſelves, but would readily ſay, Theſe are True and Weighty Sayings; for Faith in God, and an Holy Self-denying Life, are neceſſary, both to Temporal and Eternal Happineſs. Thus then are we clear from his Ungodly Conſequence, indeed Aſperſion, to wit, That the Quakers affirm the Doctrines, Commands, Promiſes, Holy Examples, expreſſed in Scripture, as ſuch, not to be Binding. But let's hear another of his Conſequences, by Way of Charge, and ſee if he will acquit himſelf better than before.

1 Pet. 2. 21.
Heb. 13. 7.
2 Theſ. 3.

§. 4. (pag. 96, 97.) The (Quakers) deny the Scriptures to be any Means by which we may come to know God, Chriſt, and our ſelves. To prove this, he quotes *W. Smith*s Primmer, p. 2.

" Q. Is there not another Way, by which we may come to know God?

" A. Nay, Child; there is not another Way, for Chriſt is the Way. To which he replies, Chriſt ſaith, I am the Way, no Man can come to the Father, but by me; but he doth not ſay, that there is no Coming to the Knowledge of God but by Chriſt; For, ſome Knowledge of God may be attained, not only without Chriſt, as the Means, but without the Scriptures alſo; Quoting that Paſſage in the firſt of the Romans: For the Inviſible Things of him are clearly ſeen, being underſtood by the Things that are made, &c.

To all which I ſay, (1.) That greater Untruth, Irreverence, and Impertinency could not well have been expreſt, than in his ſaying, That no Man can come to the Father, but by Chriſt, and no Man can come to the Knowledge of God, but by Chriſt, are Two different Things: For it manifeſtly implies, that Men may know God without Chriſt, either inwardly or outwardly, (though no other Name be given) and that to know the Father, was to know ſome other Kind of Being, than to know God: Or, That when they did know the One, they did not know the other. (2.) That it was never denied by any Quaker, that God might, and ſometimes does reach into the the very Heart and Conſcience by the Scriptures: Shall I allow, that a Man may be convinced of his Evil by reading one of our Books; and ſhall I deny it to be as poſſible for any to be Convinced by reading ſome in the Holy Scriptures? God forbid. Neither did William Smith ever mean, that Chriſt was ſo the only Way to the Father, as thereby to exclude all Inſtruments; for thereby he had both cut off all Benefits that could accrue to People by his Books, and alſo from that Miniſtry God had given him to profit others with, which was far from his Thoughts, we may be ſure. So that the great Wickedneſs of this Prieſt is herein manifeſt, without farther Coſt to know him; for he argues from our denying that there is any other Way to the Father, but Chriſt, to our excluding the Scriptures, and conſequently our own Books, and Miniſtry with them, from being any Way Inſtrumental of Good. Reader, what can be ſaid to ſuch a Man; but that he is either Ignorance or Malice it ſelf? I wiſh it were the former, but his Book makes me fear the latter.

§. 5. In ſhort, through all Inſtruments, He, who in Time, and with reſpect to that Manifeſtation, was call'd CHRIST, was, is, and ever will be the Alone Way to the Father. And though he may diſcover himſelf by divers Inſtruments, yet it is but in order to incline Man to his Holy Voice in Man; Some Hear and Obey and Live; Others reſiſt the Grace, grieve the Spirit, turn from the Way of the Light, and are in a State of Death.

God hath been frequently pleaſed to move in the Hearts of the Obedient, to viſit the Rebellious, that the Inward Strivings of the Holy Spirit might be the more Efficacious by it's Strivings, through ſome outward Inſtruments; but ſtill it is the ſame Light, Grace, or Spirit of God; Nor is the Light Within, any Whit the more Inſufficient to reclaim the Rebellious, if minded; for it is the ſame Light with that, which moves in the Hearts of the Obedient to bear Record for God, againſt their Ungodly Deeds. Only Men's Minds being far ſtrayed from that Holy Light, or Word in the Heart, and gone abroad into the wide World of Luſts and Vanities, it hath pleaſed God to viſit Mankind ſo degenerated, by thoſe who have been Obedient Children, to the End they might be the more eaſily gained to a Subjection unto the Holy Light in themſelves: So that all Conviction and Converſion, are to be aſcribed to the Light, Grace, and Spirit of God, whether immediately in the Creature, or mediately by any Inſtrument. Only take this by the Way, that whatſoever is Efficacious mediately, is not to be underſtood ſimply of another Man's Meaſure of Light or Grace, but in Conjunction with what God hath given, and may be at work in the Party convicted and converting; for every Mediate Conviction gives an Addition of Life, and Strength to the Immediate Conviction that is wrought by the Operation of that ſo long neglected Meaſure of Light, Grace, or Truth, in the particular Conſcience: We appeal then to every Impartial Perſon that reads us, if we own not the Scriptures in that very Senſe he would have People believe, that we deny them, to wit, That God may, and doth ſpeak to People through the Writings of the Holy Prophets and Apoſtles, which are commonly call'd Scriptures; and conſequently we do not deny the Scriptures to be any Means by which we may come to know God, Chriſt, and our ſelves, ſo often as it ſhall pleaſe the Eternal God to reach into the Hearts of Men, by any of thoſe TRUTHS therein declared of.

CHAP. VIII.

Chap. VIII.

His Charge of our denying the Scriptures any Means by which God does enable Men to reſiſt Temptations; and that we ſay, they are Dangerous to be read; rejected. His Proofs Lame. The Scriptures are believ'd to be a Means, &c. The true Knowledge of them Divine. No Knowledge of Divine Things, but upon Experience. It does not Deſtroy Faith. W. Penn*'s Words ſafe and ſound. The* Prieſt a meer Shuffler. Learning, a Servant to Truth. Chriſt, the Word of God. Faith by our Adverſary, prefer'd before Scripture. The Scripture ought to be Read, Believ'd and Obey'd.

§. 1. HE farther charges us, with denying the Scriptures to be any Means, whereby to reſiſt Temptation; and that we ſay, That they are Dangerous to be read. For Proof of which he quotes a Book, called, Love to the Loſt; and mine, Entituled, The Spirit of Truth Vindicated. The firſt is this, For, thoſe only are Children of God, who are led by the Spirit of God, to whom they who were led by the Letter, were Enemies: From whence he concludes, That we account it a very dangerous Thing to Read the Scriptures. Now if this Paſſage hath any Relation to his Charge or Concluſion, no Man ever ſaw the like; the whole Scope of which is but this. That there are Children of the Fleſhly, Literal and Hiſtorical Knowledge of the Scriptures and Religion, who are Strangers to, and therefore Perſecutors of the Children born of the Spirit: And that in all Ages there hath been more or leſs of this among Inward and Outward Jews and Chriſtians: and let J. Faldo deny it if he dare. How Wicked then is he to extort (indeed invent) an Inference ſo foreign to the Matter, and then charge it upon the Quakers in general; as if it were prov'd by that Paſſage in particular, which can no ways be concern'd in any ſuch Unrighteous Doctrine. I perceive, it is as impoſſible for our Adverſaries to do any Thing againſt us, without they have the Making of our Conſequences, as we are ſure to find them miſhapen enough, by that Time they get clear of their Hands; but bleſſed be the Name of our God, who has given us an Underſtanding, and Boldneſs both to ſearch the Reins of our Enemies Cauſe, and defend his, which he has put into our Hands in this our Day.

§. 2. But hear him farther, if it may be worth while: That this Abominable Tenet is the Quakers, Take one Inſtance more out of their Famous Author, W. P. or William Penn.

'But I will aſſure them, they ſhall grope in the Dark, till they come into the 'daily Obedience of the Light, and there reſt contented to know only as they 'experience; and not from a ravening comprehending Brain, that would in it's 'Unregenerated State, graſp at the clear Myſteries of the Kingdom, into which
'Fleſhly Comprehenſions and Notions can never enter: but all muſt be as Un-
'learned from their firſt Birth, Education, and Traditional read Knowledge, as 'he is unman'd that is again become a little Child, before the Secrets of God's 'Work come to be made known. Spir. Truth Vind. p. 23. Upon which hear his Comment.

That W. P. (of all others) ſhould talk at this rate, is moſt Ridiculous. What! Know only as they experience, know what God is no farther than they experience: Can we experience his Omnipotency? What! Know the Death of the Man Chriſt Jeſus, the Life to come, and judging of all Men by the Lord Jeſus, only by Experience? Where is Faith all the while? If none but Believers are Saints, ſuch as W. P. are profeſſedly none.

If Reader, we are got beſide the Matter charg'd againſt the Quakers, to wit, that they deny the Scriptures to be any Means whereby to reſiſt Temptation, our wandring Adverſary, who led me thither, is only to be blam'd; But ſince I am here, I ſhall endeavour to clear the Truth and My ſelf, before we return to the Point in Hand.

It cannot be ſo ridiculous in W, P. to aſſert the Impoſſibility of any Man's Knowing God, or the Things belonging to his Everlaſting Kingdom, but by Experience, or, as God hath been pleaſed, by the Inſpiration or Illumination of his Light or Spirit to demonſtrate, or diſcover unto Mankind, as it is Impious and Antichriſtian in J. Faldo, to aſſert the Right Knowledge of God obtainable any other Way, than by Experience. And this, Reader, choaks J. Faldo, and the reſt of his Partners more than they are willing their Followers ſhould know: who, for all their Cries againſt us, as Overturners of a Goſpel, and Eſtabliſhers of a Legal Righteouſneſs, dread the Conſequence of having their own Strivings, Runnings, Willings, and Literal Knowledge laid aſide, in which their Life, Faith, Worſhip, and whole Religion moſtly ſtand, and of being reduced to the very Alphabet of Inward and Experimental Religion, where the Righteous Judgments of God are known for Sin, which they ſhake off, on another (miſtaken) Account; and in this Myſtery the Devil works moſt ſubtilly, and vigorouſly againſt the Light of Chriſt within, and it's True and Holy Birth.

§. 3. But ſays he, How! Know God's Omnipotency experimentally? Very well ſay I, againſt the Folly of this cavilling Prieſt. Experience is Demonſtration; and the World without, and the Redemption I know within, which no Power, but what is Almighty, could ever have effected, make up that Demonſtration; which is that Experience, therefore I only know God's Omnipotency by Experience.

§. 4. But is it thus, that you know Chriſt died, that there ſhall be a Judgment, and an Immortality? I anſwer, not altogether thus; One Part is Matter of Story, and is believed, firſt, Hiſtorically, upon the Credit of Hiſtory; and then upon the Account of Inward Conviction too: The other is Knowable only upon Experience; For we feel in our ſelves Rewards and Puniſhments for Good and Evil in this Life, and receive them as Earneſts of what will attend Mankind in the next: And we have an inward Senſe of a never dying Life; which, as we are Gather'd into, and Grow up in, we ſhall Inherit Eternal Felicity; and as there is an Erring from that Holy Spirit of Life, the Wages of ſuch Rebellion will be the direful Portion of Death and Miſery to every Soul for ever.

§. 5. Nor does this claſh with Faith, whatever the Prieſt would ſuggeſt. For Faith is a believing in, or relying upon God, with Reſpect to a farther Knowledge and Enjoyment of him; which no ways impugns or withſtands a Knowledge of God upon Experience, ſo far as Men do experience: wherein they ſimply believe, they do not yet ſo perfectly experience, which ends Faith; yet it abides certain, that when they do experience, that farther Revelation of the Goodneſs, and Mercy, and Riches of the Love of God, as the End of their Faith, then, and not before, they may be ſaid to know thoſe Things. Why then ſhould we be denied to conclude, and that moſt rightly, that to Know, and to Experience, are equivalent Terms? No Knowledge without Experience; no Experience without Knowledge. And tho' Men may believe in a farther Enjoyment of what they now have but an Earneſt of, yet that, as ſuch, they know not, conſequently they experience it not. And ſo much this inſolent Vilifier of that ſerious Expreſſion, confeſſeth to us, and diſputes for (as he thinks againſt) us, when he ſays, where is Faith all the while? And if none but Believers be Saints, ſuch as W. P. are profeſſedly none. Since then my Affirming no Knowledge of God without Experience, ſtrikes not at Faith, becauſe Faith, ſays our Adverſary, is not a clear knowing, but believing or relying upon God, as to Things not yet clearly known and enjoyed; what has the Man been a doing all the while? But here was his ſhameful Miſtake and Contradiction; That Knowing and Believing are one and the ſame Thing; and this I will make appear from his own Words, and a Contradiction to himſelf, at the End of it.

§. 6. He quarrels my affirming all Knowledge to reſt upon Experience, and oppoſes to it this Queſtion, Can we experience his Omnipotency? as much as to ſay, yet we know it; elſe he queries impertinently. If ſo then, that God's Omnipotency may be known, and not experienced (the purport of his Query) it muſt be only by Faith; and if by Faith, then a Man may certainly know any Thing to be what it is, and yet at the ſame Time only believe it to be ſo: which he as earneſtly withſtands, when he aſks, Where is Faith all the while? &c. I would then fain be reſolv'd, whether that Man, ſuppoſe J. Faldo, who ſays, that Knowing and Believing are One, and Knowing and Experience are Contraries, be more ridiculous; or W. P. who affirms, that Faith (which ſtrictly taken, is but an Evidence of Things, not yet clearly ſeen, experienc'd or known) and Knowing are not one and the ſame Thing; and that experiencing and knowing can never be Contraries?

§. 7. I would adviſe this Prieſt to be leſs conceited, and better grounded the next Time he has to do with us; for even in thoſe Places, where he ſeems moſt Inſulting, he appears moſt Weak. Reader, what we experience, we know; and from hence are taught to believe that Fulneſs to be in God, which we can never comprehenſively Know; ſo that our Knowing God from Experience, does not weaken Faith, but as Enjoyment is the End of Faith, ſo from thence great Encouragement is to be taken, to preſs on from Faith to Faith; till there is an Arriving, at the Meaſure of the Stature, of the Fulneſs of Chriſt. But he leaves not off here.

§. 8. I ſhall not Comment on his ravening comprehending Brain (a moſt affected Pharisee among the Quakers) nor his clear Myſteries, as clear a Contradiction as it is; nor Fleſhly Comprehenſions as much Untruth, and Non-ſenſe, as (according to their Meaning of it) it Comprehends; for I have not Room to ſpread all his Rubbiſh. I wonder not at his Courſe Uſage of me; 'tis like a Man of his Breeding, Fury and Profeſſion; there is abundantly more yet behind, ſome of which will be obſerv'd in a more proper Place.

But to reply; Ravening, is a moſt proper Word, and due to J. Faldo, with his whole Tribe of Prieſts (and, if he will, Raving too; ſome few more moderate ones excepted) for we commonly underſtand by a Ravenous Dog, one that is Greedy, Sharp-ſet, that hunts hard for Prey, that ſnatches and catches at every Thing he likes, or may anſwer his hungry Appetite. Now whether this may relate to that greedy purſuit of the Prieſts after Hire, the Baſon, the Box, the Purſe; or that inſatiable Thirſt they have after Knowledge of thoſe Religious Matters, which were the dear-bought Experiences of ancient Saints, whilſt Strangers to the Fiery and Refining Judgments of the Lord; through which alone it is obtained; certain it is, that the Word is moſt aptly uſed by the Quakers againſt that Ravenous Generation.

§. 9. Comprehending Brain, is compaſſing, or maſtering of any Thing in the Underſtanding; and where People are more ſtudious to fill their Heads with Knowledge, than to adorn their Hearts with Righteouſneſs, we uſe thoſe Words in a way of Reproof: Since having learnt of God, what we know of him, through the Operation of his Light in our Conſciences, it is our Teſtimony, and our work in the World, to beat down that Thirſting Spirit after much Head-Knowledge, and preſs all to the continual Obſervance of an humble and conſtant Obedience to the Grace of God manifeſted in their Hearts, that teacheth to deny all Ungodlineſs, and Worldly Luſts, and to live Soberly, Righteouſly, and Godlily in this preſent Evil World, which is the Undefiled Religion.

Nor his Clear Myſteries; as clear a Contradiction, as it is. It was not Clear, but Clean in my Copy, which I ſuppoſe I can produce, and has been ſo corrected by me. Ingenuous Men would allow ſome Grains for ill-Printing, to us eſpecially, who have not the Preſs open, nor thoſe Advantages for Well-Printing, which our Adverſaries Enjoy; that Day is not yet come to us: J. Faldo's Title is Imprimatur enough; we ſwim againſt the Stream, ſuch as he, with it: But God can, and will turn the Rivers of Waters, and make the Sea Dry-Land. Vincit qui patitur.

§. 10. But once more hear him. What is to my preſent Purpoſe is in the laſt Part of his Saying, ' All muſt be as unlearned from their Traditional read Know-' ledge as he is unman'd, &c. Where he falls out of all Bounds upon us; and draws this Conſequence, and aſks theſe Queſtions: Sure the Scripture-Knowledge being Read-Knowledge, or Knowledge that comes by reading (as one Means) is a moſt hateful Thing to God. That he will impart none of his Secrets to thoſe, that will underſtand any Thing by his written Word. How came God to fall out with his own Off- p. 112, 113.

Off-ſpring? Did he write, and cauſe it to be written, and yet never intended we ſhould read it; or reading it, that we ſhould not believe a Word of it? Shall they be judged by the Law, who live under it, and yet the Knowledge of God thereby be a Sin, and Hindrance to their Salvation? To what an Height of Wickedneſs and Folly do they quickly go, who are poyſoned with that Abomination of holding the Light in every Man's Conſcience to be God, Father, Son, Spirit, Chriſt, Scripture, all? W. P. what means your Latin, Greek, Authors, Logick, Scripture-Quotations? Did you learn all thoſe Things by Immediate Inſpiration? But I ſmell your Deſign; you would have us throw away all the Knowledge we have by Reading, or Tradition, till we come to be regenerate, that is, Quakers. *But in the mean Time, you would have us without the Armour of Light (*For whatſoever makes manifeſt is Light) that we may not be able to defend our ſelves againſt the moſt Ignorant Non-ſenſe, that the meaneſt of your Votaries can attempt us with. But God Above, and the Scripture without, have taught us better Things. I am not unwilling to quote a few Scriptures. Put on the Armour of Light, Rom. 13. 12. The Word of God is quick and powerful ſharper then any two-edged Sword, Heb. 4. 12. Above all, taking the Shield of Faith, wherewith ye ſhall be able to quench, &c. and the Sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God. Obſerve, Faith in the 16th Verſe is preferred above the Word of God in the 17th Verſe; therefore it is not Chriſt the Word, but the Scriptures the Word: For Faith is not above Chriſt; Jeſus Chriſt, who had leſs need of Scripture than any of us all, reſiſted Satan's Temptation by Scriptures, It is written, It is written, Mat. 4.

I have, Reader, given his Mind at large, and the rather, that the Inconſiſtency of it, with the Charge he begun his Chapter upon, and the Contradiction of it to himſelf, might more evidently appear. My Meaning is too fouly conceal'd, and diſingenuouſly evaded by the Man. How could he think, that I ſhould ſpeak ſo reverently of the Scriptures, and quote them diligently, and very often to the Proof of my Aſſertions, and yet mean nothing leſs abuſive of them, than his untrue Conſequences? I intended no more than this; That Men in a State of Degeneracy from God, may have a Profeſſion of God, and Religion, taken up from the Words of Scripture, and outward Practice of the Saints; not being ſo much as ſenſible of the Remorſe, Convictions and Judgments, God brings upon every Soul for Sin, which is the Beginning of his Work of Redemption: And that many are Rich in Notion, and a Shew of Religion; who never begun right, but muſt know a being ſtript of all their Knowledge, and thoſe wrongly apply'd Promiſes they have taken as to themſelves out of the Scriptures, and thoſe Imaginations they have raiſed thence, towards a Fabrick of Religion; and ſo become Poor and Naked, and Hungry and Thirſty, as a little Child, or new Bottle fitted for the new Wine of the Spirit; and to which the Scriptures teſtifie. Many can talk of Chriſt from the Scriptures, which crucifie him in themſelves by wicked Works, and do render Praiſes to him, as the Seed that hath bruiſed the Serpent's Head, while the Serpent may be yet reigning in them. All ſuch Knowledge and Profeſſion of Religion from the meer Letter of the Scriptures, diſtinct from the Revelation and Operation of the Eternal Spirit within, muſt be Unlearnt, Unravell'd, Unbottom'd; one Stone muſt not be left ſtanding upon another, that there may be a Beginning upon a right Foundation. But, far be it from me, to ſay, That a Man muſt unlearn that Knowledge he has had of the Scriptures from the Key of David, the Living Word of God, when it has opened the Myſteries therein declared of; By no Means; for ſuch Knowledge is Right, Natural, Sanctified from God, and to be eſteem'd very Excellent and Divine.

§. 11. My Latin, Greek, Authors, Logick, Scripture-Quotations, I therefore us'd, and urg'd, with plainneſs and brevity, to prove and recommend the Truth I defended to the World; that lying under great Diſcredit with too many, they might ſee that ready to it's Confirmation, which they perhaps would not otherwiſe have thought upon: But the Prieſt has been as Uncandid with me here, as with my Friends and Self abundantly elſewhere; for he infers general Affirmatives or Negatives from particular Propoſitions: becauſe I affirm'd, that Unregenerate Men muſt begin again, that their Religion muſt be unlearn'd, as to their Way of acquiring it, the Prieſt concludes, the Quakers deny all Knowledge which comes from reading, Meditation, or any ſuch Means, however ſanctified; than which, there can be nothing of that kind more Untrue; ſince it were to ſay, becauſe we deny an erroneous Underſtanding, therefore we deny all Underſtanding; or, inaſmuch as we condemn all ill-acquired or wrong-gotten Knowledge, for that Cauſe we are to be concluded Enemies to all true and well gotten Knowledge. But we muſt bear this, and a great deal more; and the rather, ſince he does ſo ſeaſonably aſſiſt to his own Confutation, by acknowledging that the Scriptures without, and God above, has taught him better Things. Now what is this Teaching of God above? If it be in the Scripture, it was impertinent to ſay any more than that the Scriptures have taught them better Things: But if he meant that God taught by his immediate Diſcoveries; with and beſide the Scriptures; then wherein do we differ? Why has he taken ſo much Pains, and flung ſo much Dirt? He bids us alſo to put on the Armour of Light: If he means that of the Scriptures, he errs egregiouſly; for no Man can put them on, neither are they that Light which manifeſts every Thought, Word or Deed; but that Light which we aſſert to have been before the Scriptures were, and now is, where they are not, or at leaſt, when they are not thought upon, which is ſomething more Immediate, Living, Spiritual and Inward, and that brings Thoughts, Words and Deeds to Light, ſavours, reliſhes, diſcovers, and accepts or condemns. In ſhort, thus; if whatever makes manifeſt, is Light, then becauſe the Thoughts, Words and Deeds of Men and Women have been manifeſted unto them in all Ages, as well before Scriptures were, and where they have not been, as ſince they were, and where they have been; it follows that they had Light, and that the ſame Light cannot be the Scriptures, though the Matter written, called Scriptures, was manifeſted by that Light to the Holy Pen-men before they were written; which ſtill makes for the Authority of the Light within. The Prieſt exhorts us to that he endeavours to overthrow, and with which Holy Armour we have fairly foyl'd him in his own Field. The ſame may be ſaid of the Word of God, though not of the Scriptures any farther, than the ſharp-Word of God may ſpeak, or pierce through them into the Conſciences: for with good Reaſon do we affirm, that the Scriptures or Writings, are not that Sword, but that from whence they came. The Word was a Fire, an Hammer, a Sword, in the Prophets: But the Words or Writings it ſpoke by, were not that Fire, Hammer, nor Sword; neither had they any other Edge than what the Word put upon them. To the ſame Purpoſe may I argue againſt their being the Off-ſpring of God, properly; for, as ſuch, they could not be ſubject to Caſualty. God's Off-ſpring is more Living and Eternal; that Word is too high, for, properly taken, I mean as Writings, they were the Off-ſpring of the Writers only; but the Truth they declare of, is of God, and that will abide for ever.

§. 12. But upon the Shield of Faith, and the Sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God he has a pretty Fetch. Faith in the 16th Verſe, is preferred above the Word in the 17th Verſe; Therefore it is not Chriſt the Word, but the Scriptures the Word; for Faith is not above Chriſt. But neither will this do his Buſineſs; and a Shame it is, that this Man ſhould bring theſe Places to prove that the Scriptures are Means, whereby to reſiſt Temptation, which concern them not, eſpecially this in Hand; unleſs he would have Faith to be the Scriptures, or Word of God, in his Senſe, which as it is abſurd, ſo it will by him be denied, ſince he allows the Faith to be preferred above the Word of God, therefore diſtinct from it, and not conſequently the ſame with it. And ſhould we grant to him, That Chriſt is not underſtood by the Word of God, but the Scriptures, yet obſerve, the fatal Blow his Cauſe receives at his own Hand; Every true Chriſtian hath Faith, that Faith is above the Scriptures, therefore every true Chriſtian hath ſomething in him above the Scriptures. Every true Faith overcomes the World, and quenches the fiery Darts of Satan, conſequently Temptations; therefore it is not ſo properly the Scriptures, but true Faith which is preferred above them, and reſiſts Temptations, and overcomes the World. The Juſt live by Faith, but Faith is above the Scriptures; Therefore the Juſt live by that which is above the Scriptures, and of Courſe the Scriptures are not the Rule of Faith; for how can any thing be ruled by that which is inferior to it? Thus much we get, granting to him that the Scriptures are that Word of God. But we deny that Gloſs too. For the Spiritual Sword, as he ſays Beza renders it, which is that Word of God, muſt be at leaſt of the Nature of that reſt of the Armour mentioned in that Chapter, I mean of an Inviſible Spiritual Nature, which the Bible, as a meer Writing is not. If any ſhould ſay, but the Truth it declares of; I ſay ſo too; and the very Words, when by the living Word brought into the Conſcience, do Pinch, Prick and Wound; but then that Operation comes from the Power of the Word, which through them reacheth into the Heart of the Creature, and ſo the Words without, and the Word within, carry a double Conviction with them. But, ſaid Chriſt to the Devil, it is written; what what then? Therefore muſt the Quakers needs deny the Scriptures to be any Means to reſiſt Temptation. Or rather are they not ſuch Means, when God is pleaſed to uſe them, which I am ſure, no right Quaker ever denied. Beſides, it was reaſonable that Chriſt ſhould ſo anſwer, (ſet that Power aſide which filled up thoſe Words, and chained Satan) becauſe the Devil uſed Scripture to prevail upon him, as the Place proves. However, we deny not, but confeſs, that where-ever God is pleaſed to ſpeak by any Place of Scripture to a tempted Soul, the Scripture may be very well acknowledged to be a Means by which God ſcatters ſuch Doubts and Deſpondencies, and gives Power over ſuch Temptations; and that it may often ſo occur: Yet we would not have People fly to them, as what of themſelves may be ſufficient, but rather have Recourſe to that Divine Faith, which the Scriptures teſtify is able to quench the fiery Darts, and overcome the Temptations of this World; and which J. Faldo has largely confeſt, is to be preferred above the Scriptures themſelves.

§. 13. The other Part of his Charge, to wit, That they are dangerous to be read, has been anſwered again and again. We ſay, Let them that read, underſtand, fear, believe and obey; and then they will read worthily; otherwiſe, Men read their own Condemnation and Deſtruction. For the Holy Truths they declare of, are not to be ſeen, known, or enjoy'd by every prophane, nor yet profeſſing Perſon that reads them; they are a ſealed Book to all who err from, and deſpiſe that Word of God nigh in the Heart, which originally gave them forth, and now bears living Record to them. Bleſſed are they that rightly Underſtand and Do them, to ſuch they are of great Price.

Chap. IX.

CHAP. IX.

That we do not put the Scripture, and Holy Spirit in Oppoſition. The Wickedneſs of the Prieſt, in his Proof. They accord, and we acquieſce in their Teſtimony. We do not ſay, that they are not to be obey'd without extraordinary Apoſtolical Revelation, as baſely ſuggeſted. His Proof fictitious and forg'd. Such only are by us deny'd, as are only Literal Formal Chriſtians. The Scriptures own'd and believ'd in, by us, according as they teſtify of themſelves.

§. 1. TO cloſe up his falſe Charges againſt us about the Scriptures, though I thought not to beſtow ſo much Time about him, be pleaſed to hear him, and his Teſtimonies, which he thinks ſufficient to prove what he ſays of us to be true.

p. 117. 119. §. 2. That the Quakers put the Scriptures and the Spirit of God in Oppoſition to each other. To make this good, he quotes W. Smith, thus, "Traditions of Men, "Earthly Root; Darkneſs, and Confuſion; Nebuchadnezzar's Image; Putrefaction, "and Corruption; Rotten, and Deceitful; all out of the Life and Power of God; "Apoſtacy; the Whore's Cup; the Mark of the Beaſt; Babylon the Mother; "Baſtards brought forth of Fleſh and Blood; the Birth that perſecutes the Son, "and Heir; Graven Images, Morning Watch, p. 22, 23. It would amaze, ſays he, a Chriſtian to read what is contained in the two Pages quoted, of vilifying Reproach to the Scriptures, and the Doctrines from them received: If this be not Oppoſing the Spirit of God to the Scriptures, and rendring them adverſe to each other, the Devil himſelf muſt deſpair of Inventing Words to expreſs it by.

And now, Reader, it is Time for me, with a Soul full of Grief, to make my Appeal to the Righteous Lord God of Heaven and Earth, and his equal Witneſs in thy Conſcience, if ever Quakers writ, or ſaid any ſuch Thing of the Holy Scriptures. O far be it from us! and very great and heavy will the Damnation of J. Faldo be in the Day of the Lord, unleſs he ſhall unfeignedly Repent, becauſe of theſe deteſtable Lyes, that he ſeems wilfully to faſten upon our Writings. What William Smith ſaid, reflected not in the leaſt upon the Scriptures, nor yet thoſe Doctrines, which were truly received thence. No ſuch Words can be produced by our Adverſaries: had W. S. written any ſuch Thing, he that adds ſo much, that was not, we are to ſuppoſe would not have omitted mentioning of that, if it had been. But W. Smith addreſt himſelf to that Adulterated Spirit, which had defiled Nations, that nevertheleſs were under the Profeſſion of God, Scriptures and Religious Worſhip, though in Works they denied God; and as concerning Scripture and true Worſhip, groſly err'd, not knowing the Power of God, nor how to Worſhip him in Spirit, and in Truth: not that he ever durſt to entertain ſo Blaſ-phemous an Apprehenſion of thoſe Holy Writings, or thoſe Doctrines that are truly received thence, as is ſuggeſted by our moſt unfair Adverſary. And is it not the Height of all Unrighteouſneſs to his Neighbour, that when he condemns the Degenerated Spirit, Knowledge and Worſhip of any People, however profeſſing the Scriptures, and it may be pretending to believe accordingly, as W. Smith does all Apoſtate Chriſtians, J. Faldo ſhould infer, that his Neighbour calls the Scriptures themſelves, and not a wrong Knowledge of them, Will-Worſhip, Corruption, Rottenneſs, Deceitful, Whore's-Cup, Apoſtacy, Earthly Root, Graven Images, &c. and that he ſhould intend nothing leſs than Oppoſition betwixt the Spirit and it's own Scriptures? There needs no farther Confutation than the groſs and black Envy of our Adverſary about this one Paſſage. Be it known to all, we do affirm the Scriptures never did jar with the Spirit, nor the Spirit oppoſe himſelf againſt the Scriptures; and thus much our Writings can plentifully prove to all ſober Enquirers.

§. 3. But he offers another, and the laſt Proof of his Charge, from J. Naylor, p. 120. “That of this Sort are they falſe Prophets (as I ſuppoſe he means) who have their “Preaching from Study, and other Men's Mouths, and not from the Mouth of the “Lord. From which he infers, that what we have in the Scriptures, is not from the Mouth of the Lord; and queries: I would know (ſaith he) of the Quakers, what they will make of the Mouth of the Lord? It was ſaid to Jeremiah, Jer. 15. 19. Thou ſhalt be as my Mouth.

Our Meaning is ſtill over-look'd by this diſingenuous Adverſary, and a quite contrary Thing ſubſtituted. The natural Purport of the Words can be no more than this: That though the Things declared of in the Scriptures, were the Word of the Lord to the Holy Ancients, and Jeremiah, as God's Mouth (not his Mouth therefore) to the People of Iſrael; yea, and much of it the Word of the Lord to us too; yet, for Men to ſay any Part thereof by rote, eſpecially if they add their own Comments and Gloſſes, fram'd from Study to any Part of the Scriptures, and cry, Thus ſaith the Lord; or Hear the Word of the Lord; and not in the ſame living Senſe, nor upon the like Commiſſion, every ſuch one doth Rob his Neighbour, and ſteal his Words: And he is no more a True Prophet for ſo doing, than a Parrot is a Man, becauſe he can talk. If then no ſuch Creature is therefore to be reputed Rational, nor what he ſays, Reaſon, as to him, though ſo in it ſelf, becauſe it proceeds not from the Root and Principle of Reaſon, but by meer Imitation, and conſequently a Prater, in no Caſe to be minded: Neither is he a true Prophet, nor that the Word of the Lord, with reſpect to that Prophet, who has not received what he delivers, from the immediate Word of God himſelf, but by Hear-ſay, or meer Imitation. No, he is but a very Babbler, and begets People no farther than into meer Words, and Imaginary Gloſſes, which is the Ground of that Uncertainty that is in the World about Religion.

The Scriptures then are to us obliging, as the Things they declare of were the Word of the Lord to ſeveral Ages (Temporal Commands excepted) and they are not without a Mouth; yet they, and Jeremiah too, are inferior to the Mouth of the Eternal Word, which ſpeaks in this Evangelical Diſpenſation the Will of God unto Mankind after a more living and immediate Manner, as was propheſied of old. And I may thus far gratify our Adverſary's Curioſity about God's Mouth, and tell him, that the Word of God, is from the Mouth of God; and the true Prophets and Apoſtles in all Ages have been the Mouth of the Word of God, and the Scriptures are the Writings of thoſe Holy Prophets and Apoſtles, as they were the Mouth of the Eternal Word, revealing God's Will in their Hearts, that they might declare it, whether by Word of Mouth, or Writing to the People; and this is the true Order and Deſcent of Things.

§. 4. But he has one Kick more at us, before he gives up the Ghoſt, in his p. 129. Miſ-repreſentation of us concerning the Scriptures. The Quakers hold it is a Sin, and the Sin of Idolatry, to believe and live according to the Inſtructions and Holy Examples expreſſed in, and by the Scriptures, except we have them by immediate Inſpiration, and at firſt Hand, as the Apoſtles received them: And now (ſays he) I am come to the higheſt Round of their Ladder.

Indeed, thoſe Rounds of Ladders are very dangerous Places: I will not ſay how often, nor for what, an Army-Chaplain might deſerve to be ſo high exalted, but ſince his eager Purſuit after an Innocent People has brought him actually thither, and it falls to my Lot to be his Executioner; I ſhall take all the Care I can to acquit my ſelf well of my Employment; I will warrant him for ever coming down the ſame Way he went up. In order to which, let us firſt hear what Kind of Speech he will make us, to the Point in Hand.

William Dewsbury in his Diſcovery of Man's Return, p. 21. “All People may “ſearch the Scriptures, and ſee how you have been deceived by your Teachers, “who have cauſed you to ſeek your loſt God in Carnal and Dead Obſervations; “which they have not any Scriptures for. What this is to his Purpoſe, I cannot underſtand; to be ſure it is for ours. For W. D. is ſo far from making it Idolatry to live up to the Scriptures, that he condemns their ſeeking for the true God, where he was not to be found, which, ſays he, they HAVE NO SCRIPTURE FOR. As much as to ſay, that they ſeek after God not according to Scripture, and therefore are both Deceivers and Deceived. Certainly this is a miſerable Farewel he takes of the firſt of his Book, and the Quakers Denial of the Scriptures; that they ſhould therefore affirm a Practice according to Scripture, without immediate Inſpiration, Idolatrous, becauſe they aſſert ſuch to be deceived, who ſeek after God, not according to the Scriptures; If ſo much Impertinency ſhould fall from a poor Quaker's Pen, what Reproach, Inſolence, and Triumph would there be. But he has another Witneſs, that by the Mouths of two Witneſſes, his Charge againſt us, may be (not eſtabliſh'd, but) evidently diſprov'd.

§. 5. And this is Babylon, the Mother of Harlots, viz. [to read and practiſe, as the Saints did, and the Apoſtles of the Scriptures of the New Teſtament] and the Abomination of all Uncleanneſs. W. Smith's Morning Watch, p. 23.

Forgery in the Abſtract, as baſe, black, and diſhoneſt as Man can be to Man. What! rob him of Truth, of a good Conſcience; foiſt in, put out, alter, gloſs, pervert, and what he pleaſeth. What! make us lye againſt God, his Servants, Scriptures, the Light within, and our own Souls? But I have the leſs Need to make our Defence, where his manifeſt Corruption of our Words accuſe him, and my Anſwer to the firſt Part of his Charge in this Chapter has done it at large; Only thus much give me Leave to ſay, That if Words urg'd upon one Subject, ſhall be apply'd to another of a different Nature; and that our Adverſary can never prove his Charge againſt us, but by abuſing, corrupting, miſ-rendering and interlineating our Words; There is no Reaſon that we ſhould much concern our ſelves in the Conſequence of ſuch Debates; that Way of Demonſtration will ſave us the Labour of a Vindication with all Sober Perſons. But he has not done with us yet.

p. 127. §. 6. I am e'en tired with ſearching the ſulphureous Veins of the Pit and Mire of Quakeriſm, the Root of all which, is the Deified Light Within: if you have not enough of this Smoak to ſatisfy you it is the Bottomleſs Pit it riſes out of, I will give you two Ebullitions more, and then leave you ſatisfied, or to get better Senſes.

“So amongſt the Words you find, how the Saints in ſome Things walked, and “what they practiſed, and then you ſtrive to make that Thing to your ſelves, “and obſerve and do it as near as you can: and here you are found Tranſgreſſors “of the Juſt Law of God, who ſaith, Thou ſhalt not make to thy ſelf any Graven “Image, nor the Likeneſs of any Thing. And, ſays J. Faldo, it follows now, what Difference is there in the Ground betwixt you and the Pope? though in the Appearance there ſeems to be ſuch a great Space.

I have been the more punctual in the Recital of this, that I might ſhew to my Adverſary, I will be juſt to him, though he be moſt egregiouſly Unmanly with us. He ſays, That he is e'en tired; indeed he has Reaſon for it, though for nothing elſe: For, who ever got any Thing by beating the Air, or Spitting againſt the Heavens?

The Sulphureous Pit of Quakeriſm, we can in one Senſe allow, and J. F. may be better acquainted with it; For the Plagues which the never-dying Worm, the ſharp reproving, condemning Light within, will inflict upon the Spirits of them who reſiſt and gainſay the Truth, are aptly reſembled to a Sulphureous Bottomleſs Pit: Sulphureous, becauſe of the Inſufferableneſs of the Smoak: A Bottomleſs Pit, by Reaſon of a Diſmal, Endleſs State and Condition of Wo. And I doubt not, but J. Faldo has an Earneſt of this, for his Attempts againſt the Light, and the Children of it.

This long Diſcourſe is no more to us than the reſt of his Traſh, that we have already rejected as his own Invention and baſe Perverſion of our real Meanings. Take W. Smith in his own Senſe and Belief, and all is well: But receive him in J. Faldo's Diſguiſe, and truly we ſhould not know him our ſelves. He intended, that all thoſe real Experiments of other Perſons (of which the Scriptures are full) talkt un-experimentally over, by Un-regenerated Spirits, can be no Ways beneficial; Nay, that what Ideas or Notions they may have to themſelves of the Holy Ancients Enjoyments, while altogether unacquainted with them, are but a Kind of Images; which their believing in, and bowing to, as indiſpenſable Goſpel-Truths, is to be reputed nothing below Idolatry it ſelf: Yet far be it from us to ſay, that to believe the Truth, as declared in the Scriptures, is Idolatry, as well as that it is manifeſt Folly in any ſo to ſay or think of us; when not only we are moſt careful and deſirous of rendring what we believe purely Scriptural; But, I do declare, that as no Man can live the Life of the Scriptures without the Operation of that Spirit which gave them forth, ſo to live up to what they do exhort and declare, is the higheſt Pitch of Purity Man's Nature is capable of aiming at, and attaining to.

§. 7. He now intends to wind up his Diſcourſe on the preſent Subject with a retroſpective and contracted Argument of all thoſe particular diſtinct Charges, viz. They who deny the Scripture to be the Word of God; equal their own Writings and Sayings; deny them to be a Rule of Faith and Life, a Judge of Religious Controverſies; take Men off from Reading them; deny the Scripture to be any Means whereby we may come to know God, or Chriſt, or our ſelves; affirm them to be no Means whereby to reſiſt Temptation, and are dangerous to be read; deny them to be Profitable, but as Experienced; put Scripture and Spirit in Oppoſition; affirm the Doctrines, Commands and Holy Examples expreſſed in the Scriptures (as ſuch) to be not at all binding to us; hold it as the Sin of Idolatry to believe and live according to the Inſtructions and Holy Examples expreſſed in, and by the Scriptures, except we have them by immediate Revelation, as the Apoſtles: They who do all theſe Things, mentioned in the foregoing Particulars, Deny the Scriptures.

But the Quakers do all theſe Things; therefore they deny the Scriptures.

To which I return this Argument.

If to Deny the Scriptures to be the Word of God; to make what Writings are given forth by the ſame Spirit relative of the Scriptures; if not to prefer any Writings before the Scriptures, nor equal them to the Scriptures; if to deny the Scriptures to be moſt properly the general Rule of Faith and Life, and Judge of Controverſy, and not the Spirit rather; if not to take Men off from Reading the Scriptures for Inſtruction, &c. if not to deny them to be any Means, whereby Men may come to know God, Chriſt or our ſelves; if to affirm them to be a Means whereby to reſiſt Temptation; not Dangerous to be read; if to deny them to be read to any Profit, without the Aſſiſtance of the Spirit, eſpecially by ſuch as know them not, who are in a Rebellious and Unregenerate State; If never to dare to put the Scriptures and Spirit in Oppoſition to each other; if not to affirm the Doctrines, Expreſſions and Holy Examples, as ſuch, not to be binding (Temporary Services excepted) if to hold it as no Sin of Idolatry, nor any other, to Believe and Live according to the Inſtructions and Holy Examples expreſſed in, and by the Scriptures: If to do all theſe Things, ſo mention'd, be not to deny, contemn and Undervalue, but rather to honour, rightly inſtate and recommend the Scriptures; then the Quakers, who believe and do all this, are not Denyers, but Owners, Aſſerters and Defenders of the Scriptures, ſo far as they themſelves deſire to be defended. But we have largely prov'd, that ſo to do, is not to deny them, and that the Quakers ſo hold; therefore the Quakers are no Deniers, but Maintainers of the True and Divine Authority of the Scriptures.

§. 8. For his Compariſon of us with the Papiſts, (though he has been ſo Cunning, or Unjuſt rather, as to quote their Authors and not ours, and ſome Paſſages we juſtly doubt) it is Ridiculous, and every Way Unworthy of our Notice. A meer begging of the Queſtion; and, by what we can gueſs, deſign'd only to bring an Odium upon us. He puts the Scriptures in the Middle, and the Quakers and Papiſts, like the two Thieves upon the Croſs, on each ſide, to diſcover their Harmonious Agreement againſt them; which of them he makes to be him that ſhould go to Paradiſe, I know not; but we have the upper Hand.

But we can never allow of the Compariſon, ſince the Papiſts place the Rule and Judgſhip, in a Pope, or General Council, and the Quakers in the Eternal, Unerrable, Holy Spirit of God, and conſequently, our Adverſary is baſely Irreverent to God, that brings the Pope, or a Council of Fallible Men upon a Compariſon with his Infallible Spirit. Nor, if it were true, would it be any Thing againſt us; ſince Proteſtants will not allow themſelves to be therefore Papiſts, becauſe in ſeveral Things they agree; as about God, Eternity, Chriſt, his Life, Death, Sufferings, Reſurrection, Laſt Judgment, and Eternal Recompence.

§. 9. To conclude; We dare leave it with God, and all ſober Men, to judge, how far J. Faldo hath abuſed us, in giving in ſo black a Charge againſt us, and traducing our Perſons, and perverting our Writings to prove it, by baſe Characters faſtned upon the one, and falſe Inferences charg'd upon the other; Which of themſelves conſpire the Overthrow of their Inventer; and thus is he fairly turned off from the higheſt Round of the Ladder, which he hath ſo unadviſedly adventured to mount. And as it fares with ſome Notorious Malefactors, he remains there Pendent, as a Monument of his own Raſh and Diſhoneſt Undertakings, to the Terror of all Paſſengers, who ſhall happen to travel by this Way of Controverſy to the Land of Truth.

CHAP. X.

He chargeth us with a Denial of all the Ordinances of the Goſpel. Firſt in General, then in Particular. His Proof of the Firſt Invalid. His great Diſingenuity in reſting our Words, eſpecially J. Pennington's.

§. 1. THE Second Part of his Book begins with the Quakers Denial of all the Ordinances of the Goſpel, as he will have it. (Pag. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5.) It is more than poſſible that we ſhall prove him, e'er we part, not only to be a Denier of the True Goſpel Ordinances, but indeed, an Introducer of another Goſpel, if ſuch a Thing may be: But to his Charge; Firſt in General, then in Particular. The Quakers deny the Ordinances of the Goſpel in General, by which, ſays he, I underſtand not thoſe of Nature's Book, nor what was revealed by Moſes, but thoſe Ordinances which were commanded by Precept, or preſcribed by Example in the New Teſtament. Now to prove what he ſays of the Quakers, he cites G. Fox thus; " And we ſay, He, Chriſt, hath triumphed over the Ordinances, and blotted them out, and they are not to be touched, and the Saints have Chriſt in them, who is the End of outward Forms, G. Myſt. p. 52.

In all which I find no Denial of Goſpel Ordinances; Nor were they ſo much as meant by him: His Language is Scriptural; For Chriſt did blot out the Hand-Writing of Ordinances, and he was to the Saints then, and is to thoſe now, who rightly believe in him, the End of all Meats, Drinks, Waſhings, Days, or any other Temporal, Elementary or Figurative Worſhip; for J. Faldo then to charge a Denial of all Goſpel Ordinances upon theſe Words, is to plead for a legal Diſpenſation, and Bondage to the Shadows of the good Things to come; thereby making Chriſt's Coming of none Effect; and conſequently introducing of another Goſpel, as ſpeaks the Apoſtle; beſides that he baſely wreſts our Words.

§. 2. Again, But Pennington is ſo Cruel, by that Time he arrives to P. 38, of Unity, that he ſays, " Such of the People of God, as do not follow the Lord perfectly out of the City of Abomination [VISIBLE WORSHIP] but be found in any Part thereof when the Lord cometh to judge her, the Lord will not ſpare them.

I perceive, that unleſs we will allow J. Faldo the Liberty of telling the World our Meaning, or rather making his own to be ours, his Eſſays come to nothing. What Words can be ſounder of their Kind, [Viſible Worſhip] being left out, and which our Adverſary unworthily puts in? Are not People to follow God fully? Strange Doctrine that he teacheth! But grant him his Gloſs, alias, groſs Comment, without Diſtinction, and I know he does his Work. But we are not ſo eaſily to be overlaid. We do declare, that while Men have Bodies, which are the viſible Parts of Men, and the Bodies of Men are converſably concern'd in Religious Worſhip as well as the Soul, there will be, there muſt be, and there ought to be a Viſible Worſhip; Therefore moſt falſe is J. Faldo's Paraphraſe; yet thus far we could go; That Viſible Worſhip (as ſuch) without a due Regard to what Kind of Worſhip it may be, and what is the Root from whence it came, cannot be well-pleaſing to God; For then, that ſo Splendid Whore, and Deceitful Prophet, at large deſcribed in the Revelation of St. John, would be therefore true Worſhippers, becauſe their Worſhip was Viſible: But I do perceive, that here it pincheth, with almoſt all Profeſſions; The Quakers would put us off our own Strivings, Willings, Runnings in our own Wiſdom, Contrivance, Appointment; whereby we muſt take up ſuch a Croſs to ſelf, as is inſupportable to Fleſh and Blood: And indeed it is ſo; which all muſt come to know a Crucifying of, or they enter not into the Kingdom of God here, nor hereafter; hereafter: The Old Leaven muſt be purged out, and the New Wine have a New Bottle: Men muſt become Children, and Religion, taken up not upon Conviction, muſt be abandoned for the leaſt Appearance of God's Light breaking in upon the Heart and Conſcience, reproving the unfruitful Works of Darkneſs.

CHAP. XI.

Chap. XI.

The Firſt of the Particular Ordinances, he ſays we Deny, is the Miniſtry. His Proof Lame. W. P. and his Friends defended. J. F. and his Gang Reproveable. We own a Goſpel One; but not his. The Calling abuſed by ſuch Pretenders.

§. 1. HE now deſcends to ſhow our Denial of the Ordinances of the Goſpel in Particular; and we, to examine what he ſays; wherein, if he ſucceed no better than in his Endeavours to manifeſt our Denial of them in General, I think the Reader will have Reaſon to think, we ſhall not ſit down by the Loſs. But hear him.

§. 2. They Deny all Miniſtry that hath a Mediate Call to that Office; quoting J. Parnel's Shield, &c. p. 16. “And their Call to the Miniſtry we deny, which “is Mediate. Alſo G. Fox, in his Great Myſtery, pag. 45. “But who can wit“neſs an Immediate Call from God, and ſpeak as they are moved by the Holy “Ghoſt, and ſuch Travel from Place to Place, having no certain Dwelling-Place, “this Miniſtry we own and witneſs.

The Charge againſt the Prieſts I eſteem Sound, but not J. Faldo's againſt the Quakers. We do for ſeveral Reaſons already urg'd, deny that any Man can be a True Miniſter, who is not immediately Call'd; for it's not, Go ye forth into all the World, and Preach the Goſpel, that belongs unto all Men, no more than becauſe Princes ſend Ambaſſadors to Princes with their Credentials, therefore every Man ought to do the like in Imitation, without conſidering thoſe neceſſary Qualifications that belong to ſuch an Action. Peter, John, &c. were a great While Diſciples, not at Academies, but in Chriſt's School, which taught the Mortification of Luſts, and an Holy Self-Denying Life; to ſuch it was that the Commiſſion came; but neither was their Commiſſion of Force, till they had received that Anointing, which was to enable them to act by it. If then every Holy Man as ſuch, is not fitly Gifted and Impower'd to be a Miniſter, but that it depends upon a more Immediate, and Extraordinary Thing; certainly thoſe, who take upon them the Miniſtry, that have neither learnt by True Mortification to be Holy, nor receiv'd any Power from Heaven to be Miniſters, but explode both as to the preſent Age, and Teach for Hire, and Divine for Money, are not of Chriſt's making, but their own; and therefore to be denied. And thus much J. Faldo, to his own apparent Overthrow grants us, where he ſays, (Pag. 9.) We acknowledge that all True Miniſters of Chriſt ought to have an Immediate Call, ſuch as conſiſts in Grace and Gifts: And ſuch as have not this Immediate Call, we account unworthy of the Thing and Name.

What more has any Quaker ſaid? Why is James Parnel quoted to prove that what he charges upon the Quakers, as to their Denying the Miniſtry of the Goſpel, is a Truth, when it is become no Crime at all in J. Faldo to aſſert, That who are not Immediately Call'd, are Unworthy both of the Name and Thing? Is he become an Enemy himſelf to that Goſpel-Ordinance? If Immediate, then not Mediate; and if not Mediate, then J. Parnel and G. Fox writ Orthodoxally; conſequently, we are not to be reputed Deniers of the Miniſtry of the Goſpel, becauſe we aſſert that no Man is a Goſpel-Miniſter, who is not Immediately call'd thereto. So that his mincing of the Matter in the next Page, will no Ways qualifie it, viz. That Motions by the Holy Ghoſt he allows, yet he affirms, that thoſe who are moved by the Commands of the Spirit in the Scripture, are mov'd by the Holy Ghoſt: For if any Holy Man reading the Apoſtle's Commiſſion, ſhall at that Inſtant of Time receive an Heavenly Power to make it his, laying that ſame Injunction upon him, and enduing him with ſuch a Meaſure of that Divine Power, as they received, We ſhall cheerfully grant him to be truly call'd; yet not becauſe Go ye into all Nations and Preach the Goſpel, is there written, but becauſe God reſpoke thoſe Words by the ſame Living and Eternal Power, immediately to that Particular Perſon, which made, what otherwiſe was but the Commiſſion of the Apoſtles, his Commiſſion alſo.

§. 3. But there is a Word or Two, which having lain hard upon his Stomach, he vomits up thus: (Pag. 10.) As for having no Certain Dwelling-Place, and leaving Houſes, Lands and Poſſeſſions, let them repair to William Penn, and others of their Miniſters, for an Anſwer to it, who have large Poſſeſſions and brave Habitations, ſuch as few Miniſters as they diſclaim (eſpecially the Non-Conformiſts) enjoy.

What Anſwer this is to that Part of G. Fox's Words, which it pretends to refute, is obvious to the meaneſt Capacity that is not prejudic'd; For my Part, I know not what induc'd him to any Anſwer at all, being Scripture Words, unleſs it were, that he might reflect upon the Plenty God hath given ſome of us. What! Doth he envy Men the Bleſſings of Heaven, upon their Induſtry? Or the Love of Parents to their Children? Is his Eye Evil, becauſe God's Eye is Good? Doth his Mouth water after the Quaker's Poſſeſſions, now the Government hath juſtly and ſeaſonably prevented him of a Fat Benefice? But, why muſt William Penn's Name be queſtion'd about Houſes and Poſſeſſions? Is he angry that an Enmity like his own, in his deceas'd Father, depriv'd him not of that Eſtate for Conſcience Sake, he now begrudges him the Enjoyment of? But he dyed a better Man, a more Natural Father, and Sincere Chriſtian, than a Man of J. Faldo's Sordid Conſcience will ever do. But let me tell the Man (if yet he be worthy of that Name) that W. Penn firſt loſt his Eſtate before he got it, and ſacrific'd it, the Comfort of his Father's Houſe, and whatever was dear of this World, to the Quiet of a Conſcience void of Offence, before it pleas'd Almighty God to make all his. Such as have known him better then J. Faldo's Informers, of the moſt Eminent both of Preſbyterians, Independents, and Anabaptiſts, could tell him, He hath had a Conſcience (whatever they believe now) that was not to be caught by the Bait of Pleaſure, Eſtate, Preferment, or Eſteem in this World; as well as that no Severity us'd to bow or balk it, could prevail to renounce what it had believ'd upon Pure Convictions. To conclude his Defence in this Place, He got not what he hath, by Preaching (as perhaps Mercenary J. Faldo, and many of his Coat have done) but having it, by God's Providence and Faithfulneſs, can notwithſtanding (through the continued Love of God) freely beſtow his Strength, Labour, Eſtate, and Life too, for the Promotion of the Unchangeable Pure Way of God, in which he has believ'd, from whom he received, and to whom he owes all that he hath.

But why Poor Non-Conformiſts, after all their preacht up Battles, Spoils, Plunders, Sacrileges, Decimations, &c. Rich, and Covetous as ever: As Rich, becauſe the Baſon walks, and takes its Rounds Two to One of which it did; and Covetous, becauſe they remain as diſcontented, as if they were Starving; witneſs a late Begging Book from a Non-Conformiſt's Hand, which conjures their Hearers into larger Benevolence, though by the Stile one would think it were their Juſt Due. I am perſwaded, their Preachings, Chriſtnings, Burials, Churchings, alias, Lying-in Viſits, Exhortations, Thanksgivings, and Prayers, have cheated People of more Gold and Silver, than ever they did dare to make the leaſt Pretence to (though they always dar'd to take what they could get) in their former Days of Power. But this is nothing to me farther, than that it is leſs diſhonourable to William Penn, or any other Quaker, whom God hath bleſſed with a plentiful Subſiſtence, that having Eſtates, they notwithſtanding ſhould ſuſtain the Labour, and Suffering, of Preaching the Goſpel, and that at all Seaſons, than in J. Faldo and his Brethren, who (it's greatly to be feared) preach, what they call the Goſpel, that they might get Eſtates, at leaſt Livelihoods by it, let him or them ſay what they will. I could give him a long Liſt of more Exacting Jocky, Hawking, Mercenary Bargains of Preſbyterians, Independents, and Anabaptiſts, than can readily be parallel'd by Pariſh-Prieſts: A Thing once denied by them, and ought ſtill to be deteſted of all others.

§. 4. But he ends not here concerning the Miniſtry: For, ſays he, The Quakers Deny our Miniſtry, becauſe we Preach from the Scripture. A wicked Lye, minted out of Hell it ſelf: We have laid down no ſuch Propoſition, nor tending to it. But he ſuppoſeth J. Farnel helps him to prove this Aſſertion. “And here is the Difference of the Miniſters of the World, and the Miniſters of Chriſt — The One of the Letter, the other of the Spirit.

Strange Impudence, to call this a Proof. It is a Proof indeed, but againſt him; for if a Falſe or Worldly Miniſtry, under the Form of Godlineſs may not be, Farewel Scripture. But if ſuch a Thing will be allow'd us, then ſince the Letter or Scriptures are not by them rejected, but in Shew moſt highly admired, and that they pretend to collect all they believe or know from thence (though indeed they underſtand them not) we have great Reaſon to ſay, That thoſe who are Miniſters only from the Letter, with what they imaginarily comment upon it, are not Chriſt's Miniſters. We are ſo far from making it a Reaſon why we deny your Miniſtry, who are under that Qualification, that we utterly deny you to have that Knowledge from the Scripture which we except againſt, but your own Inventions, and Groundleſs Conceits alone: For though J. Faldo thinks it very Heterodox to ſay, that unleſs we are immediately aſſured from the Light within, of the Truth of what we hold, and that all Belief, not ſo diſcover'd, is a Lye, deriding at Samuel Fiſher's Anſwer in that Caſe, (Pag. 14. 15.) Thoſe who Swore, as the Lord lived, Swore falſly becauſe they knew him not to Live; affirming to us, That they were ſuch as did not believe him to live at all, and therefore S. Fiſher erred (in his Conſtruction) I ſay, though it be ſo, yet we are not forlorn of Reaſon as well as Scripture to our Defence. For no Truth is ſuch to me, which I either do not know to be True, or have not ſome real Ground to believe to be ſuch, however True it may be in it ſelf. And that Samuel Fiſher urg'd that Scripture pertinently, and conſequently his Return upon it is impertinent, He himſelf has provided us with an Argument; for if he will not have it, that they therefore lyed, in ſaying As the Lord liveth, becauſe they knew him not to Live, we muſt ſee what was the Reaſon that God gave their Aſſeveration the Lye. Says J. Faldo, they did not believe him to Live at all. Very well, then the Narrow of the Difference lyes here, That we ſay, They knew him not to Live; And J. Faldo ſays, That they believ'd him not to Live, Now I would fain know which are moſt excuſable? One ſays, they who ſaid, as ſure as the Lord Liveth, lyed, becauſe they knew not God to Live; and the other, that they believ'd Him not to Live. If any Thing be to be gotten, it is this, That they who knew him not to Live, might believe him however to Live, whilſt thoſe who believ'd him not to Live, would not believe a Thing they had no Ground or Knowledge inducing them to. But he has led us to a quick Expedient, They did know God to Live; becauſe he that lives, may know from thence that God Lives, who holds every Soul in Life that lives. To which I return, That they did believe God to Live, becauſe they lived; for how could they doubt of His Living, who held them in Life: But enough of this. To conclude: A Living Spiritual Miniſtry we own, that Preaches the Everlaſting Goſpel in it's own Power, and that freely, to the Raiſing of People Dead in Treſpaſſes and Sin, to turn them from Darkneſs to Light, that they might ſerve the Living Lord God of Heaven and Earth, in the Newneſs of the Spirit, who is worthy of all Honour and Glory for ever.

CHAP. XII.

The Second Particular Ordinance is a Goſpel-Church. His Definition for us, by it's groſs Contrariety to the Scripture: His baſe Inference of our Denial of Religious Societies, and Outward Gifts, from our Friends aſſerting of but One Catholick Church, and that it is in God. A Goſpel-Church own'd. Our Adverſary prov'd Heterodox about Apoſtolical Preaching. Inward Senſe preferr'd before Intelligence.

§. 1. THE next Goſpel-Ordinance he ſays we deny, is a Goſpel-Church; not to ſpend Time about his Way of Phraſing it, though uncouth enough; We ſhall attend his Proof.

Pag. 16. 17, 18. "And the Church ſo gathered into God, is the Pillar and "Ground of Truth, where the Spirit alone is Teacher. J. N's Love to the Loſt, Pag. 17.

Upon which he argues thus, The Goſpel-Church is a Church which hath other Teachers, and not the Spirit alone; whereas the Apoſtles gave themſelves to Preaching of the Word, and Elders were Ordained; therefore the Quakers Deny a Goſpel-Church, and they contradict themſelves, for they have more Teachers than all others. A Lye to be ſure.

There is greatly wanting to this Prieſt a better Underſtanding, or more Honeſty in uſing what he has; for who is not blinded with Prejudice, may diſcern, that from our ſpeaking of the Univerſal Church of God, which ſays the Apoſtle, as well the Quakers, Is in God; he infers, That we deny all Viſible Religious Societies, commonly called by the Ancients, the Churches of Aſia, Theſſalonica, Epheſus, Corinth, &c. And from our aſſerting the Spirit to be the Only Goſpel-Teacher of all who believe, he concludes, That we Deny all Preaching of Men, though by the Spirit. O Blind, or elſe moſt Diſingenuous Man! What? Charge that upon us, which our Practice gives the Lye to every Day. But when we urge this againſt him, and ſuch like Adverſaries, then it is not that he hath miſ-repreſented us, but that we have contradicted our ſelves.

But to clear the Point, if it can yet be doubtful: We do believe, There is One, and but One Univerſal Church, the Ground and Pillar of Truth, and that it is in God; anchor'd, eſtabliſht, and built upon him, the Rock of Ages, and Foundation of many Generations: And as ſuch, neither is every Viſible Society, making Profeſſion of Religion, nor are all of them together That Church; but ſuch alone, who are waſhed in the Blood of the Lamb, and ingrafted into the True Vine, bringing forth the Fruits of Holineſs, to the Eternal Honour, Glory, and Renown of Chriſt the Head, who is over all, God Bleſſed for evermore. And though there be a Mediate Preaching, which is to ſay, that the Spirit ſpeaks by ſuch whom he hath anointed to Preach; yet it cannot be ſtrictly ſaid, That Man Preaches, or it is Man's Miniſtry, but rather, the Spirit by Man, and that it is the Spirit's Miniſtry, and Man only a Mean, or Inſtrument, through which the Teaching is convey'd, or Direction rather to the True Teacher, the Light in the Conſcience: Not that the Lord doth not ſometimes plentifully Teach his Children without any ſuch Means too, who are turned to the Grace in the Heart, and believe and walk in His Holy Light, where God is to be found, and an Acceſs to this Holy, Bleſſed Preſence adminiſtred; for he hath both promiſed It of Old, and perform'd It in our Days. Thus the Apoſtles were Preachers, not from Man, nor by Man, but by the Revelation of the Son of God, declaring of the Myſteries of God's Everlaſting Kingdom, as they were moved by the Holy Ghoſt: And ſo none are exempted; for all may Propheſie One by One, that the Church may be Edified, 1 Cor. 14. 31. Yet I cannot but obſerve, that (1.) the Man implicitly denies that to be a True Church, which is the Ground and Pillar of Truth, for ſuch the Quakers ſtile A Goſpel-Church. (2.) That he affirms, The True Church to have other Teachers than the Spirit; which is to ſay, That the Primitive Churches were not led, guided, and taught by the Spirit of God only, but by ſome other Teachers alſo; contrary to expreſs Scripture, the Promiſe of God, and very End of the Bleſſed Goſpel. If he ſays, that he meant the Apoſtles that were Inſpired, I anſwer, that was never deny'd by us, becauſe that was the Teaching of the Spirit by them, which was very little leſs, than if it had been immediately in them: So that one of theſe Two Things muſt follow from his Kind of Arguing; Either the Apoſtles Preacht without the Motions of the Eternal Spirit; Or, Preaching, as they were moved of God's Spirit, was their Preaching, and not the Holy Spirit's, that ſo plentifully dictated to them what they were to ſay: But in as much as neither can be reputed True, by True Chriſtian Men, I conclude the Quakers Sound, and their Boaſting Adverſary, Heretical.

§. 2. But he thinks he hath clearly got the Point of us, about a Quaker's telling him, They knew, that One of the Dutch Nation Spoke by the Spirit in a Meeting of ours, though in that Language which was not underſtood by the Meeting, becauſe they all found Refreſhings.

I will be Faithful in giving his Obſervation upon it: Of the unknown Language he ſays, This was Orderly according to the Popiſh Maſs, who Read Prayers in an Unknown Tongue to the People; but herein he wrongs us, for though we do acknowledge, that the Pure and Single Power of the Almighty, may both ſtrike Aſtoniſhment, and give Refreſhment, where the Words utter'd are not always underſtood; ſince he doth both frequently without them; and that Underſtanding and Senſe are Two Things; for the Devil may ſpeak the beſt Words in the Bible, and be an Undiſcover'd Devil ſtill, except by this Divine Light, Power, or Spirit, he be inwardly manifeſted; conſequently a Right Senſe may be had, where Words may not be underſtood, which is the One Tongue to the Children of the Light. Yet we not only decry all deſign'd Obſcurity by Praying and Preaching in unknown Languages, but with the Apoſtle ſay, that we chuſe rather by far to ſpeak in a Known Tongue, that the People may underſtand our Words, as well as have a Senſe of our Spirits: Nor did ever any Quaker yet pretend to be moved to Pray in an Unknown Language, whilſt he was Maſter of that which was well known to the People: Since then we don't affect ſuch Obſcurity, the Caſe of all thoſe Papiſts, who Pray in Latin, rather than in their Native and Vulgar Tongue, he is very diſingenious in that Reflection.

§. 3. Upon the Quakers Reaſon, why they knew that Declaration was from the Spirit of God, viz. Becauſe they found Refreſhings, he beſtows this Confutation, So have Children many a Time At Puppet-Plays. What a Paſs are theſe People come to, who yet deny all Teachings of Man?

But what a Paſs, may I rather ſay, hath this Man's implacable Spirit againſt the Truth of God, brought him to? Who, to his Diſhoneſty before, adds Prophaneneſs, neſs, joyn'd with Scoff and Impudence, when he denies all Refreſhment that comes not by Sound of Words, in a Known Tongue, to be of any more Certainty from God's Spirit, than the Pleaſure Children take at Puppet-Plays, though he could not but think the Perſon that ſpoke to him, meant by Refreſhings, what came from God, and that there can be no Proportion, or Compariſon, betwixt that Pious Anſwer, and the Ungodly Sport of Puppet-Plays. Ben. Johnſon's ALCHYMIST, which all Good Men deteſt, and, himſelf dying, abhorr'd, hath nothing in it Half ſo Groſs in Abuſe of Religion. I even tremble at the Thoughts of that Hand-Writing upon the Wall, which this Man's Impiety is writing (I fear with indelible Characters) againſt him, who will receive a juſt and certain Recompence at the Hand of the Righteous Judge of Heaven and Earth, for all his hard Speeches againſt the Holy Way of the Lord.

Chap. XII.

§. 4. But let me not omit to ſhow the Blow he gives his own Cauſe in this Expreſſion; ſince by the ſame Reaſon that we know no Refreſhment to be any more of God, without known Words, than that of a Puppet-Play: He knows not any more the Teachings of the God above, p. 113. nor the Motions of the Holy Ghoſt, or Dictates of the Grace of God Within, Part II. p. 9, 10. (known Words being excepted) to be of God, than that Refreſhment Little Children have in a Puppet-Play; the Conſequence of which Diabolical Compariſon is nothing leſs, than to overthrow all Inward Senſe of God's Preſence, or that Refreſhment which comes from it: And then indeed, we muſt confeſs, we ſhould be neceſſitated either to deny all Teaching, or conclude with this Antichriſtian Prieſt, That Man's Teaching, or Miniſtry, ought to be adhered to. Where, if Puppet-Plays be meer Imitations of Real Things, as I have been credibly told, we know not but our Ignorance of an Inward Senſe, might render us very fit to judge in Favour of the Prieſt, and his Puppet-Play Doctrine; till when, we leave imitating J. Faldo, and the Puppets together, who alike fainedly repreſent Life, Power and Spirit, but in Reality are empty Sounds, and meer Wind ratling through Lifeleſs Trunks.

CHAP. XIII.

Chap XIII.

But we Deny Preaching, ſays he. His Diſingenuity in ſtating our Principles. We hold and practiſe True Goſpel-Preaching. No Difference between what the Light Teacheth and the Scripture. Our Goſpel is Peace; Our Adverſary's is War, &c. True Preaching Converts, our Adverſary's not.

§. 1. ANother of thoſe Ordinances he falſly affirms us to Deny, is Preaching, of which he ſpeaks thus, (Pag. 20.) They will allow an Hearing the Word Preach'd, and that muſt be the Light Within; but the Mind of God contained in the Scripture, they muſt by no Means hear Preached; for (as I hinted from G. Fox) we muſt not hear Man; for the Prophets bid ceaſe from Man.

This is ſo far from making againſt us, that it makes for us, at an high Rate; For who preaches without that Light of Chriſt, that the Quakers affirm all True Preaching proceeds from, Preaches not from the Diſcoveries and Leadings of the Light, and conſequently all ſuch Preaching is in the Darkneſs, where God's Counſel cannot be known. Nay, how is it poſſible that People can be turn'd from Darkneſs to the Light, (the End of Preaching) by thoſe, who Deny, that Men ought to Preach from the Revelations and Guidings of the Light?

§. 2. He hath alſo with manifeſt Baſeneſs, brought us in, as putting a Difference betwixt our Preaching by the Light within, and that Doctrine of God, which is contained in the Scriptures; whereas we Read, Believe, Practiſe, and Preach no other Doctrine for Truth, than what is explicitly or implicitly there held forth, and teſtified unto: Though we confeſs, that we don't ſo Believe, Practiſe, and Preach it, becauſe there written; but from an Inward Living Power or Spirit, which both opens the Myſteries thereof to our Underſtanding, begets right Belief of them, and at ſundry Times moves upon our Hearts, to declare afreſh thoſe Ancient, Bleſſed Truths therein expreſt. And this is what G. F. meant, and we All underſtand by ceaſing from Man, to wit, meer Man, not Man Inſpir'd, or ſo Divinely qualified.

But he has a Scripture, and a Paſſage out of W. Smith, to juſtifie his Charge, at leaſt he thinks ſo, Rom. 10. 15, 18. And how ſhall they Preach, except they be ſent? As it is written, How Beautiful are the Feet of them that Preach the Goſpel of Peace? &c. We ſay ſo too; and did we mean the ſame, 'twere happy for J. Faldo. By being ſent, we underſtand by the Light within, and the Scripture without, a being anointed by the immediate Power of God, without which the Diſciples themſelves, who had ſo many Advantages above us, were not to budge; They could have told moſt of what Jeſus had done and ſuffer'd, which, though Truth in it ſelf, and they able to relate it; yet bare Truth, and all they had ſeen or known, without a Living Immediate Power and Commiſſion within (the Baptiſm of the Holy Spirit) qualified them not to budge on God's Account. If J. Faldo could give us as good Evidence of his being ſo call'd, as he hath done of a Falſe and Enrag'd Spirit againſt the TRUTH, we ſhould acknowledge him for a Goſpel-Miniſter; but ſince he diſ-acknowledges all Share in any ſuch Miſſion, we juſtly refuſe him any Part in a Goſpel-Miniſtry.

§. 3. In ſhort, if none can Preach without being ſent, then ſince he and his Tribe were never ſo ſent, they ought not to Preach, nor any to hear them; For Right Faith can never come by ſuch a Miniſtry: No; They are Right Goſpel-Miniſters, and their Feet truly Beautiful, whoſe Goſpel is Peace on Earth, and Good-Will towards Men; Not Garments roll'd in the Blood of Kings, Princes, Rulers, and People: No Worldly Armies, Battles, Victories, Trophies, Spoils, Sequeſtrations, Decimations, and the like Blood-thirſty and Tyrannical Projects: In which J. Faldo, and his Poor Non-Conforming Miniſters, have had their Hands almoſt over Head and Ears, till they had well nigh loſt their Ears, and their Heads too.

Such Covenant-breaking, Self-ſeeking, Proud, Covetous, Tyrannical, Club-law, Perſecuting Prieſts, we could never own; but ever did, and ever ſhall, earneſtly bear our faithful Teſtimony againſt them, as the Locuſts, Catterpillars, Serpents, and Dragons of the Earth, whoſe Cruelty, Self-ſeeking, and Falſeneſs, hath griev'd Good Men, and cauſed the Wicked to Blaſpheme the Name of the God of Heaven, whoſe Damnation ſlumbers not, if by unfeigned Contrition not prevented.

§. 4. Well, but we are to hear what Strength William Smith's Primmer can give to his Charge.

" Queſt. Is there ſomething of God in my Conſcience, that will give me the Knowledge of Him?

" Anſw. There is not any Thing elſe that can do it.

That is, principally there is no other Teacher, no other Revealer, or Diſcoverer of the Mind and Will of God to us, than Chriſt the Light, as ſaith the Scripture, No Man knows the Father but the Son, the True Light, and He, to whom the Son reveals him: And whatever makes manifeſt is Light. Now, unleſs a Man may know God without any Manifeſtation, it is impoſſible that he ſhould be known without Light, that only gives it; eſpecially when it ſhall be conſidered, That HE is Light it ſelf: If then there is no knowing of God, but that which we know muſt firſt be manifeſted, and that whatever makes manifeſt the Things of God, is Light, it evidently follows, That the Light is the Alone Author of thoſe Diſcoveries Men receive of the Mind of God. And whatever Knowledge may be given, or rightly obtained through the Scriptures, is not to be imputed to the Scripture as ſuch, but that Divine Light, which gives inward Conviction of the Truth of what is outwardly read, or writ in that excellent Book called Scripture. So that ſtill to Chriſt the True Light, as the chiefeſt Cauſe (in which Senſe he is moſt properly ſo called) do we rightly aſcribe all the Knowledge we have of GOD, and His Everlaſting Kingdom.

Ch. XIV.

CHAP. XIV.

His Charge of our Denial of Goſpel-Prayer, inverted. The Prayer he pleads for, Anti-Goſpel. True Prayer ſtated, aſſerted and defended, with Plainneſs from Scripture and Reaſon. Meer Formal Prayer, as well in Families as Meetings, and at Meals, as both Falſe Worſhip, deteſtable to God. All Falſe, wherein God's Spirit is not the Firſt and Chief Mover and Aſſiſter. The Subtilty of Satan, in putting upon Unacceptable Prayer, to prevent True Prayer.

§. 1. BUT we Deny Prayer as well as Preaching, (Pag. 23. 24, 26.) if he may be Credited; and indeed we do ſo by the ſame Figure, or contrary Way of Speaking, That we Deny them, that is, as John Faldo owns them; but not that therefore we ſhould deny them at all. His Charge lies in Three Parts.

Firſt, That we Contemn True Goſpel-Prayer; to prove which, he cites W. Smith's Catechiſm, p. 107. " Though ſome may not ſpeak in ſuch formal compoſed Words, “ yet in the ſame Wiſdom their Words are formal; they can ſet their own Time “ to begin and end, and when they will they can utter Words, and when they will “ they can be ſilent; and this is the unclean Part, which offers to God, which he “ doth not accept. Very well, and what is this to the denying of Goſpel-Prayer? It ſeems then, that what Prayer this Paſſage reflects upon, is Goſpel; conſequently, if I underſtand any Thing, formal, Wiſe Words, in Man's Time, and Will, which is Unclean, is Goſpel-Prayer, in J. Faldo's Account; otherwiſe it is utterly falſe to ſay, That W. Smith's Words prove the Quakers to contemn Goſpel-Prayer. But what can be more clear to the View of every Impartial Reader, than that J. Faldo's making that Prayer only which he is capable of himſelf, that ſtands in his own Time, Will, Wiſdom, and Invention to be Goſpel, rather than to deny it, and ſeek after one more truly Evangelical, is not ſo much to maintain the Truth as himſelf.

§. 2. Secondly, he ſays, (Pag. 27. 30.) That we own no Prayer that is not by immediate Inſpiration, and Motion of the Spirit, and without the Uſe of our Conception and Direction of our Underſtanding. His Third I will add to this, becauſe to the ſame Purpoſe, viz. That we own no Prayer, but what is by, and in the Light within; and here he brings three or four Teſtimonies which are to the ſame Purpoſe. I grant what he ſays of us in this Particular To be our Faith, and ſhall prove it to be Sound Doctrine from the Scriptures of Truth. The Worſhip of God is in the Spirit and in the Truth, John iv. 24. Now unleſs Men may perform Goſpel-Worſhip without the Spirit and the Truth, or if in the Spirit and the Truth, yet not by the Motion of either, a Thing abſurd, it muſt needs be, that Men ought only to Pray or Preach, by the Motion of the Spirit, and of the Truth.

If ſuch only are Children of God, who are led by the Spirit of God, and walk in the Light, as Chriſt is Light, and that therein Acceſs alone may be had to God, who is Light, and in whom is no Darkneſs at all; then with good Reaſon may we ſay, That no Prayer that aſcends to God without the Leading of God's Spirit, and which is not by, and in the Light, can be acceptable with him; conſequently, Goſpel-Prayer is only from the Motions of the Spirit of God, and by and in the Light of Chriſt. Again,

If no Prophecy or Preaching was to be of old, but by the immediate Revelation or Motion of the Spirit, though it was but to Men; of far greater Reaſon, ſhould not any Prayer be made without a Motion of the ſame Spirit, which is to the Eternal, only Wiſe God.

§. 3. Nay, the Creature conſidered from under the Leadings of God's Spirit in all Religious Actions, is unable to think a good Thought, much leſs, to perform one good Work; and as the Profeſſors ſay, from the Crown of the Head to the Sole of the Foot, is altogether unclean; it will follow then, that either ſuch corrupt and ſinful Duties are Goſpel-Prayer, and an Ordinance of God: or elſe, that what we aſſert of Praying by the Motions of the Spirit, and in, and by the Light of Chriſt in our Hearts, muſt be the only Goſpel-Worſhip, which we are yet farther inclined to believe.

For it is ſaid in Scripture, That the Word and Prayer ſanctifieth all Things: Now if we take this Word in our Senſe, to wit, the Word of God; then we are to conſider, whether the Word derives it's Sanctifying Vertue from the Prayer, or the Prayer from this Word? Not the former to be ſure; If then it be allowed to be the latter, ſince this Prayer (which to be ſure is Goſpel, or the Apoſtle would not have owned it) hath a Sanctifying Vertue in it; and that no Prayer begun or carried on by meer Man, can ſanctifie, becauſe we are of our ſelves unable to think one good Thought, it evidently follows, That this Word of God, which gives Prayer that Sanctifying Power, doth begin or move firſt to that Sanctifying, Acceptable, Truly Goſpel-Prayer.

§. 4. But now ſuppoſe by Word is meant the Words, either of Scripture, or Preachings, yet are we ſafe; For, ſince nothing can ſanctifie, but it muſt be from it ſelf, or ſomething elſe, and that meer Man in Preaching or Praying cannot; and that God is that alone Power, Wiſdom, and Eternal Spirit, that is able to ſanctifie; it will follow alſo, That God's Spirit, or Power, moving in the Heart, is that alone which renders the Words, or Prayers of any ſanctifying. Nor is this all; The Pool of Betheſda is a Notable Figure of the Matter in Hand; where the Certainty of being Cured upon ſtepping into the Pool, ſo ſoon as ever the Angel had moved the Waters, doth very lively repreſent to us, that what Benefit we may ever expect to receive from the Lord, comes not from an haſty Ruſhing into any Religious Performance in our own Time, but our patient Waiting, till the Lord's Holy Angel ſtirs and moves the Waters, and then to lay all aſide to imbrace ſo Bleſſed an Opportunity. Farther,

§. 5. The Goſpel-State is an Eternal Sabbath. He that prays in his own Will, Time, Wiſdom, Invention, is picking Sticks, and kindling a Fire, and compaſſing himſelf about with the Sparks of the Fire of his own kindling: This Man hath not Ceaſt from his own Works, he will ſuffer Loſs in the Day of God, and his Bed will be made in Sorrow.

§. 6. Nor is this the utmoſt of our Force; for whatever God hath not required, juſt will it be with him to ſay, Who hath required theſe Things at your Hands? 'Tis true, God loves that his People ſhould pray, and Chriſt enjoyns it; but he alſo bids all Watch unto Prayer; that is, Wait to feel that Spirit of Life to ſtir, which gives Life to Prayer, the Key of David, by which Heaven's Door is opened, and the Soul comes to receive True and Heavenly Refreſhment. The Want of which maketh ſo much Complaint among ſome, That their Duties are Unholy Things, they want Power, they have prayed long, but to little Purpoſe; whereas had they Pray'd aright, that had never been. Much more might be ſaid to this, but my Conſcience is clear in the Matter, and I ſhall conclude this Point with a General Confeſſion and Caution.

§. 7. We do acknowledge, That God is; That He ought to be Worſhipped; That Worſhipping of God is ſtrictly a Bowing down before Him, in Fear and Holy Reverence, according as he makes himſelf known to the Creature; That Prayer is a Goſpel-Ordinance; That it is not only Good, but Neceſſary to be uſed; That God only can give us to Pray aright, as well as to Pray at all; That therefore his Aſſiſtance is neceſſary; to have which, There ought to be a Waiting out of all Conceivings, Inventions, or Forms, to receive a Living Touch, and Senſe from His Pure, Living, and Eternal Spirit, whereby to ſet our Spirits at work. This is that Oil, which makes the Chariot Wheels go ſmoothly, and without which they grate and jarr. Thoſe who have not Words, eſpecially in Publick Places, have Sighs and Groans, and a deep and ſilent Exerciſe of Spirit God-wards: In which Bleſſed Communion is joyned, and Refreſhments that out-do all Worldly Satisfaction. That it is the Duty of all to wait upon God, and that not only at Publick Meetings, but at their own Houſes alſo, and therein as well at their Meals, as at all other Times for Worſhip. If any have the Motion of God's Eternal Spirit upon their Hearts, let it be anſwer'd to God's Praiſe, and the Edification of others; if not, let none offer up an Unſanctified, Dead Sacrifice to the Lord, as all that comes from meer Man is, for it will be their Burden: Neither prodigally ſpend their own Portion, or that Bread upon others, God has beſtowed for their own Uſe. Thus, whether ſuch Eat, Drink, Sleep, or otherwiſe enjoy of God's Benefits, let all be done with Holy Awe, and to the Glory of God our Father: As it will certainly be, If there be but a Still and Reverent Waiting in Spirit upon the Lord, in the Light of Chriſt, to be made Senſible of His Goodneſs, and Bleſſings upon us, and Unity with us in our Undertakings and Enjoyments. And let this be a Warning unto all, in the Name and Fear of the Jealous God of Heaven and Earth, that they do not offer up to God their Halt, and Lame, and Blind Sacrifices, which my God abhors; eſpecially you Profeſſors, whoſe Leaves are large, but your Fruit little: Think not to be heard by your Multitude of Words, nor Variety of Duties; God regards the Root, the Life, the Power, the Spirit that begets them, and whoſe Life it is that animates them; if they ariſe from God's Holy Spirit, and Seed of Life, they can, they will intercede and prevail; but if not, God will ſay to you one Day, Who has required theſe Things at your Hands? O! For the Love of God, and your own Souls, offer not God a Worſhip out of His own Spirit, much leſs contend for it; for you ſtrengthen Satan's Bonds in ſo doing, and feed the Myſtery of Iniquity, the Painted Jezebel, the Mother of Harlots, from whom theſe falſe accurſed Births have come; who, under outward Imitations and Performances, holds People in Death and Darkneſs, and perfect Enmity againſt God, and His Living, Spiritual, Holy Seed in them, and others, that is able to bruiſe the Serpent's Head; which is the Pure Way of God, and in whom is the Bleſſing for ever: For the Devil, the ſubtil Serpent, having got into thoſe Outward Courts of Religion, Signs and Shadows of the Good Things, which God had given Credit to by his Appearing once in them, he pleads their Divine Inſtitution, againſt the very Life and Subſtance, that like Old Garments it hath put off; and ſo all are deceived by his Transformations and ſubtil Twinings, who come not to that Inward Senſe of Life and Power, which reliſh the very Spirit, and can try the Inſide: Servants are not Maſters, becauſe they wear their old Clothes; neither is the Devil an Angel of Light, becauſe he puts on the Pure Ware, the Spirits old Clothes. God once appeared at the Mountain, and Jeruſalem, therefore was either Worſhip to continue? No; God diſappeared, that he might ſet up a more Spiritual Worſhip, where Meats and Drinks, and all outward Services, figurative of the Good Things, come to an End.

§. 8. Let it not be evilly taken by any of you, neither be ye offended in me, or the Doctrine I here defend; For all Preachings, Prayings, Graces (as they are called) with the reſt of the Worſhip of the Day, which ariſe not from the Holy Power and Spirit of God, it is at this Time laid upon me, and I am bold to declare, in the Name of the Eternal Holy God, A Blaſt, an utter Blaſt is coming upon them all, and they ſhall be found amongſt the Chaff, and not the Wheat, in the Day of God's Terrible Tempeſt, where nothing, but the ſolid and weighty Seed, ſhall remain Stable and Unſhaken. O bow, bow, ye tall Cedars, and ſturdy Oaks! Come out, and be ye ſaparated by the Power of my God, from all your Inventions, ſelf-Contrivances, ſelf-Runnings and Willings, ye Children of the Night, and Lovers of your own Works, more than Lovers of God's; who out of the Living, Pure Eternal Spirit of Life, are holding forth Faith, Worſhip, Prayers, and Ordinances, and contending for them, againſt the very Life it ſelf, that in a more plain Appearance is riſen and departed from them; and come to know the one True Faith, Worſhip, and Great Ordinance of God, by the Operation of his Spirit in all your Hearts and Conſciences; elſe you will dye in your Sins, and Chriſt ſhall profit you nothing, but your Dreams of Salvation ſhall vaniſh, and utter Deſtruction will be your Portion for evermore.

CHAP. XV.

Chap. XV.

His Charge of our Denial of Baptiſm and the Sacraments, introduc'd with a Diſcourſe of poſitive Commands, Deſtructive of the Foundation of Religion. The Prieſt againſt God, Scripture and Reaſon. He confounds himſelf. Baptiſm of Water prov'd John's; and not to continue. Mat. 28. 19. 1 Cor. 1. 17. Epheſ. 4. 5. cleared and vindicated. The One Spiritual Baptiſm defended.

§. 1. I Am now come to the two laſt Particulars of this Charge. Baptiſm, and the Lord's Supper, which he introduceth with a ſhort Diſcourſe of the Nature of God's Commands, reſpecting Goſpel-Ordinances, which he ſays, we deny. I ſhall only take Notice of this Paſſage, where he tells us, That the Ordinances, hitherto conſider'd, are called Moral, from their natural Obligation, although reſpecting the Subſtance, they deſerve a more Evangelical Denomination, without which we cannot (ſays he) call them Chriſtian Ordinances. But theſe two I come now to conſider, are purely poſitive, and depend meerly upon divinely reveal'd Inſtitution, and God has ſo expreſs'd his Jealouſie over this Right of his, that when Sins not only againſt natural Light, but ſuperadded Precepts to confirm and ſtrengthen it's Doubtfulneſs and Decays, have been paſſed by without any ſpecial Expreſſions of his Provocation; Sins committed againſt his poſitive Laws (as Circumciſion, and all Ceremonial Laws, as well as Water-Baptiſm, and what is generally call'd the Lord's Supper) have been avenged with an high Hand.

To all I return theſe ſhort Heads of Matter. Firſt, That a Miniſtry, grounded Internally upon the Grace and Gifts of God; externally upon the Scriptures of Truth; A well order'd Church, conſiſting of Religious Members; Preaching, Praying, and that Scripturally too (by him call'd Chriſtian-Ordinances) are by him made Natural to all Nations, antecedent to Chriſt's outward Coming, and conſequently, there was the Thing Chriſtianity, before the Name Chriſtianity: which pleads our Cauſe againſt his firſt Chapter; and a groſs Self-Contradiction. Next, that thoſe he calls Natural Ordinances, and of Univerſal Obligation, are far more Subſtantial and Neceſſary to Salvation, than thoſe two of Water-Baptiſm, and the Lord's Supper, upon which he more peculiarly beſtows the Title of Chriſtian; ſince no Man can ever be ſaved without the one, I mean thoſe Natural Ordinances, as he calls them; and any Man may be certainly ſaved without the other, that he ſo peculiarly calls Chriſtian Ordinances; which how Unreaſonable, and Prepoſterous it is, let the Impartial Judge.

Ch. XV.

Yet again, his great Ignorance, and Abuſe of God, and true Religion, appears in this, that not only he himſelf egregiouſly errs in ſuch a Conſtruction, but confidently aſſirms God to be more concern'd to vindicate the former, and take Vengeance for the Breach of his poſitive and exterior Precepts, as the Ceremonial Part of the Jews Worſhip, and the Bread, Wine, and Water Sacramentally us'd now a-days (if yet as ſuch, they may be accounted Precepts) which the Devil himſelf can creep into the Profeſſion of, and cannot cleanſe as concerning the Conſcience, than of his fundamental natural and ſubſtantial Laws and Ordinances, without which God cannot be worſhipped, nor one Soul ſaved; in plain Contradiction to that notable Paſſage of the Prophet, Bring no more Vain Oblations, Incenſe is Abomination unto me, the Sabbaths, the Calling of Aſſemblies I cannot away with, it is Iniquity, even the Solemn Meeting. And when you ſpread forth your Hands, I will hide mine Eyes from you; yea, when ye make (or multiply) many Prayers, I will not hear; your Hands are full of Blood: Waſh ye, make you clean, put away the Evil of your Doings from before Mine Eyes; ceaſe to do Evil, learn to do well, ſeek Judgment, Relieve the Oppreſſed, Judge the Fatherleſs, plead for the Widow; where the Cauſe is determin'd againſt him. For here we have an Account of their Exactneſs in many Outward Ceremonial Laws, ſtanding in figurative Things, and a moſt ſevere Reproof of them, for their great Degeneracy and Corruption, as to their Morals, or Rebellion againſt God's Natural Ordinances, as J. Faldo calls them.

God himſelf brings the natural and poſitive Ordinances (as by this Prieſt diſtinguiſht) into the Scales, and gives the Weight againſt the latter. Let him ſhow us whenever there was a Man waſht and clean'd that was reprov'd for omitting any of thoſe poſitive and Ceremonial Laws, as I have produc'd a plain Scripture, that expreſſes God's Deteſtation and Abhorrence of thoſe of his Elected Nation the Jews, that erred from the Eternal Law of Righteouſneſs writ in the Hearts of the very Heathens, though they were never ſo punctual as to their Obſervance of Outward Inſtitutions; and he will do ſomething; otherwiſe, as it is manifeſt, what a Kind of Chriſtianity this Man would make, that any Celſus or Porphyry would blow away with a Breath; ſo it is moſt clear, that God lays a far greater Streſs upon Men's walking up to thoſe Immutable Ordinances (by our Adverſary called Natural, which we can accept of, as being proper to Mankind) than thoſe Temporary and Shadowy Services that muſt vaniſh upon the Appearance of the Subſtance it ſelf.

And laſtly, It is no leſs than Blaſphemy in our Adverſary, and an evident Contradiction to himſelf, to aſſert, That the Light he grants thoſe Immutable Ordinances to reſult from, may be doubtful, or decay, reſpecting it ſelf: Since it were to ſay, That God the Fountain of that Rivulet of Light, from whence thoſe excellent Streams Come, is Doubtful, and lyable to decay; for whatever is naturally incident to any Meaſure of Light; is ſo to the whole: Nay, it is to affirm, That from a doubtful and decayable Light may and do iſſue forth Clear, Divine and Eternal Precepts of Righteouſneſs. I would not have J. Faldo lay the Blame of his own Doubts or Decays upon the Light; but upon his own Rebellion againſt it. He has too too largely vilified that bleſſed Manifeſtation, to receive much Benefit by it. But O the Injuſtice of Men, that impute all Incapacity to ſee, which is truly from themſelves, to the Light Within, which yet they refuſe to be ruled by! Let the ſober Reader be ſeriouſly warned, that he believe in no ſuch Peſtiferous Doctrine, which in ſhort, tends to no more nor leſs, than an Exalting and Preferring the Exterior Coat, or Shell of Religion (and that moſt of their own making too) above and beyond that Eternal Light, which is the Law of God in the Heart, that leads to perform our Duty uprightly both to God and Man. For I had rather be Moral Socrates in the Day of God's Terrible Judgment, than Out-ſide-Chriſtian J. Faldo, with all his Jeer and Enmity againſt Chriſt's Light within. But let's hear what he ſays to theſe Chriſtian Ordinances in particular, though we have no Reaſon to expect much to his own Purpoſe, whatever he may ſay for ours, when we conſider, how ſhamefully he has introduced them.

§. 2. I ſhall begin with Water-Baptiſm, it being the firſt in order of the two, both in it's Inſtitution and Practice; which the Quakers deny (in theſe Words) ' Baptiſm ' we own, which is the Baptiſm of Chriſt with the Holy Ghoſt, and with Fire; ' but we deny all others. J. Parnel's Shield of Truth, pag. 11, To which I ſay, that we have great Reaſon ſo to do; for firſt, Chriſt never was Adminiſtrator of Water-Baptiſm, but that of Fire and the Holy Ghoſt. Water-Baptiſm was John's, the Fore-runner, figuratively, and uſed to that Preparation, neceſſary to receive the viſible Coming of the Meſſiah; were the Meſſiah now viſibly to come, and John Baptiſt alive, it would be Indiſputable: But that Time being paſt, and it being John's Viſible Adminiſtration, which is over, and not Chriſt's; and laſtly, that the Fore-runner is not to continue, but give way to Him, and his Adminiſtration, that was ſo fore-run, which was Chriſt, and his Baptiſm; we do conclude, that there is no ſuch Baptiſm, as J. Faldo charges us with the Denial of, that can plead any Continuance in the Chriſtian Church: Which John himſelf was not unſenſible of, when he ſaid, I ſhall Decreaſe, but he will Increaſe; and who (like the Morning-Star) accordingly Decreaſt, and became Eclipſt by the Encreaſe of the Brighter Glory of Chriſt, who was and is Lord of all.

§. 3. If any ſhould ſay, that it is not meant of John's Baptiſm; but a New Water-Baptiſm inſtituted by Chriſt, becauſe of thoſe Words only on which they ground their Commiſſion, Go teach all Nations, Baptizing them, &c. J. Faldo anſwers for me, that it is a Miſtake; He means not another Water-Baptiſm from John's, when he tells us, that the Water-Baptiſm (which he calls the Chriſtian Ordinance, and renders the Quakers a ſort of Heathens for denying) is that Baptiſm which was in Point of Order and Juſtification, before the Bread and Wine were inſtituted: which how well ſoever it may ſquare with the Epiſcopalians, Presbyterians, Independents, and Anabaptiſts Notion of Baptiſm, (whom he ſays, he has no farther concern'd in his Book, than vindicated) and his own date of Chriſtianity from Chriſt's Reſurrection, it is manifeſt; firſt, That no Commiſſion was given by Chriſt, before he broke Bread with his Diſciples; Conſequently he muſt intend John*'s only:* And next, That John*'s Commiſſion it ſelf is not extant*; much leſs any Commiſſion to perpetuate his, as generally obliging: But above all, that the Diſciples of Chriſt ſhould not only uſe, but eſteem for an Ordinance of Chriſt, a Baptiſm, that had not their Lord for it's Adminiſtrator, as ſaith the Scripture; for Jeſus baptized not, is abſurd, and altogether Anti-Goſpel. If we will credit Chriſt's own ſaying, The leaſt in the Kingdom of Heaven is greater than John; as if he ſhould have ſaid; John's Adminiſtration was an Introduction, and a Kind of Preparation in order to my Coming, but no otherwiſe is it intereſted in my Kingdom, which is Spiritual, and that I am now about to ſet up in the Hearts and Conſciences of Men; and the leaſt of that Spiritual Kingdom is greater than the Children of John's Watry Diſpenſation.

§. 4. That this is Truth I will farther prove even from that very Place, which they repute a ſufficient Commiſſion for Water-Baptiſm. Go therefore and teach all Nations, Baptizing them in the Name of the Father, Son, and the Holy Ghoſt, &c. Mat. 28.

In diſcourſing of Things laid down by the Evangeliſts, it will not always ſuffice what ſome one Evangeliſt ſaith; as in the Paſſage Controverted. We have here a Commiſſion, it is granted; but what it was with reſpect to the Baptiſm mentioned, and the Time when it was to take Place, will be the Queſtion; To reſolve which, we muſt have Recourſe to another Place, without which this cannot be ſo clear to thoſe, who ſeek after Scripture Demonſtration. Luke, in his Hiſtory of the Acts of the Apoſtles, ſoon after his Addreſs to Theophilus, gives us an Account of ſome Farewel-Expreſſions, Chriſt uſed to his Diſciples; not ſo fully expreſt in his Hiſtory; which he delivers to us after this Manner: And being aſſembled together with them, he (Chriſt) commanded them, that they ſhould not depart from Jeruſalem, but wait for the Promiſe of the Father, which (ſays he) ye have heard of me. For John truly baptized with Water, but ye ſhall be baptized with the Holy Ghoſt not many Days hence.

From whence nothing can be clearer, than firſt, that the Baptiſm mention'd in, Go teach all Nations, baptizing them, &c. was not the Baptiſm of John; but the Baptiſm of the Holy Ghoſt, call'd, the Promiſe of the Father, which they were to wait for, recorded by Luke, both in the 24th Chapter of his Hiſtory of Chriſt, and the firſt Chapter of his Hiſtory of the Acts of the Apoſtles. Nay, leſt it ſhould be thought, that he meant of another Water-Baptiſm, as ſome vainly imagine; to help their Underſtanding, and prevent all ſuch Miſtake, he diſtinguiſhes, not betwixt John*'s Water-Baptiſm, and his own, but betwixt any Water-Baptiſm at all, and his own Baptiſm of the Holy Ghoſt.* John indeed baptized with Water, but ye ſhall be baptized with the Holy Ghoſt. Then you will be fitly qualified, and commiſſionated, after you ſhall have received the Promiſe of the Father, which you are to wait for, and then to go and teach all Nations, baptizing them, &c. Suitable to thoſe Expreſſions of the Baptiſt himſelf; I indeed baptize you with Water, but he ſhall baptize you with the Holy Ghoſt. His Fan is in his Hand, he will throughly purge his Floor. He that cometh after me is preferred before me.

Beſides, the very Words themſelves taken in the Original Tongue, import in Point of Propriety nothing leſs. For the Greek knows no ſuch Thing, as βαπτίζοντες αὐτοὺς ἐν τῷ ὀνόματι, &c. baptizing them in the Name, but βαπτίζοντες αὐτοὺς εἰς τὸ ὄνομα, baptizing them into the Name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghoſt, which by the frequent Uſe of that Prepoſition, Εἰς, Into, it is impoſſible for Water-Baptiſm to do; no more, than for a Man by it to be baptiz'd with the ſame Baptiſm, wherewith Chriſt was to be baptized; to be buried with him, Chriſt, to be baptized into Chriſt, and ſo to be baptized into his Death; or by it, and not by One Spirit, to be baptized into one Body. Which becauſe no Water-Baptiſm could ever do, it conſequently follows, that it was never intended of Water-Baptiſm, ſince it would then have been, to aſcribe that to meer Water-Baptiſm, which it is both utterly impoſſible for it ever to perform, and is really the alone Property of the Spiritual Baptiſm of Chriſt to effect.

§. 5. To our Objection of the Apoſtle's Anſwer, Chriſt ſent me not to Baptize, but to Preach; he argues; Becauſe he did baptize ſome, therefore it was an Ordinance; and that he baptized ſo few, was but providential, not deſigned; and the Reaſon why it was not laid upon the Apoſtle Paul, was becauſe his Call was Extraordinary and out of due Time.

But the Confuſion and the Weakneſs of this Reply, might ſave me the Labour of an Anſwer, with all, but thoſe who might eſteem it Unanſwerable, becauſe almoſt Unintelligible. For if every Practice was an Inſtitution, then becauſe the ſame Apoſtle Circumciſed, it was a Chriſtian Ordinance. Practice then, we ſee, and all the reaſonable World knows, is not Inſtitution. Many Things indifferent in their Nature may be practiſed and uſed, and yet never inſtituted or required.

That he had it not in his Commiſſion, the Prieſt himſelf grants; but excuſes that Defect by a greater, viz. He was called extraordinarily, and out of due Time. But as they were all extraordinarily call'd, or elſe the Prieſt contradicts himſelf, ſo if we may believe the Apoſtle, he was inferior to none of them; If not in his Works, I know no Reaſon, why he ſhould be reputed ſo in his Commiſſion. That his Commiſſion was of God is granted on all Hands; And if it pleaſed God to make it none of Paul's Commiſſion, we would be glad to ſee any of our Time produce one more large and effectual; 'till when, we are contented with no more Extent in the Point, than God pleaſed to give that Great Apoſtle; and believe, whatever J. Faldo ſays to the contrary, that he was a Goſpel-Chriſtian-Apoſtle: And if Water Baptiſm had been then reputed a Goſpel-Chriſtian-Ordinance, neither had God omitted that in his Commiſſion, nor had the Apoſtle ſpoke ſo lightly of it.

§. 6. But J. Parnel offends him in theſe Words, at leaſt he takes Offence at them; " They who would have one Baptiſm inward, another outward, would " have Two Baptiſms, when the Scripture ſaith, The Baptiſm is but one. Shield of Truth, pag. 11. Which he would be thought to confute thus, and it ſeems more material, than any Thing he has writ on this Subject.

I muſt tell him by the Way, that he tells an Untruth wilfully. He uſes, or rather abuſes the Words of the Apoſtle juſt before repeated; one Lord, one Faith, one Baptiſm; and there he adds but, which the Text has not. And here the Scripture ſaith, the Baptiſm is but one: Let him find me (ſays J. Faldo) ſuch a Scripture, and I will be bound to turn Quaker.

I perceive the Man thinks he can turn Quaker much at the Rate he can Pray, I mean when he will; but I will tell him ſo much, that it is as hard a Taſk for him to turn True Quaker, as to be a True Primitive Chriſtian, a thing moſt difficult to be ſure.

But to his Quibble about But, J. Parnel has told a wilful Untruth, in ſaying the Baptiſm is but one: I ſuppoſe it will be allow'd that there was one Baptiſm, in the ſame Senſe that there was one Lord, one Faith. Now, if there is but one Lord, and one Faith, as it is to be ſuppoſed, J. Faldo believes, why ſhould it be ſo Criminal to ſay, there is but one Baptiſm? If ſaying, there is one Lord, and one Faith, be ſynonimous or equivalent, with affirming that there is but one Lord, and one Faith; I cannot ſee how it ſhould be an Untruth to ſay, that there is one Baptiſm, is one and the ſame Thing with our ſaying, there is (but) One Baptiſm. In ſhort, if there is more than One Baptiſm, becauſe the Apoſtle does not ſay, there is but One Baptiſm; then there are more Goſpels, Lords, and Faiths, becauſe the Apoſtle did not ſay, there was but one Goſpel, but one Lord, and but one Faith; conſequently there may be many Goſpels, Lords and Faiths, as well as Baptiſms.

§. 7. Enough of this Weakneſs; His Strength follows. Water-Baptiſm is the Sign, the Baptiſm of the Spirit ſomething (but not all) ſignified. Now to call the Thing ſignifying and ſignified, by the ſame Name, doth not make them Two of that Name, no more than there were two New Covenants, becauſe both the Matter contained in it, Heb. 8. 10. and Circumciſion the Sign, Gen. 17. 13. are called the Covenant.

I ſhall grant to him, that the Thing ſignifying, and ſignified, are ſometimes called by one and the ſame Name; as Baptiſm: But when diſtinguiſht by Water and Holy Ghoſt, I hope, nothing that is not as blind or hardned as J. Faldo (if yet he himſelf) will ſay, that therefore they are but one Baptiſm. Chriſt himſelf diſtinguiſhes betwixt John and his Baptiſm; and himſelf and his Baptiſm: And frequently his Apoſtles, yea the Baptiſt himſelf, ſeem'd to take all Occaſions, whereby to let People know, that his Baptiſm was but that of Water, and that the Baptiſm of Chriſt was not of Water, but of the Holy Ghoſt, as the Scriptures in the Margin plainly prove.

So in the Word Circumciſion, compounded of the ſame Letters, and Syllables, let it be uſed to expreſs that of the Body, or the Fleſh; or that of the Heart in Spirit: Yet it is to be hoped, that none will conclude, there were not Two Circumciſions, and ſo Two Jews; the one Inward, and the other Outward. Though now he is no more a Jew, that is one Outwardly; neither is that Circumciſion, which is outward in the Fleſh; but he is a Jew which is one Inwardly, and Circumciſion is that of the Heart, in the Spirit, and not in the Letter, whoſe Praiſe is not of Men, but of God.

§. 8. And ſhould we grant him what he deſires, as to the ſame Name, being applicable to the Sign and the Thing ſignified; yet Weak and Wretched muſt his Sophiſm appear to all clear-ſighted Readers; For if therefore the Baptiſm of Water and of the Spirit are one, becauſe the ſame Word is applicable to the Sign, and the Thing ſignified, and in that Senſe they are both of them one Baptiſm: Then by juſt Conſequence, muſt the Circumciſion outwardly in the Fleſh, and the Circumciſion of the Heart in the Spirit, be One; becauſe the Word of it ſelf is equally applicable to both; and Conſequently they are both of them One Circumciſion: What Jew living could have reaſon'd better for the Continuation and Perpetuity of Circumciſion? But becauſe he has ſaid nothing here for Baptiſm, more than what may be ſaid for Circumciſion; and that Circumciſion is utterly exploded of the Chriſtian Religion, as a Sign, whoſe Signification is come, and therefore no more a Sign; our Aſſertion of the One Spiritual Baptiſm of Fire and the Holy Ghoſt, as only upon the ſame Foundation, proper to Chriſt's Kingdom, doth remain fixt and immoveable againſt all the Batteries of our Adverſary.

Chap. XVI.

CHAP. XVI.

The Supper he ſays we deny, not deny'd but fulfill'd. The Scriptures Conſulted. No Perpetuity prov'd. That it was a Sign. And that Signs were done away in Chriſt, demonſtrated. The preſent Practice in the Caſe not Primitive. Our Faith left with God in the Matter.

§. 1. BUT the Quakers, (he ſays) diſown the Ordinance of the Lord's Supper to be now a Goſpel-Ordinance; for which he cites J. Parnel, a young Man now dead, often in his Eye, as he was grievouſly ſo to J. Faldo's Brethren the Independents at Cogſhall in Eſſex, who by unparallel'd, and never to be forgotten Cruelties, murder'd him, as may be ſeen in my Second Part of our Serious Apology, pag. 185, 186, 187. His Words, as he quotes them, are theſe; "For the Bread "which the World breaks, is Natural and Carnal; ſo alſo the Cup which they drink; "and here is no Communion, but what is Outward and Carnal. Shield of Truth, pag. 13. Alſo W. Smith thus; They [Bread and Wine in the Lord's Supper] are the Pope's Invention. His Primm. pag. 39.

1673. Chap. XVI.

To the firſt Citation, I anſwer, that the Bread and Wine, being of an Outward, Elementary Nature and Subſtance, may with reſpect to what they ſignify, be very properly termed Natural and Carnal, for ſo they are. And the World, that is, thoſe who are doing it upon meer Imitation, and not from any Heavenly Commiſſion, they ſee no farther, and their Communion may well be ſaid to be Natural, Outward, and Carnal.

To the Second, I do challenge J. Faldo to make it good, and require it at his Hand in the View of the World, to produce any ſuch Words out of W. Smith's Books; and that he may not plead Miſtake of Authors, I will give him the Scope of all our Books and Friends, to prove that we ever call'd the Bread and Wine Chriſt bleſt, the Invention of the Pope. O ungodly Man! What haſt thou done, that God ſhould thus give thee up, not only to believe Lyes thy ſelf, but to endeavour to make others do the like! Thy Book ſhall be a Mill-ſtone about thy Neck in the Day of the righteous and terrible Judgments of Almighty God. We deny the Expreſſion, and lay the Slander at J. Faldo's Door.

§. 2. But the Quakers main Objection (ſays he) is, that Chriſt is come in Spirit to them, and his Diſciples were to do it in Remembrance of him 'till he came; therefore this Precept doth not bind them. J. Faldo pretends thus to anſwer, But who would think, that Chriſt in the Spirit was not come (either in ſhedding it Abroad miraculouſly as in the 2d of the Acts; or as a Sanctifier) in the Hearts of the People, when the Diſciples and whole Church of Jeruſalem, were ſo frequent in this Ordinance; and when the Apoſtle Paul tells us, to the Corinthians; The Bread which we break, &c. it was for thoſe to whom Chriſt was come by a Spirit of Sanctification, not thoſe in a State of Sin, unconverted to Chriſt.

That I may briefly and fully reply, be pleas'd to obſerve (1) That we don't deny Bread and Wine to have been given, and that by Command of Chriſt to his Diſciples. (2) That it was a Sign to them of that Life he would give for the World, and which at that Time they were weak in the Knowledge of. (3) We believe the Life moſt eminently meant, and which they were to do it in the Remembrance of, was that Fleſh and Blood that in the 6th of John he ſaid, Who did not eat nor drink thereof, ſhould have no Life in them; and which, five Verſes after, he calls the Bread that came down from Heaven. (4) 'Tis our Faith, that this heavenly Bread and Wine, and Fleſh and Blood, which ſuch were to eat of, that would have Life Eternal, for which he came (and of which the Diſciples themſelves were then ſo ignorant) was the Thing ſignified by the Sign Chriſt gave his Diſciples. (5) That Sign is no longer of Force in Point of Inſtitution, than 'till the Thing ſignified is come; ſo that who truly witneſs the Coming of Chriſt into their Souls, and the Eternal Bread of Life, or Fleſh and Blood, to nouriſh, are rightly come to an End of the Sign and Figure. (6) That Chriſt did ſo come is evident from many Scriptures. There be ſome ſtanding here, that ſhall not taſte of Death (ſaid he) 'till they ſee the Son of Man Coming in his Kingdom. I will not leave you Comfortleſs, I will come to you. Implying, that he was the Comforter, that ſhould come to them after the withdrawing of that Outward Appearance, which was expedient for them to be done: He that is with you, ſhall be in you; and Abundance to the ſame Purpoſe. (7) That the Practice of it after the Pouring forth of the Spirit, is not, neither can it be, any Inſtitution, or ſo much as a Continuance of it upon an Inſtitution, any more than the Apoſtles forbearing ſeveral Things lawful in themſelves, that were upon the Command of the Jewiſh Ceremonial Law forbidden; The Circumciſion of many Gentiles; and above all, the Apoſtle Paul's purifying of himſelf at the Temple of Jeruſalem, after he had been near thirty Years a Chriſtian, or Goſpel-Preacher, and conſequently a Thrower-down and Demoliſher both of the Temple, and all it's Ceremonial Worſhip. (8) That every one who believ'd, and were in ſome Meaſure turned to the Chriſtian Religion, and were accounted Members of the ſeveral Churches becauſe of ſuch Profeſſion, did not preſently come to know Chriſt after the Spirit, or diſcern his ſpiritual Manifeſtation, and whilſt they were as yet Weak and Carnal in their Conceptions of Chriſt, believing in him, and accounting of him but after the Fleſh, (a Knowledge of him, the Apoſtle himſelf confeſſeth once but to have had) the Outward Bread and Wine might be ſuitable to that Sort of Belief, and a Sign ſhewing forth a more Spiritual, Internal Bread and Cup, which the Apoſtle in the ſame foregoing Chapter to the Corinthians, expreſſeth thus; For we being many are one Bread, and one Body; for we are all Partakers of that one Bread; The Cup of Bleſſing which we bleſs, is it not the Communion of the Blood of Chriſt? The Bread which we break, is it not the Communion of the Body of Chriſt? I ſpeak as to wiſe

Men: Judge ye what I ſay. Which evidently imports a more Inward Heavenly Bread, Fellowſhip and Communion, both with Chriſt, and one another. (9) It ought not to ſtumble any, that it ſhould laſt to that Day and yet be laid aſide Now; For, Cuſtoms, when once introduc'd and receiv'd, are not eaſy to be relinquiſht or left off; and it having been the Token Chriſt gave to his Diſciples in the Time of their great Weakneſs, Fear and Unbelief concerning him, it was quickly embrac'd and imitated, by ſuch as believ'd, eſpecially Jews, who juſt coming out of a Multitude of External Services, were ready to make Part of their Religion conſiſt therein: But as ſuch came to grow into the true Jews State, they ſaw beyond all Exterior Signs and Services, And that things which could be taſted or handled, and that periſht with the Uſing, and that could never cleanſe the Conſcience from dark Works, but were Shadows only of Chriſt the Living Eternal Subſtance and Bread of Life, could not be ſtanding Ordinances of the Everlaſting Goſpel.

§. 3. And truly, when I have ſometimes conſider'd the Apoſtle Paul's inſpir'd Epiſtles to his beloved Timothy, and that among the many weighty, plain and neceſſary Things therein declared, and recommended for the Increaſe of Godlineſs, and good Order in the Church of Chriſt, he ſhould be wanting to expreſs ſomething about theſe two Points, of Water-Baptiſm, and the Lord's-Supper, ſo call'd, and inſiſted upon, as the moſt weighty Ordinances of the Goſpel (in Compariſon of which Praying, Preaching, good Life, and ſuch like (the great Subjects of thoſe Epiſtles) J. Faldo reputes meer Heatheniſm) I have concluded with my ſelf, that that had his Value of them been equal, with what ſome now put upon them, he would not, or rather the Holy Spirit, have omitted a very peculiar Recommendation of them. But though this be ſufficient to dull the Edge of their Spirits, who daily cut and hack at us for our (not Denial, but) affirming the fulfilling of them by the Coming of a more living Bread; Yet our ſo knowing and witneſſing a more Heavenly Table ſpread, and the Preſence of the Eternal God withdrawn out of that Practice, ſo abuſed by the Idolatries, Superſtitions and Perverſions of ſeveral Ages; and that Revenge, Blood-ſhed and Deſtruction, which have followed the ſeveral Contenders for it, all without Commiſſion, as well as out of the Primitive Order, is the Chief Ground, not of denying it ever to have been in Uſe before it's Abuſe, as is before expreſt, but of our letting fall any farther Practice of it. And this I hope, will be accounted a Modeſt, Sober, and Chriſtian Account of our Faith, which we leave with God to weigh againſt the Chaffy Flurts and vilifying Epithets J. Faldo uſes againſt us; and which for Brevity Sake I omit to tranſcribe.

CHAP. XVII.

Ch. XVII.

His Charge of our Denying Chriſt's Tranſactions to influence into our Juſtification conſidered. His Proofs not for him. His Abuſe of our Friends Words. Juſtification diſtinguiſht upon, as Remiſſion, and as daily Acceptance. The Tranſactions of Chriſt largely own'd by us. The Scriptures confirm our Faith in Chriſt, as a general and particular Saviour. No Works of Man Meritorious.

§. 1. I Am now come to that Part of his Charge, which affirms our Denial of the Tranſactions of Jeſus Chriſt in the Fleſh to have any Influence into our Juſtification (an uncouth Phraſe) before God, and our Salvation. To prove which he brings forth three Paſſages of our Friends; "All that are called Presbyterians, "and Independents, with their feeding upon a Report of a Thing done many "Hundred Years ago. E. Burroughs's Trump. p. 17. Which J. Faldo wickedly conſtrues, thus; This he ſaith by Way of Reproach againſt all that act Faith on, and receive Comfort from the Bleſſed Effects of Chriſt's Righteouſneſs and Sufferings by him wrought and ſuffered, when he was in the World: Whereas in Honeſty and Truth (which J. Faldo ſhews himſelf wholly unacquainted with) he meant no more, than their Exceſſive Admiration of, and the Regard to what Chriſt did without, whilſt they neglected, undervalued and decry'd for Blaſphemy and Enthuſiaſm the Appearance, Work and Righteouſneſs of Chriſt within. But he thinks, we have miſtaken him, and that he is better arm'd for us, than we are aware of: What Righteouſneſs Chriſt performed without me, was not my Juſtification, neither was I ſaved by it: R. Farnſworth he quotes for Author, but no Book; which is very unfair. However, this may be ſaid in Defence of R. F. that what gives daily Acceſs and Acceptance to, and with the Lord, is that Preparation of Clean, and 1673. Ch. XVII. Righteous Adornment the Soul actually receives from Chriſt, who is the Lord her Righteouſneſs. And take Juſtification in this Senſe, and not for Remiſſion, in which he meant it, if ever he ſaid it. And we do all own and acknowledge the ſame, and let our Adverſary do his worſt: Only I deſire him to tell us the Book next Time, which affords that Expreſſion.

§. 2. But I. Pennington, he thinks, he has made his own. Can Outward Blood cleanſe the Conſcience? Can Outward Water waſh the Soul clean? Queſt. p. 25. I beſeech you that read me, hear his Comment, 'A plain Denial of the Efficacy of 'the Blood of Chriſt ſhed on the Croſs to cleanſe the Soul from the Guilt of Sin, 'by it's Satisfaction to the Juſtice of God.

I have had to do with many Enemies to God's Truth; But I muſt profeſs to the whole World, I never yet ſaw, ſpoke to, or read of a more diſingenuous Man: To pervert our Words, alter Sentences, draw Generals from Particulars, and then call them Ours, is Baſe and Unmanly. I would fain have an impartial Man anſwer me. Doth I. P. deny, or any way meddle with the Outward Blood concerning the Guilt of Sin paſt, how far it had an Influence into Juſtification, taking Juſtification in that Senſe? But does he not treat of the Outward Blood, with reſpect to Purgation and Sanctification of the Soul from the preſent Acts and Habits of Sin, that lodge therein? Is he ſo Sottiſh, as to make no Diſtinction betwixt being pardon'd Sin paſt, and the Ground of it; and being renewed and regenerated in Mind and Spirit, and the Ground of that Converſion? Or elſe is he ſo impiouſly Unjuſt, that becauſe we do deny, that Outward Blood can be brought into the Conſcience to perform that Inward Work (which they themſelves dare not, nay, do not hold) Therefore I. Pennington, denies any Efficacy to be in that Outward Offering and Blood towards Juſtification, as it reſpects meer Remiſſion of former Sins, and Iniquities? This may give the ſober-minded ſome Reliſh of his Rancour: We do ſay, that Outward Blood can no more cleanſe, then Outward Water; But we alſo ſay, That Chriſt's Blood had an Influence into Juſtification (as he praſeth it) which I ſhall preſently ſhow.

§. 3. He undertakes the Defence, of what he falſly ſays we deny, but ſo confuſedly, as ought to ſhame a modeſt Man, and a Pretender to Controverſy.

His firſt Scripture is this. And he received the Sign of Circumciſion, a Seal of the Righteouſneſs of Faith, which he had yet being uncircumciſed, that he might be the Father of all them, that believe, though they be not circumciſed, that Righteouſneſs might be imputed to them, Rom. 4. 11. His Obſervation and Inference run thus, that Imputation is a Reckoning that to any, which they have not from themſelves, nor actually from another, otherwiſe it could not be Grace, therefore it was the Righteouſneſs of another, not his own:

This is ſo baſe a Perverſion and Miſ-uſing of the Word, that Imputation both in Scripture, and Common Diſcourſe is always taken and uſed in the contrary Senſe; Let him produce me one Scripture that countenanceth his Notion. This imputed Righteouſneſs is beſt underſtood by the Context: Even as David alſo deſcribeth the Bleſſedneſs of the Man unto whom God imputes Righteouſneſs without Works, ſaying, Bleſſed are they, whoſe Iniquities are forgiven, and whoſe Sins are covered; Bleſſed is the Man, unto whom the Lord will not impute Sin. Cometh this Bleſſedneſs then upon the Circumciſion only, or Uncircumciſion alſo? For we ſay, that Faith was reckoned to Abraham for Righteouſneſs. How was it then reckoned? when he was in Circumciſion, or Uncircumciſion? And he received the Sign of Circumciſion, a Seal of the Righteouſneſs of the Faith, which he had yet being Uncircumciſed, that he might be the Father of all them that believe, though they be not Circumciſed; that Righteouſneſs might be imputed unto them alſo. Verſe 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11.

In which we may perceive, Firſt, that the Righteouſneſs was by the Apoſtle inferr'd from David's Words of the Bleſſedneſs of that Man, unto whom God imputed not Sin. As much as if he had ſaid, Whom God forgives, he imputes not Sin to; and to whom he imputes not Sin, ſuch he looks upon as Righteous, that is, to be as clear of the Guilt of former Sin by Remiſſion, as if it had never been committed. Secondly, that not Works of our own, no, though aſſiſted by the Holy Spirit to perform them, ſtrictly conſider'd, can juſtifie in this Senſe, but Faith only in the Goodneſs, Mercy, and Promiſe of God to Pardon, Remit, and ſhow Favour unto all ſuch, who, diſtruſting their own Weakneſs, and Repenting of their former Miſcarriages, humbly, yet firmly put their Confidence in him. This being Abraham's Caſe, with reſpect to himſelf and Poſterity, God no more lookt upon him as a Stranger at a Diſtance from him, but one, who by Faith was brought nigh, and became thus juſtified, not by Works of Righteouſneſs that he wrought, but by Faith in God, which was accounted unto him for Righteouſneſs, and that really too; ſince he could not believe without an inward Act of Righteouſneſs; but not of his own.

§. 4. In ſhort, Juſtification bears a Twofold Senſe in the Scripture; and becauſe we are frequently miſtaken about it, by ſuch as underſtand not the Extent and Uſe of the Word, I will explain it. Juſtification is ſometimes to be underſtood of Remiſſion, or Non-Imputation of Sin upon Repentance, and Faith in the Promiſe of God: In which Senſe we ſay, That all the Righteous Works Man is capable of, either from himſelf, if ſuch can be; or from the Aſſiſtance of the Holy Spirit, ſtrictly as ſuch, can never move one Jot to Juſtification, that is, to the Blotting out of former Iniquities; for if Men could do more a Thouſand-fold than they do, and that it were never ſo acceptable, it is but their preſent Duty, and cannot have Virtue enough in it to anſwer a preſent Obligation, and cancel the old Debt of Diſobedience too: God only upon Faith in his Goodneſs, Mercy, and Holy Promiſe, can give Remiſſion, Pardon, or make Free from the heavy Debt Tranſgreſſion hath brought upon us; and that not as thereby meriting, but as obtaining ſuch Remiſſion from God, upon his own Free Tender. This is Evangelical Faith, and Righteouſneſs too, of which Abraham was a Partaker, as well before as after Circumciſion, that he might be the Father of all.

§. 5. But Juſtification is not only taken for Remiſſion of former Sins, and Accounting of Believers, as if they had never Tranſgreſt, that is Righteous; but for that Regenerate and Clean State of Soul, and that Acceſs to, and Acceptance with God reſpecting Daily Duty; In which Senſe, no Man, nor Woman ever was, or ever will be Juſtified another Way, than by Inward and Real Righteouſneſs. Nor in this Senſe can any be farther Juſtified and Accepted, than as they are thus Purified and Regenerated; ſince it would be to ſay, not only that God upon Repentance of former Sins, and Belief in his Promiſe, has blotted out their Iniquities, which may be, whilſt Habitual Sin is yet but a working out, and not quite overcame; for that is True enough: But that God accepts ſuch as Purified, Sanctified, and Regenerated (the other Senſe of Juſtification) while they are actually Impure, and Unregenerated; this we abominate, and than which nothing can be affirm'd more Reproachful to, and Deſtructive of His Eternal Holineſs.

§. 6. Having thus explained, and expreſt what we underſtand by the Word Juſtification, I ſhall declare, how far we believe CHRIST JESUS our Lord, reſpecting his Coming both in the Fleſh, and Spirit, influenceth into our Juſtification (as the Prieſt terms it) The Seed, afterwards call'd Chriſt, was, and is God's Free Gift, Promiſe, and Covenant of Light, by whom alone, Remiſſion, Juſtification, and Eternal Salvation did, or can come to Mankind: That in the Fulneſs of Time, a Body was prepared, in which he came to fulfil the Father's Good Pleaſure; That He Preacht the Promiſe of Remiſſion of Sin, and Salvation, to as many as believed in him, and took up his Croſs and followed him; confirming the ſame by many Miracles. For this Doctrine of Redemption, and aſſerting himſelf to be the Off-ſpring of God, One with God, to whom all Power in Heaven and Earth was committed, the Jews perſecuted him, ſtigmatizing him with the Name of Blaſphemer, and at laſt apprehended and crucified him. We do ſay then, That Faith in the ſame Chriſt, who then appeared, who ſo Preached, wrought Miracles, and laid down his Life for the World, and not in another, does give Remiſſion of Sins; and as follow'd, as becomes all True Diſciples, Eternal Salvation: Yea, That Outward Blood was then, and is now, to be Reverently believed in, as a Seal, Ratification, and ſtrong Confirmation of that Glad Tidings of Remiſſion of Sin, and Eternal Salvation, which he held forth in the Name of the Father, to thoſe who would take up the Croſs and follow him. And therefore with Good Reaſon, was Remiſſion of Sins preached in His Blood, becauſe it was the moſt Viſible Eminent Act of his Life, both fitteſt to recommend his Great Concernment for poor Man, and confirm the Truth of that Bleſſed Goſpel he preached to him in the World.

§. 7. And as for Satisfaction, tho' we deny any ſtrict and rigid Purchaſe, as Carnally underſtood, and irreverently held by many; yet that the Offering up his Innocent Life did, and doth, turn to Account, to as many as truly receive him, we faithfully believe; yea, that he did bear that for Man, (I mean his Iniquity) He could not for himſelf; and has by that Suffering obtained Precious Gifts, that is, That Victory Man could never have obtained; yet ſtill we do aſcribe all that was done, but inſtrumentally to the Bodily Sufferings, and principally to the Will of that Divine Life, whoſe Body it was, which offer'd it up, and by the which Will it was Sanctified, and ſo acceptable with God: Otherwiſe more, nay, all would be aſcrib'd to the Body, which I affirm to be Blaſphemy it ſelf; for it was not the Body eminently, which ſaved the People from their Sins, but that which dwelt in it, whoſe it was; So that though the Body bore the Name of the Whole, yet was it not the Whole; but by Synecdoche, a Part for the Whole, which is very familiar in the Scriptures.

§. 8. To his Spiritual Coming into the Soul, do we aſcribe the Inward Righteouſneſs. We ſay, That Chriſt as He is the Light, Power and Righteouſneſs of God, being received into the Soul, and diligently obey'd, and Communed with, He doth firſt Convince of Sin; then brings Trouble for Sin; and Sin thus becoming a Load to the Soul, he adminiſters Strength to ſhake off every ſuch Load and Burthen, and to conquer and ſubdue the Power of Sin and Satan in the Soul. In which Senſe he is more properly and particularly a Saviour, when he binds the Strong Man, ſpoils his Goods, caſts him out, deſtroys the Works of the Devil, finiſhes Tranſgreſſion, and brings in Everlaſting Righteouſneſs: Otherwiſe, in vain would he have that Title, And thou ſhalt call His Name JESUS, for He ſhall ſave His People from their Sins; not the Effect, Eternal Death, without the Cauſe, Sin: For the Wages of Sin is Death: As Men Sow, ſo ſhall they Reap. And a dreadful Diſappointment will it be to the Hypocritical Profeſſors of this Day, that dream of Juſtification, Redemption and Salvation, and are yet carried away with the Temptations of Satan, at his Will; being ignorant of the inward Power of Chriſt, to bruiſe the Serpent's Head. To conclude, that Righteouſneſs, which Chriſt, as God's True Light, Power and Righteouſneſs works in us (therefore is not of us) is that which alone brings into True Union with God, and Memberſhip with his unſpotted Church; conſequently, no Man without that Qualification, can be ſo accepted with him, or have Acceſs to him; For God is of Purer Eyes than to behold Iniquity; and without Holineſs no Man ſhall ever ſee the Lord. But let none miſtake me, I do not intend, that who is not quite Perfect, is altogether to be Condemned; by no Means: But that Man is only ſo far accepted of God, as he is really Regenerated, and Beautified by the Internal Righteouſneſs of Chriſt.

And to this Purpoſe, is that other Scripture, he quotes againſt us, That as Sin has reigned unto Death, even ſo might Grace reign through Righteouſneſs unto Eternal Life, by Jeſus Chriſt our Lord: For all Men having actually ſinned, and Sin ſo becoming inherent; Grace (that teacheth to deny all Ungodlineſs, and Worldly Luſts, and to live Soberly, Righteouſly and Godly, which is that Righteouſneſs) ſhould alſo Reign in all by Jeſus Chriſt. Now unleſs it be an Evil for us to ſay, that Men are accepted with God upon Chriſt's Inward Righteouſneſs, when the Scriptures ſay, That the Reign of Grace through Righteouſneſs (where Sin reigned, which was within Man certainly, and therefore Inward) is unto Eternal Life (as full a Word, as being accepted with God) I cannot ſee, but in our holding forth Chriſt's Righteouſneſs to be made ours, by the Operation of his Holy Spirit in the Heart, as the Efficient or Principal, if not only Cauſe of our daily Acceptance with God, we are Scripturally Orthodox.

§. 9. We would alſo provide againſt the Malice of thoſe Tongues, who, becauſe we do allow Good Works or Fruits to be well-pleaſing to God, and neceſſary to Life Eternal, do therefore rank us among the Papiſts, as pleading for the Merit of Good Works: For we lay not this Second Sort of Juſtification, and much leſs the Firſt, upon any Exterior Works, that the very Spirit of Truth leads into, as meerly Exterior, be they Acts of Juſtice, Mercy, Charity, or ſuch like: But upon the Holy Working of GOD's Power and Spirit in the Heart, and the Creature's believing in, and reſigning himſelf up unto God, to be by him renewed, ordered, led, and diſpoſed: So that the Creature has no farther Share, than as he bows to the Requirings of God, and contentedly acquieſceth, in what it pleaſeth Almighty God to do with him. So our Wills being daily ſubmitted to the Holy Will of God, which is Sanctification, is the Ground of our Daily Acceptance with God, and being received (not juſt by the Non-Imputation of Sins formerly committed, for that alone depends upon Repentance, and Faith in God's Free Love to remit; but) as juſt, by being actually and really made ſo, through the Participation of the Juſt and Righteous Nature of Chriſt, who is to all ſuch, Wiſdom and Righteouſneſs, and Sanctification and plenteous Redemption; and here we will end this Argument, leaving our Faith therein with God and Men.

I ſhall omit here, as well as elſewhere, taking any Notice of his baſe Revilings, and ſordid Pedantry, unworthy of a Good Chriſtian, or Man of Learning and Civility, and endeavour, as God ſhall enable me, to acquit my ſelf of the Remainder of his Book, with the ſame Honeſty, Truth, Reaſon and Brevity, that I hope, I have done, in what I have hitherto undertaken and diſpatcht.

CHAP. XVIII.

Ch. XVIII.

He ſays we diſown the True Chriſt. It is proved, that He denies in Contradiction to himſelf what we deny; and that we are Scriptural and Sound in our Belief: And though we cannot exclude that Divinity from the True Chriſt, yet we alſo own, that the True Chriſt took Fleſh; that he appeared for the Salvation of Mankind, and that his Bodily Appearance was Inſtrumental in the Point. Chriſt owned according to Scriptures.

§. 1. HE is now arriv'd at the Root-Error of the Quakers, as he is pleaſed to Name it, who is a Man of Names, and ſuch as are Beaſtly enough too ſometimes; but they may paſs perhaps for Goſpel-Zeal, or a pretty Sort of Wit, amongſt ſome of his ſmall Companions, whoſe Diſeaſe is to be miſtaken; but let's hear him patiently.

(Pag. 70, 71.) The Quakers diſown, and deny the Chriſt of God, and ſet up a Falſe Chriſt in his Room and Stead; and attribute all to that Falſe Chriſt, which is due and peculiar to the True Chriſt. This is that Non-ſuch Lye, which travels to bring forth that Babel, wherewith their Religion abounds. His Proof is at Hand. "This "we certainly know, and can never call the Bodily Garment Chriſt, but that "which appeared and dwelt in the Body, Pennington's Queſt. 23. 32. To which he ſays, They do not deny, that there was ſuch a Man as Jeſus, the Son of Mary; and that God, or rather Chriſt was in him: But this is no more than they profeſs of themſelves, that Chriſt as God, is in them; yet that Body of the Man Jeſus, which he calls here the Bodily Garment, he tells us they can never call Chriſt. This Quotation he offers at explaining by another from the ſame Author and Book, p. 20. "For that which he took upon him was our Garment, even the Fleſh and Blood "of our Nature (VERY RIGHT; but what followeth, is woſully falſe) which "is of an Earthly, Periſhing Nature; but He is of an Heavenly Nature. From whence J. Faldo infers againſt us, That the Body, Chriſt took upon himſelf of our Nature, is not the Chriſt.

But before we give him off, we hope, through the Help of our God to prove, the contrary to be highly againſt Chriſt, Scriptures, and ſound Reaſon: He has done us Right in Two Reſpects, which may a little anſwer for the ill Language he giveth us in our Charge. Firſt, That he acknowledgeth, we own, that there was ſuch a Man as Jeſus, the Son of Mary, (in Contradiction to Abundance of our Adverſaries) and that God was in Him, which makes up our Chriſt. Secondly, That He whom we call Chriſt, is not J. Faldo's Chriſt; for He was that Body only that dyed; elſe what mean thoſe Words inferred by Way of Proof againſt us, in Defence of the Charge; The Body which Chriſt took on him of our Nature, &c. And therefore they can never call that Chriſt, intimating he doth, as the following Paragraph tells us. This is a plain denying the Man Chriſt Jeſus: Yet behold the Babel of the Matter, who after this dare ſay, (VERY RIGHT) to this Part of J. Pennington's Words; For that which he took upon him, was our Garment, even the Fleſh and Blood of our Nature: Where he manifeſtly implies, that what he juſt now accounted the Whole Chriſt, and reproaches us for denying to be ſuch, is not the Chriſt Himſelf, but his Garment only; unleſs there be no Difference between Chriſt and his Garment; or that Chriſt was but the Garment of that more Excellent Soul, or Divine Being, that dwelt therein, which is Unſcriptural, and very Carnal. If this Man has not charged us with what he cannot prove; nay, if he has not manifeſtly contradicted himſelf in his Endeavours to do it, no Man was ever Guilty in thoſe Reſpects. But that none may be ſtumbled by his Untrue Character of us; We do believe, and plainly declare, and that with Holy Reverence and Fear, that we cannot, we dare not call the Meer Body, The Chriſt, but the Body of Chriſt: That he was after the Fleſh, Born of the Virgin, like unto us in all Things, Sin only excepted; and conſequently, that Body muſt have been of the ſame Nature with ours; or elſe it had not been a Real, but Phantaſtical Body, is moſt True; and if it had not been ſo, neither could it have been a Garment of the Nature of 1673. Ch. XVIII. our Fleſh, which is ſo, and to which J. Faldo ſaid juſt now VERY RIGHT; nor could the Cruel Inſtruments have prevail'd againſt his Life, as they did.

And now, Whether it be moſt againſt Chriſt, Scripture, and Reaſon, to ſay that that Body, which was Nailed upon the Croſs, Was the Chriſt, or, The Body of Chriſt only, I leave with Chriſt, Scripture and Reaſon to determine? Certain I am, that this Principle muſt center in that Senſeleſs Dream of J. Reeve and L. Muggleton, as well as that it makes a perfect Difference betwixt Him that was before Abraham, and Him that ſaid ſo: Him, that told his Diſciples, I will not leave you Comfortleſs, and Him that ſaid, I will come to you again. Nay, Why ſhould Chriſt ſay to his Diſciples, It was expedient he ſhould go away, ſince certainly if ſome more Excellent and Profitable Appearance of himſelf had not been to ſucceed, at leaſt as to them; it had been far more Expedient, he ſhould in that Manner have remained amongſt them. And why did the Apoſtle ſpeak, of no more knowing Chriſt after the Fleſh, and of his being Revealed in him, and in the Saints, as their Hope of Glory, and that he was the Quickning Spirit, and Lord from Heaven; if that Body was the Intire Chriſt, and not rather the Body prepared for that Divine Power, Wiſdom, and Righteouſneſs to tranſact in, and appear by, to the Sons of Men; which, with reſpect to that great Manifeſtation, was denominated Chriſt, or Anointed, ſhall we dare think that He, who ſo ſpoke, and of whom the Apoſtle ſo teſtified, was not the True Chriſt (which to be ſure, was before that Viſible Body) God forbid. Let that Sin lie at J. Faldo's Door.

§. 2. But he offers to us Scripture, (Luke 2. 26, 27.) And it was reveal'd to him (Simeon) by the Holy Ghoſt, that he ſhould not ſee Death, before he had ſeen the Lord's Chriſt. And he came by the Spirit into the Temple, and when the Parents brought in the Child Jeſus, then took he him up in his Arms, and ſaid, Lord, now letteſt thou thy Servant depart in Peace, for mine Eyes have ſeen thy Salvation, a Light to lighten the Gentiles, &c. And it is, and will be granted, that Simeon ſaw the Lord's Chriſt: But I hope, J. Faldo will not deny unto that Good Man, who waited for Iſrael's Conſolation, that he had as well a Spiritual, as Natural, an Inward, as Outward Sight of Chriſt: For can he think, that the Word which took Fleſh, was nothing of that Saviour, and that the True Light which then appeared, is to be excluded any Share therein? Will J. Faldo, or any Man that owns Scripture, dare to affirm, there was not ſomething belonging to the True and Compleat Chriſt, beyond what his outward Eyes could poſſibly ſee? Certainly this Allegation from Luke 2. 26. will never prove the Body of Jeſus, which the Father prepared for him, to be the Whole Intire Chriſt, Saviour, Light, Salvation, and Glory of Iſrael, unleſs Chriſt under all theſe Conſiderations conſiſted, or was made up of the meer Outward Body, that only was obvious to the Outward Eyes; which to affirm, were both to deny His Divinity, and to conclude Simeon void of any Spiritual Sight, or Intendment in theſe Words, of the Lord's Chriſt, as a Light Enlightning the Gentiles, and God's Salvation to the Ends of the Earth. Though ſtill be it underſtood, that we confeſs that Child, as ſeen and underſtood by Simeon, with Reſpect to that great End of his Appearance, to be the Lord's Chriſt. Nay, J. Faldo ſays as much, pag. 70. otherwiſe there would be an exalting the Body above the Divinity; nay, an utter Excluſion of the Divinity with reſpect to the True Chriſt. Let none then be ſo Ungodly and Unjuſt to us, as to infer we deny the Lord's Chriſt, becauſe we rather chuſe to ſay, The Body of Chriſt, than Chriſt: For, ſays he, Chriſt is God manifeſt in the Fleſh. See J. F. p. 72, 77, 84, 85, 93.

§. 3. And leſt any ſhould think, that therein I contradict the Inſpired Saying of that Juſt Man, when he ſaid, Mine Eyes have beheld thy Salvation: The Words import no more than this, Mine Eyes have beholden the Manifeſtation and Breaking forth of thy Seed and Heir, who is come to viſit the World, and bruiſe the Serpent's Head: Mine Eyes have ſeen him by whom thy Salvation ſhall be declared; through whom thou wilt put forth thine Arm, and work mightily for the Salvation of Man.

And this his other Scriptures prove at large for me, the moſt Conſiderable of which I take to be this; (Pag. 7.) The God of our Fathers raiſed up Jeſus, whom ye ſlew, and hanged on a Tree; Him hath God exalted with his Right Hand, to be a Prince and a Saviour, for to give Repentance to Iſrael, and Forgiveneſs of Sin, Acts 5. 31. Which can no more be underſtood expreſly, ſtrictly, and intirely ſo, than it would be Reaſonable for a Man to ſay, That when Samuel died, the Soul and Body which was call'd Samuel, died; and not rather, The Body of him who was called Samuel: And this is the Ground and Reaſon why the Socinians, Muggletonians, and ſeveral Anabaptiſts, hold the Mortality of the Soul, becauſe otherwiſe thoſe Words, which ſpeak of the Death of Chriſt, could not be taken properly, as they take and defend them. I ſay then, and that with Force of Reaſon, and which at this Time may be more to the Conviction of ſome, the Suffrage of our malignant Adverſary, J. Faldo himſelf, however contradicting to his fore-mentioned Senſe, the Words are thus to be underſtood: The God of our Fathers, who raiſed up (the Body of) Jeſus from the Dead, which ye ſlew and hung upon a Tree; Him, whoſe Body you ſo cruelly uſed, hath God exalted with his Right Hand, to be a Prince, and a Saviour for to give Repentance to Iſrael, and Forgiveneſs of Sin. To put this out of doubt, hear J. Faldo his own ſelf.

Let not theſe Blaſphemers of the Lord of Life, and Glory, delude People with a Fancy, as if we believe and preach the Fleſh and Blood of Chriſt, to be Chriſt, Separated from his Soul, of the Nature of Man's Soul (but Undefiled) or that we take His Man's Nature to be Chriſt, Separated from His Eternal and Divine Nature.

One would think I had ſpent my Time in vain, when I ſet about to prove, that the Divine Light, Life, Power, Wiſdom, and Righteouſneſs were not unconcerned in the True Chriſt, and conſequently that the Body which only died, was not the Entire Jeſus or Saviour, ſince our Adverſary calls us Blaſphemers and Deluders, (and I know not for what, except it be) for Teaching that Doctrine he recommends in the ſame Paragraph, wherein he calls us thoſe Hateful Names.

§. 4. But that his great Inconſiſtency with himſelf may be farther manifeſt, hear him again, (Pag. 75.) If Men be ſo Blind as not to ſee the Error of Diſowning Jeſus of Nazareth, the Son of Mary, who was hanged on a Tree, put into the Sepulchre of Joſeph of Arimathea, to be yet alive, and the Chriſt of God by all theſe Scriptures (the moſt conſiderable whereof are conſider'd) it is a Blindneſs, wherewith never any before the Quakers, who profeſſed the Scriptures to be a True Teſtimony, were ſmitten; ſurely God hath given them up for their Pride, Giddineſs, or Idle Ignorance, and that Injuſtice, and the Devil hath blinded their Minds.

Enough of him at this Time, in Contradiction to himſelf, and of his Ungodly Cenſure of us. But we hope it may not be improper to obſerve, That though before he recommended to us the Lord's Chriſt, as conſiſting of a Divine and Human Nature, that is, God and Man, and that he would not be thought to call the Fleſh and Blood, and Man's Soul, intirely Chriſt, in Diſ-junction from the Divinity; Yet now, all thoſe who ſay, That Body which was Born of Mary, hanged on a Tree, laid in the Sepulchre of Joſeph of Arimathea, was not, and is not the Living Chriſt of God, are ſmitten for their Pride, Giddineſs, or Idle Ignorance, and the Devil hath blinded their Minds with a Witneſs: From whence Three Things reſult: (1.) That the Divinity is no Ways concern'd in the Lord's Chriſt: A manifeſt Contradiction to himſelf; or elſe, with Noetus of Old, and J. Reeve and L. Muggleton, of our Age, the Godhead dyed in Company with the Manhood: Blaſphemy it ſelf. (2.) That the meer Body was the Only and Intire Chriſt, whatever he pretends, and not ſo much as the Man's Soul in Conjunction with it, unleſs the Soul was of ſuch a material groſs Nature, as that it could be hang'd on a Tree, Dye, and be laid in a Sepulchre (which is to aſſert the Mortality of the Soul) all which happen'd to the Lord's Chriſt, ſays J. Faldo: But becauſe the Man's Soul was not Mortal, and could not be hanged on a Tree, and put into a Sepulchre, it follows, that it was the Viſible Body which could only be hang'd on a Tree, and laid in a Sepulchre, that was, and is, the Only and Intire Lord, and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt in J. Faldo's Senſe: Which, how impious it is againſt him, that truly is ſo; how groſly abuſive of all People; and how Contradictory to himſelf, let the whole World of Reaſon judge. Is this the Man that muſt be thought fit to Rant it over us with ſuch impudent Scurrility, Ungodly, as well as Unmmannerly Reflections? But in the Earth there is not any Thing ſo Fantaſtical, Conceited, Proud, Railing, Buſie-Body, and ſometimes Ignorant, as a Sort of Prieſts to me not unknown (among whom our Adverſary is not the leaſt) who think their Coat will bear out their worſt Expreſſions for Religion, and Practice an haughty Reviling for Chriſt, as one of the greateſt Demonſtrations of their Zeal; an ill-bred and Pedantick Crew, the Bane of Reaſon, and Peſt of the World; the old Incendiaries to Miſchief, and the beſt to be ſpar'd of Mankind; againſt whom the boiling Vengeance of an irritated God is ready to be poured out to the Deſtruction of ſuch, if they repent not, and turn from their Abominable Deceits.

§. 5. If to excuſe the Matter, he, or any elſe ſhall ſay, the Body is only Synecdochically or Metonymically taken, a Part for the Whole, or Repreſentatively; I anſwer, that ſuch a Diſtinction overthrows him for ever: For if the Body, which was called Jeſus, and Chriſt, and Lord, &c. be by him allow'd as Repreſentative of the whole Jeſus, then was not that diſtinctly the Chriſt; nay, what has he been oppoſing all this While? We will as truly, and honeſtly ſay, as it is poſſible for him to do, that it was the Body of the Lord Jeſus Chriſt (which ſometime bore the Name of the whole Lord Jeſus Chriſt, as the Saviour of Men) that was born of Mary, was hanged on a Tree, and laid in the Sepulchre of Joſeph of Arimathea. And if he will adventure to ſay more, the Conſequences of Excluding the Divinity, and Man's Soul, from being any Part of the True Chriſt, or their Mortality with the Body (which are Immortal) and not capable of being hanged on a Tree (much leſs buried for dead in the Sepulchre of Joſeph of Arimathea) will inevitably fall upon him, and daſh him and his Carnal Notions into Peices: Thus have I clear'd my Conſcience in clearing up the Conſiſtency of our Belief of the Bodily Appearance of the True Chriſt, with Scripture, and ſound Reaſon; and I hope, to the plain Overthrow of our Adverſary, and that with what Brevity was convenient.

CHAP. XIX.

Our Adverſary's Three propoſed Scripture-Places are by us rightly applied, and his Charge is found Untrue. Chriſt is proved the true Light, Comforter, Creator and Redeemer. Our Adverſary's Objections examined and refuted. His Triumph turned to his Shame. The true Signification of the Word, φωτίζει and Ἐρχόμενον confirmed.

§. 1. BUT he undertakes a more particular Enervation of our Underſtanding of Three Places of Scripture, which he ſays, we groſly abuſe. It will be worth our while, to hear, and ſtop him a little, for he makes great haſt to Triumph.

That was the true Light, which lighteth every Man that cometh into the World; Our Buſineſs is to know three Things of him. (1.) What Light it is? (2) In what Senſe it enlightneth? (3.) How he underſtands every Man; and this Line compaſſeth the Matter.

That, (ſays he) Hath for it's antecedent, and is to be underſtood of the Word, which was in the Beginning with God, which was God, by whom all Things were made, the Light of Men, &c. Light is taken properly for that which doth Manifeſt or Diſcover any Thing: ſo Chriſt is Light; but is now made manifeſt by the Appearing of our Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, who hath aboliſhed Death, and hath brought Life and Immortality to Light through the Goſpel. The Meaning is, ſaid he, that Salvation Eternal, which God hath propoſed to give to his People, which could not be ſeen in the Purpoſe of God, as ſuch, is by the Appearing of Chriſt in the Fleſh, and therein tranſacting and declaring this Salvation and Eternal Life, abundantly diſcovered: and as Light properly is that which makes Manifeſt, ſo metaphorically it is that which Comforts and Rejoyceth. I do not in the leaſt doubt, but Chriſt the Word here is call'd Light in both reſpects; And this I take to be the Import of the 4th Verſe; In him was Life, and the Life the Light of Men, that is, The Salvation and Life Eternal of poor Sinners was wrapt up in Chriſt, as God; the Conſideration of God manifeſt in the Fleſh for thoſe Ends, is matter of Strong Conſolation.

In his Firſt Part about the Scriptures he told us, that he was got to the higheſt Round of the Ladder; in this Place he has twiſted himſelf Rope enough to anſwer the End of his climbing thither; for if I do not from hence irrefutably prove, (1) That the meer Body was not the Intire Saviour: (2) That the Light within is of a ſaving Nature; I ſhall be ready to allow all our Adverſaries Detrectations from the Light within, but juſt Epithets, and a true Character of our Principles.

If Chriſt be the Light, which is that Word, which made all Things, and therefore God (as ſaith J. Faldo) then Chriſt was before his Appearance, and conſequently our former Chapter is juſtified on our part againſt his Notions of the Lord's Chriſt: For it was impoſſible; That the Viſible Body taken from the Virgin, ſhould have made all Things, which was hung upon a Tree, and buried, &c. But J. Faldo expreſly ſays, As the Word is the Light of Men, ſo, or in that Manner is Chriſt the Light of Men: Nay, he calls it, Chriſt's Appearing in the Fleſh, therein tranſacting and declaring Salvation, &c. intimating, That Chriſt was before he took that Fleſh, or appeared in that Body; and that he therefore took it, and appeared in it, to tranſact, work, declare and bring to paſs by and thro' it as a peculiar Veſſel, and prepared Holy Inſtrument, the great Salvation, &c. and conſequently Chriſt was, and is that Word which was with God, and is God, and the Light of Men, &c. And leſt we ſhould yet miſtake him; he calls it God manifeſted in the Fleſh, for thoſe Ends, to wit, Salvation and Eternal Life: And that he might ſpeak all for us in a little, and give the Death's-wound to his own Cauſe, he tells us in ſo many Words, That the Salvation and Life Eternal of poor Sinners was wrapt up in Chriſt, as God. Is not this pretty ſair for an Adverſary, as ill-willing to us and to the Truth, as J. Faldo, one of Ten Thouſand in his Diſpleaſure againſt us? Certainly, if the Quakers are condemnable for believing, It was and is Chriſt, as the Word in whom was Life, and that Life the Light of Men, that he was, and is a Saviour, J. Faldo muſt not be the Man, that ſhall give the Sentence, who, I know not how, nor why, but that God and his Truth may be glorified by his Self-overthrow, hath aſſerted the Quakers Principle, and that at an high Rate; and if it can be an Honour to him, that he has aſſiſted to the Conqueſt of himſelf, he ought to have it without any Envy.

§. 2. But he is as ſerviceable to us altogether in Defence of the Light, however undeſigned, which I prove thus: If Chriſt be properly that Light, which manifeſts or diſcovers any Thing (the Terms of his Conceſſion) and therefore it doth manifeſt the Purpoſe and Grace of God, which was given in Chriſt before the World was, whereby Death comes to be aboliſhed, and Life and Immortality brought to Light; Then muſt Chriſt Jeſus, this manifeſting Light, be a Divine and Saving Light without all Diſpute: Now, J. Faldo affirms Chriſt to be that Word, and proper Light, that ſo manifeſteth, and diſcovereth, as expreſt; conſequently, that Light, which doth ſo manifeſt and Diſcover, is a Saving Light.

Again, If the Light, be not only a Manifeſting Light (which is to take it Properly) but a Comforting Light alſo (which is to take it Metaphorically, as ſaith J. Faldo) Then this Light, as the Word Creator, is not therefore call'd Light from a bare Act of Diſcovery; but is a Principle of Life, Power, Virtue, &c. by which ſuch as obey it are conſolated, and by the Reaſon of Contraries, who rebel againſt it are condemned: Which make up thoſe two States of Light and Darkneſs, and their Rewards, Conſolation and Miſery.

And thus much our Adverſary farther proves for us; In him was Life, and the Life was the Light of Men, that is, the Salvation and Eternal Life of poor Sinners was wrapt up in Chriſt, as God: Which is to ſay; That the Life of the Word was, and is the proper Light of Men, and unto all ſuch poor Sinners as did and do believe in it, that Light is unto them Salvation and Eternal Life; than which, nothing can be more Orthodox in the Point. Who would think that J. Faldo ſhould ever undertake the Quakers, ſo little underſtanding their Principles? And if he did know them, What ſhould ail the Man to be ſo much our Friend to write againſt himſelf, under Pretence of writing againſt us? One would think, he did it by the ſame Figure Irony, that ſome call Fools, Wits: Yet he would fain diſtinguiſh Chriſt the Light, as Creator and Redeemer, making the firſt Common, the other Peculiar, and that ſpoils all. To which I ſhall briefly anſwer, for he only ſtarts it himſelf: There is but one Kind of Light, which reſults from the Life of the Word, and becauſe it cannot be ſuch, but it muſt be Divine and Sufficient, as well to Redemption as Conviction; it will unanſwerably follow, that the manifeſting Light of the Word J. Faldo confeſſeth all Mankind more or leſs to be lighted with, is of a Divine and Saving Nature; and that which ſtrengthens this Concluſion, is, that Chriſt, as God, is by our Adverſary made the Saviour; and unleſs he would deny him that he calls God, to have been before that Manifeſtation in Fleſh, a Redeemer to the Ancients (which were to conclude the Damnation of all that died antecedent) Chriſt, the Word, as that Light was the proper Redeemer through all Generations; Though I will grant to him, and that in the Name of all that People call'd Quakers, the Diſcoveries made by Chriſt, or God manifeſted in the Fleſh, tranſcended all former Manifeſtations, and as in my Spirit of Truth Vindicated it is largely confeſt (had this Adverſary been Ingenuous enough to have weigh'd it) So again I declare, that eminently whatever was before, or hath been ſince, might in a Senſe be ſaid of that Manifeſtation; becauſe he that then appeared, was the Fulneſs of that Light, Life and Power which meaſurably was, is, 1673. Ch. XIX. is, and may be diſpenſed to the Sons of Men; wherefore in that Senſe he was, both before and after, the ſame Convincer, Converter, Redeemer and Saviour to the Souls of Men.

§. 3. But he is much ſtumbl'd, and not a little abuſive, becauſe I would have Φωτίζει render'd Enlightneth, rather than Lighteth, in my Spir. of Truth Vindc. ſaying of me, I perceive he is as very ——— as thoſe Phyſicians, who impoſe ſevere Abſtinence on others, but they themſelves will take their Cups off, and their good Chear to Wantonneſs and Giddineſs.

How far this Character may be by any thought to reſemble William Penn (a Man he often ſtrikes at) I know not; but dare ſay for him, he never was ſo Diſingenuous as to deſerve it, and leaſt of all from J. Faldo, with whom he never had to do, and who muſt needs make a Random-gueſs in the Matter. But this is not the only Scurrility, William Penn, however unconcerned he be, has received at the Hands of that Rude Prieſt, nor that he is able to bear. He takes it for granted that W. P's Paſſive Religion, is like to be a Protection to his baſe Tongue, and ſo long the Prieſt ſleeps in a whole Skin. I cannot imagine what his daſhoe——ſhould ſignifie; But it is ill done of a Prieſt to quarrel his next Order, and one too, which, if I am not miſtaken, the Non-conforming Prieſts have ſwarm'd after, as the next Way of Maintenance to their diſplaced Carcaſſes; inſomuch, that we have almoſt as many Phyſicians as Patients. One would have thought J. Faldo had been looking that way by his Ebullitions, a Term of Art in pag. 127. But that is one of their laſt Refuges: For it requires Pains, which Men of his Function can't abide. They are for the Land of Milk and Honey, whoever toils; and that they will make the Labours of others yield them in a Land of Briars and Thorns. But it happened unluckily, that he ſhould charge ſo much Epicuriſm upon Phyſicians, whilſt they impoſe ſuch Abſtinence on their Sick, to whoſe way of Life ſo many of his Friends are devoted. Shall I infer, it is to have thoſe Cups and that Cheer, their Ill-Preaching could not give, and that J. Faldo is therefore as very a—— as thoſe Phariſees, that bound heavy Burdens, and lay'd them upon the People, but themſelves would not put their Fingers to ſupport them. Does he live to what he requires from others? if not (and the Courſe he takes, I know not how he ſhould) let him take his as very a—— to himſelf, which much better becomes Him, than any Body I have to beſtow it upon.

But to the Point controverted. I ſaid then, and do now again, that the Light muſt be in the Soul, or Intelligent Place of Man; and with reſpect to the Inward Parts, I ſaw no Difference between ſaying, the Light of Chriſt lighteth the Soul, or inward Parts of Man, and that the Light inlightneth Man: Only ſometimes I granted, that Enlightning did import a Belief in the Light, and ſome Divine Attainments thereby; both which are ſober, and true, and granted by J. Faldo, if I underſtand what he ſays when he confeſſeth, that moſt Tranſlators render it enlightneth.

§. 4. The laſt of what concerns his pretended Defeat of our Conſtruction of that Verſe; That was the true Light, &c. is Every Man: hear him; If this Phraſe be taken ſtrictly in it's full latitude (a Phraſe I do as little underſtand, as many of his other uncouth and contradictory Terms) Intending every Individual without Exception; Chriſt's Enlightning, muſt be underſtood, ſo doing as Creator, not as Redeemer; this is the Opinion of many Superiors to me in Judgment by far (It may be ſo, though I am apt to think J. Faldo ſcarce thinks ſo.)

But this hath been ſo effectually conſider'd already, that it would be needleſs Repetition, a Fault I would not be guilty of (eſpecially at this Time) to ſay much to it: Let it ſuffice, that the Light Naturally and Immediately reſulting from the Word, which was and is the Life of the Word, is the ſame in Kind, both before that Manifeſtation of God (who is Light) in that Holy Manhood, then, and ſince; though not the ſame with reſpect to the Degree of it's Diſcoveries. But he tells us, though he can allow it univerſally as Creator, yet not as Redeemer; and brings us theſe Scriptures; Whom we preach, warning every Man, and teaching every Man, &c. Commending our ſelves to every Man's Conſcience, &c. The Lord upholdeth all that fall, and raiſeth up all thoſe that are bowed down (The laſt an old Objection (Now ſays he, the Apoſtle could not warn all, nor recommend himſelf to every Man, it muſt be then, all that he preacht to, and who heard him. So, who were upheld, God upheld; and who were raiſed up, are raiſed by him.

But this is too mean to invalid the Force of the Place, and our plain and inextorted Underſtanding of it. The Reaſon of this Miſtake lies here: If it be his Light, ſays J. Faldo, as Creator, then it hurts us not; if as Redeemer; why are not all redeemed? putting no Difference betwixt the Sufficiency of the Light to ſave, and the Salvation, that may be wrought by it upon the Obedience of the Creature. A Doctrine accurſt from God, and deteſted of all Men not mad, or abuſed by the Suggeſtions of others; for the Calviniz'd Predeſtination is at the Bottom of it. Let it ſuffice, and ſo we will venture it, (1) That Chriſt died for all Men, though all Men receive not the Benefit intended by it; The Neglect of Men don't render God's Love, no Love, or that it is not Univerſal, and leaſt of all that it ſhould be Inſufficient in it ſelf. (2) If God has not lightned the Soul of all Mankind with a ſufficient Light to Salvation, the Damnation of Men can never lye at their own Door; neither will they be left without Excuſe. (3) The Light with which he enlightens, being the Life of the Word, muſt be Saving; call it the Light of the Creator, or Redeemer, for He is one in himſelf, and ſo is his Light. (4) All Mankind, in all Copies and Tranſlations, and from the Reaſon of the Thing, muſt be confeſt to be the Subjects of this Illumination; Neither let it be hard for our Adverſary to grant; ſince it may be the Light of Chriſt as Redeemer, and yet Men may not be redeemed thereby, through their own Diſobedience. And inevitable Redemption then not following upon Men's being thus lighted, but upon their Receiving of it, I cannot ſee but it may be allow'd us, that all Mankind not being redeemed, is no Argument, why all Mankind ſhould not be enlightned; conſequently (for all the Force our Adverſary brings to the contrary) Every Man in our Senſe is lighted with a Light Saving in it ſelf. I omit to mention many ancient, great and learned Authorities, ſome of which are, and more may elſewhere ſhortly be produc'd in Defence of our Aſſertion. Let my Spir. of Truth Vind. be peruſed, from p. 53. to p. 73.

§. 5. Now as to his Scripture-Quotations, they are no whit to his Purpoſe: For the Warning and Commendation were Univerſal, there is not one Soul exempted: And ſhould I grant him his Deſire, what could it avail? For if the Apoſtle had a particular Regard to thoſe among whom he laboured, neither doth that hinder the Univerſality of the Truth of the Thing in it ſelf, for the Warning is to all, or the Scripture is not binding to all, contrary to our Adverſary's Judgment of it.

Nor is the Caſe parallel with the Relation given of the Divinity of the Word, it's Creating Power and peculiar Benefit of Light from it's own Life univerſally extended to Mankind, unleſs that in the Places where the Word All or Every is uſed without any Exception, an Exception ſhould be made, becauſe ſome one particular Caſe may admit of an Exception: For neither doth God raiſe up all who fall: Nor is it to be underſtood, that all who are raiſed up in all Caſes, God doth immediately raiſe, but rather thus; the Lord alone is able to uphold all who fall, and raiſe up all that be bowed down, as to a Spiritual State, the Purport of the Words: So that the Univerſal, I mean All, remains entire, and the contrary Opinion, reſpecting the Light, ends in an abſolute Denial of a Saving Light to the greateſt Part of Mankind; which dreadful Conſequence I had much rather ſhould reſult from J. Faldo's Opinions, than W. Penn's Faith, as ill a Chriſtian, as he is pleaſed to repute him, though it be for Vindicating the Pure Chriſtian Religion, as it was once delivered to the Saints.

§. 6. But to ſhut up this Diſcourſe, let us take notice of an Expreſſion or two, that this Critick lets fall in the cloſe of this Paraphraſe, and this, Concerning Ἐρχόμενον or Coming, it being more properly referable to Light, than Man. That was the true Light, which coming into the World lighteth every Man, rather than that was the true Light, which lighteth every Man coming into the World. If, ſays he, it ſhould refer to Man, every Man, in the very inſtant of, or before his Birth, Chriſt enlightneth; it muſt be meant of created Faculties—— For Experience and Senſe (without any one Inſtance to controul it) will tell us, that none can believe without Hearing, nor hear without a Preacher.

He might much better have ſaid of himſelf, than of the Quakers-Meeting, that he was but a Puppet indeed, who knows nothing but by Hear-ſay or meer Imitation; If Man have not ſome more inward Teacher, farewell to the Truth of all Revelation, the Scriptures, and whatever comes by, or from the Inſpiration of the Almighty. This Man, if yet he ben't too much beſotted to deſerve ſo excellent a Name, at once deſtroys all Ways, or Means, whereby to know, and that not only to the Quakers, but himſelf too; For the Scriptures themſelves being grounded upon Revelation, and his Knowledge, upon them, as he pretends: Take away Revelation, and ye take away the Scriptures; and conſequently what 1673. Chap. XIX. Knowledge J. Faldo pretends to have from them, falls to the Ground. To paſs by what might be offered from the Ancient Puritans, Browniſts, and Independents, on our Behalf, who were once reputed warm Sticklers, for that J. F. proudly eſteems Enthuſiaſm, for which they became the Deriſion of Carnaliſts. He forgets to whom Phanatick belongs, and cuts off his pretended Preaching from the God above, &c. p. 113. Thus is this blind Leader fallen into the Ditch of his own digging.

But muſt it be abſurd, becauſe Children, at the Inſtant of their Coming into the World, can't be ſaid to be ſo enlightned. Very well; and what thinks he of the Inſtant of Chriſt's Coming into the World, out of the Virgin's Womb? Did he enlighten all who ſhould ſavingly be enlightned at that Inſtant? A Mad Diſputant, indeed. What was it enlightned Simeon? Who told and revealed to him the Lord's Chriſt? For Shame quit all Pretence to Diſpute.

§. 7. But let's hear him farther: There is a Reaſon in the Text, gives ſuch a Countenance to referring it to the Light, as will never be found for the contrary. That was the true Light, not This, or This is; not as Chriſt is now in Heaven, nor as preſent with the Evangeliſt John, and the then Saints; but it points at Chriſt's Appearance in the Fleſh. Very notable indeed, and we will not let it ſlip our Obſervation.

Let my Spir. of Truth Vind. be peruſed, from p. 53. to p. 75.

If the Word that made all Things, which was with God, and was God, was that true Light, as ſaith J. Faldo himſelf, p. 84, then can it never be reſtrained to that Appearance as the Beginning or End of it. Nay, the Evangeliſt is not yet come ſo much as to mention any thing of his Manifeſtation in the Fleſh; and if we will believe J. Faldo, the Verſe concerns the Word as Creator, and not as Redeemer, which he ſtints to his Coming in the Fleſh. See pag. 89. But by his Interpretation, that is not relative to his Appearance in the Fleſh, but rather to the Word, which was with God, and was God, as p. 84, and ſo the Spaniſh Tranſlation has it, That Word was the true Light, &c. ſo that either the Word was not before that Appearance; or if it were, being that true Light, that true Light was before that Appearance; And Mankind being alſo antecedent to that Manifeſtation, may very well be ſaid always to have been enlightned by that Light. For that the Word ſhould be before that Appearance, and that true Light, which is the very Life of the Word, or Word it ſelf, ſhould be ſtinted to that Appearance, is as abſurd, as any thing well can be. Again, that we ſhould take It to deny Chriſt now to be the true Light, that enlightens all, becauſe he was ſo, is a ſtrange Impertinency, and groſs Falſhood; for then by good Reaſon ought we to infer, that becauſe the Word was with God, and was God, therefore he is not now either with God, or God. Is this your Tertullus? Beſides, if we had nothing of this to offer, the Evangeliſt might very well refer to that Appearance without any Denial at all of an antecedent Illumination: It being the moſt excellent breaking forth of the divine Light. And this is largely acknowledg'd and prov'd, in my Spirit of Truth Vindicated; which had he conſider'd but half as much as he importunes us to do his own, he might have ſav'd us the Labour of this Animadverſion. But God koweth, it is our Portion from many ſuch like baſe and unworthy Adverſaries. Every Thing is a Fault in a Quaker, and nothing in them. We have great Reaſon to deſpair of any Good upon the moſt of them, whoſe Spirits are ſo leaven'd into Prejudice and Revenge, that, not to bear their Lies, and to rebuke their Slanders, is accounted ſcarce ſo tolerable as Railing; But with God the righteous Judge of Heaven and Earth do we leave our Cauſe, to be by him pleaded upon the Necks of that Crooked and Perverſe Generation.

Rom. 10. 3. §. 8. Upon the Second Scripture, (p. 94.) which he pretends we abuſe, to wit, But what ſaith it? The Word is nigh thee, even in thy Mouth, and in thy Heart; That is the Word of Faith which we preach: and which, he ſaith, we join with the firſt of John, In the Beginning was the Word, &c. He obſerves thus much in ſhort. The Apoſtle alludes to the Words of Moſes in Deuteronomy: But the Word is very nigh unto thee, in thy Mouth, and in thy Heart, that thou mighteſt do it; that is (ſaith he) the Laws, Statutes, and Commandments written in the Book of the Law, making the having the Word in the Heart to be an having them without Book, or by rote, as he expreſſeth it.

Deut. 30. 14.

But none of the moſt miſtaken of our modern Socinians, (the greateſt Contra-Spiritualiſt Men of our Time) I am perſwaded, could have given us a more dark and carnal Interpretation of the Place; for the Word of Faith, is the Word which gives Faith, and in which Faith ſhould be: It is called the Word of Reconciliation and Regeneration; which can be no other Word, than that which was in the Beginning with God; That, by which God utter'd and declar'd his Mind to the Sons and Daughters of Men in all Ages; That Word, whoſe Life was, and is the Light of Men: To make the Apoſtle to have preacht another Word, is as much as in him lies, to render him no Goſpel-Preacher.

Beſides, that Word mentioned by Moſes, could not be the outward Commandments and Statutes; For the Queſtion was not about them, but about the Commandment of Commandments, and Word of Words, which he reſolves thus: Let none ſay, Who ſhall aſcend, deſcend, or go beyond the Seas, to fetch the Great Word and Commandment; But the Word is very nigh thee קרוב, קרב, ſignifies the Innermoſt of Men. Whereinto the Outward Commandments could never come. Nay, Foſt. &c. Schin. in lex. I do affirm, and that with Holy Boldneſs, in the Spirit, Power and Illumination, of the Bleſſed Goſpel, that all the by rote Learning of the Letter, of either Law or Goſpel, as they are contra-diſtinguiſht, is of no more Value to the true Knowledge or Worſhip of God, than the cutting off a Dog's Neck, either to God's Honour or Man's Profit, without the Inward Living Word ſhould powerfully write, and engrave upon the Soul it's Holy Precepts; neither could there be any Conviction in the Conſcience, concerning the Truth of thoſe Statutes; nor indeed any Conſcience at all; ſince Conſcience is no other, than that manifeſt Judgment Man makes of the Truth or Falſhood of Things, with reſpect to his own Soul, from the Word or Light of God in his Heart, according to the Practice of the Apoſtle, who was manifeſt, and deſir'd to commend himſelf to the Conſciences of Men: Not as to a blind unſenſible Thing; but that Judgment in Man, though not from him, which was right, and not learned of Men, but received of God. Whereas J. Faldo ſcoffs at ſuch kind of Knowledge, the Perniciouſneſs of which Doctrine, ought to antidote all ſober Perſons from ever adhering to it, or him that preacheth it: For I will be bound to make it appear, that by his own Principles, he is aſſured of nothing, and muſt ſet down under the extremeſt Scepticiſm in the World: Or if concludable by any Thing, it muſt be by the Way Rome takes to reſolve all Scruples, and that is Plurality of Votes, however directed; and this too, rather for Peace Sake, than any Certainty there can be in it. For who bear out all Inward Senſe, Motions, Revelations, Inſpirations or Enlightnings, reſolving only to inſiſt upon what may arrive to them from meer Books, becauſe of the Fallibility of Man and Difficulty of the Matter they do contain; which Way can there be to compaſs any tolerable Certainty to reſt Men's Souls upon? This is your once Phanatical, t'other Day Enthuſiaſtical, now Pragmatical and Scoffing J. Faldo. The firſt in the very Beginning of Independency in the World, the beſt Part that belong'd to it, I mean Enthuſiaſm; but now deſerted, by many as much as the true Religion is by the Church of Rome.

§. 9. The Third and laſt Scripture he undertakes to ſecure us from all Share in, (Page 98.) is that of Peter, We have alſo a more ſure Word of Prophecy, whereunto 2 Pet. 1. 19. ye do well to take Heed, as unto a Light that ſhineth in a dark Place, until the Day dawn, and the Day-Star ariſe in your Hearts. By this more ſure Word of Prophecy (ſays J. Faldo) is meant thoſe Prophecies written in the Old Teſtament: which are call'd (Verſe 20.) Prophecy of Scripture, and are called, the Light that ſhineth in a dark Place.

I hope it will be always foreign to me, to detract from the Holy Scriptures; But the Truth I will take Liberty to defend. The whole Chapter is a very weighty and zealous Recommendation of the Goſpel to the Churches, preſſing them to call to Mind the Love of God unto them, and to Mind their Duty to him, who had ſo lov'd them; And as a great Ground, both of their Faith, Love and Duty, the Apoſtle in the 16th Verſe tells them, For we have not followed cunningly deviſed Fables, when we made known unto you, the Power and Coming of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt; But were Eye-Witneſſes of his Majeſty; for he receiv'd from God the Father Honour and Glory, when there came ſuch a Voice to him from the Excellent Glory; This is my Beloved Son, in whom I am well-pleaſed. And this Voice, which came from Heaven, we heard, when we were with him in the Holy Mount; We have alſo a more ſure Word of Prophecy, &c. Now that this cannot be meant of the Scriptures (and take in the Compariſon) I thus prove. If the Reaſon of their Aſſurance, that what they delivered to the Churches, was not Fabulous, but true, was their being Eye-Witneſſes of his Majeſty, and Eye and Ear-Witneſſes of that Teſtimony God gave of his Son in the Mount, by that Honour, Glory and Voice of Words, which were there uttered, and did in that Place appear; then the Scriptures not only were not a ſurer Word of Prophecy, but not ſo ſure, becauſe they never heard nor ſaw them ſo delivered; nor yet had any of the Prophets, ſo Glorious, ſo Tranſcendent, and unqueſtionable a Teſtimony to their outward Eyes and Ears that we read of (J. Faldo's moſt infallible Way of true Knowledge (ſee Pag. 91.) as was that which God gave to his Diſciples, when he teſtified, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well-pleaſed; But we may inform our ſelves from the Verſes recited, that they were a more eminent Ground for their Knowledge, Aſſurance, and Belief, than the meer Scriptures; And conſequently the Scriptures are not the more ſure Word of Prophecy. Again, The written Account of another's Revelation cannot be more ſure to me than that Revelation which I do immediately receive from God; ſuppoſe it be from God: But this was a Revelation to the Diſciples, and they were ſure it was from God; Conſequently the written Account of another's Revelation, as were the Prophecies of the Old Teſtament (ſo called) to the Diſciples, could not be a more ſure Word of Prophecy. For it were to ſay, that they were more ſure, that he among them who was called Jeſus, was the Son of God from Iſaiah's Teſtimony, That he would give him for a Light to lighten the Gentiles, &c. than the immediate Voice of God, when he pointed ſo clearly at him, This is my beloved Son; He that is amongſt you, whom you have followed, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well-pleaſed: Than which, What could be more demonſtrable on God's Part, and incredulous on their Side, who ſhould yet ſubject that living Teſtimony, to any the beſt Tradition? Let me not forget to add, That what the Diſciples then ſaw and heard from God, and the Epiſtle, Peter wrote by the Holy Ghoſt, being made Part of the New Teſtament-Writings, and they accounted more eminent by far than the Old, with reſpect to the more eminent Pouring forth of the Holy Ghoſt, in that Day, which the Prophets foreſaw, and they enjoyed, the Old cannot in any wiſe be reputed a more ſure Word of Prophecy, as J. Faldo aſſerts; therefore this more ſure Word of Propheſy muſt be another Thing.

§. 10. What that is which may be reputed a more ſure word of Propheſy, will much deſerve our ſerious Conſideration. If it was not the Voice in the Mount, which we have invincibly prov'd, to be more Immediate, Living, Freſh, Convincing and Confirming to the Diſciples, than any the beſt written Prophecies they had; It will follow, that it was meant of the Holy Anointing, that Spirit, and Meaſure of the Grace, or bleſſed Light of Chriſt, which is Internal, and out of the Reach of all Viſible Things, to ſophiſticate, corrupt, miſ-repreſent, miſ-render, or miſ-tranſlate, all which have greatly befallen the Scriptures: For I do affirm, that Senſe it ſelf is not ſo certain as Reaſon, and what clearly and fully occurs to the Underſtanding Part of Man, is a more ſolid Ground for Faith and Knowledge, than thoſe External Sights and Viſions, which Man might be attended with to Confirmation. For what ſhall be the Rule for trying the Certainty and Truth of any ſuch Viſions and Prophecies? It muſt be ſome Meaſure of that Anointing, which was afterwards given more largely to them, in order to try Spirits, and in all other Caſes, which concern the Goſpel; otherwiſe they ſhould not have believ'd with any Certainty, or upon Spiritual Conviction as to themſelves; For if a Man has not ſomething Divine to direct and inform his Underſtanding as to the true Reliſh, Judgment, and Application of what he may read in any Book, or externally might appear to his Senſes in the Way of Extraordinary Viſion, there could be no probable, much leſs certain Ground for his Belief in, or Knowledge of the Truth of that Thing, however true in it ſelf. In ſhort, That which is Truth it ſelf, which is able to teach all Things, to try all Things, and to lead into all Truth (which the Scriptures (though Truth) cannot do; for then, they would be Clear, Plain, Perfect, uncapable of Additions, Diminutions, Corruptions, Miſtranſlations, &c.) muſt be this more ſure Word of Prophecy; But that the Anointing which the Saints had received of him was able to do, as ſaith the Apoſtle John, but the Anointing which ye have received of him abideth in you, and ye need not that any Man teach you; but as the ſame Anointing teacheth you of all Things, and is Truth, and is no Lye: And even as it hath taught you, ye ſhall abide in him; Therefore this Anointing, thus able to do all Things, muſt needs be that more ſure Word of Prophecy;

1 John 2. 27.

Prophecy; if more ſhall be allow'd. In ſhort, The Law written in the Heart, is a more ſure Covenant, Law and Word than the Law written upon Stones, or the Outward Book of the Law; elſe, the Diſpenſation of the Law of Life within, the Goſpel-State, would be leſs Sure, and therefore leſs Noble, than the Law without; and the Propheſies of the Old Teſtament (ſo call'd) more Certain, than the Scriptures of the New, that belong to a more excellent Diſpenſation, and are an Account of the fulfilling of thoſe very Propheſies: Nay, it would be to aſſert, that the Words of both Scriptures are more ſure and certain, and our Regard ought to be more eminently after them, than the very Spirit from whence they came; which (at leaſt in the Church of God) every one has receiv'd a Meaſure to profit with, and ſo perfectly ſubvert the very State of the Goſpel, which was and is the time of the Pouring out of the Spirit upon all Fleſh, and bringing Mankind to a more near, ſure and living Word of Prophecy, than any Outward Writings whatever can poſſibly be.

§. 11. But becauſe he tells us in another Place, that a little Skill in the Original, would free us from many Abſurdities; we ſhall a little examine both what the Original Text will make for the Clearing the Point in Controverſy, and what may be the Senſe of ſome Men of Learning (a Thing he pretends to) and Impartiality (which I hope, he has not Confidence enough to pretend to) I will ſuppoſe then the Propheſies of the Ancients to be intended, but deny any Compariſon at all to have been made between them, and that Voice in the Mount.

2 Pet. 1. 19. Καὶ ἔχομεν βεβαιότερον τὸν προφητικὸν λόγον, &c. We alſo have a More ſure Word of Prophecy as by our late Tranſlation render'd. I cannot perceive that Compariſon in the Greek, ſo hugg'd by the Prieſts, and inſiſted upon by our Adverſary, with manifeſt Deſign to prefer the Writings before the Spirit that gave them forth, the great Evangelical Word of Propheſy, for the Words without any Wrong, not only may, which were enough, but ought to be rendred thus: Alſo we have a very ſure Word of Prophecy; which neither queſtions the Certainty of the Voice, nor ſo much as intends any the leaſt Compariſon at all with it; which I take to be the very Ground of that Oppoſition which is made againſt us. The Reaſon why I ſo render it, is ready: Καὶ, Alſo, I know our Tranſlation hath, but, and it is commonly underſtood by our Adverſaries for Δὲ, But, which is a great Injury to the Senſe; for Καὶ, Alſo, is conjunctive, and ſignifies only another Confirmatory Teſtimony, whereas Δὲ, or But, is a Word that moſtly doth, and to be ſure in that Place would ſignify a Compariſon and Oppoſition: Alſo then, not being taken in the ſame Senſe with But, there is nothing therein that can make for the Compariſon, or any Oppoſition whatſoever; Now the Compariſon it ſelf Βεβαιότερον, lately render'd more ſure, is in the ancient Tranſlations more truly interpreted, ſure, and very ſure; in which there is no Room for any Compariſon, or Oppoſition in the leaſt: And if J. Faldo has but Greek and Honeſty enough, he muſt needs acknowledge, that Poſitives, Comparatives, and Superlatives are uſed promiſcuouſly in the Greek. See Acts 25. 10. where ὡς καὶ σὺ κάλλιον ἐπιγινώσκεις, is rendred, as thou very well know'ſt; whereas in J. Faldo's Senſe, κάλλιον would be interpreted, as thou knoweſt better than I; which certainly the Apoſtle Paul never intended, when he ſpoke to Feſtus. And as Καὶ, Alſo, is connective, and joins the 19th Verſe to the 18th Verſe, ſo τὸν, the expoſitive and diſtinctive Article, doth not precede, but follow Βεβαιότερον. The Syriack, one of the moſt approv'd Verſions by learned Men, has it thus, We have over and above a true or ſure Word of Prophecy. The Arabick, We have beſide, a very true Prophetick Word. The Æthiopick has a Compariſon, not reſpecting the Sureneſs, but the Antiquity of the Voices: We have over and above an ancienter Word, or Teſtimony, which is ſo reſpecting Time: The French, German, Low-Dutch, Swediſh, and ſeveral of our ancient Engliſh Tranſlations run thus; We have alſo the ſure Prophetick Word; We have alſo the right ſure Word of Propheſy: We have alſo the very ſure Word of the Prophets. All which imports no more, than that they had over and above their own particular Aſſurances of the Truth of the Chriſtian Religion, the Teſtimony of the Prophets, whoſe Propheſies were fulfilled by the Coming of Chriſt, and the Pouring out of the Holy Spirit; but if it were more, it was only ſo in Point of Authority, with their Adverſaries: Not that the Voice the Diſciples heard in the Mount, was leſs ſure in it ſelf, or that Knowledge of God and Chriſt, through the Operation of the Power of the Goſpel in the Hearts of thoſe Believers, than the ancient Prophecies of the Prophets; But perhaps they were not ſo effectual to perſwade, as the Words of the ancient undoubted Prophets to confirm their Allegations. Thus Chriſt, in our Tranſlation, Search the Scriptures, not that they were a more ſure Teſtimony than what he himſelf livingly and immediately gave forth; But they ſo reputing them, whilſt they oppoſed him, his Direction, to ſearch the Scriptures, was for Confirmation of the Truth, they ſeemed to gain-ſay from the Scriptures. What then? Shall we ſay that the Prophets are a more ſure Teſtimony, than what Chriſt the Living Word of God himſelf declared, or the Saints became Witneſſes of? By no Means; But rather, that the Old Prophecies are alſo a true Prophetical Teſtimony, like a ſmall Light in a dark Night, they do ſhew forth a Prophetick Light, 'till the Day-ſtar of fulfilling them (which ſome then knew, and others preſt after) ſhould ariſe in their Hearts, which is that Bleſſed State of Witneſſing, J. Faldo, and T. Hicks have beſtow'd ſo many impious Scoffs upon.

* Parap. in Epiſt. 2 Pet. c. 1. v. 19.

To this agree many Learned Men. I will begin with * Eraſmus; "If ſo be that the Prophet's plain Oracles be in great and weighty Eſtimation among you, which prophecy by figurative dark Shadows of Chriſt, of much more Gravity or Weight, ought ſo evident a Declaration by the Father himſelf of his Son to be. They, with their Propheſies, prepare the Minds of Men to the Truth of his Goſpel; In that they ſhadow and covertly point out the Thing that the Goſpel doth preach. The Prophets agree with the Father's Voice, if a Man do rightly interpret them; The Thing that Men ſet forth by Man's Device, may be perceiv'd by Man's Wit; But the Thing that is ſet forth by the Inſpiration of the Holy Ghoſt requires an Interpreter inſpir'd by the like Spirit. A ſevere Check to the Contra-Spirituality of J. Faldo, and thoſe other of the Carnal and Apoſtate Profeſſors of Religion in our Time, who have forgot the Ground of their Fore-fathers Revolt from the Idolatry of Rome, and Superſtitions of a degenerated Prelacy; as well as that it ſhows how much more Eraſmus inclines to give the Preference, if any there be, to the Voice of God than to the ancient Prophecies. He alſo quotes Auguſt. to his Defence.

Bez. in loc.

Beza not only renders it, "we have alſo a very firm Word of Prophecy, ſhutting out all Compariſon, (the Prieſts Break-neck) but affirms, if it ſhould be accepted, as a firmer Word of Prophecy, it can only relate to ſuch, who might have entertained ſuch an Extraordinary Belief of the Writings of the Prophets; and not that in themſelves they were a ſurer Word of Prophecy.

Vat. & Clar. in loc.

"Vatablus in ſhort tells us, that Βεβαιότερον, or more ſure, is a Compariſon for a Poſitive, more ſure, for ſure; uſual with the Greeks. So ſays Clarius.

Grot. in loc.

And Grotius, that Great Man, thus renders this "Part of the Verſe [Καὶ ἔχομεν βεβαιότερον τὸν προφητικὸν λόγον] that is, ſays he, the Writings of the Prophets have been always in Credit and of Force with us: But now much more, becauſe we have ſeen the Fulfilling of them by the Meſſiah, and their Agreement with him. Certainly then, others, beſides the Quakers, muſt needs have been Perverters of this Place of the Scripture, in J. Faldo's Senſe: But he may hear from Grotius, that the Scriptures are nevertheleſs valuable by thoſe who witneſs their Accompliſhment; but the more: A Notion very riſe in J. Faldo's Head.

Let it ſuffice, that we have Stated and Vindicated the True Chriſt, to wit, God manifeſt in the Fleſh. That we have attributed to God, manifeſted in that viſible Body, what we believe to be congruous. and according to Scripture and ſound Reaſon. And laſtly that thoſe Scriptures, which he thought to diſintereſt us in, are fully and clearly vindicated from his falſe Gloſſes; proving their expreſs Deſign perfectly deſtructive of thoſe Ends, our Adverſary endeavour'd to bend them to, which were his own, and not the Truth's.

Chap. XX.

CHAP. XX.

Our Adverſaries Charges deny'd. His Proofs fail him. The Quakers are True Chriſtians; and Quakeriſm True Chriſtianity. We own and profeſs the only True God that made Heaven and Earth.

§. 1. HE has hitherto charged us, one would think, as home as ever Man did, for what is beyond Denying the Lord's Chriſt, and that Love he manifeſted in the World for the Salvation of Mankind: But it is our Happineſs, that his Proofs have been always found as weak, as his Charge Deſperate, and the little Quarter promiſed us by the one, more than made up by the faint Performances of the other; elſe, how terrible would this Grim Character be to our ſelves, and much more, to others, who do, and yet will, we hope, believe better Things of us, viz. (Page 12, 13, 14.) The Quakers are groſs Idolaters, and Quakeriſm groſs Idolatry. And he aſſures us, if there be any ſuch Thing as Idolatry in the World, he will prove us guilty in the higheſt Degree.

The Way he takes to prove this heavy Charge is this. Thoſe which own and profeſs that to be God, which is not, are groſs Idolaters; but the Quakers do ſo. The ſecond Propoſition (the firſt being granted by all) he endeavours to prove thus. Who own and profeſs the Light within, and the Soul of every Man to be God, own and profeſs that to be God, which is not God. But the Quakers do ſo; therefore Idolaters. The making good this Charge, will lie upon the Teſtimony he brings out of our Friends Writings, ſince he pretends to no leſs Demonſtration, for every Thing he has to lay againſt us. I deny in the Name of all that abuſed People; firſt, that we ever own'd or profeſs'd the Light within every Man to be God, (tho' we ſay, it is of God) much leſs that we worſhip it as ſuch: And, ſecondly, we do for ever renounce any ſuch Principle, As that the Soul of Man, ſimply as ſuch, is the very Eſſence or Being of God: If he fails in his Proofs, he muſt fall with Infamy to the Ground. The firſt Man he hopes to make ſure with, (pag. 119.) is G. Fox the Younger: The Words, as he quotes them, are theſe; "I will make " you know, that I the Light which lighteth every Man that cometh into the " World, that all through me ſhould believe, am the True Eternal God, which " created all Things; that by me (the Light) all Things are upheld; and that " there is not another beſide me can ſave. Fox Young. p. 53. Although, ſays he, in this Paſſage, he doth not call it the Light within, Pag. 50. " You ſcorn me the " Light in you, p. 54. which will not own me the Light in them. They, he ſays, that cannot from hence read the Quakers own and profeſs the Light within to be God, are not like to be much the wiſer, for what they read. (p. 120.) This cuts off all Hopes of J. Faldo's being wiſer; for I ſuppoſe he read what he writ, as blind as he is: However, for the ſake of others, I will endeavour to reconcile this ſeeming Contrariety.

In the firſt Paſſage he grants, that within Man was not mentioned; and by his Silence, I ſuppoſe, I may conclude it Orthodox. For no Man that believes Scripture, will dare to deny that God is Light; That every Man is enlightned by Him; and that by Him, who is call'd Light, all Things are upheld, and that He alone is Saviour: A Doctrine J. Faldo teaches, Pag. 84. 85, 89. To the other Scraps of Matter I anſwer, That we never did, do, nor ſhall aſſert, the God that made Heaven and Earth, to be comprehenſible within the Soul of Man: No, it is more impoſſible, than that the Sun in the Firmament ſhould be contain'd within the Body of any individual Perſon. But that God, who is the Great Sun of Righteouſneſs, doth as truly cauſe his Light Spiritual to ariſe upon the Souls of Men, as his Sun Natural upon their Bodies; and as what Knowledge we have of the Natural Sun, is by it's Light, Operations and Effects upon the World, ſo our Knowledge of the Eternal Sun of Righteouſneſs, God (who is Light, and in whom is no Darkneſs at all) is only and alone, by His Divine Light, Operations, and Effects in, and upon our Underſtandings and Conſciences: So that when we ſay, That the Light is within any, we do not intend the Whole Being of Light, nor was it in this groſs Senſe, that G. Fox the Younger ever meant it. But, That He, who is the Eternal Fountain of all Life, and Sun of Light, cauſeth his Light to viſit the Hearts, and ſhine into the Conſciences of all Mankind, as well of ſuch as Rebel againſt it, and ſcorn it, to reprove them, as thoſe who Receive it, and gladly ſubmit to it, to direct and juſtifie them. Wherefore we utterly deny, that the Manifeſtation in Man, ſtrictly conſider'd, Is the Moſt High God, but a Manifeſtation of, or from God, By the Inſhinings of His Bleſſed Light. And we cannot be ſaid to Worſhip the Manifeſtation, but that Eternal God, which is Light, that is thereby manifeſted; and all Worſhip otherwiſe founded, is not of God, nor pleaſing to him, but of the Invention of Men, which he will confound; and this, Scripture and Reaſon are ready to defend. Scorning the Light in them, and not owning the Light in them, by our Adverſary ſo ſtrongly inſiſted upon, is no more than ſcorning and diſowning him who is the Light that ſhines in them, and that gives Light to them. What very Vanity then, is all his Boaſt? And how does his Charge retort upon himſelf? But that we may ſend it quite back, to the Pit from whence it came, let's hear how he proves our Belief of the Soul, to be God, which he begins to do, with no ſmall Shew of Aſſurance, that he ſhall clearly compaſs his End.

§. 2. (Pag. 122. 123.) “ Every Man has that which is One in Union, and like, “ the Spirit of Chriſt; even as Good as the Spirit of Chriſt, according to it's “ Meaſure. E. Burroughs's True Faith, &c.

And what's this to the Purpoſe? Can any Man be ſo ſtupid, as to think E. Burroughs ever intended the Soul of Man, that purely and ſimply conſtitutes him ſuch? For he is ſpeaking of that Univerſal Grace, Light and Spirit, which God has given unto all, whereby they may be led to Eternal Felicity. And unleſs he will ſay, That a Meaſure of the Holy Spirit, (a Scripture-Phraſe) which God hath given every Man to Profit with, is not in Union with Chriſt, nor as Good in Kind, as the Spirit of Chriſt (which our Adverſary ſays, Is God) it will evidently follow, that what E. B. writes, is Sound and Scriptural; however this makes nothing for our Adverſary's preſent Charge. But he ends not with him.

(Pag. 123. “ Now my Soul and Spirit is center'd in it's own Being with God, and “ this Form of Perſon muſt return from whence it was taken. F. Howgil's Teſtimony of E. B.

This Expreſſion is deliver'd to us by Francis Howgil, as Edward Burroughs's, a little before his Departure, in that Senſible Teſtimony he gave to the late Life, Labours and Death, of that Worthy, Painful, and Effectual Labourer, and his Companion in the Goſpel of JESUS.

But to help J. Faldo's Intellects, that they may no more look aſquint upon ſuch Weighty, Dying Words, let him know, that E. B. ſpoke not of God as his Soul's being by Nature, or as of that very Being (for ſo the Soul would be God indeed, and yet ſubject to all thoſe Pollutions and Puniſhments, which do, and will attend Wicked Men (Blaſphemy with a Witneſs) but God, as that Being, which by Regeneration, the New Nature, and Spirit of Adoption, all the Righteous Souls are gather'd to, and center'd in, as their Everlaſting Habitation, and Eternal Life. The World may perceive with Eaſe, at what Rate, and what Terms, J. Faldo ſwaggers over the Quakers: But let him boaſt that puts off his Armour.

§. 3. (Pag. 123.) The next Perſon he ſingles out, is G. Fox, thus anſwering a Prieſt. “ But God and Chriſt is in the Saints, and dwells in them, and he, (the Prieſt) “ is a Reprobate, and out of the Apoſtle's Doctrine. Great Myſtery, pag. 16.

I perceive, J. Faldo will rather quarrel Scripture, when he meets it in a Quaker's Book, than not have ſomething againſt them: But certainly if that be the Way to prove that we believe, the Soul is God, to wit, that God and Chriſt are in the Saints; What will become of the Scriptures? Will they eſcape J. Faldo's heavy Cenſures? Which ſay, That Chriſt is in his Saints, the Hope of Glory. I in them, and they in me. The Tabernacle of God is with Men, and he will dwell in them. Muſt every Thing, that is in another, be neceſſarily of that in which it is? But I hope, his Heat being abated, he may diſcern the Weakneſs of his Attempts againſt us. To proceed:

I. Pennington he alſo brings in, to make Good his Charge: How ſerviceable he may prove, will better appear, when we have examin'd the Paſſage. “ That “ which the Lord from Heaven begetteth of his own Image and Likeneſs, of his “ own [Subſtance] of his own Seed, of his own Spirit and Pure Life. Queſt. 27. But J. Faldo has miſt his Aim, and miſtaken his Man; for I. P. is not now ſpeaking of the Soul of Man, ſimply conſider'd, but of that Divine Life, Nature, Image, and Birth, that God by his Word of Life, creates, or begets in the Souls of thoſe who once lived not to God, but themſelves, bearing the Image of the Earthly; and do turn at his Reproof, to walk in the Way of Life. This will not move the Buſineſs one Jot farther, on the Behalf of our Enemies Charge.

§. 4. (Pag. 127.) We will cloſe this Point, with a Paſſage out of Samuel Fiſher's Velata quædam Revelata, Pag. 13. of which he is very Chary: “ As to the Spirit “ of Man, which concurs to the conſtituting of Man in his Primitive Perfection; “ it is the Breath of Life, which God breathed into his Soul, after he had formed “ him, as to his Body, of the Duſt of the Earth; whereby he came to be a Living “ Soul, a Soul, that did partake ſomething of God's own Life,—— This (Spirit of “ Man) is that Living Principle of the Divine Nature, which Man did before his “ Degeneration, and ſhall again after his Regeneration partake of.

This Charge, ſays our Adverſary, being of ſo black and horrid a Nature, I did judge it meet to prove it by abounding Inſtances; and now Reader, put on the largeſt Charity, and give me thy Verdict, if I have not made appear, that the Quakers are groſs Idolaters, &c.

Chap. XX.

To anſwer which briefly, and to Purpoſe, and to cloſe this Chapter, with a contrary Concluſion, I ſay, That the Spirit of Man is not to be taken, as of, or from Man, or that it is any Part of Man's Nature, taking Man in an Abſtractive Senſe. And had he been ſo fair, as to give us S. Fiſher's Words at large, they would have prov'd of Age enough to anſwer for themſelves. S. Fiſher is to be underſtood of that Spirit, or Breath of Life, not that made Man ſimply a Living Creature, of a meer Reaſonable Capacity, but that Divine Life or Breath, which makes alive to God, and gives a kind of Heavenly Animation, Motion, or Life, to live to him, which conſtituted Adam, not a meer Man, but a Bleſſed, Holy, Heavenly-minded Man, before his Degeneration. And that S. Fiſher did never intend it of the Natural Soul of Man, but rather of the Divine Life of the Soul, without which the Soul is deſtitute of the Knowledge of the True and Living God, his own Words very plainly ſhow: For if S. Fiſher intended that Spirit, which is the Divine Principle, that Man did partake of before his Degeneration; certain and clear it is, that ſince Man did, under that Degeneration, partake of his own Soul, or elſe he could not have been a Man, S. Fiſher never meant the meer Soul of Man, but the Life of that Divine Principle which regenerates and renews the Soul unto a Life of Purity and Bleſſedneſs.

So that we conclude, the Quakers not believing any ſuch Strange and Unſcriptural Doctrine, As that the Soul of Man, is the God that made the Heavens and the Earth (for ſo it would make it ſelf, and what is greater than it ſelf) They are not thoſe Idolaters they have been repreſented, and foully Characteriz'd by J. Faldo: But are Innocent and Free of all ſuch Imputation; and he their Accuſer, moſt of all Condemnoble; yea, and that for Idolatry too, who profeſſeth no Knowledge of God, but from Outward Senſe, by Hearing, Reading, &c. pag. 91. So that being deſtitute of the Revelation of the Son, that only can make known the Living Father, what Apprehenſions he has of God, are not Experimental, but Imaginary; and Worſhipping ſuch an Idea, he Worſhippeth not the True God, but the Images of his own Brain; therefore an Idolater. See Biſhop Andrews upon the Commandments, and Pagnin. upon the Word ירון.

CHAP. XXI.

Chap. XXI

Our Adverſary at a Loſs to prove his Charge. We own ſo much of the Reſurrection as the Scriptures expreſs; more Curioſity Dangerous and Condemnable. Eternal Rewards own'd by us. J. Faldo's Book will prove it to Him, and our Tribulations to Us.

§. 1. p. 132, 135. THE two laſt Charges, of this Second Part of his Diſcourſe, are our Denial of the Reſurrection of the Dead (that is, Dead Bodies) and future Rewards:

To the Firſt; he brings in I. Pennington thus: "We ſay, that Chriſt is the Re-
"ſurrection, to raiſe up that which Adam loſt, and to deſtroy him who deceiv'd
"him, (viz. Adam) ſo Chriſt is the Reſurrection unto Life, of Body, Soul and
"Spirit, and ſo renews Man, &c. Princip.Elem.People call'd Quakers, p. 134. Upon which he comments, What is this Reſurrection, but what they call Regeneration? (it ſeems he does not) and the Reſurrection of the Body is but in the ſame Senſe, as the Soul and Spirit is raiſed.

I can't help it, if J. Faldo has made a Quotation out of I. P. ſo unapplicable to his Buſineſs. I hope, none are ſo blind or partial, as to be angry, that I. P. did not write to his Purpoſe; it was ſufficient that he ſpake to his own, or rather to the Truth's. Our Adverſary falls downright upon us, with a Charge of Denying the Reſurrection of the Body, and is angry that the Place he produces, helps not his Deſign. Certainly, with ſober Men, the Blame will not lye at our Doors for not making good his Charge, but at his own, that he exhibited one he could not prove. But will he deny the Reſurrection in I P's Words? If he does, I pronounce him no Chriſtian; nor indeed will a bare Confeſſing to it render him One: And where he ſtands, I fear, he is but too far from both. Let it ſuffice, that thoſe Words are a modeſt, ſerious, and full Anſwer to this Caviller, ſince he does plainly acknowledge All that the firſt Adam loſt to be reſtor'd by Chriſt the ſecond Adam; and all that the Sin of one incurred, the Righteouſneſs of the other Redeem'd from. Now let his Notions of the Way and Method of Effecting this be what they will, we deſire not to be wiſe beyond what the Lord ſees convenient for us, as this buſy Intruder into ſacred Myſteries hath done, that lives in the Land, not of Light, but groſs Darkneſs within, and whoſe very borrowed, made, framed Light, from Reading, Art, Study and his own Conceptions, is the very Blackneſs of Darkneſs.

§. 2. (Page 136.) But he affirms, that George Whitehead ſhould ſay, being preſt in the Matter, that he did not believe his Body ſhould riſe again after it's Death, which he can prove by many Witneſſes.

I know not if ever G. Whitehead did ſo expreſs himſelf; But I ſee, every Expreſſion muſt be treaſured up to defend a decrepid Cauſe: Truth ſtands in no need of ſuch Watchings, that would make a Man an Offender for a Word. But what if he did ſay ſo, and I ſhould ſecond him, would it follow that we deny a Reſurrection? I am ſure I will deny all ſuch Conſequences. Doth not the Apoſtle ſay expreſly, 1 Cor. 15, 36, 37, Thou Fool —— thou ſoweſt not that Body that ſhall be. Is Scripture grown into ſuch mean Requeſt with J. Faldo; or doth his Rage againſt the Quakers ſo tranſport him, that he knows not Scripture, when he meets it from a Quaker?

But ſays our Adverſary, upon a like Place, and to this Purpoſe, (p. 139.) viz. We ſhall all be changed: I would aſk, if they would be content to be refuſed their Debts, if contracted before Quakers, and demanded when Quakers; I ſuppoſe they would believe that the Change in a Perſon, is not the Change of a Perſon; and that they are the ſame ſtill to whom the Money was and is due. But how clever ſoever any may think this Simile, we will prove it Lame and Defective; For the Change was not of the Body any farther, than as the Soul govern'd it after a new Way of Living. I cannot think that J. Faldo will dare to ſay, that a Man's Body is rendred ever the leſs Corruptible by any the beſt Change the Soul can make in this World. The Queſtion is about what that Change muſt be which makes a Corruptible an Incorruptible Body? I mean not by Corrupt, Sinful, but that groſs Elementary Matter, which is ſubject to thoſe Impreſſions, Influences, Mutations, and Paſſions which we ſee all Sublunary Bodies are ſubject to. Either the Reſurrection of the Body muſt be without that Matter, or it muſt not? If it muſt, then is it not that ſame Numerical Body; and ſo, their proper and ſtrict taking of the Word Reſurrection, they muſt let go. If it muſt not be without that ſame groſs Matter it died with, then I affirm, it cannot be Incorruptible, becauſe it will carry with it that which will render it Corruptible ad Infinitum.

And what can be more Unreaſonable, than that Bodies compounded of this Elementary World, which, ſays our Adverſary, ſhall, and muſt by Nature have an End, ſhould out-live their own Matter, and which is more, never End; I ſay, we cannot ſee how that which is of Duſt ſhould be Eternal, whilſt that from whence it came, is by Nature but Temporal. And that which is yet moſt of all Irreconcileable with Scripture and right Reaſon, is, that the Loſs and Change of Nature from Corruptible to Incorruptible, Natural to Spiritual, ſhould not make it another Body. In vain do ſuch diſpute againſt the Popiſh Tranſubſtantiation as an Abſurd and Impoſſible Thing, who themſelves are guilty in a Caſe of the like Nature. The Romaniſts affirm a Change in the Sacrament, though our Senſes tell us it is the ſame Thing that ever it was.

Our Adverſaries in the Point of the Reſurrection boldly affirm, that it is the ſame Body, and yet Tranſubſtantiated from Natural to Spiritual, or chang'd from what it was, to ſomething it never was. For my Part, I think the Laſt not leſs Impertinent, and the Former more expreſly Scriptural.

But becauſe ſuch Things run Men into Unprofitable Queſtions, various Searches, and a Philoſophical Way of Diſcourſing, no Ways tending to God's Honour, nor the Soul's Profit and Comfort, I will conclude this Head with our Confeſſion, That every Seed ſhall have it's own Body, and that ſuch an one, as it will pleaſe Almighty God to give; and Thou Fool, belongs moſt rightfully to him, who acquieſceth not in an humble Contentedneſs with the Good-will of God, and that Manner of Body he ſhall give. And I think it would make more for Love, Peace, and Good-will, if our Enemies would leave thoſe Things with God, quicquid ſupra nos, nihil ad nos, whoſe Will be done in Earth, as it is in Heaven.

§. 3. (Page 141, 142.) The Second Head of the Charge to be conſider'd in this Chapter; to wit, Our not Profeſſing of Eternal Rewards, needs no other Anſwer, than, That none ever read ſo; He quotes no ſuch Thing, nay, he ſays, that he has ſearcht, but to no Purpoſe; And I challenge him to name one Perſon reputed by us, to be of us, that has ever affirmed ſo groſs a Thing: Well then may I call this the Laſt great Lye of his Second Part of Lyes, and Slanders too; ſuch as he will be found much too weak to defend before the Tribunal of our God, where we have whereof both to anſwer, and juſtly accuſe him before Angels, as well as that we have now plainly refuted him before Men.

But he makes this a Conſequence of Denying the Reſurrection, which is obviouſly weak; ſince whatever we have ſcrupled of the common groſs Notion of the Reſurrection of this Corruptible Body, we have ever held an Eternal State of Recompence.

But ſo mean are his Proofs for this Conjecture, if I may give them that Name, that they ſhow far more of his Ignorance and Malice, than our Faith, in that Atheiſtical Opinion: However hear them. R. Farnſworth, ſaid he, was not ſaved by what Chriſt did at Jeruſalem; therefore, ſays he, already ſaved: But can any in their Wits think, he meant ſaved from Sin here, to be the whole of Salvation and Bleſſedneſs? O weak Man! Well, but I. Pennington ſays, Who forget God are to be turn'd into Hell. What Hell? ſays J. Faldo, only in this Life. A very Lye, and Infamous Slander: J. Faldo's Book againſt us, unrepented of, will prove, we believe, that Eternal Wo and Vengeance ſhall be the Wages of that Helliſh Work. We ſay, That in this Life, Men have an Earneſt of Heaven and Hell, and ſome Senſe of both States, as they are Good or Bad; but never did we affirm Men to enjoy that full Meaſure of Joy, or Torment, they ſhall have as their Eternal Reward or Recompence hereafter.

But E. Burroughs, the Day he died, ſaid, he was now putting off this Manner of Perſon, and returning to his own Being. Thoſe are not his very Words; but what then? Is this to prove we deny an Eternal Recompence, to produce his own Teſtimony to an Everlaſting State of Bleſſedneſs, that he Himſelf was juſt entring into? But W. Penn vindicates an Heaven within after his Faſhion, againſt the Author of the Spirit of the Quakers tried. And what is this to denying an Eternal Heaven for the Righteous? Did not the Saints enjoy Heavenly Places in Spirit, when on Earth? O Carnal Man! Benighted by the Power of Darkneſs, whoſe Underſtanding the thick Fogs and Miſts of Ignorance, Malice and Revenge, have overcaſt; that thou call'ſt Good Evil, and Evil Good; Light Darkneſs, and Darkneſs Light.

§. 4. I ſhall here, after his Example, reſume the Queſtion, and collect all that has been ſaid, and made evidently to appear on the Behalf of True Chriſtianity, and the Apoſtolical Profeſſors of it, (I mean the People of God call'd Quakers) and ſo end this Diſcourſe, reſpecting the Main of the Book.

If QUAKERISM (ſo call'd) be not another Diſpenſation than that of Chriſt, preached and ſettled by the Apoſtles.

If it deny not the Scriptures.

If it deny not all, nor any of the Ordinances of the Goſpel.

If it deny not any Influence of Chriſt's Tranſactions, above 1600 Years ſince, unto our Juſtification, and Salvation, as he phraſes it.

If it deny not Jeſus the Son of Mary, (after the Fleſh) otherwiſe God over all, to be the Chriſt of God.

If it own not falſe Gods, and be not Idolatry.

If it deny not the true Reſurrection of the Dead.

If it doth affect (an affected Expreſſion of our Adverſary's) or rather hold forth a future Bleſſedneſs or Miſery in another World, according to the Deeds done in this;

Then Quakeriſm, in our Adverſary's Account, muſt be Chriſtianity:

But all theſe Things are true, and have been proved of Quakeriſm (ſo called) Therefore Quakeriſm, ſo call'd, is true Apoſtolical, or Primitive Chriſtianity. And this ſhall cloſe our Chapter, and my honeſt and clear Anſwer to the Second Part of his Diſcourſe, which makes up more than three Parts of Four of his Uncharitable and Diſingenuous Treatiſe.

AN APPENDIX: BEING
A Reply to that laſt Part of his Book, which pretends to anſwer the Firſt of my Spirit of Truth Vindicated, Entituled, An Examination of the Firſt Part of W. P's Spirit of Truth, &c. with a Rebuke of his Exorbiancies.

§. 1. Though there has been no Adverſary which has fallen to my Share, that has ſhewn more Incivility, and leſs Learning, (a Thing he pretends to) in Anſwer to any of my Books, than J. Faldo has done in this laſt Part of his Quakeriſm no Chriſtianity; yet how little ſoever I have, at leaſt to beſtow upon him, I deſire to manifeſt more Temper, Truth and Civility, than to recompence him with that ill-bred Language, thoſe School-puns, and looſe, irreverent, if not prophane Sayings, amidſt the moſt weighty Matters, it hath pleaſed him to give me, for a great Share of his Anſwer to the firſt Part of my Book. I will rather betake my ſelf to ſingle out the Strength of his Objections, if any there be, and beſtow my Time in Vindication of the Truth, than to rail, revile, undervalue and ſtigmatize with I know not how many diſgraceful Epithets, a Way that never yet reacht into any Man's Conſcience. And this Ken I have of J. Faldo, That all his Diſcourſe of Chriſtianity, interlin'd with ſo much Babling, Prattle, and baſe Abuſe, would never move a ſober Turk; and a Banian is a Saint to a Congregation of ſuch Kind of Chriſtians.

§. 2. He tells me (p. 2.) he expected great Things, when firſt he ſet about to read my Book, and began to ſtagger in his Mind, as to that Ingenious Piece, call'd, The Spirit of the Quakers tried, or to that Purpoſe: But knowing himſelf better, I hope he will excuſe me, if I do not believe him. He never had that Opinion of any Thing writ in Defence of a People he teſtifies ſuch irreconcileable Hatred to, which is none of the meaneſt Blots in his 'Scutcheon. Penn, the Anſwerer, if he were not furniſht with Fore-head and Tales beyond Meaſure, his Pamphlet would have had nothing remarkable in it; Whether this be moſt a Lye or an Abuſe, I know not, perhaps the Reader may; but ſure I am, there is more of both than ſtands with true Chriſtianity, to give a Comprehenſive Undervalue of what he can never anſwer, which perhaps goes for one among ſuch as have Faith in him, or know no better.

§. 3. But he is angry at my ſtating the Queſtion, thus, (p. 3.) Whether God's Holy and Unerring Spirit is or ſhould be the proper Judge of Truth, Rule of Faith, and Guide of Life, among Men, eſpecially under the Adminiſtration of the Bleſſed Goſpel of our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, or no? I affirm it, and proceed to prove it by Scripture and Reaſon. Upon which be pleaſed to hear his Reflection, and from Hence make a Judgment, what that Spirit muſt be that ſhould ſo pretend to anſwer my Spirit of Truth, &c. Conſidering his Words foregoing (which are too many and too worthleſs to tranſcribe) And what he drives at in the handling of this Queſtion, I never read one ſo lame and deformed in my Life come forth with ſuch State and Confidence, and ſuch a Train and Rout of Mediums as deformed as it ſelf; There is in it neither Logick nor Honeſty: Certainly if he had not turned Quaker, and in that Fall put all out of Joint, he could not likely after ſuch good Nurſing have been thus lamentably cripled in his Intellects, and ſomewhat beſides.

One

One would think the Strain of this Comment were Anſwer to it ſelf: Why ſo much flouriſh, and little done? Muſt Noiſe ſupply the Abſence of Reaſon? and baſe Reviling go for Confutation? Shallow Man! What Lameneſs is there in the Queſtion? I profeſs I ſee none, nor has he ſo much as pointed at one Limb that is defective in all this Rabble of Reflection. [I have neither Logick nor Honeſty] It had been to be wiſh'd that he had ſhown more of both in ſaying ſo, or held his Tongue. [But my turning Quaker has put ſomething out of Joynt] But what, I know not, unleſs the good Opinion I once undeſervedly had of ſuch Mountebank Prieſts. But give him his due, he is the firſt Man that ever acquainted me with the Ground of Cripling. I was never yet wiſe enough to think it a Natural Effect of Ill-nurſing; but Careleſneſs in Nurſes, Falls and the like have brought it. I perceive he is not only a Well-wiſher to Phyſick by his hard Word, Ebullitions, but a ſmall Pretender to Chyrurgery, by his Term, out of joynt; when he has given better Proof of his well-ſetting to rights his own diſ-joynted, or, if he will, diſlocated Cauſe with that of Chriſtianity, he may better ſet up for a Religious Boneſetter, and in the mean Time he can paſs but for a Quack.

[But I have no Logick] And why? [Becauſe I ſay, pag. 37. there is no more Difference to me between a Judge, Rule and Guide, than eſſentially there can be in the Wiſdom, Juſtice and Holineſs of God; he ſhould have added, ſays J. Faldo, nor between Truth, Faith and Life amongſt Men.]

I would know of any Man that can think himſelf capable of judging in the plaineſt Caſe; if this be an Anſwer to mine Argument; I ſaid then, I do again, that there is no more Difference in them reſpecting the Principle, than eſſentially there can be in the Wiſdom, Juſtice, and Holineſs of God, which are but ſo many Words to expreſs the Perfection of one and the ſame Being, for he is all, and that in all. Wiſe in being Juſt, and both in being Holy; They are inſeparable, for That which gives me a right Senſe or Judgment of Truth from Error, is as well to me a Rule, what I ſhould believe or disbelieve, and a Guide what I ſhould practiſe or not practiſe, as at firſt it was my Judge of what was Truth from what was Error; All which ſober, and indeed unanſwerable Arguing he thought fit to overlook, which is very Diſingenuous. I ſay, that the ſame Spirit, which is a Judge, is a Rule and Guide, even in that very Act, wherein it is a Judge, and that unavoidably; Therefore to diſtinguiſh them is frivolous, and to maintain one to be a Rule, and the other a Judge, is abſurd and heterodox.

For his Addition, it is not hard to anſwer, That there is more Difference between Truth, Faith and Life; for one may be without the other two, I mean Truth abſtractly: But if it ſhall be underſtood of Truth received into the Heart, I ſay, that there is ſo great an Affinity between Truth, true Faith, and an Heavenly Life, that they follow each other almoſt at an inſtant, and cannot be ſeparated from each other.

§. 4. But he is Angry that I ſhould uſe thoſe Words of Lord and Saviour in my Queſtion. I thought them ſober; and I am ſure I meant them of him that was before Abraham, that in Time appeared for the Salvation of his People, however he would diſintereſt us in them; but indeed the Way he takes to do it will do us no harm: For that he may inſinuate we mean another Thing, he calls it Playing at Blind-Man's-Buff, which is worſe than a Buffle-headed Expreſſion. Is this your Goſpel-Miniſter? Let him go wreſtle at Morefields, play Foot-ball Matches, turn Ringer, a Practice he pleads for in his Book, and leave off Prophaning the Holy Name of God with ſuch an unhallowed Mouth and unbridled Tongue. Some of my Scripture-Arguments he pretends to refute, I ſhall mention, and what he objects, that both may be weighed in an equal Ballance.

§. 5. The firſt Scripture by me urged is that in Geneſis 6. 3. My Spirit ſhall not always ſtrive with Man, &c. From whence I infer, that God's unerring Spirit both did ſo ſtrive either for Conviction and Converſion, or to prompt to farther Attainments, and that they were not at that Time of the World without an Infallible Spirit to Teach, Rule, Judge, &c. To which he ſays, My Argument is a Thicket of Impertinencies, that a Body had need of good Arithmetick to number the Terms, that I am a none-ſuch for Diving, if I can fetch up from this Scripture what is mention'd in this Propoſition.

What need there is of this little Wit, a better Word for Pedantry, I know not, and I believe more are of my Mind; but if my Conſequences are ſo Impertinent, and ſo Numerous that ordinary Arithmetick will not ſerve to reckon them, and laſtly

1673. laſtly ſo unnatural as that the Scripture will afford me not one of them, I am greatly to be blamed. But becauſe what he ſays for me may be of more Force than all that I can offer, let this Paſſage be weighed [It is more than probable that the Spirit did ſtrive with them to make them better than they were, yet none of theſe Ends are expreſſed in the Text] An eminent Contradiction to him, and which is more, to it ſelf; For if the Spirit ſtrove to make them better, then ſince that better conſiſted in a Diſcovery of Good and Evil, with an Election of the Good, and a Denial of the Evil, I would fain know of J. Faldo, how that could be, and the Spirit of Truth not be what I have inſtanced in my Argument. Was it not then a Judge of what was Good from Evil? A Rule how to chuſe one and refuſe the other? A Guide, to lead, direct, enable to the Choice, and preſerve in it? O Weak Man! Is this the Upſhot of all thy poor Inſults? But why may not William Penn expreſs the Scope of any Scripture in his Argument, though he find not the very Words in the Text, if it will bear them, eſpecially ſince J. Faldo himſelf allows it, both in granting that the Spirit ſtrove to make them better, which is not verbally expreſt, and by his Weekly Practice of Preaching, where nothing is more frequent than his Expoſition, and after a ſort too which the Text many Times will not bear.

But he tells me that my Queſtion is, to prove the Spirit's Teaching indefinitely, or without Difference of Perſons; and my Proof ſpeaks of the Spirit's Striving with Wicked Men. For this he cries out, that I wander from Truth and Reaſon, and am Infatuated, queſtioning, if my Conſcience have any Eyes; and has Impudence enough to tell me, that I am beholden to him for giving no farther Diſcovery of my Vanity and Folly, &c.

How groundleſs his Cavil and Reflection are, and with what rude and unhandſom Terms he is pleaſed to give them, I need not trouble my ſelf to ſhew; But certainly if God affords Bad Men his Spirit to ſtrive with them; then Good Men, who cannot be ſuch without it, but Senſual and Deviliſh rather, muſt needs have this Holy Spirit, as well to preſerve them, as that it made them ſuch; if ſo, then may we conclude our Adverſary Weak, as well as Envious, who from that Text denies my Proof of the Univerſality of God's Spirit. For what is it but to ſay, that though all Wicked Men have the Spirit ſtriving, Good Men have it not? Whoſe Conſcience wants Eyes at this Time, will not be hard to determine; but ſure I am, it was his Wiſdom to leave off where he did, ſince his reputing my Sober Scriptural Argument Infatuation, Folly, &c. was the moſt evident Mark of his own he could well have given us.

§. 6. The Second Scripture I urge, and which he perverts, is that in Neh. 3. 20. Thou gaveſt alſo thy Good Spirit to inſtruct them; which, ſays he, without being ſo ingenuous as to mention, much leſs conſider, and anſwer my Argument upon it, is mainly the Spirit of God, which he put upon Moſes and Joſhua, for which he quotes Numb. 11. 17. & 27. 18. Pſal. 77. 20. But does he think us ſo Credulous, as to receive this Stuff for Goſpel? Certainly we muſt commit the greateſt Cruelty upon our Underſtandings to ſtrain them to ſuch a Fiction. He might with as good Reaſon have ſaid, that the Pillar of Cloud by Day, and Fire by Night were ſeen of none but Moſes and Joſhua, as to grant, they had the immediate and general Benefit of them, and at the ſame Time deny them to have had the immediate Benefit of the Spirit's Teachings. Beſides, had they not had ſome Meaſure of the Spirit of God, they could never have known that Moſes had been ſo inſpired, nor have ſo willingly bowed under Moſes as they did, and have ſhewn themſelves ſo well aſſured of his Conduct. Nor can the Objection of their Rebellion at Times invalidate our Reaſon, ſince it were to ſay, that they ſinned not againſt the Spirit of God in themſelves, but in Moſes only. But becauſe they did ſin againſt the Holy Ghoſt in themſelves, and that it was the greateſt Ground for the Charging of Rebellion againſt them, we may well conclude that they had the Spirit, that is, the Conviction of it.

The Scriptures he brings, are no more to his Purpoſe, than the Story of Tobit and his Dog: For though there was the Gift of the Spirit poured out upon Moſes, Joſhua, and others, that was not common to the People; yet this proves not that they were not without a Meaſure of the Unerring Spirit to teach them what was acceptable with God; The Difference was not, that Moſes, &c. had the Spirit, and the People had it not, but that he and ſome others had the Spirit of Government, and the People had it not: But what is this for him? Doth not the ſame Eternal Spirit that teacheth to Rule, alſo teach People to be ruled? Nay, I affirm, that as God did gift ſeveral by his Holy Spirit to Govern, and conſequently they had the Spirit; ſo did he beſtow of his Holy Spirit upon the People, to enable them to live according to the Government, and conſequently they had as truly their Meaſure of the Holy Unerring Spirit, as had Moſes, Joſhua, &c. theirs.

§. 7. The Third Scripture he would unconcern me in, is this, And the Inſpiration of the Almighty giveth them Underſtanding. Upon this he asks me this Queſtion.

But doth this encourage Men to caſt off all External Means, and the Uſe of their Reaſon? Nothing leſs, ſays he; Nothing leſs, ſay I too: And who can help it, if he underſtands me ſo; But that he may be as baſe, as baſe can be, he aſks this Queſtion as the Reſult of my Argument upon the Place, and yet never anſwers it at all: But I cannot help it, if J. Faldo will render me a Fool, that he may ſhew himſelf Wiſe, I confeſs he wants ſome ſuch Fool for his Work, and his own Weakneſs may tempt him to that Diſhoneſty. Only I would have the Reader know, that Reaſon, Memory and Underſtanding are all uſeful Servants; we deny them not a Place in the Heavenly Work, but as Inſtruments, not Agents; which ſhould not move of themſelves, to Religious Worſhip, but in and by the Motions of the Holy Spirit of God.

§. 8. The next Scripture he thinks I abuſe, is this; Whither ſhall I go from thy Spirit; or Whither ſhall I flee from thy Preſence? From whence (ſays he) you can ſcribble thus. If God's unerring Spirit be ſo nigh, and the Senſe of it ſo certain, it muſt be either to Reprove for Evil done, or to Inform, Uphold, Lead and Preſerve, in Reference to all Good: Now, in which of the two Senſes it ſhall be taken, the Preſence of God's Eternal Spirit, and his being the Saints Inſtructor, Judge, Rule and Guide, are evidently deduceable from the Words——rudis indigeſtaq; moles, worſe than ever Bear brought forth her Cubbs, ſays J. Faldo: But this is not all; hear him farther, which with her Licking may be brought into ſome Shape, but your Products are ſo defective, both in Truth, right Reaſon, Syntax, and Senſe, that it is no Diſ-reputation to your Adverſary to be confounded by them. A notable Excuſe for no Anſwer but Silence, which is always counted Anſwer enough by him, when he hath never another to give. Again,

It is an effectual (but an impudent) Courſe, to Silence all the World from Oppoſing you, by writing ſuch confident confuſed Non-ſenſe: We may ſuppoſe then that there is ſuch a Thing as confuſed Senſe. Yet again,

Were it not for the Sake of many who conceit your Infallibility, which you are here ſo blindly pleading for, I would as ſoon abandon my Time (Non-ſenſe) to diſpute with a diſtracted Man in his Raving Fits, as with W. Penn, till he come better to himſelf, than I find him in his Pamphlet.

And Reader, Canſt thou think that my Adverſary has taken a fair or probable Way to bring me to my ſelf again, whoſe beſt Arguments are ſordid, ill-bred Names, down-right Lyes and Slanders? I challenge any Man that can ſoberly pretend to Religion, to ſo much as abet this Manner of Proceeding againſt me, and the Way I profeſs: If this were to be Chriſtian, as it is Antichriſtian; were I a Turk, I ſhould take great Care I came not within the very Suburbs of ſo baſe a Profeſſion. Where's J. Faldo's Reading, Learning, Conſcience, in this one Paſſage? I will not ſo much as attempt the Defence of my Argument; for it were to ſay, it needed my Aſſiſtance, or that my Adverſary had done ſomething to aſſayl its Security, who has ſo pleaded the Inſobriety and Truth of it, by an Oppoſition that could become none but a Creature as forlorn of all Honeſty as himſelf, that it is a Credit to my Cauſe, almoſt equal with our Clearneſs, that ſo much Rancour and Ignorance ſet themſelves againſt it. This is no leſs Man than your Vaunting, Strutting, J. Faldo his own ſelf, who thinks as well of himſelf, and deſerves as little of it from other Men, as any Perſon that has come within my Ken a long Time. In ſhort, whether I am out of my Wits, or he out of all Bounds of good Senſe or Manners, ſhall be left with the Reader to determine. For my part; if this be the Way he intends to take to confute his Oppoſers, he is like to anſwer himſelf; And to give him his due, he is as good at it as moſt Men I know; and 'tis to be hop'd he may increaſe in that Science.

§. 9. But he tells me, that my main Fallacies are theſe two; Firſt, from an Infallible Spirit-Teaching, to the Infallibility of the Subjects in which the Spirit dwells as 1673. as a Teacher. Next, from the Spirit's Teaching, to it's Immediate and Peculiar Teaching. If the Firſt be true, without any Conſideration had to the Obedience of the Creature, and his being guided by the Holy Spirit, I will yield it to him that I have miſtaken, though not fallaciouſly, that implying a Deſign to do ſo, which I had not: And for the Second I am content to ſtand by the Charge, not of a Fallacy, but our Faith, and ſuch as is Defenſible both from Scripture and Reaſon.

But if the Truth of no Argument I have made, nor any Expreſſion that has fallen from me, doth ſo much as imply his Charge, let him not be angry with me, that I ſay, He is one of the baſeſt Perverters among Men: And if that very Paſſage by which he hopes to prove this great Deceit of mine, is found mute in the Caſe, I hope no Reader will be ſo unjuſt to refuſe me the Cenſure of his being an Unfair Adverſary.

§. 10. The firſt Place he thinks to make for him, is this; Quench not the Spirit: On which I argu'd thus; Thoſe to which he gave the Caution had the Spirit, if thoſe could not quench it, that had it not, conſequently the Primitive Churches were not without an Unerring Spirit. To which he ſays, but ſuppoſe they had the Spirit, it is a miſerable erroneous and weak Concluſion, that they were Infallible. How far this makes for him, or rather how greatly he has miſtaken me is evident, if it may be conſidered that there is not one Word of any Man's being Infallible in all my Argument; only that the Primitive Churches had an infallible Spirit, not of their own, or from themſelves, but from God; and that they were only ſo in their Knowledge or Determinations from the unerring Guidance of God's Spirit; unleſs they either were without the Anointing, or the Anointing was Fallible, both which are contradicted by the Apoſtle John in the noted Paſſage, 1 John 2. 27. So that my Adverſary is manifeſtly guilty of that Fault He doth with no ſmall Aggravation charge upon me, viz. That from my Arguing the Certainty of the Primitive Churches having the Holy Spirit of God to direct them, from the Impoſſibility of their Quenching what they had not, he makes me to conclude the Infallibility of the Churches, whether they were led by it or no; As if I intended to plead the Infallibility of private Spirits, and not rather of the Holy Spirit of God, and ſuch only as were conformable to it.

§. 11. His other Cavil confirms the Truth of my former Argument, and his own great Ignorance or Baſeneſs. My Words are theſe, If God ſends forth his Spirit into the Hearts of his Children, then are they not without an Infallible Spirit, grounded upon that Scripture, Becauſe ye are Sons, God hath ſent forth the Spirit of his Son into your Hearts, Gal. 4. 6. To which he ſays; Your Adverſaries have not ſo little Knowledge of the Spirit of God, as to ſay the Spirit of God is Fallible, nor yet are ſo Ignorant of your Spirits and of the Scripture, as to ſay, you are Infallible. Now I have two Things to deſire of the Ingenuous Reader; Firſt, to find me out ſo much as one Syllable in my Argument, that infers or concludes the Spirits of ſuch to be infallible, into whoſe Hearts God has ſhed abroad his infallible Spirit, whether they are led by it or not; or that I could intend a concluding of the Spirit of Man infallible, becauſe God has given his own unto Men, that is unqueſtionably ſo. I am ſure ſuch a Thought never entred my Mind, as fruitful of them as our Adverſary may be; Adverſary I may well ſay, not only becauſe he is one, but that he acknowledges to me as much, which let him know however, I am not ſuch to him.

The Second Thing I have to deſire of the Candid Reader, is, that he would weigh with himſelf, how Unjuſt this Man is to me, to infer Infallibility to Men, from my Affirming it to belong only to the Spirit of God; And as if he fear'd, I ſhould not be as Heterodox as his Envy would have me, to conclude on my Account from what I urged to prove, That God's Children in all Ages had an Infallible Spirit to Judge, Rule, and Guide them; the Affirmative of the very Queſtion debated (that is, God's Spirit) That every ſuch one was Infallible in and from his own private Spirit. O Monſtrous Perverſion! I would impute it to his Miſtake of me, it being far better to be ignorant than diſhoneſt, but he will not let me, who a little below has Impudence enough to write; but we are Not Ignorant, that your Principles make no Difference, or Diſtinction between the Spirits of God's People and the Spirit of God; manifeſtly intending, (not that they are at variance, for ſo we ſhould eſteem his Charge a Piece of Juſtice, but) that the Spirit of the Creature and the Spirit of God are but one Spirit; An Abſurdity that never fell from us. How many Times hath J. Faldo been guilty in his Diſcourſe of plain Forgery and Diſhoneſty againſt us. So certain as there is a God in Heaven, terrible will his Judgment be in that Great Day of Inqueſt, if he repent not.

§. 12. (Pag. 21, 22, 23,) He makes a great Stir about my checking the late Socinian, for making Chriſt the Head of a Fallible Body, ſaying, If Chriſt be Head to none but the Infallible, Wo to the Poor Saints, who have truſted hitherto they had an Head in Heaven, who hath Pity on the Ignorant, and thoſe that are out of the Way; and I am ſure Chriſt is then none of your Head.

We have enough, and leave his very ill Language out. (1.) It is granted to us, that Chriſt is Head to a Fallible Body, or at leaſt to Fallible as well as Infallible. I charge him to give us one Scripture for this, or he is gone, for all his Idle Puns, Shifts, and ſcoffing Flings at us. (2.) That a Man may be a Saint, which if we take it ſtrictly, is one of that Number the Apoſtle prayed, The Churches might be of; I mean thoſe which were ſanctified throughout, in Body, Soul and Spirit: I ſay, That a Man may be ſuch a Saint, and yet be Fallible or Erring. (3.) That the Saints are ignorant and out of the Way: Truly this Doctrine very well becomes J. Faldo, I had rather it ſhould be his than mine; I will venture then in the Scale of Truth, without thinking I am on Hazard in the Matter, eſpecially when, if I err, That hinders not from being a Saint and Member of Chriſt: But J. Faldo, Can a Man be a Saint, and yet ignorant of ſo much of God, as is requiſit to conſtitute him ſuch? Or can he be ſuch, and yet out of the Way which renders him a True Saint? It is the firſt Time that I ever heard in ſo many Words, That a Man might be a Saint, and out of God's Way. O Doctrine of Devils! No Marvel ſo many Unclean Fowls flock to this Carcaſs. What! Saints, and err from God's Way? Strange! Saints, and ignorant of God's Mind? It ſeems then, that neither Ignorance, nor Erring from God's Way, indiſpoſe any to be Saints. If this be not a plain Contradiction to the whole Record of Scripture, none ever was, is, or ſhall be eſteemed ſuch to the End of the World: How many, how grievous, and how ſharp have God's Complaints been againſt thoſe who have left the Right Way of the Lord, which has been the Way of Light and Righteouſneſs, the Juſt Man's Path through every Generation? No Wonder that ſuch Doctrines are both greedily received and ſeriouſly maintained, that ſooth up People in the Belief of ſuch pernicious Soul-murdering Doctrines. And the Truth is, and I do boldly affirm it, and that in the Counſel of the Eternal God, It is our ſtriking ſo conſtantly and earneſtly at this and ſuch like Sin-pleaſing Principles, that makes the Devil thus beſtir himſelf in his ready Agents, to raiſe up, and beſpatter us with ſuch heavy Calumnies, as almoſt every one produceth againſt us. But we loſe not an Inch of Ground, nor a Dram of Courage; our Godly Reſolution redoubles with our Adverſaries On-ſets; and whatever may befall us here, as our Hope, ſo our Reward, is from God, in that High and Heavenly Place, which is above the Reach of Time, and every Aſſault of our implacable Adverſaries.

§. 13. (Pag. 24.) He tells me, He might proceed to my fallacious Arguing from the Spirit's Teaching indefinitely expreſſed (that is, by Scripture, Viſions, Providences, &c. means our Adverſary) to it's Teaching peculiarly, frequently in my Pamphlet, Pag. 18, 29, &c. that is, to the Spirit's Teaching Men and Women by it's daily and inward Diſcoveries, Motions and Operations. But he will not; the Reaſon is, he dare not; For if the Spirit be not an immediate Living Teacher, and works not as ſuch, to the Information, Conviction, and Converſion of Men to God in theſe Days, let him for Shame relinquiſh all Pretence to Goſpel, or an Evangelical Diſpenſation, of which it is the peculiar Promiſe and Priviledge.

§. 14. (Pag. 27.) Though for want of better Language, he is pleaſed to beſtow upon this Godly Profeſſion, the Term of Beetle-headed Saying, and affirms, That the Scripture knows nothing of it; For which I may more reaſonably affirm, That He knows nothing of it: For can this Man be ſo beſotted, as to think, that when a Meaſure of the Spirit was given to all to profit with; and that the Children of God were led by the Spirit of God, and the Spirit that was ſent into the Hearts of the Sons of God, and the Anointing that was in the Saints that was able to teach them all Things, was any Meaſure, Part, or Parcel, of the Prophets or Apoſtles Writings? I cannot yet think him ſo Blinded, as Ignorant or Envious as he is. Either theſe Paſſages are no Scripture, or that groſs Abſurdity muſt follow.

§. 15. (Pag. 27.) But he tells us, That we may be miſtaken, ever ſince ſome of us thought Paul Hobſon's Mumbling through a Trunk, and an Hole in the Wall, to be the Voice of the Lord. But were it as True, as it is in many Things falſe, it ſhews the Prophaneneſs of that Anabaptiſt, who dar'd to take the Lord's Name in his Mouth, and counterfeit a Solemn Commiſſion to a poor whimſical Wretch; and as it hap-

1673. pened, out of a Spirit of Covetouſneſs and Inhoſpitality, for he had no Mind to give him longer Entertainment; ſo that not knowing how better to be rid of him, than to forge a Commiſſion, he wickedly contrived a Paſſage into the Chamber where the Man lay, and through a Trunk prophanely uttered a Kind of Commiſſion, to go to a certain Place, where, I cannot tell; but I am ſure, as the Story goes, out of his Houſe, to whom his little Victuals had been a Burden; A Practice for the Avarice, Prophaneneſs and Abuſe of it, to be abhorred and deteſted of all Sober Men. And I think the Man more excuſable under his Miſtake than Major Hobſon, who ventur'd into ſo much Wickedneſs, and that with Deſign to bring him into it. 'Tis true, that ſuch a Man there was, that he went to Major Hobſon's Houſe, that he dealt ſo wickedly by the Man to be rid of him, that the Man had been among us; but as his Practice ſhew'd him to be none of us, ſo were not any of his Imaginations countenanced by us, but ſharply rebuk'd; and therefore that Part of J. Faldo's Reflection, a Lye: Yet, ſince he has gotten this Story by the End, I will ſee how much better grounded J. Faldo would be upon his Principles againſt a Quaker, ſhould he be ſo impious as to put the ſame prophane Abuſe upon him. Suppoſe J. Faldo, either by a Trunk, or Hole through a Wall, or one of the New-invented Trumpets, that carry a Voice a Mile, ſhould have as far as Words go, a very Solemn Commiſſion to go Preach the Goſpel in any other Place than Barnet, (where I hear, he now lives) within this Iſle, or ſome more remote Part of the World, and that not only once or twice, but many Times joyn'd with Threats and Promiſes, I will ſuppoſe his Inclinations will lie at Home, unleſs more be to be gotten (an infallible Ground of Motion with many of his Tribe) But I would know of him, which Way, or upon what Foot he would receive or reject ſuch a Commiſſion? The Scripture makes no Mention of any ſuch Thing in Particular; in General it will not reach it, becauſe this is no other Goſpel, that he ſhould be required to Preach, than that which he pretends to be according to Scripture. I ſay, with what would he reliſh, ſavour, or try this Voice? Would he reject it, becauſe the Scripture did not particularly own it? There is the ſame Reaſon why he ſhould embrace it, becauſe it does not particularly deny it. How will he do then? Why, perhaps he will go, becauſe there is no General-Rule in Scripture that withſtands it. But how does he know, that ſo many good Words in themſelves were ſpoken from God, and not to deceive, tempt, or abuſe him? 'Tis true, the Scripture has general Denials to Falſe Spirits, and general Teſtimonies to the Motions of the True One, but ſtill here's but a begging of the Queſtion; For how ſhall I know that the Voice or Spirit be True or Falſe? It is not Unſcriptural, Unreaſonable, nor Improbable. Alas for John Faldo! Have all his Preaching, Praying, Writing, &c. no better Foundation than Hear ſay, Imitation, ſtrong Fancy and external Senſe? Can he not ſavour and reliſh Spirits as well as Words? If not, he may be truly ſtiled a Man of Words, but void of that Spirit which tries Spirits, and gives Right Diſcerning of thoſe Things that may concern them, to all that believe in it, and are led by it. I might ſay much upon this Theme, but let this ſuffice to detect the weak Foundation of J. Faldo's Faith, Knowledge and Practice; and that ſuch as he, though pretendedly two or three Degrees more refined than the preſent Proteſtants, are miſerably apoſtatized from the Firſt Revolters from Rome's Idolatries, who aſſerted, None could underſtand the Scriptures themſelves, much leſs benefit by them, who had not the ſame Spirit that gave them forth; conſequently, the Spirit, and not the Scriptures, were the Principal Cauſe of Right Knowledge, and the Rule, for our very Underſtanding of them. And truly, though J. Faldo would have the World think he both underſtands the Quaker's Principles very well, and has refuted them very clearly, yet whether he will give me Leave or no, I will make him ſpeak the Language of the Quakers paſſing well in this Particular of the Spirit's being the Judge, Rule and Guide of Faith, Worſhip and Converſation, the Thing aim'd at in that Firſt Part of my Spirit of Truth Vindicated, by him ſo much quarrell'd at, perverted and ſcurrilouſly abuſed, or elſe I greatly miſtake his Mind. And, which will be much to my Defence, he muſt likewiſe have done ſo himſelf. Hear him,

§. 16. (Pag. 15.) But Mr. Penn, do you deal fairly and honeſtly with your Adverſaries, to imply in your Queſtion that we deny the Spirit of God to be a proper Rule of Faith, Guide of Life, Judge of Truth? You know that we own it to be ſuch; and that it doth both in the Conſcience, and by the Scripture, Creation and Providence, perform ſuch Acts, &c. and is to ſuch Purpoſes, and that of Right. What can we ſay more? Has he not ſtrangely miſ-underſtood us? Again, Only we deny that the the Spirit always performs theſe Acts without the Uſe of the Scripture, or any External Means.

Truly and ſo do we; for we daily enjoy the Benefit both of God's Spirit by the Scripture, and publick Worſhip, as Means. If this be the Grindſtone my Noſe is to be held at, and by not mentioning of which (as he falſly ſays of me) I abuſe and trifle with him and my Unwary Reader, I am contented to abide here while I live, as my Diſcourſe at large upon the Scriptures muſt needs have informed thoſe who have read it. But I am of the Mind that J. Faldo will find it too hot for him, and I am aſſured, that ſo much Conceſſion overturns him for ever, as to his preſent Baſis; For that he ſhould oppoſe my Diſcourſe that intended nothing more than to prove God's Spirit to be the Great Rule to Believers, and yet himſelf, after much Oppoſition, to give it away, and accord as far as any Man need to do, that would be of one Mind with us in the Point, ſavours of great Weakneſs and Inadvertency; not, that he now ſpeaks Truth, but that he ſhould ſo eagerly oppoſe it before.

§. 17. (Pag. 30.) There is one Paſſage more, which being to this Purpoſe, I will mention: We value not the Senſe (of the Scripture) for the Print's Sake, but the Print for the Senſe's Sake, and the Bleſſings that attend that Way of Conveying the Holy and Revealed Will of God, and ſo much as to correct your Vapour.

This he ſpeaks upon my Words, that the Intimate of a Prince needs not ſo much an Edict becauſe in Print, as becauſe of his living and more immediate Touches he may have had from his Prince. Now let any tell me, if the Quakers have put the Scriptures into any Degree below that, wherein J. Faldo himſelf has plac'd them. Do the Quakers ſay, That True Chriſtians have the Spirit; ſo ſays J. Faldo too. Do the Quakers affirm that the Spirit of God is a Judge, Rule and Guide, and ſpeaks forth the Mind of God into the very Conſcience; Does J. Faldo come one Jot behind them? But do they ſay, That it is the Senſe of the Truth declared of in the Scripture, that puts a Value upon the Declaration? And that Written or Printed Words, are Valu'd for the Matters Sake they treat of, rather than their own? Yea, that the Scripture of it ſelf can do little? It is J. Faldo's own Doctrine! Very well! But does J. Faldo ſay, That God doth not always ſpeak in the Conſcience immediately by his Spirit, but ſometimes by the Spirit, through the Uſe of Means, as the Scripture's, Preaching, Praying, Creation, Providence, &c. and that by ſuch Ways he reacheth into the Conſciences of Men? So ſay the Quakers too. Would the Man but be certain to himſelf, we needed no other Advocate; but his Ignorance of our Principles, or Prejudice to miſ-repreſent them, makes him at once oppoſe us, and contradict himſelf.

And now we are come to the Concluſion of the Matter, which he ſays, Is, to ſhew me my ſelf in the Glaſs of Senſe, if I think my Eyes worth an Uſing. Indeed I do, and am willing to behold all he hath to ſhew me: Reader, hear him ſoberly.

§. 18. (Pag. 30.) Foul Epithets; as Knave, Puppy, Fool, Raſcal, Loggerhead, Cheat; This you ſay, was the Language of our Adverſaries ſmall Crier, but as you call it, of a loathſome Scent. It ſeems J. Faldo's Noſe calls it no ſuch Thing; A long Experienced Chaplain, a Kind of a Religious Gentleman-Uſher, ſhould have learned better Manners.

So, ſays he, You blow it on the Author of the Book within five Lines. — Tryers of other Men's Spirits, who have (it ſhould be give) ſo little Proof of the Knowledge of their own, as to be wanting in the firſt Principles of Civility. This is not fair (ſays J. Faldo) to charge him with another's Faults.

It is ſome Juſtice to us, that he will account ſuch Language to a Quaker a Fault. But I would have him know, that I never intended any ſuch Thing as he baſely infers, that is, to make H. Hedworth in the leaſt Guilty of uſually calling G. Fox thoſe ſcurrilous Names; for though I think him Envious enough againſt G. F. in particular, as appears by another Sort of Language, and the Quakers in general, yet I believe him to have more Civility and Regard to his Way, whatſoever he thinks of me, than to dirt it with any Thing ſo groſs. But for as much as T. Firman, the Author of that foul Language, was his great Intimate and Aſſociate, that they have in common the ſame Creed, are joyntly intereſted againſt us, thereby earneſtly endeavouring to promote their Beloved Socinianiſm, or Biddleiſm in the World, and Men acted not by two diſtinct Spirits, though one might launch forth more extravagantly than the other: And laſtly, that H. H. had ſhewn other Sorts of Rudeneſs and Injuſtice to us in general, and many by Name, in His Spirit of the Quakers Tryed. I did ſay, Theſe Men, and continue there ſtill, the Method of their Proceeding then and ſince, eſpecially that reſtleſs Calumniator, Thomas Firman, being ing ſuch as muſt needs offend every Good Man; Knave and Fool being more in his Mouth ſtill, than becometh any Man, that is not more of both than ſuch he very frequently calls ſo. Some think it a Shame, that ſo ill a Tongue ſhould go unrebuk'd of thoſe whoſe Principles and Intereſt give them the Liberty of doing it in a Way, that if they know the Man, might be more effectual then all the Moderation and Reaſon that can eaſily be ſhewn him. But ſays John Faldo in his, or their Defence (for they love to claw one another) Compare this Civility of yours with your own.

To all this I ſay, He obtrudes an arrant Lye upon our very Senſes; Wretched Scribler —— How Idle, how Frivolous, and how very Troubleſome is he, with his Ridiculous Remarks! Very well: And is this the Great Blow threatned? I fall not from one Tittle of it: 'Tis all True, all his Due, I could not well have ſpoken more plain and pertinent Words: No Knave, Puppy, Fool, Raſcal, Logger-head, Cheat, &c. No Impoſtor, Falſe-Prophet, Lyars, Trapans, and what not did we accoſt them with. What! Muſt not we fling off the Dirt they caſt upon us? Shall it be accounted Well-Phraſing, to call us all to Naught, and our earneſt Refuſal of ſuch baſe Epithets, and ſevere Cenſure of ſuch Scurrility, be reputed Railery? O Unreaſonable Men! Ought People therefore to be kill'd, becauſe they cry Murder? Or loſe their Reputation, becauſe they are Zealous to maintain it? But it was notably done of J. Faldo to provide for himſelf, whoſe ill Language he thought might meet with as ſharp Rebukes, as that of our Enemies had done. Nor indeed will we let ſlip this Opportunity of Collecting and Publiſhing to the World, after what Manner he has us'd us, throughout his Diſcourſe, and my ſelf in particular, who never had any Thing to do with him in all my Life. If he has not ſaid Worſe of us, with whom we have had ſo little, if any Thing at all, to do, than he pretends I have againſt thoſe Men that gave ſuch Provocation, let me fall in the Good Opinion of the Reader, and the Juſt Witneſs in his Conſcience condemn me: But if it appear, that this unprovoked Perſon is far more Guilty, than he can poſſibly render us, by vilifying Expreſſions againſt our Perſons and Principles, I hope, and expect ſo much Juſtice from the Reader, as that the Innocent may go free, and the Guilty only be Condemned. That J. Faldo has not ſhewn himſelf that Man of Moderation, Civility or Religion, he pretends himſelf to be, and which I hear, ſome few have hithetto reputed, let the following Faithful, and True Collection, of but ſome of his many Unchriſtian Reflections, Names and Epithets, upon our Faith and Principles, be duly weighed by the Impartial Reader.

§. 19. Penn furniſhed with Forehead and Tales beyond Meaſure.] I am aſſured that's a Lye. I think my Forehead and Tales are like other Men's; if not, I have this Satisfaction, they are unlike J. Faldo's.

His Poſt is the Quakers conceited Strong-hold of the Infallible Guidance of the Spirit of God] A Poſt, his Poſt can never ſtand long by, and ſuch Hold, as all his Aſſaults can never enter or force; and we are glad it is ours indeed: For as above all People we need it moſt, ſo are we the only Sufferers in Defence thereof: Satan's Bulwarks ſhall be broken down before it.

§. 20. (Pag. 3.) In debating of which, he waves and toſſes like a Man in a confus'd troubleſome Dream; I thought meet to give ſome Account of his Forces, conſidering him to be a Man of Noiſe, and no ſmall Prop to the Quaker's Cauſe, in their own Eſteem.

I toſt not beyond the Bounds of Scripture and Truth; my Arguments were ſhort and plain, and what I writ was in Conſcience and Seriouſneſs, little meriting ſuch rough and flaſhy Reflection from any Perſon pretending to Seriouſneſs, and leaſt of all, one that I never had to do with in my Life. Dreams I have none, they lie on J. Faldo's Side; He that calls Chriſt, Lord, and not by the Holy Ghoſt; He that ſays, He is his Redeemer, Saviour, &c. and knows not the Internal Operation of his Saving Power, nor that Virtue and Life to quicken to God, which comes therefrom, dreams of all theſe Things, and that is J. Faldo's Condition, who ſcoffs at Internal Knowledge without External Means, though to his own Confuſion he ſometimes reads another Lecture. I am no Man of Noiſe, farther than your Noiſe makes me. The Profeſſion of the Way I am in, I came to through Sorrow for Sin, Circumciſion from the World, Deſires after God, and Life that is Everlaſting; and ever ſince God has enabled me to His Service, (and here I hope to ſtand while I live) My Life, Spirit, Power and Principle wars againſt all yours that are embattell'd againſt us; and no Quarter I proclaim, in the Name of the Lord, to that wicked Spirit that acts you all againſt us; though to you Peace and Salvation, if ye Repent. Do you leave off your Envious Endeavours againſt us, or elſe blame your ſelves, and not us, for appearing on the Stage againſt you.

§. 21. Deformed Confidence; neither Logick, nor Honeſty: Certainly, if he had not turn'd Quaker, and in that Fall put all out of Joynt, he could not likely after ſuch Good Nurſing, have been thus lamentably cripled in his Intellects: Rankneſs of Quakeriſm. The latter Part of the Queſtion, which expreſſes the Adminiſtration of our Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, is Playing at Blind Man's Buff, — your Guilt, &c. Baſeneſs, confuſed Thicket of Impertinencies — if your Conſcience have any Eyes; Infatuated; I have ſhewed your Vanity, and made your Folly a Spectacle to the World; you talk at a miſerable lame Rate — worſe than ever Bear brought forth her Cubs — confident confuſed Nonſenſe; I would as ſoon abandon my Time to diſpute with a diſtracted Man in his Raving Fits, as with W. Penn, till he come better to himſelf, &c. – your pitiful Scribbling, (yet Wretched Scribbler, was my hardeſt Word to H. Hedworth, he has obſerved againſt me) not worth while to trace ſuch a Trifler in all his Vagaries — intangled Bottom, Beetle-headed Saying, Audacious Lines — he will daub his Adverſary, per fas, per nefas, Right or Wrong, and he that ſhall ſay the contrary, you will chaſtiſe him with Sarcaſms as keen as a Badger's Teeth. The next Book you write, let the Title be, The Spirit of Babel, from whence Babble in Engliſh.

This, Reader, is a ſhort Account of ſome of that unhandſome Entertainment, I, a Stranger to J. Faldo, have received at his Hands. May my Soul never come within his Habitation; Prejudice, Envy and Cruelty lodge with him; Vanity, Frothineſs and Incivility, are like Veins through his Book, and ſerve to convey what Life it has, to ſuch as pleaſe themſelves with that baſe Kind of Satyr. Strange, that it ſhould be reputed ſo Criminal by J. Faldo, to check my Adverſary for abuſing me and my Friends by Name, when yet he excels in his Reflections upon us, and that without any ſuch Occaſion given! But, if we were Condemnable, ſure I am, it belongs not to J. Faldo to fling the firſt Stone. I am very willing to leave it with all Sober Readers, our Circumſtances conſidered, which of us ought to be accounted the Unfair Adverſary. O, When will it fall to my Share, to engage a ſober modeſt Adverſary! But why do I wiſh for that, ſince ſuch are our Friends. Well, it will greatly become me to be contented with my Lot; Faith I have, theſe Things will not laſt long; and Patience will give to ſee the End of that Belief. A little foul Weather, and our Enemies are for their Creeks again: 'Tis Natural with Inſects to Sting and, Frogs to croak, in Summer; and therefore it is, that our beſt Actions are Evil in the Sight of theſe Carping Zoilus's. If a Man be one of them, then a Saint, though a Devil: If gone from them, then a Devil, tho' a Saint. Such is his Farewel to me, who in three Lines tells me, He is a little pleaſant, he cannot Sweat about Cracking of Nuts, and yet that he has had ſome Heart-akes for me. Miſerable Man! Does Levity and Seriouſneſs go together? Froth and Sorrow keep Company? What would any Man give for ſuch Heart-akes, that bring True Ones upon a Serious Mind? But what are his Heart-akes? Why, he bewails, that a Man of my Hopes ſhould be thus left of God (he fears for Pride and Giddineſs) as to be made a Pillar of Salt, &c. It ſeems then that there were once Hopes: But to what? To a Party. I know you very well, you will few of you ſtand by all that I could ſay, and prove of ſome of you: I would adviſe ſuch Oppoſers to be quiet, enjoy their Toleration, a Kindneſs as Great as they deſerve, and mind their own Concerns, and now their Hands are tyed againſt the Powers, not employ them upon our Shoulders.

But why ſhould God leave me, a Sufferer, from Fourteen Years of Age for Conſcience-Sake (he fears) for Pride and Giddineſs? But the Cauſe of my leaving you, was that of my once frequenting you, I mean Conſcience; when ſome I then diſſented from, had as hard Names to give, for that Non-Conformity. But the Truth is, when the King came firſt in, at what Time you were a little dejected, there was ſomething more Serious and Tender than ordinary revived among ſome of you, which did begin to gather out of the National Pollution, and fit for a farther Thing, but taking up a Reſt, growing hard, gaping after Changes, looking back, like Lot's Wife, upon your Old Sodom, for-ſworn Government, Kings and Biſhops-Lands, Rich Benefices, Full and Stately Livings, many of you grew dry again, were turned to Pillars of Salt, my Soul wandered for Reſt, and at laſt found it, in that Tender, Holy, Pure Principle of Life and Righteouſneſs, which had been wont from a Youth to attend me, mollifie my Heart, allay my Affections, and preſerve me out of groſs Pollutions, which, whilſt ſuch of you in ſome Meaſure kept, that 1673. are now manifeſtly gone from it, there was another Kind of Spirit that rul'd in you; And 'tis to this Firſt Love and Works we deſire your Return, ſuch of you whoſe Day is not utterly paſt over your Head: And what any ſhall think of me, as this uncharitable Adverſary hath expreſſed himſelf, as that I ſhould ſeek Credit, a Party, &c. I heed not, for what I am at this Day I am by, through, and to God Almighty the Righteous Lord of Heaven and Earth alone. It is baſely done of any Man, that is a Profeſſor, who pretends to ſome Acquaintance with tender Conſcience, and thoſe Trials that attend it, to cenſure another Man's Change and Afflictions for Counterfeit and meer Deſign. O! The Righteous God will reckon with ſuch Uncharitable, Diſingenuous, Perverſe Spirits in the Day that haſtneth to Try all, and then will he recompenſe this ungodly Cenſurer of an Innocent Stranger to him, who, were I upon my Trial at the Bar of his own Party, there be of them enough to give Evidence of another Spirit than that of Vain Glory or Self; For where none of theſe Things have induced, but Sharpneſs and Severities have met me, there has been a faithful Anſwering of Convictions, to ſome of their Knowledge, who I believe, to be better Men than to refuſe me a full Teſtimonial, if ſought for. But as I ſhall not think my ſelf ſo deeply engag'd, or my Reputation ſo ſhaken in the Minds of Thouſands, as to need or deſire it by any Power or Force J. Faldo can attack me with; ſo ſhall I leave the Concern of God's Truth, the Innocency of his People in General, and my own in Particular, to his Holy Wiſdom and Providence, who, we are well ſatisfied, will plead our Cauſe in the Conſciences of Ten Thouſands to the Shame and utter Confuſion of all our Obſtinate Adverſaries.

J. Faldo's KEY Prov'd Defective.

I Was not willing J. Faldo's Key ſhould go wholly Unconſider'd; the greateſt Part of which I here publickly acknowledge to have done us ſuch Right, that if his Explanation of many of our Words be not True, I am not aſham'd to pronounce that the Scriptures muſt be Falſe; ſo agreeable to, and conſonant with Scripture has he ſpoken on our Behalf: And not only with Scripture, but that Senſe of it too, which the Beſt, Wiſeſt and moſt Learned both of the Fathers, and firſt Reformers have unanimouſly had; and on which Foundation, in ſome Meaſure, both Puritans and Browniſts began their Building; Low, Meek, Spiritual and Plain, as is yet well remembred. But how groſly he has miſ-repreſented us in other Parts, and that the True may not give Credit to the Falſe with any, I will obſerve a few, with what Brevity I may.

J. Faldo, p. 62. ASSEMBLING, ſays he, Meeting in Spirit.

W. Penn. This is not Ingenuous; For with ſuch as know us not, nor our Practice, it inſinuates a Denial of Publick Worſhip, which we ever own'd, and hope, ſhall to the End; It is well known who have moſt ſhrunk from that Teſtimony: And if J. Faldo means, that they do not worſhip in Spirit, becauſe he makes it Criminal in us, we have Reaſon to ſay, He and They are no Goſpel-Worſhippers: For People muſt either worſhip in, or out of God's Spirit; If out of his Spirit, then no Worſhip in Spirit and Truth, but the Device of their own Hearts; If in the Spirit, then the Quakers aſſemble as they ſhould do, and J. Faldo is to be rebuk'd for little better than an Upſtart Scoffer at Aſſembling in Spirit: The once avow'd Principle of the ancient Browniſts, now call'd Independents.

J. F. Pag. 69. The Will of the Fleſh, ſays he, All that is choſen by Man, though he be thereby diſpoſed by the Will of God revealed in the Scripture.

W. P. This is falſe; Many Things may be, and are daily choſen by Man, that is not in the Will of the Fleſh, nor by his own Will; much leſs, when any ſhould be diſpoſed thereto by the Will of God revealed in the Scripture: An Abominable Untruth, and ſo Notorious, that I need ſay no more; only Challenge him to produce any of us in Proof of his Expoſition, if he can; otherwiſe he hath Slander'd us and our Principles: For the Will of the Fleſh is that, which is quite contrary to God, and inconſiſtent with the Good of the Creature.

J. F. Pag. 69. State of Glory, ſays he, The State of Peace and Joy reſulting from the Witneſs of the Light within in this Life.

W. P. It is true, That Glory is revealed, from Faith to Faith, in this Life: But to ſtint the State of Glory to the Peace and Joy of this Life only, may juſtify his wrong Opinion of us, that we deny Rewards to come; but it cuts off from our ſtedfaſt Faith in an Everlaſting Manſion of Glory and Bleſſedneſs, which (from the Light within, to all who obey it) ſhall ſpring as a River, and flow as an Inexhauſtible Fountain: And J. Faldo ſhall never know true Peace another Way; That is the Word of the Lord to him.

J. F. Pag. 70. Preaching for Hire, Hirelings, ſays he, to have a Proviſion for the Outward Man, as a Maintenance for Preaching, though no Bargain be made; yea, though ſuch who receive it, would Preach, if they had never a Penny Reward in this World from thoſe they Preach to.

W. P. This is done like the Fox indeed. He would ſuggeſt, becauſe we deny Hirelings, that is, Bargainers, Men that make it their Trade, that have no other, will ſeek no other, and yet preach, perhaps, but once a Week, if then; and beſtow the Six Days, that might be otherwiſe employ'd, to ſtudy for that Day, inſtead of Preaching moſt of thoſe Days, that therefore we are ſuch Cruel, Hard-hearted People, that ſuch as Preach, and are Poor, either through a numerous Family, low Eſtate, many Loſſes, or a continual Attendance, from Day to Day, upon the Miniſtry they have receiv'd of God, we will not miniſter to their Neceſſities; for ſuch as ſo receive any Aſſiſtance are Hirelings, and we ſhould contribute to make them ſo. No, no, J. Faldo, the Quakers are no ſuch People; but for all that, they can, do, and will renounce Thee, and ſuch as Thou art, for Hirelings: Firſt, In that you have not receiv'd the Living Heavenly Gift of the Miniſtry: And, Secondly, Becauſe you do generally bargain, will not preach without it; and can baſely leave an honeſter People, for a better Allowance; This is Notorious; therefore ſtop thy Mouth.

J. F. Pag. 72. The Luſt, ſays he, All Deſires that accord not to the Light within, and proceed not from thence.

W. P. What accords not with the Light within, is not of God; and ſo far we own his Explanation: but to ſay, that all Deſires about ſuch ordinary Things, as are left to the common Underſtanding, Prudence, and Liberty of Man to do, or not to do, are Luſt, if they come not from the immediate Impulſe of the Light within, is his own Notion, and not the Quakers: We do not ſubject that heavenly Principle to, nor concern it with, every Inferior and Frivolous Thing belonging to this World.

J. F. Pag. 75. Chriſt, the Offering, ſays he, the Light within.

W. P. This is no Quaker's Expreſſion; and unleſs we are to anſwer for J. Faldo's Miſtakes, we are unconcern'd in it: Only his Malice is manifeſt, for he would by this inſinuate, that we deny Chriſt to be an Offering, as in the Fleſh, and the Body then offered up to be concern'd in our Belief of the Offering: But I do declare it, to have been an holy Offering, and ſuch an one too, as was to be once for all: Therefore let none receive his Abuſe of us for our Faith.

J. F. Pag. 79. Men-Pleaſers, ſays he, They who comply with Men, though in Things not only lawful, but alſo to Edification.

W. P. We charge this upon him as an Arrant Lye. We are ſo far from reputing ſuch Men-pleaſers, that we account them Sober, Courteous, and Commendable Perſons: provided, he means by Lawful, and to Edification, what we do; otherwiſe he is not Honeſt, to obtrude Matters in Queſtion for our Meanings.

J. F. Pag. 81. Ravening Brain, ſays he, Studying and following after Divine Knowledge.

W. P. This is not fair; The Word, ſtudying, and following, we own in a Senſe. Studying, that is, Meditating: Following, that is, Obeying the Light and Spirit of God: But becauſe we deny the Dark and Heatheniſh Metaphyſicks, the prolix and abſtruſe Niceties of the School-men, and affirm, There is no Way to become vers'd in the Things of God, but by being an humble Student, and diligent Diſciple in the School of Chriſt, that is, to be taught of his Light, Grace, or Holy Spirit; Therefore we muſt be charg'd with the Denial of all right Study, and all right Ways to come to the Knowledge of Divine Things: Diſingenuous Man!

J. F.

J. F. Pag. 86. Traditions of Men, that is, ſays he, The Scripture, or Written Word.

W. P. Shew us that in any Book, that is ſubſcrib'd by an acknowledg'd Quaker. Tradition is a Delivering any thing down from one Generation to another; and as ſuch, the Word is Inoffenſive: but to ſay, They are the Traditions of Men, in the Senſe Chriſt reproved the Phariſaical Religion, God forbid: I had rather my Tongue were cut out of my Head. O baſe Man! To abuſe an innocent People thus groſly. The Scripture is a Godly Tradition, or Writing, given forth by Inſpiration, and preſerv'd through Generations, which we read, believe, and deſire to fulfil through the Power of God.

J. F. Pag. 63, 82, 83, 87. Babylon; Shadows, Spirit of Anti-Chriſt, Outward Court; that is, ſays he, all Ordinances, Worſhip, Faith, Obedience that have any Form, though Chriſt's and Goſpel Forms, being (with them) the Worſhip of Heathens, not of Chriſtians.

W. P. This Key opens into as many Forgeries as ever I knew one Key do in my Life. Certainly, were not this Man left of God for his Enmity, he could never run into ſuch extravagant Diſhoneſty. What! Bely us in the Sight of all? Indeed it turns upon himſelf: For Viſible Worſhip, the Form of Godlineſs, Faith and Obedience to every Ordinance of God we own, profeſs, and practiſe daily and publickly through the Power of our God; in whoſe Name we renounce his Conſtructions, and trample upon all his Malice, black and enrag'd as it is.

J. F. Pag. 89. The Vail is over them, that is, ſays J. Faldo, the Belief of the Man Chriſt Jeſus, which was of our Nature, to be the Chriſt, &c.

W. P. Let this be the Laſt (though ſeveral more might be obſerv'd) which at this Time ſhall be conſidered, in which we ſhall ſee that J. Faldo has done like himſelf, and the Man we have all along taken him to be. The Vail is over them, it is a Scripture Phraſe, 2 Cor. 3. 15. uſed by the Apoſtle to expreſs the Darkneſs and Ignorance that to that Time remain'd over the Underſtanding of the Jews in reading the Law, and this Vail he makes us to interpret after this groſs and abſurd Manner, namely, That the Vail is the Man Chriſt. Wicked Man! Did ever Quaker ſo irreverently expreſs himſelf? Give us his Name, or tell us in what Book we may find it. What greater Malice couldſt thou have ſhewn, than thus unjuſtly to pervert the Scripture in our Name, belying and abuſing both? As if, becauſe Chriſt's Fleſh is called a Vail, and the Ignorance of the Jews a Vail, that therefore the Quakers muſt of Neceſſity mean by Vail in the firſt Senſe, Vail in the ſecond Senſe; as if the Way to have the Vail rent, were to deny the Man Chriſt Jeſus; which were to make Chriſt rend and deſtroy himſelf, who, as the Quickning Spirit, alone rends all Vails off the Hearts of Unbelievers. Nor indeed have I met with one Term abſurd, or un-intelligible, unleſs the Scripture uſe ſuch; therefore 'tis an Untruth to ſtile them abſurd, and a Contradiction in him to offer at Explaining any thing, that is truly un-intelligible.

And that all the World may behold the Spirit of J. Faldo, how ill he governs himſelf againſt the Quakers (which makes not a little for them) let his following Epithets and Expreſſions be well weighed. I think they are ſo naked they want no Key; and glad we are he found no ſuch Subjects from us to treat upon in his.
‘ Horrid Impoſture; Ditch of Groſſeſt Deluſion; Subverting Chriſtianity; their ‘ feigned Chriſt; Folly, Madneſs; It began in Blaſphemies againſt Chriſt; grati‘ fying Pride, Idleneſs, Giddineſs; In Profeſſors Prophane; Vanity, Folly, Non-
‘ ſenſe, Error. Whether it ſmell more of the Fox or the Gooſe. Impoſture, Bab‘ ble, Blockiſh Perſon. Quakeriſm entered the World as if Satan broke looſe, and ‘ Poſſeſſions by Satan were to make Way and fit Souls for the Quakers Spirit; O the ‘ Hell-Dark Expreſſions of the Quakers Teachers! What bitter Curſes and Execra‘ tions. Diſmal Howling; Horrible Roaring. Blaſphemy; Wretch, Vain Fictions, ‘ Quakers Glow-worm, Deck their Idol, Real Non-ſenſe; But 'tis Pity not to laſh
‘ a little; Idiots, Stark Blind, Steel Hard, Your Crooked, Unholy Principles.
‘ Their Light grows wiſer and wiſer. Opium of Quakeriſm; The Quakers Divine ‘ Spirit Dumb. Refreſhments at Quakers Meetings, ſo there is at Puppet-Plays.
‘ Impudent Foreheads, Noneſuch Ignorance, Proud, Dreaming, Intolerable Noti‘ ons; Ignorance and Deluſion. Out-ſtrip all in the Crooked Way. Blaſphemers
‘ of the Lord of Life and Glory. Surely God has given them up for their Pride, ‘ Giddineſs, or Idle Ignorance, and that in Juſtice; and the Devil hath blinded

‘ their Minds with a Witneſs, Horrible Abomination, Groſs and Dark Conceits;
‘ The Rankneſs of Quakeriſm.

This Reader is a Taſte of the Spirit of the Man, and ſince he contends for the Scripture to be his Rule, I would fain have the Chapter and Verſe that will abet this Proceeding. Is this J. Faldo's Religion, Goſpel, Preaching, Praying, Learning, Civility, or whatever may be reputed Sober and Commendable? Away, Away for Shame! It would ſtumble a Turk to hear ſuch Language from one that calls himſelf a Chriſtian and a Miniſter too.

But is it after ſo great Abuſe, ſo manifeſt Injury done us and the Truth too, that thou dareſt ſay, as thou doſt, I have the Witneſs in my Conſcience (who haſt been thus long Under-valuing it for a Glow-Worm, an Idol, a poor Creature, Uncertain, Fallible, Errable, and what not) that I have not in this Key in any Meaſure abuſed, or wronged the Quakers.

Hadſt thou been half ſo Moral, as thou pretendeſt to be Chriſtian, I doubt not, but to have ſeen more Truth and Moderation. To belie any, is a great Evil; but to do it with a Shew of Religion, to call God's Witneſs, to palliate ſuch Injuſtice, is the height of Blaſphemy againſt God, and Wrong to thy Neighbour. Never more abuſe Religion with a Pretence to it, nor for Shame profeſs Chriſtianity, who art Inferior to a Thouſand Heathens, and rather than not compaſs our Diſgrace, wilt endeavour it per fas, per nefas, Right or Wrong: I am ſure the Witneſs of God in thy own Conſcience never ſuggeſted this Unrighteous Procedure; though wonder we muſt, that one, who has ſaid ſo many detracting Things of him, ſhould now appeal to him. Certainly, if the Witneſs of God be J. Faldo's Rule and Judge, as his own Appeal makes him, the Quakers are the leſs to be blam'd for Believing in him, and deſiring to be led by him; but we are well aſſured, that a Spirit of deep Prejudice hath animated him to, and through this Work, and not the Holy Witneſs of God, as both the Stile and Matter have abundantly teſtified. My Deſire is, that before the Evil One precipitate him into farther Enmity againſt us, he may, by a ſerious Retirement of Mind to the Holy Witneſs of God, that gives a good Underſtanding, and brings juſt Reproof for every Unrighteous Thought, Word, and Deed, come to a Sight of his preſent Undertaking to be contrary to the Mind of God, and know true Repentance for it, and find Mercy of the Lord God: Which I heartily deſire, and it is my Return to him for all his Hard Speeches utter'd by him either againſt us in general, or my ſelf (though unknown to him) in particular,

God forbid, that I ſhould Juſtifie (him) I will not leave my Innocency, 'till I Die. Job. 27. 5.

Who am a Lover of all Men; for I ſeek the Salvation of my Enemies,

THE INVALIDITY OF John Faldo's Vindication of his Book, CALLED, QUAKERISM No CHRISTIANITY.

BEING A REJOYNDER

In Defence of the Answer, Intituled,

QUAKERISM a New Nick-Name for Old Christianity.

THE Duty I owe to Almighty God, and the Reſpect I bear to his Truth, with that great Concern which lives in my Mind for your better Information about us (a poor People, traduced by ſome, deſpiſed by others) and our Principles (miſ-given here, perverted there) are the only Inducements I have to purſue this tedious and unpleaſant Controverſy.

And that you might be undeceived of thoſe falſe Apprehenſions, vulgar Stories, or the Inſinuations of more prevalent Agents have impreſt you with, I could (God knows) be contented, that even Sufferings were added to my Labours. But why? Becauſe we are not underſtood, and as cunningly (by ſome) hindred from being ſo. But therefore is this Diſcourſe more particularly Dedicated to you, that you may be both acquainted with the Fouleſt* Charges one of our greateſt Enemies hath exhibited againſt us, his Kind of Witneſſes produced to convince them, and his Management of the whole Debate; with our Plain and Honeſt Vindication. If we ſhall be found guilty, then let us be Condemned for ſuch as he hath repreſented us to be; but if innocent, ſuffer us not any longer to Groan under the Heavy Preſſure of ſuch Infamous Accuſations; for in omitting to Right us for theſe Grievous Wrongs, you will make your ſelves Acceſſaries to an Injuſtice that muſt needs be deteſted of all Virtuous and Good Men. I leave this Rejoynder with you, containing the True Meanings of our Wreſted Principles, and thoſe confirmed by expreſs Scriptures, many Reaſons, and a Cloud of Teſtimonies: And ſhall conclude with a Paſſage out of * Jerome, well-becoming all Honeſt Writers, and fit to be obſerved of every impartial Reader. Quæſo, Lector, ut memor Tribunalis Domini, & de judicio tuo te intelligens judicandum, nec mihi, nec Adverſario meo faveas, neve Perſonas Loquentium, ſed cauſam conſideres.

The Invalidity of J. Faldo's Vindication, &c.

Part I.

The Introduction.

THIS Controverſie, not of Choice, but abſolute Neceſſity, thus continued, (and which hath ſwell'd this Rejoynder beyond both my Deſire and Expectation, through ſuch great Provocations and multiplied Wrongs, as are utterly inconſiſtent with the Honour of Truth to put up, and which require our ſerious Notice in it's Defence) was begun by J. Faldo, a Non-conforming Miniſter at Barnet, (diſguſted, as I have heard, at the coming over of ſome of his Hearers to the Way we profeſs) in a large Diſcourſe, entituled, Quakeriſm no Chriſtianity; in which he not only accuſed us of the blackeſt Errors, but pretended to prove every Charge out of our own Writings; an Eſſay none had ever yet fallen on beſides himſelf. At what Rate ſoever he proved them, certain it is, he charged us home, and managed it with Equal Diſingenuity. This, it was my Lot to anſwer, which I did in a Book, call'd, Quakeriſm a New Nick-Name for Old Chriſtianity, &c. Chiefly intending tending by it to diſcover, how groſly he had miſtaken our Principles, and unworthily perverted thoſe Words we had employed to maintain them; and finally, to confirm our true Senſe with the Authority of holy Scriptures: Unto which he has ventured to give us a Reply, doubtleſs that he might not be thought to have nothing to ſay, ſo little hath he ſaid to the Purpoſe, which is already become the Diſcourſe of the Moderate, and Regret of his Party; But what he wants of Solidity, he fills up with Air, and places his Reflections to the Account of Arguments; and when he comes to a Pinch, he gives us Confidence for Evidence, attended moſt commonly with a Rout of hard Names, to drive it more forcibly home. And truly herein he has deceiv'd me; for I muſt needs ſay, I did not take him to be one that would withſtand ſuch manifeſt Conviction, and that with no other than Froth, Rant, and very Obſtinacy: I hop'd that when I had given him a ſerious Anſwer to his Book, he would either have ingenuouſly acknowledged his Miſtake of our Writings, with this Satisfaction, that he found us not ſo Heterodox as he apprended us to be; or elſe have beſtowed upon us ſuch a ſober and convincing Reply, as might have ſufficiently proved our Error, and juſtified his own Undertaking: But inſtead thereof, behold a Pamphlet ſtuffed with Rage and ſcornful Abuſe! by him entituled, A Vindication; but is indeed his Condemnation with God and all Good Men.

He ſeems to have deſerted the Matter, as giving that for gone; and under Pretence of anſwering my Book, fully pays himſelf of my Perſon. Of that he has no Mercy; I am all that a Man ſwelled with Paſſion, Prejudice and Revenge, can character me to be.

He complains much, yet himſelf is the Injurer; Forgery he lays at my Door, and 'tis his own beloved Crime; He ſays I boaſt of Victory, yet John Faldo is the great Crack; Where I rebuke his Froth, he returns me Railing; and if I improve his own Similes againſt him, then Diſingenuous W. P. Devotion he fleers at, as if it were an old faſhioned Thing; My Reprehenſion of his ill-Language he counts intolerable; Is this your Meek Chriſtian, ſays he? making it a greater Sin in me to Defend my ſelf, than in him to Accuſe me; Perſonal and Principal Reflections run fluently through his firſt Book; My Reproof of that unprovok'd Aſperity, he ſtorms at, and will needs have it to be Reviling; and inſtead of Repenting of his ill Beginning with us, he hath greatly encreaſed his Score, by a more Scurrilous Reply; as if the Man's Buſineſs were not to make us Better, but prove and juſtifie his own being Worſe. He would make us in Love with our Errors, if ſuch we held, that uſes ſo ill a Way to reclaim us. Does he think we are to be Jeered or Railed out of our Religion? No, No. In his firſt, he went too far; in his ſecond he has done little elſe. What ſhall we ſay of thoſe, whoſe Pride has brought them to ſuch a Pitch of Paſſion, that Rage muſt follow Reproof, and Revenge a Confutation? Without breaking one Part of the Law of Modeſty, I may ſay (for I know) he is irrecoverably gone in my Anſwer. Not one Charge can he prove, nor one Friend of ours can he make to ſpeak to his Purpoſe. He was for having us to aſſaſſinate our ſelves; our Friends he would fain have to turn Executioners to their own Principles: This Fool's Paradiſe pleaſed him; but the Diſcreet know and think better: Some were ſtartled at the Pretences of the firſt, wherein nothing leſs than our own Books were to bear Witneſs againſt us, who are now great Abominators of his Injuſtice and Railing. Bleſſed be God for that Good Succeſs; we hope the like of our following Endeavours. I have for the Sake of ſuch as expect an Anſwer, ſent forth this Rejoynder; wherein ſeveral weighty Points are as clearly handled, as Time, Place, and other Occaſions would permit. It greatly concerns all to be fully ſatisfied therein: And I hope, there is enough ſaid for all Impartial Readers to reap that Benefit. I ſeek no Revenge, I aim not at Reputation, God is Record: Neither has he done enough to raiſe up the One, or queſtion the Other; yet he has done doubtleſs what he could, and I muſt take the Will for the Deed. I ſhall not ſhow my ſelf ſo Perſonally concerned in this Rejoynder, as his Perſonal Reflections would make me; 'tis below the Spirit of a Chriſtian Man to be diſturbed by ſuch Barks of Malice; Curs yelping at the Moon neither queſtions nor eclipſes her Light: 'Tis a Sort of Suffering I muſt expect to undergo; and the beſt is, I find little Difficulty in it. And though I ſhall not cite all his Injuſtice towards me, for that were well nigh to tranſcribe his Book; yet that which may be requiſite, to give a farther Reliſh of this pretended Chriſtian, may be done in it's proper Place. In the mean Time I ſhall betake my ſelf to the Conſideration of ſuch Paſſages in his Reply, as may be thought to call for my Rejoynder, and that without thoſe inſolent Checks, frequent Abuſes, and very vain and gingling Taunts he has cramb'd his Pamphlet with: For I can ſuffer that my ſelf, I cannot let the Truth ſuffer. Nor can I think my Silence to his Revilings the worſt Anſwer, eſpecially when my Religion will not allow of a like Return in Vindication: For though Scoffs and Abuſive Reflections may diſcredit an Adverſary with the Weak or Prejudiced, yet with a Serious Reader, they rather pollute, than defend a Cauſe. I will leave the whole Honour of that Way of Confutation to my Adverſary, not being in ſuch Neceſſity for Conqueſt, as to take that Diſhonourable and Diſhoneſt Way of procuring it. If I can make my Rejoynder a little more intelligible, than he has done his Reply, defend the Truth I own and honour, ſo as to anſwer my Reader's Conſcience, I ſhall have obtain'd my whole End; and maugre the Impetuous and bluſtering Humour of a few Enraged Adverſaries, my Mind will ſweetly reſt in Peace with God, in whom I have believed, and for whoſe Cauſe only I am thus warmly concerned in the World.

CHAP. I.

Chap. I.

Of Chriſtianity in General.

pag. 2.

JOhn Faldo, in his Book, entituled, Quakeriſm No Chriſtianity, begins with his Account of Chriſtianity, What it is? As I honeſtly obſerved in my Anſwer, called, Quakeriſm a New Nick-Name for Old Chriſtianity. What he laid down was this, By Chriſtianity we are not to underſtand all thoſe Matters of Faith and Practice which Chriſtianity doth oblige us unto; for Chriſtianity is a large and noble Thing, and takes in all that's worthy in thoſe Religions which it hath out-ſtript: To which I gave this Anſwer, (though diſingenuouſly mangled and tranſpoſed by my Adverſary) A ſtrange Definition of true Chriſtianity: For, if to Believe, and do all Chriſtianity requireth, be not Chriſtianity; then there is ſomething beyond all that Chriſtianity requireth to be believed and done that is Chriſtianity; elſe I underſtand nothing. This is all he brings of my Anſwer to ground his Reply upon, omitting that Part of his Definition, and my Return to it, which in Honeſty ſtood him moſt upon to conſider. But firſt let us hear his Reply to what he has quoted (for Reply and Rejoynder diſtinguiſh our Matter.)

Reply, You may as well affirm a Finger to be a Man, when ſeparated from the reſt of the Man, as common Juſtice, Truth, &c. to be Chriſtianity.

Rejoynder, Though the Finger be not the Man, yet it is Part of the Man, therefore common Juſtice, Truth, &c. by his own Inſtance, are a Part of Chriſtianity; but if no Part of Chriſtianity, then may Chriſtianity be without Juſtice or Truth. My Drift was in my Anſwer, and is in my Rejoynder, That ſomething of what was at Antioch called Chriſtianity, was in the World before Chriſt's Viſible Appearance at Jeruſalem. And that his Coming was but to bring the World to a more improved Knowledge and large Enjoyment of that Divine Power, Wiſdom, Life, and Righteouſneſs, which former Ages had comparatively but an obſcure Sight, and imperfect Senſe of; and this was my Reaſon, becauſe the contrary Opinion excludes all antecedent Times from any Share in Chriſtianity; and plainly ſhuts them out of all Hope of Eternal Salvation, which my Adverſary takes a little Notice of in theſe Words.

pag. 5.

Rep. If the Scripture had any where ſaid, that none but Chriſtians ſhall be ſaved, his Conſequences had been grounded. But he might have found aſſerted in my Book, That Salvation depends on a Right Belief and Acceptance of the Covenant of Grace.

Acts 4. 12.

Rejoyn. The Scripture ſaith (as I inſtanced for Proof of that little Part of my Anſwer by him conſidered) For there is no other Name under Heaven given among Men, whereby we muſt be Saved, neither is there Salvation in any other. Now how to diſtinguiſh betwixt a Man's being ſaved by Chriſt, and his being a true Chriſtian, I muſt declare my Ignorance: Nay, J. Faldo, though in Contradiction to himſelf, tells us, That Salvation depends on a right Belief and Acceptance of the Covenant of Grace. Let him either ſhow how a Man may rightly believe and accept of the Covenant of Grace, and yet be no Chriſtian, or elſe he does nothing to his own Purpoſe, whatever he does for ours. Chriſt is called, God's Covenant; The New Covenant ſtands in him. How a Man may believe in the Covenant, and not in Chriſt, How in Chriſt, and not be a Chriſtian, concerns J. Faldo to reconcile; only, Reader, let let me tell thee, that of about Six Pages concerning Chriſtianity, this Man has not undertaken Eight Lines to reply to, neither are thoſe the Strength of my Diſcourſe.

To conclude, I dare not repute Enoch to be no Chriſtian, who walked with God; Abraham no Chriſtian, who ſaw Chriſt's Day, and rejoyced; David no Chriſtian, who was a Man after God's own Heart: Neither can I believe with him, that the Apoſtle's Exhortation, Phil. 4. Whatſoever Things are True, Honeſt, Juſt, Pure, Lovely, of Good Report, if there be any Praiſe, think on theſe Things, is no Part of Chriſtianity; or, that a Child of God is not a Good Chriſtian; or, that James was miſtaken, who ſaid, That the Pure and Undefiled Religion was to keep our ſelves unſpotted of the World; which ſtrange kind of Conſequences unavoidably follow from J. Faldo's Aſſertion and Definition. For our Parts, As we think it no Wrong to Chriſtianity, ſo no Diſcredit to our Caſe, that it ſhould be reported that we believe the Word nigh in the Heart (the Apoſtle Paul calls the Word of Faith and Reconciliation) to have been preached by Moſes; that Chriſt, the Promiſed Seed, bruiſed the Serpent's Head, as well before, as at, and ſince his Viſible Appearance; That Enoch when he walked with God, walked in the Light, in which he felt the Blood of Chriſt cleanſing from all Sin; That the Spirit of God ſtrove with Men as well before Chriſt's Coming as ſince; and that ſome were led by it before as well as ſince; and therefore Children of God; and if Children, then Heirs; Heirs of God, and Joynt-Heirs with Chriſt. Not that we deny a Pre-eminence to Chriſt's Viſible Coming, and the greater Benefits that came into the World thereby; we would not be thought ſo to mean, at any Hand: only this, that ſomething of that Divine Life, Power, Wiſdom and Righteouſneſs, that then ſo ſuper-excellently appeared and broke forth, was revealed in all former Ages, as Mankind was in a Capacity to receive it; wherefore the Difference lay in the Manifeſtations of the One Thing neceſſary, and not in ſeveral Things: So that the Law is, as it were, the Goſpel begun, and the Goſpel the Law finiſhed; or as Auguſtine expreſſes it, Lex eſt Evangelium abſconditum, & Evangelium eſt lex revelata. The Law is the Goſpel obſcured, the Goſpel the Law revealed; That is, ſuited to the Capacity of Ages.

Qua. no Chr. pag. 13.

But J. Faldo is Angry, that in my Recital of theſe Words out of his former Diſcourſe, But the Thing Chriſtianity might well be before the Name Chriſtian, that I left out theſe following Words, ſo ſhort a Space. Saying, I am a Man of a ſeared Conſcience, and that it is pity any Reader ſhould be ſo tame to be thus impoſed on.

Rejoyn. I know not what he means by theſe laſt Words, unleſs he would have every Man that reads me, beat me. I have always thought it becoming a Miniſter of the Goſpel to make People Tame and not Wild; Sufferers, not Hectors; but ſuch Expreſſions very well ſuit with J. Faldo's Religion: For my Conſcience, it is not ſo ſeared, but I can feel and reſent J. Faldo's Injuſtice. God knows I left out no Words deſignedly; nor could the Inſertion of them have diſappointed me: For if the Thing Chriſtianity may be before the Name a Day, then a Year, and ſo an Age, till we ſhall come to the firſt Man that ever God ſaved. All Men muſt be ſaved by either Law or Goſpel; Now the Law ſtrictly conſidered, could never ſave, it gives Life to none: So imports the Scripture, and ſo aſſerts B. Uſher, B. Sanderſon, Allen, and others; then it muſt have been by the Goſpel, which is by the Apoſtle called the Power of God unto Salvation: and if all Men that were ever ſaved, were ſaved by the Goſpel, then True Chriſtians; unleſs Men may believe the Goſpel, be ſaved by the Life and Power of it, and yet be no Chriſtians, that is, not the Men, the Term Chriſtians (given firſt at Antioch) doth ſignifie. I ſhall offer this ſhort Argument to the Reader's Conſideration. If He that is born again, be a Chriſtian, and ſuch, as enter into the Kingdom of God, be born again, then becauſe Abraham, Iſaac, Jacob, Samuel, David, &c. entred into God's Kingdom, it follows, that they were born again, and conſequently Chriſtians. How pernicious is that Principle, which denies the New Birth to be ſo much as any Part of Chriſtianity, when, indeed, the greateſt, as Chriſt's own Saying proves.

The Truth of the Matter is, The very Life, Power and Spirit of the Goſpel, or Chriſtianity, which to other exterior Performances, is as the Soul to the Body, John Faldo would fain exclude from any Share in Chriſtianity; and for our preferring and preſſing That, as the moſt important Matter, he over-runs us with all the Vilifying, Scornful Epithets, a Lucian could beſtow upon a Chriſtian: Indeed, his Frothineſs is ſuch, that were it not for their Sakes, who may yet be enſnared by his Adventrous and Imperious Aſſertions and Reflections, I ſhould not think his Vindication worth one Minute of my Time. But he proceeds.

Rep. I undertook to prove Quakeriſm No Chriſtianity from the confeſſed Newneſs of it by their own Party. Penn tells us, p. 21. the firſt Letters of the Names of ſome, the bare Names of others, whoſe Words I quoted, but dare not tranſcribe their Words, being ſo far to my Purpoſe. Only a Part of Pennington's, who ſaith of the Quakers Diſpenſation, that it ſwallowed up that of Chriſt and the Apoſtles: which Penn would take off by telling me, I have no Candour in ſo Conſtruing the Words; as if Pennington, who was a Scholar, could not expreſs his Mind congurouſly, but muſt have Penn to be his Interpreter.

Rejoyn. Now what any can make of this Cloudy Paragraph, that has not read our former Books (indeed of the greateſt Part of his Vindication) if then, I know not: But ſure I am, he ignorantly or willingly puts the Lye upon himſelf, and greatly bewrays his own Weakneſs. Is this your Combatant, you, that blow him with Pride and Rage, that he may only have Wind to Crack out againſt the Quakers? What Reply is this wretched, diſingenuous Section to my Anſwer? If I quoted not E. Burrough's and J. Whitehead's Words at length, and but a few they were, I quoted that for which the reſt left out were quoted. He would fix the Beginning of Quakeriſm about the Year 1651. this was the Drift of his Quotations, from whence he concluded Quakeriſm No Chriſtianity. Hear my Anſwer, and by that it will appear how ſuitable or ſufficient his Reply is. 'Well, But when came this Quakeriſm into the World? He tells us, about the Year 1651. quoting E. B's Epiſtle before G. F's Great Myſtery, alſo a ſmall Treatiſe writ by John Whitehead and Iſaac Pennington; from whence he infers, that Quakeriſm is a late Diſpenſation, therefore not that of Chriſtianity. But certainly, this Man hath taken a very Quick Courſe to Unchriſtian himſelf, and all the Presbyterians, Independents and Anabaptiſts in the World, as well as the Quakers: For I would aſk him, if there was not a Time ſince the Primitive Age, wherein Darkneſs hath overſpread the Earth, the Beaſt did Reign, and the pure Religion was wholly Wilderneſs'd? If ſo, conſequently the Reſurrection of Truth is no more a New Diſpenſation, or other than that of Chriſtianity, than a Man that is exiled his Country, is not eſſentially the ſame Man, when he returns, that he was before—But ſince we are of another Religion by his Account, than the Chriſtian, becauſe we cannot ſay that we were always ſucceſſively from the Apoſtles Times, their date alſo being of later Years. What will they ſay then? The Church was fled into the Wilderneſs; Truth exiled; God as a Stranger in Earth; yet Truth ſtill the ſame in it ſelf: Very well, ſo ſay we. God was pleaſed to renew the Right Chriſtian Diſpenſation to us, and by us, according to John's Viſion, that the Everlaſting Goſpel was preached again, intimating, that there had been a Time wherein it was not preached. If this be not a New Goſpel, becauſe anew or again preached; neither is that which J. Faldo calls Quakeriſm a New Diſpenſation, becauſe it is preaching a-new the Everlaſting Goſpel to the Sons of Men; which is God's Power inwardly manifeſted for the Conviction, Converſion, Redemption and Salvation of the Souls of ſuch as believe in it.'

In which, Firſt, I take in that Part of the Quotation which was material to the proving of Quakeriſm No Chriſtianity, at leaſt in my Adverſary's Apprehenſion. Secondly, I have Anſwered that Objection, both by ſhowing that the Presbyterians, Independents and Anabaptiſts, whom he owns to be Chriſtians, were novel; and that the Everlaſting Goſpel was to be preached again; which implied, that a Time there was in which it was not preached; conſequently, that his Objection could not be therefore of any Force, as levelled at us: To all which he ſays nothing, only aſks a Queſtion concerning my Reproof for his want of Candor in explaining I. Pennington's Words, viz. As if Pennington, who was a Scholar, could not expreſs his Mind Congruouſly, but muſt have Penn to be his Interpreter. Let us ſee if this be any ſolid Confutation of what I ſaid. Reader hear me.

"And though he particularly ſeems to triumph over Iſaac Pennington's diſtinguiſhing between the Diſpenſation of Moſes, Chriſt, and His Apoſtles, and THIS of our Day, as if they had been three ſeveral Diſpenſations, and conſequently, if Chriſt's was not that of Moſes, becauſe it ſwallowed it up; neither this the Diſpenſation of Chriſt, which Iſaac Pennington ſaith, it ſwallows up: Yet to me it ſeems a pitiful Catch; and ſhows, he knows not how to take Things with that Candor they are writ. I. P. means not a Diſtinct Adminiſtration in Kind, but a "Diſpen-“ Diſpenſation of one and the ſame Light, Life and Power by Nature, at ſeveral “ Times, and ſundry Manners to the World: Chriſt was before the Law, under the “ Law, with the Prophets, but never ſo revealed as in that Holy Manhood; Will it “ therefore follow, He was not Antecedent to that Appearance? Or He, that ap- “ peared then more Gloriouſly, had never ſhown himſelf before? Or becauſe of a “ Difference in Maniſeſtation, therefore Not the ſame HE (through all thoſe ſe- “ veral Manifeſtations) in himſelf? Certainly, this Man is very unjuſt to I. P. “ eſpecially, when the Words above quoted, that ſpeak of a Diſpenſation he expe- “ rienced a little before God broke forth by us called Quakers, could have inform- “ ed him, that he meant the Divine Breakings forth of God's Light and Truth, in “ order to the full Diſcovery and Recovery of Loſt Primitive Chriſtianity. So that “ this preſent Appearance ſwallowing up all going before it (had he ſo termed it, “ as he doth not, and is therefore wronged) Is no more than God's Retrieving to us “ the Ancient Goſpel, with Additional Bleſſings and Aſſiſtances, giving us the ſame “ Life and Foundation they had, and what elſe he pleaſed by Way of Improvement, “ which alters not the Nature, no more than a Child in Chriſt, is not that Numeri- “ cal Creature, but another Diſtinct Being, when a Man.

Chap. I.

Now can any Underſtanding Man account my Adverſary's Idle Shifting Queſtion, a Pertinent Reply? What if I. P. was a Scholar, might he not therefore be abuſed, or miſunderſtood? Is Scholarſhip a Protection againſt Wreſting? Muſt I. P. intend what J. F. will have him, and not what really he did? But that it ſhould be ſo Offenſive to him, for W. P. to clear and defend the Paſſage, is delighting rather to have us Wrong than Right. But the Quakers muſt be Heterodox, though it be but to ſave J. F. from the Diſrepute of Lying. 'Tis clear that I. P. intended no New Adminiſtration, but the Reſtauration of Pure and Uncorrupted Religion; that he never ſo worded it, as by J. F. cited, that I charge him with, but he thought it beſt to give it the Slip, or elſe I muſt impute it to his Careleſsneſs.

Any unbyaſt Reader may perceive, My Adverſary has enough of the Controverſie, or he would never write ſo mean a Reply to ſuch an Anſwer.

To wind up this, which more particularly concerns Chriſtianity, I ſay, That there never was but One True Foundation from Adam's Day to this, upon which the Holy Ancients built, and that was Chriſt Jeſus, the Lord from Heaven, called the Second Adam, and Quickning Spirit. To deny this, were to overturn the Chief Corner-Stone of the Chriſtian Religion; and how Men could build on this Foundation, and not be Chriſtians, I know not.

The Chriſtians of the Firſt Three Hundred Years after Chriſt, were then by the Jews and Heathens, as we are by certain Profeſſors and Prophane in this Age, accuſed of affecting and following Novelties, as we learn out of Euſebius Pamphilus, Præparat. Evang. lib. 1. and Theophilus Antiochenus, lib. 3. pag. 119. Arnobius, lib. 2. pag. 40. Tertull. ad Nation. lib. 1. cap. 10. with ſeveral other Writers. The Account, ſome of them give us, of what the Chriſtians ſaid in their Defence, was this, That the Chriſtian Religion was for Subſtance, the ſame with that of the Ancient Jews, whoſe Religion claimed the Precedency of all others in the World.

That the Religion was in Subſtance the ſame, is expreſly aſſerted and proved by Euſebius. The Ancient Patriarchs were the Chriſtians of the Old World, who had the ſame Faith, Religion and Worſhip common with us, nay, the ſame Name too; Touch not mine Anointed, Τῶν χρίστων μου, my Chriſt's; or Chriſtians. Thus Dr. Cave, in his Primitive Chriſtianity, out of Euſebius Præpar. Evang. l. 1. c. 5. p. 9. Clemens Alexandrinus admonit. ad Gent. p. 57. about this old Objection, queries thus, Τί δὴ οὐχὶ τῇ πρώτῃ τροφῇ γάλακτι χρώμεθα, &c. Why do we not uſe our Mother's Milk for Food, to which we were accuſtomed when we came firſt into the World. And why do we increaſe our Eſtates our Fathers left us, &c. intimating that the Difference between what we call Law and Goſpel, or that Religion which the Holy Ancients profeſſed before Chriſt's Coming in the Fleſh, and that which Chriſt Jeſus and His Apoſtles taught, Was not in Kind, but in Degree only, the Ceremonial Part excepted; which the ſame Clemens calls Childiſh and Trifling; and the Apoſtle Paul, Beggarly Elements, ſerving only the Non-age of the World in Religion, and therefore to be laid aſide upon a more improved Knowledge, and full Enjoyment of it. And this Chriſt's own Sermon upon the Mount clearly evinceth, who runs the Sin of Adultery as far beyond the Act, as the firſt Luſtful Deſire conceived in the Mind: And from True Swearing, to Yea, Yea, and Nay, Nay; and from Loving our Friends, to Loving our Enemies; and from Self-ſaving to Suffering. I ſay, unleſs we ſhould with the uncertain and irreverent J. Faldo, exclude the Life, Doctrine and Miracles of Chriſt from any Share in Chriſtianity, becauſe, ſays he, it's dated, with more Reaſon, from Chriſt's Reſurrection (and conſequently Chriſt Jeſus before but an extraordinary Kind of Jew) we muſt needs conclude, that as the Tendency of Chriſt's Life and Miracles was to Preach, Live, and Confirm His Divine Doctrine, ſo the very Bent of that Doctrine, Was the Improvement and Perfection of that Righteouſneſs, which in former Ages was but begun, and more imperfectly manifeſted: So that to be under Grace, is not to live in the Breach of God's Law Uncondemned through Chriſt's Perſonal Obedience wrought wholly without us, but to be led to deny all that Ungodlineſs, and thoſe Worldly Luſts, for which the Law takes hold upon the World, according to the Apoſtle to the Romans, Rom. 8. 1, 2, 3, 4. There is no Condemnation to them that are in Chriſt Jeſus, who walk not after the Fleſh, but after the Spirit, (implying, that who walked after the Fleſh, were ſo long not under Grace, but under Condemnation:) Again, For the Law of the Spirit of Life in Chriſt Jeſus, hath made me free from the Law of Sin and Death (that is, not only from Death, the Wages, but from Sin, the Work that leads to it:) Yet farther, For what the Law could not do in that it was weak through the Fleſh, God ſending his own Son in the Likeneſs of Sinful Fleſh, and for Sin Condemned Sin in the Fleſh, that the Righteouſneſs of the Law might be fulfilled in us, who walk not after the Fleſh, but after the Spirit. So that to be under Grace, is to be under the Government and Leadings of it; and to enjoy that Divine Power, which fulfills the Law, and redeems from thoſe Corruptions, which prove Men rather to be alive without Law, than under Grace that fulfills it. Upon the whole; ſince ſome in all Ages have been taught, (Tit. 2. 12.) To deny Ungodlineſs; and to Live Godly, and that they could not ſo have done, without the Grace that brings Salvation; And ſince the Seed of the Serpent has been bruiſed in them, and that it could not be without Chriſt, the Promiſed Seed; and ſince ſuch were then Turned from Darkneſs to Light, and from Satan's Power unto God; and that all this is purely Goſpel and Chriſtian; ſomething of Chriſtianity was in the World before that Viſible Appearance of Chriſt, from whoſe Name the True Religion was ſo called: For though there have been Diverſities of Gifts, yet the ſame Spirit; though Difference of Adminiſtrations, yet the ſame Lord. And though God, Who at ſundry Times, and in divers Manners, ſpake in Times paſt to the Fathers by the Prophets, hath in theſe Laſt Days ſpoken unto us by His Son, yet he was the ſame God, who ſpoke by the Prophets, that ſpoke by the Son; though it is always confeſt, not in ſo plain, expreſs, and excellent a Manner: The Difference therefore lay in the Manifeſtation, rather than in the Thing manifeſted. For through all Generations, there has been but one Seed, Truth, Grace, Word, Life, Power, or Spirit, by which any of the Sons and Daughters of Men were ever ſaved; and conſequently J. Faldo has greatly wrong'd the True Chriſtian Religion, as well as contradicted the Ancient Writers, and abuſed us, in Dating Chriſtianity from the Time of Chriſt's Bodily Reſurrection, and ſo bitterly reflecting upon them That Conform not to his Narrow and Falſe Apprehenſions.

Dr. Cave's Primitive Chriſtianity.

CHAP. II.

Chap. II.

Of Quakeriſm, as this Independent Prieſt ſcoffingly calls our Holy Religion.

IN my Defence of the Truth we profeſs, ſhewing not only the Conſiſtency of it with Chriſtianity, but proving it to be Chriſtianity, there are four Paſſages he takes an abrupt Notice of. His Words concerning the firſt run thus.

Rep. To purge away the Character I give of a Quaker, he tells you, pag. 9. We never ſaid, That the Light within every Man was the only Lord and Saviour, and Very God; let him ſhew us any ſuch Paſſage, of any One acknowledged Quaker, and he will ſay ſomething.

Now Reader obſerve his Reply. The Man cannot ſee Wood for Trees. I quoted him Forty Places in my Book, that will prove it. For Inſtance: All Power in Heaven and Earth is in it; Smith's Primmer, pag. 14. Again, I will make you know, that I the Light, which lighteth every Man that comes into the World — am the True, Eternal God, G. Fox, Jun. &c. Theſe I quoted in my Book, yet could Penn ſay, I thought to be believed Hand over-head.

Rejoyn. That this Adverſary is baſe with a Witneſs, remember, Reader, that there is not One Teſtimony, much leſs Forty, in that Place I quoted, and unto which my Anſwer was made. Next, obſerve how he ſuggeſts my ſmothering of hoſe Teſtimonies he brings, whereas I have particularly anſwered the latter, which includes the Force or Tendency of the former, and Five more of his falſly pretended Forty. But to the Point: That I cannot ſee Wood for Trees, is a very mean and Wooden Reply; what I have ſaid in my former Book, ſtands Unanſwered, and indeed is Unanſwerable. I ſhall contract it thus: " No Man that believes Scripture, will dare to deny that God is Light; That every Man is Enlightned by Him; And, that by Him who is called Light, all Things are upheld: And that He alone is Saviour: A Doctrine that J. Faldo teaches, pag. 84, 85, 89. That we never did aſſert, That the God that made Heaven and Earth, was Comprehenſible within the Soul of Man; yet that he gives Light to the Soul of Man. To which, with much more, he returns us Not One Word of Anſwer, but would make People believe, it has been the Courſe I have taken with him. To conclude, He muſt either deny Chriſt to have all Power in Heaven and Earth, to be the True Eternal God, or, That He who has that Power, and is that God, is not that True Light that Enlightneth every Man that cometh into the World; or his Labour is but very Vanity, whoſe Wages will be Vexation of Spirit. But thus far we are well-aſſured, that J. Faldo, for all his Shews of Reverence to the Scripture, overturns the moſt evident Teſtimonies therein contained, by this one Aſſertion, That God, who is Light, ſhines not in the Heart of any Man on Earth, nor ever did; For what elſe can be the Conſequence of his decrying our Principle, that aſſerts, Chriſt to be the Univerſal Light, Enlightning every Man that comes into the World; Or, That the Light wherewith every Man is Enlightned is Chriſt, or God? I affirm, that which quarrels this Principle, would not in the very Ground, have Chriſt to be God, indeed, Not God to be God; ſeeing it is an utter Denial of His Omnipreſence, ſince God is not manifeſted but by His own Light; and He being every where, His Light cannot be limited, becauſe it cannot be diſtinguiſhed from himſelf. But what our Adverſary would be at, by this Kind of Reaſoning, he helps us in his next Particular to underſtand.

Part I. Chap. II.

See my Anſwer, p. 193.

Rep. He attempts to excuſe Burroughs's Phraſe from Blaſphemy, viz. Your imagined God beyond the Stars. But how? They were expreſſed of People's imagining Him to be in the Likeneſs of Man, and ſo denying his Omnipreſence, that he ſhould not be below, as well as above. To which he replies thus: A rare Excuſe that denies Chriſt's Manhood, and making the Manhood of Chriſt, in whom the Fulneſs of the Godhead dwells Bodily, to be a Popiſh Ubiquitary.

Rejoyn. Muſt this paſs for my Confutation? A rare Excuſe indeed. But for what? Not W. Penn's Denial of Chriſt's Manhood; but J. Faldo's baſe Perverſion of E. B's Words. The Queſtion was not about Chriſt's Manhood, but of God Himſelf, who prepared it in Time; A pitiful Shift, to infer from God, who is a Spirit, to Chriſt's Body: We know, that's not every where; But the Word that was with God, and was God, is not confinable. Though if the Truth were known, J. Faldo's Zeal for Chriſt's not being a Popiſh Ubiquitary, centers in his Belief of meer Anthropomorphiſm, I mean, that God is confined to a Body, and that Body to a certain Place; elſe why ſhould he oppoſe to my aſſerting of God's Univerſal Preſence, Chriſt's Manhood, the Fulneſs of the Godhead dwelling Bodily in that Manhood, and Chriſt's being Reſident in ſome particular Place? But it is after this lame, crabbed, and inſignificant Way of Writing, that he vindicates his firſt Piece of Forgery, and wicked miſ-giving of our poor Friends Meanings. But to proceed.

Rep. (Pag. 7.) He tells you of the Companions I rendred Quakeriſm to be attended into the World with, and adds what elſe J. Faldo's Devil pleaſes; yet inſtead of denying what I ſaid (except the Epithets) he thus excuſeth it. Finally, did not the Devils howl and roar, and tremble, when ſeeing they ſhould be diſlodged by One ſtronger than themſelves —— And was there no Terror in all this? Yes verily. And moreover, whereas People have taken the Quakers to be poſſeſſed of the Devil when ſo behaving themſelves, Mr. Penn hath here confeſſed they were not miſtaken: And more than that too, that they themſelves were Devils, for it was they that roared.

Rejoyn. If this be to be a fair Adverſary, there is no ſuch Thing in the World. I will tranſcribe for thy Sake, Reader, what I excepted againſt in his firſt Book, and how I anſwered it.

" But once more; Chriſtianity entred the World with Raviſhing Songs, and Hallelujahs of the Angels, (Pag. 15, 16.) Healing all Diſeaſes, Caſting out Devils, Preaching Peace: But Quakeriſm entred the World, as if Hell had broke looſe, and Poſſeſſion by Satan had made Way, and fitted Souls for the Quaker's Spirit —

" O the Hell-dark Expreſſions of the Quaker's Spirit, frightful and amazing Words, " bitter Curſes, Howlings and Roarings; And what elſe J. Faldo's Devil pleaſeth, " by which to render the Quakers Odious. Well! But to anſwer him.

" It was a Time of Joy, and a Time of Sorrow; the Spirits of the Juſt rejoyced that he was born forth into the World, and that Sun of Righteouſneſs riſen, " whoſe Diſcovering Light, and Refreſhing Beams, would renew the World, that " had in great Meaſure been bewildred, ſince it's firſt innocent State: But therefore was it not a Time of Wo, Sorrow, Terror, and Grievous Diſtreſs, to all the " Workers of Iniquity? Did not Chriſt come to bring War as well as Peace, a " a Sword, a Fire upon Earth? Did not his Fore-runner come in an aſtoniſhing " Manner, in differing Attire, of another Diet, and from a Deſolate Place to Preach " Repentance, and to warn them with an O Generation of Vipers, to flee the Wrath " to come? Did he not ſay, That an Ax (a ſharp and Terrible Inſtrument) ſhould " be laid to every Unfruitful Tree? And did not the Apoſtles Preach to the Pricking of the Hearts of Thouſands, and Paul by Name, That Felix himſelf trembled; " and All, as knowing the Terrors of the Lord themſelves, they warned others; " wherefore Judgment is ſaid to have begun at the Houſe of God. Finally, did not " the Devils Howl, Roar and Tremble, foreſeeing they ſhould be diſlodged by one " ſtronger than themſelves, Chriſt, the Son of the Living God? And was there no " Terror, Dread and Amazement in all this? I perceive it may be a Virtue in the " Primitive Chriſtians, but a Vice in the Quakers, at leaſt in J. Faldo's Account.

" But this know, O Impartial People! the Quakers were over-taken by the " mighty Hand of God, and great were their Travels, and Pangs of Sorrow, under " the Righteous Terrors of the Lord, whoſe Hour of Juſt Judgments was come; " and being thereby made Witneſſes of His Heavenly Work, and redeemed through " Judgment, they became Miniſters of Judgment unto others; and the Terror of it " ſtruck Thouſands, the Devils trembled, &c. And art thou given up, J. Faldo, " to call Light, Darkneſs, and Darkneſs, Light? The Terrors of God, the Poſſeſſions of Satan, and Remorſe of Conſcience, Hell broke looſe? O Unhappy " Man!

Reader, this was my Anſwer; how much of it he concerned himſelf with, I have already obſerved. What Uſe he made of that little cited is very obvious, viz. To conclude us Devils. What a Falſe and Frothy Reflection is that, for one that would be accounted a Divine? To call this a Reply, is to abuſe Controverſie. 'Tis manifeſt, that Quakeriſm was not attended with more amazing Sights and Symptoms, than what our Adverſary muſt needs confeſs to have been the Companions of Chriſtianity: And as they agree in the Manner of their Appearance, ſo do J. Faldo and the Phariſees in their Judgment of both. Does John Faldo conclude us little better than Devils? The Phariſees called our Lord and Maſter, Beelzebub, the Prince of Devils.

Thus has TRUTH been ever accounted Hereſie by the Prieſts and Rabbies of that Age in which it has appeared; we do the leſs wonder that John Faldo ſhould not underſtand of what Spirit we are, who is yet ignorant of his own, and ſcoffs at the Revelation of that Eternal Spirit, which can alone give him to reliſh either. For the Epithets he beſtows upon Quakeriſm, they ſtink too much to be medled with: If they be Chriſtian, there is nothing Antichriſtian in the World. To rebuke his Reviling, he counts Railing; and it is come to that paſs with his ſcolding Adherents, that for the Quakers not to paſs by his unworthieſt Reflections, however unprovoked, without any Reproof, is to merit their ſharpeſt Retorts in the moſt vilifying Terms; I know not what to infer from ſuch an humourſome Carriage, but that it is expected from the Quaker's Religion it ſhould bear that, which John Faldo's Vindication tells us, his cannot; a great Credit to our Cauſe, againſt his Will.

Thus far of Chriſtianity and Quakeriſm, as they are contra-diſtinguiſhed by our Adverſary.

CHAP. III.

Chap. III.

Of the SCRIPTURES.

MY Adverſary begun his firſt Chapter in his former Diſcourſe, upon this General Charge, The Quakers deny the Scriptures. The Proof he offered was this, The Quakers deny the Scriptures of the Old and New Teſtament to be the Word of God, and therefore they Deny the Scriptures. Upon this account I thus delivered myſelf, He entitules his Chapter. "That the Quakers Deny the Scriptures. I "was almoſt aſtoniſhed at it, becauſe he pretended to prove all out of our own "Books, and none ſuch had ever come to my Hand; but upon Peruſal I found "this to be the Upſhot, That the Quakers Deny the Scriptures to be the Word of "God. My Adverſary's Reply is,

Rep. (Pag. 13.) This is not the firſt Cordial you have made of a Wilful Untruth, nor yet the laſt by a great many. And you who ſummoned up Nine Arguments of mine more, which were the Contents of the Nine Chapters next following, ſhould have been aſhamed of calling this One, which was the Firſt of Ten, the Upſhot, and then inſult. But I ſhall try how you break this ſingle Cord, this One of Ten.

Rejoyn. I will not ſay he has wilfully wronged me, but wronged me he has. I did not ſay, that it was the Upſhot of his whole Diſcourſe concerning the Scriptures, but of that ſingle Chapter; for had I reputed his Nine following Arguments undeſerving of any Notice, I might have called this ſingle One the Upſhot; but having ſingly refuted his ſubſequent Arguments, I could not in good Senſe call the Firſt the Upſhot. 'Twas not therefore the Upſhot of the whole, but of that Chapter in which the Word is uſed. I had good Reaſon ſo to term it, ſince the Proof was too particular for the Charge; it was not my wilful Untruth, but his Miſtake. His ſuggeſting, as if I only encountred that ſingle Cord, is very diſingenuous; for I throughly conſidered Nine following Chapters. Hear him farther.

Rep. That you deny the Scriptures to be the Word of God you grant: But you ſay, (Pag. 25.) I declare to the World, that we own them to be the Declaration of the Mind and Will of God, with many other Things, which I ſhewed to be ſhort of the main Ends of the Scriptures.

Rejoyn. Whether thoſe other Things left out, are ſhort of the main Ends of the Scripture, or no, will beſt be ſeen by conſidering what thoſe Things are.

I do declare to the whole World, That we believe the Scriptures to contain a Declaration of the Mind and Will of God, in, and to thoſe Ages in which they were written, being given forth by the Holy Ghoſt moving in the Hearts of Holy Men of God: That they ought alſo to be Read, Believed, and fulfilled in our Day, being Uſeful for Reproof and Inſtruction, that the Man of God may be Perfect. Now if this belongs not to the main Ends of Scriptures, either they are none, or they are unknown. However, it was not ſo much the End, as Name of Scripture, that was then controverted. Again, he goes on thus:

Rep. (Pag. 25.) I ſhall eaſily grant, that one Word ſtands Repreſentative of many. An odd Phraſe that repreſents him not able to expreſs himſelf congruouſly. I have heard of Perſons as Parliament-Men, but never of a Repreſentative Word before.

Rejoyn. He might have pardoned me an incongruous Phraſe, if ſuch it had been; for I have twenty Times over been ſo kind to him: But I muſt tell him, it is not leſs proper, though leſs uſed in Words than in Perſons. He ſhews Ignorance in that Philoſophy he pretends to be a Maſter of, where there are many ſingle Words or Terms, that are ſignificative of entire Sentences; but (argumentum ad hominem) granting to the Scriptures, that they are the Word of God, does not our Adverſary repute that Title Repreſentative as well as Expreſſive of thoſe many thouſand Words contained therein, if ſo, then there is a Repreſentative Word; If not, it can never be ſo called in our Adverſary's Senſe. Again, he brings me in thus, I think it is as good Senſe to call a King's Letters King, as the Scriptures the Word of God.

See it in Dr. Wilkin's Real char.

Pag. 14. Rep. But by your Favour, Mr. Penn, It is neither Non-ſenſe nor Bad-ſenſe to call a King's Letter the Word of a King.

Rejoyn. This is nothing to the Purpoſe; the Streſs lies here, The Word of God being a Title given to Chriſt, as the Title King is to a ſupreme Magiſtrate, whether it be Reverent or Significant to call the Declaration, Chriſt, the Word of God, any more than to call the Declaration of a King by the Title of King? For we therefore decline to give that Title to any Thing below Chriſt himſelf, to whom the Scriptures moſt emphatically aſcribe it.

Pag. 28. Becauſe I ſaid that it might be the Word of Advice, Reproof, Inſtruction, which Chriſt the Great Word of God livingly ſows in the Hearts of Men and Women, that Chriſt ſpoke of, when he ſaid, The Cares of the World choak the Word, and it becomes Unfruitful. He replies,

Pag. 15. Rep. Here you have yielded the Cauſe to ſave Chriſt from being the choaked and unfruitful Word.

Rejoyn. I need not have done ſo for any ſuch Reaſon, ſince Chriſt may in a Senſe as well be Choaked, as by Sin afreſh Crucified, and the Spirit Quenched. Nor could Unfruitful oblige me to give away the Cauſe, ſince the Word is always Unfruitful, where rebelled againſt. But is there no Difference, J. Faldo, between a Word of Advice Spiritually, livingly and powerfully ſown in the Heart, by Chriſt the Great Word of God, and that Advice, Reproof, or Inſtruction declared by Writing?

This brings to the Point, Whether the Scriptures or Chriſt may moſt deſervedly be ſtiled the Word of God?

Chriſt is God's living Oracle, and rightly called the Word of God, becauſe that which livingly ſpeaks forth the Will of God to the Souls of Men; The Scriptures are but that Revelation declared and recorded; conſequently they can have no Right to that Title which is ſo ſuitably aſcribed to the Author of that Revelation. To be ſure J. Faldo acknowledges that they are not the Living, Powerful, Self-ſufficient Word of God; Nor does he pretend to diſpute for them to be ſuch a Word of God as the Quakers deny them to be. Though it ſeems very ſtrange to me, that there ſhould be Two Words of God; the one quite differing from the other; or that any Word of God, if two there were, ſhould be of it ſelf Impotent or Inſufficient, as he ſeems to allow in his firſt Book, pag. 20. 27. Vind. page 14, 16.

That the Word of God cannot grow old, decay, be loſt, miſ-rendred, corrupted, tranſcribed, re-printed. (p. 30.) But hear what he ſays to me.

Rep. Did we hold as you, that it is to be Underſtood of no other but Chriſt, it would be an Abſurdity, but upon our Principles, none at all. Would you ſay, that the Scripture is abſurd; For we are not as many that corrupt the Word of God, 2 Cor. 2. 17. Many did ſo, and many do ſo ſtill, of whom you are a Ring-Leader.

Rejoyn. Truly if I am, I would be glad to know it, that I might be ſorry for it. I would not willingly deceive my ſelf and others, both of the Joys of this Life, and that to come. But I would deſire J. Faldo to conſider, if his Greek Teſtament will allow his Tranſlation, and leaſt of all, his Argument, which is this: If Chriſt cannot be corrupted, ſomewhat elſe beſides Chriſt is in Scripture call'd the Word of God. I am not ſo lean with my Learning but I will ſpare him a Little. I find Valla, Eraſmus, Vatablus, Caſtalio, Clarius, Zegerus, and Grotius ſay, the Greek Word there καπηλεύοντες ſignifies not adulterantes, but cauponantes, vel abutentes re quapiam ad queſtum, that is, We are not as many who Merchandize with the Word of God, or uſe it to ſelf Ends, making a Trade of it, or as ſeveral of our Old Engliſh Tranſlations have it, chop and change, which more ſorely reflects upon my Adverſary's Profeſſion, than mine: For though I am a Corrupter of Scripture in his Senſe, I am ſure he is a Trader with it, in it's own Senſe. I might inſtance to my Defence, in ſeveral other Languages, particularly the Italian, Spaniſh, and ancient French Tranſlations, but I will be brief. Now, unleſs it be abſurd to aſſert, that ſome Men have and may make worldly Advantage to themſelves from that Place, the Living Eternal Word of God hath miniſterially given them in the Hearts of People, and falſe to affirm, that the Scriptures of the New Teſtament were not then all written, nor gathered or compiled, as now they are, or made Canonical and Publick, 'till the Council of Laodicea, about the Time of Julian the Apoſtate, Anno 364. I cannot ſee how any may juſtly blame me, for denying the Scriptures to be the Word of God, from the Paſſage cited by my Adverſary; that Men may make ſo ill an Uſe of the Living Word of God none dare deny. Now, that the Scriptures were at that Time Imperfect and Scattered, is clear. They were Imperfect, in as much as but Five of Twenty One Epiſtles were then writ, beſides John's Hiſtory of the Goſpel, and his Revelation, and Luke's Acts of the Apoſtles. J. F. may hence ſee what a lame Imperfect kind of Word of God he diſputes for. But I would query, Was there not a Word of God before them? What was that Word of God that grew and multiplied before any New-Teſtament Writings were in Being? Did not the Apoſtles preach it? Therefore I rather take it to be ſuch a Word of God as attended the Prophets before them in an inferior Miniſtration, namely, the Living, Powerful, Quickning Word, who from it's various Operations is ſaid to be as a Fire, an Ax, an Hammer, a Sword, a Word of Reconciliation, of Patience, of inward Waſhing, of Faith that overcomes the World in true Believers, that was with God in the Beginning, and was God, which at ſundry Times and in divers Manners ſpoke ἐν τοῖς προφήταις, in and by the Prophets and Apoſtles, which was the Author of the Scriptures, and therefore before them.

Part I.
Chap. III.

So that the Scriptures are no more than the Mind of the Living Word of God declared by Writing upon ſeveral Occaſions; conſequently to call them an Holy Declaration of the Word of God, is a more Evangelical and ſuitable Title than the Word of God, whoſe Declaration they are.

That they were ſcattered, and ſeveral Centuries or Ages uncollected, Hiſtory tells us; particularly we find it in the Council of Trent, which is given us by the Learned and Judicious Pietro Soane Polano: They could not run their Canon higher than the Council of Laodicea, which, as we ſaid before, was about 364 Years after Chriſt; at what Time, ſays a great Author, Ambition prevailed with the Doctors of the Church, and they began to think de piis fraudibus of Holy Cheats, and would have their Doctrines paſs pro legibus, non pro conſilio, for Laws, not Counſel. I prove as much and more out of ſeveral Independent Authors, who ſeem to give all for gone before the End of the third Century, though if ſome of them ſhould now ſtand to the pureſt Tradition, they muſt needs give their preſent Practice for gone.

Pietr. Soan. Polan. Pag. 152.

I cannot but obſerve after what a ſuſpected Rate the Scriptures have been both firſt collected, and then convey'd through the ſeveral ſucceeding Ages; 'twas well ſaid of my former Author, Dubium igitur non eſt, quin Teſtamenta, vetus & novum, monumenta vera ſint earum rerum, quæ dictæ & factæ ſint a Prophetis & Apoſtolis. Where though he calls them not the Word of God, yet allows them to be Monuments of thoſe Things which were ſaid and done by the Prophets and Apoſtles. But as he, and others, ſo I may well object, Are we ſure that the Judgment of thoſe who collected them was ſufficient to determine what was right, and what not? For that which gives Scripture it's Canon, is not Plurality of Voices, but that Word of God which gave it forth; If that Divine Counſellor preſided not, what Aſſurance have our Anti-revelation Adverſaries of their Doctor's Choice? And granting that they have not rejected any Writing given forth by the Holy Ghoſt (which is a great Queſtion) and that what they have given us was in the main writ by Inſpiration (which I believe) yet how we ſhall be aſſured, that in above three hundred Years, ſo many hundred Copies as were doubtleſs taken, ſhould be pure and uncorrupted? Conſidering the private Diſſenſions, the Readineſs of each Party to bend Things to their own Belief, with the growing and ſucceeding Faults of leaving out, adding, tranſpoſing, &c. which Tranſcribers might be guilty of, perhaps more through Careleſneſs than Deſign, is beyond J. Faldo's Skill upon his Principles to inform us. From hence we may obſerve the Uncertainty of J. Faldo*'s Word of God*, who by Authorities can never prove the Scriptures to be given forth by Inſpiration, nor that they are truly collected; neither could thoſe Perſons, who firſt made them Canonical, be aſſured of the Exactneſs of thoſe Copies they then found extant, nor was the Collector's Judgment Infallible; and to come nearer to our Times, Learned Men tell us of little leſs than Three Thouſand ſeveral Readings in the Scriptures of the New Teſtament in Greek.

Far be it from me to write this in any the leaſt Undervalue of that Holy Record: It's only to ſhew the weak Foundation my Adverſary's Faith ſtands upon; I believe great and good Things of them, and that from no leſs Evidence than the Eternal Word that gave them forth, which hath oftentimes given my Soul a deep Savour of thoſe bleſſed Truths it declares of; only we cannot allow them to be The Word, though the Words of God; and the rather, for as much as we ſee the great and general Neglect that People are guilty of towards that Living, Powerful, Regenerating Word of Life, by whom alone all right Knowledge and laſting Peace is deriv'd to the Soul of Man, through this Apprehenſion, that in having the Writings they have the Word of God, and therefore look no farther, the very State of the profeſſing Jews of old, who thought better of the Scriptures than of Chriſt, believing to have Life in them, at what Time they crucified the Lord of Life and Glory. From whoſe Proceedings we learn thus much, That the worſt Enemies to the inviſible Word of Life, may carry the greateſt ſeeming Reſpect to, and beſtow the higheſt Titles upon the Scriptures that were given forth from it.

In ſhort, It was when Men turned from the Power of Godlineſs to the Form only, that they did Canonize and lay ſo vaſt a Streſs upon them. In the firſt and ſecond hundred Years after Chriſt, they were ſo ſcattered, that very few had all of them; and it is not unreaſonable for us to believe, that many had none of them, eſpecially thoſe of the New Teſtament: Were they therefore without the Word of God, and a ſufficient Rule for Faith and Practice? Surely not; It was an Ad- miniſtration of Life and Power, of writing the Law in the Heart, and putting the Spirit in the inward Parts. From whence came that Chriſtian Anſwer to the Heathen concerning Swearing, Fighting, and ſuch Contra-Evangelical Practices, They could not do ſo becauſe of God in their Conſciences. At that Time of Day the Anointing led them into all Truth. But in Proceſs of Time, when Chriſtians grew Careleſs and Worldly, whereby they loſt the Power of Godlineſs, then they began to ſet up an outward Pompous Religion, aſcribing that to the Letter and Form, which was only due to the Spirit and Power; And as thus entered the Apoſtacy into the World, ſo where Men are not turned and conformed to that Eternal Spirit, and Divine Immortal Power, the Apoſtacy ſtill remains. And our End in preſſing People unto the Eternal Word of Life is, that they may be brought out of Death and Darkneſs, which the Scriptures can never do. They are a Declaration and Teſtimony of Heavenly Things, but not the Heavenly Things themſelves; and as ſuch, we carry an high Reſpect unto them: We accept them as the Words of God himſelf; and by the Aſſiſtance of his Spirit, they are read with great Inſtruction and Comfort. I eſteem them the beſt of Writings, and deſire nothing more frequently, than that I may lead the Life they exhort to; and whatever ſlight Apprehenſions my diſingenuous Adverſary is pleas'd to have of theſe Kind of Acknowledgments, I write the naked Truth of my Heart, knowing I muſt give an Account to God.

CHAP. IV.

Chap. IV.

His Pretence of our Equalling our own Writings and Sayings with the Scriptures.

WIthout any flouriſhing Reflections, moſt commonly the Head and Tail, and ſometimes Middle too, of my Adverſary's Reply, I ſhall lay down his Words.

Rep. The Means I uſed for confirming the firſt Part of this Charge were two. Firſt, Their pretending them to be from Immediate Inſpiration: This he is ſo far from denying, that he pleads for it; but after ſuch a rude, impertinent Manner, that I ſhould but injure you, and ſhew my ſelf idle to tranſcribe and animadvert upon it.

Rejoyn. In how rude and impertinent a Manner I pleaded for it, the Reader may beſt judge by peruſing ſomething of the Paſſage.

“ For Inſpiration, the Scriptures are not more expreſs in any one Thing. (P. 36, 37.) No Man can know the Things of God by the bare Spirit of a Man.
“ The Scriptures are a Sealed Book to all but thoſe who know them by the “ ſame Hand that originally gave them; ſo that however common they may be in “ the World, they are Strangers to them that underſtand them not: And though “ Old, reſpecting the Time, when they were revealed to the Saints, yet New to “ every Age. So that we aſſert not a Revelation of New Things, but a renewed “ Revelation of thoſe Things God made former Ages Witneſſes of; otherwiſe “ Men are no more benefited by them; And to be benefited, they muſt be made “ ours by the Spirit, which made them the Holy Ancients.
“ In ſhort, No man can underſtand Spiritual Things but the Spiritually Diſcern“ ing, nor can he ſo be without the Inſpiration of the Almighty; This is Scrip“ ture.
“ Now the Author of thoſe Queries, and J. Faldo alſo denying Inſpiration, “ they conſequently deny themſelves to be Spiritually Diſcerning; And for Men not “ Spiritual to judge of Spiritual Matters, much leſs to write of them, and bid
“ their Writings go, and throw down Self-will and exalt the Truth, is Vain and Ido“ latrous: For, the Scriptures themſelves, conſidered meerly as ſuch, are unable;
“ much more Writings founded on Self-will; For it's the alone Privilege of God's “ Power and Spirit, and no Writing whatever, diſtinct from it, can perform that “ Great and Mighty Work in Man.

Now as Rude and Impertinent as this Anſwer may be in J. Faldo's Eyes, his Reply has not afforded me Light enough to ſee it. He would prove us guilty of holding Inſpiration, as if to do ſo were a Crime; From a Paſſage of John Story's, who rejected certain Queries, exhibited againſt the Quakers, becauſe meerly grounded upon the Author's Imagination of certain Paſſages in Scripture, and not any certain Knowledge or Experience received from the Revelation of the Spirit. It muſt be left to the Reader to judge how pertinently I returned upon my Adverſary. Sure I am, that Self-willed Queries can never throw down Self-will: And to urge Scripture not experienced, is to ſteal the Words of Truth from our Neighbour. Inſpiration was in Requeſt after Scriptures were in the World; And indeed they are unintelligible without it. The New Birth is never the more known for Chriſt's Saying to Nicodemus, though thereby we are taught, that without it no Man ſhall enter into the Kingdom of God: It is the Spirit alone that reveals the Myſteries of Re-generation; therefore to deny Inſpiration or Revelation, is to overthrow the only and Evangelical Way to Divine Knowledge. Eraſmus himſelf could tell us, What Men ſet forth by Man's Device, may be perceiv'd by Man's Wit: But the Thing that is ſet forth by the Inſpiration of the Holy Ghoſt, requireth an Interpreter inſpired with the like Spirit; And without the Inſpiration of it, the Secrets of God cannot be known; which is alſo the Subſtance of the fourth Article exhibited againſt the Lutherans in the Council of Trent, as an Erroneous Doctrine they held, That to underſtand the Scripture neither Gloſs nor Comment is neceſſary, but only to have the Spirit of a Sheep of Chriſt's Paſture. Vatablus, on this Paſſage in Job, But there is a Spirit in Man, and the Inſpiration of the Almighty giveth him Underſtanding, ſaith, There is no Man, that doth not partake of the Spirit, and from Almighty God and his Spirit, Underſtanding and Wiſdom is to be ſought. Adds Clarius, there is no Underſtanding in Men, niſi ab altiſſimo afflentur, unleſs they be inſpired from the Moſt High. Druſius is yet clearer, Our Eternal Help is from God, who illuminates our Minds, without whom we are unable to underſtand any thing in Divine Matters, and that inſpires Men with that Underſtanding, which neither Age, nor Induſtry, nor Doctrine of any Man can poſſibly give. Cradock, a famous Independent Preacher, tells us, That if Men had all the Sermons, that ever they heard recorded, in their Memory, though ſome may think them very knowing, yet truly they might be miſerable, confuſed and blind. For that it is the Spirit of God alone in the Heart, clears, orders, aſſures, and ſettles Things; yea, that the Scripture is a dead and ſpeechleſs Thing without the Spirit of God. This, ſays he, is the exceeding Greatneſs of the Power of the Spirit of God; And it is a wonderful Thing to ſee how quickly the Spirit of God will make a Scholar ripe. In ſhort, as to him, he greatly extols the Diſpenſation of the Spirit; and, p. 210, ventures at a Kind of Prophecy, That in theſe latter Times God will exalt his Spirit, and throw down every thing that exalts it ſelf againſt the Spirit, and ſtands in his Light. He affirms the Spirit to be within, that the Children of God are taught by it; for, ſays he, If thou be a Saint, thou haſt the Spirit of God as truly dwelling in thee as in the Lord Jeſus Chriſt (now Blaſphemy) and that the Way to know this Spirit to be in us, is from it's own Evidence, and that it is the Way to know it in others too; from whence he draws ſuch Kind of Concluſions, That the Lord Jeſus is anointed, and ſo are they; we have the ſame Unction with Chriſt; we have the ſame Offices with Chriſt; we have the ſame Love of God, the ſame Spirit, and the ſame Kingdom with Chriſt. The Church is the Fulneſs of Jeſus Chriſt. It is ſaid of the Oil that was poured on Aaron, It ran upon the Skirts of his Garments: ſo Chriſt being anointed, that Oil runs on us. Nay, the leaſt Saint is as real a Prophet, Prieſt and King, as the Lord Jeſus was (for he dwells in him) only in all things he muſt have the Preheminence.

This gives the Lye to J. Faldo.

William Dell, no ſmall Man in the Account of many who profeſs not themſelves to be Quakers, poſitively ſaith in Anſwer to this Objection, That Men now are not to receive the Spirit in that immediate Way to underſtand the Scriptures, in which it was given to them who wrote the Scriptures (the very Point depending between J. Faldo and me) Surely Mr. Simpſon will not deny that the Spirit is given to that whole Church which is the Body of Chriſt, ſeeing Paul ſaith, If any Man have not Chriſt's Spirit he is none of his, he is no Member of his. Now the Spirit is always given, to whomſoever it is given by the Father and the Son, as Chriſt taught his Diſciples, promiſing them that the Father would ſend the Spirit to them in his Name; And alſo that he himſelf would ſend it to them from the Father; and was this Promiſe only made to them, and not to all the Faithful alſo? Doth not Paul ſay, Rom. 12. 13. of the whole Church, that by one Spirit we are all baptized into one Body, and are all made to drink into one Spirit; becauſe ye are Sons, God hath ſent the Spirit of his Son into your Hearts, crying, Abba Father? Gal. cap. 4. And do they not receive it alike immediately from God? Who can give the Spirit of God to Man, but God himſelf? When God promiſed to pour out his Spirit in the laſt Days upon all Fleſh, did he Name any Difference in the pouring of it out, ſaying, ſome ſhall receive it immediately, and ſome mediately? No; But all who receive it, receive it alike immediately from him. And by this Spirit (ſaith W. Dell) did Holy Men ſpeak the Scripture, and by this only do Holy Men of God underſtand the Scripture.

To this Objection, that Men now are to get Knowledge, to wit of the Scripture, by Studies and humane Learning, and not by Inſpiration (ſtill the very Matter betwixt us) he boldly, briefly and ſmartly anſwers, This Doctrine carries the viſible Mark of Antichriſt upon it. For it is only the Inſpiration of God, that enables a Man to know the Things of God, and not a Man's Study or humane Learning. It is not in this Caſe in him that wills and runs, but in God that ſheweth Mercy. Whereſore Chriſt hath ſaid, No Man knoweth the Father but the Son, and he to whomſoever the Son will reveal him. Whereſore Paul prays for the Epheſians, that God would give them the Spirit of Wiſdom and Revelation in the Knowledge of Chriſt, without which Spirit of Revelation Chriſt and the Father can never be known. Whereſore to deny the Inſpiration of God's Spirit now, is the moſt groſs and palpable Doctrine of Antichriſt and his Prophets. To confirm what he writes, He brings ſeveral Teſtimonies out of Chryſoſtom, Wickliff, Tindall, Zwinglius, Luther, Latimer and Calvin. I will tranſcribe but two of them. Of the Knowledge of the Goſpel Zwinglius ſpeaks thus, We muſt needs be taught of God, not of Men; for this is the Saying of the Eternal Truth, which knows not how to Lye, John 6. Luther gives us his Mind thus, The Scriptures are not to be underſtood, but by that very Spirit by which they were writ. No Man ſees one jot or tittle in the Scriptures but he that hath the Spirit of God; For all Men have a darkened Heart in ſuch ſort, that if they could ſpeak and know how to bring forth all Things of the Scripture, yet have they not any true Senſe or right Knowledge of them. For (ſaith Luther) The Spirit is required to the Underſtanding of the whole Scripture, and of every Part thereof. To this I am willing to add the Teſtimony of a Famous, Engliſh, Godly, and Learned, Martyr, John Philpot, in a Conference with Biſhop Bonner, in his eleventh Examination before him and ſeveral other Biſhops. B. Bonner aſking, what meaneſt thou by writing in the Beginning of thy Bible, Spiritus eſt vicarius Chriſti in terris, The Spirit is Chriſt's Vicar on Earth? Philpot gave him Anſwer after this Manner, That Chriſt ſince his Aſcenſion worketh all Things in us by his Spirit, and by his Spirit doth dwell in us. Again, in Anſwer to one Morgan, who mockingly queried, Have you alone the Spirit of God, and not we? he thus anſwered, I ſay not, that I alone have the Spirit of God; But as many as abide in the true Faith of Chriſt have the Spirit of God as well as I. Again, by way of Defence of his ſevere Rebuke of this inſolent and ſcoffing Adverſary (like mine) when he told him, that he Raged, he thus replied. Thy fooliſh Blaſphemies have compelled the Spirit of God that is in me to ſpeak that which I have ſaid to thee, thou Enemy of all Righteouſneſs. I tell thee plainly, thou art not able to anſwer that Spirit of Truth which ſpeaketh in me for the Defence of Chriſt's true Religion.

Tom. 3. fol. 169.

Fox's Martyr. vol. 3. p. 572, 573.

Of this Judgment were the moſt eminent Martyrs. I ſhall conclude with John Bradford's plain Aſſertion to the Arch-Biſhop of York. We do believe and know the Scriptures as Chriſt's Sheep, not becauſe the Church ſaith, they are the Scriptures, but becauſe they be ſo, being thereof aſſured by the ſame Spirit which wrote and ſpake them.

Fox's Martyr. vol. 3. p. 298.

How all theſe Teſtimonies can be True, and yet Inſpiration Untrue, I ſhall leave with the ſober Reader to judge. And if my Arguments are ſtill Irrational, and my Teſtimonies Inſufficient or Erroneous in his Account, it will become his Pretences to Divinity, not with Squibs and Railing, but by Reaſon, Scripture and better Authorities to diſcover it.

The ſecond Way he took to prove our Equalling our Writings to, and preferring them before the Scriptures, is our Pretence to Infallibility. Hear what he ſays.

Rep. Infallibility W. P. does not deny to be their Pretence, but would make it very neceſſary, and caſts the contrary Opinion again, and again, and again too, as Dirt in my Face. This is your Fallible, Errable, Uncertain J. Faldo. pag. 7.

Rejoyn. It is ill done of my Adverſary to call my Anſwer Dirt, which is ſo ſerious, and to which he has replied little elſe but Dirt.

I perceive all along, notwithſtanding the vaſt Difference he repreſents us to be at, as to a Worldly Condition, this Prieſt is ten Times more enraged at the Juſt Conſequences I draw from his own fallible Doctrines, than he thinks a Quaker ought to be diſpleaſed with him, for his numerous and ſcurrilous Provocations. But if it be Dirt, it ſticks faſt ſtill, for I find none of it wiped off. And how dirty it is the Reader may judge by peruſing it.

My Anſ. p. 36

'He that doth not Infallibly know, what he pretends to know of God or Religion, knows nothing certainly which concerns either. Now if Men cannot attain to any ſuch Certainty, farewel all Religion: For, that a Man ſhould affirm, and not know whereof; That he ſhould profeſs God and Religion, yet be uncertain of both; But that J. Faldo ſhould preach up, and profeſs himſelf Errable in all ſuch Doctrine: Who ought to believe him? Why ſpends he his Breath at a venture? What Reaſon have any to believe him againſt us, who is Uncertain of what he ſays againſt us by his own Principle. This is your Independent, Errable, Fallible, Uncertain J. Faldo.

Col. 2. 2.

Reader, this is by much the greateſt Part of that Dirt, he ſays, I caſt in his Face. But I muſt tell him, that greater Ignominy no Man can well bring upon the Goſpel, than that thoſe who are converted by it are both Uncertain of the Truth of it, and their own Converſion; he either ſeems to have forgot, or never to have underſtood the Meaning of thoſe Words delivered by the Apoſtle Paul, That their Hearts might be comforted, and being knit together in Love, and unto all Riches of the full Aſſurance of Underſtanding, to the Acknowledgment of the Myſtery of God. Again, And we deſire that every one of you do ſhew the ſame Diligence to the full Aſſurance of Hope unto the End, Let us draw near with a true Heart in full Aſſurance of Faith. And the Apoſtle John tells us, He that believeth on the Son of God, hath the Witneſs in himſelf. That they knew that they were of God, and the whole World lay in Wickedneſs. And that the Son of God was come, and had given them an Underſtanding, that they knew him that was True, and were in him that is True, even in his Son Jeſus Chriſt. And this is the Record that God has given to us Eternal Life, and this Life is in his Son. He that hath the Son hath Life, 1 John 5. 10, 11, 12, 19, 20.

If theſe prove not Certainty in Faith, Hope and Eternal Life, there is no Truth proved in Scripture; for that People ſhould have full Aſſurance, Chriſt in them their Hope, and Life, and Witneſs of theſe Things in themſelves, knowing him that's true; and yet be Uncertain of their Faith, Hope and Life, and doubtful of their Inward Witneſs, and the Evidence and Knowledge that is given by him, cannot be leſs contradictory, than to affirm Men ignorant of what they know, or guilty of what they are Innocent. To be infallibly aſſured of what we believe, is no Error in the Opinion of John Philpot and Biſhop Latimer, whatever uſe is made of it now to diſcriminate a Quaker. The firſt to the Biſhop of Chicheſter, who reflected upon him, as conceiting himſelf better learned than the Biſhop and the reſt of his Brethren (a Flout my lordly Adverſary has more than once beſtowed on me) anſwered, I take upon me the Name of no Learning; I boaſt of no Knowledge, but of Faith and of Chriſt, and that I am bound undoubtedly (or infallibly) to know, as I am ſure I do. The Biſhop replies, Theſe Hereticks take upon them to be ſure of all Things they ſtand in; you ſhould ſay rather, with Humility, I truſt I know Chriſt, than that I be ſure thereof; which is ſo like J. Faldo, that he ſeems to be the Biſhop revived, proudly catechiſing and reproving the poor Quakers. But hear John Philpot's bold and ſmart Anſwer; Let him doubt of his Faith that liſteth, ſaith he, God give me always to believe that I am ſure of True Faith and Favour in Chriſt. Biſhop Latimer in his ſecond Letter directed to Sr. Edward Bainton, a Favourer of him that little Time he lived in Queen Maries Reign, who through his Deſire to preſerve him, was willing to allay the honeſt Man's Zeal for the Truth from the great Uncertainty that is in the World about Truth; ſays he, Firſt ye miſlike, that I ſay I am ſure that I preach the Truth, ſaying, in Reproof of the ſame, that God knoweth certain Truth; Indeed God alone knoweth all certain Truth, and God alone knoweth it as of himſelf, and none knoweth certain Truth but God, and thoſe that be taught of God, as ſaith St. Paul, For God hath ſhewed it unto them; And Chriſt himſelf, They ſhall be all taught of God. And your Friends deny not but that certain Truth is communicated to us, according to Capacity. But as to my Preſumption and Arrogancy, either I am Certain or Uncertain that it is Truth that I preach: If it be Truth, why may not I ſay ſo? If I be Uncertain, why dare I be ſo bold to preach it? And if your Friends be Preachers themſelves, after their Sermon, I pray you aſk them, whether they be certain and ſure they preach you the Truth or no, and ſend me Word what they ſay, that I may learn to ſpeak after them. If they ſay, they be Sure, ye know what followeth: If they ſay, they be Unſure, when ſhall ye be ſure that have ſo doubtful and unſure Teachers? Thus much of Infallibility; when he has anſwer'd this we may give him ſome more; mean Time we ſhall proceed.

Rep. But farther, ſays W. P. Cannot one Man be another Man's Brother, and not the Eldeſt Brother? This hath done your Work, or all Hope is loſt. It ſeems the Scriptures and your Writings may without Offence call one another Brother, yet not be thought to aſpire to Equality. But why? Becauſe forſooth you do not ſay, they are the Scriptures Elder Brother. I thought till now that Brethren had been a Term of Equality. And though in Humane Births there is a Natural Right to the Firſt-born above the Reſt, yet not in the Productions of Scripture; for the New Excelleth the Old Teſtament in Glory.

Rejoyn. In Similes there is ſome Allowance with honeſt Men, but none to be hoped for from J. Faldo. But if it be ſo hard for him to bear I cannot help it. Several Writings may be given forth from the ſame Spirit without coming upon the Vie. If we muſt needs equal ſome of our Writings to the Scriptures, becauſe given forth by the ſame Spirit, then muſt every the leaſt True Chriſtian be equal to the greateſt Apoſtle, becauſe endued with the ſame Spirit.

The Pouring forth of the Spirit, which was the Promiſe of the Father, we have proved the very Subſtance of the Goſpel, and Inſpiration as neceſſary as Divine Knowledge, becauſe the only Way to it. Whatever therefore hath been writ from Adam's Day to this, or ſhall yet be to the End of the World, from the Motion of God's Spirit in the Hearts of any of his Children, ſtands as nearly related to the Scriptures, as his ſeveral Manifeſtations of his Spirit in his Servants Writings. The Ancient Chriſtians were Brethren, having one Father; Were they therefore equally dignified in Degree of Fellowſhip? And that was the Meaning of my former Simile, diſingenuouſly taken by my Adverſary: For as there is a Degree in natural, ſo in ſpiritual Births; The Dignity of the firſt lies in Priority of Time, the Dignity of the laſt in a more full Diſcovery of Immortality and Eternal Life. Thus the Scriptures of the New exceed thoſe of the Old Teſtament. Where there is the firſt and moſt ample Declaration, there muſt be the Pre-eminence. Now alas, what can we boaſt of, that was not formerly teſtified unto; we exalt no ſingular Spirit, neither walk we in an untroden Path; 'tis the Everlaſting Goſpel we bear witneſs unto, and to the Revival and Breakings forth of that ancient Life, Truth, Spirit and Power, which according unto divers Diſpenſations, hath made People true Children of God. What do you eſteem your own Meanings and Interpretations? Do you not intitle them to a very near relation, the Text Interpreted? We never intended to bring our Writings upon the Vie, and diſpute, with the Scriptures, for the Preheminence: But our Writings farther declaring of the ſame Truth from the ſame Spirit, are related to them. If to teſtifie and exhort to the ſame Truth the Scriptures declare of, and that in the ſame Spirit of Chriſt by which they were given forth, be offenſively to equal or prefer ſuch Teſtimonies, we are indeed guilty of great Preſumption. But if it be Scripturally True, That as many as are led by the Spirit of God are the Sons of God; and that ſuch as are ſo led, may by that Spirit farther be drawn forth to freſh Teſtimonies to any ancient Truth or Truths declared of in the Holy Scriptures (whether by way of Prophecy, Information, Exhortation, Reproof or Comfort to Believer or Unbeliever (as muſt not be denied, ſince God cannot be limited) it cannot be Preſumptuous or Arrogant, to affirm any Kindred or Relation between any ſuch Writing or Writings of the Scriptures of Truth.

In ſhort, Either there are never to be more Inſpirations after the Apoſtles Deceaſe, and conſequently no more Teſtimonies nor Prophecies to be than what the remaining Scriptures give us, or the Pouring out of the Holy Ghoſt belongs as well to after Ages as to that (as hath been abundantly proved) and therefore freſh Teſtimonies and Propheſies by Way of farther opening or preſſing the ancient Truth, recorded in the Scriptures of the Old and New Teſtament, may in after Ages be given forth, unleſs God and his Spirit ſhould be limited, and many Parts of the Scripture remain unfulfilled.

If any ſhall object, 'Tis Adding, according to Revel. 22. 18. I would have them know, that the Addition intended was not of other Writings, but other Doctrines. I will conclude this with a very notable Paſſage, delivered in a Book entituled, An Examen of the late Aſſembly of Divines Confeſſion of Faith preſented to the Parliament, Anno 1659. pag. 8, 10. It is evident that the Lord will have Prophets in all Ages, and eſpecially when he is about to bring extraordinary Judgments upon the World in general, and upon the Church in ſpecial; and that the Laſt Times ſhall abound bound moſt of all with the Prophetical Spirit. So that theſe extraordinary Ways of God's revealing himſelf, neither are ceaſed, nor ſhall determine in the militant Church.

Thirdly, whereas you ſay in the ſixth Section, that nothing at any Time is to be added to the Scriptures of the Old and New Teſtament, whether by new Revelations of the Spirit, or Traditions of Men; We deſire to know what Warrant you have thus to determine. If you ſay that in Rev. 22. 18. it is written, That if any Man ſhall add unto theſe Things, God ſhall add unto him the Plagues that are written in this Book. We anſwer, That ſo much in effect was forbidden long before, as Prov. 30. 6. Add thou not unto his Words, leſt he reprove thee, and thou be found a Lyar: Yet many Books of the Holy Prophets and Apoſtles have been added ſince the written Word of thoſe Times. Yea, the ſame Inhibition was given by Moſes, Deut. 4. 2. and 12. 32. Ye ſhall not add to the Word which I command you, neither ſhall you diminiſh ought from it: Therefore this Addition thus prohibited muſt neceſſarily be underſtood of any new Doctrine in ſubſtance differing from the Old, even that of Moſes; But that there ſhould be a Vindication of the ſame when miſ-underſtood, or a more full and free Publication of the ſame, by the Prophets of the Old Teſtament, or inſpired Men of the New.

Rep. My Adverſary tells me a Blind Story, of preferring our Writings above the Scriptures, as being from God eſſentially in us; But this, ſaith he, W. P. has not one Word to.

Rejoyn. I had little Reaſon for it. He confeſſeth, pag. 43. of his former Diſcourſe, that he expected not to find any ſuch Word as Eſſentially in our Authors. Doth he think I was to play the Fool in anſwering of him, a Thing he begs Excuſe for in Replying to me? We affirm with the Scripture, that God tabernacles in his Children, that Chriſt dwells in his People, and that the Holy Spirit Temples in his Saints. He was full of all Grace and Truth, and of his Fulneſs have we received a Meaſure of Grace and Truth; and he that ſanctifieth, and they that are ſanctified are all of one; After this Way that he calls Hereſie, know we, worſhip we, and enjoy we the God of our Fathers. But what was the ſecond Argument by which he endeavoureth to prove we prefer our Writings and Sayings above the Scriptures.

pag. 19. 20 Rep. My ſecond is their Characters they give of them: concerning the Scriptures; Feeding Death with Death, the Letter which killeth. Of their own Sayings, The Voice of the Son of God was utter'd forth by him, &c.

Rejoyn. I told him before, 'That Death is a State without the living experimental Knowledge of God, and his Work in the Heart. And that State, I ſaid, will talk of the Fame of Wiſdom, as ſaith the Scripture. At this he Scoffs, and makes as merry with it, as would ſome prophane Stager. And in the midſt of his Deſires to be thought Meek, to this little of a large and ſober Anſwer, baſely cropt, he gives the hard Names of Non-ſenſe, Folly and Impious. The Scripture juſtifies me in what I ſaid. For Men dead in Treſpaſſes and Sins talk of God, and that perhaps according to the Letter of Scripture too; why may it not be then ſaid, That Death talks of Wiſdom, as well as Dead Men. But this he calls arriving at as perfect Non-ſenſe as G. Fox himſelf. He would have done better not only to have anſwered, but conſidered my following Words, 'Death or dead Men's talking or feeding upon the Words of Scripture, being ignorant of the true Senſe of the Scripture; But it had been vain to have expected this Candor from him.

In ſhort, The Scripture without the Spirit is Dead, ſay ſome Independents as well as Quakers. Men Unregenerate are dead in Sins, ſay all. What can ſuch Men's Feeding upon the Scriptures be, but one dead Thing feeding upon another. Remember it was Chriſt that ſaid, It was the Spirit alone that quickens.

But that this Man may ſhew himſelf almoſt irrecoverably gone in Diſhoneſty, becauſe I ſaid, 'There is no Compariſon betwixt what God requires, and an immediate hearing of his Voice, and being ſenſible of his living Touches upon the Soul: Writings are but holy Things at ſecond Hand. He implies and replies thus.

Rep. Their Writings and Sayings they pretend to be perfectly immediate from the Spirit of God; But the Scriptures handed through many Ages: And therefore there is no Compariſon, becauſe he affirms theirs to be more immediate.

Rejoyn. Reader, Right me in this Matter: Was the Compariſon betwixt our Writings and Sayings with the Scriptures, or any Writings or Sayings, and the Immediate Voice and Living Touches upon the Soul? Do not I expreſly ſay, Writings are but Holy Things at ſecond Hand: If ſo, how do I make our Writings holy Things at the firſt Hand? Do not I prefer the Voice of God to the Soul, and his Immediate Touches upon it, as well before our own Writings and Sayings, as the Holy Scriptures of Truth? And who dare deny that heavenly Enjoyment of God, to be the bleſſed End of Writings and Sayings too?

It is after a Manner not leſs Perverting, though much more Scoffing, that he deals with my Anſwer about our Friends Denying Light to be in Scripture, That is, ſaid I, There is not living, ſpiritual, eſſential Light in the Scriptures. Now hear him.

Rep. Did he not intend his Writings for the View of thoſe only who underſtand no more right Reaſon than a Horſe doth Hebrew; He could not expect any Succeſs in ſuch pitiful Attempts. Whatſoever makes manifeſt is Light, ſaith the Scripture. But if there be no Light, but according to the Character he gives; Candles, Stars, Moon, Sun, Reaſon, W. P's Writings alſo, are groſs and perfect Darkneſs.

Rejoynd. This Man would paſs both for Juſt and Rational; Juſt he is not, who has left out thoſe very Words which remove all Pretence to Scruple, viz. (Anſw. Pag. 42.) “That the Scriptures carried a Deſcriptive and Declarative Light with them, that is, a Declaration from and of the Divine Light. Dares he affirm more? Or does this deny all other Lights beſides the Living, Spiritual and Eſſential Light? Unjuſt Man! to leave out that which only could right his Adverſary, and oppoſe his infamous Ends.

Beſides, he abuſeth Scripture; the Light mentioned in that Paſſage is the Living Spiritual Light of God in the Conſcience, Epheſ. 5. 13, as the Verſe at length proves, viz. That all Things that are reproved are made manifeſt by the Light; for whatſoever makes manifeſt is Light. Again, Hear what he ſays to the ſame Matter.

Rep. (P. 22.) And yet W. P tells you of the Author of the Quakers Book, he writ to give Notice, of the Day-ſpring of God's Eternal Light of Life to the World, i. e. the Light within, that needeth the Light of Farnſworth's Book to be ſeen by: What cannot ſuch a Reconciler do?

Rejoyn. But what cannot ſuch a Scoffer do, who dare affront God, and be Injuſt to Men in the View of the World? which is manifeſted thus; Firſt, As I deny'd a Living, Spiritual and Eſſential Light to be in the Scriptures, or any other Writings; ſo did I acknowledge a Deſcriptive and Declarative Light to be in them, and meaſurably in other Writings, as well as the Scriptures, which he hides from the Reader, and then triumphs over a falſe Conſequence, Secondly, If the Light within needs Rich. Farnſworth's Book, as a Light without, to be ſeen by, becauſe it is by it teſtified to; the ſame upon his Argument may be ſaid of God himſelf, who is Light, that he needed the Light of the Scriptures to be ſeen by. But what ſhall I ſay? The Man is deſperate in his Ventures.

From my concluding upon his Accuſation, and my own Anſwer, ſo that our Adverſary's Argument amounts to thus much. * We therefore prefer our own Writings before the Scriptures, becauſe in all our Writings we earneſtly endeavour, by numerous Quotations, to prove what we write to be according to Scripture; For this he flyes out into this following Reply.

* Which concerns him, if he would have what he writes to be according to Scripture.

Rep. (Pag. 22.) I leave it to my Reader (ſays J. Faldo) to give a Name to this Paſſage, the like to which for a daring Untruth the World hath ſcarcely been ever acquainted with; yet the Man pretends beſides all other Graces to Infallibility. In many a large Libel I could produce where there is not one Quotation of Scripture: W. Smith, often quoted in Quakeriſm no Chriſtianity, in his Directory for Religious Principles, conſiſting of above Two Hundred Pages, hath not one Scripture quoted, not one Exhortation to read the Scriptures; But as his main Scope, denies and throws Dirt upon them.

Rejoyn. Reader, right a poor People once; Never, I think, did Man ſo ſlander Perſons and Principles: Dwell a while here, then give thy Judgment of both. My Anſwer, unencountred by him, lay thus.

My Anſw. Pag. 42.

“Let it ſuffice to all impartial People, that we only deſire to make a Difference

Part I.
Chap. IV.

“ a Scripture Stile, (this Diſtinction I fear my Adverſary wilfully omitted) or particularly defended by Plenty of expreſs Scriptures cited. Therefore of Neceſſity they, the Scriptures, muſt alſo partake with them in common of thoſe famous Titles. And thus far have they the Preference, that they are quoted on Purpoſe to give the Truth we write greater Credit. What is that Greater Credit, but to be exactly agreeable with them.

Now, Reader, firſt conſider; I did not ſay, that not one Book is not without Plenty of expreſs Scripture cited, as my Anſwer clears; but that every one of them is in a Scripture Stile, or particularly defended by expreſs Scripture cited.

W. Smith's Catechiſm belongs to the firſt; and if he would have faſtened the Lye deſervedly upon me, he ſhould have made it appear, that he treated not on the Truth declared of in Scripture, ſcripturally, which is as much the contrary, as any thing can be; For his Catechiſm contains nothing elſe; neither is it managed any other Way.

Secondly, If he can produce one Book, endeavouring to defend, or prove our Principle to be true, without ſuch Quotation, (for to ſuch Books the Paſſage by him cited relates) I will confeſs his Ranting Abuſe to be a Juſt Rebuke: But I make this Challenge to him, To give me one Book out of a Scripture Stile, that is not Controverſial; or any Controverſial Book without expreſs Scripture cited? If he cannot, his vain Inſults fall thick upon his own Head: But let us ſee if the Deſign of W. Smith's Catechiſm be to deny and throw Dirt upon the Scriptures: In the thirteenth Page of William Smith's Catechiſm, printed Anno 1667, we have this Queſtion and Anſwer concerning the Scriptures.

Q. Of what Service are the Scriptures, as they are given forth and recorded without?

A. Much every Way, unto thoſe that have received the ſame Spirit from which they were given forth; for unto ſuch they are Profitable, and make Wiſe unto Salvation, and are unto them of Service for Inſtruction, Edification and Comfort: The ſame Spirit in them receiving the Teſtimony of the Spirit, as it is declared in the Scripture; And there is an Agreement and Union in the Spirit within, and alſo in the Words without; And ſo there is Inſtruction, Edification and Comfort by the Scriptures unto all that are in the ſame Spirit that gave them forth.

Now, in my Adverſary's Words, I leave it to my Reader to give a Name to his Paſſage, both againſt me, our Books, and particularly William Smith: The like to which, for a daring Truth, is not commonly told.

For if to confeſs to the Scriptures, to believe, to read, and to fulfil them, as what by the right Spirit makes Wiſe, through Faith, to Salvation, being full of Inſtruction, Edification and Comfort; If this, I ſay, be to deny and throw Dirt upon them, William Smith is deeply guilty; but I leave it with God, and my Reader's Conſcience, whether J. Faldo hath not denied all Honeſty in throwing ſo much Dirt undeſervedly upon W. Smith: But let us ſee what Reply he makes to my Anſwer in his Inferences, and indeed there is need of Patience in having to do with ſo much unworthy Shifting and ill Language; His firſt Inference was this: If the Light within was always ſufficient, the Scriptures and other Means were ever ſuperfluous. His Second, By the ſame Ground the Writings of the Gentiles, yea, the bitter Scoffs of Lucian and Julian the Apoſtate, are of equal Authority with the Scriptures; for they reſulted from their Light within.

Quak. noChr.
Pag. 59.

To all which, (as my full Anſwer) only thus much I will ſay, That though all Ability was and is in him the Light, whom we declare to be the Light of all Mankind to reveal the whole Mind of God. (Here he leaves off, and takes the reſt from the Beginning of another Paragraph, about a Page off, to clap to it) Yet that he ſo baſely miſtakes Reaſon, and abuſes his Reader, as to infer from the Ability of the Light (whether obey'd or diſobey'd) the Uſeleſneſs of the Scripture. Now hear his Reply.

Rep. (Pag. 23.) Obey'd or Diſobey'd, were no Words of mine. But how can we know any thing the better for W. P's hard Names he puts upon it, ſeeing there is nothing that pinches him, but he hath preſently an hard Name for it. And ſo impertinently and ſlovenly impoſed, that a Man might learn far more genteel Railing under an Hedge; As baſe Compariſon, p. 43. Black as Hell in Malice, p. 46. The Impudence of his Wickedneſs, p. 49.

Rejoyn. Whatever pincht me before, I hope the Reader will bear Witneſs for him, he has been more merciful in this Reply. He firſt brings little or nothing out of my Anſwer, and ſays juſt nothing to what he brought. He did not ſay obey'd or Diſobey'd; The more the Shame; As my Anſwer to the Inference will ſufficiently manifeſt, the Subſtance of which was this, “That if the Light had been “obeyed, and God's Spirit not rebelled againſt, there had not been ſo much Need “of Line upon Line, and Precept upon Precept. Therefore was the Light or Spirit “in it ſelf inſufficient; or Line upon Line ſuperfluous. Is the Ability of a Maſter “queſtioned by the Uſe of Books? or the Uſe of Books ſuperfluous, becauſe of “his Ability? Inſufficiency belongs not unto the Light, but to the Creature that can-“not receive it as it is in it ſelf. A Condeſcenſion to ſuch Ways and Means as “ſuit the great Weakneſs and Diſtance of degenerated Man from God, can no “more conclude the Light inſufficient, than God, Chriſt and the Holy Spirit. To which let me add, that as the Law, ſo very much of Scripture, was added, becauſe of Tranſgreſſion; that makes it not ſuperfluous, no more than the ſucceſsleſs Strivings of the Spirit to bring out of Tranſgreſſion (becauſe of Man's obſtinate Rebellion) renders the Spirit not ſufficient.

To the ſecond Inference he drew, I gave a large Anſwer, which I ſhall contract; “That the Light of the Jews and Gentiles was one in it ſelf; That as either writ “by that Degree of Light they had, they might both be ſaid to write by the ſame “Light, and yet the Writings be no more equal than the Degrees of Manifeſta-“tion: That the Writings of the Jews greatly tranſcended thoſe of the Gentiles, “from that greater Diſcovery God vouchſafed to them. That his bringing Lu-“cian and the beſt Gentiles upon an Equality, was wicked. That nothing lies “heavier againſt the Light within in that blaſphemous Saying, than againſt the “Spirit in the Prophets, Apoſtles, and every good Chriſtian, who by his infatua-“ted Way of Arguing, would make us believe that Lucian and Julian acted from “the Light within, becauſe they acted from ſomething within, and that there is no “Diſtinction to be made between their Writings and the Scriptures themſelves, upon “our Principle, becauſe they writ according to the Light that was in them; as he “ſays. What is this but to deny all Teſtimony within, or at leaſt it allows but of ſuch an one, as gives equal Evidence to Apoſtates and Chriſtians, Men acted by the Power of Darkneſs, and the Principle of Light? It ſhall now reſt with my Reader to point where the Pinch was, For the Ill Language he ſays I gave him, to wit, a Line and an Half made up out of ſix Pages given on diſtinct Provocations; Let us examine [Baſe Compariſon, Page 43.] This fell out upon his comparing us with the Papiſts (which we ſhall anon conſider) How ſlovenly I was in doing ſo, I will not be mine own Judge [Black as Hell it ſelf in Malice, Page 46.) fell from me on this Occaſion; ſays J. Faldo: I know not hardly any worſe Lucian and Julian ſaid of Jeſus of Nazareth, the Scripture and Chriſtianity, than the Quakers have done under other Names. Now, Reader, if thus to Unchriſtian, Unſcripture, in fine, Unreligion, Prophane, yea, Atheize a whole Body of People, bringing them into parallel with looſe and heatheniſh Scoffers and Perſecutors of the Chriſtian Religion, who all this While reverently believe in Chriſt Jeſus the Saviour of the World, in his Life, Death, Reſurrection, Aſcenſion, Doctrine and Miracles: I ſay, if thus to uſe us, is not as black as Hell in Malice againſt us, there can be nothing Black, Helliſh, or Malicious. For the laſt Piece of Railing (as he calls it) [The Impudence of his Wickedneſs, p. 49.] What could it be elſe, to charge the Impiety of Julian and Lucian upon the Light within, and tell the World, That upon the Quakers Principle, they may conclude their Writings as Canonical as the Scriptures of Truth. But this Man ſtudied Perſonal Reflection more than the Cauſe, or he would not have given but five Lines of nine Pages of my Anſwer, and never have conſidered that, as he ought. I could be glad to read one Page of his Vindication, without unneceſſary Reflection, who for a Line and an half of pertinent Rebuke, by him out of ſix Pages of my Anſwer hardly pickt, (and by me fully defended) cries out of my impertinent ſlovenly hard Names, and that genteeler Railing may be learned under an Hedge, where I leave him to be better taught.

But he is very angry I contract his Compariſon of us with the Papiſts in the Matter of Infallibility and Inſpiration thus, “He tells the World, the Papiſts own “Revelation, and the Quakers hold Revelation alſo; therefore the Quakers are “Papiſts, or very near them. Hear his Reply.

Rep. (Pag. 24.) How can I guide W. P*'s Pen, to write Truth in Matter of Fact? If he find ſuch an Argument in my Book, I will be content to be his Bond-ſlave. Can you believe that a Man can be bleſt with Apoſtolical immediate Revelations, for every Thing in Religion, that is not ſo honeſt, as to uſe the very Eyes in his Head?*

Rejoyn. By this we may perceive, it is high Tide with J. Faldo. Firſt, Reader, I deliver not the Words in a different Character from my own, becauſe I did not pretend to quote him: But that it was the Drift of the Compariſon, and ſo no Wrong to his Intention, the Thing it ſelf abundantly proves. The Papiſts hold Revelation, and the Quakers own Revelation; what's the Meaning of theſe two Propoſitions, unleſs it be the Concluſion I drew? But leſt the Man ſhould be believ'd, hear what he ſays himſelf in his firſt Book, (Pag. 63.) It is no little Abſurdity in the Quakers to make Out-cry againſt Popery, while they plant and hug the Root in their own Boſoms. Again, in the ſame Page, It were no hard Matter to prove an Agreement in a Multitude of Particulars between the Papiſts and Quakers.

Beſides all this he brings in a Story (Page 55.) of a certain Romaniſt, who coming into England, and being aſk'd, which of the multitude of Sects came neareſt unto the Roman Church? reply'd, The Quakers. And this J. Faldo ſays, he remembers. How then he ſhould forget, to that Degree of Abuſe, that there is any Argument in his Book to prove the Quakers very near to the Papiſts, who in his Story uſes that very Word to make People believe it, I cannot tell, unleſs his great Deſire to bedirt William Penn tranſported him beyond all Remembrance of what he had writ. I might now demand his Promiſe, of being my Bond-ſlave: But, alas! Proud Man and Inſolent, he is too high for that Office, if ſuch I could accept of: Though I know not how he can come off, unleſs with this Paſſage, Page 57, The Quakers out-go the Papiſts Far; therefore the Quakers are not Papiſts, nor Near them. He thought I made him abuſe us beyond his Intention, and he both intended and abuſed us beyond what I repreſented. If in that I wronged him, he has more Reaſon to Forgive than Revile me.

But how comes it to paſs, that he ſays nothing of my argumentum ad hominem; The Papiſts own a God, a Trinity of Perſons, &c. And J. Faldo owns a God and a Trinity of Perſon, therefore J. Faldo is a Papiſt, or near a kin to one. Would this be Juſt? If not, neither is his Concluſion of Force againſt us. J. Faldo holds ſomething in common with Jews, Turks, Heathens and Papiſts; he would not take it kindly, if we ſhould therefore conclude him, to be all or any of them? But he gave this the Go-by, which ſhews, he ſeeks not the Promotion of Truth, but Diſgrace of his Adverſary, indeed his very good Friend, though his own Indeſerts will not let him believe it.

Chap. V.

CHAP. V.

Of the Scriptures being the Rule of Faith and Life, and Judge of Controverſy.

THE firſt Thing in this Chapter he chargeth me with, is Forgery; Let us ſee how he proves it.

Rep. Pag. 25, 26.) The Charge in my fifth Chapter is, That the Quakers deny the Scriptures to be a Rule of Faith and Life, or a Judge and Determiner of Religious Controverſies; but P. as if he had ſworn not to repeat my Words faithfully, tranſcribes them, That we deny the Scriptures to be a Rule of Faith, and Judge of Controverſies.

Rejoyn. Reader, obſerve the Forgery lies here, that I left out Life, after Faith; and Determiner, after Judge; and Religious before Controverſies: But becauſe that which is the Rule of Faith, is the Rule of Life; and that Judge and Determiner are all one; and that the Controverſies intended, were not about Queſtions in Mathematicks, Philoſophy, Trade, or Law, common or civil, but purely about Religion, I thought it no Forgery to leave out Words not neceſſary, or what from the Nature of the Rule and Controverſy on foot were manifeſtly implied; eſpecially when I made no Advantage to my ſelf by it. But every ſuch little Thing muſt be called by an hard Name, or J. Faldo would have little to write, and but a few to believe his Books.

But to the Point, (avoiding many Occaſions for ſevere Reflection) Perhaps he grants us what we can deſire. For upon my aſſerting, that what was and is more general than the Scriptures, is moſt properly the General Rule, he replies,

Rep.

1673. Part I. Chap. V.

Rep. (Ibid. p. 26.) I never affirmed them to be a general Rule, nor is it that I charge the Quakers for denying; but I charge them with denying them to be any Rule at all of Faith and Life; he miſtakes the Queſtion, and yields my Charge to be their Principle, and pleads for it, p. 54.

Rejoyn. If that be not the Queſtion, how have I granted the Queſtion? Do I plead for his Charge becauſe I plead againſt the Scriptures being the General Rule, Pag. 54. which he ſays is no Part of the Charge, and what himſelf undertakes not to condemn? But ſure I am, if the Scriptures be not the General Rule (as he implies (and thereby cuts his own Throat, and grants to the Quakers the Queſtion, as largely as needs to be) They are not The Rule by Way of Excellency, or the Rule by which God's People in all Ages have walked; for that was and is General: So that the Scripture, upon his own Conceſſion, is but a particular Rule, and therefore muſt be ſubſervient to the Spirit (who is the great Evangelical Rule) as are many other Inſtruments, that have been made Uſe of upon ſeveral Occaſions.

He might have learn'd thus much in Pag. 53. of my Anſwer, where I ſay that we acknowledge the Scriptures to contain many Holy Rules for Godlineſs. I would know of him how that could be, and yet deny them to be a Rule in any Senſe. But we have good Reaſon to deny them to be the Rule of Faith and Judge of Controverſies, which can neither give nor govern Faith, nor Judge of Controverſies, as the many different Perſwaſions in the World fully prove; for then all that have the Scriptures would be of one Perſwaſion, as it is moſt certain, thoſe are, who have, and walk by, the One Spirit.

Wherefore ſince the Scriptures themſelves teſtify to the Spirit, as the great Judge, Rule and Leader, eſpecially under the New Covenant, where the Law is not written on Tables of Stone (much leſs Paper) but of Fleſh, to wit, the Hearts of the Sons and Daughters of Men, the Spirit, and not the Scripture muſt be the Rule of Faith and Judge of Controverſy.

In ſhort, The Scripture cannot try a preſent Motion or Prophecy. Bad Spirits are wholly hid from it. For Inſtance, Paul reproved not the Spirit that cried, Theſe are the Servants of the Moſt High God, that ſhew unto us the Way of Eternal Life, from the Scriptures; neither did Peter, Deceitful Ananias, but from the Heavenly Inſtinct and Savour, Reliſh, or Diſcerning they received from the Spirit of God within them. 'Twas in a Caſe of ſuch Difficulty, that ſome in theſe late Times have writ, That the Scripture gave no general ſtanding Rule (for all particular Caſes) in fleeing or ſtanding in Times of Perſecution, but that it was the Frame of the Spirits of the People of God to retire at that Seaſon; which whether it be true or falſe, that the Spirit of God did ſo influence them, two Things are undeniable; Firſt, That it was the Frame of their Spirits, witneſs their Practice; Secondly, That the Scripture was not ſufficient for them to ſquare themſelves by on that Occaſion; And what elſe do Profeſſors mean, when they adviſe People to ſeek the Lord in this or the other Caſe? Why do they not go ſeek the Scriptures rather? Doth not ſuch a Practice manifeſtly detect the Scriptures of Inſufficiency, and evidently prove their Acknowledgment both of Revelation, and their Recourſe to a more Living, Spiritual, Immediate and Sufficient Rule? Why elſe do they ſeek God's Mind (ſay they) by Prayers not Formal, but by the Spirit? But this is become deſpiſed Hereſy with J. Faldo. For Faith in his Senſe, riſes no higher, than ſo many Articles, laid down (ſuppoſe truly) according to the bare Letter of the Scriptures, which the Devil can believe as well as he: This Faith I call meerly Verbal and Hiſtorical, of which the Scripture may be a Rule, but not of Saving Faith; for of that Faith only the Spirit can be the Rule; and why? becauſe the Spirit of God alone reveals him to the Soul, who is the Object of Faith, and works Faith in the Soul upon that Object; and as this only begets Faith, ſo it increaſes, enlivens, rules, governs and ſtrengthens Faith unto Dominion. This alone unfolds thoſe Myſteries ſpoke of in the Scriptures, Wherefore anſwered the Eunuch unto Philip, when he queried, Underſtandeſt thou what thou readeſt? How ſhould I, unleſs τὶς ὁδηγήσῃ I had a Guide, as ſays our old Engliſh Tranſlation, which implies, That the Things declared of by the Scriptures are not to be underſtood from the Scriptures, but a more Living, Spiritual and Certain Guide. Acts 8. 30,31. Wherefore we affirm, That Repentance, Faith, Sanctification, Juſtification, Redemption, Regeneration, &c. are all a Myſtery never to be diſcloſed, but by the Revelation and Operation of the Spirit of God in Man; the Scripture can only teſtify to ſuch Things, that they are; but it is the Spirit alone that works them, and illuminates, guides, governs and rules the Soul in and about ſuch Things. 'Tis true, all the Spirit leads to is according to the Scriptures; it over-turns them not; for they declare of moſt of theſe Operations; yet becauſe we believe, know and witneſs them from the Conviction and Operation of the Spirit, before we can poſſibly underſtand them in Scripture; therefore the Scripture is but a Declaration, and not the Rule of Faith, &c. And the only beſt Way to determine any Controverſy on foot about Repentance, Faith, Sanctification, Juſtification, &c. is the Judgment of that Spirit which works them; For how can the Scripture, that has ſo many Meanings put upon it, determine which of thoſe Meanings is the true? Let them ſhew me that Scripture that plainly and uninterpretedly tells me, ſuch a Propoſition is True, and ſuch an one is Falſe, that conſiſts only of their additional Meanings; ſuch a new Nick-named People right, and ſuch wrong; and they do their Buſineſs; if they cannot, as it is impoſſible they ſhould, they muſt have recourſe to ſomething elſe to rule and determine; and what can that be beſides that Eternal Spirit, which wrought the true Faith, and ruled the Holy Life of thoſe Ancients, who gave forth this Declaration of Faith and Life?

Can any Man tell another's Mind better than himſelf? or reſolve any Doubt, or clear up any Miſ-underſtanding concerning what is deliver'd, better than he that ſpoke it? To underſtand thoſe Holy Men's Mind, and diſprove them that miſtake it, there is an unavoidable Neceſſity of coming to that Spirit which made it theirs. 'Tis granted, that all true Doctrine is according to Scripture; but the Queſtion is, What is true Doctrine? Scripture is a ſtrong Teſtimony; but what enlightens the Mind reſolves Doubts, and works Faith, and informs, guides and helps the Soul through the whole Work of Converſion, and without which the Teſtimony of Scripture it ſelf is truly an unintelligible and an incredible Thing? This muſt be nothing leſs than the Spirit it ſelf.

In ſhort, The Scripture is not the Rule, but Declaration of Faith and Knowledge; That only muſt be the Rule of Faith, which gave and ruled the Faith of thoſe that gave forth Scripture. And becauſe none can give or work Faith now, but what did give and work Faith then; 'tis not the Scripture, but that which was before the Scripture, even the Spirit of Truth, which was the Author, Rule and Finiſher of their Faith. And if our Faith in this Age be the ſame with the Holy Men's of Old, that gave forth the Scriptures; they are no more our Rule now than they were theirs then, who had a Rule and a Faith before them: But as it was a Declaration of what they believed, knew and witneſſed; ſo it is a Declaration of what we now believe and deſire to know and witneſs. John's Epiſtle was not writ to be the Saints Rule; for he directed them to the Anointing; yet their Faith and Life of which the Anointing was the Rule, was according to John's Epiſtle. Again, The Declaration in Time was after the Faith declared of; but where there was Faith there was a Rule, conſequently that Declaration which was after that Faith and Rule, was not that Rule; ſo that the moſt that can be ſaid againſt us is this: The Scriptures cannot be a Declaration of your Faith, 'till you come to ſuch a Belief of the Truths thereby expreſſed, as they had who writ them; and a great Truth it is. But then ſay we, The Spirit muſt work that Faith, before the Scriptures can be accounted a Declaration of our Faith, or we intereſted in them; And becauſe that Faith has a Rule ſo ſoon as it has a Being, it muſt needs follow, that the Declaration of that Faith cannot be either the Author or Rule of it. Here lies the Miſtake of my Adverſary and many more, that becauſe what a Man does is according or agreeable to a Thing, therefore that is the Rule of the Thing done. To proceed:

For this Reaſon it is, a Conſtraint lies upon us from God to direct and exhort all People diligently to mind that Meaſure of the Holy Spirit, which God hath given them to profit with, as that alone by which Man comes to a certain Knowledge of his Mind and Will, and to do the good and acceptable Thing in his Sight, and that by which his poor labouring Mind is brought out of the Incertainties, numerous Interpretations and vain Janglings Men have peſter'd the World withal; who have darkned Counſel, and bewildred many in their Conſcientious Enquiries after God, drawing out their Minds from the ſeaſoning Principle of Life, inſtead of bringing them nearer to the Lord; for which great and heavy Plagues hang over the Head of this Generation, who make War againſt the Spirit, with the Letter, inſtead of confirming it's Appearance from the Letter; and under Pretence of calling the Scriptures the Word of God, and Rule of Faith and Life, divert People from waiting for the Word nigh unto themſelves, which is the Word of Faith, and gives Life to all that believe and obey it; decrying us as Seducers, and deriding us as Enthuſiaſtick Canters, becauſe we prefer and turn all to the Spirit of Life within: An Out-ſide, Carnal, Envious and Hypocritical Generation, they are.

I will conclude this Head with a Paſſage out of ſome certain Authors, that were never profeſſed nor reputed Quakers.

Dell's Tryal of Spirits. p. 10.

Wherefore they who are true Believers (ſays the firſt) 'and have received Chriſt's Spirit, their Judgment is to be preferred in the Tryal of Spirits, before an whole Council of Clergy-Men. And they only who can try Spirits by the Spirit of God, and Doctrines by the Word of God written in their Hearts, by the Spirit can in Meaſure diſcern all Spirits in the World. And the Spirit of Chriſt, which dwells in all true Chriſtians, cannot deceive, or be deceived, in the Tryal of Spirits. With abundance more to the ſame Purpoſe.

The other brings in Two Objections, frequently made againſt us, and by him pertinently anſwered for us.

Object. 1. 'It is ſaid Iſa. 8. 20. To the Law and to the Teſtimony, if any Man ſpeak not according to this Word, it is becauſe there's no Light in him.

'Anſw. Truth; there is the Law and Teſtimony in the Spirit, as well as in the Letter; The Law of God is in the Heart, there it is written, and there it teſtifies the Truth of God; and if any Man ſpeak not according to this Rule, it is becauſe there is no Light or Morning riſen in him. The ſpiritual Man judgeth all Things, yet he himſelf is judged of no Man.

Object. 2. 'It is ſaid, Gal. 6. 16. That whoſo walketh according to this Rule Peace upon him.

Let him either diſcard theſe Men from being Chriſtians, that were reputed great and refined Profeſſors, before the breaking forth of the People called Quakers; or leave off cenſuring this Part of our Doctrine, as no Part of Chriſtianity.

Nor have we any Ground to believe, that they were intended for the Rule at firſt, ſince they were not given forth all at one Time, (and yet every Age ſtood in Need of ſuch a Rule) but on divers Occaſions, as Miſcarriages in the Churches, threatning of Judgments, Prophecies, Hiſtories, and Comfortings under Afflictions, &c. required: Nor do they carry the leaſt Method or Deſignment of the great Rule with them; here they are Proper, there Figurative; in one Thing Literal, in another Allegorical; without all Definition of Terms, framing of Articles, ſuch Plainneſs and Coherence in Matter, and Intelligibleneſs of Language to all Nations, which may render them ſuch a Rule. Beſides, it is more than probable, that much of the Writings of the New Teſtament are loſt, from Luke's Words, in the Beginning of his Hiſtory, where he tells us, He was but One of the Many, who did ſet forth a Declaration of thoſe Things, which were moſt ſurely believed amongſt them; even, ſays he, as they delivered them unto us, which from the Beginning, were Eye-Witneſſes and Miniſters of the Word. For it muſt be conſidered, when Luke writ his Narrative, that John's Hiſtory was not in being; and ſome will have it, that Luke wrote before Mark: But whether it be ſo or no, certain it is, that Mark and Matthew, could not make up thoſe Many, that took that Work in Hand; neither can we think, he ſhould call Matthew and Mark Πολλόι, which ſignifies with the Athenians, a Multitude; for a certain Learned Man will have it, that no better Greek was ſpoken, than that wherein Luke wrote his Hiſtory.

* Thoſe Famous, Poor, Suffering Chriſtians, the Waldenſes, in the purer Times, beſides many other weighty Points, wherein they ſymbolized with us, in this very Matter are not foreign, who in a Confeſſion, about Five Hundred and Fifty Years old, laid this down as a Peice of their Creed, that the Diſcoveries and Teſtimonies of the Holy Spirit in them, were the moſt convincing Evidence, and infallible Proof of the Divine Authority of the Scriptures. Conſequently the Spirit muſt have been their Judge and Rule concerning their Underſtanding the Truths teſtified by them; as I. P. Perrin their Hiſtorian, in ſo many Words, aſſures us concerning them, in the Beginning of his notable Hiſtory of their Riſe, Doctrine, Sufferings and Progreſs.

That thoſe Narratives were not Apocryphal, but at leaſt of equal Authority, with his Dedicated to Theophilus, his own Words tells us: For thoſe that writ were ſuch as related what they received from Eye-Witneſſes, and the firſt Miniſters of the Word. Beſides which, there were in the Apoſtle's Age, and the two following Centuries, ſeveral Writings, (reputed genuine) Which either dyed out of the World, through that Neglect brought upon them, by the Advantage ſome accounted Hereticks might make of them in Defence of their Opinions; or ſtifled by the Subtilty of the Romiſh Church, being more expreſly oppoſite to her growing Superſtition and Grandeur: And for ſuch Writings as ſtill remain among us, methinks, it ſhould not be unknown to a Man of J. Faldo's Pretences to Learning, how much the Authority of ſeveral of them has been queſtioned; by ſome, and exploded by others, though never by any of us; particularly the Epiſtle to the Hebrews, the Epiſtle of James, ſecond and third of John, ſecond of Peter, Jude, the Revelations; and with ſome, Matthew's Hiſtory it ſelf, has not eſcaped the like Cenſure. Of which, Reader, thou haſt an Account at large, in that Notable French Man Dallæus De uſu Patrum, and a late Diſcourſe mainly directed againſt the Roman Church, entituled Chriſtophori Sandy Nucleus Hiſtoriæ Eccleſiaſticæ. I would not any from hence ſhould repute me ſo Impious, as to endeavour to weaken the Teſtimony of Scripture, or beget any the leaſt Doubt of the Doctrine thereby declared; only upon our Adverſary's Principles, which ſo ſtrongly oppugn'd the Doctrine of Revelation or Inſpiration, I muſt take leave to conclude in his Name, and upon his Principles, that the Word of God is imperfect, and a great Part of the Rule of Faith and Life, and Judge of Controverſie, is loſt, and that he has no more Reaſon to believe the Truth of thoſe great Things related in that Part of the Scriptures yet remaining, than any Legend of Rome: For exclude Revelation, and what Ground has he for his Faith beſides Tradition? And what Evidence can he give us, upon his Principles, of the Truth of the former, and the Falſhood of the latter? Theſe Councils and Synods, who collected and cannonized them, he accepts for one Part, and rejects for the other. Again, he truſts their Judgment in picking and chuſing, and yet rejects their Interpretation; as if it were not ſo difficult to reliſh the Genuine from Spurious Scriptures; as (when rightly diſcerning them to be ſuch) to underſtand them; which is an abſolute Contradiction; For how ſhould they know True from Falſe, and not underſtand the True? That Council which made the Writings of the New Teſtament, Canonical, left out the Revelations as Apocryphal; yet I hope J. Faldo accepts that as heartily and unqueſtionably as the reſt: And that Council which took in the Revelations, and made it firſt Canonical, brought in with it the Books of Tobit, Judith, &c. which J. Faldo I ſuppoſe, with all his Brethren, rejects, as Apocryphal. Thus are meer Men, and the Judgments of ſuch Councils, as he otherwiſe rejects, his Rule for believing the Scriptures that remain to be Canonical (if it be proper to ſay, the firſt is a Rule of his Canon, which is too ſhort, and the other which is ſuperfluous, as by his Account) My next Queſtion is, What was his Rule for believing theſe Councils? I am ſure he muſt have been without all other, than a Willingneſs to believe ſo, becauſe they ſaid ſo; which, how like this is to his Papiſt, unto whom he would reſemble us, let all ſober Proteſtants conſider. I cannot ſee how he is able to oppugn any Thing they ſay upon Tradition, who mounts no higher for his Aſſurance than Tradition, and ſuch too, as reſts moſtly within their Hands. But if it ſhould be granted us, that to know Scripture to have been given forth upon * Inſpiration, Men muſt have Recourſe to Inſpiration, then not

* I find John Faldo often ſcorning Inſpiration, and bringing it into Odium, under the Word Enthuſiaſm, uſed of late to ſignifie Whimſical Pates, or Heads troubled with a Religious Kind of Frenzy; as if he had abandoned the Plea, Enjoyment and Practice of the beſt Separatiſts, whoſe Names he emptily honours, and reſolved to ſet up for a Coffee-Houſe Droll, or a Play-Prophaniſt. To cool his Courage and ſtop his Career, I commend two or three late Diſcourſes to his Peruſal, writ by Men of undoubted Learning, and pretendedly defended by J. F. in his Quakeriſm no Chriſtianity, againſt the People called Quakers. The firſt is D. Patrick, His Friendly Debates. 2d. Fowler, his Deſign of Chriſtianity (never to be anſwered by that angry Man that deſigned it) And W. Sherlock his late Diſcourſe of Jeſus Chriſt, &c. If both Presbyterians and Independents are not throughly and truly charged to be Enthuſiaſts; Men holding not ſo much Councils and Synods, as the Inſpiration of the Almighty, which gives certain Underſtanding, is our Rule in this Caſe; as well ſaith the Aſſembly of Divines, in their Confeſſion of Faith. Chap. 1.

§. 4. The Authority of the Holy Scripture, for which it ought to be believ'd and obey'd, depends not on the Teſtimony of any Man or Church, but only upon God (who is Truth it ſelf) the Author thereof, And ſince J. Faldo himſelf confeſſeth, the Spirit neceſſary to the Underſtanding of the Scripture, which implies the Inſufficiency of the Scripture, to give that Underſtanding of it ſelf, The Spirit muſt be the Rule of our underſtanding the Scripture, as it was before the Rule of our Faith, concerning the Divine Authority of Scripture; for the Light of the Interpreter, and not the Thing interpreted, is the Rule both of Faith and Practice; which is undeniably evident from the reconciling of ſeeming Contradictions: If the meer Letter of the Scripture were to be followed, no Man could ever make them meet in the ſame Truth; the many Different Perſwaſions at this Day about Religion, prove this, whoſe reſpective Authors and Abettors think it no mean Advantage to their Cauſe, that they hold the Scriptures to be their Rule.

But ſuch as come unto the Spirit of God, know and believe the Truth, as it is in Jeſus, David's Key, that opens and none ſhuts, is given unto them; and the Secrets of their God remain with them. This reconciles thoſe ſeeming Contradictions, and leads through the greateſt and deepeſt Truths mentioned in Scripture, without the leaſt Doubt or Stumble: This is the ſuper-excellent Benefit of the New-Covenant Adminiſtration, the Promiſe of the Father, the Inſtructer, Leader, and Comforter of all God's Children; And for a farther Account of which, I refer the Reader to my Book, entituled, The Spirit of Truth Vindicated, from Page 16. to Page 47. and Reaſon againſt Railing, from Page 24. to Page 46.

To prove his former Charge, he produces this Paſſage out of James Nailor, God is at Liberty to ſpeak to his People by the Scriptures, if he pleaſe, and ſo he is at Liberty to ſpeak by another created Thing, as to Balaam, by his Aſs; and becauſe I returned in Anſwer, To all which (ſaid I) he ſays juſt nothing; he replies, As if (ſays he) I were to anſwer the Proofs of my own Affirmation. But that was not all; for, beſide that; it was no Proof; He ſhould have proved it Erroneous or Contemptible, as he ſtiles it, or elſe he doth nothing; To cite, and not to prove the Citation apt to the End, for which it was cited; that is, the Doctrine it contained or abetted, to be Erroneous, is impertinent. What! Is it falſe Doctrine to aſſert, That God is at Liberty to ſpeak by the Scriptures or without them? Or is it to contemn the Scriptures, to ſay, as John Faldo cites J. N, that God doth ſpeak to People by thoſe Scriptures that were given forth by Inſpiration? Or, is it no Proof, that God is at Liberty to ſpeak by any other created Thing, to inſtance the Caſe of Balaam's Aſs? But he will by all means have it, that according to J. N. to take an Aſs or Bible to be our Inſtructor, is of equal Prudence, adding, Theſe Notions, ſays he, being by the Quakers ſucked in; I wonder not that they leave the Teachings of God by the Scriptures, to attend on the Miniſtry of Aſſes. But this indirect Reflection, and unſavoury Abuſe, both ſhews the Vanity and Envy of the Man, and muſt needs beget an Abhorrence of his Proceedings againſt us, in the Heart of every ſolid Reader. It had much better become the Author of poor Robin's Almanack, or the Cobler of Gloceſter, than a Turn'd out Non-conforming Miniſter. J. N's Words I fully vindicated in my Anſwer; his Drift was, to drive off People from this pernicious Apprehenſion, that God's Voice was only to be heard from the Scripture, thereby juſtling the Spirit out of Doors, and confining the Almighty to a certain Inſtrument; and not that he intended to repute a very Aſs of equal Value with the Scriptures; though I do not doubt but the Voice of Balaam's Aſs, was a more immediate and forcible Rebuke with him, than any Scripture then written.

But let this characterize our Adverſary with every Juſt knowing Reader, that he brings J. N's Words that allow ſuch Scripture, as God ſhall pleaſe to ſpeak to any by, to be ſo far a Rule, to thoſe to whom it's directed, in order to prove, That the holding what J. F. condemns us for owning, though leſs juſtifiably; and if more ridiculous Interpretations are not to be found among them, than was ever yet read in any Quaker's Book, I am content to ſuffer J. F's Reproach as juſt (who does not do as he would be done by, his great Scab or Leproſie, and of ſome other of his Fraternity too) for alas, it is at beſt but a Piece of Heatheniſm with him; and a Man may be a very good Chriſtian forſooth, by a New Art of Imputation, found out and accommodated to the Eaſe of Hypocrites, without the Streight and Legal Way of Juſt and Holy Living.

Quakers deny the Scripture to be in any Caſe any Rule at all: But we muſt not expect better Uſage from a Man, who is more perplext at our proving of our ſelves conſiſtent with Truth, becauſe it contradicts his Apprehenſions and Charges exhibited againſt us in Print, than that we ſhould be in the Wrong, though for that Cauſe he pretends to write againſt us. Strange! That he ſhould rather deſire we might be miſtaken, than himſelf be thought to have miſtaken us.

Pag. 28, 29 But he thinks I have greatly wrong'd St. Paul, and I know not why, unleſs it were in ſhowing him to have been guilty of that Fault; for to prove the Scriptures to be the Rule, he brought this Saying of his; And herein, that is, ſaith our Adverſary, [all Things that are written in the Law and the Prophets] do I exerciſe my ſelf, to have a Conſcience void of Offence towards God and towards Men. My Anſwer then was, that he left out that which was more applicable to the Words, as the Place it ſelf evidently proves; [But this I confeſs to thee, (that is, Fælix) that after the Way which they call Hereſie, ſo worſhip I the God of my Fathers, believing all Things that are written in the Law and the Prophets, and have Hope towards God, which they themſelves alſo allow, that there ſhall be a Reſurrection of the Dead, both of the Juſt and the Unjuſt; and herein, ſaith the Apoſtle, do I exerciſe my ſelf, &c.] Where it's evident, that believing all Things that are written in the Law and the Prophets, was not that wherein he ſaid (ſo properly) that he exerciſed himſelf, as in worſhipping the God of his Fathers, not after their Way, and having Hope towards God of the Reſurrection, &c. there lay the Streſs, as is evident from their calling that Worſhip Hereſie, and afflicting him for that Hope which they otherwiſe allowed of. Nay, that very Paſſage he makes the whole Place to bear upon, comes in rather in the Nature of a Parentheſis, than a Principal Matter; His thus dealing with us and the Scripture I call'd a Perverſion, at which he very vainly taunts, as if it could not be a Perverſion, becauſe I confeſs that it ſomewhat relates to the Verſes cited, crying out, This is his Mouſe his Mountain travelled to bring forth: But if to clip a Text be not a Perverſion, or to ſtretch it to what it can never reach, nor ever intended, be not to pervert and abuſe Scripture, certainly there is no ſuch Thing. That he clipped it, is proved; that he miſapplied it, is not leſs evident: For to believe a Thing, is not neceſſarily to make it a Rule; beſides, if the Law and the Prophets were a Rule, becauſe he was exerciſed in them, then muſt his Worſhip and Hope alſo be a Rule, becauſe he was exerciſed in them; but that were improper and untrue. He is Angry that I ſaid, the Apoſtle had out-ſtript the Law and the Prophets, therefore they could not be his Rule, replying, If St. Paul had undertaken a Reply to this Gentleman, he would have undoubtedly laſht him ſeverely for this Wrong done to him and the Truth. But I am not of that Mind; for if he did not out-ſtrip the Diſpenſation of the Law and Prophets, how could he arrive at that State which witneſſed the Fulfilling of the Law and the Prophets; To deny this, is to deny the farther Illumination and Enjoyment of the Day; and according to J. Faldo's own unhappy way of Reaſoning, the Apoſtle muſt not be a Chriſtian; for in denying the Prophets to be Chriſtian, becauſe they were before Chriſt's viſible Appearance, and preferring Chriſtianity ſo much above other fore-going Diſpenſations, as he doth, in not allowing the Apoſtle to have out-ſtript them, he makes the Apoſtle to be no Chriſtian; For which, I will not ſay, he would have Laſht, but Reproved this ignorant Prieſt, as one that knows not whereof he affirms. But hear him yet farther.

Rep. I ſaid, the holy Scriptures determine, according to their kind, as much as a Writing can do. From whence W. P. infers, that it is not ſo determinative of all Caſes as ſomething elſe may be, which is a more living, immediate and infallible Judge than a Writing is or can be; an inference worthy of a poor Scholar, and a conceited Pedant. Is he gone beyond Belſhazzar, *who trembled at ſuch a rate at the Writing on the Wall. Did ever any Man in his Wits affirm the Scriptures to ſupply the Room of Eyes, Skill to read, Underſtanding, Conſcience, and the Aſſiſtance of the Spirit of God, are not theſe in my Book all made neceſſary to render the Scriptures ſuch a Rule and Determiner?

Rejoyn. But why ſuch a trivial Rant for a Reply? and why ſuch hard Words from a Man of his Circumſtances? one on many Accounts ſo near what he repreſents me to be. Is it not true, that if ſomething be more firm than Writing, that which is more firm, and not the Writing, is the Judge and Determiner? Suppoſe a Scripture for every Caſe that ever did or may happen (which we know, there is not, not, and therefore not The Rule) yet if ſuch Scripture need an Expoſition, who is moſt truly the Judge and Determiner, the obſcure Text or the clear Expoſitor? Certainly where the Streſs lies, the Power of Determination muſt be, and there the Judgeſhip reſts, but that is always in the Interpretation, ſince the Difficulty is not about believing the Text, but the Expoſition given of it; therefore the Expoſitor is both Judge and Rule, and not the Text expounded.

And ſince J. Faldo has granted to us the Aſſiſtance of the Spirit for knowing the Scriptures, the Spirit, then, which gives us how to underſtand and believe, and enables us to fulfil them, muſt needs be the Rule and Judge, and no Writing whatever. I ſhall conclude this Point with my Rejoynder to this following Paſſage in his Reply,

Rep. But W. P. hath not done trifling yet, ‘neither is the Law the Judge, but there is a Judge who interprets and ſpeaks from the freſh Diſcoveries of his own Reaſon the Meaning and Intendment of thoſe written Laws. But Mr. Penn, The Judge is the Mouth of the Law, and ſubject to the Law, and preſcribed in his Judgment to that Senſe of the Law which is expreſſed by the Letter of it. If ſome of the Judges had the handling of you, for impoſing your canting freſh Diſcoveries of his Reaſon upon them, they would tell you, they give Judgment from a Deep Study and Weighty Conſideration of the Letter of the Law, and moreover give you ſome hard Names, or worſe, for your canting Law added to your canting Goſpel, * and yet the Light in their Conſciences not give them the leaſt rebuke for ſo doing.

* His Blaſphemy againſt the Light.

Rejoyn. I perceive he meaſures the Judges Diſpleaſure by his own; Indeed they would be very Unfit Perſons to ſit for our Judges, that ſhould be like him; Men that would call hard Names, and do worſe to any Man, for allowing them to be guided by a Living Reaſon, would greatly evidence they had little or none, and therein indeed that we miſcharactered them. But who moſt diſhonours them? I that ſuppoſe them to judge and explain Written Reaſon by the Living Principle of Reaſon in themſelves, or he that renders them ſo many Poſts or Pillars that are to be moved by inſenſible Letters, without relation to any Reaſon inherent to themſelves, and not otherwiſe. But hear my former Anſwer before I farther rejoyn.

pag. 61. ‘His Inſtance about the Law is lame; For the good Laws of any Land are but Reaſon written, or rather declar'd by Writing, which is obliging againſt the * Corruption of a Judge, but not the Reaſon of the Judge; neither is the Law the Judge; but there is a Judge who interprets and ſpeaks from the freſh Diſcoveries of his own Reaſon, the Meaning and Intendment of thoſe written Laws, If the Laws be ſufficient without a Judge, why is there a Judge? If then they are Dark, Obſcure and Doubtful in many Caſes, ſo as to need a Judge and Interpreter, which I call living and immediate Reaſon, ſince the Scriptures are Writings, in which are many Things difficult to be underſtood, it follows that there muſt be an Immediate Living Judge, which muſt be therefore the Spirit of Truth that gave them forth, becauſe none knows the Things of God ſave the Spirit of God. And that thoſe who are the Makers of Laws, are the only Perſons who are fit to judge and determine in Caſe of Difficulty, by a Declaration of their Mind and Intention in any ſuch obſcure Paſſage. In ſhort, Either the Scriptures are not obſcure (a Thing we daily ſee) or if ſo, yet ſufficient, which is impoſſible, or they muſt have a Judge, which is moſt true and neceſſary; and what Judge, but the Spirit of Truth, which leads into all Truth? p. 61, 62.

Now one would have thought, that an Anſwer ſo ſober and reaſonable might have deſerved a Reply more civil and pertinent, than my Adverſary gave me: But I do the leſs wonder at it, ſince he makes it his Practice to give hard Words inſtead of ſolid Anſwers. But to his Reply as it is.

* I would deſire the Reader to take Notice, that the firſt Reformers never intended by their great reſpect to the Scriptures, to eſtabliſh them their Rule excluſive of the Spirit, as moſt do now, W. Kiffin for inſtance; only they did on all Occaſions prefer them, as God's Tradition, to the Place of a Rule, beyond Popiſh Doctors or Councils, which they who know any Thing in theſe Matters are well aſſured to be the Truth of the Caſe. So that they were but a Rule comparatively, as we alſo hold; but by no Means can we allow that they prefer'd the Scriptures to that great Office excluſive of the Spirit; or that Men were not to have their Immediate Dependence upon it's Inſtruction, Diſcoveries, and Revelation, towards Faith and Good Life, So much at this Time.

1673.
Part I.
Chap. V.

Rejoyn. He tells me, * the Judge is the Mouth of the Law, and Subject to the Law. But I would have him conſider two Things; Firſt, that the Scriptures of Truth were never given forth after that formal regular Courſe that the Laws of England were; but to particular Perſons or Churches on particular Caſes, though together with hearty reſpect I acknowledge and enjoy the Benefit of them. Secondly, The Queſtion is not about Things obvious, but obſcure; and herein the Judge is not only the Mouth, but Inrerpreter of the hidden Meaning of the Law; This our Adverſary's own Words import; For if the Law were ſo plain, as only to need a Mouth, what need would there be of deep Study and Weighty Conſideration, which he makes neceſſary to a Judge? the bare reading of the Law would be ſufficient to determine all Caſes; Nay, it would end all going to Law: But inaſmuch as the Laws are both numerous and intricate, as the Vexatious Caſes and Diſputes of our Times fully prove, 'tis manifeſt, that ſome other Judge and Determiner muſt be found out, one that underſtands, compares and rightly applies Law, whoſe Judgment muſt decide and determine the Controverſie. Now though every ſuch Judge may be ſaid to determine according to the Mind of the Law, yet his Interpretation, and not the bare Letter, is recorded for the Determination of the Caſe depending, from whence come our Book-Caſes; Nor indeed is this only referable to any certain Perſon, explaining the obſcure Paſſages of Law, but the Application of the Law to the Fact, in which not only the whole living Reaſon of the Judge is deeply and circumſpectly exerciſed, but the Underſtanding and Conſcience of the Jury, reſpecting the Nature of the Law, the Evidence of the Witneſs, the Heinouſneſs of the Fact, and Variety of Circumſtances, wherein the obnoxiouſneſs to Error lies (according to the Greek Proverb, Περὶ τῶν περιςασέων πλάνη, i. Error is about the Circumſtances) all in order to a definitive Sentence or Determination about the Point handled. Now for any Man to call the written Law the Judge, and not Synterefis, or living ſound Reaſon and Conſcience, in the Judge and Jury, to me ſeems very abſurd.

Beſides, Let it be conſidered, Firſt, that the Law is added becauſe of Tranſgreſſion; and ſuch as live up to that Noble Principle from whence all good Laws come, have an higher Judge and Rule, than any of thoſe written Laws, or any Interpretations of Men upon them; ſo that if J. Faldo compares the Scripture to the written Laws, they who are led by the Spirit have an higher Rule than the Scripture: and as he that lives up according to written Laws, by the Rule of his Synterefis, or Law of Laws, the juſt Principle in himſelf, does not deſtroy but fulfil thoſe written Laws: ſo they that live according to the Rule of the Spirit, do not invalidate, but fulfil the Scriptures. There is no need of Swearing for a Remedy againſt that Man's Falſeneſs, who is come to the Truth-ſpeaking of Chriſt's Righteouſneſs; he that is come up to the greater, does not ſleight, but anſwer, the leſſer. Secondly, I beſeech the Reader to obſerve, that theſe written Laws had once a beginning, and that thoſe that made them were not without a Rule and Judge in themſelves, both before, and in the making of thoſe Laws (neither is that peculiar to them, the Law-makers) I ſtill mean Synterefis, of which many Lawyers ſpeak great Things, particularly a good old Law-Book, called, Doctor and Student, which is not leſſened by thoſe Laws, nor ought any Law to be made, or take hold on any Perſon farther then he acts contrary to that juſt Principle in himſelf; which is called, the Law of Laws, the Immutable Law, by Chief Juſtice Hobart, in his Reports, pag. 87. So that both the Law was made according to this Synterefis, which Synterefis or Law of Righteouſneſs, has not left us with a meer Declaration of it's Mind, ſubject to many Caſualties and Difficulties, but remains in the Heart of Man to inform his Underſtanding and correct his Life; conſequently is the Judge of Controverſie, reſpecting the written Law (about which, and the Application of it, many Times ariſes the Controverſie) muſt not be the written, but this Immutable Law in Judge and Jury, from whence all good Laws proceed. It is a very depraved State indeed that knows no farther Obligation than a Written Law, whereas a great Part of Mankind is free from thoſe Enormities the Law forbids and puniſhes, who yet know not the Letter of the Law; like unto the Gentiles of old, who having not the Law, became a Law unto themſelves, ſhewing the Work of the Law written in their Hearts; which Law Cicero, in his Books of the Commonwealth, cited by Lactant. 6. Inſtitut. 8. calls "Right Reaſon, agreeable to Nature, " given to all, conſtant and eternal, which calls to Duty by commanding, and by " Diſſwaſion deters from Deceit—No other Law may be put inſtead of this; neither is it lawful to derogate any Thing from it; neither can it be wholly abrogated; neither can we be looſed from this Law by Senate or People; There is no other Explainer or Interpreter of it to be ſought; neither will there be one Law " at Rome, another at Athens; one now, another hereafter; but being one Law, Everlaſting and Immortal, ſhould hold all Nations at every Time: And there will " be one, as it were, Maſter and Commander of all, God, that Inventor, Diſpoſer, " and Maker of this Law, to whom he that will not be obedient, muſt fly himſelf, and even in this Thing, muſt ſuffer very great Penalty, though he ſhould " eſcape other Puniſhments. An excellent Place, which clearly explains the Nature and Virtue of this innate Light, ſays Rob. Sanderſon, late Biſhop of Lincoln, in his Oxford Lectures, concerning the adæquate Rule of Conſcience, prol. 4. where he alſo calls it from Calvin, A Spark of the Light of God, that he might have Preachers of his Will in our very Boſoms; and that all other Laws are but ſubſervient to this in the Synteresis, the very Thing that we aſſert concerning the Scriptures being a Rule. Thirdly, I would intreat the Reader to conſider, that ceſſante ratione legis, ceſſat lex, i. e. the Reaſon of the Law ceaſing, the Law ceaſes, is an old Law-Maxim. Now who ſhall be Judge of that, the written Law? By no Means. Yet that prepoſterous Anſwer only can ſuit our Adverſary's Principle. We ſay, Living Reaſon muſt be the Judge. In like Manner did the Spirit of God give his Servants an Underſtanding in paſt Ages, how to behave themſelves with reſpect to thoſe Laws, which were but Temporary, for whoſe Abrogation there was no expreſs Scripture, which the Scribes and Phariſees by neglecting and grieving that Spiritual Leader, and ſticking in the Letter of the Scripture, only continued and maintained againſt Chriſt himſelf, who fulfilled them.

* Note, I have not made any conſiderable Diſtinction between the Rule, and the Judge, from thy Judgment of that little (if any) Difference that is between them. And my Adverſary to his own Confuſion ſeemeth of the ſame Mind; for notwithſtanding he ſeverely and tauntingly reflects on that Paſſage upon me in my former Book, yet in making the Scripture both Rule and Judge, he ſhows to us that the Judge and the Rule are not at ſo great a Diſtance, as his little Skill in Philoſophy would have rendered it. And herein he thwarts Dr. Stillingfleet, and Dr. Tillotſon, who againſt the Papiſts aſſert not the Scripture to be the Judge, but Right Reaſon; And to ſpeak the Truth of it, Nothing can be more abſurd, next to Tranſubſtantiation, than that the Scripture ſhould be the Judge of a Man's Meaning of any part of it ſelf, that is, if it be applied as a Right Rule; ſince in ſuch Caſes of Difference no Scripture ever yet ſpoke clearer than it's firſt Text; and the Queſtion lies not about that, but the juſt Interpretation.

Rom. 2. 14, 15.

To conclude, That which makes Law; That which explains Law; That, contrary unto which no Law ought to be made or obeyed; That which gives to know what is contrary or according to juſt Law; That which gives to apply and execute Law rightly, muſt be the Judge and Superior Rule; But that is this Synteresis, Law of Laws, ſays Chief Juſtice Hobart; Right Reaſon, ſays M. T. Cicero; Innate Light, ſays B. Sanderſon; The Law of God writ in the Heart, ſays Doct. and Stud. Spark of God's Light, ſays Calvin; A Living Rule and Everlaſting Foundation of Virtue, planted in all Reaſonable Souls, ſays Plutarch; God within, ſays Seneca and Epictetus: Conſequently, not any meer written Law can be the Judge and Determiner of Controverſies in Law. This, Reader, holds almoſt all along the ſame with the Scriptures. That the Law is not Judge of the Doubts that ariſe about it ſelf, but another, is already prov'd; and that the Scriptures can no more determine Caſes of Difficulty within themſelves, is as evident by the ſame Argument; and that Judge muſt either be ſome Man endued with the Spirit of God, as in Law Caſes ſome Judge with Right Reaſon, or elſe the Eternal Spirit, as he is univerſally manifeſted in Men. The firſt I ſuppoſe our Adverſary will think too fair a Pretence for Popery to be allowed, and the laſt he can never avoid, unleſs Man without the Spirit of God be able to determine of the Things of God; which were to deny the Scriptures of Truth, the Faith of the Ancients, the Doctrine of the Reformers, and Right Reaſon.

Plut. Dion. Pruſ. Diſ. lib. 1. c. 14. Senec Epiſt. 73.

Thus, Reader, I conclude this Point, and could have been willing to have done ſo long before, had not the great Neceſſity of People's better Information, drawn me into a more free and large Diſcourſe than my Adverſary's very empty Replies could have deſerved at my Hands.

CHAP. VI.

Of our dehorting People from Reading the Scriptures, &c. as charged by this Adverſary.

THough I have ſaid enough to perſwade all ſober Perſons of our reverend Eſteem of the Scriptures, yet am I willing to remove any the leaſt Ground of Scruple by a brief Conſideration of his four following Chapters, in which he would fain maintain his former Falſe and Unadviſed Charges of our holding thoſe Holy Writings in great Contempt. He begins thus,

Rep. My Charge in my Sixth Chapter was, That the Quakers take Men off from reading the Scriptures for Inſtruction and Comfort. Penn objects againſt my firſt Proof, as not having any ſuch Conſequence, Pag. 63. And this is the Meaning of our Doctrine, to bring People to the Everlaſting Word of God in themſelves, Smith. Cat. Pag. 95. beſtowing on me within Eight Lines, (P. 30, 31.) Deeply Ignorant, Malicious, Ungodly, Poſſeſſed by an Evil Spirit, Wretched, Impious, groſly blind, Malignity, Frothineſs, Envy, Impious, Injuſtice.

Rejoyn. If ever Man had to do with an Unjuſt Adverſary, it is my Lot; And let this very Paſſage be the Meaſure. Firſt, What are thoſe Words cited out of William Smith, that prove, we take Men off from Reading the Scriptures? What Reaſon has he urged, or Argument attempted, that were by me employ'd in Defence of the Paſſage, and Illuſtration of our Innocency? Shall this paſs for my Confutation? Muſt my Book be no better anſwer'd? and yet led captive by J. Faldo's meer Pretences, to Wit, Reaſon, Religion and Learning. It's a Shame to Profeſſors of Religion to countenance his Attempts, that maintains his Controverſy with ſo much Weakneſs and ſilly Evaſion. He tells you of my Rebukes, but is as true in that, as Juſt in the reſt; For neither has he given all thoſe Words, which abate that Harſhneſs they ſeem now to carry with them, nor do they lie within the Compaſs of Eight Lines, as he would have you believe; But be they as they are, what Man, not poſſeſſed with a Malicious Spirit, would charge Untruths upon a Body of People, and then lay ſound Expreſſions upon the Rack, if pag. 19. 20 poſſible to extort a Confeſſion of them? Who but one deeply ignorant would repute it an Undervalue of Scripture, to bring People to the Everlaſting Word of God that gave them forth, that only gives to underſtand rightly and eſteem them? And can he be leſs than Impious and Frothy, that ſports himſelf with our ſerious Belief, as well as very Unjuſt, that draws Concluſions our Premiſes will not bear, and then calls them, Charges proved out of the Quakers own Writings.

To give the greater Authority to what I ſaid, I urged the Teſtimonies of Calvin, Eraſmus and Beza, concerning which hear him.

Rep. But (Pag. 64.) he fathers his Error on Calvin, Eraſmus, and Beza. He directs preciſely only to Eraſmus and Beza; in Nov. Teſt. 2 Pet. 1. 19. Beza*'s Words on the Place which I have examined are theſe*, “So it may be taken for the Doctrine of the Prophets; which was to thoſe to whom Peter wrote more without Exception, to whom he may be ſaid to have a Reſpect in this Paſſage. Thus this Man can abuſe Scripture, Reaſon, Reformers all at once.

Rejoyn. If it be an Error, Calvin, Beza and Eraſmus held it, as I will briefly prove. But why muſt Beza's Words be cited, and Calvin not deny'd ſo to have writ, neither Eraſmus by him conſider'd, who of the reſt I moſt preciſely cited? But it made not for his Turn. He ſeems to adventure at my Diſhoneſty, provided it may bring Diſgrace or Weakneſs to the Quakers Cauſe. But to make good my Quotations.

J. Calvin expreſly tells us, Idem ſpiritus qui per os Prophetarum loquutus eſt, in corda noſtra penetret neceſſe eſt, ut perſuadeat fideliter protuliſſe quod divinitus erat mandatum, Calv. Inſtitut. lib. 1. cap. 8. That is, “It is neceſſary, the ſame Spirit that ſpake by the Mouth of the Prophets, ſhould pierce into our Hearts to perſwade us, that they faithfully delivered that which was committed to them of God. What ſays J. Faldo to this?

Now let's to Beza. Our Adverſary ſeems reſolv'd to miſtake me, that he may render me miſtaken. I cited him to one Part of the Chapter and Verſe, and he to another; For my Purpoſe was to prove, that Beza held it to be the Right Way of underſtanding the Scriptures, to have Recourſe to the Everlaſting Word; and he takes a Piece of the Nineteenth Verſe, which related to the Compariſon, Βεβαιότερον, or more ſure Word of Propheſy (which is ſufficiently cleared in my Anſwer to his firſt Book.) But to paſs by this Part of his Diſingenuity, I will ſet down Beza's Words on the 19th Verſe it ſelf thus: Imo quid ſi φωσφόρον vocavit ſolem ipſum, i. e. chriſtum ipſum exhibitum, qui ſimul & ipſa lux eſt, & veram lucem mundo intulit? That is, " Yea, What if he called the Day-Star the Sun himſelf, that is, Chriſt " himſelf exhibited, which both is the Light it ſelf, and brought the True Light " into the World. Then He was to ariſe in the Heart, if He was the Day-Star in the Heart. And on the 20th Verſe of the ſame Chapter, thus: Ut prophetiarum intelligendarum & ad verum ſcopum referendarum rationem ſciant ab ipſo ſpiritu petendam qui prophetis ipſis illas dictavit: That is, " (It was required) that they " might know the Way of underſtanding Propheſies, and referring them to the " right Scope, muſt be ſought or fetcht from the ſame Spirit, which dictated " them to the Prophets themſelves, and more to that Purpoſe.

Now let us come to Eraſmus, by him willingly paſſed over, who on that Place ſays thus in his Paraphraſe, " The Thing that is ſet forth by Man's Device may " be perceived by Man's Wit; but the Thing that is ſet forth by the Inſpiration " of the Holy Ghoſt) requireth an Interpreter inſpired with the like Spirit. Farther rendring the Scripture ſo myſtical and allegorical, as not to be underſtood without it.

Nor ſhall this ſerve me; I will yet add Two or Three Teſtimonies more, and begin with Luther.

Scripturæ non niſi eo ſpiritu intelligendæ ſunt quo ſcriptæ ſunt; i. " The Scriptures are not to be underſtood but by that Spirit by which they were written. Luth. Tom. 2. Fol. 309. a.

Peter Martyr, that famous Italian Proteſtant, teacheth thus, " The Spirit is the " Arbiter, by whom we muſt aſſure our ſelves for underſtanding of the Scriptures, " that thereby we muſt diſcern between Chriſt's Word, and a Stranger's quoting " Chriſt's Words; My Sheep know my Voice, ond follow not a Stranger's: And among many other Scriptures he cites theſe, The Spirit ſearcheth out the deep things of God.—The Comforter ſhall declare all Things that I have ſaid unto you.—The Spiritual Unction ſhall ſhew you all Things. — Again, The Spirit of God reveals the Truth in the Holy Scriptures. Pet. Mart. com. loc. part. 1. cap. 6. Part 2. c. 18.

Laſtly, I find him expreſſing himſelf, in his Oration to the Univerſity of Straſburgh, thus, concerning the Scriptures, " The School of this Philoſophy is Heaven; Moreover, ſaith he, " We muſt remember, that the Teacher hereof is the Holy " Ghoſt.

And Dr. Ames, a great Father of the Independents, and both a Learned and Good Man (his Day conſidered) in his Diſputations againſt Bellarmine, takes this Advantage upon Bellarmine's Acknowledgment, that the Unction, 1 John 2. taught, though not all Things, yet all thoſe Doctrines which they had already received of the Apoſtles, " We require no more, ſays Dr. Ames; the Anointing of the Holy " Spirit doth teach the Faithful to underſtand thoſe Things which they received of " the Apoſtles, therefore to underſtand the Scriptures in thoſe Things which are " neceſſary to Salvation; for thoſe Things thoſe Believers had received of the Apo" ſtles: With much to the ſame Purpoſe in that Chapter. Lib. 1. cap. 5. Theſ. 32.

I could produce many more Teſtimonies from Great and Famous Modern Writers, beſides the Pathetical Expreſſions of a multitude of Martyrs, both Engliſh and Foreign, as well Famous for their Learning, as great Fidelity, that expreſs themſelves fully in Defence of our Aſſertion, " That to bring Men and Women to the " Obedience of the Everlaſting Word, nigh in the Heart, is ſo far from being re" pugnant to, or undervaluing of the Holy Scriptures, as without their Acquain" tance with it, and Conformity to it, they can never be read by any with Inſtruction " and Comfort. But, if God pleaſe, there may be a Time, for our more full Diſquiſition of this Point.

But he thinks to ſupply his Wilful Omiſſion and Diſingenuous Carriage about my Anſwer to the ill Uſe he made of my other Proof, by reflecting upon my Honeſty, in tranſcribing his Second, taken out of our Friend James Parnell's Book, entituled, The Shield of the Truth, p. 10. becauſe I added not theſe Words, Seeking the Living among the Dead, at the End of this Sentence, " By the ſame Light do we di" ſcern him to be in Darkneſs, who putteth the Letter for the Light, and ſo draw " People's Minds from the Light within them to the Light without them. And as if he had fully obtain'd his Will upon us, by making us ſpeak what he untruly ſays we own and practice, he goes on, This needs no Comment to render it's Proof valid; and is out of the Reach of the utmoſt Stretch of Penn's Wit and Confidence, to 1673. rt I. p. VI. to put any Appearance of another Conſtruction upon it. But methinks this Sound renders him very Empty. It muſt be a very plain Caſe, if not ſo much as the Appearance of another Conſtruction can be made upon it, than what he would have it to import; but I am wholly of another Mind, and that there is no Difficulty in making a very free and ſufficient Defence for the Paſſage; I ought to take it for granted, that the whole of his Objection lies againſt the Words I omitted, inaſmuch as he pretends not to reply to my Vindication of the former Part of the Sentence, which was to this Purpoſe, That by turning People to the Light of Chriſt we did not teach them to undervalue, but how they ſhould moſt truly underſtand and value the Scriptures; that the Spirit was more excellent than the Letter, the Power than the Form of Godlineſs, yet both Letter and Form to be reſpected in their Place, and that we only took our Aim againſt ſuch as put the Letter in the Place of the Spirit, thereby keeping People from the Holy Spirit, by which alone the Scriptures are read and underſtood unto Edification and Comfort. My Adverſary, I ſay, taking no Notice of this, I muſt think, he had nothing to ſay, ſaving his Charge of the fore-mention'd Omiſſion. To which thus much; I was not deſign'd; I took and defended the Subſtance of the Paſſage: For I would fain know, what Life is to be had in the Letter, without the Aſſiſtance of the Light or Spirit of Chriſt: If then the Letter is dead without the Spirit, which is Old Proteſtant Doctrine; Can it be any thing elſe than ſeeking the Living among the Dead, to draw People from the Light and Spirit of Chriſt within, to ſeek for Life in the meer Letter without; for ſo the Queſtion ran. This was the State of the Jewiſh Church in her Apoſtacy, and is the Condition of Thouſands at this very Day, who under Pretence of Honouring the Scriptures, deſpiſe, grieve, and in a Senſe quench the Spirit that gave them forth, for which God is wroth with the falſe Chriſtian, and his Religion and Worſhip is an Abomination in his Sight: and great and ſudden will be their Diſtreſs; for his Indignation is kindled, and his Fury ready to be revealed; and in that Day ſhall ſuch lofty Boaſters as my Adverſary be brought low, their Spirits faint, and Hearts fail within them; at what Time the Light, Spirit and Life of Jeſus ſhall be unto all that truſt therein, a Rock of Everlaſting Strength, an immoveable Foundation and Sanctuary full of Comfort, Peace and Joy for ever. And indeed this Thing doth ſo deeply affect my Soul, that I cannot refrain from crying. Wo, Wo, Wo, againſt all ſuch Watchmen of the Night, who rack their Wits for Tales and Stories, to ſcare well-meaning and devout People from the Enjoyment of the Life, Virtue and Subſtance of the Scriptures, Nick-naming that only Way by which ſo great and heavenly Benefit can ever be procured (I mean the Inſpiration of the Almighty) with ſuch hateful Terms, as Enthuſiaſm, Quakeriſm, Familiſm, a more refined Sort of Ranteriſm, &c. and what elſe may keep them in their Snare, ſtop their Enquiry, and render the Living Eternal Truth of God odious in their Sight; better were it for ſuch that they had never been born, than under Pretence of being Miniſters of the Goſpel, to murder the Life and Spirit of it, eſtranging the Minds of People from that unchangeable Covenant, inſtead of intereſting them in it, thereby manifeſtly depriving their Souls of Bleſſed and Eternal Privileges. They are like Troops of Robbers indeed, as the Prophet anciently Hoſ. 6. 9. said, they murder'd by Conſent, moſt of them combining againſt the indwelling Life of Jeſus, and immediate Springings and Flowings forth of his Spirit in the Hearts of his Children: Let it never be forgotten, that the firſt Murderer was a Sacrificer, and the deadlieſt Perſecutor a Phariſee. Nor has there been a more Venomous, Enrag'd, Blood-thirſty Generation of Men, than the Formal Literal Profeſſor, who ever call'd God Father, and Chriſt Beelzebub, who crucified his Son, and perſecuted the Apoſtles, reputing them Mad-Men, that is, Phanaticks or Enthuſiaſts, Seditious Fellows, Sect-Maſters, Introducers of New Doctrines, Innovators upon the Church, Turners of the World up-ſide down, in fine, Deſpiſers of the Writings of the Law and the Prophets, while they themſelves thought to have Eternal Life therein, being of the Circumciſion, Sons of Abraham, and Children of the Promiſe. O! that theſe of our Day might repent, which thoſe of that Day did not, leſt neglecting God's preſent Viſitation, (neither entring themſelves, nor ſuffering others to enter into the bleſſed Reſt) the miſerable Doom of that Hard-hearted Generation overtake them, and that ſpeedily.

CHAP. VII.

Of Scripture-Commands, what are binding, and what not. Our Adverſar Diſingenuity obſerv'd.

BUT however, he has fail'd in his laſt Chapter, doubtleſs he thinks he has done my Buſineſs in this; he begins like himſelf. Pag. 34.

Rep. My Charge and Argument in this Chapter is, The Quakers affirm the Doctrines, Commands, Promiſes, Holy Examples expreſſed in Scripture, as ſuch, not to be at all binding to us; ſuch an Argument, and ſo proved by me (mark Reader) as a Thouſand Penns can never invalid it.

Rejoyn. What can there be more conceited than this? He muſt live very lonely and far from Neighbours, that proclaims ſo much Praiſe to himſelf, and has the wonderful Confidence to bid Defiance ſo vainly to others.

Reader, I beſeech thee, for the Truth's Sake, on whoſe Side ſoever thou ſhalt find it to be, to examine with all Impartiality his Charge, our Anſwer; his Reply, and our Rejoynder: If his Honeſty, Reaſon and Juſtice hold any Proportion to his great Confidence, we yield; But if upon an Impartial Conſideration he ſhall be found to clip and pervert our Matter, and to ſhuffle with us in his own, once do a poor People Right, in giving Judgment againſt his horrible Injuſtice.

The Charge thou haſt heard; the Proof was this, That is no Command of God to me, what he commanded to another: Did any of the Saints which we read of, act by that Command which was to another, not having the Command to themſelves, &c. Ed. Bur.

Now before I give my Anſwer, as it was ſet down in my Book, I ſhall inſert his Quotation of my Anſwer.

Rep. (Pag. 34, 35.) To this ſaith P. I anſwer briefly and plainly, and he is as good as his Word. No Commands, ſaith he, in the Scripture, are any farther obliging upon any Man, than as he finds a Conviction upon his Conſcience, otherwiſe Men ſhould be engaged without, if not againſt, Conviction; a Thing unreaſonable in a Man.

Rejoyn. He has a notable Way of contracting his Adverſary's Anſwers; I will ſet down what I writ, faithfully, plainly and briefly.

(Pag. 71, 72, 73.) "Edward Burroughs's Expreſſion may be taken two Ways, " and both ſafe enough to the Honour and Credit of the Scripture, though not " to the Charity or Honeſty of J. Faldo. Now follows that Part he cited. " No " Command in the Scripture is any farther obliging upon any Man, than as he " finds a Conviction upon his Conſcience, otherwiſe Men ſhould be engag'd with- " out, if not againſt, Conviction, a Thing unreaſonable in a Man; Therefore the " Apoſtle, when he wrote to the Churches, exhorted them, not to do thoſe things " whereof they were aſham'd, to ſhun what was manifeſted to be Evil; and " affirms, that whatever might be known of God was manifeſted within, for God " had ſhewn it unto them. So that Conviction can only oblige Obedience: and " ſince what works that Conviction is the manifeſting Light, univerſal Grace, or " quickning Spirit in the Hearts of Mankind, it follows, that the principal Ground " for our Faith in the Scriptures, and Reaſon of our Obedience to the Holy Precepts " therein contained, is the Manifeſtation, Conviction, and ſecret Drawings of the " Light or Spirit of God in the Conſcience. And thus E. B's Words are ſound and " ſcriptural. Again, Such Commands either relate to Ordinary or Extraordinary " Caſes. By Ordinary Caſes, I mean ſuch as chiefly concern Faith nnd Holy Life, " which are general, permanent and indiſpenſible; and then I deny his Conſe- " quence. By Extraordinary Caſes, I underſtand Moſes's Going to Pharoah, the " Prophets ſeveral Manners of Appearance to the Kings, Prieſts and People of Iſrael, " with other Temporary Commands relating to outward Services, &c. And ſo we ſay, " that what is commanded One Man, is not binding, as ſuch, upon another: But " when the Lord ſhall ſay, If thou ſinneſt thou ſhalt die; If thou keepeſt my Com- " mandments thou ſhalt live; Be ye Holy, for I the Lord thy God am Holy; ——For " your ſelves know ye not how ye ought to follow us, &c. I ſay, theſe Precepts and " Examples are obliging upon all; why? Becauſe they more or leſs meet with a " Conviction in the Conſciences of all; For I am perſwaded, none that has a rea- " ſonable Soul, who has not out-liv'd his Day, but would readily ſay, Theſe are " true

1673. “ true and weighty Sayings; For Faith in God, and a holy ſelf-denying Life, are “ neceſſary both to Temporal and Eternal Happineſs.

Part I. Chap. VII. That was, Reader, to this ſober Anſwer he flung out his fore-going Rant, and to make his following Comment and Reply, viz. ſays J. Faldo, in Rep: They are no Commands unleſs we think ſo. 'Tis no Sin to break all the Commands in the Bible, if our Conſciences can be ſo blind, dead or hardned, as not to tell us, 'tis a Sin. They who thought they did God good Service in killing his Servants did not ſin in the leaſt, becauſe they were not convinced of a Command to the contrary. To vindicate my whole Chapter concerning the Scriptures. 'Tis a Principle that hath all Iniquity in the Womb of it. Who can find Names for ſuch Impious Principles? Penn hath oppoſed, ſcorned the Truth, vilified it's Teachers and Defenders, ſo as ſcarce ever Man did; vented the moſt pernicious Errors, told abundance of thoſe Things that are known to himſelf to be falſe.

Rejoyn. Reader, This is all the Juſtice and Reaſon I can have, from this pretended meek and ſuffering Non-conforming Parſon. What would ſuch Men do, had they as much Power as Anger? But I ſhall leave him with his Pride and Paſſion. Is there any Thing more clear than that he extends the Words of E. Burroughs, to Ordinary Caſes, which were wholly writ about Fxtraordinary; and that he takes no more Notice of my Diſtinction, than if there had been none made? As if it had been formerly an equal Sin, for any not to be Circumciſed, and to murder his Father or Prince; or that there was the ſame Conviction univerſally upon the Conſciences of all Men, not to wear Linſey Wolſey, as to do by others, as they would have others do to them. Levit. 19. 18, 19

That what we ſay, was E. Burroughs's Meaning, his own Words undeniably prove. ‘ One, ſays he, was ſent to Baptize, and another to Preach the Goſpel: Which were particular and extraordinary Commands. He clearly ſhuffles and evades the Dint of my Anſwer, and would run us within the Borders of Rantiſm. The Queſtion is not, Are God's Commands no Commands, unleſs we think ſo, and therefore no Sin to break all the Commands in the Bible (which is the Comment he beſtows upon us) but whether this or that ſpecial Injunction, to any particular Perſon or Perſons, to this or that particular End, be warrantably imitable, without ſufficient Conviction and Commiſſion: Muſt J. F. baptize, becauſe John baptized? or turn Preacher becauſe Peter was one. E. B. Only denied Imitation of Ancient Times, in Temporary and Shadowy Services, and all thoſe Preachings, Prayers, Ordinances and Churches, that have not (as Peter Martyr well expreſſes) the holy Spirit for their Root. So that inſtead of his holding a Principle, that hath all Iniquity in the Womb of it, John Faldo firſt perverts his Words, and then to confute them, both implies a Denial of the holy Spirit to be the only right Leader to the Performance of Goſpel-Prayer, Preaching and Ordinances, and of gathering of Evangelical Churches, and does as good as tell us, that God's Commandments are ſuch to him, not becauſe of any Conviction in himſelf, of the Juſtneſs of them, but from the Teſtimony of the Scriptures, which for all his high Boaſts of Chriſtianity, is a State far beneath thoſe noble Gentiles, who not having an outward Law, were a Law unto themſelves, having the Effect of it written in their Hearts, their Conſciences, bearing Witneſs, &c.

And this we may boldly ſay, that ſuch as ever acted from that inward Senſe, never thought they did God good Service, in killing his Servants; whilſt great Admirers of the Letter of the Scriptures, and who, as concerning this Commandment, Thou ſhalt not Murder, thought themſelves moſt unblameable, believed, they did God good Service in killing his Servants.

Nor can I think it ſo great a Diſgrace to our Cauſe, that we ingeniouſly profeſs the Reaſon, why we deſire to fear God, and keep his Commandments, doing unto others, as we would have them do unto us, not ſo much to be from the Letter of the Scripture, as the Convictions of the Eternal Light and Spirit of God in our Conſciences; As it ought to be unto John Faldo and his Adherents, who ground their Obedience upon the Letter of the Scripture; and not upon ſuch internal Convictions. What is it but to ſay, They could Lye, Swear, Steal, Kill, &c. without any Remorſe, did they not find ſuch Injunctions and Prohibitions upon Record? A Conſequence ſo deteſtable, yet ſo natural to their Principles, that if this render them not able Guides to the very Confines of Rantiſm and Atheiſm, I ſhall gladly aſk an Excuſe for my Ignorance, but that I may leave nothing undone, that may compleat the Satisfaction of every moderate Inquirer, I ſhall farther weigh and rejoyn to theſe Words of his, They who thought they did God good Service, in killing his Servants, did not ſin in the leaſt, becauſe they were not convinced of a Command to the contrary; nor the Idolaters in the Caſe of Baal, becauſe they thought Baal to be a God indeed.

Now Reader, obſerve the Evaſion: This Paſſage relates not to Men's practiſing what God commands, or our Tenderneſs in imitating other Saints withont Commiſſion, for Fear we ſhould offer ſtrange Fire, which is our Queſtion; but their doing that which God never commanded, yea, which Mankind in all Ages hath adjudged impious, and which to be ſure, his Holy Spirit, that E. B. ſaid, All Men ſhould wait to be convinced, aſſiſted and led by in fulfilling God's Commandments, never moved any to. He unworthily draws a general Concluſion againſt us from meer particular Premiſes. It ſeems Men are to act without, if not againſt Conviction, upon his Principle; and it is the ſame Thing with him, to commit moral Enormities, from an hardned Heart, and to be tender of taking up an external Practice, or performing ſome Religious Duty, without the Convictions and Leadings of the Holy Spirit. The Apoſtle ſaid to ſuch, as had not as yet ſo full Clearneſs as others; That if any were otherwiſe minded, God would reveal it. He did not injoyn them, during that Scruple, to believe or practiſe the Thing doubted; but did Perſecutors therefore act inexcuſably in their fiery Zeal, becauſe their blind Conſciences checkt them not. Again, if Blindneſs came from Education, it is (though Blindneſs ſtill, and therefore it was baſely done of J. Faldo, to ſay in our Name, that it is not Sin in the leaſt, &c.) more excuſable: for in the Days of ſuch Ignorance God winks: But if it be a Blindneſs, proceeding from long Diſobedience and Rebellion, againſt Convictions and Strivings of the good Spirit of God, as his Word Hardned implies, then, I ſay, it is not only very heinous in God's Sight; but thoſe Perſons can never be excuſed, neither from great Guilt, nor the Senſe of it in themſelves, let them or J. F. talk never ſo much of Conſcience.

Philip 3. 15.

Beſides, the moſt Eſſential, and univerſally neceſſary Commands of God, were through all Ages confeſt to; both before there was any of thoſe Writings, we rightly call the Scriptures of Truth, from the Law of Nature, as many ſtile it, or rather, the Law God placed in Man's Nature, and ſince, where they have never been; Therefore, whatever particular hardned and ſeared Conſciences may ſay, we have the Conſent of Mankind, and their own Rebellion and Lewdneſs againſt them. But the Words of J. Faldo in plain Terms import, as if, 1*ſt*. Men were not generally convinced of the Righteouſneſs of the moral Commands of God; but that Men keep them becauſe they are in the Bible only, which runs againſt the Teſtimony of Scripture, the Conſent of Ages, andthe Writings and Judgment of the moſt Honeſt and Learned Proteſtants. 2d*ly* As if it were a like Evil, Conſcientiouſly to forbear Running, Willing and Striving in Matters of Worſhip, without the Spirit's Conduct, and ſearedly to plead for the Commiſſion of Murder and Idolatry, becauſe Men of ſuch Conſciences boggle not at it, (though that is more, than J. F. can prove; I mean, that they have no Stroak or Remorſe) 3*ly*, As if we could Worſhip, Preach, gather Churches, and adminiſter Goſpel-Ordinances aright, without the Spirit. 4*ly*, That he is not Convinced by any other Teſtimony, than the Scripture without, of any Tranſgreſſion againſt God's Law. 5*ly*, It ſuppoſes, that if Men ſtay'd till the Spirit mov'd, they ſhould ſtay long enough (who vainly prate of praying by the Spirit, notwithſtanding) never conſidering that the Spirit ſtandeth ready, to reveal it ſelf to their Aſſiſtance and Aſſurance who wait for it; and that all the Children of God are led by the Spirit of God; which being our Poſition, had it been but weighed by this Adverſary, he could not (methinks) be ſo unjuſt in his Aggravations.

'Tis true, ſhould we believe as he doth, the Spirit is not to be waited for now adays to lead us, or that, it is not ready to our Information, when we wait for it's Diſcoveries and Leadings, our Aſſertion would look very abſurd and looſe; for it were to let fall all Worſhip, but not upon our own Principle, as I ſaid before; for firſt, all Worſhip to God ought to be performed by the Aſſiſtance of his holy Spirit; for of our ſelves we can do nothing that is Good: And Secondly, God's Spirit is ready to aſſiſt, inſtruct and comfort thoſe that wait diligently and patiently for it; yea, God has given it to the Rebellious, that it may judge them, if it don't lead them. It is ſuch Proteſtant Doctrine, that I wonder Men ſhould not know their admired Anceſtor's Faith, when they meet it: O great Degeneration into Hardneſs and Ignorance! Laſtly, There is the ſame to be ſaid againſt Him, that pretends to ground all upon the Scripture, that he objects againſt us, who plead for the Conviction of Conſcience, which the Inſtance of the Jews Murder of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt, unanſwerably proves; There was a Law, that Blaſphemers ſhould be put to Death; By this Law they apprehended Jeſus, adjudged, and got him to be executed: Theſe Men above any Age exalted the Scripture as the only Rule. Where lies the Miſtake? Not in the Scripture, but in their blind and envious Application of it. Now I aſk, if the only Way for them to have come to the true Senſe and Knowledge of him, and eſcaped that Wicked Murder, and the deplorable Conſequences of it, had not been to have waited upon God, for the Convictions Diſcoveries and Guidance of his Holy Spirit; ſince Fleſh and Blood, and the utmoſt Wit of Man, with the Exactneſs of the meer Letter of the Scriptures, could never give unto that Generation, the certain Diſcerning, Knowledge and Savour of him, whoſe very Words themſelves were Spirit and Life? It was by a Divine Touch, Senſe and Knowledge given from above, that he was truly diſcern'd, own'd and follow'd of thoſe that believed in him, and cleav'd to him; therefore ſaid Chriſt, No Man cometh to me, but whom my Father draweth: Where was that Drawing but within. Again, Simon Peter, Fleſh and Blood hath not revealed, (what? Who I am) but my Father that is in Heaven. So that at laſt, Men muſt come to this Spiritual Senſe in themſelves, to underſtand and apply the very Commands of Scripture; otherwiſe not Juſtice, but deteſtable Murder, may under the Name of it, be confidently perpetrated; wherefore we exhort all, to have Recourſe to God's Spirit, that illuminates certainly, and gives to act unblameably, by which the Scriptures are only underſtood as they ſhould be, and People brought into the Poſſeſſion of that Life of Righteouſneſs, they plentifully declare of. Had it not been for this inward Diſcerning, there had been no Ground for the Aboliſhment of the whole Jewiſh Service, which follow'd ſome Years after Chriſt's Aſcenſion. And it is the ſame Eternal Spirit that is the great Rule and Judge now, which God promiſed more particularly to ſhed abroad in the latter Days; and is the great Privilege inſeparable from the New and Everlaſting Covenant.

But to conclude, why ſhould it ſeem ſo Heterodox in J. Faldo's Judgment, ſince if Men believe the Scripture, upon the Teſtimony of the Spirit, they practice it, by the Knowledge and Power of the ſame; How elſe could Paul have decry'd Jewiſh Ceremonies; or we know what to take and what to leave? Or why do we admit any Command therein mentioned? They Circumciſed, therefore muſt I Circumciſe? They Baptized, muſt I therefore Baptize? With forty more particular Caſes, wherein nothing can ſecure any from the Imitation of them, ſet Conviction and Spiritual Diſcerning aſide. I will offer two or three Teſtimonies from approved Men in our Defence.

W. Tindal's Works, pag. 319, p. 80.

William Tindal, that ancient faithful Proteſtant Martyr, whom J. Fox, that writ the Books of Martyrs, calls, The Engliſh Apoſtle, ſpeaks thus, That it is impoſſible to underſtand in the Scripture more than a Turk, for whoſoever (or any that) hath not the Law of God writ in his Heart to fulfil it. Again, Without the Spirit it is impoſſible to underſtand them.

Biſh. Jewel contr. Hard. p. 532, 534.

John Jewel, Biſhop of Saliſbury, in his excellent Book againſt the Papiſts, writ above One Hundred Years ago, ſays thus to our Purpoſe, 'The Spirit of God is 'bound neither to Sharpneſs of Wit, nor to abundance of Learning: Oftentimes 'the Unlearned ſee that Thing, that the Learned cannot ſee. Chriſt ſaith, I thank 'thee, O Father, Lord of Heaven and Earth, that thou haſt hid theſe Things from 'the Wiſe and the Politick, and haſt revealed them unto the Little Ones. Therefore Epiphanius ſaith, 'Only to the Children of the Holy Ghoſt all the Holy Scriptures are 'plain and clear. Again, 'Fleſh and Blood is not able to underſtand the Holy 'Will of God, without Special Revelation. Therefore Chriſt gave Thanks unto his 'Father, and likewiſe opened the Hearts of his Diſciples, that they might under'ſtand the Scriptures. Without this ſpecial Help and Prompting of God's Holy 'Spirit, the Word of God is unto the Reader, be he never ſo wiſe or well learned, 'as the Viſion of a Sealed Book.

Now unleſs Men are bound to do what they do not underſtand how to do, then only are they to do them when they are Revealed or Diſcovered to them, which being by the Spirit only, according to their Doctrine, the Teſtimony and Diſcoveries of the Spirit are required to our underſtanding of the Scriptures, which implies and comprehends a Diſcriminating Knowledge, or certain Diſcerning of what we ſhould practiſe, from what is not obliging upon us to practiſe, and conſequently, that we ought not to run head-long without ſuch Knowledge.

T. Collier's Works 247.

T. Collier, an Ancient and Eminent Man among the Weſtern-Separatiſts of our Nation, writeth thus: 'For me to ſpeak of God, becauſe another ſpeaks of him, 'and to be able to talk much of God, as I read of him in Scripture, Not being made

‘ One in the ſame Truth, I ſee and ſpeak But what another hath ſpoken; and ſo ‘ may ſpeak truly ſometimes of God, but it is by Hear-ſay, Another Man's Truth, ‘ but not mine: So, I doubt, many a Soul Boaſts in another Man's Light. — — Again, ‘ I ſee that external Acting, according to a Rule without, is nothing, if not ‘ flowing from a Principle of Life and Love within. Which is more than E. B. ſaid, of whom J. Faldo (with unworthy Reflection and baſe Wreſtings) hath ſaid ſo much.

Thus much of Sober Rejoynder, and much more than my Adverſary's Scurrilous Reply deſerves; but the Concern I have for the Information of others, drew this from me. I ſhall paſs by his Ranting Strain againſt us at the Top of his 36th Page, deſiring to keep cloſe to the Buſineſs; and where I may, without breaking his Matter, avoid troubling the World with a Tranſcript of them, I am very careful to do it: But this next Particular (as many more) being little elſe; and ſince he ſuggeſts thereby an Untruth with great Confidence againſt me, I ſhould wrong both the Truth and my ſelf in omitting it.

He charged us with Denying the Scriptures to be any Means to know God, Chriſt, or our ſelves; for which he quoted W. Smith's Primmer, pag. 2. becauſe he there tells the Queſtioner, That Chriſt is the Only Way; to which J. Faldo anſwered, That though Chriſt ſaid, No Man can come to the Father but by me, yet he did not ſay, that there is no coming to the Knowledge of God but by Chriſt; ‘ thereby making, as ‘ I obſerved in my Return to him, a Difference between coming to the Father by the ‘ Son, and to God by Chriſt, though no other Name be given under Heaven, than ‘ the Name of Jeſus Chriſt, &c. That we never deny'd the Scriptures to be a ‘ Means in God's Hand to Convince, Inſtruct, or Confirm; nor could this be W. Smith's ‘ Meaning, ſince he would thereby have Cut off all Benefit from accruing to People ‘ by his Books, and alſo that Miniſtry he had receiv'd of God. In ſhort, from our Denying that there is any other Way to the Father but Chriſt, he concludes, that we exclude the Scriptures, and conſequently our own Books and Miniſtry with them, from being any Way Inſtrumental of Good: However, if I have err'd, it was in good Company, and that J. F. muſt acknowledge; for worthy W. Tindal, p. 80. of his Works, and H. Bullenger, a Learned and Famous Reformer, in Switzerland, in his fourth Decad. and eighth Sermon, dedicated to King Edward the Sixth, accord with me in the Matter. The former thus; Without the Spirit it is impoſſible to underſtand them: Then ſay I, They are not a Means to know God Savingly without the Spirit. The other ſays plainly, Men fetch the underſtanding of Heavenly Things, and Knowledge of the Holy Ghoſt from no where elſe than from the ſame Spirit. This hits the Mark: But to proceed. Of all this, and Two whole Pages more, he cites but two Lines and an half, included in what I re-cited, on which he beſtows this Notable Reply.

Rep. (Pag. 36.) This might look like an Argument for his Meaning, if it concerned almoſt any but the Quakers, who aſſert nothing almoſt but with a Contradiction. I ſhould think it as hard a Taſk to reconcile the Quakers to themſelves, as to make the Poles to meet, or to dig through the Earth with a Spade to the Antipodes.

Rejoyn. Yes, J. Faldo, it concerns W. Tindal and H. Bullenger, thou ſeeſt, as well as the Quakers. But did ever any Man not miſerably baffled, put off ſuch ſerious Matter with ſuch vain Reflections and Pedantick Similes? Will nothing ſerve the Man's Fancy beſides Poles and Antipodes? Muſt the Quakers needs contradict, to ſave him from the Diſcredit of foully belying them? They are there, it ſeems, to oppoſe one another, where they will not harmonize to his End. Certainly this Reflection can never be conſiſtent with J. Faldo's own Practice, who in a Book of nigh thirty Sheets, writ wholly againſt the Quakers, pretends to confirm his many infamous Charges by Scores of Teſtimonies, cull'd out of many of their own Books, which muſt be Unanimous, or they prove not his Charges, as he calls it; nay, he has again and again brag'd of their Harmony to his Purpoſe. Thus are we in higheſt Concord, when he thinks it makes for his Deſigns; and when againſt them, as oppoſite as the Poles. But bleſſed be the Lord, we have receiv'd that One, Eternal Spirit, by which we have been Baptiz'd into One Living Body, and are of One Heart, One Mind, and One Senſe, concerning the Myſteries of God's Everlaſting Kingdom: But as our Adverſary has ſaid nothing Sober or Rational to what I anſwer'd in Defence of W. Smith's Words, ſo would he make the World believe I dared not to encounter with one of his Teſtimonies. Hear him.

Rep. I produced many Teſtimonies to prove my Charge, which Penn dares not deal with, nor bring to Light; take two of them: “ Matthew, Mark, Luke and John are “ not the Goſpel, but the Letter. The next, Hebrew, Greek and Latin, is nothing “ worth, as pertaining to the Knowledge of God, J. Higgens's Warning, pag. 7.

Rejoyn. That he ſo ſuggeſts, as I ſaid, his own Words prove; yet that I did examine ſome of his Teſtimonies is undeniable; and to let him ſee I dare handle theſe without fearing they ſhould bite me, I ſay, and that not without very good Seconds, They are not the Goſpel: I mean, Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, or their Hiſtories; for, the Goſpel of Chriſt is the Power of God unto Salvation, ſo are not the Scriptures. The Goſpel is Everlaſting, ſo are not the Scriptures. John ſaw the Angel flying in the Midſt of Heaven, having the Everlaſting Goſpel to Preach, which could not be the Scriptures. The Goſpel was Preached before the Scriptures were written; therefore the Scriptures cannot be the Goſpel. The Goſpel is but One; but after this Man's Reckoning there ſhould be Four; therefore they cannot be the Goſpel: Which is farther proved from the Signification of the Word Goſpel, to wit, Glad-Tidings, which are to be underſtood of the Coming of HIM, that was the Saviour of the World, of whoſe Bleſſed Appearance and wonderful Tranſactions, theſe Scriptures are but the Narratives. Beſides, one of their Authors (Luke) expreſly calls them a Declaration, conſequently not the Goſpel thereby declared of; which Definition Peter Martyr, that Superintendent Reformer in England, chuſeth of all other, Part 1. Chap. 6. of his Common Places. Tertullian calls the Scriptures, Inſtrumenta Doctrinæ, i. e. Inſtruments of Doctrine. And the New-Teſtament Writings, Evangelicum Inſtrumentum, i. e. An Evangelical Inſtrument. And Matthew he calls, A Faithful Commentator of the Goſpel. Chryſoſtom being requir'd to Swear upon the Goſpel, both denied thoſe Hiſtories to be the Goſpel, and to Swear at all. And Dr. Featly * will not acknowledge the Engliſh Bible to be the Authentick Word of God, becauſe of Corruption, conſequently not Authentick Goſpel, therefore not the Goſpel, for that is Authentick. I hope then I may without Offence, in Defence of the Truth, and that Honeſt Man (now at Peace, yet) ſo ſeverely reflected upon, conclude, that Matthew, Mark, Luke and John are not the Goſpel, but the Letter, or Declaration of the Goſpel.

De Præſcr. Hæretic. adver. Marcion. lib. 4. De carne Chriſti.

* Againſt the Anabaptiſts. p. 1.

For his ſecond Proof, viz. “ That Hebrew, Greek, and Latine is nothing worth “ as pertaining to the Knowledge of God; I ſee no Error nor Blaſphemy in ſo Innocent an Aſſertion. This is ſo like the catching at Twigs by drowned Men for Safety, that no Man, not as Deſtitute of Succour, would boaſt of the Evidence of ſo Speechleſs a Witneſs. There is not One Word it can Speak on the Behalf of his Charge. He is fled from the Scriptures to meer Language, and makes that a Letter indeed, which one would think he took juſt now for all Spirit, perhaps with this Diſtinction though, That the Scriptures may be the Goſpel in Hebrew, Greek and Latin, but by no Means in the Engliſh: What becomes of the Vulgar then? But what can there be more Sottiſh, than for a Proteſtant at this Time of Day, to talk of Knowing God by Hebrew, Greek, and Latin; but above all, 'tis unpardonable in an Independent Prieſt, to write at this Rate, whoſe Folk for theſe Threeſcore Years, have Totidem Verbis, in expreſs Terms, Deny'd the Knowledge of all, or either, of thoſe Tongues to be neceſſary to the Knowledge of God.

Alas! Who once pretended more to the Spirit, and was more derided for doing ſo, than ſome of the Predeceſſors of theſe Very Independents and Anabaptiſts, now ſo hot againſt us? What elſe were the Invectives caſt abroad againſt Ancient Separatiſts, as the Alchymiſt, Aſſembly-Men, Hudibraſs, with abundance of more ſerious Declamations againſt them, under the Names of Tub-Preachers, Gifted-Brethren, &c.

But if Language learn Men to know God, which Chriſt himſelf ſaid, Was Life Eternal, how comes it that Scholars are ſuch Ill Chriſtians, and that Jews, the Natural Hebrews, were ſuch Perſecutors in Chriſt's Time, and that they remain Infidels to this very Day? Methinks at this Rate the Greeks, when God condeſcended to ſpeak forth the Goſpel in their Language, ſhould not have counted it Fooliſhneſs, nor have mocked at his Embaſſadour, when he came on no leſs Errand, Than that of Salvation; and leaſt of all, ſince they believ'd, ſhould they have degenerated into ſo much Superſtition. But why the Latin muſt be brought in, I cannot conceive, unleſs it be the better to enable People to underſtand the Romiſh Tranſlation, for we never yet heard of ſo much as any Part of the Scripture that was Originally writ in that Tongue. 'Tis ſtrange to me, he ſhould ſo much deſpiſe the People whoſe Language he ſo much extols; and count the one ſerviceable to the Knowledge of God, whilſt with more Reaſon he reputes the other ſuch groſs Idolaters.

Luther jerks the Papiſts for their laying that Streſs J. F. doth upon Humane Learning. W. Tindal rejects it. W. Dell and T. Collier write expreſly and unanſwerably againſt the Neceſſity of it, or that it can give Man the Knowledge of God.

In ſhort, common Experience, and the Chriſtian Spirit and Converſation of Thouſands that underſtand not One Sentence of Hebrew, Greek, or Latin, make Good the Aſſertion of our Honeſt Friend, And is a ſufficient Rebuke to this Vapouring Adverſary, whoſe Defiance to me to encounter his Proofs, returns Weakneſs with Shame upon his Head. For though he thought to fling me to the Dogs, or give me a Prey to Fierce and Lyonly Seconds, behold they are my Friends, and unanimouſly turn with me againſt himſelf, who had deſigned them upon ſuch ill Service; a Recompence may he ever find, at what Time he ſhall endeavour to abuſe our Friends, and pervert their Writings.

And ſo I ſhall end this Chapter, wiſhing for his Sake, as well as mine own, that I may meet, if not with more Reaſon, yet with more Moderation, in the Remainder of his Diſcourſe.

CHAP. VIII.

Chap. VIII.

That we do not deny the Scriptures to be any Means whereby to reſiſt Temptation, in Oppoſition to, and Denial of our Adverſary's Charge.

THE Charge by him endeavour'd to be defended, in his Eighth Chapter, is this, That the Quakers affirm the Scriptures to be no Means whereby to reſiſt Temptation: I will ſet down his Words.

Rep. (Pag. 37.) He paſſes over no leſs than Six Teſtimonies, without a Word to invalidate them; among the reſt this, If you uſe any other Weapon than [the Light Within] in this Spiritual Warfare, you cannot prevail againſt him, that is, the Devil, So I more than proved my Aſſertion.

Rejoyn. I therefore avoided conſidering every Teſtimony he brought, firſt, becauſe many of them were ſo foreign, that there could be no Pretence for bringing them. And next, that I might not be prolix, I thought it ſufficient to examine Three in Six, and with good Conſcience I can aſſure my Reader, I took, as I thought, thoſe he Built moſt upon: If he doubted of any he ſhould not have brought them, I have anſwer'd the Law in the Caſe.

For this now recited, 'tis as weak as Water, to this Purpoſe, though a ſtrong Truth in it ſelf; for the Intent of the Words, could be no other than this, that the Armour of Light, the Apoſtle exhorteth the Church at Rome to put on, was ſufficient to encounter the Power of Darkneſs; and that ſuch as would overcome, ſhould not neglect or exchange that Armour for other Weapons; thereby not in the leaſt excluding other ſuch Inſtruments, as this ſpiritual Light might arm, or give Strength, and invigorate to our Help. And I am ſo far from doubting, that I firmly believe, that God's Spirit, not only in Times paſt, hath made this Uſe of the Holy Scriptures, to Inſtruction and Comfort; but doth even yet to them, who read them in his Holy Fear and Wiſdom.

Reader, I am truly weary; not becauſe I find my Way difficult, from the great Perſpicuity and Reaſon, that are on the Side of my Adverſary; no, nothing leſs in this World. But I know not which Way to turn my ſelf, but I meet, either with School-Boy Jeers, Inſolent Language, Equivocations, or horrible Perverſions: God is Record between J. Faldo and Me, who of us two hath behav'd himſelf with moſt Ingenuity in encountring the ſtrongeſt and fulleſt Arguments, and ſhown moſt Reaſon and Moderation in confuting them; two or three Inſtances of his Failure in both Reſpects, this Chapter preſents thee with.

Rep. The firſt Thing, W. P. deals with, is a Paſſage of James Nailor's; "For " thoſe only are the Children of God, who are led by the Spirit of God, to whom " they who were led by the Letter were ever Enemies. From whence ſaith Penn,
" He concludes, that we account it a very dangerous Thing to read the Scriptures.
" Now if this Paſſage hath any Relation to his Charge or Concluſion, No Man e" ver ſaw the like. He ſhould have added, that was always ſtark blind.

Rejoyn. Here he has given my Reflection upon his ill Application of the Paſſage, omitting both my Expoſition and Argument; An Injuſtice I do affirm every Page of his Book, to be guilty of.

What I ſaid to explain the Sentence, was this; "That there are Children of " the Fleſhly, Literal, and Hiſtorical Knowledge of the Scriptures and Religion,
" who are Strangers to, and therefore Perſecutors of the Children born of the Spi" rit; and that in all Ages there hath been more or leſs of this among Outward
" Jews and Chriſtians. And let J. Faldo deny this if he dare.

To all which, and much more, he ſays nothing; but to his blind Squib beforementioned, he adds this Wreſting of the Paſſage, by me ſo clearly expounded.

Rep. It is a Sign his Judgment is very feeble, that could not, or would not know, that it is dangerous to be led by the Letter, if they that were ſo led, were ever Enemies to the Children of God.

Rejoyn. What is this but to make us Enemies to the very Scriptures, who, without any Diſtinction, gives ſo Wretched a Meaning to Words ſo far from bearing it, whoſe True Senſe was, as I obſerv'd already; to which I may add for farther Explanation, thus, That thoſe who have Confidence in the Letter, Erring from, and Grieving the Holy Spirit, are notwithſtanding Enemies to the Children of God, who are led by the Spirit, according to the True Meaning of Scripture, which the meer Letter-Profeſſor, as ſuch, can never attain to: So that the Danger lies here, to be led by the Letter, without the True Meaning of the Letter, or rather by his own dark Apprehenſions concerning the Mind of it, inſtead of it; As the Jews when they Crucified Chriſt by the Law of God againſt Blaſphemers. This is the Genuine Senſe of our Friend's Words; For had they been writ in the Senſe in which John Faldo takes them, we had then as greatly deteſted them, as he has now wrong'd them.

A ſecond Paſſage is, in his firſt Book, pag. 109. his Words theſe, Iſaac Pennington, who ſpeaking of Knowledge gain'd by the Letter of the Scriptures, writes thus, “ Making him Wiſe and Able in his Head, to oppoſe Truth, and ſo bringing him “ into a State of Condemnation, Wrath and Miſery beyond the Heathen, and making him harder to be wrought upon, by the Light and Power of Truth, than the “ very Heathen. Upon which J. Faldo beſtows this Comment; If reading the Scriptures, and getting Knowledge from them, puts us into a bad Condition beyond the Heathen, I ſcarce know what is more dangerous than reading the Scriptures.

Reader, 'Tis worth our While to ſee, if I. Pennington be as bad a Man as John Faldo repreſents him; in order to which I aſk, Firſt, May a Man, that reads and pretends to value the Scriptures, form up an Underſtanding of them, and yet be abſolutely miſtaken, for want of the true Interpreter, the Spirit of Truth? I cannot think but J. Faldo himſelf will ſay, that ſuch a Thing may be; I am ſure I believe ſo; for it hath often been ſo already, and J. Faldo's preſent Writings are an Unanſwerable Inſtance for the Point. The next Queſtion I would aſk is this; Whether ſuch Perſons ſo miſtaken, are not very apt in Defence of their own Conceivings, to oppoſe the Truth it ſelf? Methinks the whole Jewiſh Church, at the Time of Chriſt's Viſible Appearance in the World, in diſputing againſt him, and decrying of his Religion, while they magnified the Scriptures, as the only great Doctors of them, ſhould without farther Labour anſwer that Queſtion in the Affirmative. Next, Let me aſk J. Faldo, If the high Conceit the Jews had of their Knowledge in the Commands, Doctrines and Propheſies of Scripture (however Erroneous for Want of the True Interpreter) did not render them more captious and obdurate than the Heathen themſelves? If he can read the Scriptures of the New Teſtament, he may anſwer this Queſtion to our Mind, and his own Shame. Laſtly, Was not this State more dangerous than that of the Gentiles? God himſelf long ſince reſolv'd this Queſtion, when he brought ſuch heavy Judgments upon the Jews, and turn'd the Stream of his Love to the Gentiles. It was not for nought thoſe Words were left upon Record; He came to his own, and his own received him not: That is, He came to the Nation and People of all others God had ſelected for his Service, to whom he had been propitious beyond Meaſure, whom he redeem'd by wonderful Miracles, and bleſſed with Holy Leaders, Juſt Judges, a Righteous Law, True and Faithful Prophets; whoſe were the Covenants and Scriptures, who were the Seed of Abraham, and of whom Chriſt came as concerning the Fleſh; yet they received him not as God over all, bleſſed for ever, manifeſted in Fleſh, in the Fulneſs of Time, for their Deliverance; but vehemently rejected him, under the Title of Beelzebub, Prince of Devils. By this Time, I hope, Iſaac Pennington's Paſſage is vindicated from the Malignity of our Adverſary's Comment, whoſe Perverſion muſt needs be open and conſpicuous to all that read him; Firſt, In charging him, to have made this Reflection upon the Knowledge gain'd by the Letter of the Scriptures; which are none of I. P's Words: Next, in concluding, That by I. P's Doctrine, nothing can well be more dangerous than reading the Scriptures (who always was, and yet is, a great Reſpecter and Reader of them) making the Streſs of I. P's Saying to lie in a Diſlike and Contempt of the Scriptures abſolutely, inſtead of their dark Interpretations upon, and Carnal Deductions from the Scriptures, which he only levelled his Diſcourſe againſt.

Thus have we been ſerv'd in every pretended Proof he has brought out of our Friends Writings, to prop and enforce his feeble and incredible Charges; For where we reprove Men's forming unto themſelves Religion from the Letter of the Scriptures, according to their own Conceptions of it, and give a Check to their great Eagerneſs to comprehend the moſt weighty Myſteries therein expreſſed, and their continual Queſtioning, Cavilling and Contending concerning them, whilſt they themſelves are ignorant of the very firſt Principles of Religion, being yet Strangers to Unfeigned Repentance from Dead Works, and Fear towards the Living God, with loud Voices and Clamorous Tongues they thus exclaim againſt us, after this Unruly as well as Unjuſt Manner, The Quakers deny the Scriptures; The Quakers ſay they are not binding upon them; The Quakers ſay, it is dangerous to read them; but I ſay in their Name, Bleſſed are they, who reading, truly underſtand them, and live according to them. I might here break off, but I intreat my Reader to peruſe two notable Teſtimonies given by Univerſity-Men, and ſuch as were reputed famous Thirty Years ago.

The firſt is out of Joſhua Sprigg's Book, entituled, A Teſtimony to an Approaching Glory, Pag. 96. "Chriſt deſires that his Diſciples may be ſanctified, not by "planting the Knowledge of the Literal Word in their Minds, but by ingrafting "the Nature of the Divine Word in their Hearts. Again, In Pag. 107, Chriſt "may offer himſelf long enough in the Letter in the Hiſtory of the Goſpel, but "if he appear not in the Spirit, and ſit in our Conſciences, to quiet them, we "ſhall never have any true Underſtanding of the Word aright. And, in Pag. 79 "and 80, We may ſee what is to be done by looking upon the Hiſtory of Chriſt; "but 'till we find the ſame Things done in us in ſome Meaſure in the Myſtery, we "can find little Comfort ——The whole Hiſtory of Chriſt will profit you nothing, "nor all that you know, except you find Experimentally the ſame Things done in "you by the Spirit.

The Second is afforded us by Chriſtopher Goad, ſtiled Batchelor of Divinity, and Fellow of King's Colledge in Cambridge, in his Book, entituled, Refreſhing Drops, &c. Pag. 12. "There is no Knowledge of Chriſt, nor of the Scripture, but by "Revelation; it is that the Apoſtle prays for, That God would give unto us the "Spirit of Revelation. —— Again, in Pag. 18, It is neither Moſes, nor the Scrip- "tures, nor Chriſt's Works, can ſettle our Hearts, unleſs the Father be in them, "&c. Alſo, in Pag. 89, "To go forth in Man's Power, in the Power of a Letter "of the Scripture only, is not ſafe. Yet again, Pag. 87, upon Acts 17, Here they "hold Paul play in Reaſoning and Diſputing; Paul holds up Chriſt out of the "Scriptures, and the Jews do diſpute againſt Chriſt by the Scriptures; And this is "that that all the Learning of Man doth, all his Knowledge in the Scripture doth "but ſerve him, to oppoſe the Spirit. The greater Knowledge in the Scriptures, "and the more Learning (if it be only of Man) the greater Oppoſition unto Chriſt, "and unto the Spirit. Theſe Jews had Learning and Knowledge in the Scriptures, "meerly to oppoſe the Truth, the Power and Life of the Scriptures. And laſtly, that we may not be too prolix, we ſhall content our ſelves (in the over-looking many more) with this Paſſage, in his laſt Teſtimony, Pag. 71, upon Eſa. 25. "There are that have devoted themſelves to the Law, and the Letter of Scrip- "ture; There are others that have their Life in the Creature; God will ſhortly "draw all Life unto himſelf, and all they that run after other Gods, ſhall ſtarve "and famiſh, they and their Gods.

Theſe Paſſages, Reader, ſpeak for themſelves; and, which is more, ſo much for us, that 'till J. Faldo and his Fellow-Separatiſts have publickly renounced them, and their Authors, we have great Cauſe to ſay, that ſuch as themſelves have hitherto reputed their Spiritual and Learned Miniſters, do defend and rather outword us in Teſtimony to the Truth: But before J. Faldo proceeds to any ſuch Excommunication, let him remember that he cannot do it without Diſturbance to the Grave, and Injury to the Memory of Joſeph Caryl, that Famous and Ancient Independent Paſtor, who Licenſed J. Sprigg's Book, Ann. 1647, and conſequently entituled himſelf to the Doctrine therein expreſt.

And for Chriſtopher Goad's, not only J. Sprigg performed the Friendly Office of Publiſher after his Deceaſe, but himſelf was a Paſtor of a very eminent Congregation of Independents in his Life-time: Strange! that the Men of theſe Days ſhould not know the Principles of their Admir'd Fathers and Teachers, when they meet them; but that worthy Witneſs C. Goad, in his Concluſion of his laſt Teſtimony, Pag. 74 and 77, gives a good Reaſon for it; He that hath Ears to hear, let him hear; he that hath not, it may be will cry, Whimſy, Fancy, and turning the Scripture into an Allegory — and whilſt the Vail is over, Error, Hereſy, Blaſphemy.

I had thoughts of adding no farther Teſtimony, but a moſt remarkable Paſſage of that Chriſtian and Learned Martyr, Dr. Barnes, burnt for his Faith in King Henry the Eighth's Days, (after having been his Ambaſſador, and in high repute) preſſed hard upon me; and I know not but his greater Diſtance from us than thoſe before cited may carry more Authority, and obtain greater Favour with our Enemies, who will at leaſt make ſhew of Reverence to his Antiquity and Martyrdom; his Words are theſe.

> “That Man's Will, Reaſon, Wiſdom, Heart, Soul, or whatſoever Thing is in Man (without the Spirit of God) is but the Wiſdom of the Fleſh; let him intend his beſt, do all that lieth in him, with all his Might, and all his Power, and yet can it not pleaſe God; for it is all but Fleſh. —— Again, “It is the Spirit of Chriſt that maketh him Chriſt's, and the Spirit of God giveth Witneſs to our Spirit, that we be the Children of God. Our Spirit giveth no Witneſs to himſelf, that he is Chriſt's; for then were the Spirit of God fruſtrate; wherefore, let our Spirit, as well as he can, ſtudy his beſt, to apply himſelf to Goodneſs, or to the uttermoſt of his Power, and yet it is but Wiſdom of the Fleſh, and hath no Witneſs of God; yea, it is but an Enemy, and it muſt needs be Sin, as St. Auſtin ſaith, He that feedeth without me, feedeth againſt me.

Thus far Dr. Barnes, which is but a little of the great deal he writes, to the ſame Purpoſe, againſt the Papiſts, about their Doctrine of Free-will. And indeed he cleaves the Hair, and hits the Mark above moſt Ancient Writers; for as he unanſwerably argues in that very Smart Diſcourſe, that Man's cleaving to his own Power, brought him into Tranſgreſſion, and conſequently could never redeem him out of it. So doth he expreſs the abſolute Neceſſity of Man's having Recourſe to the Spirit of God in himſelf, for Counſel and Aſſiſtance, in order to underſtand and fulfil the Good-will of God; which implies, that all thoſe who call it, oppoſing the Spirit to the Scripture, and vilifying the Knowledge of Scripture, to preſs the Underſtanding of it, and a witneſſing the Truths therein declared of from the Revelation and Operation of the Eternal Spirit only, are upon the rankeſt Strain of Free-will, that was ever yet broached among Men, and there we leave our bitter Enemy J. Faldo.

I am now come to a Paſſage more immediately concerning my ſelf, which he thinks, touches me to the Quick; but I know not why, unleſs he meaſures me by himſelf, being a Man ſo quick to be touched, that at the ſobereſt and ſolideſt Anſwer which I could give him, he doth ſo gaul and fret, that there is no coming near him, without being kick'd and abus'd. His Carriage towards me in this Particular, amongſt many Inſtances already paſt, and yet to come, proves what I ſay.

In a Book of mine called, The Spirit of Truth Vindicated, &c. in anſwer to a Socinian, who ſeem'd to deride the Quakers aſſerting a Neceſſity of having a Right Faith in God, and Knowledge of the Scriptures, from the Revelation and Operation of the Eternal Spirit, I uſed theſe Words. “But I aſſure them, they ſhall grope in the Dark, 'till they come into the Daily Obedience of the Light, and there reſt contented to know only as they Experience. At this he ſcoffed; What know God only as they experience? Can we experience his Omnipotency? That W. P. of all others, ſhould talk at this Rate, is moſt Ridiculous. To which he brings me in, thus anſwering, “'Tis Unchriſtian in J. Faldo to aſſert the right Knowledge of God, obtainable any other Way than by Experience. Here's my Reflection by Way of Conſequence, but where's my Argument? That he left behind, as being better able to jeer it, than confute it; ſome ſhort Account of it I will give. “That it is the Light or Spirit of God, that by it's Illumination giveth the right Knowledge of God, that ſuch Knowledge never goes without Experience. Again,

“ The World without in it's Make, Order, Preſervation, Providences; and his Power“ ful Work of Redemption within prove what I writ: But of this he takes no Notice. Now his Diſ-ingenuity thus far is two-fold, Firſt, His ſtretching the Word Experiince to all Caſes; when the Scope and End of my Words went no farther than every Man's particular Saving Knowledge of God, with Reſpect to his Repentance, Converſion, and Eternal Salvation. 2dly, He not only has taken no Notice of my Argument, but has abuſed the Conſequence, viz. That the Right or Saving Knowledge of God is not obtainable but by Experience; after this Manner.

Pag. 38. Rep. Reader, you have his Character of aſſerting, that Reaſon, Faith, Scripture, yea, the Spirit of God too (all which are not one and the ſame Thing with Experience) are not any Means by which to obtain the right Knowledge of God.

Rejoyn. How like a Diſputant or an Honeſt Man he deals with me, may be ſeen, Firſt, In that no Man can have Experience without Reaſon, becauſe Reaſon is that Part of a Man, which is eminently concern'd in receiving that Experience, therefore not the Giver of it, nor yet it without Reaſon. Secondly, The Work of Faith is one great Thing experienced. Thirdly, The Scripture is oftentimes an Inſtrument to that Experience. Laſtly, The Spirit of God is the efficient Cauſe or Worker of Experience, in the reaſonable Soul. For muſt not He be very blind or Malicious, that can ſuppoſe, I meant by the Knowledge of Experience, ſuch an one, as God's Spirit brings not to, who have been all this while pleading for that Knowledge and Experience, which the Spirit of God can only give, and abuſed with a Witneſs by J. Faldo for doing ſo; but that he ſhould ſuppoſe me to exclude Reaſon, from Men in their Experiences, which is to render them Brutes, and becauſe therefore unreaſonable, to be ſure moſt uncapable of Experience (unleſs Men may experience without their Reaſonable or Underſtanding Part) is a Wrong that would have drawn a whole Chapter of Railing from him, had he been ſo ſerv'd by a Quaker. And for Faith, How can a Man have it, and not know he hath it; and which Way may he poſſibly know it and not experience it? As to the Scriptures, they may both be inſtrumental to Experience, and with Reſpect to what they declare of, be alſo experienced.

(Pag. 39.) Two Places more, and we leave this Chapter, in which it will appear, that his Courage is as much upon the Ebb, as his Envy was before upon the Float. In his former Book he was ſo unhappy in his Cauſe, as to let fall this Expreſſion, That God above, and the Scripture without, have taught us better Things. The Uſe I made of it in my Anſwer, he takes a little Notice of, I mean to recite, not confute it.

‘ Now what is the Teaching of the God above, ſaid I? If it be in the Scrip‘ tures, it was impertinent to ſay any more, than that the Scriptures have taught ‘ them better Things. But if he meant that God taught by his immediate Diſco-‘ veries with and beſide the Scriptures, then wherein do we differ?

To which I will faithfully ſet down his Reply, that, if there be any Reaſon in it, I may loſe none of it in Tranſcription.

Pag. 39. Rep. W. P. thinks (now) he has me upon the hip; this Phraſe he calls aſſiſting to my own Confutation. If joyning the Teachings of God and the Scriptures always together be Self-Confutation, let me be ever ſo Confuted.

Rejoyn. This is both Evaſion and Falſe Doctrine. Evaſion in putting always together in the Reply, which was not in the firſt Paſſage; and very much alters the Caſe, ſince to ſay, that God above and the Scriptures without have taught us better Things, and to ſay, if joyning the Teachings of God, and the Scriptures always together, &c. are vaſtly differing. For the firſt Saying or Paſſage is general, and leaves God at Liberty to ſpeak beſide, with, or above the Scriptures; but the Reply ties God always to the Scriptures; that he cannot ſpeak otherwiſe than by them, nor the Scriptures be without him, which makes up the Falſe Doctrine I charged upon him. But if he means that God ſpeaks nothing contrary to his Mind declared in Scripture, and the Scriptures nothing contradictory to the Mind of God, I acquieſce; yet this Conceſſion not only brings him upon the Hip, but upon the bare Ground too; for it confutes him without controul, inaſmuch as he grants, that the Scriptures without are not ſufficient to teach without the God above, the very Thing in Controverſie almoſt from the Beginning betwixt us; ſo that I return his own Words upon himſelf, pag. 40. of his Reply. All this ado is to make the Scriptures nothing without immediate Inſpiration; implying that we hold them to be profitable as God is pleaſed to diſcover unto us, and breath into our Hearts the true Meaning and Virtue of them, for our Inſtruction and Comfort; and what ſhort of this doth J. Faldo's Expreſſion import, that makes the Teachings of the God above neceſſary to render the Scriptures truly profitable unto any: And what is this but to ſay with us, that they are of no value (not in themſelves, but) to us, unleſs the God above unfold them, and brings our Souls into a Senſe of thoſe States and Truths they declare of. I leave my ſober Reader to make his Judgment of this, and ſo proceed to the next Particular, which will end this Chapter. I will ſet down his Words.

pag. 40. Rep. He quarrels with my Management of Epheſ. 6. 16, 17. thus, 'And a Shame 'it is that this Man ſhould bring theſe Places to prove that the Scriptures are 'Means whereby to reſiſt Temptation. The Words are, Wherefore take unto you the whole Armour of God; And among the reſt is reckoned the Sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God. Why doth he not ſay, it is a Shame I produce any Scripture at all? which is like a Quaker throughly; but the Matter is, it is a Shame to call the Scriptures the Word of God, or a Spiritual Sword.

Rejoyn. No ſuch Matter. The Shame was, that J. Faldo perverted and miſ-apply'd Scripture; and the Shame ſtill is, that he ſhould ſo bungle and boggle in the Buſineſs, as of Two Pages to take Two Lines, that concern'd not either the Expoſition or the Argument, and when he has done, ſay nothing to it. Is this Man like to acquit himſelf with Advantage againſt the vain Attempts of W. P. as he is pleas'd to call them? Reader, I have often complain'd, and yet ſhall have Cauſe enough of my Adverſary's unfair Dealing, in not reporting the fortieth part of what I urge, and that he is ſure to take not what is moſt, but leaſt material to my Cauſe, and then beſtows a Squib or two upon it, inſtead of taking my Strength, or giving a ſage Reply; and that I complain not without Juſt Cauſe; be pleas'd to conſider my former Anſwer with what he firſt writ to occaſion it; by which his Honeſty in reciting, and Reaſon in replying may be moſt impartially judged of. Thus he, pag. 113. Above all take the Shield of Faith, which is able to quench, &c. and the Sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God. Obſerve ſaid J. Faldo, Faith in the 16th verſe is preferred above the Word of God in the 17th verſe; therefore it is not Chriſt the Word, but the Scriptures the Word; for Faith is not above Chriſt. Jeſus Chriſt, who had leſs need of Scripture than any of us all, reſiſted Satan's Temptation by Scripture, It is written, it is written, Mat. 4. To which I gave this following Anſwer; 'But neither will this do his Buſineſs, and a Shame 'it is that this Man ſhould bring theſe Places to prove that the Scriptures are 'Means whereby to reſiſt Temptation (which Rebuke was the whole he recited) that 'concerned them not, eſpecially this in Hand, unleſs he would have Faith to be 'the Scriptures, or Word of God in his Senſe, which as it is abſurd, ſo it will by 'him be deny'd, ſince he allows Faith to be preferr'd before the Word of God, 'therefore diſtinct from it, and conſequently not the ſame with it. And ſhould 'we grant to him, that Chriſt is not underſtood by the Word of God, but the 'Scriptures; yet obſerve the fatal Blow his Cauſe receives at his own Hand. 'Every true Chriſtian hath Faith; that Faith is above the Scriptures, therefore every true Chriſtian hath ſomething in him above the Scriptures. Again, 'True Faith 'overcometh the World, and quenches the fiery Darts of Satan, conſequently 'Temptations; therefore not ſo properly the Scriptures, as true Faith, which is 'preferred above them, (by John Faldo himſelf) and which reſiſts Temptation, and 'overcomes the World, is, &c. Once more, the Juſt live by Faith, but Faith 'is above the Scriptures, ſaith J. F. Therefore the Juſt live by that which is above 'the Scriptures, and conſequently, the Scriptures are not the Rule of Faith, for 'how can any Thing be ruled by that which is inferior to it? Thus much we get, 'granting to him, that the Scriptures are the Word of God in the Text. Now, Reader, tell me, of this Argumentation what has he taken, what has he replied to? Yet this Man is deem'd worthy by the Profeſſors of our Times, to act the Tertullus againſt the poor Quakers.

For thoſe Words, The Sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God, I told him then, 'We rejected his Gloſs; for the ſpiritual Sword, as he ſays, Beza renders 'it, muſt be of the Nature of the reſt of the Armour mention'd in that Chapter, ‘ ter, that is, inviſible and Spiritual, which the Bible or meer Writings we know ‘ are not. To which let me add; that I know no Reaſon why the Shield of Faith ſhould be preferred before the Sword of the Spirit, unleſs it be becauſe that's in the Verſe before this, if we conſider them in an abſtract Senſe, or as they are in themſelves. For Above all, is not a preferring the Shield of Faith in Dignity before the Sword of the Spirit, reſpecting their own Nature and Quality, but with regard to the Creature: For, if Unbelief enters, how can the Loins be girt with Truth, the Breaſt arm'd with Righteouſneſs, the Feet ſhod with the Preparation of the Goſpel of Peace, the Head covered with the Helmet of Salvation, or the Enemy encounter'd with the Sword of the Spirit? So that reſpecting Man, not reſpecting the Dignity of the ſeveral Parts of the Armour, Faith is above all, or firſt neceſſary; for tho' God, Chriſt, the Holy Spirit, Eternal Salvation, be all, or either of them greater than Faith, as in themſelves, yet without Faith no intereſt can he had in them. Wherefore our Adverſary's Preference vaniſheth, and his Conſequence about the Scriptures being the Word of God falls to the Ground.

Concerning Chriſt's Anſwer to the Devil, It is written, it is written, I ſhall deſire the Reader to obſerve in my Adverſary's Reply, what of my Anſwer he tranſſcribes, which I gave to the uſe he made of that Scripture; and what Sort of Treatment he affords me. Theſe are his Words.

Rep. Once more and I have done with this Chapter. But ſaid Chriſt to the Devil, It is written; What then, ſays W. P. Therefore muſt the Quakers needs deny the Scriptures to be any Means to reſiſt Temptation? pag. 90. You may fear the Man is craz'd, or was almoſt aſleep when he wrote this. I produced the Example of Chriſt to prove that the Scripture is a Means for reſiſting Temptation, he reſiſting ſo effectually with it's written, it's Written. But Penn would make you believe I intended it to prove, that the Quakers deny the Scriptures to be ſuch a Means. Can you think ſuch a Man to be ſinleſs, yea, Infallible.

Rejoyn. His Froth and Reflection I am no otherwiſe concern'd at, than that it ill becomes a Pretender to Divinity. It is enough for me to ſhew, that he has willingly conceal'd my Anſwer, and hath made a Reply as if he had taken in all that was fit to be conſider'd; my Anſwer lay thus, ‘ But ſaid Chriſt to the Devil, It is ‘ written; What then? Therefore muſt the Quakers needs deny the Scriptures to be ‘ any Means to reſiſt Temptation; (Here J. F. leaves me, but I go on) or rather are ‘ they not ſuch Means, which I am ſure no right Quaker ever deny'd. (Now ‘ Reader mark) Beſides, it was reaſonable that Chriſt ſhould ſo anſwer (ſet that ‘ Power aſide, which filled up thoſe Words, and chain'd Satan) becauſe the Devil ‘ uſed Scripture to prevail upon him, as the Place proves. However we deny not, ‘ but confeſs that where-ever God is pleaſed to ſpeak by any Place of Scripture to ‘ a Tempted Soul, it may very well be acknowledg'd to be a Means, by which God ‘ ſcatters ſuch Doubts and Deſpondencies, and gives Power over Temptations, and ‘ that it may often ſo occur, yet we would not have People fly to them, as what ‘ of themſelves may be ſufficient: but rather have Recourſe to that Divine Faith, ‘ which the Scriptures teſtifie is able to Quench the fiery Darts, and which, J. F. ‘ himſelf has largely confeſt, is to be preferred above the Scriptures themſelves.

Now I deſire the Reader to conſider, Firſt, That he gave not the 10th Part of my Anſwer in any reſpect. Secondly, That what of it would have prevented his reflecting upon me, he wholly omitted. He ſeems diſpleaſed that I made ſuch a Queſtion upon his citing Chriſt's Words to the Devil as this, therefore muſt the Quakers needs deny the Scriptures to be any Means to reſiſt Temptation? telling Folks, They may fear I was craz'd or aſleep when I wrote it; aſking, If they think ſuch a Man to be ſinleſs or infallible? as thinking it improper to his Quotation, and yet would take no Notice of theſe Words, that were directed immediately to it, viz. it was (therefore) reaſonable that Chriſt ſhould ſo anſwer, becauſe the Devil uſed Scripture to prevail upon him; the very Anſwer in his pretended Reply was wanting: With what Face then can our Adverſary, over and above his other ill Words, charge me with deſigning to render him impertinent, by making him endeavour to prove that the Quakers deny the Scriptures to be ſuch a Means, by the Queſtion I aſk'd, as if I had wrong'd him, and that he never intended any ſuch Thing through the bent of the Chapter? And what can be clearer, than that he on Purpoſe avoided the Shock, and took Notice only of that Part of my Anſwer, which being torn from the reſt, he thought fitteſt for him to play upon. But I ſee no

Chap. VIII.

Wrong I did him in ſo aſking what I did; for I am ſure it was one End for which the Scripture was quoted by him; and the Jeers he beſtows npon me and it, beſides his wilful Neglect of the reſt of my honeſt Return, and yet complaining for want of it when he had done ſo, is a pitiful come off for a Man of his Pretence to Controverſie.

Chap. IX.

CHAP. IX.

Not we, but our Adverſary oppoſeth the Teachings of the Spirit to the Doctrines of the Scriptures. The Teſtimonies brought by him cleared and delivered from his Application. Our Doctrine proved from Scripture and ſeveral Teſtimonies. His frequent and groſs Perverſions of our Words and Writings diſcovered and juſtly rebuked.

WE are now got to his laſt Chapter, relating to the Scriptures, in which he pretends to juſtifie his Charge, by farther evidencing a Conſiſtency between it and William Smith's Doctrine, which I utterly deny'd to have been William Smith's Words or Meaning. The Charge was, That the Quakers put the Spirit of God aud the Scriptures in Oppoſition to each other; His Proof of the Charge lies in theſe Words, Traditions of Men, Earthly Root, Darkneſs and Confuſion, Apoſtacy, the Whore's Cup, the Mark of the Beaſt, Baſtards brought forth of Fleſh and Blood, &c. which ſays J. Faldo, in his firſt Book, would amaze a Chriſtian to read, what is contained in the two Pages quoted of vilifying Reproach to the Scriptures: If this be not oppoſing the Spirit of God to the Scriptures, the Devil himſelf muſt deſpair of inventing Words to expreſs it by. Thus far J. Faldo. And indeed I muſt confeſs, If all or any of theſe Things were ever ſaid or publiſhed by William Smith, there is great Cauſe for Amazement, and Abhorrence too. But what ſaid I to this? Truly enough; but that J. Faldo was careful to conceal: He brings in a ſmall Limb of my Anſwer, and then ſcares it with hard Words. Take Notice of his Reply, to what he ventures to tranſcribe of my Anſwer.

Rep. Penn ſaith, W. Smith (pag. 41.) reflected not in the leaſt upon the Scriptures, nor thoſe Doctrines which were truly received thence. No ſuch Words can be produc'd by our Adverſary. No Jeſuit in the World did ever out-do W. P. in Equivocations ond Subterfuges. His Streſs lies on the Words TRULY received thence.

Rejoyn. Suppoſe them to be my Streſs, what Subterfuge lies there? Are there not Doctrines falſly deduced through Men's Ignorance of the true Intendment of Scripture? And do not ſuch as confidently think them to be truly received from Scripture, as if they really were ſo. But the Streſs lies here with J. Faldo; His Religion cannot bear a Scrutiny; and is as well nigh as ſhy of a Search as Mahometiſm it ſelf. Though had J. Faldo and the reſt of his Gang continu'd where they were, the poor Quakers might have had an Inquiſition with a Witneſs at their Heels by this Time. But he has a farther Comment for us.

Rep. The Quakers allow no Doctrine to be truly received from the Scriptures, but ſuch as is received by immediate Inſpiration, and not from the Authority of the Written Word.

Rejoyn. Where's the Oppoſition now? Doth not he ſet the Authority of the Scriptures againſt the Inſpiration of the Holy Ghoſt, at leaſt exclude the Holy Inſpiration from any ſhare in that Authority, and ſo do what he can to ſhuffle out the Spirit from being concerned in the Authority of the Scriptures; which is, if not the only, yet the greateſt Proof of their Authority, ſince it is chiefly by [the Teſtimony of the Spirit in our ſelves that we know them to have been given forth by the Inſpiration of the Holy Ghoſt in others, as held both by the Primitive Chriſtians, our Famous Martyrs, and moſt Conſiderable Proteſtants. He ſpeaks as if he affected Obſcurity, and aim'd only at jumbling and intricating, inſtead of explaining the Matter. But had we put the Spirit in Oppoſition to the Letter, it is no more than what the Scripture hath done before us, as H. Bullenger, that notable Reformer obſerves upon Rom. 2. 29. ‘The Spirit, ſaith he, is oppoſed to the Letter, ‘as when Paul ſaith, The Circumciſion of the Heart is the Circumciſion that conſiſt-

‘ eth in Spirit, not in the Letter; And again, The Lord hath made us able Miniſters ‘ of the New Teſtament, not of the Letter, but of the Spirit; for the Letter killeth, ‘ but the Spirit giveth Life, 4 Dec. 8 Serm. A notable Application to our Purpoſe; but while we only ſo oppoſe them, as to give the Preference to the Holy Spirit, J. Faldo falls foul of us for a Pack of Enthuſiaſts, ſhutting out the Spirit, at leaſt ſetting it aſide to exalt the Letter. But what doth he mean by theſe Terms, Immediate Inſpiration? for a Mediate Inſpiration I never heard of. Sure I am, that Inſpiration is God's own Breathing into the Soul, by which it hath Underſtanding given it, whether it be of Things written, or not written; and how that can be done, and not immediately, I know not. If he will exchange his impertinent Diſtinction of Mediate and Immediate for Ordinary and Extraordinary, we ſhall allow him more than we can upon the other; for by Ordinary Inſpiration or Revelation I underſtand ſuch daily and common Viſion and Diſcovery to the Soul, as concerns it in its general Station, reſpecting God and Men: By Extraordinary, ſuch as great Fore-ſights, or Divine Proſpects, which give to fore-tell or propheſie Things to come, or decide ſome ſignal Controverſies, or very ſpecial Caſe of Difficulty: The firſt is what I ſpeak of; and do affirm, that neither can the Scriptures be underſtood, our Souls fed and comforted, nor our Duties to God rightly perform'd without it: The laſt is a Caſe ſo peculiar, that all along it is plain, I never intended it. But if by Immediate Inſpiration, reſpecting us, he underſtands, that from thence forwards we caſt off all Scripture, as an antiquated, or inſignificant Piece of Buſineſs (which are yet Words too modeſt for his Malice to father upon us, as I ſhall anon make appear) then doth he wrong us and our Doctrine to an high Degree. And no Matter what he thinks of me, or what Names he may pleaſe to call me (who is too far gone in his preſent ſplenetick Diſeaſe, to think any better of ſuch as I am) I ſhall plainly ſet down what was my Meaning by the Words he cavils at, viz. TRULY received thence, I hope, to their Satisfaction, who will be more diſ-intereſted in their Judgment.

By Doctrines TRULY owned and received from Scripture, we mean ſuch Holy Truths, as God by his Spirit (inlightning our Underſtandings) hath given us a true Diſcerning of to be ſuch, and thoſe are they which we put in Oppoſition to Men's Carnal Interpretations upon, and Imaginary Deductions from the Scriptures, and not that we claſh the Spirit's Inſpiration againſt the Scripture; for they harmonize, and bear reciprocal Teſtimonies to each other: And this God, that knows all Hearts, both knows to be our true Senſe in the Matter controverted, and will one Day abundantly prove to our Adverſary's Eternal Conviction. This, I fear, J. Faldo will never ſwallow; and why? becauſe it would choak him: Perhaps I muſt be a Jeſuit, an Equivocator, and what elſe he pleaſeth; but wherefore? becauſe it ſtrikes at his Honeſty, indeed Diſhoneſty; for he had rather we were, what he ſays we are, than receive a Contradiction by finding us otherwiſe, than he hath ſo confidently repreſented us to be. So much dearer is Humor, Pride and Worldly Credit to him, than our being not ſo miſtaken as he thought for. Is this Man like to make Converts, that firſt maims my Anſwers, and then either pelts what he doth take with Dirt; or if one Senſe worſe than another may be had, that (uſher'd in with a Rant, and wound up with a Quibble) muſt be given for an apt and irrefutable Reply: This hath hitherto been his Practice, and we now go upon both a Proof of it, and yet more evidently to clear the Truth.

In that little Piece of my Anſwer he cropt off from the reſt, (for after his wonted Manner, he thought it not beſt for him to encounter it at large, but a ſnap and away) I told him, that he could produce no ſuch Words, as, Traditions of Men, Earthly Root, Darkneſs, Confuſion, Corruption, Deceitful, Whore's Cup, &c. as ſaid of the Scriptures, out of W. Smith's Book, which was one Part of my Streſs, he was willing to ſhake off, but it will not ſo eaſily acquit him. Obſerve his Reply.

Rep. And whereas W. P. ſaith, ‘ No ſuch Words can be produced; he intends no other, but that Smith doth not accuſe himſelf in ſo many Words of Blaſpheming the Spirit of God in the Scriptures, and the Doctrines from thence received.

Rejoyn. His firſt Words bely me; nor can any Man be ſo ſottiſh, as to think I intended any ſuch Thing, as he would have his Reader believe; for that were no Anſwer to the Objection, but an arrant, yet fond, Cheat and Illuſion. My Meaning went with my Words, and my Words meant as I juſt now explain'd them, the Subſtance of which was in my Anſwer, though evaded by his Reply, and perhaps my Rejoynder will meet with no better Uſage.

For his Phraſe of Blaſpheming the Spirit of God in the Scriptures, I will tell him, and that upon very good Authority, that he now plays the Canter with us, and that ſhamefully, The Spirit of God in the Scriptures! a Scripture for that, I intreat him. You may ſee what a Doctor he is, you that believe in him, that thinks, he can claſp up the Spirit with his Bible. It ſeems thus far J. Faldo and Simon Magus agree; for the one thought he could buy it of Peter, and the other implies he may have it of his Bookſeller. Indeed if I thought J. Faldo could believe what he ſays, I ſhould be the tenderer of him; for Ignorance is to be pity'd: But when he ſhall ſhut the Spirit of God out of Men, and ſhut him up in the Scripture, though it call Men the Temples or Tabernacles of God and his Spirit, whilſt it never calls it ſelf ſo, but Holy Writings, or a Declaration of Things certainly believed, he is to be cenſur'd for his improper and ambiguous Terms, and the rather, becauſe his Charity is ſo ſmall to others in Caſes more excuſable, and that no Man acts the Doctor of the Sentences to others more ſnappiſhly and imperiouſly than himſelf; however, I ſhall be ſo favourable as to take his Words in this Senſe (elſe I know not which Way he will turn himſelf) viz. The Spirit of God ſpeaking (when it pleaſeth) by the Scriptures, which brings him and his Cauſe unavoidably over to us.

But let us ſee if J. F. can honeſtly faſten any of thoſe fore-cited Epithets upon W. Smith's Book; If he can, we will condemn the Book as heartily, as J. F. traduceth us in his. But if he ſhall be found to have wrong'd W. S. God that lives for ever will avenge our Innocency upon him; which we deſire may extend no farther than to work him into true Repentance, and effectually to vindicate us in the Underſtandings of the Miſ-informed. His Words are theſe:

Rep. (Pag. 41, 42.) But that all that Inventory of execrable Names W. Smith doth intend of the Scriptures, and the Holy Doctrines grounded on the Authority of the written Word, take theſe Teſtimonies, John 1. 9. 'He [that is John] beheld him, and his Glory, and felt his Power, and what his Power took away, then he declared him as he knew him, and not from any Tradition or Writing before him; why then do you teach for Doctrines Men's Traditions? —— running into the Lines of what others have written, Morn. Watch, Pag. 6.

Rejoyn. Theſe Paſſages from whence the particular Epithets are taken ſhall be conſidered anon.

This is one of thoſe Teſtimonies he brings to prove he rightly cited and apply'd his former Teſtimonies out of the ſame Author; which had he intended in reality, he ſhould as well have inſerted the one as the other; to help ſuch as had not ſeen his other Book, into a true Judgment of this; but then may he ſay, I ſhould not make the beſt of my Caſe, which, to do him no Wrong, he ſtudies more than the Truth, or any Thing elſe, next to his making the worſt of ours. And now, Reader, that this Proof is as lame as his former, and wholly as ſilent to his wicked Purpoſes, conſider I intreat thee, the Drift of this Man, as his Diſcourſe at large manifeſts. Two Things he had in his Eye, Firſt, To beat People off from the Doctrines and Traditions of Men, in the Senſe Chriſt once ſpoke thoſe Words, to wit, not the Scriptures, but Men's human Interpretations of them, with ſuch Forms and Worſhips as they had invented in the Apoſtacy from the true Spirit of Chriſtianity, as theſe Words by J. F. purpoſely omitted, notwithſtanding they lay between the two firſt Sentences, which therefore make an abſolute Break, though he makes none, do undeniably evince, to wit, Weigh this Truth all ye Prieſts and Profeſſors, and ponder it in your Hearts; have you beheld Chriſt, and ſeen his Glory? Have you felt his Power to take away your Sin? If yea, then why do ye teach for Doctrine Men's Traditions? Again, Pag. 16. For they being from the Life that gave forth Scriptures, their Underſtandings are darkned, and they err, and know not the Scriptures nor the Power of God. Laſtly, In the 14th Page he hath theſe Words, All the vain Worſhips and Cuſtoms, which People at this Day are in, who yet abide in Forms and Traditions, are all come up ſince the Days of the Apoſtles, and are after Men's Traditions, and not after Chriſt. And the Conception of all hath been in Man's Imagination, and hath been brought forth in his own Will and Wiſdom.

By all which, Reader, it appears, that he diſtinguiſheth between Men's Traditions and God's Tradition. For, firſt, How can he mean the Scriptures in the firſt Paſſage, (the Middle of which our Adverſary ſo wilfully dropt) when he implies, that from feeling the Power of Chriſt to take away Sin, Men would leave off Teaching for Doctrine the Traditions of Men; making them thereby ſinful, and a Sin to teach them; when J. Faldo confeſſes, that upon the Spirit's moving and giving us the Underſtanding of Scripture we do allow the Doctrines therein delivered to be rightly preached. In the Second Paſſage, he undeniably diſtinguiſhes between the Scriptures rightly underſtood, and their Miſtake of them to whom he wrote; Not knowing, ſays he, the Scriptures, nor the Power of God, being darkned; which imports, that truly to know and teach according to the Senſe of Holy Scripture, is a quite differing Thing from Teaching for Doctrine the Traditions of Men. Nor is his Third Paſſage leſs clear in the Point, p. 14. ſince he explains what he means by thoſe offenſive Words to J. Faldo's Ear, by ſuch Cuſtoms, Worſhips, and Traditions as were not of Chriſt, and that took their Riſe ſince the Time of the Apoſtles, and proceeded from the Imagination, Will and Wiſdom of Man; therefore not the Writings of either Prophets or Apoſtles, that were before ſuch Apoſtacy, and which were given forth as they were mov'd of the Holy Ghoſt.

The Second Thing greatly in the Author's Eye, and with which his Spirit ſeems to be preſt through the whole Book, is this; Men ought to teach and preach to others no farther than they have a living Senſe or Experience of what they ſo teach or preach: that this was his Meaning, by thoſe Words, Running into the Lines of what others have written; hear the following Words in his Defence. How dare any of you, ſaith he, make mention of his Name, or ſpeak of his Glory, or of his Power, ſeeing you have not beheld him yet made manifeſt in your ſelves? Again thus, For John teſtified, that the giving forth of the Law was by Moſes, but Grace and Truth came by Jeſus Chriſt, John 1. 17. Mark, ſays he, Grace and Truth were come unto John by Jeſus Chriſt, and he had felt the Virtue of it, by which Moſes's Adminiſtration was fulfilled in him. I ſay, Reader, his whole Scope was to inforce the Neceſſity of coming into the Enjoyments of the Holy Ancients, and an Experiencing of the Truth of thoſe Doctrines they declared, before Men are fit to teach them unto others. And as this is the Tendency of his Words, ſo does Holy Scripture ſtrongly warrant the ſame; Particularly Jeremiah, and the Apoſtle Paul to the Corinthians; in Jeremiah thus; He that hath my Word, let him ſpeak my Word faithfully; What is the Chaff to the Wheat, ſaith the Lord? Is not my Word like a Fire, ſaith the Lord, and like a Hammer, that breaketh the Rock in Pieces? Therefore I am againſt the Prophets, ſaith the Lord, that ſteal my Word every one from his Neighbour, Chap. 23. Verſe 28, 29, 30. The Meaning of which notable Place is plainly this; Such as have God's Word to declare (which is known from all Falſe Pretenders, who ſteal the Word from their Neighbour, and then cry, he ſaith, as the 31ſt Verſe expreſſeth, by the Reſemblance it bears to Fire, (a Thing eaſily to be felt) let them faithfully ſpeak it.

But thoſe who ſteal and preach the Word or Teſtimony that came from the Lord by and through another, as if the Lord ſpake the ſame by them, unto whom the Lord never ſpoke it; ſuch Prophets the Lord is againſt, which ſtrikes J. Faldo dead, reſpecting his Pretence for Preaching, who abundantly proves it to be his Belief, that ſuch are as Good Miniſters as any, yea, the only Orthodox, and the other but a Pack of Giddy-headed Enthuſiaſts.

The next Place is in the Apoſtle's 2d Epiſt. to the Corinthians, Chap. 10. Verſe 15, 16. Not boaſting of Things beyond our Meaſure, that is, of other Men's Labours, but having Hope, that when your Faith is encreaſed, that we ſhall be enlarged by you, according to our Rule abundantly, to preach the Goſpel in the Regions beyond you, and not to boaſt in another Man's Line of Things made ready to our Hands. Of this Sort of Boaſters is John Faldo, who hath nothing for his Religion, but the meer Bible, and but an uſurpt Title to that.

Reader, take Notice, that all along J. F. hath made no Difference between the Truths the Scriptures truly declare of, and Man's dark and unregenerated Conceptions upon Scripture about Truth and Error. Thereby confounding that which in it ſelf is moſt clearly different, to the End he may bring all thoſe Blows we give at Men's Traditions and Doctrines, (which they pretend to be rightly deduced from Scripture, but in Reality, are their own Imaginations) To bear hard upon the Scriptures themſelves, and thoſe Doctrines and Traditions that are truly delivered by them; which is a wretched begging of the Queſtion, that was not about the Scriptures, to which he would turn it, but his and their Way of underſtanding them, as if it were the ſame Thing to decry the Scriptures, as to diſclaim againſt J. F's falſe Opinions concerning them.

But he thinks he has quite done our Buſineſs, and ſav'd himſelf from the black Blemiſh of Forgery, by another Teſtimony produced to the ſame Purpoſe, which is this: And reading in the Scriptures, that there were ſome who met together, and exhorted one another, they obſerve and do as near as they can what they read of the Saints Practice, and ſo conceive a Birth in the ſame Womb, and bring it forth in the ſame Strength that others do, and in the Ground it differs not, W. S. Pag. 22. But what of all this, J. Faldo? Can this Saying riſe higher than a Reproof of thoſe who are but in the Form of Godlineſs, whom the Scriptures exhort us to turn away from: But why was he ſo Diſingenuous as to refuſe us our Friends Words at large, thereby making People believe, that the Imitation reprov'd by W. S. concerns the Holy Life and Converſation of the Saints. For it's not two Lines before, that he tells us expreſly what Sort of Practice he means, when he writes thus, And becauſe they (Baptiſts) read of ſome that went into the Water, and were baptized, they do the ſame. In ſhort, The Zeal of his Spirit runs againſt all Apiſh Religions, and thoſe Perſons, who take unto themſelves the Name and Form of what they are Strangers to the Nature and Power of, being not led by the Eternal Spirit to worſhip God, but with an Unregenerate Mind and Ambitious Will, eagerly ruſh into thoſe Things for which they have neither Commiſſion nor Qualification.

I could urge ſeveral Teſtimonies out of Authors that neither liv'd nor dy'd in Fellowſhip with the Quakers, as a farther Vindication of their Senſe in this Particular; but Three ſhall ſuffice at this Time.

The firſt is given us by Jo. Canne, ſtiled by Parſon Ball, (an Eminent and Early Preſbyter) The Leader of the Engliſh Browniſts or Independents at Amſterdam, more than 30 Years ago, viz. Labour to Experience the Power and Leading of the Spirit: It is very dangerous to reſt in any thing that comes from the Creature, 'till you have the Witneſs of the Spirit, which is not fleſhly, heady, or empty; but powerful, inward, and abides, and ſettles the Soul. In the Light ſhall we ſee Light, and no where elſe, let them pretend never ſo high Attainments. A Knock to J. Faldo.

The Second is a Paſſage in W. Dell's Trial of Spirits, writ, as I take it, while he was Maſter of Caius College in Cambridge. 'They, ſays he, who want Chriſt's Spirit, which is the Spirit of Prophecy, though they preach the Exact Letter of the Word, yet are Falſe Prophets, and not to be heard by the Sheep. And one Reaſon among many for this Aſſertion, was this, 'Under the New Teſtament we are not to regard the Letter without the Spirit, but the Spirit as well as the Letter, yea, the Spirit more than the Letter. And therefore Paul ſaith, That Chriſt ſhall deſtroy Antichriſt with the Spirit of his Mouth, and the Brightneſs of his Coming. He ſcarce (ſaith this Author) takes any Notice of the Letter, but calls the true Preaching of the Goſpel, the Spirit of Chriſt's Mouth, or the Miniſtration of the Spirit. His next Reaſon is this, 'They that preach only the outward Letter of the Word, without the true Spirit, they make all Things outward in the Church, and ſo carry the People with whom they prevail, only to outward Things, to an outward Word, to outward Worſhip, outward Ordinances, outward Church, outward Government, &c. whereas in the true Kingdom of Chriſt, all Things are inward and ſpiritual; and all the true Religion of Chriſt is written in the Soul and the Spirit of Man, and the Believer is the only Book, in which God himſelf writes his New Teſtament, Pag. 19, 20.

The third Teſtimony is out of T. Collier's Works, p. 249. 'How can they teach others, who know not Truth themſelves, as they ſay, but as they read it without themſelves? And ſo at the beſt, ſpeak but other Men's Light. And if they miſunderſtand what other Men have written, then they ſpeak Falſhood inſtead of Truth.

Thus much in Countenance of W. Smith's Expreſſion, from Three Men of great Note among our Engliſh Separatiſts.

But let us hear what Uſe J. Faldo makes of the Teſtimony he brought, and which we have thus clear'd and confirm'd.

Rep. (Pag. 42.) Then follows in this, and Page 23. all that Rabble of vilifying Expreſſions of both their Practices and Authority, quoted by me in Quakeriſm no Chriſtianity, p. 119.

Rejoyn. If this be true, W. Smith's Book ſhall yet be blamed, as much as J. Faldo will otherwiſe have abuſed him. I will ſet down his Words faithfully, 'They, ſaid he, hope to be ſaved after this Life is ended by Chriſt, though they be Sinners, and ſo are ſet down in a Carnal Security, and reſt at Eaſe in the Formality, and are Strangers to the Quick'ning Spirit, and the Faith that they have made is not held in a Pure Conſcience, but is conceived in the Heart that is Degenerated and Corrupted.

I Query of my Reader, if this was meant of the Scripture, upon whom J. F. makes W. S. beſtow the Word Corrupted? Again, 'And what was by the Saints given forth, and appears in Writings without them, that their Life is in, and that they contend about, and all ſtrive to ſet up their own Conceivings, and teach for Doctrines Men's Traditions. Mark that, Reader. He ſpeaks not againſt the Scriptures, nor of them, but their Blindneſs in uſing them, 'and mind not the Meaſure of God in themſelves; that is, Reader, God's Meaſure, or the Grace of God, which teacheth to deny thoſe Sins he told them a little before they liv'd in with Carnal Security. 'But, ſays he, ſtretch'd beyond it in the Comprehenſion, and run into other Men's Lines and Labours. That is, They out-run their own Experiences, and intrude themſelves into thoſe Things, which were beyond their own Growth, which W. S. rebukes them for, making it his Buſineſs to turn them to that Grace, which obeyed, teaches them not to vilify the Scriptures, but brings them into the right Poſſeſſion of them, and Title to them: which he makes appear to be more to their Advantage, than to diſpute and contend about them, whilſt in Sinful Security, Formality, Eſtrangedneſs from the Quick'ning Spirit, Human Faith, Impure Conſcience, and in a Degenerated and Corrupted Heart; All which is in his 22d Page, and gives Light enough (to any Man, that has not, like J. F. put out his Eyes of Reaſon and Candour) unto theſe following Words, which can no more relate to the Holy Scriptures, than that Spirit from whom they came, to wit, 'They are all upon the Earthly Root, and in Darkneſs and Confuſion in their Practice and Worſhip. Now, Reader, What does the Scripture practiſe, and whom, and how doth the Scripture worſhip; if the Word (they) relate to the Scriptures, and not thoſe ſeveral Ranks of Profeſſors to whom he expreſly dedicated his Book? Yet farther, That from the Crown of the Head to the Sole of the Feet, the Image (that is, the ſeveral Sects) hath no whole Part in it, but is full of Putrefaction and Corruption, and every Branch rotten and deceitful, and no good Fruit is found; for the bringing forth of all is from the Heart that is deceitful and corrupted, which lies fal'n and degenerated from God. What Man, Reader, that ever thought to have his Proofs examined, would have dar'd to apply in the Author's Name, theſe Terms to the Scripture, that ſo particularly and plainly relate to Man in his fallen State. But pleaſe to conſider what better Authority he has for the reſt, viz. 'And are all found Wanderers in the Night of Apoſtacy, and in the Darkneſs have taken the Whore's Cup, and do drink it: And unto all thoſe is the Cup of God's Indignation poured out, becauſe they are Baſtards, and not Sons. Upon which I query with J. F. who are the Wanderers? If the People, then the foregoing Word, They, of which the Word Wanderers muſt be the Relative, concerns Profeſſors; and then all thoſe Terms beforementioned belong not to the Scripture, and conſequently are miſapply'd by our Enemy. But if he ſays W. S. meant the Scriptures, how could they be ſaid to wander, or drink the Whore's Cup? And if the Whore's Cup be the Scriptures, (as J. F. makes W. S. mean) either the People drank up the Scriptures in the Apoſtacy, or the Scriptures drank up themſelves.

Next, Who are thoſe Baſtards, to whom the Cup of God's Indignation is pour'd forth? Certainly they are Diſobedient Children, and not as J. Faldo would have it, the Scriptures and Holy Doctrines deduced from thence.

Reader, Doubtleſs the Man is deſperate, and to me he ſeems to have laid Violent Hands upon himſelf, to the deſtroying of his Reputation among Men, and his Soul in the Eye of God; ſince after all this Injury to our Deceaſed Friend, he dares yet appear in ſo impudent a Strain, as this following Paſſage makes him Guilty of.

All this Penn KNEW to be True, when he dared to make ſuch Hypocritical Appeals to Delude the World, Save the Quaker's Credit, and Abuſe me as a Forger.

The Righteous God judge between us, Whether I writ otherwiſe than I knew, or he in affirming it, more than he knew. My Appeals were Solemn, in the Grief of my Spirit, to ſee a Man arriv'd at that Pitch of Falſeneſs, as to pervert and forge about Sacred Things, even while himſelf would paſs for a Miniſter of them; and I can ſcarce think any Man ſo prejudic'd againſt us, as not to conclude with me, that his Aim in this untrue Paſſage (to ſay no more) was to bear People down, as to the Honeſty of his Quotation, by the mighty Vehemence and Confidence of his poſitive Charge againſt me, To have known, what in Reality I never knew, and to have appeal'd hypocritically to God concerning our Innocency, who did it in the Humility and Sincerity of my Soul, becauſe the Man had no other Way left him, to ſecure himſelf from the deſerv'd Imputation of Forgery, or wilful Perverſion, ſcarce a Remove from it. But that by which he would clear himſelf from it, faſtens it inevitably upon him, and renders him One of the daring'ſt and moſt harden'd Perverters I have ever yet met with in all my Life.

The next Teſtimony he brought to prove our Oppoſition of the Spirit to the Scriptures, and which he pretends to juſtifie againſt my Explanation, was this, Of this Sort are the Falſe Prophets, who have their Preaching from Study, and other Men's Mouths, charging me, That I treacherouſly left out, or from the Letter, and not from the Mouth of the Lord. But as I us'd no Treachery, neither omitted it in Deſign, nor thought it Prejudicial to his Cauſe, ſince my Anſwer, as himſelf hath tranſcrib'd it, ſhews, that I underſtood it to be the Letter of the Scripture, that was meant, from whence they ſtole their Preaching, and not that they receiv'd it from the Mouth of the Lord; ſo in the End, it will prove more my own Diſadvantage to have omitted it, than any Bodies elſe. I ſhall ſet down my Anſwer, as he has tranſcrib'd it, and his Reply. the equall'ſt Way of Judging.

‘ The Natural Purport of the Words, ſaid I, can be no more than this: That ‘ though the Things declar'd of in the Scriptures, were the Word of the Lord to ‘ the Holy Ancients and Jeremiah, as God's Mouth (not his Mouth therefore) to ‘ the People of Iſrael; yea, much of it (mark) the Mouth of the Lord to us alſo;
‘ yet for Men to ſay any Part of it by Rote, eſpecially if they add (mark) their own
‘ Comments and Gloſſes, framed from Study, OF any Part of the Scripture, and ſay, ‘ Thus ſaith the Lord, or Hear the Word of the Lord, and not in the ſame Living
‘ Senſe, nor upon the like Commiſſion, every ſuch One doth rob his Neighbour, and ‘ ſteal his Words.

This is ſo much of my Anſwer as he tranſcribes, which ſeems thus far ingenious, that in three Times a larger Anſwer, he has not tranſcrib'd one Third of this; perhaps he thought it not ſo much for his Turn. But before I ſet down his Reply, I ſhall find Two Faults with this Recital; Firſt, That he has (I will not ſay treacherouſly, or that I knew he did deſignedly miſgive my Words, as he is frequently pleas'd to charge me) falſly ſet down one Part of my Anſwer; for in my Book it is, If they add their own Comments and Gloſſes framed from Study, TO any Part of the Scripture, and he tranſcribes it, Framed from Study OF any Part of the Scripture; as if the Studying OF the Scripture, and adding Men's own Gloſſes TO the Scriptures, were one and the ſame Thing. All I ſhall ſay of it is this, 'Tis a ſcurvy Miſtake, and looks very ſuſpiciouſly. The Second is, That he has left out the moſt material Part of my Anſwer; The Streſs of which in Brief lay here, ‘ Parrots imi- ‘ tate Men; But if ſuch Creatures are not therefore to be reputed Reaſonable, ‘ though the Sentence be Rational in it ſelf, becauſe it proceeds from meer Imita- ‘ tion, and not a Principle of Reaſon; neither is He a True Prophet, nor That the ‘ Word of the Lord, with reſpect to that Prophet, who has not receiv'd what he de‘ livers from the immediate Word of God himſelf, but by Hear-ſay, or meer Imi- ‘ tation. But of all this Part he takes no Notice. I now come to his Reply, which I will faithfully ſet down, and, I hope, as clearly enervate.

Rep. (Pag. 43.) The Errors, Self-Contradictions, and Abſurdities of W. P. I ſhall expreſs briefly. Firſt, What he ſaith they mean, I ſay they mean alſo, viz. The Scriptures are not the Mouth of God.

Rejoyn. The Mouth of God is a moſt uncouth Expreſſion, for which he has not One Scripture, from Geneſis to the Revelation; nor do I ſee how he ſhould, ſince it it is unſound, if not Blaſphemous; for, by calling them not A Mouth, but THE Mouth, it renders them the moſt conſtant, neceſſary, and excellent Mouth, by which God, who is a Spirit, utters forth his Mind to his Children, thereby excluding the Word of God Nigh in the Heart, and His Spirit in their Inward Parts. But to proceed:

What does he mean by Mouth, or how does he take it, Properly or Metaphorically? If the firſt, I deny it: If the laſt, I thus far concede, That the Scriptures, as other Things, may be in a Senſe ſo ſtiled, when God pleaſeth livingly to ſpeak by them, otherwiſe I chuſe to expreſs my ſelf, as in my Anſwer, by him alſo omitted.

'The Eternal Word of God is the Mouth of God, and the True Prophets and 'Apoſtles in all Ages, have been as the Mouth of the Word of God, declaring the 'Mind of it, either by Word of Mouth, or Writing, to the People, and the Scrip'tures are the Writings of thoſe Inſpir'd Prophets and Apoſtles. What more would he have?

Nay, there is not only no ſuch Negative, as he charges upon us, in my Anſwer; but I do expreſly ſay, The Scriptures are not in a Senſe without a Mouth, and that for God too, being a Declaration of much of his Will and Works, though I cannot allow them to be The Mouth of God in the Senſe my Adverſary throughout his whole Book tugs hard to get; for by that Means we ſhould with him ſhut up the Mouth of the Eternal Word, which is God's Living Oracle to the Souls of his People. But he proceeds.

Rep. W. P. ſaith, The Things ſpoken of were the Word of the Lord. Then the Word of the Lord is, or was more than One, a Contradiction to himſelf.

Rejoyn. Reader, take Notice that there is no ſuch Thing as he pretends to reply to, in this Part of my Anſwer he brings into his Book; it ſeems he has left it behind him, and I muſt go back to look for it: My Words were theſe, The Scriptures then are to us obliging, as the Thing they declare of was the Word of the Lord to ſeveral Ages, Temporary Commands excepted.

Which import no more than this, That the Word of the Lord declared the Mind of the Lord by the Holy Prophets; and the Mind of the Lord is not diſtinct from the Word of the Lord, though the Declaration be different from the Thing declar'd of. I cannot ſee any Contradiction in what I writ. Sure I am, I meant not by the Thing they Declare of, the Declaration, either by Word of Mouth or Writing, but the Wiſdom, Will, Glory and Power of the Eternal Word, as they are Eternally One with, and in the Word, before ſo declared. He was a little too nimble in the Buſineſs; but if I ſhould let him make the worſt Conſtruction he is able, it can riſe no higher than this, I ſhould mean by the Word of the Lord, the Living Command of the Lord in the Hearts of his Prophets, afterwards declared by Word of Mouth, or Writing; For Word ſometimes ſignifies Command, as thus, This is the Word of the Lord, or this is the Command, or Mind of the Lord, which are equivalent.

Rep. Thirdly, That God hath a Mouth in a proper Senſe.

Rejoyn. This is untruly charg'd upon me. My Adverſary's Reaſon for this indirect Conſequence was, my ſaying, That Jeremiah was as God's Mouth (not his Mouth therefore) which to me is a Good Reaſon why he ought to have inferr'd the quite contrary, ſince as his Mouth, ſignifying no more than ſomething in lieu of a Mouth, and not His Mouth therefore, was on Purpoſe brought in by me, to prevent that very Conſtruction which my Adverſary hath notwithſtanding hit upon.

But to the next Part of his Reply, which is ſtill by Way of Conſequence, as he thinks from my Principles.

Rep. Fourthly, What the Scriptures ſay, the Lord doth not ſay, unleſs he that utters them, hath the like Commiſſion from God, as Jeremy.

Rejoyn. A meer Tale of J. Faldo's making: They are the Words of the Lord, let who will ſpeak them, or ſay them over. But they are not the Words of God, by, or through that Perſon that is dead to them. And inſtead of hearing and receiving them from ſuch Intruders and Falſe Pretenders, they ought to be flung back into their Faces, and they reprov'd for Falſe Prophets: What haſt thou to do to take my Name into thy Mouth, ſaith God, that hateſt to be reformed? And how is he Reform'd, that is not Renew'd into that Life, Power and Wiſdom, that Man was indu'd with, before he came to be through Tranſgreſſion deform'd. The Drift of our Adverſary is, To prop and maintain a Company of dry, Senſeleſs, and Unregenerate Talkers for Worldly Maintenance. They are of their Race, Who Taught for Hire, and Divined for Money, the Chemarims, or Black-Coats, of Old Times. The plain Engliſh of all J. F's Jeers and Railings at us, is this, We deny him to be a Miniſter of the Goſpel, who Preaches or Teaches what he has not experienced of God's Work in his own Heart, viz. Who Preaches of David's Languiſhings, and never was in them; of the Terrors the Apoſtles knew, and never felt them: In fine, the whole Exerciſe that attends the Soul of Man, from the Beginning of his Repentance, to the Compleating of his Salvation, and never have Experimentally trod that Path, and paſs'd through thoſe divers States. He is an ill Guide that never went the Way himſelf, and an unſkilful Phyſician, who is ignorant both of the Diſeaſe and Cure. His Fifth Conſequence is this.

Rep. That all that call them by that Name, and tender them to others, are Thieves and Robbers.

Rejoyn. This is a Piece of Gibberiſh I do not underſtand. When did we call any Thieves or Robbers, for a Name given to the Scriptures, if them he mean? On what Part of my Anſwer can he faſten theſe Words? 'Tis true, I ſaid then, and I ſay again, They are all Thieves and Robbers, that ſteal other Men's Experiences, and then Preach them for Advantage. For, they that ſtole of old, were ſuch as ſpoke other Men's Words, without their Senſe. And as the Falſe Prophets ſtole the True Prophets Words, which was one of their Marks; ſo the True Prophets did not ſpeak in Imitation of one another; but as the Word of the Lord came upon their Spirits, ſo they declar'd it, which is prov'd thus: Firſt, If it had been the Words or Writings of the True Prophets themſelves, then it could not have been ſaid, Let the Prophet that hath a Dream, tell a Dream; and he that hath My Word, ſpeak My Word faithfully, ſince moſt, if not every one of them, had the Words, or Writings of the True Prophets by them. So that after J. F's Conceit, every one of them might have ſpoken it, and then too when it pleas'd him; which being utterly inconſiſtent with the very Words and Nature of the Text, I conclude, it was an Inviſible, Immediate, and Spiritual Word the True Prophets ſpoke by, as they were moved of it. Secondly, It was a Fire and Hammer, and that the Scriptures were not: Thirdly, It came at certain Times to them who had ſo much of the Scripture as was then extant always by them; therefore not the Scripture, but an Immediate Word. Fourthly, Otherwiſe there had been no more Scripture upon Inſpiration, but a continual deſcanting upon thoſe they had; therefore ſtill an Immediate Word, and not the Words and Writings of others. Laſtly, if the Difference then between a True and a Falſe Prophet, was the declaring faithfully the Word of the Lord, when, and as, they felt the Operation and Motion of it in themſelves, and a borrowing, or rather ſtealing thoſe Words, and ſo without either the Operation or Motion of the ſame Eternal Spirit, which was before the Coming of Chriſt; much more then ought the True Prophets in theſe Evangelical Times (to whom was promiſed a more large Effuſion of the Holy Spirit) to wait for the Operation and Motion of God's Eternal Power, Word or Spirit of Life, in order to inſtruct others. And more Reaſon have we to repute them Falſe Prophets, that in theſe Days of greater Light, ſhould prop up themſelves as God's Miniſters, with the old Cheat of Stealing their Neighbour's Words. Certainly they are leſs ſufferable now, than at that Time; and if that Diſpenſation renounce them, this ought much more. But J. F. thinks he ſaith ſomething, when he flings this Conſequence upon me as ridiculous.

Rep. That Jeremy and the Prophets are our Neighbours, though Dead Two or Three Thouſand Years ſince.

Rejoyn. I never ſaid they were John Faldo's Neighbours, nor does he deſerve ſo Good Company, though he needs it. But let it ſuffice, that J. F. ſteals as bad as Jeremiah's Neighbours did; and thus far more boldly and notoriouſly, in that they perhaps got the True Prophets Words ſo ſoon, that ſome might not know who had them firſt; whereas J. F. runs back Two or Three Thouſand Years a pilfering for his Hackney Sermons out of them, which are ſo well known to be other Men's Lines and Labours. Methinks People ſhould not ſuffer themſelves to be ſo miſerably gul'd, nor lie at the Expence of maintaining a Prieſt to tell his Tales, who may buy each of them a Bible, containing the Writings of the Holy Prophets and Apoſtles, for Five Shillings, more to their Edification, ſince their Miniſters, or Maſters rather, deny Inſpiration, and conſequently all inward Certainty to their own Conceptions and Gloſſes, hugging Fallibility as a neceſſary Article, and flinging it more than once in our Teeth, as arrogant Hereſie to ſay, We are certain of what we Teach. Truly, my Soul magnifies the Lord, and I rejoyce in God my Saviour, that he has diſvail'd this Myſtery of Iniquity, and diſpoil'd that Painted Jezabel, and ſplendid Whore of Babylon, who hath long ſate upon the many Waters, and hath diſcover'd her Merchants, her Wares, her Witchcrafts, whereby her Abominations are known, and her darkeſt Stratagems and deepeſt Subtilties found out. It's not her ſaying, She's a Bride, a Church; nor her Merchants and People, that they are Miniſters and Chriſtians, that will ſerve their Turn; for their Conception is known, their Original, their Number, their Power, their Devices and utmoſt Extent, and they are all found to be out of the Redeeming Power, Life, and Spirit of the Lamb. And for this Cauſe am I engag'd on Earth, and the Reproaches that attend me on that Account are unutterably more grateful to me, than the gaudieſt Titles, and ſweeteſt Entertainments this Temporal World can beſtow. It's for God, againſt the Devil; his Power and Spirit, againſt Satan's; the Spiritual, againſt the Formal Man; and the Real Life of JESUS, and Heavenly Experience of his Salvation within, whereby the Doctrine of the Goſpel is accompliſh'd in Men, againſt all Transformation into Likeneſſes, and but meer Verbal Imitations and Outſides of Religion; For every Plant that the Heavenly Father hath not Planted, will he root up in this the Day of his Power, in which the Lord will make his People a Willing People, and that not by indulging, but rebuking, and taking Men off from their own Willing and Running: For the Lord has decreed to over-throw the Banks, which the Falſe Prophets of the Nations have caſt up in the Night of Darkneſs, whereby all Refreſhment has been damm'd up from them, and the Nations have been like a parched Heath and deſolate Wilderneſs, that his Life, Power, and Spirit, may flow over every Kindred, Nation and People under the whole Heaven; and they ſhall be all taught of God, and in Righteouſneſs will he eſtabliſh them, and there ſhall be one Sheep-fold and one Shepherd; and the Idol Shepherds, who have no Viſion, neither have any Bread of Life wherewith to feed the Flock, God will utterly ſcatter and make an End of, and his Name ſhall be Famous and Renowned through all Generations. Amen.

But Reader, my Adverſary is not yet willing to leave me, he proceeds to tell us, That the Quakers charge him, and ſuch others, with the Sin of Idolatry, to believe and live according to the Inſtructions and Holy Examples expreſſed in, and by the Scriptures, except they have them by Immediate Inſpiration; and though the Subſtance of it hath been already conſider'd by me, yet I ſhall not grudge my Pains, if the Reader will beſtow his Peruſal, and perhaps he may find ſomething not unſerviceable to the farther Clearing of our Senſe, and Detection of our Adverſary's Diſ-ingenuity: He writes thus in his Reply.

Rep. (Pag. 45.) I produced among others Two Teſtimonies which W. P. takes Notice of; My firſt is out of Morning Watch, Pag. 23. 'And this is Babylon, the 'Mother of Harlots, and the Abomination of all Uncleanneſs.

Rej. I need ſay the leſs to this, becauſe I have ſo clearly and lately defended W. S. in that Book and Page, from any ſuch wretched Meanings and Applications, which J. F. has employ'd his Wits to rack his Words to. Only Reader, obſerve his Fallacy; that he ſets not down what Examples, and what Inſtructions, but confounds Moral with Ceremonial Precepts, on Purpoſe to make us at one Blow cut off all Regard to Scripture indifferently. * Next, mark His Antichriſtianiſm, in that he maketh the Mind of God, and Doctrines and Lives of the Holy Ancients in Scriptures, capable of being underſtood and follow'd, without the Inſpiration of God's Holy Spirit, thereby giving the Lye to the moſt expreſs Texts of Holy Scripture, and the plaineſt Aſſertions of the pureſt Fathers, moſt Famous Reformers, and conſtant Martyrs. I will ſay no more to this, than that our Adverſary himſelf, hath in the ſame Page cited ſo much of W. S. as declares his Perverſion of the other Part of his Book, viz. And are all out of the Life and Power of God; that is, Thoſe that ſay they have God to their Father, ſpeak high Things of Holy Scripture, and bedeck themſelves with the Paſſages thereof, and notwithſtanding are out of the Life and Power of God, are not True Jews or Chriſtians; but are of the Synagogue of Satan, the Abomination of all Uncleanneſs, and which help to make up Babylon, the Mother of Harlots.

For the other Proof he brought, which indeed was his Firſt, though in his Reply he tells us, it was his Laſt, he was afraid to meddle with it, and there was great Reaſon for it; For he knew not which Way to handle it, but it would bite his

* But J. F. Is not that Babylon, or the Antichriſtian Church, which has the Shew and Outſide, but not the Life and Power of Godlineſs? May not Antichriſt adorn himſelf with the Literal Profeſſion of the Goſpel? Certainly all Proteſtants have accorded to this. I am ſure J. Sprig, C. Goad, W. Dell, J. Saltmarſh, T. Collier, yea, J. Fox, Bp. Jewel, J. Reynolds, Dr. Willet, R. Abbot, and a Nameleſs Worthy Author about Queen Elizabeth's Time, in his Voice out of the Wilderneſs, &c. allow of W. Smith's Doctrine, viz. That the meerly Literal, Formal, and Fleſhly-wiſe Church, not Regenerated into the Image and Life of the Son of GOD, is Babylon; and ſome of them are moſt expreſs in the Matter, which I omit for Haſte.

Fingers. I will ſet it down with my Anſwer contracted, that I may help the Reader to another Inſtance, by which he may take his juſt Meaſures of the Man in Hand, reſpecting his Sort of Fair Dealing, or Strength of Argument.

W. Dewſbury he cites thus in his Diſcovery of Man's Return, pag. 21. All People may ſearch the Scriptures, and ſee how you have been deceived by your Teachers, who have cauſed you to ſeek your loſt God in Carnal and Dead Obſervations, Which they have not any Scripture for.

Now, Reader, was not this an extraordinary Paſſage to prove J. Faldo's Charge, viz. That it was Idolatry to act according to Scripture, &c. which is given by our Friend as a Reaſon why People ought not to follow their Blind Teachers: But be pleaſed to read my Defence, as I then writ it.

'W. Dewſbury is ſo far from making it Idolatry to live up to the Scriptures, that 'he condemns the ſeeking for the True God where he was not to be found, which, 'ſaith he, they have no Scripture for; As much as to ſay, that ſuch ſeek after God, 'not according to Scripture: And therefore are both Deceivers and Deceived. Unto which J. F. reply'd nothing, or perhaps had nothing to Reply, except an Acknowledgment, which he thought would not make for his preſent Sort of Credit.

He winds up this Chapter with a Juſtification of his Compariſon of our Doctrine about the Scriptures with that of Jeſuits and Papiſts. I will ſet him down at large.

Rep. Concerning my Parallel between the Jeſuits and the Papiſts in the venom Spit againſt the Scriptures, W. P. hath thus little to ſay, pag. 101. It is Ridiculous, and every way unworthy our Notice, a meer begging of the Queſtion; We can never allow of the Compariſon. But why all this Contempt?

Rejoyn. Contempt pinches his proud Stomach. But, Courteous Reader, aſk J. F. why he left out the Words immediately proceeding, viz. He has been ſo Cunning or Unjuſt rather, as to quote their Authors and not ours; and ſome Paſſages we juſtly doubt. What baſe Juggling is this with his Reader, and Abuſe of his Adverſary. It concern'd him more to be juſt in this than to aſk, Why all this Contempt? And had he not leſs Honeſty than Stomach, we might have expected that Juſtice, the Want of which brings greater Contempt upon him, than my ſober Reflection upon ſuch unfair Dealing.

But he proceeds to cite theſe Words as the whole Reaſon, why we diſallow the Compariſon, 'Since the Papiſts place the Rule and Judgſhip in a Pope, and General Council; and the Quakers in the Eternal, Unerrable, Holy Spirit of God. To which he replies thus.

Rep. The firſt is as I ſaid; the ſecond is Blaſphemouſly Falſe; for the Quakers call their Light within the Spirit of God, which I have ſufficiently proved to be a Blaſphemer of the Spirit of God, a Sordid, Sinful, Corrupt and Ridiculous Thing.

Rejoyn. What he means by his firſt, I know not, unleſs that he ſaid true of the Papiſts. And if any of them have writ or ſpoke unworthily of the Scriptures, we utterly deteſt their Actions. For his ſecond, I confeſs, I am greatly at a ſtand, I have travelled ſeveral Nations, convers'd with Men of moſt Ways of Religion, read a great many Books for my Time; but never yet did I meet with ſuch an Inſolent, Blaſphemous and Scornful Expreſſion, as this I now tranſcrib'd Word for Word out of his Reply. 'Tis true, there was an * Old Peeviſh Prieſt in Ireland, who to get a little Money (as clearly appear'd) writ an Envious Book againſt us, in which he called the Light within an Ignis Fatuus, a Dim Light, &c. who lived long enough to vex himſelf to Death with our Anſwer, as we are credibly inform-ed, not long ſurviving it's Arrival, and general Acceptance of moſt Sorts of People in thoſe Parts; But never yet have I heard or read of ſuch hard Names from the worſt of our Adverſaries; For Tho. Hicks himſelf, in his Dialogues againſt us, acknowledges, that the Light within checketh for many Evils, and excites to many good Things, &c.

* T. Jenner, a Presbyter-Independent Prieſt of Ireland, writ a Book againſt us for Gain; for he went from Houſe to Houſe of many ſufficient, and ſome great Men, to preſent them; ſome gave him a Crown, ſome two Crowns, ſome a Piece: Among others, he had the Confidence and Avarice to give one to the Lord Lievt. of that Kingdom: His Secretary carried it to him; he turning it over obſerved many black Charges, of fouleſt and moſt pernicious Errors to Religion and Civil Government: The Parſon ſtill ſtayed; The Secr. thought he had favoured him ſufficiently: But not underſtanding the Prieſts Aim, that is, Lucre (the Old Prieſts Sin) was preſt to tell his Lord, that he waited for his Excellencies Anſwer. The Secretary was ſo civil as to anſwer his Deſire: But when the Lord Lievt. underſtood his Drift, he returned the Book to the Parſon, with this Account, That he was ſorry to hear that the Quakers held ſuch ill Principles; but the Tares and the Wheat muſt grow together till the Day of Judgment. So the Parſon was corrected for his Baſeneſs, and diſappointed of the great Bone he crept thither for.

It were too large to go over the Praiſes given it by the beſt Jews, Gentiles and Chriſtians. Philo the Jew calls it an Immortal Precept. Plotin, a Gentile, ſays, it is the Root or Life of the Soul: That this Divine Principle in Man makes a true and good Man. Clemens Alexandrinus a Chriſtian-Father, ſpeaks of it thus, The Light will ſhine out of Darkneſs, therefore it ſhines in the hidden Part of Mankind, in the Heart. Again, Man cannot be void of Divine Knowledge, who naturally, or as he cometh into the World, partaketh of Divine Inſpiration, &c. Thus Munſter, Vatablus, Clarius, Caſtellio, Druſius, and Codurcus upon this Paſſage in Job, And upon whom doth not his Light ariſe? acknowledge both its Univerſality and Sufficiency too, where obey'd.

I could produce a Multitude of approved Proteſtants, without being beholding to one Papiſt (whatever J. Faldo ſays of us) in Commendation of the Univerſal Light within; but will conclude with J. Caryl, one of the moſt ancient and eminent Paſtors of the Independent Way, in his Expoſition on Job; and J. Owen, that great Doctor of Independency, in his Latin Exercitations, formerly writ againſt the Quakers, under the Name of Phanaticks, a Term ſince beſtowed and improved, by he knows who, upon ſuch as need no pointing at.

J. Caryl on Job 32. 8. ſays, that Wiſdom and Knowledge in the Things of God, come from the Inſpiration, or in-ſhining, of the Light or Spirit from above. And on Chap. 24. 13. That Light there mentioned ſhined in Wicked Men's Hearts, as well as Good, or to that Purpoſe; And that it is not a Natural or Proper Light, as the Sun in the Firmament, but ſuch as reproved them for their Iniquity, and comes from Above, &c.

J. O. abundantly confeſſeth to the Morality and Univerſality of the Light, calling it alſo a Supernatural and Spiritual as well as Moral Light, as he frequently phraſes it. Good Uſe of which hath been made by our Chriſtian and Learned Friend, Samuel Fiſher, in Anſwer to Him, Rich. Baxter, J. Tombs, and T. Danſon, unto which they have never attempted any the leaſt Reply that we hear of, tho' it greatly concerns their Cauſe and Credit to do ſomething in it. For my own part, I ſhall ſay no more to J. Faldo's Refutation than that he calls the Light within us (by which it hath pleaſed God to redeem us from our Vain Converſation) againſt the Judgment of many Good and Learned Men in ſeveral Ages, A Blaſphemer of the Spirit of God, A Sordid, Sinful, Corrupt and Ridiculous Thing; for which God rebuke him.

But there yet remains a notable Teſtimony of our Friends to be conſidered, which J. Faldo produceth, to prove our great Affinity with the Papiſts.

Rep. If any pretend to be of us, and in Caſe of Controverſy will not admit to be tried by the Church of Chriſt Jeſus, nor ſubmit to the Judgment given by the Spirit in the Elders and Members of the Church, but kick againſt it, ſuch, we teſtifie, ought to be rejected as Heathens.

Rejoyn. Nothing but Rank Ranteriſm can call this Popery in ſuch Diſgrace, or reject it as unſound, as I will make appear.

The Church of Chriſt, endued with his Spirit, hath a Judgment; This Chriſt allows her, and that every Individual ought to reſt ſatisfied in it, in Caſe of Difference; therefore ſaid Chriſt, Tell the Church, and if he refuſe to hear the Church, then let him be as an Heathen and Publican. The Saints ſhall judge the World; and much more by their Judgment determine, or reconcile Things among themſelves.

No Caution or Reſolution could be more ſoundly and ſcripturally laid down; Firſt, It is the Church of Chriſt that judges. Secondly, It muſt be the Judgment of the Church by the Holy Spirit, or rather the Holy Spirit in the Church, not conſiſting fiſting of Elders only, but Elders and Members, which make the whole Church. Laſtly, The Perſons rejected are ſuch as firſt kick or ſpurn againſt the Admonitions of the Church of Chriſt. What Man not bereaved of his Senſes, or as Irreligious as a Ranter, can ſo ſcornfully upbraid us with this Serious, Chriſtian and Neceſſary Diſcipline? Yes! J. Faldo (who pretends both to his Wits and Religion) dares offer ſomething againſt it.

Rep. O the Charity of the Quakers Leaders! All that will not ſubmit to their little Juncto, are with them numbred with Heathens and Infidels. Here the poor Quakers may ſee the Image of the Beaſt among themſelves.

Rejoyn. It were well if J. Faldo would ſhow more Charity in pretending to rebuke us for the want of it; But will he allow of thoſe Aggravations the Epiſcopalians and Preſbyterians made upon, and againſt, the firſt * Browniſts about gathered Churches? Did not they draw as large Concluſions? And had they not as much Ground for doing it, as our Paſſage can give to J. Faldo; ſince they deny'd in moſt harſh Terms The Church of England to be the Church of Chriſt? The ſame did the People call'd Anabaptiſts both of the Church of England, and National Preſbytery. But why our little Juncto, otherwiſe call'd the Spirit of G. Fox, and his Miniſtry, or Repreſentative Body? Is not this caſt out on purpoſe to inſinuate, as if G. F. with other publick Travellers in the Service of the Church, were Lordly or Domineering, (as J. Faldo a little farther calls it,) who rarely meddle with thoſe Things, leaving every Meeting to their own Power? But what Occaſion had he for this Reflection on our Friends Paper, even as by himſelf given us? Doth it not mention the whole Church, and afterwards explain who that Church is, by thoſe two Words, Elders and Members? But ſuch is the Practice of J. F. in his pretended Diſcovery of us.

Nor is there any Reaſon, why J. F. ſhould ſo much ſtomach the Word Heathen, ſince he thinks it a Priviledge to be ſo to us, at leaſt to call us ſo: Beſides, we own every ſuch one to have a Saving Light, which he denies to us, therefore leſs Charitable, nay Unjuſt to the Light; for he eſteems us only fit Company for the worſt Sort of Heathens, ſuch as Julian and Lucian.

It ſeems we muſt be viler than Heathens and Mahometans with J. F. witneſs his firſt Book: But we ought not by any Means to repute ſuch as he is, that denies us and our Principles with Abhorrence, as to us, either Heathen or Infidel; What ſhall we call him then? But hath the Man forgot that the drift of his Book is to Unchriſtian us? That the Title of it is Quakeriſm no Chriſtianity? And that the Cry of his Aſſociates for theſe Twenty Years has been Heatheniſm, Gentiles, Moral, but not Chriſtian Men, and therefore have excommunicated, beaten, impriſoned, and that to Death, and yet by no means muſt we deny theſe Folks to be true Chriſtians, that have ſo long proved themſelves to be none: Though this might ſuffice, that ſuch as that Paper concerned thought us Chriſt's Church, therefore it was juſt to them, whatever it may be to others for whom it was not intended: A Man may abuſe the higheſt Truths, taking to himſelf the Liberty he doth, to pervert our Words and Sayings: His two Books, in God's Day, will prove to his great Shame and Condemnation this one Charge, that I have often in other Words upon occaſion ſaid concerning him, viz. J. Faldo's Charge againſt the Quakers are not their Principles, but his own Conſequences falſly drawn from them.

To conclude, If ſuch inoffenſive, nay Chriſtian and neceſſary Reſolutions for the right Diſciplining the Church of Chriſt in the Ways of Peace and Righteouſneſs, cannot eſcape J. Faldo's Cruel Hands, inſtead of rendring us Papiſts, I ſhall not wonder if from a Non-Conforming Prieſt he turns a Spaniſh Inquiſitor, or any Thing elſe that can be worſe: But it is Pity he ſhould leave us, and not ſee his Face before he goes. I will acquaint him therefore (if yet a ſtranger) with an Excommunication drawn up and pronounc'd by an Independent of great Note, being in the Parliament's Time Maſter of Pembrook Hall in Cambridge, and Paſtor of a Church in London.

Sydrach Sympſon's EXCOMMUNICATION of Capt. Richard Norwood.

'I do in the Name of the Lord Jeſus and his People declare Mr. Norwood one that hath lifted up his Tongue and Heart againſt the Lord Jeſus Chriſt, and God the Father, one that from hence forward we have no more to do withall till he repent, but ſhall continually pray that his Nights may not be quiet for the Thoughts of his Sin, but that his Bed may be filled with Tears. I charge all you both of the Church, and all other that are Chriſtians, that you ſhould look upon him as one that God would have thus ſeverely uſed, until that he * buckle under his Sins, and then our Souls ſhall rejoyce. In the Name of our Lord Jeſus Chriſt we deliver him unto Satan for the Deſtruction of the Fleſh, that his Soul may be ſaved.

Rob. Nor. his Anſ. to Syd. Sym. Excom. pag. 8.

* An odd and unſound Phraſe.

To prove this Authority by Example, he produceth this Piece of Antiquity, however ill it befits an Independent Church-Man.

'The Church of Pallemnis, as Semetius reports, excommunicates Andronicus in theſe Words: Let no Man account Andronicus a Chriſtian, but look upon him as one whom God execrates; have no Company with him, but what is neceſſary.

This Reader is the Moderation and Charity of ſuch as J. Faldo accounts both a true Miniſter and a Chriſtian Society; much of this have we found at the Hands of the ſame Sort of Separatiſts. But firſt obſerve (according as J. F. would have us underſtand it by his Cenſure of us in a Caſe leſs obnoxious) the abſolute Authority perſonally aſſumed, and how much S. S. acted the Pope (in J. F's Language) or arbitrary Prelate in this Matter, that had been an earneſt Decryer of the ſame Spirit in a more national Clergy. 2ly, It is worth our Notice, that the Matter Firſt charged was, a (pretended) Untruth, relating to Civil Commerce, from which he cleared himſelf to his Adverſaries publick Confuſion: But this was but the Preface, the Buſineſs is behind; for he denied the Locality of Heaven and Hell, that is, looked upon them as void of outward Place, and to have a more ſpiritual Signification, and that the other was too carnal, indeed Mahometan; and that he believed the Soul to have been breathed from God, thereby aſſigning to it ſomething more of Divinity than the uſual Opinion doth. For this and no more (as the Pamphlet informs me, which recites the Reaſons of the Excommunication) do they excommunicate him; yet to colour the Buſineſs the better, like as J. Faldo does with us, S. S. expells him their Society, for denying an Heaven and Hell at all, and as rendring the Soul God himſelf; crying out, Satanical Devices, Atheiſm and Blaſphemy. There is one Paſſage this Captain took Notice of, not unfit to be obſerved by us, with Reſpect to the Uſe J. F. makes of our Paper. S. S. in his Proem or Introduction to his Excommunication uſed among other theſe Words, That though Men may withdraw themſelves from the People of God, they cannot from the Ordinances of God, meaning, as I ſuppoſe, that his paſtoral Power could or ſhould reach beyond Conſtantinople or a farther Place, to excommunicate, Anathema, Maranatha, an Offender, &c. But to this the Perſon ſo dealt with, anſwers, and for ought I know more juſtifiably than J. F. can pretend to do to us (for we allow no ſuch perſonal and paſtoral Dignity and prerogative Power to any Man, nor do we uſe any ſuch Forms of Excommunication) ſays he, Have I therefore withdrawn my ſelf from the People of God, becauſe I have withdrawn from you, Are none the People of God but your ſelves? What are all thoſe you are withdrawn from, All Damned?

This is ſuch an Argumentum ad hominem, as I am of the Mind ought to trouble J. F. if the leaſt Grain of Modeſty be in him, what he chargeth upon us is outdone by themſelves, and the Aggravations he would render us odious by, are made the natural Conſequences of their own Excommunications.

I will conclude this with telling my Reader, that for no other Cauſe than what is expreſt, namely Opinion (and that not very offenſive) this Perſon once accounted greatly of among them, being a Member of their high Court of Juſtice, was firſt traduced, then excommunicated, after this, complained of to the Powers, by them, therefore deprived of his civil Employ; and though they were his Debtors, both both for Money lent, and his Services done them (if we may credit his printed Narrative) the Prieſthood ſo prevailed, that the Lord Mayor Andrews ſent a Warrant for him, had him brought rudely and violently to the Seſſions at the Old-Baily, and there placed among Thieves and Murderers, in Order to his Trial for Blaſphemy.

Theſe were the meek and hearty Pretenders to, and Fighters for Liberty of Conſcience, that when they had the Power in their Hand proved abundantly they intended it only for themſelves; not unlike to their great Geneva Doctor, that made Servetus keep Company with his Books, or rather had him burnt by them (as if it had been to ſave Wood) for Exceeding their Preſbyterian Reformation, and inſtead of repenting, defended it in Writing, when he had done, at what Time the ſaid Doctor and that whole City were perſecuted themſelves with the Anathema's of Rome; and 'tis not to be doubted, but they thought them unchriſtian. It would fill a Volumn to tell the Tragical Excommunications and other notable Feats done by ſome of this Tribe of Men, for the Maintenance of their Church, Power and Dignity, oftentimes ſaving the civil Magiſtrate the Trouble of abuſing ſuch poor Diſſenters from them, as we are, by a licentious Uſurpation and Practice of his Power upon their Backs: We well know it; yet has this Man the Confidence to fall hard on us for cenſuring ſuch as recede from what they once own'd, and becauſe we can never allow them, as ſuch, to be of us, he cries out, O the Charity of the Quakers, the Quakers may ſee the Image of the Beaſt among themſelves, &c. But on better Grounds may every ingenious Reader return this Exclamation, O the Incharity of J. F. and his Adherents, whoſe very Mercies are Cruelties. Let him pack up his Pipes, and play us no more of theſe Envious and Hypocritical Notes, and hold himſelf contented, that whether we be the Image or no, to be ſure he has made Sydrach Sympſon and his Church the Beaſt in great Letters, cum multis aliis, not forgetting nor excluding his own railing and excommunicating ſelf.

The CONCLUSION of the Firſt Part.

WE have now run through his Nine Chapters, Seven of which concerned the Scriptures, doubtleſs writ to vindicate his former Diſcourſe; but with what Succeſs, I leave with Thee, Courteous Reader, to judge. And before I ſum up our Senſe, for a Farewel to this Part of his Pamphlet, I requeſt thee, when thou next fall'ſt into Company with J. Faldo or any of that Tribe of Men (the pretended Admirers of the Scripture; and one would almoſt think, the devouteſt Obſervers of thoſe Precepts, and preciſeſt Imitators of thoſe Examples expreſſed therein) to aſk in good Earneſt, Whether it be the whole, and every Part of Scripture they call the Word of God, and Rule of Faith and Life, or No? If they ſay, All and every Part of it, then the Words of Wicked Kings, Falſe Prophets, Perſecutors, &c. yea, the Devil himſelf, therein at large declared, with the whole Jewiſh Hiſtory, and Ceremonial and Judicial Law (containing the Government, Sacrifices, Prieſthood, and all other Jewiſh Rights) will neceſſarily make up a great Part of the Word of God, and their Rule of Faith and Life. But if they ſhall anſwer Negatively, that they are not in the whole and every Part of them the Word of God, and Rule of Faith and Life; Then aſk them, Which are thoſe Places, Precepts and Examples, that particularly concern us under this Adminiſtration? And if they anſwer this Enquiry, and are not grown too hot and angry by this Time, entreat them to tell thee, By what they diſcern and diſtinguiſh in this weighty Matter? For if they either ſet aſide what they ſhould receive, or continue what ſhould be laid aſide, they Add or Diminiſh to what themſelves acknowledge to be the Word of God: If they ſay, the Harmony of Scriptures, the ſame Queſtion holds, How, and by what doth it appear ſo Harmonious? ſince there are very deep and obſcure Places, and ſometimes ſeeming Contradictions, and that in higheſt Points. If they ſay, by the Spirit and Underſtanding of meer Man; the Apoſtle Paul directly oppoſes himſelf to every ſuch Anſwer, 1 Cor. 2. But if (thus driven) they anſwer in the Words of J. Owen, 'That the only Publick, Authentick, and Infallible Interpreter of the Holy Scripture is HE, who is the AUTHOR of them, from the Breathing of whoſe Spirit it derives all it's Verity, Perſpicuity, and Authority, Exerc. 2, 7, 9. againſt the Quakers: Entreat their Patience to ſtand one Queſtion ſtion more, and thou haſt done, viz. If the Verity, Perſpicuity and Authority of the Scriptures depend upon the Breathing of the Holy Spirit; or as he expreſſes it a little farther, the Infuſing a Spiritual Light into our Hearts; Then, Whether People ought not to have Recourſe unto the Holy Spirit and Light, as the only Interpreter, Judge and Rule, what Scripture remains of Force to our Day; and how, and which Way ſuch Scripture is to be underſtood? When thou haſt obtained ſuch ſober Anſwers as thy Queſtions deſerve at their Hands, I ſhould be very glad to have the Peruſal of them. In the mean Time we own, and with our whole Hearts confeſs, Firſt, That the Scriptures (given forth by Inſpiration) are a true and faithful Narrative or Declaration of the Mind of God towards the Sons and Daughters of Men, and his various Dealings with them, reſpecting Precepts, Propheſies, Threatnings, Promiſes, Providences, Rewards, Puniſhments, Deliverances, Doctrines, Examples and Practices.

Secondly, That they are Profitable for Reproof, Inſtruction, Edification and Comfort.

Thirdly, That it is the Spirit of God, which only gives Men to read, underſtand, and uſe them to Advantage, as Thomas Collier hath well expreſs'd it about Twenty Five Years ago' viz. 'And truly, Brethren, it is my earneſt Deſire, to ſee Souls 'to live more in the Spirit, and leſs in the Letter; and then they will ſee, That we ' judge of the Letter by the Spirit, and not of the Spirit by the Letter, which oc- 'caſions ſo much Ignorance amongſt us; And they who profeſs themſelves to be our ' Teachers, are chief in this Treſpaſs.

Fourthly, That the Holy Spirit is the New Covenant, Rule and Judge; it being the Promiſe of the Father, and Miniſtry and Diſpenſation of the latter Days, as theſe Scriptures abundantly prove, Neh. 9. 19, 20. Job 32. 8. Iſa. 59. 21. Joel 2. 28, 29. Hag. 2. 25. Mat. 16. 17. Jo. 14. 17, 18, 19. Chap. 16. 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15. Rom. 8. 1, 9, 14. 1 Cor. 2. 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16. Gal. 5. 16, 18. Eph. 1. 17. 1 Jo. 2. 20, 27. Yet we deny not but the Lord hath and yet may make the Holy Scripture a Mean to ſeveral in the Hand of his Spirit, of Underſtanding and Comfort; and ſo far they may be a particular Rule: Yea, I do believe they have been, and yet are, next to a Living and Powerful Miniſtry, a more ordinary Mean, than many, if not any other whatever. Howbeit, we are not to center here, but preſs on forward to the Life, Power and Spirit it ſelf, of which they declare; for into that God hath determined to bring, and (as it were) wind up his People, by which they come to be fulfilled; whereas thoſe that ſtick in the Letter of them, and paſs not through and beyond it, into the Life and Virtue they bear Record of, know but as the Scribes and Phariſees did, and cannot as ſuch be true and faithful Witneſſes for the true and living God.

Fifthly, We have proved our Doctrine of the Scriptures and the Holy Spirit (as by us diſtinguiſht and cleared from J. F*'s Perverſions) by Abundance of ſuch Authorities,* as, I think, he dares not gain-ſay. So that we cannot be longer Hereticks, and thoſe continue Orthodox; ſhewing thereby, that we are but preſſing more intirely, plainly and effectually what the beſt Proteſtants and Separatiſts have, at Times, not only let drop from their Mouths and Pens, but inſiſted on, and propheſied alſo the Increaſe and Enlargement of in the Hearts of Men, however forgot or denied by their Dry and Degenerated Poſterity.

Laſtly, That we do not therefore exhort People to hearken unto the Voice and Leadings of the Holy Spirit, which ſtrive with them (as that by which God, who is a Spirit, comes truly to be known, and the Scriptures themſelves only to be read with a right Underſtanding, and true Benefit) with any the leaſt Deſign, to juſtle the Scriptures out of their Place and Authority (No, God knows it is not our Purpoſe) but for this very End do we ſo write and ſpeak, that People do come to poſſeſs what they declare of, and witneſs them fulfilled in themſelves, inſtead of contending about what they do not underſtand, and which can never be revealed to that dead, dark and unregenerate State in which they live; for the Lord is at Work (as I ſaid before) to gather People more and more into the Spirit and Life of his Son, accompliſhing his Glorious Promiſes in theſe latter Days, and bringing People to the good Things themſelves, by which Out-ſides are daily wearing off more and more, and the Teſtimonies of Holy Scripture witneſſed and fulfilled in them that believe: Which is not to Overthrow, but to anſwer the great End of their firſt Publication and Preſervation unto this very Day; Whereas the contrary is not truly to eſteem them, but under the very vain Pretence of it, to withſtand, and as much as in them lieth, to bar out the Great Goſpel-Miniſtration, which ſtands in the Convictions, Inſtructions, Leadings and Orderings of the Holy Spirit: And unto that muſt all come, who in this Life would witneſs a Tranſlation into Chriſt's Kingdom, that is not of this World, and know a Being made free of that Jeruſalem which comes down from above, the Mother of the Free-born, which they only are that have been born again by the Regenerating Word; to whom the Formal and Literal Profeſſors are but as Hagar, and her Off-ſpring; unto Sarah and the Seed of the Promiſe. And this is the Word of the God of Heaven and Earth unto all thoſe that are yet unacquainted with this Convincing, Baptizing, Reconciling, Ingrafting and Regenerating Word, Power, or Spirit within. And ſo I am thus far clear of your Blood, and am at Peace with the God of my Salvation.

Part II.
Chap. I.

CHAP. I.

Of Goſpel-Ordinances in General, ſuch truly embraced.

THIS Second Part of my Rejoynder is a Conſideration of his Defence of his Charge, of our Denying Goſpel-Ordinances, the True Chriſt, with his Tranſactions at Jeruſalem; alſo, that we are guilty of Idolatry, and own not the Reſurrection of the Dead. The Work of this Chapter will be to ſee, how he will make good our Denial of Goſpel-Ordinances in General. Be pleaſed to hear how he handleth both me and the Matter.

Rep. Pag. 49, 50. The firſt Proof is out of Fox, Myſt. p. 2. 'He hath triumphed over the Ordinances, and blotted them out, and they are not to be touched, and 'the Saints of Chriſt in them, who is the End of outward Forms. This ſaith W. P. Pag. 103, is Scripture Language. But why ſo? Becauſe ſome Scripture Words are in it, although the Text be mangled, corrupted, and abuſed to the Contradiction of Scripture-Truth. Thus they apply ſinfully enough Falſe Prophets, Dogs, Serpents, Hypocrites, Devil, Lyar, &c. But if I ſhould call W. P. Thou Child of the Devil, Thou Enemy of all Righteouſneſs, he would not therefore allow it to be all very true, though ſo applied, it looks much more like Truth than G. Fox's Scriptural Language, who hath theſe Words about Baptiſm and the Lord's Supper.

Rejoyn. For his Proof as he calls it, it is not in Pag. 52 of G. F's Book, which were Anſwer enough to ſo ſhuffling an Adverſary. I confeſs, in Page 16, I find it, but it is ſo far from being immediately directed to either Baptiſm or Supper, that there is no ſuch Thing mentioned, much leſs inſiſted on from the Beginning of G. F's Anſwer to J. Timſon's Book, to the very Place wherein the Words are found: Now, What to call this Piece of Invention, is left with every Reader's Diſcretion. But it is not leſs worth our Notice, that of all my Explanation of G. F's Words, he only reports theſe three, viz. is Scripture Language, who farther told him, 'Chriſt did blot out the Hand-writing of Ordinances, Coloſ. 2. 14. 'That he was to the Saints then, and is to thoſe now, who rightly believe in him, 'the End of all Meats, Drinks, Waſhings, Days, or any other Temporal Ele'mentary or Figurative Worſhip, according to Verſe 16, 17. By this it will appear, whether of us two have moſt honeſtly and moſt truly applied Scripture; I in thus expounding and vindicating G. F's Paſſage, or J. Faldo in calling me (by Implication) a Child of the Devil, and an Enemy of all Righteouſneſs. But again,

Rep. Pag. 50. I alſo told Mr. Penn, That if the Saints having Chriſt in them, were the Conſideration, for which the Ordinances were not to be touched, then not only we, but even all other Saints under the Moſaical Adminiſtration ſinned in their Practices of God's Ordinances alſo; for they had Chriſt in them in thoſe Days in the ſame Senſe as the Saints in theſe.

Rejoyn. This Saying carries with it a large Conceſſion to Chriſt's Manifeſtation in the Hearts of his People, as well under the Moſaical Adminiſtration, as that which we call, for Diſtinction, Evangelical; Indeed larger, than true, if by the ſame Senſe, he underſtands, that all that he was to his Apoſtles, and the Churches by them planted, he was to the People of Iſrael under the Conduct of Moſes; for, firſt, it is manifeſt they were not capable of ſuch Diſcoveries, being weak-ſighted, carnal, and greatly addicted to embrace the Fopperies of the Heathen: Secondly, There would have been no need of ſhewing forth a farther Glory by Types and Figures, or to entertain Minds ſo enlighted and heavenly with ſuch low, and as the Apoſtle phraſeth them, beggarly Things, had they enjoy'd Chriſt under the Adminiſtration of Moſes, as in more Goſpel-Times. But above all, that J. Faldo ſhould plead for the Continuance of Ordinances after Chriſt had blotted them out, and ſuch Meats and Drinks, &c. as Chriſt ended, (being the Subſtance of them) becauſe Chriſt might be in ſome Meaſure known to the Saints of old, at what Time ſuch Ordinances were given forth, and ſuch Meats and Drinks obſerv'd, is Jewiſh, and, as I ſaid in my Anſwer, to plead for a Legal Diſpenſation and Bondage to the Shadows of the good Things to come, thereby making Chriſt's Coming of none Effect. But to proceed,

Rep. Page 50. Yet though P. gives me bad Words to ſtrengthen his Argument, he grants what I ſay to be true in his Anger; for (ſays he) Chriſt is to the Saints now, who rightly believe in him, the End of all Meats, Drinks, Waſhings, Days; Here Lord's-Supper, Baptiſm, Chriſtian Sabbath, or Day of Holy Reſt, are all deny'd in Four Words.

Rejoyn. If they be, it is his own Fault; for inſtead of my granting what he ſays to be true, I never mentioned them; and indeed he hath ſo manifeſtly given away his Cauſe by this unadviſed Expreſſion, as we need no more againſt him on this Occaſion: For thoſe four Words by which he makes me to deny the Lord's-Supper, Baptiſm, and the * Chriſtian Sabbath, are ſuch as we muſt reject, or we turn the Goſpel-Miniſtration out of Doors; They are the Apoſtle's own Words to the Coloſſians, (Col. 2. 16, 17.) Let no Man therefore judge you in Meat or in Drink, or in Reſpect of an Holy Day, or of the Sabbath Days, which are a Shadow of Things to come, but the Body is of Chriſt; and to the Hebrews, Chap. 9. Verſe 10. which ſtood only in Meats, Drinks, and divers Waſhings, and Carnal Ordinances, impoſed on them until the Time of Reformation. I ſay, here the four Words are denied to be Evangelical, viz. Meats, Drinks, Waſhings, Days; and ſince John Faldo will have the Supper to be conſider'd under Meats and Drinks, Baptiſm under Waſhings, and the Chriſtian Sabbath under Days, either He muſt with us, Deny them, as Meats, Drinks, Waſhings and Days, that are aboliſh'd, and therefore not fit to be continu'd under the Evangelical Adminiſtration; or maintain the Continuance of Meats, Drinks, Waſhings and Days, to keep up the Supper, Baptiſm, and

---

* To call any Day of the Week a Chriſtian-Sabbath, is not Chriſtian but Jewiſh; give us one Scripture for it; I will give two againſt it. Gal. 4. 9, 10, 11, 12. where the Apoſtle makes their Obſervation, or Preference, of Days, to be no leſs than a Token of their Turning from the Goſpel. Alſo Col. 2. 16. An outward Sabbath, or keeping of a Day, to be but a Shadow; and that Chriſtians ought not to be judged for rejecting ſuch Cuſtoms; for this very Reaſon the Proteſtant-Churches beyond the Seas generally deny the Morality of the Firſt Day, counting all Days alike in themſelves, only they have Reſpect to the Firſt Day, as an Apoſtolical Cuſtom, and think it convenient to give One Day of Reſt from Labour to Man and Beaſt each Week. Of this Mind ſeveral Learned Proteſtants of our own Country have declared themſelves to be; So that neither our Engliſh Epiſcopalians, nor French Presbyterians, can eſcape J. Faldo's Conſequence any more than the Quakers; for if thoſe that deny the Supper, Baptiſm, and the Firſt Day of the Week to be the Chriſtian Sabbath, deny Goſpel Ordinances, then thoſe who deny the Firſt Day of the Week (J. F's Chriſtian Sabbath) to be the Chriſtian Sabbath, muſt needs deny a Goſpel Ordinance, but that do many Engliſh Epiſcopalians, and moſt French Presbyterians, therefore both ſeveral Engliſh Epiſcopalians, and the generality of the French Presbyterians, are Deniers of a Goſpel-Ordinance: Conſequently J. F. told an Untruth in his Preface, when he aſſured both Epiſcopalians and Presbyterians, that they were no farther concerned in his Diſcourſe than vindicated. In ſhort, Though we aſſert but one Chriſtian Sabbath, and believe that to be the Everlaſting Day of Reſt from all our own Works, to Worſhip and Enjoy God in the Newneſs of the Spirit; yet 'tis well known that we both meet upon the Firſt Day in the Week, and behave our ſelves with as inoffenſive a Converſation as any of our Sabbatharian Adverſaries. The Honour is God's, by whom we are what we are; but this Teſtimony I record for God, His Goſpel and Right-begotten children, that the Meats, Drinks, Waſhings and Days-obſerving Chriſtians are not come ſo far, as thoſe fooliſh Galatians, for whom the Apoſtle travelled again, until Chriſt were formed in them, Gal. 4. 19. being yet Strangers to the Life, Power, Spirit, and Subſtance of the Goſpel.

Sabbath, and thereby eſpouſe the Jews Quarrel againſt the Chriſtians, and defend the moſt Rank, Childiſh and Carnal Part of Judaiſm againſt Chriſtianity it ſelf.

My Reader may by this perceive what a Goſpel it is J. Faldo would have, who pleads for the Uſe of thoſe Things under the Goſpel which are repugnant to the Nature of it; for in one Place the Apoſtle calls them Shadows, and in another, ſuch Figures as could not make ſuch as uſed them perfect, as pertaining to the Conſcience, Hebr. 9. 9. which the Goſpel doth not continue, but make an utter End of, by the bringing in a more excellent Covenant, Hope and Service.

His ſaying I was Angry, and gave him bad Words, is like the reſt: What ſhall I ſay to a Man that dares ſay any Thing, be it never ſo far from Truth, provided it may caſt an Odium upon me, where he can't confute me? The hardeſt Words I gave, were, that he baſely wreſted our Words; of which let the Reader judge: And for Anger, God knows I had none; I pity him. But he goes on.

Rep. Page 50. W. P. to make a full End, adds, ‘ or any other Elementary, ‘ Temporary, or Figurative Worſhip. Now if he can ſhew us any Goſpel-Worſhip, conſidered entirely and formally, that is not Temporal Worſhip, he will do more than ever Man yet did; but in the mean Time he hath confirmed my Charge.

Rejoyn. I have confirmed it by the Rule of Contraries, or by the ſame Figure our Friends Writings uſe to maintain his Accuſations: Certainly J. F. can never mean as he writes, and be Knowing and Honeſt too. If to confute his Charge be to eſtabliſh it, I hope my Reader will ſay, I have done it effectually; I know not whether to impute it to his Vanity or Lazineſs; for at every Turn we muſt prove his Charges, give Evidence againſt our ſelves, and Dye by our own Hands, while it is to be remembred, that amidſt all this Folly, J. Faldo muſt have the Liberty of Tampering with his Witneſſes, that is, Reſting, Patching, Adding, Diminiſhing, Tranſpoſing, Miſ-interpreting our Words and Meanings, or elſe he would be wholly at a Loſs. Many Inſtances I have given of his Skill herein; and his pretty Sort of wreſting the Word Temporal in this very Sentence, doth make up another; for I mean by Temporal, as the Words Elementary and Figurative immediately following do fully explain, no other than ſuch a Worſhip, as is inſtituted for a ſet Time, till ſomething more excellent and durable comes in the Room of it, as the Typical Worſhip of the Jews, that ſerved it's Seaſon, and then gave Place to the Spiritual and Eternal Worſhip of the New and Everlaſting Covenant: And this Man takes me, as if I underſtood it of a Worſhip performed within Time in any Senſe, thereby making me to deny the Performing of Worſhip to Almighty God, the Time Men live in the World, becauſe it may be called from the Word Time, or Tempus, Temporal, reſtraining that to the Nature of Worſhip, which only relates to the Act of Worſhip: As thus, The Act or Performance of Worſhip may be to Day, the Nature of that Worſhip, Eternal; ſo that Worſhip may be performed within Time, and yet not be by Nature Temporal: But the Worſhip of the Jews, reſpecting thoſe Exteriour and Shadowy Things, was by Nature Temporal.

Reply, (Pag. 50.) W. P's next Fault he finds, is with my ſaying, That Pennington meant by the City of Abomination, Viſible Worſhip. If the Worſhip which he acknowledgeth God to be found in, and which Profeſſors, about the Years 43, 44, 45, 46, uſed, were Viſible Worſhip, or any Part of it Viſible Worſhip, then Pennington ſaid it of Viſible Worſhip.

Rejoyn. A Fault ſo palpable is ſoon found; Who not ſtark Blind with Envy, would make ſo ill a Conſtruction of ſo ſound an Expreſſion? J. P. ſaid, The Lord would not ſpare ſuch as do not come out of the City of Abomination, that is, ſaith J. Faldo, Viſible Worſhip, as if they were Synonimous, or Terms of equal Signification; City of Abomination, that is, Viſible Worſhip; back again, Viſible Worſhip, that is, City of Abomination. Is this Man fit to write of Religion, that adventures ſo boldly to pervert Men's Writings? But he thinks this will excuſe him, that I. P. meant ſuch Worſhip as God was found in, and which Profeſſors uſed about 43, 44, &c. but this is too boldly obtruded; for, what Man can think I. P. ſo brutiſh, as to call that Worſhip, in which himſelf confeſſeth God to be found, the City of Abomination? I. P. ſpoke of the Nature of, and not the Viſibility of Worſhip; for there is not a Word of it in his Writings, ſo that he endeavours to maintain One Falſhood by another. But that his Charge is yet True againſt the Quakers, he produceth a Teſtimony out of G. F's Myſtery, pag. 65. “ Paul brought the Saints “ off from the Things that are ſeen, and Water is ſeen, and it's Baptiſm; adding, Now unleſs W. P. will ſay, That Things ſeen are not Viſible, G. F. hath certainly failed W. P. But this Shift will not ſerve J. Faldo's Turn, ſince G. F. meant a Viſible

Viſible Changeable, and not a Viſible Permanent Worſhip; This Paſſage relates to Figurative and Temporary Services, ſtanding in thoſe Things which were but Signs of the Subſtance to come, and which are finiſhed by it: So that the Apoſtle did indeed labour to bring the Jews, and other weak Chriſtians, off from their Viſible, Typical, or Legal, to the more Spiritual Worſhip of the Goſpel; not that they ſhould be debarred from expreſſing that Worſhip; for while Bodies * and Souls are together, there is (as I writ at large in my Anſwer) a Neceſſity of ſome Bodily Demonſtration. I will yet give one Reliſh more of the Man's diſingenuous Spirit, before I conclude this Chapter.

Rep. (Pag. 50.) Before W. P. parts from this Argument he grows kind, and ſhews the Power of Condeſcenſion to have place in him (by theſe Words) "Yet thus far we "could go, That Viſible Worſhip (as ſuch) without a due Regard to what Kind of "Worſhip it may be, and what is the Root from whence it came, cannot be well-"pleaſing to God: A great Compliance indeed, which is thus much Juſt, and no more, a Man's filling a Dung-Cart, or. W. P's acting on the Stage, or the Table in their Meeting-Place, as like a Fencer as ever was ſeen, are not Worſhip becauſe ſeen, though they ſhould by ſome be ſo called; for every Thing that is ſeen, is not therefore Worſhip.

Rejoyn. His acknowledgment of my Condeſcenſion, is a ſmall Artifice to inſinuate my yielding him the Cauſe. But what Reaſon he had to commend me, would be better ſeen, by conſidering how aptly and honeſtly he hath replied to that little Piece of my Anſwer he found in his Heart to give us. He thinks to fling us off with his dirty and vain Similitudes; I writ of Viſible Worſhip, as Praying, Speaking, &c. on a Religious Account, he turns it to any Viſible Thing, as Filling a Dung-Cart, Acting on a Stage or Table as a Fencer (Similes right-well ſuiting his Diſpoſition) as if I denied that to be Worſhip, which was ſeen, becauſe ſeen, which was the fartheſt Thing from my Thoughts, and is not at all deduceable from my Words, yet hath this Man the Confidence to tell his Reader, That they ſignify juſt thus much and no more.

But in good Conſcience, Courteous Reader, can this Man think to eſcape the Hands of God, that acts with ſo much wilful Baſeneſs againſt me, as to make no Difference between my Saying, That Viſible Worſhip, as ſuch, unleſs proceeding from a Right Root, cannot be well-pleaſing to God; and ſaying, That Viſible Worſhip is not Worſhip, becauſe Viſible, though it ſhould proceed from never ſo True a Ground, which he makes my Anſwer to ſpeak, at leaſt he infers ſo from it, though a direct Contradiction? Is it one and the ſame Thing to ſay, Viſible Worſhip is not therefore True Worſhip, becauſe Viſible, and concluding filling a Dung-Cart is not True Worſhip, becauſe Viſible? Is it honeſtly done to apply that to Acting upon Stages and Fencing, which by me was joyned to Worſhip? If I had ſaid Viſible Fencing, as ſuch, is not Worſhip, becauſe ſeen, his ſilly Shift might have had ſomething in it; but to make no Difference betwixt ſaying, that Viſible Prayer is not True Worſhip becauſe ſeen, and Fencing, or filling a Dung-Cart is not True Worſhip becauſe ſeen (thereby turning what I ſaid of Worſhip, to every Trivial or Common Action among Men) is unworthy of an ingenious Diſputant, much more an Humble Chriſtian, and leaſt of all a Chriſtian Miniſter. In ſhort, I ſpoke againſt Viſible Worſhip, not Rightly Grounded, (a Poſition as True as Scripture it ſelf; for it is Scripture twenty Times over) and he twiſteth it, to my Denial of Worſhip becauſe Viſible, be it grounded as it will, as his laſt Words in the Chapter tell us, For every Thing (ſays he, as the Senſe of my Anſwer) that is ſeen, is not therefore Worſhip; inſtead of this, Every Worſhip that is ſeen, is not therefore True Worſhip. But his extending the Major Propoſition to every Viſible Thing, and not to Viſible Worſhip only, opens a Gap for his wild and extravagant Similes. I will lay down our Propoſitions, that the whole World may ſee his unjuſt Way of dealing with us.

My Propoſition lay in Form thus.

That Viſible Worſhip, which ariſeth not from a Right Ground, is not acceptable with God.

But John Faldo's Viſible Worſhip (ſay) ariſeth not from a Right Ground. Therefore, John Faldo's Viſible Worſhip is not Acceptable with God.

The Argument, as he gives it in my Name, formed, lies thus.

That which is ſeen, is not Worſhip.

---

* See Judas and the Jews combin'd againſt Chriſt.

But a Man's filling a Dung-Cart, &c. is ſeen. Therefore,
Filling a Dung-Cart, &c. is not Worſhip.

Which Argument makes nothing Worſhip that is ſeen, or viſible, however truly grounded, becauſe Viſible, inſtead of making ſuch Viſible Worſhip not True, which doth not proceed from a right Root.

Now be pleaſed Friendly Reader, to obſerve whither this Evaſion drives the Matter.

If that which is ſeen be not therefore Worſhip (as ſays J. F. in my Name) then publick Praying or Preaching, though of never ſo True a Kind, or ariſing from never ſo Right a Ground, becauſe ſeen, is not Worſhip, much leſs True Worſhip:

By this it undeniably appears, that my Adverſary hath at beſt miſtaken my Anſwer, which abundantly confeſſeth (as he himſelf hath obſerved in his Reply, p. 50.) That there will be, there muſt be, and there ought to be a Viſible Worſhip; and that ſuch Viſible Worſhip only is rejected, which ariſeth not from a Right Ground in the Heart: But how can this be, if publick Praying and Preaching, ſpringing from never ſo Spiritual a Root, becauſe ſeen, muſt be no Worſhip (which J. F. tells the World in my Name) How can theſe ſo grand Oppoſites meet? Or how is it poſſible to reconcile Things as contrary as this; William Penn owns Viſible Worſhip: William Penn denies Viſible Worſhip? For it is no leſs than to make me renounce Viſible Worſhip for Viſibility's Sake, who by my Principles and * Writings hold and maintain ſuch Viſible Worſhip, as is of a True Nature, or ſprings from a Good and Spiritual Ground: So that it is not the Viſibility, but the Ground or Nature (not being as it ſhould be) that is the Reaſon of our Exception.

* See Judas and the Jews combin'd againſt Chriſt.

Dr. Everard's Sermons.

'Beloved, I would have you ponder theſe Things well: If ye ſet up Ordinances, &c. ſo as to build and reſt in them, ye do make Idols of them, or at beſt, you play the Babes and Children with them, by reſting always on ſuch Crutches and Gobies, and never come to be Young Men, much leſs as Fathers in Chriſt, pag. 562. And truly, with ſome Men herein lies the Top, or Quinteſſence of their Religion, making ſuch ado about Shadows and Figures, and Reſemblances, and they let the Truth, the Subſtance, the Thing paſs, and regard it not; foraſmuch as they are ſo zealous and hot about Forms. But if they are by any drawn up to ſpeak of the Subſtance, they are as Men loſt, cold and heartleſs; which is a plain Evidence to me, That they prefer the Shadow before the Subſtance, being meerly exerciſed about Childiſh Things, and are not willing to come up to the Truth, to the Excellencies and Glories, of what Baptiſm, and other Ordinances ſignifie, &c. p. 560.

C. Goad's Laſt Teſtimony, p. 76.

'Ordinances are Vails, Man's Miniſtry is a Vail; if we ſee God in it, it is but darkly.

C. Goad's Secret and Safe Chamber, p. 72.

'The Carnal Jew looks for the fulfilling of the Letter, the Spiritual Jew looks for the Spirit: Abraham, Iſaac and Jacob ſought a Country, not an Earthly One, but an Heavenly: We pitch upon Figures and Vails, and enter not within the Vail. Theſe outward Things are a Vail, a Table made a Snare; but when we are turned to the Lord, the Vail ſhall be taken away. All Man's Teaching, Wiſdom, &c. makes the Vail the thicker: Thoſe that only feed upon the Vail, upon Outward Things, in which God may appear, their Life ſhall be deſtroyed, when others are fed and feaſted.

Joſhua Sprig, Pag. 142, 143, 144, 147, 148.

'The Deſign is to couple the Lord and Ordinances together; and we cannot endure to hear of the parting of them. Swear by the Lord, and Swear by Malcham, ſo we have but Ordinances we are well; ſomething from the Fleſhly Form and Appearance we do promiſe our ſelves, and ſo, like the Iſraelites, hanker after the Fleſh-Pots of Egypt, though they had as good Meat in the Wilderneſs: So, 'though God offer himſelf, and Chriſtians tell you, they cannot find God in ſuch Forms, but find Him abundantly Good in the Spirit; and though he be gone out of the Temple, yet they find Him in their Hearts, they preſs you to wait till God appear to you in the Spirit: O, ſay you, I can never believe it, that God ſhould do it without an Ordinance. This is to ſay, That the Fleſhly Form doth add ſomething to God, who being All in All, is ſufficient without it — You are like a Man that is kept up with Cordials, not to be compared with him that is in a Way of Recovery, when you want the Phyſician it is as much as your Life is worth; and if the Cordial be long a fetching, you begin to faint; you have not your Strength within you, but in Cordials without you: So is the Caſe between you that live upon Ordinances, and they that live upon Chriſt in the Spirit; Chriſt is never in a Journey, or to fetch a great Way off.

T. Collier's Works, p. 46.

'The Chriſtians Privileges under the Goſpel, they are all Spiritual, and ſo are their Ordinances.

T. Collier's Works, p. 241.

'God was in Chriſt reconciling Men to himſelf; yet this Diſpenſation of the Father was but a Fleſhly Diſpenſation, comparatively with a more Spiritual, this Fleſhly Righteouſneſs anſwering a Fleſhly Tranſgreſſion. Thus likewiſe hath he given Ordinances anſwerable to this Fleſhly Diſpenſation, wherein, when he pleaſeth, he appears in, and through, theſe Ordinances; yet note, That God never appears in any Fleſhly Diſpenſation to keep them in the Fleſh, but that through theſe he might bring up Souls to himſelf in that Spirit.

Sprig's Teſtimony to the approaching Glory, p. 55.

'Ordinances are but the Shadow as it were of the Image, therefore take heed of Idolizing Forms: Your Intereſt lieth in knowing the Father, not in knowing of any Form whatſoever; and take heed of cenſuring and judging Spiritual Diſcoveries.

CHAP. II.

Chap. II.

Of True and Falſe MINISTRY.

OUR Adverſary endeavours to ſtrengthen his General Charge conſidered in the former Chapter, by proving our Denial of each Ordinance in particular. He begins in his other Book with the Miniſtry: His Proofs, as he calls them, were theſe; 'And their Call to the Miniſtry we deny, which is Mediate, J. Parnel's Shield, p. 16. Alſo G. Fox, in his Great Myſtery, p. 45. 'But who can witneſs an immediate Call from God, and ſpeak as they are moved from the Holy Ghoſt, and ſuch Travel from Place to Place, having no certain Dwelling-Place. This Miniſtry we own and witneſs.

Now, without reporting one Word of my Anſwer, he concludeth his firſt Paragraph, concerning J. Parnel's Words, thus: Having this Charge confeſſed, there needs no farther Debate. O diſingenuous Man! What! Only repeat the Charge, and the pretended Proof out of J. P. without inſerting any Thing of my Defence, or Explanation, and then cry, Having this Charge confeſſed, there needs no farther Debate. Poor Brag! Yet nimble and notable Way of contracting Controverſie indeed: What is this but ſaying the ſame Thing over again. But as a Man that hath forgot himſelf, in his next Section he thus recollects.

Rep. p. 51. To my Proof of a Call by Men, W. P. ſays nothing; but that he may not ſeem to have nothing to ſay, he tells us, 'It is not, Go ye forth into all the World and Preach the Goſpel, that belongs unto all Men, no more than becauſe Princes ſend Ambaſſadors to Princes with their Credentials, that therefore every Man ought to do the like in Imitation, without conſidering neceſſary Qualifications; (thus far W. P.) Did you ever meet with ſo ignorant and impertinent an Anſwer? Did ever any of us take theſe Words for our Only Call? Or pretend we had a Call thereby, to Preach to all Nations?

Rejoyn. Why ſo much Contempt? I have hitherto thought that Chriſt's Commiſſion to his Apoſtles, had been pretended by you, to be a Succeſſive Commiſſion; if neither the Spirit of God Within, nor the Scriptures Without, give that Call, What doth? It had much more concerned J. F. to declare what he meant by his Mediate Call, and not to aſk, If ever any met with ſo ignorant and impertinent an Anſwer. But let this ſuffice, That he denies that any of them pretended a Call, or Authority from Chriſt's Commiſſion to his Diſciples to Preach, &c. Next, that he can only mean by a Mediate Call, that of the People, ſince he had excluded a Call by the Spirit within, and the Scriptures without: But becauſe the Call of a People is neither that which qualifieth, nor authorizeth any Man in himſelf, without the Commiſſion of God's Spirit in a Man's ſelf, it is the Commiſſion immediately received from God's Spirit, and proper Qualifications, that make the Miniſter, and not the Deſire of the People; that is an Invention hatcht in Babylon, whereby as well blind Phariſees as True Diſciples; baſe Hirelings, as Godly Shepherds, may be made Miniſters. There is this farther Lazy End in it, that being once called by any People, they think themſelves only obliged to reſide there, where they may take their Eaſe, unleſs a Fatter Benefit preſent it ſelf, at which they have been always wont to catch with Greedineſs, ſtill with this Deſign, that they might Live with more Worldly Peace and Fatneſs. This was one of thoſe Doors by which the Apoſtacy crept in; for the whole World is God's Field or Vineyard, and ſuch as he calls to Labour, neither will, nor ought to be limited by Men, but alone by the Good Huſbandman, who has called them into his Vineyard. But he proceeds,

Rep. p. 52. Did we ever ſay, It belonged to all Men to Ordain Miniſters, and without conſidering Qualifications.

Rej. Did I ever ſay you did? What Trifling is this? But did not J. F. charge my Anſwer juſt now with Impertinence and Ignorance, for making them to ground their Call upon the Apoſtles Commiſſion only, and does he not now make me to accuſe them with holding, That all Men may Ordain Miniſters? What Agreement can there be in this? Eſpecially when there are no ſuch Words in my Anſwer? But it ſhows the poor Man is hardly put to it: For his inferring, that not only it belongs to all Men to Ordain Miniſters, but alſo without conſidering Qualifications, is utterly falſe; for J. Faldo, to his apparent Overthrow, Pag. 9. as I have obſerved in my Anſwer, p. 106. grants us in ſo many Words, That all True Miniſters of Chriſt ought to have an immediate Call, ſuch as conſiſts in Grace and Gifts; and ſuch as have not this immediate Call, we account unworthy of the Thing and Name. Thus hath he given away his Cauſe, yet ſtill he ſwaggers like a Conqueror: But may I ever be thus overcome? For if this immediate Call conſtitutes both the THING and NAME, then a Mediate Call (let him underſtand what he will by it) neither worthily gives Thing or Name, elſe what means his reputing ſuch as have not this immediate Call, unworthy of the Thing and Name: It is to ſay, if I underſtand any Thing, and that in ſo many Words, Mediate Miniſtry, and Miniſters, are unworthy of being called Miniſtry and Miniſters, becauſe the immediate Call only makes worthy of both Thing and Name.

Rep. p. ead. But W. P's Compariſon exceeds, becauſe Princes ſend Ambaſſadors to Princes, That is, Gods ſend Miniſters to Gods, therefore every Man ought to do the like; a rare Similitude-Maker.

Rejoyn. A rare Similitude-Taker! Reader, I would not have diverted thy Eye from the Controverſie, but that he forceth me to ſhew, how much more like a Vain Whiffler, than a Grave Divine, he Governs himſelf; I have hitherto learnt, that Similes run not always upon Four Feet; ſhould they, what Havock might we make in Holy Scripture? Similes ought to be taken where the Similitude lyeth; It had been but leaving out two Words, that is, to Princes, and he had loſt his Quibble; for all ſober Readers will diſcern, that the Force lay, upon Private Perſons imitating Princes in ſending out Ambaſſadors; that is, becauſe Chriſt ſent forth his Diſciples, and Princes their Ambaſſadors, therefore every Man muſt turn Diſciple and Ambaſſador, which we call acting without a Commiſſion, and which J. F. hath ſufficiently rated us for; and what is worſe, forged in our Names, that without an immediate Commiſſion we deny Obedience to all the Commands in the Bible; but that we have already conſidered in our Chapter of Commands.

Rep. p. 53. In W. P's Anſwer his Paſſion ſo blinded him, that he tells me, I therefore pretend to refute G. Fox, and therefore was impertinent, and that the Words were Scripture Words; whereas I quoted J. Parnel for thoſe Words, not G. Fox. But for W. P. to call them Scripture-Words, which are neither in that Order, nor ſo much as relating to ſuch a Subject, much leſs to the ſame End in any Place of the Scripture, is ſuch an impertinent Whimſie, as becomes one, who is reſolved to ſay ſomething, no matter what.

Rejoyn. If any Paſſion I had, he was unfit to ſee that Mote in my Eye, who diſcovers ſo great a Beam in his own. The Miſtake was inconſiderable, for it was not in any Alteration about Words or Matter, but the Perſon that ſhould write them, which ſo long as he was one that J. F. calls a Quaker, was altogether as much to his Purpoſe. But I have this farther to ſay, he led me into that Miſtake by putting G. Fox. Myſt. p. 45. right againſt J. P's Paſſage, and ſo connected them without any Mark of Diſtinction, that he rather deſerves to be blamed for Negligence, than I to be reflected upon for Paſſion or Blindneſs. But be it J. Parnel's Saying and not G. F's, ſure I am J. Faldo hath very untruly cited it. Thus it begins; ‘ But who can witneſs an Immediate Call from God (leaving what follows in a differing Character quite out) ‘ from the Outward Callings and Countries, Lands, Livings and Poſſeſſions, into ſeveral Countries to preach the free Goſpel as they have received it by the immediate Inſpiration of the Spirit (now comes in another Piece of J. Faldo's citing) ‘ and ſpeak it forth as they are moved from the Holy Ghoſt (here he lets fall again) ‘ And as the Spirit gives them Utterance, freely, as they have received it freely; by which Miniſtry many are convinced; and as they abide in it are converted, as Many in the Nation who are now new Creatures, can witneſs to the Honour and Glory of God; and this Call we own and witneſs, and this Miniſtry we own and witneſs, which is immediate and ſtands in the Will of God; And ſuch covet no Man's Silver nor Gold, neither could be hired to a certain Place (now comes in another Piece of J. Faldo's Citation) ‘ but travel from Place to Place and have no certain Dwelling Place (here he drops again) ‘ and ſuch are the true Miniſters of Jeſus Chriſt, who make the Goſpel free and without Charge (now comes the laſt Parcel of his Citation) ‘ and this (Miniſtry) we own and witneſs.

This Reader was J. Parnel's Doctrine, which, if it be contrary to a Goſpel-Miniſtry, there is no Goſpel-Miniſtry can be proved by Scripture; read theſe Scriptures, Iſa. 35. 2. Mark 16. 25. Amos 3. 7, 8. Amos 7. 14, 15. Gal. 1. 11, 12. 1 Cor. 1. 17, 18, 19. chap. 2. 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, &c. 2 Pet. 1. 21. Acts 2. 4. Acts 20. 23. 1 Theſ. 9. 6. J. F. ſhould have proceeded, and have given us four Lines more of this young Man's Diſcourſe; but as he left out what bore moſt cloſely and hardly upon Hirelings before, ſo would it not have been for the Intereſt of himſelf and his Brethren to have brought in this little of a great deal that immediately follows, viz.

[‘ And for the Teſtimony of this true Miniſtry, ſome of us are impriſoned, ſome ſtoned, ſome ſtocked, whipped, and ſhamefully intreated as Vagabonds, and Deluders, and Wanderers, and Raiſers of Sedition, and peſtilent Fellows, and eſteemed not worthy to live in the Nation, both by Prieſts, People, and Rulers.]

A Shame to Independents that then ruled, and which is worſe, the Guilt of the Blood of this Innocent Man lyeth at the Door but of too many of them, about Coggeſhal and Colcheſter in Eſſex, who by their cruel Impriſonment (ſcarce to be parallelled by any Story) brought this godly young Man to an untimely Death. I need not tell you why, he hath done it to my Hand; becauſe, ſays he, ‘ We declare againſt all who come not in by the Door, but ſeek to climb up another Way by their Study, Inventions, and Serpentine Wiſdom and Knowledge, and ſo are Thieves and Robbers— Such Miniſters and their Miniſtry we deny; for the Hand of the Lord is againſt them, &c. Great and true Words; No Man can miniſter that which he hath not; no Man can have thoſe Things which qualifie him a true Miniſter, but by the Inſpiration of the Almighty, and the effectual Operation of his Power and Spirit: God's Meſſengers were ever led, taught and furniſht by God's Spirit, not by human Invention and Acquiſition, which Paul counted Droſs and Dung in Compariſon of the Excellency of the Knowledge of his Lord Chriſt Jeſus, through the Revelation of the Eternal Spirit. But that J. Faldo may be the better underſtood about the Miniſtry he pleads for, take, Reader, a Paſſage he cites out of G. F's Book, called Gr. Myſt. which doubtleſs he reputes very heterodox, or he would never bring it to prove a Charge containing ſuch Matter as he counts ſo. ‘ Thou [the Prieſt] art corrected by the Scripture, and the Apoſtle corrects thee, who ſaid, I have not received it of Man, nor by Man, and bid others look at Jeſus, the Author of their Faith; Their Writings, ſaith J. Faldo, are abounding with Matter of this Nature; So much the better ſay I; for it is old Scripture Doctrine, and J. Faldo gives us plainly to infer by his Diſlike of this Paſſage, that he maintains a Miniſtry received of Man and by Man, and that People ought to look unto them, and not to Jeſus the Author of their Faith. If this be one of J. F's Chriſtian Ordinances, as his Diſcourſe evidently makes it, I hope, my Reader will the leſs wonder der at thoſe hard Charges againſt us in it; for the plain Engliſh of his Charge againſt us is this, The Quakers deny the Miniſtry that is of Man, or by Man, therefore they deny the Goſpel-Miniſtry. Poor Man! what a paſs hath he brought his Affairs to? Indeed I pity him, and fear the Conſequence of his Diſappointment, ſince a Man of his Stomach, to charge ſo high and make ſo little of it, may, with the Loſs of his Honeſty, for ought I know, hazard his Wits too.

To wind up this Chapter and prove to all the World I have not miſtaken him, hear him.

Reply, p. 55. W. P. produceth one of my Teſtimonies out of J. Parnel, yet but by halves, 'And here is the Difference of the Miniſters of the World and the Miniſters of Chriſt— The one of the Letter, the other of the Spirit. To which he replies, Strange Impudence to call this a Proof; But I cannot help it, if P. will ſay the Sun is Darkneſs: Before I part with him here, I will furniſh my Reader with that Part of the ſame Teſtimony he treacherouſly leaves out; 'for they are meer Deceivers, and Witches, bewitch People from the Truth, holding forth the Shadow for the Subſtance; and what is the Chaff to the Wheat? Add this to the other (as it was in my Book) and I dare truſt my Reader that is willing to ſpeak Truth to paſs his Cenſure; It follows in the ſame Author before quoted: 'And ſo the Devil takes Scripture to maintain his Kingdom, and this he delivers by the Mouth of his Miniſters, which he ſends abroad to deceive the Nations leading People in Blindneſs.

Rejoyn. Let the Reader obſerve, that what he here pretends to quote out of J. P. follows as himſelf ſaid, what we have juſt before tranſcribed. Three Things contain my Rejoynder.

Firſt, He reports not my Anſwer which was to this Purpoſe. 'It is a Proof indeed, but againſt him; for if a falſe or worldly Miniſtry under the Form of Godlineſs may not be, farewell Scripture; But if ſuch a Thing will be allowed us, then ſince the Letter or Scriptures are not by ſuch rejected, but in Shew moſt highly admired, and that they pretend to collect all they believe or know from thence (tho' indeed they underſtand them not) we have great Reaſon to ſay, That thoſe who are Miniſters only from the Letter, with what they imaginarily comment upon it, they are not Chriſt's Miniſters, p. 110. Of which and much more he hath not given us a Word; how can he reply honeſtly, and intelligible, who neither gives nor takes Notice of the Anſwer he ſhould reply to. J. Parnel's Words plainly relate to a Miniſtry not gifted nor qualified by the Holy Ghoſt; and J. Faldo tells us in ſo many Words, that without it none are worthy of the Name or Thing; Yet doth he make it as unreaſonable for me to ſay J. Parnel's Words prove not our Denial of a Goſpel-Miniſtry (which ſo obviouſly own it) as for him to aſſert the Sun is Darkneſs.

Secondly, I did not leave out that which he chargeth me to have done Treacherouſly, the beſt Word he can afford me on the like Occaſions; he muſt be quite bereaved of his Senſes, that thinks I ſhould fear defending J. P. in calling ſuch Deceivers and Witches (as bewitching the People from the Truſt) who are made Miniſters by the Will of Man, without the Inſpiration of the Spirit, Gift of the Holy Ghoſt, Will of God, and are Coveters of Men's Silver or Gold, Preachers of their own Inventions, Perſecutors, Revilers, ſtirring up of the Magiſtrates to ſtone, ſtock, whip, impriſon, &c. all which J. P. gives as the Character of the Miniſtry he writ againſt; for if this be the Goſpel-Miniſtry, the Devil is a Saint: The Truth is, John Faldo's Book is generally to be read backward.

Laſtly, There is no ſuch Paſſage of the falſe Miniſtry, much leſs of the true, in page 15, 16, or 17. of J. Parnel's Shield, as J. F. ſuggeſts; however I believe the Devil uſeth ſometimes Scripture, and that he hath had, and hath many Miniſters whom he ſends abroad to deceive the Nations, leading and keeping People in Blindneſs, under a Pretence of Chriſtianity and Conformity to the Doctrine of the Scriptures, in order to maintain his Anti-chriſtian Kingdom; all true Proteſtants were of that Mind; but J. F. is none of that Number. Doubtleſs the poor Man is brought to a low Ebb, that brings this to prove we deny Goſpel-Miniſtry, which the honeſt Martyrs, primitive Reformers, and what is more to our Purpoſe, the Scriptures themſelves ſay again and again; The contrary will unavoidably prove, the Miniſtry of the Church of Rome to have been not Anti-chriſt's but Chriſt's true Miniſters, ſince they both uſe Scripture, preach Scripture, and call themſelves the Miniſters of the Goſpel by Apoſtolical Inſtitution and Succeſſion, In this diſarmed Condition we leave him and the Chapter, confeſſing to all the World, that ſuch a Miniſtry as hath effectually known the Operation of the Spirit of God in themſelves, as to thoſe Things which concern Redemption and Eternal Salvation; and that he draws forth by his Holy Spirit, indues with his Heavenly Power, for the turning of Men from Darkneſs to Light, from the Power of Satan unto God, we own, honour and love, and only deny and reject that Miniſtry which is by the Will, Study or Acquiſition of Man in his unregenerated State, who not being acquainted with the Effectual Operation of the Word of God in themſelves, are wholly dark as to thoſe Things which relate to the true Miniſtry, not knowing what they deny nor whereof they affirm; which doth not edifie, but hazard the immortal Souls of Men: And as they want the Inſpiration of the Almighty, to inſtruct them, ſo (being Strangers to the Work of God in themſelves, and not waiting to feel an Endowment with Divine Power from on high) there proceeds no ſpiritual Life or divine Virtue from them, to make their Miniſtry effectual, which is the Cauſe of that Lamentable Decay of Holy Living that is in the World, and great Increaſe of all manner of Unſavoury and Irreligious Converſation. I will conclude with two or three Teſtimonies given by Men once in requeſt with Separatiſts.

Chriſtopher Goad's Invalidity of Church-Cenſures, pag. 64, 65.

‘ It is the Spirit that makes Miniſters, and thoſe Miniſters that remain by the Spirit do miniſter the Spirit, and that is miniſtring of the Goſpel, when we miniſter the Spirit.

‘ I am a Miniſter of the new Teſtament ſo far as the Spirit ſpeaks in me and by me.

‘ In whomſoever the Spirit ſtands up and ſpeaks, that Perſon for the Time is a true Miniſter. The Spirit doth not regard Sexes, the Spirit regards not Age, Learned or Unlearned: 'Tis not Age nor Sex, nor any major Part can miniſter Spirit, but whom the Spirit pleaſeth.

Chriſtopher Goad. Right Spir. &c. pag. 21, 22.

‘ The Miniſtry that is calling us off from Man, from the Glow-worm Light of this Creation, from Man's Parts and Gifts, into the Spirit, that is the Miniſtry we ſhould look after.

‘ The Truth is, there is no true Prophet, no true Teſtimony given of Chriſt, but by thoſe that ſee him, and the nearer to him the clearer Sight of him, the more clear and Powerful is the Teſtimony given of him: That Teſtimony that is given to him by thoſe that do not ſee him preſent and come, is not in deed a Teſtimony to Chriſt, but to Anti-Chriſt; he is ſuch a Prophet as Balaam was, that had nothing but Notion.

‘ All true Prophets that propheſied of Chriſt ſaw him, and he was in them.

Chriſtopher Goad's Paraphraſe upon Act. 17. pag. 28.

‘ We know no other Guide but the Spirit: There is not any Miniſter in the World that is our Guide, or any Company of Miniſters, but the Spirit, if he ſpeaks in them and by them; We have but one Maſter, that is Chriſt.

T. Collier in his Works, p. 47, 48, and p. 430.

‘ Upon that Scripture, Mal. 27. The Prieſt's Lips ſhould preſerve Knowledge, and they ſhould ſeek the Law at his Mouth; for he is the Meſſenger of the Lord of Hoſts. Now this uſually is applyed to the Miniſters, who have given themſelves the Title of Prieſts, and that the People ſhould ſeek the Knowledge at their Mouths, and indeed they themſelves have done what in them lies, not only to bring People into this Error and Ignorance, but to keep them in it, whereas Chriſt is indeed the alone Prieſt, the Subſtance of the Jews Type, and the People are to ſeek the Law at his Mouth; but he is the Meſſenger of the Lord of Hoſts; he is called the Meſſenger of the Covenant, Mal. 3. 1. the alone Prophet and Teacher of his People.

‘ The Spirit being loſt, Anti-chriſt ſets the Wiſdom of the Fleſh (human Induſtry, Tongues and Arts) in room of it, it is the Anointing of Anti-chriſt; for in all ‘ Things Anti-chriſt ſeeks to imitate Chriſt, as well in the Fleſh as in the Spirit.

Chap II.

‘ Again, The Saints are made Partakers of the ſame Spirit the Apoſtles were.

W. Dell's Sermons, pag. 16, 17, 18.

‘ There is a Neceſſity of this Power of the Holy Spirit for Miniſters. For firſt, If they have not this Power of the Holy Spirit, they have no Power at all; for Chriſt ſent them only as his Father ſent him. Without this Power they are inſufficient for the Miniſtry; for no Man is ſufficient for the Work of the Miniſtry by any natural Parts and Abilities of his own— but only by this Power of the Spirit; and till he be endued with this, notwithſtanding all his other Accompliſhments, he is altogether inſufficient— but only by the Power of the Holy Spirit coming upon them.

‘ He cannot ſpeak the Word of God but by the Power of God.

‘ Chriſt himſelf without this Power of God could not have ſpoke one Word of God.

W. Dell. Stumbling Stone, pag. 8.

‘ The Miniſtry of the new Teſtament is a common Miniſtry, belonging equally and alike to all the Seed of Chriſt.

W. Dell: Trial of Spirits, pag. 17, 18.

‘ The true Prophets ſpeaking the Word of God by and in the Spirit, as Paul ſays of himſelf, and other Believers who had received the Spirit, We have the Mind of Chriſt; But the falſe Prophets, though they ſpeak the Word of the Letter exactly, and that to the very Original and Curioſity of Criticiſms, yet ſpeaking it without the Spirit, they are falſe Prophets before God and his True Church; ſeeing all right Prophecy hath proceeded from the Spirit in all Ages of the World; but eſpecially it muſt ſo proceed in the Days of the New-Teſtament, wherein God hath promiſed the largeſt Effuſion of his Spirit.

Greenham, Serm. 1. pag. 51.

‘ Without this Spirit of Gad, no Holy Exerciſe can have it's full Effect; for the Word works not where the Spirit of God is wanting—— when we have not the Spirit of God to teach us, ſpeak of the Law or the Goſpel, &c. we are little affected therewith, unleſs God give us of his good Spirit to profit by the ſame.

Chap. III.

CHAP. III.

That we own a Goſpel-Church, contrary to our Adverſary's Charge.

THE next Thing our Adverſary charged us with a Denial of, is a Goſpel-Church; one of his Proofs, as he will have them called, was in J. N's Love to the Loſt, pag. 17. ‘ And the Church ſo gathered into God is the Pillar and Ground of Truth, where the Spirit alone is Teacher. Upon which he argued thus, The Goſpel-Church is a Church which had other Teachers, and not the Spirit alone; Therefore the Quakers deny a Goſpel-Church, and they contradict themſelves; for they have more Teachers than all others: Thus his firſt Book, pag. 16. To which I returned, That ſuch as are not blinded with Prejudice, may diſcern that from our ſpeaking of the Univerſal Church of God, which (ſays the Apoſtle as well as the Quakers) is in God; he infers, ‘ That we deny all Viſible Religious Societies, commonly called by the Ancients, Aſia, Theſſalonica, Epheſus, Corinth, &c. Now obſerve this Reply.

Reply, pag. 59. Not one Word of this in all my Book; My Charge was, That they deny a Goſpel-Church, not Viſible Religious Societies.

Rejoyn. Confidently ſaid; but if all the Words be not there, doth it follow the Matter they import is not there? If he doth not mean, That we deny a Viſible Religious Society to be a Church, what makes him to infer our Denial of a Goſpel-Church, from our aſſerting it to be Inviſible. Two Things muſt follow from this Reply: Either a Goſpel-Church is not viſible, and then he breaks his own Neck; or not a Religious Society, and ſo he is impious: If then a Goſpel-Church is a Viſible Religious Society, and we deny a Goſpel-Church, it muſt follow, that we deny a Viſible Religious Society, which in John Faldo's Opinion makes up a Goſpel-Church. To conclude, a Goſpel-Church and a Viſible Religious Society he makes to be quite differing Things: But perhaps, he will come off thus; I did not ſay, ye denied the viſible religious Societies, called the Churches of Aſia, &c. but that you deny them, or ſuch as they are, to be Churches: But neither will this ſerve his turn; for we both own them to have been Goſpel-Churches, and are taught by J. F. to believe, That a Goſpel-Church is not only not inviſible, but another Thing than a viſible religious Society too; It is worth our while to hear his Reaſon for it.

Reply, p. 59. Religious Societies may be as far from a Goſpel-Church, as half a dozen Chriſtian Friends aſſociated together to eat a good Dinner, or carry on a Trade; yet he dirts me with want of Honeſty to grace his Forgery.

Rejoyn. He might as well have ſaid to the Ale-Houſe or Tavern, whither he invited a Friend of ours after diſputing with him, doubtleſs not out of Love to our Friend, but the good Liquor, a Sort of Liberty once counted Scandalous by many of his Pretenſions, eſpecially when juſt after ſo ſerious an Exerciſe; but it is grown familiar with Men of his Coat, to fall from the Bible to the Pot, and ſo back again. But, Friendly Reader, what ſayſt thou of this Man's Evaſion? Who will have me to mean by viſible religious Societies, viſible civil Societies; for ſuch I count good Men at an Ordinary, or a Committee of Trade; Vain and Shallow Man! Did I not give Intimation enough what Religious Societies I meant, when I inſtanced the Churches of Aſia, Theſſalonica, &c. to explain what I meant thereby? Whether I did play the Forger, or my Adverſary the Diſhoneſt Shifter, let the impartial Reader judge. Again, Reply. W. P. proceeds, p. 113. in the ſame Evil, ‘And from our aſſerting the Spirit to be the only Goſpel-Teacher, he concludes that we deny all Preaching of Men though by the Spirit; the four laſt Words though by the Spirit are added by him, and meerly forged.

Rejoyn. They may be added, but not forged; One would think it is only then, when without the Holy Ghoſt, that we deny it by his Words, and that hurts us not; but I take it the other Way, and the Truth is, it is a Miſtake he commits againſt us, where-ever the like Subjects fall in his Way; for this implies, as if we denied Preaching by Inſpiration, and that he all along had maintained it: A Doctrine he every now and then flings in our Diſh, ſcorns and derides: Thus can this Man's Conſcience ſail by any Wind to gain the Shore; and after all theſe Shuffles dares to conclude, That we in Terminis deny all Preachings of Men, becauſe G. F. ſaid, ceaſe from Man, when there is nothing more palpable, than that G. F. meant Man conſidered in his own meer Ability; that is, from ſuch as the Prophet forbid, not from true Prophets; but our Adverſary the Preachings of Men, though by the Spirit of God; for how can he make us to contradict our ſelves in ſaying, Man is the Spirit's Inſtrument (which he underſtands to be the Preaching of Men by the Spirit) if he doth not make us deny all Preaching though by the Spirit. In ſhort, I hope my Reader will think it no Forgery, whatever my Adverſary may, (who ever and anon would hide his own Weakneſs by a hard Word flung upon me to amuſe the credulous Reader) to ſay that from our Aſſerting, The Spirit to be the only Goſpel-Teacher of all who believe, he concludes, That we deny all Preaching of Men, though by the Spirit; elſe there would be no Senſe in his charging us with a Contradiction, becauſe we ſay, The Spirit is the only Teacher, and yet that the Spirit teacheth by Men, if he did not underſtand our Ceaſing from Men, or Denying Man's Miniſtry, to be our Denial of Man's Preaching by the Holy Spirit. But he will not give over yet: Theſe Words, The Spirit the only Teacher, he often flings up as Words indigeſtible by his foul and phlegmatick Stomach; for upon my ſaying, That ſuch as preach by the Holy Spirit are rather the Inſtruments than the Teacher, or Man is that by which the Spirit conveyeth his Teaching unto others, he replies thus.

Reply, pag. 58. So that after W. P*'s own ſtrict Account he allows their Practice,* viz. Preaching of Men, to give the Lie every Day to their Tenets.

Rejoyn. If Preachings of Men by the Spirit be the Preachings of Men, ſuch Preachings we ſhall always allow, and think it no Lye or Contradiction to our Tenets; But if he that dictates a Letter of Intelligence be the Informer, and not the Scribe, the Holy Spirit muſt be the Teacher, and Man but the Inſtrument. True Teachings are not only Words, but Matter, and that accompanied with Divine Power, which flow from the Eternal Spirit; Men give them but the ſimple Covering of Expreſſion, and that by the Spirit's Appointment; therefore not ſo properly the Teachings of Men by the Holy Spirit, as the Teachings of the Holy Spirit by and through Men; conſequently not Man's Teachings, but the Spirit's.

Again, Becauſe we charge him with bringing in other Teachers than the Holy Spirit, contrary to expreſs Scripture, the Promiſe of God, and the very End of the Bleſſed Goſpel, he replies.

Rep. Pag. 58, 59. Can you think this Man worth diſputing with, who rambles and talks he cares not how? If what P. ſaid be true, the Exhortations to do the Work of an Evangeliſt, feed the Flock over which the Holy Ghoſt had made them Overſeers, were not intended of Man's Teaching; but the Spirit of God only exhorted the Spirit of God to theſe Actions, and Man had not, hath not any Agency in Teaching.

Rejoyn. But did we ever ſay, Man had no Share in being taught, whatever we have ſaid againſt the utmoſt of Man's Natural Ability, conſidered ſeparately from God's Spirit about his Teaching? We never yet ſaid, That Man was not to be taught: Is there no Difference betwixt Men's Teaching without God's Spirit, and Men's being taught of God's Spirit? At whoſe Door then ſhould we lay this Abſurdity, The Spirit of God exhorted the Spirit of God? What an idle Non ſequitur is this?

Nor do we deny all Agency in Man, when managed by the Holy Ghoſt; A Man might as well argue (following J. Faldo's Steps) againſt the Apoſtle Paul, when he ſaid, It is no more I that live, but Chriſt in me, that is, The Apoſtle had no Life in him in any Senſe; Would this be good Doctrine? But more openly do the Words of Chriſt lay to the Exception of ſuch Cavillers, 'Tis not I that ſpeak, but the Father in me; Again, It is not you that ſpeak, but the Holy Ghoſt in you; For, after J. Faldo's Paraphraſe, we muſt either deny that Chriſt or his Apoſtles ſpoke thoſe Words, or confeſs that they contracted themſelves in ſaying, they did not ſpeak when they did; or, Laſtly, He muſt acknowledge to us, That ſuch Teachings and Speakings are not the Teachings and Speakings of Men, but of God by and through Men. Let him firſt ſee if he can reconcile himſelf to theſe Scripture-Paſſages ſo pertinent to our Purpoſe, and leave off his ſilly Shifts, as eaſily confuted as diſcovered.

Upon my ſaying, That 'we do believe that there is One, and but One Univerſal 'Church, the Ground and Pillar of Truth, and that is in God, and that the Mem-'bers of it are waſhed in the Blood of the Lamb, and grafted into the True Vine, 'bringing forth Fruit unto Holineſs, p. 113. he thus replies (and I beſeech my Reader to conſider it.)

Rep. Pag. 59. If he own no other Church but this, which is the Character of the inviſible Church, he owns not a Goſpel-Church, whoſe Order and Frame is according to the Doctrine of the Apoſtles, and Practice of the Saints in the New Teſtament.

Rejoyn. We are beholden to him for this; May we ever meet with ſuch Adverſaries! It ſeems then my Definition hath nothing to do with the Goſpel Church, What is it but to ſay, that the Goſpel-Church is not the Pillar of Truth, The Goſpel Church is not waſhed in the Blood of the Lamb, The Goſpel Church is not grafted into the true Vine; and that Men may be in the Truth, waſhed in the Blood of the Lamb, grafted into the true Vine, and bring forth Fruit unto Holineſs, and yet no Ways concerned in the Goſpel Church; in ſhort the Goſpel Church is not the Univerſal Church, nor the Inviſible Church a Goſpel Church; and what is his Reaſon, if any there can be, for all this pernicious and Anti-chriſtian Doctrine? Becauſe a Goſpel Church is one whoſe Order and Frame is according to the Doctrine of the Apoſtle and Practice of the Saints. Worſe and worſe it ſeems then in J. F.'s Senſe, that the Order and Frame the Doctrine of the Apoſtles brought the Church of Chriſt to, and the Practice of the Saints in the New Teſtament, had nothing to do with the Pillar of Truth, dwelling in God, being waſhed in the Blood af the Lamb, grafted in the true Vine, and bringing forth Fruit unto Holineſs. What Sort of impious Gibberiſh is this? For according to his Notion of the Goſpel Church, the moſt Satanical Crew may as well be of that Church as the beſt of Chriſtians; ſince the External Order (at moſt but the Form of Godlineſs) was, and is, imitable and imitated by arrant Hypocrites.

By this Argument, Elias, and the Seven Hundred who had not bowed their Knees to Baal (ſo inviſible as Elias himſelf knew not of them) were Schiſmaticks or Infidels to the then Jewiſh Church, being without all Viſible Church, Policy or Order; and the Jews that had it, though Apoſtatiz'd, muſt have been God's Legal Church. It will alſo follow, that for above 1200 Years together, ſince Chriſt's Time, there hath been no Goſpel Church, yet Goſpellers, as their Enemies have called them, which were to grant to the Roman Catholicks all they deſire. What was that Church that fled into the Wilderneſs? It muſt either be the Goſpel Church, or not the Goſpel Church; If not the Goſpel Church, then not the Chriſtian, and conſequently the Anti-Chriſtian Church; But that could not be, becauſe ſhe fled from Antichriſt: If the Goſpel Church, then may a Church be Goſpel without Punctuality in viſible Order; for it is notorious by all Story, the Remnant of the Woman's Seed, who have born a faithful Teſtimony againſt the Spirit of Antichriſt in their Sack-cloth and Wilderneſs Eſtate, have been deſtitute of that viſible Order. Indeed I hitherto thought, that a Goſpel Church conſtituted neceſſary External Order, and not that meer external Order conſtitutes the Church Goſpel or Evangelical; But J. Faldo ſays No, who ſeems not to ſcruple at the Word Church, but to play upon the Word Goſpel, as if external Order and Government were ſynonymous, or of equal Force; whereas the Goſpel is called in Scripture The Power of God to Salvation, from that Spiritual Redemption it efficaciouſly worketh in them that receive it, from the Bondage of Corruption, under which they have fruitleſly laboured; which is the Reaſon, and a good one too, why it ſignifieth glad Tidings; ſince nothing can be more joyous to a weary and heavy-laden Sinner, than to be eaſed of his former Iniquities, by Remiſſion, and purged from the Nature and Habits of it in the Soul, by the Operation of this Heavenly and Everlaſting Goſpel; which worthy Chriſtopher Goad (Right Spirit of Chriſt, Pag. 17.) calls, the forming or bringing forth of Chriſt in us. What is all our Adverſary hath ſaid, but to make Remedies againſt, or Condeſcenſion to the Weakneſs of the Church's Infancy, as ſays Honeſt W. Tindal in his Works, p. 9, 436, 438. the only great Conſtitutes of a Goſpel Church? By which he denies a Goſpel Church to have been antecedent to that External Order, and conſequently that the Believers were not a Goſpel Church, when met together on the Day of Pentecoſt, nor long after: ſince the Goſpel had been many Years preached, Multitudes converted, and many baptized by the One Spirit into the One Body of true Goſpel Fellowſhip, before ever thoſe Epiſtles were written by the Apoſtle Paul either to the Church at Corinth, or to Timothy, in which only External Order is mention'd: Nay, at this Rate, he hath Unchurched every Part in England but one, if yet one may be excepted; for if External Order only conſtitutes a Goſpel Church, every Part in England differing greatly in their External Order, it muſt follow, that none but one, if any one, can have any juſt Pretence to a compleat Goſpel Church, conſequently Mungrils. He ſtill forgets what he promiſed, that None of them were farther concerned againſt the Quakers than Vindicated. Howbeit, Herein they may hold him excuſed, that he hath equally unchurched Himſelf and thoſe he preacheth to, in Company with all other Parties in England, being out of that Order.

But I intreat the Reader to conſider, what a Monſter he hath made of Chriſt, who deſcribeth him with two ſuch Bodies to one Head, one Inviſible, the other Viſible; one waſhed in the Blood of the Lamb, grafted into the true Vine, bringing forth Fruit unto Holineſs, Qualifications hid from the Eye of the World, as worthy John Bradford told T. Weſton, as in B. Martyr, p. 104, 312, That the Church of Chriſt is Inviſible to him that hath not a Spiritual Eye; The other conſtituted of People, (no Matter how Unregenerated if) ſubmitted to an External Structure of Order and Diſcipline; A Cover for all the Wolves, Antichriſts and Hypocrites, that have been, are, or ſhall be to the End of the World. In ſhort, No Poſition can be more deſtructive to the Power of Godlineſs, the Fellowſhip of the True Church that lives in God, and pernicious to the Souls of Men, by ſecuring them in their Fancied Relation to a Goſpel Church, whilſt in an Un-goſpel Spirit, eſtranged from the Power of the true Goſpel, and unacquainted with the Congregation of the Faithful, who through Faith overcome the World, and know a Waſhing in the Blood of the Lamb, and a being grafted into the true Vine, and made to drink into the one Spirit, bringing forth Fruits unto Holineſs. To conclude, After this Sort of Doctrine, Men may be Members of a Goſpel Church, and not of the True Church; Members of a Goſpel Church, and not good Chriſtians, no, nor good Men it ſelf. Indeed ſuch a Paſtor, as our Adverſary, ſuits ſuch a Church, and ſuch a Church exactly fits ſuch a Paſtor; from whom God deliver me and all People, and them from themſelves, I mean the Power and Prevalency of that pernicious Doctrine and Spirit that now infects them. He proceeds however, with what Succeſs we ſhall ſee.

Rep. Pag. 59, 60. To this of their Inviſible Church, I told W. P. of their Officers very ſuitable to a conceited Nothing. Fox Myſt. p. 2. ‘ The Holy Ghoſt made ‘ the Officers of the Church Overſeers; The Overſeers to be Inviſible, for they ‘ ſaw with an Inviſible Eye, and ſo were in the Spirit, which is inviſible, and not ‘ in the Fleſh. But W. Penn meddled not with this, which I dare ſay (as much as he hath of the Quakers Spirit) he cannot tell the Meaning of himſelf.

Rejoin. I had no Reaſon to meddle with what I could not, nor cannot yet find; I intreat my Reader to conſider the Unreaſonableneſs of his Taunts; In his firſt Book he ſent me to Pag. 8. where no ſuch Thing was to be found, yet did I not place it to the Account of his Treachery, the beſt Conſtruction he can make of any Innocent Omiſſion on my Part; In his Reply he ſends me to Pag. 2. and there I am as wiſe as I was before, no ſuch Words or Matter appearing: What ſhall I ſay of ſuch an Adverſary? Was I then to be blamed for not meddling with what was not to be found? Or deſerve I not better Terms at his Hands, who made no hard Uſe of it in my Anſwer? Or, Laſtly, Is he not worthy of double Blame, that adds to his firſt Miſtake a ſecond, and then abuſeth me, as if on Purpoſe I had avoided the Dint of an Authentick Teſtimony, hitherto not produced? But ſuppoſe G. F. hath ever written any ſuch Paſſage, doubtleſs by Inviſible Overſeers he only meant, Spiritual, not Carnal-minded Men, who by the Inviſible Eye, which the true God hath opened, might watch over the Flock, as to their inward and ſpiritual Conditions: This the following Words make good, ‘ for they ſaw with an inviſible ‘ Eye, and ſo were in the Spirit, which is inviſible, and not in the Fleſh. In ſhort, they were not meer outward Officers, exerciſing an Outward Rule and Dominion about Outward Things, but Men qualified by the Holy Ghoſt, with an inward Diſcerning to Overſee the Spiritual State of the Church; not that their Perſons were inviſible, or their Actions towards the Church, but that Heavenly Faculty given them of the Holy Spirit, which rendred them Overſeers, or Men able to ſee or diſcern the State and Condition of the Church, was of an Inviſible Nature.

He fell very foul upon us in his firſt Book, becauſe of a Dutch Woman's ſpeaking in one of our Meetings in her own Tongue; charging upon us, That we did orderly, according to the Popiſh Maſs, which was to pray in an Unknown Tongue. To which I made a large, and I hope, ſufficient Anſwer, of which he reports but theſe two or three Parcels: Firſt, That I called it a Diſingenuous Reflection; Next, That we do not affect ſuch Obſcurity? Laſtly, The Divine Light, Power or Spirit inwardly manifeſted, is the one Tongue to the Children of Light. This he calls Fooliſh, Antiſcriptural, Ridiculous; But if it be ſo, I owe it to him alone, who hath made ſo Fooliſh and Falſe a Citation of my Words; Howbeit, he ſaith nothing to what he hath cited, his hard Words ſet aſide. His Reflection was Diſingenuous, becauſe ſuch a Practice is not common or uſual with us; Nay, that was accidental. Therefore to charge it upon us as conformable to the Orderlineſs of the Popiſh Maſs, as if it were a Principle with us to teach, as with Romaniſts to pray in an unknown Tongue, was more than Diſingenuous; for it was Falſe and Malicious, being thrown out by him on Purpoſe to defame and diſgrace us.

That we do not affect ſuch Obſcurity I affirmed, and our Practice evidenceth it, being rather jeer'd for our too much Ruſticity and Plainneſs, and our frequent decrying of dark School Phraſes, and Rhetorick, by which great Writers wrap up their Matter from the Underſtanding of the Vulgar. That the Divine Light, Power or Spirit inwardly manifeſted are none of my Words; I will report my Anſwer, both more largely and truly, and leave it with the Conſcience of my Reader, thus:

‘ The ſingle Power of the Almighty may both ſtrike Aſtoniſhment and give Re‘ freſhment where the Words uttered are not always underſtood; ſince he frequent‘ ly doth both without them: Underſtanding and inward Senſe are two Things; ‘ for the Devil may ſpeak the beſt Words in the Bible, and be an Undiſcovered ‘ Devil ſtill, except by this Divine Light, Power and Spirit he be inwardly mani‘ feſted, conſequently a right Senſe may be had, where Words may not be under‘ ſtood, which [Senſe] is the one Tongue to the Children of Light; yet we do not ‘ only decry all deſigned Obſcurity, by Praying and Preaching in Unknown Langu‘ ages, but with the Apoſtle ſay, That we chuſe rather by far to ſpeak in a Known ‘ Tongue, as well as have the Senſe of our Spirits: Nor did ever any Quaker yet ‘ pretend to be moved to pray in an Unknown Language whilſt he was Maſter of ‘ that which was well known to the People. Since then we do not affect Obſcu-

‘ rity, the Caſe of the Papiſts, (who pray in Latin rather than in their Native or ‘ Vulgar Tongue) he is very Diſingenuous in that Reflection,’

But in Reply to all this, he only gives us thus much.

Reply, Page 60. Sure I am, that the Spirit of God, by whom the Apoſtle Paul was directed, is not the Quakers Spirit, nor it's Doctrine the ſame with theirs in the ſame Caſe : I ſhall be to him that ſpeaketh a Barbarian, and he that ſpeaketh ſhall be a Barbarian to me, 1 Cor. 14. 11.

Rejoyn. I would fain know by what Means J. Faldo hath that Diſcerning between the Spirit of the Apoſtle, and the Spirit of the Quakers. Is it becauſe the Dutch Woman ſpoke in an Engliſh Meeting? Do we hold, teach or Practice any ſuch Thing? Beſides, the Apoſtle tells us, That though an Unknown Tongue might render him as a Barbarian to him that underſtandeth him not, will it therefore follow, that he was a Barbarian, or that he had not the Spirit of Chriſt dwelling in him? By no Means; for he might ſpeak Myſteries in the Spirit, as ſaith the Apoſtle, Verſe 2. Men may alſo pray in the Spirit in an Unknown Tongue, Verſe 14. A Man may bleſs, praiſe and give Thanks to God in an Unknown Tongue, Verſe 14, 15, 16, 17. Nay, the Apoſtle ſaith of ſuch an one, Verily, thou giveſt Thanks well. Now, how all this can be, and yet that ſuch a Perſon ſhould be acted by another Spirit than the Spirit of God and the Apoſtle, for my own Part I cannot ſee. In ſhort, The Apoſtle tells us, That Tongues are for them that believe not, Verſe 22. But our Friend ſpoke among them that believed; and though they did not all know what her bare Words imported, yet they might be and were ſenſible of the Divine Power in which ſhe ſpoke, which gave a general Refreſhment unto them of that Aſſembly, that were acquainted with it; otherwiſe all Fellowſhip in Spirit muſt be renounced: But 'tis to be any thing J. F's Froth will have it, becauſe it's unknown to his thick and carnal Underſtanding. However, the Want of a known Tongue may render one leſs Profitable, but not leſs a Chriſtian; for a Time ſhould come, the ſame Apoſtle ſaid, that Tongues ſhould ceaſe, but never that Chriſtian, or having the Spirit of Chriſt ſhould ceaſe; therefore to repute all that cannot ſpeak in a Known Tongue Antichriſtian, or of another Spirit than the Spirit of God and his Apoſtle, is unworthy of any Man that makes any the leaſt Pretence to the Chriſtian Religion, indeed to common Senſe.

One Paſſage more, and then we conclude this Chapter.

Reply, Pag. 60. To my Reflection upon their affirming ſhe ſpake by the Spirit, becauſe they all found Refreſhings, viz. So have Children many a time at Puppet-Plays, W. P. calls me all to naught, eſpecially becauſe I could not (as he ſaith) but think it meant by Refreſhings, what came from God. But let not Penn think we take our ſelves bound to reverence ſuch Fooleries.

Rejoyn. That it was a Reflection he confeſſeth; whether it were not an unſeemly one I refer to every Man of Conſcience. I did not intend to oblige J. Faldo to believe what we ſay, but reprove his prophane Scoffs at what we believe. I would have ſo much Regard to any People ſeriouſly profeſſing Religion, as not to explain what they mean by their Refreſhment, by the Pleaſure ſome irreligious People take at the vain and frothy Sport of Puppet-Play; And the worſt Word I gave him and his Compariſon, was Prophaneneſs; farther adding, ‘ that it outdid Ben Johnſon's Alchymiſt (a Play made in Scorn of Puritans) which all good Men deteſt, and himſelf dying abhorred.

But why may not People be refreſht in their Souls from that divine Power, which may attend a Perſon ſpeaking in a Language unknown? Suppoſe a Godly Aſſembly of Engliſh People and an Engliſh Preacher endued with God's holy Spirit, and there happen into ſuch a Congregation ſome ſerious Foreigners of the ſame Judgment, is it abſurd to ſay, That notwithſtanding their Ignorance of the Signification of the Words ſpoken, they may have an Inward and Spiritual Senſe of the Zeal, Power, and Spirit that eminently attends the Preacher? if it be, how much more ridiculous is it then for People to ſay, It gladded their Hearts to ſee ſuch a Godly Countenance, or to hear the Voice or Sound of this or the other good Man, though they had no diſtinct Underſtanding of his Words? I am in this Caſe a more allowable Witneſs than John Faldo, who have ſeen Sinners ſtruck, the Weak ſtrengthned, and the Strong confirmed, at the hearing of the Truth of God declared in a Language they could not underſtand; The divine Power and Virtue went forth, and they were judged, comforted or confirmed in themſelves, and they no Fools (though J. Faldo calls ſuch Things Fooleries and Puppet-Plays) To deny this is to overthrow Spiritual Fellowſhip in the Ground of it; and to center in this Atheiſti- cal Notion, That all our Knowledge of God comes in by our carnal Eyes and Ears; that is, What others have written, and what others have told me, that I believe, and therefore I believe, and not from the Teſtimony of that infallible Spirit of God in my ſelf; which Credulity renders him more like Rome in that, wherein ſhe is condemnable, than any thing he can truly ſuggeſt of us; but this groſs Doctrine being ſo obviouſly taught by our Adverſary in his firſt Book, ſecond Part, p. 91, we have the leſs Reaſon to wonder that Fooleries and Puppet-Plays are the beſt Words he can beſtow upon the Divine Conſolation, Refreſhment and Communion of the Holy Spirit within Men.

We will add theſe Teſtimonies, as the Concluſion of this Chapter.

‘Church, the Elect, in whoſe Hearts God hath written his Law with his Holy Spirit, and given them a feeling Faith of the Mercy that is in Chriſt Jeſus our Lord.

‘The Holy Church of Chriſt is nothing elſe but that Congregation that is ſanctified in Spirit, Redeemed with Chriſt's Blood, and ſticketh faſt and ſure, alonely to the Promiſes that he made therein.

‘So that the Church is a Spiritual Thing, and no exterior Thing, but inviſible from Carnal Eyes (I ſay, not that they be inviſible that be of the Church, but that holy Church in her ſelf is inviſible) as Faith is; and her Pureneſs and Cleanneſs is before Chriſt only, and not before the World; for the World hath no Judgment nor Knowledge of her, but all her Honour and Cleanneſs is before Chriſt ſure and faſt.

Peter Martyr. fourth Part of Common Places, Cap. 1. Pag. 1.

‘The Name of a Church is derived of the Greek καλεῖν, that is, to call; for none can be Partakers thereof, which come not thereunto by the Calling of God. And to define it, we ſay, that it is a Company of Believers and regenerate Perſons, whom God gathereth together in Chriſt by the Word and the Holy Ghoſt —— It is every where called the Body of Chriſt, becauſe all the Members thereof have him for their Head, of whom by the Joints and Sinews they take their growing, and attain unto Life by the Inſpiration of the Holy Ghoſt.

‘'Tis a ſad Thing that there are Churches——that think it is enough there is a Form of Godlineſs, that we are in Church-Fellowſhip, and ſo lie down together and ſleep; I have no Quarrel with Churches, or any Form, but ſuch as have not the Spirit in them; here are all aſleep, aſleep in Death.

CHAP. IV.

His Charge, of our denying to hear the Word of God examined: True Preaching acknowledged.

He hath maintained this Charge againſt our Anſwer, with the ſame Sort of Jeers and Flouriſh (but manifeſt Inſucceſs too) that he hath done what went before. His Words are theſe.

Rep. p. 61. Concerning denying the Ordinance of hearing the Word Preached, to my Proof from G. F. . We muſt not hear Man, &c. W. P. ſaith, That is ſo far from making againſt us, that it makes for us at an high Rate. Much like the Mad-man of Athens, who called all the Ships that came into the Port his own, while he was for all that, but a poor Thred-bare Gentleman. I proved, that they aſſerted the Light to be only Preached, to be the only Preacher, and only preached to; yea, and the only Obeyer.

Rejoyn. If this be done, Erit hic mihi magnus Apollo; If to ceaſe from Man be not falſe Doctrine, then not to hear Man is no falſe Doctrine; for Man is taken in the ſame Senſe in both Places; for as God never intended by ceaſing from Man, that they ſhould not regard his Prophets, who were Men, when they came to declare His Will; ſo neither did G. F. intend that Man ought not to be heard when he comes on God's Errand, or Meſſage, in the Name of the Lord, but meer Man, Man in his Natural Capacity and Ability, without the Holy Spirit and Power of God, which is but a Carnal, Humane, and Worldly Miniſtry.

To ſay we only Preach the Light, is no more than to report, The Quakers Preach Chriſt; for our Doctrine directs People to the Knocks of Chriſt, the True Light, at the Door of the Soul, who is the Saviour, Redeemer, and Preſerver of them that believe in him, and keep his Commandments. But that we ever ſaid, That it was only Preached to; yea, and the only Obeyer of ſuch Preaching, is as falſe as any Thing that can be ſaid. He tells us he proved it; I will give the ſtrongeſt Paſſage he brought, J. Parnel's Shield, &c. Epiſt. “To the Light of God in all your Con-“ſciences I ſpeak. Very well; And what then? Is the Light therefore preach'd to, taught or inſtructed, when he only appealed to the Light in all their Conſciences, concerning the Truth of what he ſaid, as the Apoſtles did? To the Light I ſpeak, that is, To the Light I direct my ſelf; To that I make my Appeal, if what I write be not True? For whatſoever is reproveable is made manifeſt by it, Epheſ. 5. 13. This Conſtruction is Natural, our Adverſary's forced; for nothing is more common with us in General, and that Author in particular, than to turn People to the Light, preſſing their Conformity to the Reproofs and Inſtructions of it, always reſpecting it as given us of God, to be our True, certain and conſtant Teacher, and always have we been reproach'd by ſuch as J. Faldo, for doing ſo. But above all, that this Paſſage ſhould be brought to prove the Light is the Obeyer of ſuch Doctrines and Inſtructions, who is the Author of them, is an Abſurdity that reflects great Ignorance, or ſomething worſe, upon our Adverſary.

We have already declared our Faith ſo freely and plainly in this Matter, beſides the Teſtimony of our daily Practice, that we need ſay no more than this: A True, Living Goſpel-Miniſtry we own; and the Service and Benefit of ſuch an one we have enjoyed; and Beautiful are their Feet, who come in the Power and Demonſtration of the Spirit, that open the blind Eye, turn People from Darkneſs to Light, and from the Power of Satan unto God, Acts 26. 18. that He may be their Inſtructor, according to that Promiſe, They ſhall be all Taught of Me, which is the chiefeſt End of all External, Inſtrumental Miniſtry. To prove our Senſe of True Preaching, we may add theſe Two following Teſtimonies out of that Renowned Independent, Dr. Everard.

Dr. J. Everard's Sermon, Militia Cœleſtis.

“Truth it is, many toſs and tumble the Letter —— and make you believe they “expound it, and give you the Senſe and Virtue; Yet how ſhallow, how literal, “how humane, how low, how ſenſual and carnal do they make the World to be? “Even your Rabbies, your Doctors, your great Scholars; which ſhews, if God “Himſelf, if the Lion of the Tribe of Juda, if the Root of David do not open the “Seals, 'tis not all the Learning, or all the Univerſities in the World can help us “to the Myſtery, and the Mind of Chriſt, as the Apoſtle calls it, Shadows vaniſh-“ing, &c. pag. 326.

Part II. Chap. IV.

“ I dare not offer at any Method in the whole, nor at any Connection in the “ Parts: For I find that all the Curious Dichotomizers do but dream and play with “ the Scriptures, feeding themſelves with Fancies, and not Truth; for, ſure I am, “ the only Method that Holy Men of old obſerved, was to ſpeak as they were “ moved by the Holy Spirit — There be many Expoſitions on this Place, which I “ will not trouble you withal, for Men ſpeak according to Men; but the Scriptures “ were written by God's Spirit, dictated by his own Finger: We muſt therefore “ labour to find out what is God's Mind in the Scriptures, whatever Men ſay, “ pag. 369, 370.

Chap. V.

CHAP. V.

Of True and Falſe PRAYER.

HE pretends in this Chapter, which containeth not a Page, to refute ſeveral Pages in my Book, relating to Goſpel-Prayer, in which, if I miſtake not, he hath done Me, and the TRUTH I defend, the greateſt Service that a Reaſonable Man would deſire at the Hands of his Adverſary; for the Truth of the Matter is, the Man hath ſhrunk from his Poſt, and deſerted his Colours, which we ſhall make appear, by comparing his firſt Book with his Reply.

Rep. W. P. according to my Charge, diſowns Man's Will, and the Uſe of his Conceptions, to have any Thing to do in Goſpel-Prayer, p. 122. and diſowns all Prayer that is not By, and In, the Light Within, The Quakers Chriſt. The Reaſons he gives, are as Witleſs, as his Aſſertion Truthleſs. Thus: ‘ Now, unleſs Men may ‘ perform Goſpel-Worſhip, without the Spirit and the Truth; or if in the Spirit ‘ and the Truth, yet not by the Motion of either, a Thing abſurd, it muſt needs be ‘ that Men ought only to Preach and Pray by the Motion of the Spirit and of the ‘ Truth. How abſurd is W. P's Reaſoning here? As if the Underſtanding, Conceptions, Will of Man in Prayer, muſt needs exclude the Motions of the Spirit, or the Motions of the Spirit exclude them.

Rejoyn. The firſt Thing our Adverſary charged upon us in his former Book, was our Denial of Goſpel-Prayer, to prove which, he cited W. Smith, who in his Catechiſm, p. 107. ſpoke againſt Prayers of Man's forming, in his own unclean Wiſdom, to be performed at his own Time, and in his own Will; which I anſwered thus.

It ſeems then, that what Prayer W. Smith's Paſſage reflects upon, is Goſpel-Prayer in J. Faldo's Account: Of this he takes no Notice; he might think it is his Intereſt, but I am ſure it was not his Honeſty to omit it; for it was to entitle Prayers hateful to God, Goſpel, that he might have his Will of us, in making the World believe that we deny Goſpel-Prayer; he was far from the Carriage of a Worthy and Generous Adverſary in this, that knowing how apt many are to receive any Charge againſt us, would have acted deliberately and faithfully, as one concerned by the Conſtraint of Conſcience, when he (alas) ſent his many Charges as falſe as black, to incenſe the Ignorant and Credulous againſt us; Revenge for the Loſs of ſome Hearers, and that which follows, animating to this Unchriſtian Eſſay.

But he proceeded thus; That we own no Prayer that is not by immediate Inſpiration and Motion of the Spirit, and without the Uſe of our Conception and Direction of our Underſtanding. He brought two or three Teſtimonies to confirm this Limb of his Charge; I avoid reporting them by confeſſing the Matter; my Buſineſs was therefore to maintain our Aſſertion, in order to which, I produced John 4. 24. The Worſhip of God is in the Spirit and the Truth, which he left out, and from thence I gave the Argument by him repeated, which he is pleaſed to call Witleſs and Truthleſs, as if, ſays he, the Underſtanding, Conceptions, and Will of Man in Prayer, muſt needs exclude the Motions of the Spirit, or the Motions of the Spirit exclude them. But this, Reader, we will eaſily ſcatter, for if a Man offer up his own Conceptions, he cannot be ſaid to offer up what is injected by the Holy Ghoſt, by whom alone God's Children cry, Abba Father; for by Man's own Conceptions, I mean what ſimply proceeds from Man, and where any Man prays ſuch Conceptions, he muſt needs exclude the Injections and Motions of the Holy Spirit, and offer up an Unclean Sacrifice; elſe there would be no Difference between the Prayers of the Righteous and the Wicked.

The Will of Man in Prayer was not mentioned in the firſt Book: But if by Will, he means Man's Praying in his own Power, and how, and when he pleaſeth, we alſo deny that; for how can he be ſaid To Pray with the Spirit, and Worſhip in the Spirit, who acts without the Will, Guidance, and Motions, of the Spirit: And if he means the Will of Man ſubjected to the Will of God, and Rule of the Spirit, then we ſay, Such Prayer is not in the Will of Man properly, but in his Will, to whom the Will of Man is ſubjected: That is properly done in the Will of Man, which is done at Man's Diſpoſal, or is in Man's Power to perform; but it is not within the Compaſs of Man's Will to offer up a Spiritual Prayer, conſequently, it belongs to the Holy Spirit to furniſh Man with that Capacity: So that by the Will of Man, we do not underſtand the Will ſubjected, but the Will abſolute, and that we exclude. The Will of Man in that Caſe is ſwallowed up in the Will of the Spirit, as the Apoſtle Paul's Life was ſwallowed up in Chriſt; It is not I Paul that live, but Chriſt in me; It is not I Paul that Pray, but the Spirit that prayeth in me, that is, I Paul live by, and through the Life of Chriſt Jeſus, and in Subjection to him; and I Paul Pray by, and through the Spirit, and in Subjection to it's Holy Motions. I diſtinguiſh between Things being done contrary to the Will of Man, and not according to the Will of Man; for Paul might pray not according to his own Will, but the Mind of the Holy Spirit, and yet not pray contrary to his own Will, becauſe reſigning of his own Will unto the Power and Leadings of the Holy Spirit (to be acted by that, whereby he receives a New Will, even the Will of the Holy Spirit) he does not reſiſt, or act contrary to the Will of the Spirit, though not according to his own Will.

But for our Adverſary to ſay, We deny the Uſe of our Underſtanding in Prayer, is a great Miſtake, if not a Slander; That which I objected againſt, was another Word by him careleſly, or deſignedly omitted, to wit, the Direction of our Underſtanding; for there is as much Difference between the Uſe of our Underſtanding, and Direction of our Underſtanding, as between a Maſter and a Servant, as to Command and Obey: Underſtanding is always made Uſe of by the Holy Spirit in Prayer; for without it, there would be no Subject for the Spirit to act or work upon, But the Direction of our Underſtanding in Prayer, is perfectly excluſive of the Direction of the Holy Spirit; for there cannot be Two Directors; beſides, if the Direction in Prayer be aſcribed to the Underſtanding, there is nothing left that may be attributed to the Spirit, wherefore ſay we, The Underſtanding is not to direct, but to be directed in Prayer to Almighty God, by His own Holy Spirit, according to that Notable Paſſage, Rom. 8. 26, 27. The Spirit alſo helpeth our Infirmities, for we know not what we ſhould pray for as we ought, but the Spirit it ſelf makes Interceſſion for us, with Groanings which cannot be uttered, and he that ſearcheth the Heart, knoweth what is the Mind of the Spirit, becauſe he maketh Interceſſion for the Saints according to the Will of God.

I offered Eight Arguments in Defence of this Doctrine, whereof he cited but One, and ſaid no more to it than I have reported; for that Little he added, was but an Aggravation of his fore-mentioned Conſequence. Seven then of my Arguments remain unmedled with; I will hint at Three, to ſhow, not my Reaſon, but my Adverſary's Shuffle.

See my Anſwer, p. 133. Rom. 13. 14.

If the Children of God are led by the Spirit of God, (and not by their own Wills, Conceptions and Directions) then no Acceſs to God without it, conſequently, Prayer without the Leadings of God's Spirit, is not acceptable with him.

Again, If no Prophecy or Preaching was to be of Old, but by the Revelation or Motion of the Spirit, though but to Mortal Men, of far greater Reaſon ſhould not any Prayer be made to the Eternal Only Wiſe God, without the Motion of the Holy Spirit.

Laſtly, Man of himſelf is unable to think a Good Thought, and as the Profeſſors ſay, from the Crown of the Head to the Sole of the Foot, altogether Unclean; therefore he cannot perform Goſpel-Prayer by the Direction of his own Underſtanding, Uſe of his own Conceptions, and Strength of his own Will.

To this Purpoſe was my Fourth Argument, which, with thoſe that went before, and follow after it, my Adverſary unmanfully declined. I will conclude this Chapter with Six Teſtimonies; the firſt out of a Venerable Author (with almoſt all Non-Conformiſts) J. Calvin.

In one of His Sermons upon Job 32. 8.

It is the Spirit of God who dwells in Men, &c. ‘Man (ſays he) cannot diſcern ‘any Whit of God's Secrets till he be enlightned; we can never by our Will reach
‘ſo high as to know God, we muſt put our Reaſon from us, and renounce it utterly
‘(what ſays J. Faldo to this Doctrine of his Father Calvin) Again, if we will have ‘our Lord to fill us with his Wiſdom, it behoveth us to become Fools; that is to ‘ſay,

'ſay, We muſt not bring any Thing of our own, for that were the ſhutting of the Door againſt God.

H. Bullenger's 4th Decad. Serm. 5. p. 665.

'The Spirit of Man praying in this World, being enlightned with the Spirit of God, groaneth and maketh Interceſſion for the Saints.

W. Perkins, the Engliſh Calvin, in the ſame Men's Thoughts, p. 336. 21. writes thus.

'All Exerciſes of Chriſtian Religion are to be in the Spirit. The Inward Motions of the Spirit, are of themſelves the Worſhip of God, whereas our Words and Deeds are not ſimply, but ſo far forth, as they are found in the renewed Motions of the Heart.

Gualt. Cradock upon Epheſ. 3. p. 169.

'That you may ſee the Greatneſs of his Power, what a World of Prayers doth the Spirit of God put into thy Heart, that thou art never able to utter with thy Mouth. All the Wiſdom of the World cannot make one Spiritual Petition. We may make Forms of Prayer, but now the Spirit of God, that knows the Mind of God, That makes Prayers according to the Will of God, and He (Spirit) prays with Sighing and Groaning unutterably: I ſpeak to them that know the Working of the Spirit. If the Lord ſhould only hear the Prayers thou makeſt with thy Mouth, thou wouldſt be a Poor Man, but the Lord reſpects the Prayer of thy Heart.

W. Dell's Sermon, Chriſt's Spirit, &c. p. 35.

'When God hath a Mind to give us the Spirit, he puts us in Mind to aſk it; yea, God gives us the Spirit, that by it we may aſk the Spirit, ſeeing no Man can aſk the Spirit but by the Spirit, Acts 1. 14.

Dr. J. Everard, the Great Spiritual Separatiſt, in King James and Charles the Firſt's Time.

'Be aſſured whatever Prayers, whatever Sighs, whatever Groans thou putteſt up to him, he loaths all but what His SON makes; but all his Requeſts are heard and granted, Pag. 225. —— Be ſure that your Prayers be ſuch as become God's Ear to hear; for all the Prayer of All Fleſh through the whole World, is diſpleaſing to God, Pag. 243. —— Not the Beſt Duties you can perform, will pleaſe him, except they be Salted and Seaſoned by His own Son, Pag. 9. —— Never think that all your Prayers, your Tears, your Alms, &c. pleaſe Him, but only that which is His Son's own Actions and Work in you, Pag. 355. But know, He (God) regards none of theſe Prayers: But when His Son, in whom He is well-pleaſed, when he prays, He hears Him always; but if any other prays, he regards not, Pag. 438, 442.

'Again, 'It muſt be His Son's Work in us, elſe he loaths all, even the Beſt of the Sacrifices; if it be not Jeſus Chriſt in us that doth all, viz. that loves God, and fears God, and obeys God, and believes in God, &c. His Father regards it not.

But what thinks J. Faldo of all theſe Things? J. Calvin, W. Perkins, H. Bullenger, Gualt. Cradock, are unqueſtionable, W. Dell, Maſter of Cajus Colledge in late Times; and for Dr. J. Everard, his Works were Licenſed, Decemb. 6, 1652, by no leſs Man than J. Caryl, and approved by Thomas Brooks and Matthew Parker, all Three Independent Paſtors; the Firſt lately deceaſed, the other Two not many Days ago Living, who, I hope, are able to juſtifie their Kindneſs to that Notable, and doubtleſs very Religious Man.

Perhaps the TRUTH may find better Quarter for theſe Great Authors Sake, therefore I bring them, though indeed it is truly lamentable, that the Profeſſors of our Age will not know the Doctrines of Men they hold in great Admiration, when they meet with them in the Poor Quaker's Writings; but inſtead of acknowledging, miſerably brow-beat them with opprobrious Language, thereby bringing the Greateſt Truths into Suſpicion with the Vulgar. But, O Lord God of Truth, This hath been the Portion of thy People, and Lot of thy Children, whom Thou haſt Gathered out of the World in all Ages, at the Hands of thoſe, who boaſt themſelves in other

Men's Labours, and have a Name to Live, but are Dead to that Life in which they ſhould Live to Thee: They ſeem to Honour the Prophets, and Garniſh the Sepulchres of Thy Servants that are at Reſt; but having erred from the Conduct of Thy Spirit, and reſiſted the Holy Motions of it, they are become the greateſt Perſecutors, Reſiſters, and Vilifiers of Thy Holy, Living, Pure, and Spiritual Way. O Lord God ariſe for Thy Great Names Sake, ſeize upon their Conſciences by thy Inviſible Word of Power; lay Judgment to the Line, and Righteouſneſs to the Plummet; daſh their Fine Carved Images in Peices, and let thy Conſuming Fire take hold on their Chaff and Stubble, and bring them to Thy Righteous Ballance, that they may ſee themſelves and their Religion to be lighter than Vanity; that they may Witneſs thy Mighty Work of Redemption and Salvation, before they depart hence and are never ſeen more, through Jeſus Chriſt, the Alone Advocate and Mediator, Interceſſor, Redeemer, and Saviour of all Thy Dear Children, who have Believed in His Heavenly Appearance, by whom be Everlaſting Honour, Glory and Dominion. Amen.

CHAP. VI.

Of Poſitive Ordinances, as our Adverſary calls them, to wit, BAPTISM, and the SUPPER.

HE introduced his Diſcourſe of Baptiſm, and the Supper, with an Account of the Nature of theſe Ordinances, diſtinguiſhing them by Natural and Poſitive. He excepts againſt my reporting of One Part of his Doctrine, calling it by no milder a Name than Forgery. I will give both our Quotations, that my Reader may the better ſee what Ground he hath for ſuch ſevere Reflection: I cited him thus,

'The Ordinances hitherto conſidered, are called Moral, from their Natural Obligation, although reſpecting their Subſtance, they deſerve a more Evangelical Denomination, without which we cannot call them Chriſtian Ordinances. This he calls Forging, Corrupting his Words, and that he that hath the Conſcience to deal with ſuch an Adverſary, may make him ſay what he liſts. Reply, p. 56.

I will now punctually tranſcribe his Words, as himſelf hath quoted them, and a plain Self-Defeat will lye at the Bottom of all this Diſpleaſure.

Rep. pag. 66. My Words were theſe to a Letter; The Ordinances I have hitherto conſidered, are called Moral, from their Natural Obligation; although that Subſtantial and Eſſential Part and Qualification of them, their Reſpect to a Mediator, will require a Denomination more Evangelical, and without which we cannot call them Goſpel, or Chriſtian Ordinances. Let W. P. make the beſt Advantage for his Cauſe theſe Words will afford him, and ſpare not.

Rejoyn. Having his Leave, I hope he will not be angry if I take him at his Word; but before I proceed, I cannot but declare my Amazement, in his calling this Circumſtantial Omiſſion by no milder Term than Forgery, who, God is Record between us, of Fifty Teſtimonies, which he hath pretended to take out of our Friends Writings, hath miſcited, or miſreported One Half of them, and impoſed Falſe Gloſſes upon the other.

Now let's ſee wherein I have wronged him: I will obſerve every Variation; The Firſt lyeth between the Ordinances hitherto conſidered, and the Ordinances I have hitherto conſidered; it ſeems I have was left out, but this is not one Step to Forgery. The next lyeth between theſe Two Paſſages, although reſpecting their Subſtance, they deſerve a more Evangelical Denomination; and his Saying, although that Subſtantial and Eſſential Part and Qualification of them, and their Reſpect to a Mediator, will require a Denomination more Evangelical, the Difference lyeth here; firſt, that I have put but the Word Subſtance, in the Room of Subſtantial, Eſſential Qualification, their Reſpect to a Mediator; wherein I conceive I have not wrong'd his Matter, for the Subſtance of the Moral Ordinances, and the Subſtantial or Eſſential Part or Qualification of the Moral Ordinances are equivalent: The Difference only lieth that I did not repeat his Four Terms, when One would ſerve, but uſed the Word Subſtance, as carrying in it the Import of the reſt; For the Moral Ordinances Reſpect to a Mediator, I ſay, they either reſpect the Mediator from the Subſtance or Circumſtance of them, not the Circumſtance to be ſure, therefore the Subſtance, and that Word I uſed in the Place of Subſtantial or Eſſential, as before. I cannot yet ſee where the Forgery lyeth; but let us proceed; The next Variation lyeth between will require and deſerve. Now I know not any Wrong I did him, in ſaying, thoſe Moral Ordinances deſerve, inſtead of thoſe Moral Ordinances will require:

quire: The harſher Word of the Two is in his own Quotation. There be yet Two Faults more that I have committed, that help to the Forgery in my Adverſary's Opinion; The One is this, I cited it a more Evangelical Denomination, inſtead of a Denomination more Evangelical; The other was this, inſtead of Goſpel or Chriſtian Ordinances, I did only ſet down Chriſtian Ordinances. All theſe Things conſidered, I cannot believe theſe Omiſſions are able to ſtain my Credit in the Judgment of any Sober Reader, though J. Faldo tells me, They are enough to ſtain any Man, which is not all Black already.

This miſerable Shift, and cauſeleſs Cry of Forgery, deſigned to amaze and divert the Reader from calling upon him for a more Serious Reply to the Uſe I made of his own Doctrine againſt himſelf, cannot take me off from purſuing my Advantage; for I think thoſe Omiſſions ſo little to his Prejudice, that the inſerting what I left out, would, if poſſible, have made more to my Purpoſe. The Uſe I made of it was this:

Firſt, That a Miniſtry is grounded internally upon the (Special) Grace and Gifts of God, externally upon the Scriptures of Truth. Secondly, That a Well-ordered Church conſiſting of Religious Members, Preaching, Praying, and that Scripturally too, are by him called Chriſtian Ordinances, and made Natural to all Nations before Chriſt's Viſible Coming; and conſequently, there was the Thing Chriſtianity, before the Name of Chriſtianity; which pleads our Cauſe againſt his Firſt Chapter, and his groſs Contradiction to himſelf. Thirdly, Thoſe he calls Natural Ordinances, and that are of Univerſal Obligation, are far more Subſtantial and Neceſſary to Salvation, than thoſe Two of Water-Baptiſm and the Lord's Supper, upon which he more peculiarly beſtoweth the Title of Chriſtian: Since no Man can ever be Saved without the One, I mean thoſe Natural Ordinances, as he calls them, grounded internally upon the Grace and Gifts of God, and any Man may be certainly Saved, without the other that he ſo peculiarly calls Chriſtian Ordinances, viz. Water-Baptiſm and the Supper.

I ſay, his Citation hinders me no more of this Advantage, than mine he excepteth againſt; for if the Subſtantial and Eſſential Part and Qualification of them, and the Reſpect to a Mediator, will require them to be Chriſtian Ordinances (that Part I left out, and for which he quarrel'd me) what Reaſon can there be for his counting me a Forger, and telling the World, That I firſt cut off his Matter, and then tell him of Self-Contradiction, when the Words omitted give a farther Weight to my Conſequences, and juſtifie them beyond all Oppoſition: For if theſe Ordinances be Moral, naturally obliging with all, Goſpel and Chriſtian from their Subſtantial and Eſſential Qualification, and the Reſpect to a Mediator, then there muſt needs have been Chriſtian or Goſpel-Ordinances from the Beginning of the World. In ſhort, ſince he denies not my Conſequence upon that Citation I made; and that we have ſhown the Difference to be little, and what there was to make for me, I think I may well conclude, that my former Argumentation was ſound. Thus much for this Cavil. He goeth on,

Rep. Pag. 66. A Paſſage, Pag. 133. (in W. P.) I cannot perſwade my ſelf to let paſs: W. P. thus, It is no leſs than Blaſpheming in our Adverſary, and an evident Contradiction to himſelf, to aſſert, That the Light he grants thoſe immutable Ordinances to reſult from, may be doubtful or decay, reſpecting it ſelf, ſince it were to ſay, that God —— were doubtful, and liable to decay. (Thus far W. P.) The Light I ſpoke of was Natural Light, or the Light of Nature in expreſs Terms, which we dare not, nor the Quakers do not ſay is God, but an Human Faculty.

Rejoyn. He might very well have perſwaded himſelf to have let this Paſſage paſs, unleſs he had given it a better Reply: He is willing to bring us in for Stars, but we reject his Kindneſs.

The Quakers ſay, That God is the Great Sun of Righteouſneſs, and Fountain of all Light; That he enlightens all with a Meaſure of his own Divine Light, and that from thence proceed theſe Moral, General, and Obligatory Ordinances, which J. F. himſelf confeſſeth to be Goſpel and Chriſtian; and therefore it is both a Contradiction, and little leſs than Blaſphemy, to call the Light a Sinful, Sordid, and Ridiculous Thing, as p. 47. of his Reply, and yet ſay ſo much in Praiſe of theſe Natural and Univerſal Ordinances.

But above all, that he ſhould ſay, The Quakers Deny the Light to be God, and own it but for an Humane Faculty, who imploys many Pages to prove the contrary, and not above Two Pages off, expreſly calls it the Quaker's Chriſt, ſhows him either to have been very careleſs, or not well himſelf, when he writ ſo extravagantly.

We are now come to conſider the Ordinances themſelves, and firſt that of Baptiſm.

Rep. pag. 67. Water-Baptiſm W. P. diſowns to be a Goſpel-Ordinance, his Reaſons I ſhall anſwer briefly. Chriſt never was Adminiſtrator of Water-Baptiſm, pag. 133. It is Chriſt's Command, and not his being immediate Adminiſtrator, that conſtitutes an Ordinance.

Rejoyn. He ſhould have given my firſt Reaſon before he had pretended to anſwer it. I farther told him, 'That Water-Baptiſm was John's the Fore-runner; uſed ' figuratively and preparatively to the Viſible Coming of the Meſſiah, which being paſt, ' that Preparatory Diſpenſation is gone with it; and laſtly, that the Fore-runner is ' not to continue, but give Way to him and his Adminiſtration that was ſo fore-run, ' which were Chriſt and His Baptiſm. That John was to decreaſe, that is, Water-' Baptiſm, and Chriſt to increaſe, that is, His Evangelical and Spiritual Adminiſtration. To all this J. Faldo ſays nothing: So that he ſpeaks Truth but by Halves, that is, what he ſaid was No Anſwer, yet it was briefly ſaid. However, I do affirm, that Water-Baptiſm is therefore Legal, becauſe Chriſt is not it's Adminiſtrator; for the Legal Diſpenſation came by Moſes, but the Evangelical by Chriſt, not his Diſciples; and this not coming by Chriſt, it cannot be Evangelical, conſequently no Goſpel-Ordinance. Beſides, I deny that it is Evangelical, becauſe He is not Adminiſtrator; for Chriſt is the alone Adminiſtrator of all Things relating to his own Kingdom; the Temple, Worſhip, Altar, Circumciſion, Baptiſm, &c. are inviſible, anſwerable to the Nature of his Prieſthood and Kingdom. Again,

It is ſaid of John, That the leaſt in the Kingdom of God is greater than he, yet that a greater Prophet hath not riſen than John the Baptiſt, Mat. 11. 11. Now this could never be underſtood of John's particular Condition, but of his Water-Adminiſtration; therefore Water-Baptiſm is not Evangelical. I might tell him in ſhort, That he has given away his Cauſe in this Particular, by ranking Water-Baptiſm among the divers Waſhings, pag. 50. The Apoſtle (Heb. 9.) accounts Legal, and abrogated, by bringing in of a better Covenant, the great Evangelical Ordinance. Next, let him tell me, where it is that Chriſt commands Water-Baptiſm: But this perhaps he thinks he hath done, in his Anſwer to my Second Reaſon, as by him reported.

Rep. pag. 67. Again, W. P. pag. 136, ſaith, That Baptiſm mentioned Mat. 28. was not the Baptiſm of John, but Baptiſm of the Holy Ghoſt, called the Promiſe of the Father — He diſtinguiſheth not between John's Water-Baptiſm and his own, but betwixt any Water-Baptiſm at all, and his own Baptiſm of the Holy Ghoſt. Baptiſm with the Holy Ghoſt, was not in a proper, but Analogical and Metaphorical Senſe.

Rejoyn. J. Faldo hath done ill to drop my Anſwer, and render it ſo obſcure, if not impertinent; for by making that Gap in the middle, to whom can we refer that Word HE? To John? That cannot be; how can the after Sentence relate to the former, or be underſtood as it is? But thus hath he dealt with me from Time to Time, which I will not call Forgery, but Diſingenuity I am ſure it is. I ſaid, as he reports me, That Water was not underſtood in that Text: He ſhifts it off with ſaying, That the Baptiſm of the Holy Ghoſt is not a Proper but Metaphorical Baptiſm. But what is this to his proving, That the Baptiſm in the Text was that of Water, and not that of the Holy Ghoſt, which was, and is the Queſtion between us? I told him, ' That Chriſt in all Likelihood Commiſſionated them to Baptize with that ' Baptiſm wherewith they were to be Baptized themſelves; my Reaſons were three: ' Firſt, Becauſe His Baptiſm was that of the Holy Ghoſt; and we are to ſuppoſe, ' that he commanded them to Baptize with his own Baptiſm; therefore not with ' Water. Next, Becauſe theſe Words, Go, Teach, Baptizing, being ſome of the ' laſt Words Matthew reports him to have ſpoken while in the World, they muſt ' need have Relation to that Saying which Luke recordeth in Acts 1. to have fallen ' from him immediately before his Aſcenſion, viz. And being aſſembled together ' with them, he commanded, that they ſhould not depart from Jeruſalem, but wait ' for the Promiſe of the Father, which, ſaith he, ye have heard of me; For John ' truly Baptized with Water, but ye ſhall be Baptized with the Holy Ghoſt not many ' Days hence. I ſay, the other Paſſage in Matthew muſt needs have Relation to ' theſe Words, inaſmuch as they are by Two Evangeliſts recorded to have been ſpoken before His Aſcenſion, it being within four Verſes of this Paſſage, that Luke ' tells us, He was taken up out of their Sight. For in this Part of Luke's Narrative, the Commiſſion given us by Matthew is wholly omitted, which doubtleſs ‘was ſpoken at the ſame Time; for we frequently find, That what One Evangeliſt omits, the other ſupplieth; Therefore I read the Words thus, John indeed Baptized with Water, but ye ſhall be Baptized with the Holy Ghoſt; Then Go, Teach all Nations, Baptizing them, &c. Unto all this he is ſo Silent, as if there had been no ſuch Thing obſerved. My Third Exception againſt Water-Baptiſm, reſpecting this Text, Matthew 28, ‘That the Prepoſition εἰς or into the Name, &c. could not be ſaid of Water, therefore no Water-Baptiſm; which he takes a little Notice of, thus replying.

Rep. pag. 67. Baptiſm with Water was into the Name, &c. as a Sign; and Baptiſm with the Holy Ghoſt, which is the Gifts of the Holy Ghoſt, might alſo be where the Perſons ſo Gifted, were not really ingrafted into Chriſt, or ſanctified.

Rejoyn. That Baptiſm with Water may be into the Name of the Father, is not ſound, unleſs it could Baptize into the Nature of the Father; for nothing leſs than Regeneration is wrapt up in the Text: Beſides, that is unworthy of the Spirituality of Chriſt's Miniſtration and Kingdom, that He ſhould make Water-Baptiſm Two Thirds of his Commiſſion, which Men may be Baptized with, and yet be as great Strangers, yea, Enemies to Father, Son and Holy Ghoſt, as the moſt impious of Men. And admitting, that by the Holy Ghoſt is to be underſtood the Gifts of the Holy Ghoſt, yet is it Heterodox with a Witneſs, to ſay, That a Man may be Baptized into them, and yet remain unſanctified, and ungrafted into Chriſt; for what is it but to ſay, That to be Baptized by the Holy Ghoſt, is not to Sanctifie Men, nor Graft them into Chriſt; for ſuch hath been his Careleſneſs in this Expreſſion, that he hath not particularized what Gift Men may have, and not be Sanctified or Grafted into Chriſt, but plainly denies in General Terms, the Baptiſm of the Holy Ghoſt to be the ſame Thing with Sanctifying and Grafting Men into Chriſt: So many as were Baptized into Jeſus Chriſt, were Baptized into His Death: Was this done by Water? Where is J. F's Figure now he caſt to abuſe the Text, Mat. 28. Again, As many as have been Baptized into Chriſt, have put on Chriſt, Gal. 3. 27. I would fain know by what Figure J. Faldo makes Water-Baptiſm a putting on of Chriſt; ſuch eaſie putting on of Chriſt, will fall hard one Day upon ſuch as he, and the like Chriſtians. But why ſhould I expect a better Account of theſe Divine Myſteries from a Man that knows ſo little of them, and ſets ſo ſlight by them? But let us hear him a little farther.

Rep. pag. 67. Many Things are expreſſed by the Word Baptiſm, yet but One Proper Baptiſm, which is Water.

Rejoyn. If he had ſaid One Shadowy Baptiſm, it had been better expreſſed, for that he himſelf elſewhere acknowledges it to be; however his One Proper Baptiſm is not the Apoſtle's One Baptiſm, Eph. 4. 5. unleſs he will make the Baptiſm of Water, and the Baptiſm of the Holy Ghoſt, to be but one and the ſame Baptiſm; if he can, he will perform an Impoſſibility; if he cannot, there will be Two Baptiſms, John's Proper Baptiſm, Chriſt's Improper Baptiſm, as J. F. will have them contradiſtinguiſh'd.

Now which of theſe Two is the Evangelical and Durable Baptiſm, the One the Figure, the Other the Subſtance; the One the Fore-runner, the Other the Thing Fore-runned? May we not aſk of Water-Baptiſm as Chriſt aſkt concerning John? What went ye forth to ſee? One that ſaid of His Diſpenſation, I muſt Decreaſe, Chriſt Increaſe. I will not allow of J. Faldo's Word Proper at this Time, though allowable enough among School-Men, becauſe the Philoſophical Senſe of it is not known to the Vulgar; The Word Proper now bearing a different Signification; and in the after common Uſage of the Word, Chriſt's Baptiſm of the Holy Ghoſt is the Only Proper Baptiſm, and, that of Water but Shadowy and Figurative. I will give him a like Caſe upon his Uſe of the Word Proper, and leave it with my Reader what to call this Part of his Reply: There was but One Proper Paſchal Lamb, and that was a Beaſt with four Legs: Alſo, there was but One Proper Circumciſion, and that was the Circumciſion of the Fleſh; therefore are they Evangelical, or to continue? But doth not he know that they are notwithſtanding abrogated by That Lamb and Circumciſion, which according to his Language, are not Properly but Metaphorically ſo? Inſomuch, that after the Apoſtle's Speech, that is no more that Lamb, nor the Circumciſion, that is outward, neither Baptiſm, &c. but that which is not in the Letter, but in the Spirit, Rom. 28. 29.

I more than hinted pag. 138, 139, of my Anſwer at this very Thing, upon his making the Baptiſm the Sign, and Thing ſignified, but One Baptiſm, as a True Expoſition of that Paſſage of the Apoſtle to the Epheſians, One Lord, One Faith, One Baptiſm; But he is afraid to meddle with that; for indeed never Man more overſhot himſelf, opening ſuch a Gap to Judaiſm, as I ſuppoſe no Man pretending to be a Chriſtian, ever ventured at.

But he faintly goes on in theſe Words.

Rep. pag. 67. W. P. tells me, p. 137, of the Apoſtle Paul's Practice. Practice then we ſee (and all the Reaſonable World knows) is not Inſtitution. This is not a very Sound Expreſſion in it ſelf. I do not ſay, that Practice is Inſtitution, but the Practice of the Apoſtles, in Purſuance of an Inſtitution, is a Proof of it's Continuance.

Rejoyn. The Expreſſion is Sounder than he is Ingenuous: He neither ſets down his own Paſſage nor my Anſwer; how then can he honeſtly or intelligibly reply: However, he tells us, that he can beg the Queſtion, that is, That the Apoſtles practiſed upon an Inſtitution; thus he defends his Aſſertion, by repeating his Aſſertion. We have great Reaſon to ſuppoſe him pincht, or elſe we ſhould not find him ſo tame; here a Man may handle him without Knocks. But why did he take no Notice of the reſt of my Anſwer, and ſay ſo little to this; and which is worſe, an Untruth too? For he poſitively lays down in the Second Part of his Firſt Book, pag. 39, this Argument; Becauſe Paul did Baptize ſome, therefore it was an Ordinance. Now what can we call this, but a Contradiction to himſelf, who manifeſtly infers Inſtitution from the Apoſtle's Practice, and yet ſays, He doth not ſay that Practice is an Inſtitution; unleſs he will ſhroud himſelf under the doubtful Signification of the Word Practice, which may as well be uſed about one Thing as another; but as I meant it of an Apoſtolical Religious Practice, ſo he ought to mean in his Uſe of the Word Practice, or elſe he equivocates.

He alſo told us before, That the Reaſon why Water-Baptiſm was not laid upon the Apoſtle Paul, 1 Cor. 1. was, becauſe His Call was Extraordinary, and out of Due Time. To which I anſwered, 'That if he was inferior to no Apoſtle in his Works, 'why ſhould he be reputed ſo in his Commiſſion? That the Prieſts generally allow 'them to have been all extraordinarily called (it has been their Plea againſt our 'Call in theſe Days) That no Man in our Days has a larger Commiſſion in the 'Point; and laſtly, That ſince he was a Goſpel-Chriſtian-Apoſtle, if Water-'Baptiſm had been then reputed a Goſpel-Chriſtian-Ordinance, neither had God 'omitted that in his Commiſſion, nor had the Apoſtle ſpoke ſo ſlightly of it, as he 'doth, when He thanks God that he Baptized ſo few; for, ſays he, I was NOT 'SENT to Baptize, but to Preach the Goſpel, 1 Cor. 1. 14, 17. Acts 26. 18.

But to all this, and abundance more, he was willing to be ſilent: Yet, that he may not be thought to ſay nothing, although he gives not the Reader that Part of my Anſwer unto which he replies (I conceive leſt his Weakneſs ſhould be too nakedly expoſed) he doth at a Venture beſtow thus much at Random upon me.

Rep. pag. 68. If W. P. intended by the Thing Signified, Saving Grace, then it was come to many before Baptiſm at all was inſtituted, and Faith in Jeſus Chriſt was required in all before Baptiſm was offered; If of the Gifts of the Holy Ghoſt, the Apoſtle Peter was ſo far from Arguing after his Faſhion, that he makes it the Ground of Baptizing them. Can any Man forbid Water that theſe ſhould not be Baptized, who have received the Holy Ghoſt as well as we? But if W. Penn had been there, he would have reproved Peter of Ignorance and Sin.

Rejoyn. No ſuch Matter; But I may well reprove J. Faldo, as guilty of both, who is ſo ignorant as not yet to know the Thing ſignified; and ſo ſinful, as to charge the Apoſtle Peter with that which his own Words will not bear; for here is no more of an Inſtitution than there is in Paul's Words to the Corinthians, As often as you do this, &c. Chriſt's Baptiſm is the inward Waſhing by the Word of Regeneration, which makes perfect as pertaining to the Conſcience, of which Water-Baptiſm was but a Figure. I grant that the Sign ended not ſo ſoon as the Thing ſignified began, in Point of Practice; but I affirm it did in Point of Inſtitution. It is not bright Day as ſoon as it is Day-break; Shadows vaniſh gradually; and Cuſtoms (eſpecially if grateful, as were Signs and Ceremonies to Jewiſh-Chriſtians) are not eaſily left. Water-baptiſm was the Prologue to Chriſt's Viſible Appearance, and when he was come, a kind of outward Teſtimonial or Signification of their Belief in the Viſible Appearance of the then ſo much denied, ſo cruelly derided, and crucified Jeſus: Wherefore I ſay, it was not Evangelical, but an Introductory Ceremony, ſuited to the external State of Things in that Day, which in ſome competent Time ſo varied, that there could be no Pretence of Chriſtian-Prudence for perpetuating the Practice of it, much leſs any Reaſon for it's Inſtitution; for as the Chriſtian Power and Spirit then brightned, and Chriſt came to be more and more formed in the Hearts of his People, Water gave way to the Holy Ghoſt and Fire; John to Chriſt; and their Carnal Hiſtorical Faith of Chriſt to the Revelation of the Son of God in them, the one Thing neceſſary, even the Eternal Subſtance, that, as He grew up, and put forth himſelf gradually, wore off all Shadowy and Figurative Obſervations. Thus did God reſtore the Kingdom to Iſrael, and bring back the Captivity of his People; having laid Help upon one that is Mighty, the Son of his Love, who always was the Baptizer of all them that believe in him, into his own pure Nature, which is that Regeneration, without which, no Man ſhall ever enter into the Kingdom of God.

Chap. VII.

CHAP. VII.

Of the Bread and Wine, which Chriſt gave to his Diſciples after Supper, commonly called the Lord's Supper.

OUR Adverſary begins his Sixteenth Chapter thus.

Reply, pag. 69. W. P. having little to any Purpoſe to ſay upon the Point of the Lord's Supper, hath recourſe to his old Shifts; Firſt he charges the Independents with the Death of J. Parnel, p. 141. But what is that to the Queſtion? and I believe as little to the Truth, as my Hand in the Blood of Kings and Princes.

Rejoyn. Then is J. Faldo deeply guilty of the Blood of Kings and Princes; for certain Perſons of that Way apprehended, impriſoned, and hardly uſed him to Death; Doubtleſs, no Murderer, no Traitor was ever handled at that inhumane rate by Engliſh-men, as was this poor Young Man by thoſe pretended Saints. I refer my Reader to the ſecond Part of our Serious Apology, p. 185, 186, 187. for farther Satisfaction. Nor have I uſed any Shifts to avoid the Strength of J. Faldo's Charges or Proofs. I am glad when he meddles with Matter; for I find more Trouble, Chaff, Froth and Pedantry, than when I encounter any Thing more ſolid; But if this be not crying out—firſt, there is no ſuch Thing, as I will make appear in this very Chapter. I brought ſeveral Reaſons to juſtifie our Diſcontinuance of the Supper, ſoberly diſcourſed in four or five Pages: He takes no more Notice thereof, than if there had been no ſuch Thing, ſaving that he tells us, He neglects them becauſe they beſpeak the Emptineſs of their Author: Such a Way of Replying, that had I loved Shifts more than honeſt Anſwers, and could put off my Conſcience at that eaſie but unjuſt Rate, it would have ſaved me the Trouble of having to do with J. Faldo's Eſſays againſt the Quakers. He beſtows his Time in making good two Proofs he pretended to bring out of our Friends Writings; how well he acquits himſelf we will examine.

J. Parnel it ſeems ſaid [The Bread that People broke in that Obſervation, was Outward, Natural and Carnal] This he counted moſt Heinous. I told him, That the Bread and Wine being of an Outward Elementary Nature and Subſtance, may in Compariſon of what they ſignifie, be very properly termed Natural and Carnal. Upon which he beſtows this Reply, after his wonted Modeſty.

Reply, pag. 69, 70. Very well becoming Penn's knowing Divinity and Philoſophy; Fire and Air are of an Elementary Nature; are Fire and Air therefore Carnal?

Rejoyn. We would not that any ſhould think that we intend by Natural and Carnal the worſt Senſe that may attend theſe Words; for ſometimes they import a Wicked and Accurſed State; but ſimply as they are oppoſed to Things ſupernatural and ſpiritual, and in this Senſe all parts of this viſible World may fall under their Signification.

Outward relates to the ſame Thing, and ſo doth Elementary, as vulgarly underſtood, and by me appropriated. I was not making a Philoſophical Lecture, but writing of plain and Evangelical Doctrine; I know that Words in Philoſophy do carry a quite other Senſe than what they bear in common Converſation. I oppoſed Natural to Supernatural; Carnal to Spiritual; Outward to Inward; and Elementary, which relates to any of theſe Worlds Elements, to the Nature of that Food which comes down from above; and I think Biſh. Wilkins's Real Character will vindicate me from the Crowing Charge of this pretended Divine and Philoſopher.

His next Teſtimony was out of W. Smith's Primmer They [Bread and Wine in the Lord's Supper] are the Pope's Invention. This I utterly denied to have been delivered by W. Smith, and did require him in the View of the World to produce any ſuch Words out of the Books of W. Smith, or any other of our Friends. His Reply is this.

Reply, p. 70. What W. P. inſinuates I charged them with, viz. calling the Bread and Wine Chriſt bleſſed, the Invention of the Pope; I am as little concerned to make Proof of, as he is honeſt to make report of; for my Book lays no ſuch Thing to their Charge.

Rejoyn. What a ſilly Evaſion is this? Did he not charge us with calling the Bread and Wine of the Lord's Supper the Pope's Invention? And doth he now tax my Honeſty in ſaying, That he makes us to call the Bread and Wine Chriſt bleſſed, the Invention of the Pope? I would fain know what is the Difference between theſe two Expreſſions; were not the Bread and Wine Chriſt bleſſed, the Lord's Supper? If not, he knows what follows; and if they were the Lord's Supper, then to call the Bread and Wine Chriſt bleſſed, or the Lord's Supper the Invention of the Pope, is equivalent; therefore he ought to think himſelf greatly concerned to make us Satiſfaction for having caſt ſo great a Scandal upon us and our Doctrine. But he hopes to help one Shift by another. Hear him.

Reply, p. 70. But you are to take Notice that W. P's Words import that very ſame Bread and Wine which Chriſt and his Diſciples eat and drank together at Jeruſalem.

Rejoyn. O J. Faldo, leave of theſe horrible Falſhoods: Hath neither Chriſtianity, nor thy Profeſſion, nor common Reputation, Power enough to influence thee into more Juſtice towards thy Adverſary? What Man of Senſe can think I meant only that very ſame Bread and Wine which Chriſt and his Diſciples eat and drank together? There is no Foundation for this ill Comment; And I dare appeal to my Reader's Conſcience in this Matter: And ſo meanly haſt thou managed this Matter, that thy very next Words ſhow the ſlightneſs of thy Reply.

Reply, p. 70. Whereas my Charge is of the Bread and Wine uſed in the Ordinance of the Lord's Supper after his Death among God's People and his Churches.

Rejoyn. What Difference was there in Point of Time between Chriſt's eating the Supper with his Diſciples juſt before his Death, and their breaking Bread together ſoon after his Death? Not a Year; whereas the Pope ſhowed not himſelf till near ſix hundred Years after. I cannot ſee, Friendly Reader, how much more criminal I made my Adverſary by charging him with ſaying in our Name, The Bread and Wine Chriſt bleſſed is the Invention of the Pope, than he hath made himſelf by his own Saying, That we call the Lord's Supper eaten ſoon after his Death, the Pope's Invention; unleſs he ſhould deny the Latter to be the ſame Sort of Supper with the former. In ſhort, We cannot but repute this an Injury too apparent for J. Faldo's utmoſt Invention to cover. But that he may not ſuffer the Imputation of Forgery, at leaſt a very groſs Perverſion, he thus braveth me.

Reply, p. 70. If Penn dare deny it to be in W. Smith's Book which I quoted three or four Times over in pag. 39. I ſhall prove him a Deceiver to all that will but read it, W. S. anſwers to this Queſtion, ‘ I would know, Father, how it is concerning ‘ theſe Things called Ordinances, as Baptiſm, Bread and Wine, which are much ‘ uſed in their Worſhip? Anſw. Why Child, as for thoſe Things they roſe from ‘ the Pope's Invention.

Rejoyn. This Citation, as rankly and partially as he hath put it down, doth not prove that we account the Lord's Supper, either as it was eaten by Chriſt and his Diſciples before his Death, or by his Diſciples after his Death, to be the Pope's Invention. How can it, ſince we know the Pope's Date to have been ſo many Hundred Years after that Practice; His Citation muſt therefore be underſtood of ſuch a Baptiſm and ſuch a Supper as the Apoſtate Church hath preſumed to Practiſe; and that I put not a fairer Gloſs than his own Anſwer will allow, obſerve theſe Words; ‘ and the whole Practice of thoſe Things, As They uſe them, had their Inſtitution by ‘ the Pope, and were never So ordained of Chriſt: ſtrongly implying, that what was of Chriſt's Ordination was not of the Pope's Invention and Inſtitution; conſequently, That the Lord's Supper was neither a Popiſh Invention nor Inſtitution; which is yet plainer from his following Words: ‘ For he did not ordain ſprinkling Water ‘ in a Child's Face, or to make a Sign of the Croſs in his Forehead, nor God-Fathers ‘ and God-Mothers to undertake for it; Neither did he ordain Bread and Wine to be ‘ SO (or after that Manner) uſed and received. So that nothing can be plainer than that his Reflection lies againſt their Manner of practiſing and uſing them, and not againſt the Things themſelves, as at any Time practiſed by Chriſt or his Diſciples and Followers: Therefore he is quite beſide the Truth, in telling the World that he doth but apply theſe Words Pope's Invention to the Name, that is, Lord's Supper, which the Quakers apply to the Thing; ſince we ſo clearly diſtinguiſh between Baptiſm and the Lord's Supper (Name and Thing) and theſe Practices and Uſages of them, which have riſen ſince the Apoſtacy; Now it reſts with thee, Friendly Reader, to paſs Judgment, which of us two hath acted the Deceiver (to leave out a great many more of his hard Words) he that affirmed W. Smith called that Baptiſm and Lord's Supper, which was in Uſe ſome Time as well after Chriſt's Death and Aſcenſion as before, the Pope's Invention, or I that affirmed, and from W. Smith's own Book have expreſly proved, that there was no ſuch Thing ſaid, as primitively practiſed, but only as they have been ſince abuſed by the Apoſtate Church. For the Supper it ſelf I refer the Reader to the ſixteenth Chapter of my Anſwer, and ſhall only ſay at this Time, that as it was a Commemoration or Remembrance of Chriſt to the Diſciples, who were at that Day ſo weak in Faith, as Luke 24. 11. Mary Magdalen's news about Chriſt's Reſurrection ſeemed to them as idle Tales; yet that the Service and conſequently the Inſtitution of it were void, as they came to witneſs him the Evangelical Supper or Paſſover to their Souls, and that we therefore diſcontinue it. Firſt, Becauſe the falſe Church hath made a Market with her imitating that primitive Practice, drawn the Minds of People abroad from the Heavenly Bread of Life, which is only to be received within, and hath been ſhedding ſo much Blood about it, rendring it and Water-Baptiſm the Seals of Chriſtianity, thereby puffing up People to believe that of themſelves which they are not; Next, we have the Teſtimony of God's Spirit, that he is withdrawn from ſuch Obſervations that have been ſo much inſiſted on and magnified in the World; Laſtly and eminently, we diſcontinue it, becauſe Chriſt is become unto our Souls that very Thing, which it was moſt truly and properly the Sign of, to wit, the Heavenly Bread and Paſſover, which nouriſheth the Soul unto Eternal Life. Where by the Way it muſt not be forgotten how perverſly he wrongs Chriſt and Holy Scripture, who turns this Paſſage, Do this till I come, after this ſtrange Manner; The Lord's Supper is a Remembrance of Chriſt's Death paſt, NOT TO COME, Rep. p. 71. wherein firſt, he makes as if there were a Death to come; Next, Inſtead of exhorting People to look for his Coming, until which he bid his Diſciples practiſe it, he turns back their Eyes from that Expectation, and makes the Sign wholly to have Reference to what was paſt, and not what was to come, thereby ſeeking to perpetuate his Abſence, and bar out his Appearance (implied in theſe Words, till I come) which ends the Abſence, during which the Inſtitution laſteth; For the plain Engliſh of it framed into an Argument is this: The Supper is to remember Chriſt's Death that is paſt, but that will be always paſt, therefore it ought to be always ſo remembred. The like may be ſaid upon the Word Remembrance, for if it ought to be practiſed becauſe of remembring Chriſt's Death, then for ever; becauſe his Death ought never to be forgotten. Thus it perverts the Text, in that it makes not the outward Supper to ceaſe upon his Coming, as John 14. 23: Rev. 3. 20. (which is the Evangelical Supper) till whoſe Coming Chriſt bid his Diſciples do it: But to continue it upon the Score of remembring Chriſt's Death only (which as I ſaid before, ought never to be forgotten) is conſequently to continue it upon Inſtitution for ever.

I ſhall only leave two Things with my Reader, and ſo proceed to the next Chapter; firſt, That from our diſcontinuing the Practice of theſe Outward and Temporary Obſervances, J. Faldo concludes, our abſolute and general Denial of them. Secondly, Becauſe ſome of our Friends have denied, rejected and termed Popiſh, the long Abuſe of theſe Things, he makes no Difficulty of charging us in ſo many Words with calling Water-Baptiſm and the Lord's Supper, as laid down in Scripture and primitively practiſed, Popiſh Inventions, &c. God if he pleaſe make this Man ſenſible of his notorious Injuſtice towards us.

Chap. VIII.

CHAP. VIII.

Of the Doctrine of JUSTIFICATION.

HE introduceth his Chapter of Juſtification in theſe Words.

Reply, pag, 71. Upon the Point of Juſtification I cited 18 Proofs to my Charge, To three of which W. P. anſwers by Way of Evaſion and Railing, being ſilent to the Reſt.

Rejoyn. I cited but three, and thought them as ſufficient as threeſcore, ſure I am, they carried the Senſe of the other fifteen, if not, he did ill to produce them. I have anſwered the Law in the Point. And for Evaſion and Railing, if ever I uſed either, it was not in this Chapter, where I have beſtowed ten Pages of Sober and Chriſtian Diſcourſe; unto which he returns me but three Pages in Defence of his former Application of our Friends Writings, for Maintenance of his Charge; and what his Carriage in this particular is, I will leave with my Reader.

His Charge was, that we denied the Tranſactions of Jeſus Chriſt in the Fleſh to have any Influence into our Juſtification before God. Three of his Proofs I conſidered, and reſcued from his Tyranny. The firſt was this: 'All that are called Preſbyterians and Independents, with their Feeding upon a Report of a Thing done many hundred Years ago, E. Bur. Trump. Pag. 17. This J. Faldo called Reproaching ſuch as act Faith on Chriſt's Righteouſneſs and Sufferings by him wrought and ſuffered when he was in the World: An Anſwer that ſuits all Hypocrites at what Time their Hiſtorical Faith is ſtruck at; but what ſaid I? why thus he brings me in. 'E. B. meant no more than their exceſſive Admiration of and Regard to what Chriſt did without; Thus far J. Faldo quotes me, and then replieth.

Reply, pag. 72. Then W. P. thinks to ſalve all with his Meanings which are well nigh as corrupt as the Quakers Text; for the Admiration of what Chriſt then did, will admit of no Exceſs.

Rejoyn. There is much more Reaſon that we ſhould give our Meanings of our own Writings than J. Faldo for us, ſince he is always ſure to make them againſt us; if he will not allow us to explain our own Minds, but make it the Priviledge of an Adverſary, we are ſure to be worſted, be it right or wrong, nor can he eſcape by his own Practice: But why is my Meaning corrupt, or the Text either? May not, nay, do not People rely upon thoſe External Tranſactions of Chriſt, (as recorded in Scripture Story) ſo as to neglect the whole Work of Redemption and Sanctification by the Power of Chriſt within? Or is it falſe Doctrine to affirm that thoſe who hold the whole Work of Man's Salvation to have been throughly wrought by Chriſt's viſible Tranſactions in the World (thereby excluding the moſt neceſſary Operation of his Power and Spirit for the Redemption of ſuch as have been imbondaged by Satan, are Exceſſive in their Apprehenſions of what Chriſt did for Mankind, when viſibly in the World? If it be, we muſt ingenuouſly confeſs, we are Holders and Maintainers of corrupt Doctrine. But whilſt Scripture is of any Value, that denies Heaven to wicked Workers (though fair Profeſſors) that ſays, without Holineſs no Man ſhall ſee the Lord; and without being born again no Man ſhall enter the Kingdom of God; That Men ſhall reap what they ſow; and that Men are ſanctified before they are compleatly juſtified; We need not much fear to ſay, That ſuch as attribute all unto Chriſt's viſible Tranſactions, when he was in the World, are Exceſſive in ſo doing. And if this be true, how unfair was my Adverſary in leaving out that Part of my Anſwer, which would have farther explained my Mind, and prevented his making ſo ill an Uſe of that which he did report; but perhaps, this might be one Reaſon for his Omiſſion, which ought to have been a Reaſon againſt it; for to theſe Words E. B. meant their Exceſſive Regard to what Chriſt did without; I added, whilſt they neglected, undervalued and decry'd for Blaſphemy and Enthuſiaſm the Appearance, Work and Righteouſneſs of Chriſt within, p. 148.

Gal. 6.7,8,9.

To be ſhort, friendly Reader, J. Faldo, either deſign'd to drop this Part of my Anſwer, that he might the better rack the other to his own End and our Diſgrace, (which if he did, it was unmanly, much more unchriſtianly, done) or, he intended his Reply for my whole Anſwer; and then his Doctrine will lie thus: Whoever ſo regards Chriſt's Tranſactions without as to neglect, undervalue and decry for Blaſphemy and Enthuſiaſm, the Appearance, Work and Righteouſneſs of Chriſt within, are not Exceſſive or out of the Way in their Apprehenſion of Chriſt's Tranſactions; But J. Faldo hath that Regard to the Hiſtory of Chriſt's Tranſactions, whilſt he neglects, undervalues and decrys for Blaſphemy and Enthuſiaſm the Appearance, Work and Righteouſneſs of Chriſt within; Therefore J. Faldo's Regard to Chriſt's Tranſactions, whilſt he ſo neglects, undervalues, &c. is not Exceſſive or out of the Way. Thus it lyeth for him; Let us now ſee how his Reply formeth it for us.

Such as ſay, We ought not ſo intirely to regard, or reſt upon Chriſt's viſible Tranſactions in the World, as to neglect, undervalue and decry for Blaſphemy and Enthuſiaſm the Appearance, Work and Righteouſneſs of Chriſt within, hold and maintain corrupt Doctrine; But ſo ſay E. Burroughs and W. Penn; Therefore E. B. and W. P. maintain corrupt Doctrine.

Theſe Arguments are the Natural Import of J. F's Reply; how ſound and conſiſtent with Scripture and Reaſon, is left to the Judgment of Impartial Men. Had E. Burroughs's Works been more ingenuouſly weigh'd, he would have ſeen them to have been no witneſs for his Turn; for may not Men feed upon a Report of good Things, and for want of unfeigned Repentance, true Faith and humble Obedience, never be benefited by them? If J. F. denies it, he conſequently excludes the inward Work of Faith and Repentance from being neceſſary (ſays he and all ſuch Profeſſors) to apply Chriſt's Tranſactions beneficially; and if he confeſſeth Repentance and Faith to be requiſite for the right and profitable Application of Chriſt's Tranſactions, then is not feeding upon a Report of them ſufficient (for at that Rate all the Hypocrites and Lord-Lord-cryers in the World, however impious, would be certainly ſaved) doth E. B's Reproof of ſuch who vainly hope thereby to be juſtified and ſaved in the Sight of God deſerve to be ſtiled corrupt Doctrine. I could here produce many ſolid Teſtimonies out of the Writings of ſeveral ancient and worthy Proteſtants, but ſhall confine my ſelf within the Compaſs of a Paſſage given us by a preſent Writer, quoted by our Adverſary in his firſt Book, p. 58, and that is Dr. Stillingfleet, in a Diſcourſe called his Six Sermons, 'If they 'did believe Chriſt came into the World to reform it, that the Wrath of God is 'now revealed from Heaven againſt all Unrighteouſneſs, that his Love which is 'ſhewn to the World is to deliver them from the Hand of their Enemies, that 'they might ſerve him in Righteouſneſs and Holineſs all the Days of their Lives, 'they could never imagine that Salvation is intailed upon the Goſpel on a mighty 'Confidence or vehement Perſwaſion of what Chriſt hath done for them, p. 160. Thus teacheth Dr. Patrick, Dr. Tillotſon, Dr. Craddock, W. Shirlock, and others, call'd Epiſcopalians, (to ſay nothing of the general Independents and Baptiſts) How will this agree with J. F? But above all, how Epiſcopalians are no farther concerned in his Book than vindicated, a Story he hath the Confidence to tell in his Preface, whilſt they are ſo manifeſtly contradicted in the Great Point of Juſtification, every common Capacity will ſee without farther Pointing. And ſo we proceed to the next Exception he makes againſt my Defence of a Saying charged by him upon R. Farnſworth, as fit for his Turn.

Reply, Pag. 72. To the ſecond Citation, (viz. What Righteouſneſs Chriſt performed without me, was not my Juſtification, neither was I ſaved by it) W. P. ſeeks to mend one Error by another, much akin to it, thus, (What gives daily Acceſs and Acceptance to and with the Lord, is that Preparation of Clean and Righteous Adornment the Soul actually receives from Chriſt, &c. Take Juſtification in this Senſe, and not for Remiſſion—and let our Adverſary do his Worſt. There needs a Diver of Delos to make very good Senſe of theſe Words. I am ſo well acquainted with the Quakers Meanings, as well as their Sayings, that I dare affirm he intends by all this no other Righteouſneſs for Acceſs and Acceptance than what is ſubjected in Men, and is therefore their own Righteouſneſs.

Rejoyn. The Words he charged upon R. Farſworth, I defended conditionally, that is, That if ever he ſpoke or writ them, he did not intend any Benefit that came by Chriſt's Offering of himſelf by the Eternal Spirit a Sacrifice for all, for the Remiſſion of Sins that are paſt through the Forbearance of God, which is the firſt Part of Juſtification; But that the Juſtification and Salvation he underſtood, were not from the Guilt of Sin paſt by Chriſt's Offering, &c. But from the Root, Nature and Power of In-dwelling Sin, through the Powerful Operation of Chriſt's Spirit in the Inward Parts, in the Heart and Conſcience.

But firſt let it be remembred, that he cited no Book, a Fault I found with him before, and deſired him, juſt where he leaves off, that the next Time he would let us know what was the Book that afforded that Expreſſion, which he hath not done; next, That he dares affirm we intended our own Righteouſneſs to be that which gives us Acceptance with God; whereas in ſo many Words I ſaid, that the Clean and Righteous Adornment, which gives the Soul Admittance into God's holy Courts, muſt actually be received from Chriſt, the Lord her Righteouſneſs, which four Words, with a great many more, he diſingenuouſly ſkipt. For thoſe Words of his, ſubjected in Man, I know not what he means by them, unleſs it be a Righteouſneſs within the Power and Ability of Man to bring forth; (for I know no other Righteouſneſs that can be ſubjected in Men) and that this was not my Meaning (notwithſtanding his obtruſive Confidence) my own Words plainly evidence.

dence. He might as properly ſay, that a Child's being waſhed clean by it's Father, is it's own Cleanneſs, or that it made it ſelf clean; or, becauſe a poor Man in Rags intreats ſome better Raiment at the Charity of a great Man, and that he would pleaſe to take him into the Capacity of a menial Servant; therefore that Livery or Apparel beſtowed upon him, by which he is denoted, and hath the Acceſs proper to one of his Family, was of his own proper Coſt or Working; and not the Gift of his Lord and Maſter. If this be abſurd, John Faldo's Conſequence cannot be Rational.

In ſhort, The Everlaſting Righteouſneſs which Chriſt brings into his People, by which he fits them for his Father's Communion, is not the leſs of him, nor the more of or from us, becauſe in us.

But that I may not trouble my ſelf to challenge him to prove this Pernicious Meaning to be ours, he ſays he will prevent me with a Citation out of W. Smith's Cat. p. 74. 'Queſt. What is the Righteouſneſs that juſtifies in the Sight of God? Anſw. For we have Life, before we have Motion, to act or do any thing that is pleaſing to God, and in that Life we have Salvation, and ſo Life and Salvation is freely given us from God.

Rep. Pag. 72. This Citation Mr. Penn had to conſider in this Chapter he pretends to anſwer, but he forbears it among many other, which ſay more for my Purpoſe than he dare tranſcribe.

Rejoyn. If there were others more to his Purpoſe than this, he is to blame to conceal them; but believe him that will, I cannot; And we have Cauſe to think, that if he hath miſapply'd this, he would not have been very faithful in the reſt; I do ſeriouſly profeſs, I never met yet with his Peer for quoting.

Firſt, There is no ſuch Queſtion either in Page 74, or in ſeveral Pages before or after that, if in the whole Catechiſm.

Secondly, He hath left out five Words of the Anſwer, which ſtood us moſt upon to be cited, and altogether the true Queſtion, which was this:

'Queſt. But whether do you not depend upon the Things ye do for Life and 'Salvation?

'Anſw. Nay, we do not ſo; for we have Life, before we have Motion, to act 'or do any thing that is pleaſing unto God.

What, Reader, can be clearer, firſt, than his Denial of our Dependence upon Good Works for Life and Salvation? Next, What plainer, than that he excludes Action, and conſequently Works, as in the Creature, from ſo much as pleaſing God; unleſs God vouchſafe to breathe the Breath of his own Life, and thereby impower him to bring forth Fruits of Holineſs? Laſtly, That the Reaſon of Man's Acceptance is not his own Works or Actions, but his being found acting and working in the Living Faith, which is the Gift of God, by and through which Acceſs to, and Holy Fellowſhip with God, are enjoyed by his Children —— And thus much W. Smith's following Words tell us; 'and ſo Life and Salvation is freely 'given us from God, and by his Grace we are ſaved through the Faith which 'we have in him, and that puts us upon Motion and Action to do his Will in all 'Things, and yet not to depend upon what we do for Life—— But do all Things 'which he commands us from the Motion (or firſt ſetting on Work) of his Life; 'and this is Life before Action, which moves us to Action, and not Action before 'Life, thereby to attain Life, Catechiſm, Page 73, 74.

Now, Reader, this conſidered, give us thy Judgment of J. Faldo's daring Proof; Doth it not to a Tittle make good his Charge, That the Quakers are for Juſtification by their own Works? What ſort of Conſcience muſt he have, that dares look the World in the Face, and obtrude ſuch arrant Untruths upon it? Doth this Scandalous Perverſion become a Man who two Pages off tells us of his abhorring to Miſ-cite, Miſ-render or Miſ-apply our Writings?

To conclude: He ſeems to write at all Adventures, ſupplying his Weakneſs with Confidence, and drowning the Noiſe of his own Forgeries by his vehement Clamours againſt ſuch imaginary ones as he hath provided for me, to go under my Name, which is his greateſt of all. I heartily pray to God, that he may be ſtopt in this Unconſcionable Courſe, and come to find true Repentance, that Eternal Anguiſh do not irrecoverably over-take him, as the Juſt Recompence of ſuch Unjuſt Dealing with us.

His third Citation was out of I. Penington; ‘ Can outward Blood cleanſe the Conſcience? Can outward Water waſh the Soul clean? His Comment upon it is this, A plain Denial of the Efficacy of the Blood of Chriſt ſhed on the Croſs to cleanſe the Soul from the Guilt of Sin, by it's Satisfaction to the Juſtice of God. To which I anſwered, ‘ Doth I. P. deny or any Way meddle with the outward Blood concerning the Guilt of Sin paſt, how far it had an Influence into Juſtification, taking Juſtification in that Senſe. But doth not I. P. treat of the outward Blood with reſpect to Purgation and Sanctification of the Soul from the preſent (Nature) Acts and Habits of Sin that lodge therein? Is there no Difference betwixt being pardon'd Sin paſt, and the Ground of it, and being renewed and regenerated in Mind and Spirit, and the Ground of that Converſion? His Reply to this, though he gives not two Lines of what I now repeated out of my Anſwer, lies thus:

Rep. Pag. 74. And if we allow Penn's Conſtruction, that he denied the Blood of Chriſt, which he calls outward, to have an Influence into Sanctification, he commits a foul Error; for cleanſing the Conſcience by Sanctification is the Effect of the Blood of Chriſt, as well as the other. The New Teſtament or Covenant is by Chriſt ſaid to be the Cup of the New Teſtament in his Blood, wherein all the Promiſes and Mercies of the New Covenant are aſſerted, of which, I think, Cleanſing by Sanctification is none of the leaſt.

Rejoyn. If by the Promiſe of Sanctification to be aſſerted in the Blood of Chriſt, he underſtands that both the Promiſe of Sanctification, and all other Promiſes relating to the Diſpenſation of the Goſpel, were aſſerted, ratified and ſealed to them that believe, in and by the Blood of Chriſt, I ſhall heartily and cheerfully ſubmit; But if he mean that the Blood of Chriſt, ſhed ſo many Hundred Years ago by the Hands of Ungodly Men, is the inherent real Purger of the Conſcience from Dead Works, I muſt deny what he ſays; for the Scripture attributes Sanctification to the Eternal Spirit; It is one Article of the common Creed of the called Chriſtians, viz. the Laver of Regeneration, which is by the Spirit. But what is all this to J. Faldo's defending himſelf from abuſing I. Pennington's Words? to wit, that by aſking, Can outward Blood Cleanſe? Can outward Water waſh the Soul? He would make him to deny Chriſt's ſacrificing of himſelf upon the Croſs to have any Influence towards the Remitting of the Guilt of Sin paſt, which is quite another Thing; as this Argument manifeſts, which naturally expreſſeth J. Faldo's wreſting of I. P's Words,

He that denies outward Blood can cleanſe the Conſcience, denies that outward Blood may be a Sacrifice whereby to declare the Remiſſion of the Guilt of Sin paſt, which is ſo abſolutely and obviouſly falſe, that it may be ſeen of every mean Capacity; Yet hitherto J. Faldo's Reaſoning runs. Once again, before we leave him, thus:

He that is pardoned the Guilt of Sin that is paſt, by the Blood of Chriſt, as a Sacrifice declaring Remiſſion to all that believe, is by the ſame Blood waſhed, cleanſed, renewed and regenerated in his inward Man from the very Nature, Power and indwelling of Sin; which is as untrue as the other; yet both theſe Arguments follow upon J. F's miſ-rendering of I. Pennington's Words; But his Credit in this Particular is not at all blemiſht by his Comment upon I. P's Words, if we will believe him; for he thinks it may be juſtified by a Paſſage out of W. Smith.

Rep. Catech. Pag. 64. ‘ We believe that Chriſt in us doth offer up himſelf a Living Sacrifice to God for us, by which the Wrath of God is appeaſed to us. This Paſſage I cited, which Penn among many others takes no Notice of; And if this can be the Blood of Chriſt ſhed at Jeruſalem, on the Croſs of Wood, it is a moſt incredible Myſtery.

Rejoyn. There is no Difficulty, Friendly Reader, in unfolding his pretended Myſtery, if the Queſtion unto which the Anſwer was made be conſidered, which was this, What is your Faith concerning Chriſt in you, as a Redeemer? which relates not to the Blood of Chriſt ſhed on the Croſs of Wood; wherefore to make the Anſwer deny Remiſſion of Sins to be declared by Chriſt's ſacrificing of his Body the Croſs (which was no Part of the Queſtion to be anſwered) is like all the reſt of his Injuſtice towards us; If the Anſwer had rejected that Sacrifice, we ſhould have condemned it, as much as he hath abuſed it; But unleſs he denies that Chriſt offers himſelf in his Children in the Nature of a Mediating Sacrifice, W. Smith's Words are ſo far from denying the Blood of Chriſt ſhed upon the Croſs of Wood, that he muſt allow them to be found in themſelves; for Chriſt is a Medi- ator and an Atoner in the Conſciences of his People, at what time they ſhall fall under any Miſcarriage, if they unfeignedly Repent, according to 1 John 2. 1, 2. as allowably as that he prays in his People, as their Head, which A. Sadeel ſaith out of Auguſtine, and D. Everard, as anon. So that upon the whole, this is as ſtrong and clear a Proof, as others that he hath hitherto brought; for as they, ſo this (in Queſtion and Anſwer) wholly concerns what Chriſt is to Man in Man, (which was no Part of the Queſtion) and not what he was to any in his Viſible Appearance, which was the only Queſtion.

Before I leave this Particular, I muſt again declare, That we are led by the Light and Spirit of Chriſt with Holy Reverence to confeſs unto the Blood of Chriſt ſhed at Jeruſalem, as that by which a Propitiation was held forth to the Remiſſion of the Sins that were paſt through the Forbearance of God unto all that believed: And we do embrace it as ſuch; and do firmly believe, that thereby God declared his great Love unto the World; for by it is the Conſciouſneſs of Sin declared to be taken away, or Remiſſion ſealed to all that have known true Repentance and Faith in his Appearance. But becauſe of the Condition, I mean Faith and Repentance, therefore do we exhort all to turn their Minds to the Light and Spirit of Chriſt within, that by ſeeing their Conditions, and being by the ſame brought both into true Contrition and Holy Confidence in God's Mercy, they may come to receive the Benefit thereof; for without that neceſſary Condition, it will be impoſſible to obtain Remiſſion of Sins, though it be ſo generally promulgated thereby.

To conclude; As in my Anſwer at large, ſo here, in ſhort, I ſay, Juſtification may be taken in a two-fold Senſe; Compleatly, and Incompleatly; or rather thus, compleat Juſtification hath two Parts; the firſt is, not imputing paſt Sins, or accounting a true Penitent, as Righteous, (or clear from the Guilt of paſt Sin) as if he had never ſinned, through the Remiſſion which God declared and ſealed up to all ſuch in the Blood of his Son; and thus far Righteouſneſs as imputed goes, and is the firſt Part, or Juſtification begun. The Compleat, or laſt Part of Compleat Juſtification, is the Cleanſing of the Conſcience, and regenerating the Mind from the Nature, Power, and In-dwelling of Sin, by the effectual working of the heavenly Power of Chriſt, and bringing into the Heart, and eſtabliſhing, his Everlaſting Righteouſneſs in the Room thereof.

Some Scriptures Conſidered relating to this Doctrine.

To the firſt Part belong ſuch Scriptures as theſe; Iſa. 53. 11. He ſhall bear their Iniquities רסבר ſeptuagint φερει that is, He ſhall bear away their Iniquities, as did the Scape Goat figuratively under the Law; or, That God would declare his Remitting or Paſſing over the Sin that was paſt, and that he would be in Chriſt reconciling the World unto himſelf, not imputing their treſpaſſes unto them. Rom. 3. 25. 2 Cor. 5. 19, 20.

Alſo Rom. 4. 5. But to him that worketh not, but believeth on him that juſtifieth the Ungodly, his Faith is counted for Righteouſneſs; that is, God acquitteth upon Repentance, and Faith in his Promiſe, ſuch as have lived in a Courſe of Ungodlineſs. For no preſent Work, how good ſoever, can juſtify any Man from the Condemnation which is due for the Guilt of Sin that is paſt. So that juſtifying the Ungodly in this Place is pardoning the Ungodly; and being ſo pardoned, upon Faith in the Promiſe of God, is accounted for Righteouſneſs, or as if the Perſon pardoned had never ſinned; and this appears from the 7th and 8th Verſes, Bleſſed are they whoſe Sins are forgiven, and whoſe Iniquities are Covered.

Again, Chap. 5. 6. For when we were yet without Strength, Chriſt in due Time died for the Ungodly; and, Verſe 8, But God commended his Love towards us, in that while we were yet Sinners Chriſt died for us; That is, Chriſt laid down his Life to reclaim Sinners, and to declare the Righteouſneſs of God for the Forgiveneſs of the Sin that is paſt, to all Ungodly and Sinful Men, that turn from the Evil of their Ways by unfeigned Repentance; it was done in and by Chriſt for all Ungodly Men, but not to the Benefit of any without Repentance Not that People ſhould go on in Sin, but by ſo recommending of his Love, and ſealing ſuch Glad Tidings with his own Blood, to allure and engage them from their preſent Courſe of Sin, 1 John 4. 19.

He firſt loved us; Men muſt not therefore continue in Sin, that Grace (that is Forgiveneſs) may abound; God forbid, Rom. 6. 1.

The laſt conſiderable Place is in the ſecond Epiſtle to the Corinthians, Chap. 5. 21. For he hath made him Sin for us, who knew no Sin; That is, He was made a Sacrifice for the remitting or paſſing over of the Sin that was paſt, for ſuch as repent and believe; that they might be made the Righteouſneſs of God, or rather accounted Righteous in the Sight of God, as if they had never committed Sin, by not imputing, or forgiving, the Sin that was paſt.

This Senſe the two foregoing Verſes confirm, to wit, that God was in Chriſt reconciling the World unto himſelf, not imputing their Treſpaſſes unto them, and hath committed unto them the Word of Reconciliation. Now then we are Ambaſſadors for Chriſt, as though God did beſeech you through us, We pray you in Chriſt's Stead, that you would be reconciled to God, Verſe 19, 20. agreeing with Rom. 3. 25. Whom God hath ſet forth to be a Propitiation through Faith in his Blood to declare his Righteouſneſs for the Remiſſion (or paſſing over) of Sins that are paſt, through the Forbearance of God; which is neither a rigid Satisfaction for, nor a Juſtification from Sins that are paſt, preſent, and to come, as a late ſhallow Writer in his Preface to the Hartford ſelf-confuting Pamphlet idly and falſly call'd the Quaker converted, would have us believe, but an acquitting from or remitting of paſt Sin upon Faith and Amendment of Life, which makes up that only imputative Righteouſneſs, that the Scripture holds forth, or we can allow of.

The Scriptures that belong to the ſecond Part of this Doctrine, which makes up compleat Juſtification, are ſuch as theſe: Keep thee far from a falſe Matter, and the Innocent and Righteous ſlay thou not, for I will not juſtify the Wicked, Exod. 23. 1. Lord who ſhall abide in thy Tabernacle, who ſhall dwell in thy Holy Hill? He that walketh uprightly, and worketh Righteouſneſs, and ſpeaketh the Truth in his Heart, Pſalm. 15. 1, 2. When a Righteous Man turns away from his Righteouſneſs, for his Iniquity that he has done, ſhall he die: Again, when the wicked Man turneth away from his Wickedneſs, and doth that which is Lawful or Right, he ſhall ſave his Soul, Ezek. 18. 26, 27. Not every one that ſaith unto me, Lord, Lord, ſhall enter into the Kingdom of Heaven, but he that Doth the Will of my Father which is in Heaven, Matt. 7. 21. Unleſs a Man be born again, he cannot enter into the Kingdom of God, John 3. 3, 5. If ye keep my Commandment, ye ſhall abide in my Love, John 15. 10. For not the Hearers of the Law are juſtified, but the Doers of the Law ſhall be juſtified, Rom. 2. 13. If ye live after the Fleſh ye ſhall die; but if ye through the Spirit do mortify the Deeds of the Body ye ſhall live, for as many as are led by the Spirit of God are the Sons of God, Rom. 18. 13, 14: That the Offering of the Gentiles might be acceptable being ſanctified by the Holy Ghoſt, Rom. 14. 16. But this is the Will of God, even your Sanctification, 1 Theſ. 4. 3. Becauſe God hath from the Beginning choſen you to Salvation through Sanctification of the Spirit, and Belief of the Truth, 2 Theſ. 2. 13. Was not Abraham our Father Juſtified by Works, when he offered Iſaac his Son upon the Altar? Ye ſee then how that by Works a Man is juſtified, and not by Faith only, Jam. 2. 22, 24.

In all theſe weighty Paſſages there is nothing more clear than that Sanctification both uſhers in, and compleats Juſtification. Firſt, In that no Man can have Right to Remiſſion of Sins, but upon Unfeigned Repentance and True Faith begotten in the Heart, which is as well the Beginning of Sanctification, as Introduction to Juſtification. 2dly, That (though we grant as before at large, Remiſſion of Sins, not to be the Effect or Purchaſe of inward Righteouſneſs and Holineſs, for it's impoſſible; but the free Love and Mercy of God, yet) without the Holy Sanctifying or Regenerating Work of God in the Heart, by the Operation of his Eternal Spirit, whereby to do the Will of God, as it is in Heaven, it is impoſſible to have Acceſs into God's Tabernacle and Holy Hill, much leſs to be juſtified by him: And indeed, as true Repentance, which is the Beginning of the Work of Sanctification, opens the Way for the Remiſſion of Sins that are paſt, which I call the firſt Part of Juſtification; ſo is Regeneration or Sanctification throughout, in Body, Soul and Spirit, as well the compleating of Juſtification, as Sanctification, conſequently it is that ſecond Part of Juſtification; becauſe it is a making Man juſt by Nature, who was before Juſt but by Imputation; that is, he that was accounted juſt by not having Sin imputed through Repentance and Faith in the Love of God, declared in and by Chriſt, is now inwardly made more juſt, becauſe made Holy, as God is Holy, Levit. 20. 7. Perfect, as his Heavenly Father is perfect, Matt. 5. 48. Righteous, even as God is Righteous, 1 John 3. 7. through the effectual Working of the Holy Ghoſt.

There are Two Scriptures which prove this.

The one is, 1 Cor. 1. 30. But of him are ye in Chriſt Jeſus, who of God is made unto us Wiſdom and Righteouſneſs, and Sanctification and Redemption; where the Word Juſtification is left out, and yet the Thing Juſtification doubtleſs included and implied.

The other is, Rom. 8. 30. Moreover, whom he did predeſtinate, them he alſo called; and whom he called, them he alſo juſtified, and whom he juſtified, them he alſo glorified; where Sanctification is left out, yet without Diſpute the word Juſtification includes it. Nor are we alone in this Judgment, ſince both Ancient and Modern Writers avouch the ſame.

Irenæus, adv. Hereſ. lib. 4. cap. 30.

Irenæus, Diſciple to Polycarpus, who was Diſciple to John the Divine Apoſtle, ' ſays, Juſti autem Patres virtute Decalogi conſcriptam habentes in cordibus ſuis legem. The Patriarchs, ſays he, were juſtified by virtue of the Law written in their Hearts.

Again, (Lib. 3. cap. 4.) ' He ſpeaks of many Nations of the Barbarians of whom they that believe in Chriſt have Salvation written in their Hearts by the Spirit, without Paper or Ink.

Clemens Alexandrinus, Strom. lib. 7.

And ſays Clemens Alexandrinus, who lived in the ſame Century; ' Ye are made of him to be Righteous, as he is Righteous, and leavened of the Holy Ghoſt.

Orig. Epiſt. ad Rom. L. 4. c. 4.

And Origen alſo tells us, ' Therefore Chriſt Juſtified them only, who have betaken themſelves to a New Life by the Example of his Reſurrection, and have caſt away the Old Garments of Unrighteouſneſs and Iniquity, as the Cauſe of Death. Thus far the Fathers.

Of the Reformers from Popery.

H. Bullenger, Decad. 1. Serm, 6 de Juſtif.

H. Bullenger thus; ' To juſtifie ſignifieth to remit Offences (that is, as I diſtinguiſht the firſt part; but hear what followeth) ' to cleanſe, to ſanctifie, and to give Entrance of Life Everlaſting. Again, ' Juſtification is taken in this preſent Treatiſe for the Abſolution and Remiſſion of Sins, for Sanctification and Adoption into the Number of the Sons of God.

D. Barnes's Works, pag. 243, 244, 245.

To him I will add D. Barnes, Burnt in Henry the Eighth's Days who in his Diſcourſe of the True Church againſt the Romiſh Biſhops, aſſerts in full and pathetical Expreſſions; ' That what gives her Acceptance in the Sight of God, is her being preſented to God by Chriſt her Head, without Spot, through the Waſhing of Regeneration.

B. Downam. of Juſtif. chap. 1.

So Biſhop Downam of Juſtification diſtinguiſheth and determineth this Point almoſt in the very ſame Terms.

I will conclude with ſome Paſſages out of J. Sprigg's Book, entituled, A Teſtimony to an Approaching Glory.

J. Sprig. Teſt. p. 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 88, 89.

' We may be bold to ſay after Chriſt, That Fleſh profiteth nothing. If you only know Chriſt's Dying and Riſing without you, it will profit you nothing, except you have him Dying and Riſing within you. Error in this is the Root of the Dead Faith, whereof the World is full—— Paul doth not ſay, that the Hearing that Chriſt died for the Sins of Men, doth make them free; No, there was the Spirit of Life in Chriſt Jeſus——Here is that which puts a Difference, when the Spirit of Jeſus Chriſt brings the Covenant to the Heart of a poor Creature, when the Spirit of Adoption and Sonſhip revealing us God as our Father, revealeth God in Union with us, our Righteouſneſs and our Strength, he doth indeed ſeal us to the Day of Redemption; He ſets apart Chriſt's Sheep, this diſtinguiſheth them from the other. So that if you lay your Salvation upon an * Hiſtorical Chriſt, ye will be deceived, If you will have that in which you may confide, you muſt have Chriſt revealed in you in the Spirit.

* What ſays J. F. to this? Is it not beyond what E. B. ſaid of a Report of Chriſt.

' This is the Sum of all I deſire to commend unto you, that we are not juſtified, we are not ſanctified by Chriſt's dying, by Chriſt's ſuffering in the Fleſh only, That is not the compleat Miniſtration of our Salvation (There indeed we ſee our Salvation as in a Glaſs, and it is tranſacted as in a Figure, as in the Hiſtory) but 1673. Part II. Chap. VIII.

‘ then are we actually ſanctified, when as God doth ſend that ſame Spirit of Adoption into our Hearts, revealing unto us the Love of the Father, and revealing ‘ unto us our Reconciliation, that Reconciliation that was held forth to us on the ‘ Croſs, but which is diſpenſed unto us, by our being offered up upon the Croſs, as ‘ Chriſt was.

All theſe Perſons put great value upon the Inward Work of God and Chriſt in the Heart, and plainly determine Sanctification and Juſtification to be one and the ſame Thing; but if any one have the Preference, the Scripture it ſelf gives it to Sanctification, 1 Cor. 6. 11. Know ye not that the Unrighteous ſhall not inherit the Kingdom of God; Be not deceived, neither Fornicators, nor Idolaters, nor Adulterers, nor Effeminate, nor Abuſers of themſelves with Mankind, nor Thieves, nor Covetous, nor Drunkards, nor Revilers, nor Extortioners ſhall inherit the Kingdom of God; and ſuch were ſome of you; but ye are waſhed, but ye are ſanctified ἐδικαιώθητε ye are juſtified in the Name of the Lord Jeſus, and the Spirit of our God. H. Grotius expounds the Word ſanctified Ἡγιάσθητε accepiſtis ſpiritum ſanctum, ye have received the Holy Ghoſt, and the Word Juſtified, majores quotidie in juſtitiâ feciſtis progreſſus, ye have made daily greater progreſs in Righteouſneſs. And D. Hammond, in his Annotations upon the fifth Chapter of the ſecond Epiſtle to the Corinthians, interprets Δικαιοσύνη or Righteouſneſs, a being firſt ſanctified, and then juſtified.

To end this Chapter, ſerious Reader, It is our Faith, that Chriſt, to conform us to his Heavenly Image, who have by wicked Works degenerated into the Earthly, and thereby rendered our ſelves Aliens, yea, Rebels to his pure Law of Life, firſt declares or holds forth Forgiveneſs of Sins paſt, upon true Repentance, by the laying down of his Life; and then works out, by his Holy Power and Spirit in our Conſciences, the Sin that is inherent, and in the Room thereof brings in his own Everlaſting Righteouſneſs. So that our being accounted Righteous, is as Chriſt was accounted a Sinner; That is, he was not a Sinner by Commiſſion or Guilt, neither were we as of our ſelves Righteous by Innocency or Non-commiſſion of Sin; for then there had been no need of Remiſſion to have been declared by his publick Offering up of himſelf: But he was ſo reputed, from bearing away the Sins that were paſt through the Forbearance of God; and we are accounted as Righteous (upon Repentance and true Faith) becauſe of that Remiſſion and perfect Acquittance of Sins that are paſt, as if we had never committed them. Therefore wofully will they be miſtaken, that ſhut out the inward Work of God in the Heart, and ſtretch this to Sins paſt, preſent and to come, without any regard thereto; when as the Benefit of Chriſt's Suffering, can in no Senſe be known or enjoyed, without the true Faith and unfeigned Repentance, which muſt precede Remiſſion it ſelf (and by whom, or where is that wrought, if not by Chriſt within) much more muſt they go before compleat Juſtification, which compriſeth Sanctification and Redemption, we cannot but pronounce it a Dangerous Doctrine; ſince it flatters People with that being compleated, that is not; thereby deluding their poor Souls into a Periſhing Security.

CHAP. IX.

Chap. IX.

Of the True Chriſt. We own, and our Adverſary prov'd to deny, him.

THE fixteenth Chapter of his firſt Book charged us with the Denial of the Chriſt of God; Among other Teſtimonies that he brought out of our Friends Books, to maintain it, I did effectually conſider two; viz. ‘ This we certainly ‘ know, and can never call the Bodily Garment Chriſt, but that which appeared ‘ and dwelt in the Body. Again, ‘ For that which he took upon him was but a ‘ Garment, even the Fleſh and Blood of our Nature, I Pennington Queſt. p. 20, 23, 32. To introduce my Anſwer, I obſerved at the ſame Time, and in the very ſame Page, He confeſt, That we don't deny there was ſuch a Man as Jeſus, the Son of Mary, and that God, or rather Chriſt, was in him, which I then ſaid makes up our Chriſt; I meant, God manifeſted in the Fleſh. He replieth thus.

Reply, Pag. 76, 77. But this I told W. P. was no more than the Quakers profeſs themſelves; We witneſs (ſaith Fox) the ſame Chriſt that ever was, now manifeſted in the Fleſh.

Rejoyn. He ſhould have given us the Book and Page, where G. F. hath ſo expreſſed himſelf; however, we deny not that Doctrine; for God doth dwell and walk in his Children, who are called his Temples and Tabernacles in Holy Scripture, 2 Cor. 6. 16. Rev. 21. 3. But we muſt for ever reject J. Faldo's ignorant or worſe Conſequence; That becauſe we own, that God dwells in his Children, therefore he dwelt no more in that Body of Fleſh he prepared to manifeſt himſelf by than he doth in his People; Or, that our aſſerting, that God appeared and dwelt in that Holy Body eminently prepared by him, is to be underſtood in no larger Senſe, than that in which we underſtand him to dwell in his Children. I might as well argue againſt the Scripture as J. Faldo doth againſt us; Chriſt was full of Grace and Truth; therefore when he fills his Children with Grace and Truth, they have as much Grace and Truth in them as their Lord and Maſter. Or thus, God was in Chriſt, and God was in Paul; therefore he was as much in Paul as he was in Chriſt. It is after this Rate, Reader, our Adverſary eſſays to confute us, as if we made no Diſtinction between the Fulneſs and the Meaſure, the Treaſury and the Gift; He was full of Grace and Truth, and of his Fulneſs have we received and Grace for Grace, John 1. 14, 16.

The next Thing I obſerved from what he gave as our Confeſſion of the true Chriſt, was this, That he whom we call Chriſt, is not John Faldo's Chriſt; for he was that Body only that dyed; here he cuts my Anſwer off ſhort and beſtoweth this Reply upon it.

Rep. Pag. 75. Here the Word, only, W. P. forgeth; he makes my allowing Chriſt's Body to be his Garment, to imply, it is not Chriſt himſelf.

Rejoin. Why did he not give my Words; who knows by what he quoted of my Anſwer that he had ever been ſo kind? the Man knew it pincht him, and ſeem'd reſolved to conceal it. It was this: ‘ In the midſt of his ſecond Proof, he inſerts theſe two Words, VERY RIGHT, as his Aſſent to that Part of it, which to me ſeems as inconſiſtent with his Purpoſe as may be, to wit, that which Chriſt took upon him was our Garment, even the Fleſh and Blood of our Nature; therefore ſaid I, John Faldo as well as we acknowledgeth, That the Garment is not Chriſt, unleſs there be no Difference betwixt Chriſt and his Garment; Or, that Chriſt was but the Garment of that divine Being that dwells therein; which were unſcriptural and very carnal; and I ſtill ſay, That Chriſt's Garment can never conſtitute him Chriſt. And that, as he darkly calls it the (intire) Chriſt (as I ſhall make appear) ſo hath he in this Conceſſion contradicted himſelf, and utterly given away the Cauſe. But he is of another Mind as his Reply will inform us.

Reply, Pag. 76. The Apoſtle Paul calls his and the Saints Bodies their Clothing, 1 Cor. 5. yet they were never the leſs a part of themſelves.

Rejoyn. A meer Rattle for Children. Did the Body God prepar'd for his Son to do his Will in, help to conſtitute him Chriſt, as much as the Apoſtle's Body did help to conſtitute him Paul? If it did, why may we not as well ſay that Paul was among the Fathers in the Wilderneſs ſo many hundred Years before he was born, as the ſame Apoſtle doth aſſert, Chriſt by Name to have been the ſpiritual Rock of which the Fathers drank in the Wilderneſs, 1 Cor. 10. 4. for if the Body conſtitute him Chriſt, as ſays J. F. then he could no more be Chriſt before he had that Body, than Paul could be Paul before he had his Body; and conſequently, There is no more Abſurdity in affirming, That Paul was Paul ſo many hundred Years before he was born, than that Chriſt was Chriſt ſo many hundred Years before he was born.

Again, If Paul's Body were but a Clothing, how much more remote doth J. F's Compariſon make Chriſt's Body to be from his Divinity? Since Paul did not pre-exiſt, Chriſt did; but he that took that Body, and that Body that was taken, were not of equal Date; for the Body was taken in the Fulneſs of Time; but he that took it, and manifeſted himſelf by it, was from Everlaſting. In ſhort, Chriſt qualified that Body for his Service, but that Body did not conſtitute Chriſt; He is inviſible, and ever was ſo to the ungodly World; (that was not his Body) as honeſt J. Bradford told Arch-Deacon Hapsfield. B. Mart. 3 Vol. p. 293. and ſo much the Word χρίςος or anointed ſignifieth, which was not outward after the Jewiſh Ceremony, but by the Spirit and inviſible Power of God.

Laſtly, I will leave it with my Reader to conſider what better Terms than Earthly and Periſhing, J. F's Compariſon implieth to Chriſt's Body; for ſuch was the Apoſtle's and the Bodies of thoſe Saints he writ to. But he will by no Means have himſelf concerned with a great Part of my following Diſcourſe, which was, he thinks, in Oppoſition to no Body; becauſe I argued that the meer Body of Chriſt could not be the intire Chriſt (though he makes our Denial of it to be a diſowning of the true Chriſt) producing a Paſſage out of his Book to my Purpoſe in Contradiction to himſelf, viz. p. 72. The Fleſh and Blood of Chriſt we do not believe to 1673. Part II. Ch. IX. be Chriſt, ſeparated from his, Man's Soul, or that to be Chriſt ſeparated from his Divine and Eternal Nature; beſtowing upon me for ſo ill employing of my Time, theſe Terms, Vain Trifler—Pedantick Magiſterialneſs, Forger, and that it is a greater Wickedneſs than being a Thief; to make him aſſert the meer Body to be the intire Chriſt; adding, but this is Penn's high-way and beaten Road. One would think after all this, that I had wronged him with all imaginable Baſeneſs, in faſtning upon him any ſuch Concluſion; yet if I make it not appear by his Reply (which one would think, he ſhould have penned a little more cautiouſly after he had given ſuch Occaſion by his former Diſcourſe) and that too in his very next Page, let my Reader ſay, I merit all thoſe hard Words that J. Faldo flingeth ſo angrily upon me.

He produceth ſeveral Scriptures to prove (as I underſtood him) the Manhood to be the Chriſt of God or (elſe he did nothing) for without ſo believing and arguing, it was impoſſible for him to prove our Denial of the true Chriſt, becauſe we aſſerted Chriſt to have been before that Body, conſequently that it was not the intire Chriſt which I explained and reſcued. He omits giving the Reader any Account of it, only in general Terms, and that not without Perverſion; His Reply unto which will make good my Conſtruction of his Words, or I am greatly miſtaken.

Rep. Pag. 77. Whereas I produced Abundance of Scriptures to prove that the Man Jeſus is the Chriſt, W. P. will by no means allow them to have that Senſe; no, not that in Luke 2. 26. And it was revealed to him (Simeon) by the Holy Ghoſt, that he ſhould not ſee Death before he had ſeen the Lord's Chriſt, neither that the Child Jeſus whom Simeon took up in his Arms, was the Chriſt; Certainly, (ſays W. P. Pag. 161.) This Allegation from Luke 2. 26. will never prove the Body of Jeſus, which the Father prepared for him, to be the whole intire Chriſt, &c. Neither did I produce it to prove the Body to be ſuch; what Diſputing can there be with a Man that keeps neither to my Words, nor to the Queſtion.

Rejoyn. But is this the great Enemy to Forgery, the expreſs Quoter, one that cites to a Tittle, and ſcorns, as to Ignore his own Conceſſions, ſo to render his own Concluſions for his Enemies Aſſertions? Who charges me with denying this Paſſage among others, as any whit proving the Man Jeſus to be the Chriſt, whilſt he quotes my own Concluſion upon it to have been no other than the Body of Jeſus, to have been the whole and intire Chriſt. Now he can't compaſs his End, he produced not thoſe Scriptures to prove any ſuch Thing; but what is clearer than that it is the ſame Thing with J. Faldo, to deny the Body of Jeſus to be the intire Chriſt of God, and to deny the Chriſt of God; conſequently, that by the Chriſt of God he underſtands with L. Muggleton only the Body that died? So that he did but evade, when he ſaid that I argued againſt no Body, in affirming and proving that the Body taken in that Time was not the whole Chriſt of God; and that he produced thoſe Scriptures to that very End, notwithſtanding what he ſays to the contrary; for what elſe can any infer, when he ſo obviouſly makes no Difference between ſaying, The Man Jeſus is not Chriſt, and the viſible Body of Jeſus is not the whole intire Chriſt; Thus, Reader, he Faulters at the Entrance. I will give a brief Account of near two Pages of Anſwer by him omitted.

‘ It is and will be granted that Simeon ſaw the Lord's Chriſt; but I hope J. F.
‘ will not deny unto that good Man who waited for Iſrael's Conſolation, that he ‘ had as well a ſpiritual as natural, an inward as outward, Sight of Chriſt; for it
‘ were both to deny Chriſt's Divinity, and to conclude Simeon void of any ſpiritu-
‘ al Sight or Intendment in theſe Words of the Lord's Chriſt, as a Light enlight-
‘ ning the Gentiles, &c. though ſtill be it underſtood, that we confeſs that Child as ‘ ſeen and underſtood by Simeon, with reſpect to that great End of his Appearance, to ‘ be the Lord's Chriſt; Let none then be ſo unjuſt as to infer we deny the Lord's ‘ Chriſt, becauſe we rather chuſe to ſay the Body of Chriſt, than Chriſt; for ſays
‘ J. Faldo as well as we elſewhere, Chriſt is God manifeſt in Fleſh; See my Anſwer, Page 161.

Nothing can be clearer than that I only argued in Oppoſition to his carnal Doctrine, againſt the meer Body's being the Chriſt of God, Now, ſince he makes me hereby to deny the Man Chriſt Jeſus, I muſt conclude, that by the Man Jeſus he underſtands no more than the meer Body of Jeſus, otherwiſe, how do I deny the Man Jeſus to be the Chriſt of God, in only ſcrupling to call the meer and only Body of Jeſus the Chriſt of God. His next Animadverſion was this.

Rep. Pag. 78. Let us obſerve how W. P. abuſes that Scripture, Acts 5. 30, 31. The Words (ſays he) are thus to be underſtood, The God of our Fathers (who raiſed up (the Body of) Jeſus from the Dead, which ye ſlew, and hung upon a Tree, him (whoſe Body you ſo cruelly uſed) hath God exalted at his Right Hand, &c. Beſide this Conſtruction, which renders it not to be Chriſt, but only his Body which ſuffered, and ſo Chriſt never ſuffered nor died, nor roſe, he (W. P.) puts inſtead of whom he ſlew, which he ſlew, that it may intend only the Body, and not the Perſon of Chriſt.

Rejoyn. I appeal to my Reader's Underſtanding and Conſcience, if J. Faldo doth not in this Sentence, make the meer Body of Chriſt to be the Chriſt of God; for one Reaſon why he denies my Interpretation, is my making the meer Body only to have dyed, which not being the intire Chriſt of God, it was not He, but his Body only that dyed: So that either J. Faldo holds the meer Body to be the Chriſt, or elſe, that ſomething more dyed than the meer Body: But becauſe he acknowledgeth the Deity could not dye, nor that the Soul did dye, it muſt follow that the Body only dyed: And ſince he will ſtrictly have it, That the Chriſt of God dyed, the meer Body muſt be the Chriſt of God.

His Second Exception is very trivial, and what in it can be thought to deſerve an Anſwer, is included in what was ſaid before; for whom might be attributed to the Body, as it repreſented the whole or intire Chriſt, that is Metonymically ſpoken, the Thing containing, for the Thing contained, which is very frequent in Scripture; for many times that is aſcribed to the Body of Jeſus, which belongs to the Whole Chriſt. This, with abundance more of pertinent Anſwer, he takes no more Notice of than if it had never been written. But a little to give J. F. his Humour, and to ſee if the Upſhot riſes higher than which. What doth he underſtand by the Perſon ſlain? (according to J. F's own Diſtinctions) Was it the Godhead? That he denies, Book the Firſt, Part 2, pag. 73. Was it the Man's Soul? No. Reply, pag. 78. Muſt it not be the Body then? And if ſo? What corrupting of Scripture is it to ſay, which ye ſlew, inſtead of whom ye ſlew? 'Tis at this ſlender trifling Rate he hath dealt with us throughout the Controverſie. Two Paſſages more before we conclude this Chapter.

Upon my recollecting the Whole of this Argumentation, and concluding thus, Since the Divinity could not dye, and the Man's Soul was not Mortal, much leſs could be hanged on a Tree, or put into a Sepulchre, it follows, That it was the Viſible Body only that dyed, &c. and that it is therefore the Intire Lord and Saviour Jeſus Chriſt, in J. F's, as well as Blaſphemous L. Muggleton's Senſe; he makes this Reply Word for Word.

Rep. 78. But if it follows upon my Senſe, it follows upon the Words and Scope of the Scripture, which ſaith the ſame in ſo many Words, and in Senſe an hundred times. But there is no ſuch Abſurdity follows upon either; The Soul can't dye, cannot therefore the Man dye? If not, there is no ſuch Thing, as killing of Men, or Mortal Men.

Rejoyn. Man cannot properly be ſaid to dye whilſt his Soul lives, but he may be ſaid to ceaſe to be in this Viſible World, or to depart out of it, and to lay down his Mortal Body; ſo that the Body dyes but not the Man; I know it is a common Phraſe, but ſynecdochically ſpoken, where that is aſcribed to the whole Man, which only belongeth to the Mortal Part of Man. This brings the Buſineſs no nearer than it was before; for if I underſtand any Thing, the Compariſon makes the Death of Chriſt to be the Death of his Body only, and that it is call'd the Death of Chriſt, inſtead of the Death of the Body of Chriſt, from that familiar Uſage in Speech, the Thing contained, for the Thing containing, that is, Chriſt, inſtead of the Body of Chriſt. In ſhort, becauſe ſuch Murderers, who are ſaid to kill Men, kill only the Bodies of Men; thoſe Jews who crucified Chriſt, properly crucified the Body of Chriſt only, though in a more Myſtical Senſe, they may be alſo ſaid in that very Action, to have murdered the Prince of Life and Glory, 1 Cor. 2.

His other Paſſage containeth a Reflection upon my Saying, That Souls could not be Hanged on a Tree.

Rep. pag. 79. I had thought that the Soul being United with the Body till Death, where-ever the Body was diſpoſed, the Soul was alſo; and therefore the Body ſo long as it liveth, hanging on a Tree, the Soul hangs there too; alſo many a poor Wretch can tell him at the Torment of Execution, that his Doctrine is falſe; for were but their Souls ſeparated from their Bodies, they would feel no Pain, nor cry out of their Torment.

Rejoyn. A very Shuffle, and nothing to the Purpoſe. The Soul is in the Body ſo long as the Body is alive upon the Tree, and yet it ſelf not ſtrictly hanged on the Tree; for if it were, then would it be as impoſſible for the Soul as Body to free it ſelf, whilſt the Soul by his own Allowance is incomparable and impaſſible, becauſe immaterial; whereas Nails, Ropes, or any other Inſtruments of Cruelty, can only faſten upon Material Things; for if the Soul could be properly hanged, She could as well be burnt, and laid into a Sepulchre. A Man might as well ſay, if J. Faldo were hanged on a Tree, his Watch in his Pocket would be hanged; or if he were put in the Stocks, his Underſtanding would be in the Stocks. Nor hath any poor Wretch Reaſon to complain of my Doctrine at his Execution; for I never denied, that Pain was a Sign of the Soul's not being ſeparated, ſince it is an undeniable Reaſon, why it is not ſeparated; however, it is not the Soul, but the Body (through that Senſibility the Soul, while unſeparated, continues in it) which feels that Pain.

But I could tell J. Faldo of many Bleſſed Martyrs, that in the midſt of Flames, were carried above the Senſe of Pain; not becauſe their Souls were not in their Bodies at the Stake, but from the exceeding Joy of the Holy Spirit, which by the Way may as well be ſaid to be tied to the Stake, as the Soul, becauſe in the Soul; for that is the Concluſion of J. F's Argument; The Soul is in the Body, therefore the Soul is as well tied as the Body; the Holy Spirit and his Comforts are in the Soul, therefore tied as well to the Stake as either Body or Soul.

In ſhort, Souls may be hanged upon Trees, as Souls in Scripture are ſaid to die, or be ſlain, an Hebrew Phraſe; not that Souls really did die or were ſlain, but that Man is called many Times by his nobler Part.

I ſhall conclude this Chapter with a few Reaſons for the Hope that is in us, concerning the Subject Matter of this Chapter, and two or three Teſtimonies in Confirmation of them, which I offer with all Tenderneſs of Conſcience unto my ſerious Reader.

Firſt, This Opinion of our Adverſary's renders Chriſt not to have been the Saviour of the World from Abel's Day, contrary to Scripture, which teacheth us to believe, That there was never another Name or Power by which Men could be ſaved, than the Name and Power of Jeſus Chriſt, Acts 4. 12.

Secondly, It makes Chriſt's Words either an Equivocation or a Contradiction, when he ſaid unto the Jews, Before Abraham was I am; ſince it makes him that was before Abraham, and him that ſaid ſo, not the ſame Perſon or Being rather.

Thirdly, Becauſe χριστὸς, or Anointed, hath a Relation to his being King, Prieſt, and Prophet, which are both of a more Spiritual Nature and Dignity, than the Fleſh Chriſt took of the Seed of Abraham; for he was made the High Prieſt of the ſecond Covenant, was without beginning of Days or End of Life.

Fourthly, Becauſe Chriſt himſelf magnifieth the Spirit above the Fleſh; They look not farther than his Body, or Fleſh as it was viſible to the World, and he appointed them to look farther, yea, to his Fleſh and Blood Spiritually, which is Meat indeed, and Drink indeed, being that living Bread which came down from Heaven, that who eats thereof ſhall live for ever, John 6. 48, to 58, and 63. And thoſe that ſee not through and beyond that viſible Body or Fleſh, which was the Vail which the Eternal Word took to tranſact and repreſent as in a common Perſon, that which every Child of God ought meaſurably to witneſs in his own Particular, unto the beholding and partaking of the Divine Wiſdom, Power and Righteouſneſs that dwelt therein, which are Meat indeed and Drink indeed unto every hungry and thirſty Soul, they are not yet come to the Chief Corner-Stone that is Elect and Precious, but are carnal, not knowing the Scriptures nor the Power of God, Matt. 22. 29.

Fifthly, Chriſt Jeſus laid far more Weight upon the Coming of the Comforter, or himſelf, in his ſecond and ſpiritual Appearance in them, among whom he bodily converſed, than upon the Continuance of his bodily Preſence, John 16. 7. intimating that he intended a more ſpiritual Communion with them, they in him, and he in them, even as he was in his Father, and his Father in him, Chap. 17. 21, 23, a Fellowſhip beyond what they had already known, how could it otherwiſe have been expedient as the Text expreſſeth it, if the Change from his viſible to inviſible Preſence, had not been both more glorious and advantagious: His Diſciples believed him for the Words he ſpoke, Chap. 16. 30. But Ver. 31, 32, Jeſus anſwered them, Do you now believe? Behold, the Hour cometh, yea, is now come, that that ye ſhall be ſcattered every Man to his own; as much as if he had ſaid, You ſhall then know me, and believe in me upon a more clear and certain Ground, when you ſhall have received thus of my Fulneſs, and Grace for Grace, John 1. 16. and be ſcattered to it, which is hard to be done while I ſtay in this Capacity among you; therefore it is expedient that I go away, as to my bodily Preſence, John 16. 7. (on which you have ſuch great Dependence) but I, (Chriſt) will not leave you Comfortleſs, I will come a Comforter unto you, Chap. 14. 3, 18, 19, 20. For lo I am with you always, even to the End of the World, Matt. 28. 20. this is the Chriſt of God.

Sixthly, Becauſe the Apoſtle Paul deſired not, thenceforth to know Chriſt after the Fleſh, but ſpiritually, as he was the Son of God revealed in himſelf, 2 Cor. 5. 16. Gal. 1. 15, 16. And as the Apoſtle counted all other Knowledge Droſs and Dung to that of the Glory of God in the Face of Jeſus Chriſt revealed in him; ſo was he not contented that the Galatians ſhould reſt in a fleſhly Knowledge of Jeſus Chriſt, but travelled in Birth with them (like a faithful Witneſs of the inward Work of God) a ſecond Time until Chriſt was formed in them, Gal. 4. 19. who doubtleſs was the true Chriſt.

Seventhly, Becauſe that Fleſh of Chriſt is called a Vail, but he himſelf is within the Vail, which is the Holy of Holies, whereinto Chriſt Jeſus our High Prieſt hath entred, Hebr. 10. 20, 21. And as he deſcended into, and paſs'd through a Suffering State in his fleſhly Appearance, and returned into that State of Immortality and Eternal Life and Glory from whence he humbled himſelf, which was and is the Holy of Holies (then obſcur'd or hid by his Fleſh or Body within the Vail) while in the World) ſo muſt all know a Death to their Fleſhly Ways and Religions, yea their Knowledge of Chriſt himſelf after the Fleſh, or they ſtick in the Vail, and never enter into the Holy of Holies, nor come to know him in any Spiritual Relation, as their High and Holy Prieſt that abides therein.

Eighthly, Becauſe that Chriſt lives and dwells in the Hearts of his Children, John 14. 23. Chap. 15. 5. Chap. 17. 21. Coloſ. 1. 27. which cannot be ſaid of the Outward Body of Chriſt.

Therefore I cannot by any Means believe that the meer viſible Fleſh and Body conſtitutes Chriſt; though I ſhall confeſs, that reſpecting the Adminiſtration, and the Service of that Holy Body (fitted and qualified of God as an Inſtrument to uſher, introduce and bring it forth into the World) it may very well have attributed to it the Name Chriſt, being ſo nearly related; But rather that Divine Nature, Wiſdom, Power, Righteouſneſs, Grace and Truth, of which he is the Fulneſs, (whoſe tranſcending Glory was vailed by that Body of Fleſh he wore, and was only let forth in that Day as any were capable of beholding and receiving it) which dwelt therein. And thoſe who at this Day do feed upon the Hiſtory of the Bodily Appearance (yet honourable in it's Place) and know not a Breaking through the Vail, by witneſſing a Meaſure of the ſame Divine Wiſdom, Power, Righteouſneſs, Grace and Truth revealed and born forth in themſelves, they are but carnal and fleſhly Chriſtians, being unacquainted with the Formation of the Chriſt of God in themſelves, which is the opening of the Myſtery of Chriſt, God manifeſted in the Fleſh, and Chriſt abiding the Hope of Glory in the Souls of his People.

This diſtinction, friendly Reader, of Chriſt and his Body, is very unpleaſant to me; but I am thruſt into it by the loud Clamours of our Adverſary againſt us, and as too ſhort, he wreſts our Words ſo as to rebuke his fond Abſurdities, I hope ſufficiently detected, and which was more in my Eye, and indeed lay hardeſt upon my Spirit, to oppoſe and defeat his Carnal Objections againſt the Glorious Chriſt of God; for, by his vehement Out-cries at us, as Perſons denying the Chriſt of God, becauſe we rather chuſe to call that Body that was prepared of God, the Body of Chriſt, than Chriſt himſelf, to beat People off at once from hearkening after our Doctrine of the ſpiritual Second Coming of Chriſt into the Souls of Men; for if his Doctrine be true, Chriſt doth not really dwell in his Children; thereby depriving the Children of Men from the moſt Heavenly Enjoyment and Privilege God hath laid up for them that Fear him: For I am bold to affirm, and that in the Name of the only True and Wiſe God, The True Church is become Chriſt's Body, and he (the Divine Wiſdom, Power, and Righteouſneſs) lives, reigns, and puts forth himſelf in and by her; and that all thoſe who come not thus to experience the Chriſt of God to dwell in them, their King, Prophet and High Prieſt, (who is without Beginning of Days and End of Life) they are ignorant of God's Chriſt, do ſtick in the Vail, and know not any Entrance into the Holy of Holies, where the Divine Unction from the High Prieſt is received, and the Bleſſed, Holy, Spiritual Fellowſhip of the Goſpel is witneſſed; for which Glorious Diſpenſation we contend through all Difficulties, making it our Buſineſs to promote it in the World; and though it be now but as a Cloud of a Span long, yet it ſhall ſpread and cover the Heavens, from whence the Inhabitants of the Earth ſhall receive Refreſhment, being bedewed and covered with the Virtue and Righteouſneſs thereof, for want of which the World is as a Wilderneſs, being over-run with all Manner of Impiety under a ſpecious Shew of Religion, making up that Whore of Babylon and Mother of Harlots, and City filled with all Sorts of Abomination, againſt which the Wrath of God is now, and will yet be more and more revealed. O! Compaſſion to the Souls of Men, our Brethren in the Fleſh, opens our Mouths with frequent Cries, that they would come out of her, leſt they be Partakers of her Plagues; for, knowing the Terrors of the Lord, we therefore perſwade them to a diligent Search after the one Thing neceſſary, which ſhall never be taken from them, I mean, the Teſtimony of Jeſus in themſelves, that they are his by the Waſhing of Regeneration: For with great Sorrow I write it, God knows; Unſpeakable and Irreparable is the Loſs Multitudes have ſuſtained by ſuch Carnal Conceits, as their Preachers through Blindneſs have begot a Belief in them of, and a Zeal for, as ſufficient to Salvation, to the ſuſpecting and open decrying under the hateful Names of Error, Hereſy and Blaſphemy, the very Soul or Subſtance of True Chriſtian Religion, which only brings to the Inheritance of it.

For us, our Appeal is to God, and that Impartial Generation he is now bringing forth, who will have an Ear to hear, and a Palate to ſavour and taſte the Truth of this Ancient Myſtery, Chriſt in them the Hope of Glory, at what Time theſe Teſtimonies ſhall be of value, however diſ-regarded by the falſe Jew and Carnal Chriſtian of the preſent Age.

I will end my Part herein with our moſt ſolemn Confeſſion in the Holy Fear of God, That we believe in no other Lord Jeſus Chriſt than he who appeared to the Fathers of old at ſundry Times and in divers Manners, and in the Fulneſs of Time took Fleſh of the Seed of Abraham, and Stock of David, became Immanuel, God manifeſt in Fleſh, through which he converſed in the World, preached his Everlaſting Goſpel, and by his Divine Power gathered faithful Witneſſes; and when his Hour was come, was taken of cruel Men, his Body wickedly ſlain, which Life he gave to proclaim, upon Faith and Repentance, a general Ranſom to the World; the Third Day he roſe again, and afterwards appeared among his Diſciples, in whoſe View he was received up into Glory, but returned again, fulfilling thoſe Scriptures, He that is with you, ſhall be in you; I will not leave you comfortleſs, I will come to you again, and receive you unto my ſelf, John 14. 3, 17, 18. and that he did come and abide as really in them, and doth now in his Children by Meaſure, as without Meaſure in that Body prepared to perform the Will of God in; That he is their King, Prophet and High Prieſt, and intercedes and mediates on their Behalf, bringing in Everlaſting Righteouſneſs, Peace and Aſſurance for ever into all their Hearts and Conſciences; to whom be Everlaſting Honour and Dominion, Amen.

A few Teſtimonies in Defence of our Senſe.

B. Jewel's Sermon upon Joſ. 6. 1, 2, 3.

My firſt Teſtimony is out of that great Engliſh Author and worthy Man Bp. Jewel, who ſpeaking of what Chriſt was to the Jews in the Wilderneſs, ſays thus; 'Chriſt had not yet taken upon him a Natural Body, yet they did eat his 'Body; He had not yet ſhed his Blood, yet they drank his Blood. St. Paul ſaith, 'all did eat the ſame Spiritual Meat, that is, the Body of Chriſt: All did drink of 'the ſame Spiritual Drink, that is, the Blood of Chriſt; and that as Verily and truly as 'we do now; and whoſoever then did ſo eat lived for ever. I think a pregnant and apt Teſtimony to Chriſt's being the Chriſt of God before his Coming in the Fleſh. But this being the Language of a Biſhop, though more than an Hundred Years old, perhaps his Stomach will not digeſt it, and therefore let's hear what ſome conſiderable Separatiſts will tell us.

Joſhua Sprig. Teſt. to an Approaching Glory, p. 80, 81, 86.

'I beſeech you, therefore, be not offended, when, as we ſay, That Chriſt, ac'cording to the Hiſtory of him, only, and according to his Miniſtration in the

'Fleſh, is but a Form, in which God doth appear to us; and in which God doth give us a Map of Salvation; Thou knoweſt it not to be thy real Salvation, except it be revealed in thee by the Spirit —— A Map ſerves until a Man knows the Country —— There is Chriſt in the Fleſh and Chriſt in the Spirit; Chriſt in the Fleſh is the Witneſs, the common Perſon in whom our Salvation is tranſacted as in a Figure; Chriſt in the Spirit, is the real Truth and Principle of Righteouſneſs, and of Life; he is the real Salvation within us. Again, in his Preface, he ſaith, That in that Degree that the Spiritual Adminiſtration takes Place, the Fleſhly Adminiſtration gives place; in that Meaſure that Chriſt's Second Appearance draws on us, we are drawn from under his firſt Appearance.

Thus far Joſhua Sprig, whoſe Book was licenſed, as we have formerly ſaid, by Joſeph Caryl, a reverend Miniſter among the Independents.

C. Goad's Laſt Teſtimony, p. 76, 77.

'Deſtroy the Vail, and deſtroy Death; the taking away of the Vail is the taking away of Death; Death, upon a true Account, is nothing but a Vail upon God who is our Life, even Chriſt's Fleſh was a Vail. Ordinances are Vails. If God be our Life, the leſs we are in theſe Things, the more we are in Life.

T. Collier's Diſcovery of the New Creation, Page 399.

'We have had very narrow Apprehenſions of Chriſt, and the Manifeſtation of the Glory of Chriſt, limiting it to the one Man, when the Truth is, that Chriſt and all the Saints make up but one Chriſt, 1 Cor. 12. 12. And God as truly manifeſteth himſelf in the Fleſh of all his, as he did in Chriſt, although the Meaſure of that Manifeſtation is different.

What ſays J. Faldo to theſe Things? Are not we out-done in our Expreſſions by profeſt Miniſters, and thoſe of the Independent and Baptiſt Way? Shall we be ſtiled Blaſphemers, that more modeſtly utter our Belief, whilſt theſe Men, notwithſtanding, paſs for Orthodox? I hope J. Faldo has more Reverence for J. Caryl, than to queſtion his Judgment in the Licenſe of the firſt; and not ſo little Reſpect for the two laſt, as to cry out Hereſy, Blaſphemy, &c.

CHAP. X.

Three Scriptures reſcued from the Falſe Gloſſes of our Adverſary; John 1. 9. Rom. 10. 3. 2 Pet. 1. 19.

Chap. X.

OUR Adverſary employs his 19th Chapter in Defence of his Expoſition of three Paſſages in Scripture againſt what I offered in my Anſwer to be the true Scope and Intendment of them; But what ſhall I ſay? So lamely doth he cite me, ſo conſtantly overlook me, that unleſs he had hoped to be believed, write what he would, or that what he writ would paſs for a Reply, whether it deſerved to be called ſo or no: I can ſee no Pretence for continuing the Controverſy; for either he grants what we ſay by contradicting himſelf, or ſays nothing to what we deny, that may ſtrictly merit our Notice. But let him ſpeak for himſelf.

Rep. p. 80. Upon my Expoſition of John 1. 9. That was the true Light, &c. W. P. makes an huge Brag of the Advantage I give his Cauſe; and thus he argues from my Words: If Chriſt made all Things, then Chriſt was before his Appearance, p. 168. and conſequently, Chriſt was and is the Word, which was with God, and is God, and the Light of Men, &c.

Rejoyn. If he ſaith nothing, as nothing he ſays to what he cites, blame not me, for I would have reported it: But whether I had any Advantage, or having it, bragged of it, will be beſt ſeen by giving my Anſwer as it lay.

'If Chriſt be that Light, which is that Word which made all Things, and therefore God (as ſaith J. Faldo) then Chriſt was before his bodily Appearance, and conſequently our former Chapter is juſtified on our Part againſt his Notions of the Lord's Chriſt; but J. Faldo expreſly ſays, p. 84, 85, as the Word is the Light of Men, ſo, or in that Manner, is Chriſt the Light of Men; nay, he calls it, Chriſt appearing in the Fleſh, conſequently, Chriſt was before he took that Fleſh, or appeared in that Body (not to conſtitute him or make him Chriſt, but to tranſact, work, declare and bring to paſs by and through it, as a peculiar Veſſel, ‘ and prepared holy Inſtrument) therefore Chriſt was and is that Word which was with God, and is God, and the Light of Men.

This was my Argument grounded upon his Conceſſions; What Advantage it is to our Cauſe, let it anſwer for it ſelf; what Brag I made I know not, unleſs it was my calling his Acknowledgments a Juſtification of our foregoing Chapter. I leave the Meaning of his Silence to my Reader, and inſert his Reply to another Part of my Anſwer, which was this: ‘ And leſt we ſhould yet miſtake him, he calls it ‘ God manifeſted in the Fleſh; and that he might ſpeak all for us in a little, and ‘ give the Death's Wound to his own Cauſe, he tells us in ſo many Words, That ‘ the Salvation and Life Eternal of poor Sinners was wrapt up in Chriſt as God. Mark his Reply.

Rep. p. 80. Yea, and as Man too; yet as this excludes not his Divinity as neceſſary to our Salvation; neither doth his Divinity exclude his Humanity as neceſſary.

Rejoyn. Theſe Words, Yea, and Man too, are added; but with this woful Impertinency, that they wholly contradict his Saying, Salvation of poor Sinners was wrapt up in Chriſt as God; for they imply a Denial of Man's Salvation, being wrapt up in Chriſt as Man; and that this was his Meaning, take his own Words, as they lie in his own Book, Part 2, Pag. 85.

And this I take to be the Import of the 4*th Ver.* (John 1.) In him was Life and the Life was the Light of Men, That is, the Salvation and Life Eternal of poor Sinners was wrapt up in Chriſt as God, who being ſo qualify'd was capable of working in it.

I ſay again, and all reaſonable Men muſt acknowledge, I did not wrong his Meaning, but gave his Senſe and not mine: To be ſure, there are no ſuch Words as theſe, yea and as Man too, which is juſt as if I ſhould ſay, The Underſtanding of a Man is wrapt up in him, as he is a reaſonable Creature, and being charged with a Self-Contradiction, ſhould abſurdly add, yea, and as an Animal too, There needs no Pointing at ſo much palpable Weakneſs.

His other Words about the Divinity's not excluding the Manhood of Chriſt as neceſſary to Salvation, is no Part of the Queſtion, but a meer Go-by or Slip to the Buſineſs; for all was neceſſary that God thought neceſſary, that is, inſtrumentally: But will it therefore follow that the Salvation and Life-Eternal of poor Sinners was wrapt up in Inſtruments?

But let us ſee what he ſays at the Defence I made for my rendring of the Word φωτίζει enlightned in my Book entituled, The Spirit of Truth Vindicated. Hear him.

Rep. p. 81. I know not any Cauſe he hath to think me ſtumbled at his rendring φωτίζει, enlightned, unleſs for rebuking him for waſting ſo many Pages in quoting Authorities for that which would be granted eaſily.

Rejoyn. He and his Friend H. H. are the more to be blamed that they put me to ſo much Expence, to make good what at leaſt he intended to grant me; but his eaſy granting is of thoſe Things that are too hard to be kept; however I accept his Acknowledgment, as alſo of his Silence to what I writ in Defence of our Underſtanding the following Words (ſo much controverted by ſome) Every Man coming into the World: However, there is one Paſſage that muſt not ſlip: It is this:

Rep. p. 81. The laſt Part of my Expoſition, viz. That the That was the true Light points at Chriſt's Appearance in the Fleſh, I added, in his State of Humiliation, This ſaith W. P. p. 178, ſtints Chriſt to that Appearance, denies Chriſt now to be that true Light that enlightens all, and he might as well infer, that becauſe the Word was with God and was God, therefore he is not now with God or God. But to blaſt all in a Breath, ſays he, Is this your Tertullus? I would have Mr. Penn more ſolid and pertinent, or leave his ſcribling Humour, which at this Rate is fit to write to none but thoſe that can find Refreſhment by a Dutch Woman*'s Babbling, (though underſtanding not one Syllable) upon the Conceit it comes all from the Spirit.*

Chriſt was the Eternal Light before John teſtified of him. See a Book called, Annotations of certain learned Divines, in the Year 1645, on Joh. 1. v. 9.

Rejoyn. Whether my Anſwer or his Reply be more ſolid and pertinent, I ſhall leave with my Readers to judge. O how ready are Men to condemn in others what they indulge in themſelves? It is ſtrange to me if my Adverſary be not guilty in cenſuring; But that hurts him more than me. I ſay again that his Drift was to unconcern, That was the true Light, in any other Time than Chriſt's Coming in the Fleſh; to which I oppoſed about a Page and an half, of which he hath reported not above four Lines, and thoſe not as they lay. Take it, Reader, briefly thus: ‘ If the Word that made all Things, which was with God and was God, ‘ was that true Light, as ſays J. Faldo himſelf, p. 84. then can it never be re ‘ ſtrained to that Appearance as the Beginning or End of it; nay the Evangeliſt ‘ is not yet come ſo much as to mention any thing of his Manifeſtation in Fleſh; ‘ and if we will believe John Faldo, the Verſe concerns the Word Creator and not ‘ Redeemer, which he ſtints to his coming in the Fleſh, ſee Page 89. But by his ‘ Interpretation that is not relative to his Appearance in the Fleſh, but to the ‘ Word, which was with God and was God, as p. 84. and ſo the Spaniſh Tranſlation ‘ hath it, That Word was the true Light, &c. ſo that either the Word was not be‑ ‘ fore that Appearance; or if it were, being that true Light, that true Light was ‘ before that Appearance. Therefore Mankind may very well be ſaid, to have al‑ ‘ ways been enlighten'd by that Light, for that the Word ſhould be before that ‘ Appearance, and that true Light, which is the very Life of the Word, or Word ‘ it ſelf, ſhould be ſtinted to that Appearance, is as abſurd as any thing well can ‘ be. Now, Reader, comes that Part which he cited, but more regularly; ‘ That ‘ we ſhould take That was the true Light, &c. to deny Chriſt now to be the true ‘ Light that enlightens all, becauſe he was ſo, is a ſtrange Impertinency and groſs ‘ Falſhood.

In Reply to all which next to what I have already tranſcribed, he ſays no more than this:

Reply, Page 82. W. P. ſhould have undertaken to prove that Chriſt was before that Time, and is now God manifeſt in Fleſh, as he was then, and to thoſe Ends.

Rejoyn. I did abundantly prove it in our Senſe, and nothing ſolid hath been offered to invalidate what I alledged; but let it ſuffice that he hath granted my Charge. Firſt, In denying Chriſt to have been either Chriſt or the true Light before that Time, a manifeſt Contradiction to himſelf, p. 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, of his firſt Book, ſecond Part. Next, He therefore denies, that Chriſt is now the true Light, becauſe, he is not at this Day God manifeſted in Fleſh in the ſame Manner as he was then, and thus much farther, that he was the true Light before that Appearance (Socinianiſm in the Abſtract) I do not ſay ſo in Diſgrace, but becauſe he pretends to diſown it. For his ſaying, I ſhould have undertaken to prove them is abſurd, unleſs I had denied them. This, with me, is Matter enough to impeach my Adverſary of blackeſt Sacrilege. I need add no more, nor no more will I add, than this, The Queſtion was not, whether we affirm Chriſt to be that Light by his viſible and bodily Appearance, Life, Doctrine, Miracles, Death, Reſurrection, &c. in this Day, which he was in that. But whether theſe Words that was the true Light, did not relate to the Life of the Word which was with God and was God (and conſequently if he did not enlighten Men) before he took Fleſh, in the Fleſh, and after his Reſurrection and Aſcenſion by his Eternal Power and Godhead, as the Great Sun of Righteouſneſs and Spiritual Luminary of the Inviſible and Intelligible World? Unto which his Words bear no Relation, unleſs it be any to deny the Queſtion.

In ſhort, I told him the very next Words to thoſe he cited, That ſhould we grant the Evangeliſt to refer to that Appearance, John 1. 9. yet it would conclude no Denial of Chriſt's being the true Light that enlightens every Man that cometh into the World both before and ſince that Appearance, becauſe it was the moſt eminent breaking forth of the Divine Light; which doubtleſs had been enough to ſatisfy any moderate or modeſt Man, but not ſatisfying him, I muſt infer as before, that his Diſpleaſure is againſt our believing Chriſt to have enlightned before, and ſince that viſible Coming, which if I underſtand any thing, is in ſo many Words to deny his Divinity.

The next Scripture by him expounded and by me reſcued, was Rom. 10. 3. The Word is nigh thee, &c. he doth but touch upon it, and gives ſo little of my Anſwer, that there is ſcarce Head or Tail to be made of his Paragraph. I will contract my Anſwer, and give his Reply.

He made the Word to be the written Laws, Statutes, and Commandments given by Moſes, his firſt Book, p. 94. I anſwered, ‘ It could not be ſo underſtood, for ‘ the Queſtion was not about them, but about the Commandment of Command‑ ‘ ments, and Word of Words, which he reſolves thus: Let none ſay, who ſhall ‘ aſcend, deſcend, or go beyond the Seas to fetch the Great Word and Commandment, ‘ but the Word is very nigh thee קרוב of קרב ſignifies the innermoſt Parts of Men, ‘ whereinto the outward Commandments could never come. Beſides, without ‘ the Word nigh in the Heart, there could be no Conviction upon the Conſcience, ‘ &c.

Rep.

1673:

Part II.
Chap. X.

Rep. p. 82, 83. W. P. puts to fetch the great Word and Commandment, in the Letter of the Text, as the very Words of Moſes, A Crime to be abhorred, yet frequent with him that pretends a ſacred Eſteem of the Scriptures. In few Words to anſwer all; Moſes ſaid of this Word, Verſe 12. It is not in Heaven, which may be ſaid of the Book of the Law, or written Word, but not of Chriſt the Word —alſo as I told him before, 'tis ſuch a Word as uſes to be in the Mouth, which is the Organ and Inſtrument of ſpeaking — the Greek Word for the Word is ῥῆμα, which is never to be underſtood of Chriſt; not λόγος, which is ſometimes intended of Chriſt the Word.

Rejoyn. This looks more like a Reply than any thing we have had a great while, yet that it only looks ſo, will lie on our Part to ſhow. Firſt, He charges me with Forgery; Let's ſee what it was. I ſaid, to fetch the Great Word or Commandment, and the Scripture ſays, to bring the Word or Commandment. Now I know no Difference betwixt fetching and bringing; 'tis true, I added Great, which if God's Word or Commandment be not, I did amiſs; If it be, he is an idle Caviller, fitter to kill Flies all Day with the fooliſh Emperor than to write Books of Religious Controverſie. It is called Commandment, Deut. 30. 11. and Word, Verſe 14.

But it is not in Heaven, therefore it is not Chriſt, ſays our Adverſary: I believe J. Faldo knew in his own Conſcience, that thoſe Words were ſpoken on Purpoſe to prevent the Excuſe of being without a Commandment, and that ſo nigh as their own Hearts or innermoſt Parts, and not to exclude the Word Heaven, but rather thus: The Word is not ſo in Heaven as that it is excluded your Conſciences, or that ye need to ſay, who ſhall go up to fetch it down, for it is in your Hearts to inſtruct you that you may do it, and reprove you if you do it not. God was never the leſs in Heaven for being nigh unto the Conſciences of the Athenians, which was Paul's Doctrine, Acts 17. 27, 28. for, ſays he, in the Name of one of their own Prophets, In him we live, move, and have our Being; for we are alſo of his Offſpring.

Eraſmus, in Deut. ſaith, non ſupra te ſed intra te eſt ſermo valdè, i. e. The Word is not above thee, but very within thee.

The Samaritan Copy hath it (not the Word, but) the Thing is in thee, according to the Hebrew Word דבר which is often ſo tranſlated.

Fagius, upon the Place in Deuter. thus: In Corde dicit, quia Legem cordibus Judæorum inſcripſerat Dominus priuſquam in Tabulis illis lapideis Decalogum inſculpſiſſet, i. e. In the Heart, ſaith he; becauſe the Lord had written the Law in the Hearts of the Jews, before he had graven the Decalogue in the Tables of Stones.

For it's being ſuch a Word as uſeth to be in the Mouth, I muſt tell him, that is ſuch a Word as uſeth to be in the Heart too; which he takes no Notice of in my Anſwer; and I am ſure it is not ſo impoſſible for the Eternal Word to expreſs it ſelf by the Mouth of a Man, and ſo may be ſaid to be in the Mouth, as it is for the Book of written Laws and Statutes to be in the Heart. Beſides, the Commandments are mention'd, Verſe 10. but this Commandment or Word, Verſes 11. 14. which cannot in good Senſe be called the ſame, but rather that Law, Word, or Commandment mention'd by the Apoſtle, Rom. 2. 14, 15. which he acknowledged, the good Gentiles both to have had written in their Hearts, and to have lived up to in good Meaſure; unleſs we can ſuppoſe that God hath been leſs propitious to the Jews than the Gentiles; I mean, that God gave the Gentiles an inward and the Jews only an outward Law. But ſuppoſe, what our Adverſary ſays of the Word in Deuteronomy to be true, he hath confounded himſelf in this, That he makes the Word, Rom. 10. 8. the ſame with the Word mentioned, Deut. 13, 14. The one is (as ſays J. F.) the Word of Jewiſh Statutes, among whom is the Hand-writing of Ordinances, the ceremonial and judicial (as well as moral) Law; The other is the Word of Faith, which blots out the Hand-writing of Ordinances, and ends the Ceremonial and Judicial Law: But becauſe theſe two Laws or Words cannot be one and the ſame, and yet that the Apoſtle alludes to the Word in Deuteronomy to be Chriſt himſelf; for if that be one with the Word of Faith the Apoſtle writes of to the Romans, then becauſe the Word of Faith, Rom. 10. 8. is Chriſt, the Word mentioned in Deuteronomy, muſt alſo be Chriſt; that they are one and the ſame Word the Apoſtle's Alluſion proves, and J. F. confeſſeth, and that the Word of Faith, Rom. 10. 8. is Chriſt, let the two foregoing Verſes of the Text be conſulted. But the Righteouſneſs of Faith ſpeaketh on this wiſe, Say not in thine

Heart, who ſhall aſcend into Heaven, that is, to bring Chriſt down from above, or who ſhall deſcend into the deep, that is, to bring up Chriſt again from the Dead; but what ſaith it, The Word is nigh thee, even in thy Mouth and in thy Heart, that is the Word of Faith which we preach, verſe 6, 7, 8. where nothing is more clear, than that the Word nigh in the Heart, is Chriſt the Word; for the Queſtion here is, how they ſhall get the Word. The Apoſtle anſwers it, though not under the Name of Chriſt, yet under a Name attributed to Chriſt; If our Adverſary count Chriſt and the Word of Faith two differing Things, by the ſame Reaſon may we ſay, that the Word in Deuteronomy, concerning which none needeth to aſk who ſhall go up into Heaven to bring it down, and the Word nigh are two Words; but if that Queſtion be needleſs, Who ſhall go up into Heaven to fetch it down unto us, ver. 12. be anſwered in ver. 14. viz. but the Word is very nigh unto thee, and conſequently, that it is but one Word or Commandment that is underſtood in the Queſtion and the Anſwer, then may we with good Reaſon conclude that Chriſt in the 6th and 7th Verſes, and the Word of Faith in the 8th Verſe are one and the ſame Thing under two Names, elſe there can be no Senſe or Coherence in the Apoſtle's Words; for what Anſwer is this? But what ſays it, The Word is nigh thee in thy Mouth and in thy Heart, that is the Word of Faith which we preach, to this Queſtion, Who ſhall aſcend to bring Chriſt down? Who ſhall deſcend to bring Chriſt up. If Chriſt and the Word of Faith are not Synonymous or equivalent Terms? The Queſtion the Apoſtle makes the Righteouſneſs of Faith to forbid, is about Chriſt's Abſence or Remoteneſs from the Heart; Say not in thy Heart, and it is anſwered and reſolved with the Nearneſs of the Word in the Heart, which could be no anſwer or Solution in caſe that Word was not Chriſt, or Chriſt that Word; for the Reaſon why the Righteouſneſs of Faith ſaith on this wiſe, Say not in thy Heart, who ſhall aſcend to fetch Chriſt down, implies, that he is not ſhut up in ſome remote Place, but that he is nigh, and needs no fetching; and if nigh, then not another from the Word nigh, which is the Anſwer to the Queſtion.

To make it yet plainer and detect my Adverſary, I will parallel the Caſe, Jacob being ancient, deſired to ſee Joſeph before he died; ſuppoſe him to have aſkt, how ſhall I do to ſee Joſeph? And that ſome-body anſwered, Do not ask how thou ſhalt ſee Joſeph, for thou ſeeſt Reuben; Tell me if this would be thought a fit Anſwer to Jacob's Queſtion; yet this muſt be the Caſe of thoſe who deny Chriſt and the Word to be one in this Place: But if ſome-body ſhould have ſaid to him, Do not ask who ſhall ſhow thee thy Son Joſeph, for the Ruler of all Egypt ſtandeth nigh thee: Gen. 45. 8.
Would not every Body think the Perſon meant Joſeph that was ſo. This is ſo plain to our Purpoſe that every common Underſtanding may diſcern the Reaſonableneſs of our Interpretation.

For the Greek being ῥῆμα, and not λόγος, it makes nothing againſt us, in that ῥῆμα hath the ſame Signification with λόγος, as Scapula informs us out of Plato. Plat. Pol. 1.

Clemens Alexandrinus Admon. ad Gent. on Iſa. 2. 3. הדבר־ומוה calls it the Word of the Lord λόγος οὐράνιος, γνήσιος ἀγωνιστὴς, ἐπὶ τοῦ παντὸς κόσμου θεάτρῳ στεφανούμενος i. e. the HEAVENLY WORD, the true Contender for Maſtery, crowned in the Theater of the whole World; and in his Strom. l. 2. ſpeaking of the ſame Place (Rom. 10.) ſaith, ὁ θεῖος λόγος κέκραγεν πάντας συλλέβδην καλῶν. The DIVINE WORD cries, calling all Men without Diſtinction, which muſt needs be Chriſt the Living Word of God.

Beſides, there is but one Word in the Hebrew דבר moſt commonly uſed to ſignify a Word; and though ῥῆμα & λόγος are two Words, yet they both are under this one Word in the Hebrew דבר as in E. Hutter's Tranſlation, John 1. 1. Rom. 10. 8. 2 Pet. 1. 19. But the Weakneſs of our Adverſary in this Particular muſt needs be obvious to all that conſider how poorly he begs the Queſtion, in ſaying that ῥῆμα doth not ſignifie Chriſt the Word, which is the Matter diſputed; he appeals to the uſe of the Word, which helps him not; for ſometimes ῥῆμα ſignifies as well Chriſt as λόγος and ſometimes λόγος doth not ſignify Chriſt as well as ῥῆμα; his Reply confeſſeth the latter, and the Text and Context of this Place, with J. F's Interpretation Rom 10. 8. make good the former, I do but herein make uſe of J. Faldo's own Rule, The Conſtruction of Words of various Significations is to be made as moſt ſuits with the Context, Rep. pag. 83. and ſo we leave him in this Particular.

The Third Scripture was, 2 Pet. 19. καὶ ἔχομεν βεβαιότερον τὸν προφητικὸν λόγον. This Scripture was effectually reſcued in my Anſwer from the ill uſe many have made thereof againſt us and the Truth; He ſays little, if any Thing, beſides meer Cavil, leaving the moſt conſiderable Part of the Defence of our Tranſlation of the Text behind him. After four Pages eſcaped, he begins with me thus.

Reply, Pag. 83. W. P. tells me, ‘ That though our Tranſlation hath it καὶ (alſo) ‘ yet it is commonly underſtood by δὲ (but) it ſignifies a Compariſon, Pag. 186. If ‘ J. F. hath but Greek and Honeſty enough, he muſt needs acknowledge that Po‘ſitives, Comparatives and Superlatives are uſed promiſucouſly in the Greek. This I ſhall ſhew is little to Purpoſe, except his Oſtentation, &c. If Stephanus, Paſtor, Schrevelius, Scapula and Leigh underſtand Greek, καὶ ſignifies And, Alſo, For and If, Although, and many more, yea, and very often But, and is an Adverſative Particle, καὶ οὐκ ἐγνώκατε αὐτὸν, John 8. 55. Yet or but ye have not known him.

Rejoyn. Oſtentation belongs (with Emptineſs) to this Reply; firſt, I never ſaid καὶ did ſignifie but in no Place, next, I only ſaid, it was commonly by our Adverſaries underſtood ſo here, and conſequently made an Adverſative Particle, contrary to the Nature of the Text, and all Tranſlations that I have ever ſeen or heard of: It had been to his Purpoſe if he had brought Stephanus, Paſtor, Schrevelius, Scapula and Leigh to prove that καὶ ought to be rendred But in this Text in order to make good his Adverſative Particle, thereby quarrelling the Tranſlation, and continuing a Compariſon not well conſiſtent with the Text. Again.

Reply, Pag. 83, 84. But that βεβαιότερον ſhould be rendred in the poſitive Degree, not comparative, W. P. produceth ſome Authorities. The Syriack and Ethiopick Verſions, which give him little Countenance by we have over and above a ſure Word.

Rejoyn. I told our Adverſary in my Anſwer, That if the Tranſlation were more ſure Word of Prophecy, we muſt either underſtand it of the Eternal Word, or conclude that the Writings of the Prophets were more ſure to the Apoſtles, than the Voice they heard from God himſelf in the Mount. I produced ſeveral Authorities (as he well ſaid) to exclude the Compariſon of more ſure; ſome he hath taken Notice of, as the Syriack and Ethiopick Verſions; but that they give little Countenance to my Attempt is vain and falſe, unleſs there be no difference between ſaying, We have over and above a ſure Word (which is but an additional Teſtimony) and We have a More ſure Word. The Caſe may be parallelled thus; I have alſo another Witneſs, which I deſire may be called and heard: Is there no Difference to be found here? Another ſure Witneſs, another more ſure Witneſs; Is not all Preference ſhut out of the firſt, and brought in by the laſt? J. Faldo muſt needs be guilty of great Ignorance or Immodeſty in this Particular.

Reply, Pag. 94. W. P. tells me, The French, German, Low-Dutch, Swediſh, have it in the poſitive (or ſure Word) but I not having his Polyglot Bible cannot eaſily examine them all, if he doth not wrong them.

Rejoyn. But if this great Linguiſt had it, he would find none of thoſe Languages in it; I know not what he means by examining them eaſily in it, without it; but he ſpoke more Truth than he is aware of; for if he will go to E. Hutter, he may find them without the Polyglot, though perhaps not eaſily, as he well ſays; for I ſcarcely think he maſters Twelve Languages. To conclude, This I will aſſure him, They all ſpeak for me, and I am ready to think they were tranſlated by as able Men as himſelf, at leaſt, let him and them diſpute that.

Reply, Pag. 84. He adds Eraſmus's Paraphraſe, and Beza's, both of whom he abuſes. Eraſmus renders it by firmiorem, Beza by firmiſſimum; the one a moſt firm, the other more firm; in the old Latine it is moſt ſure, in the new Latine more ſure, So D. Hammond, Arias Montanus, and Piſcator.

Rejoyn. This looks like ſomething, ſo do Bubbles; but they eaſily vaniſh. Eraſmus I quoted in his Paraphraſe, not in his Tranſlation; but J. Faldo after his old wont, obſerves not the Difference, but ſets Eraſmus againſt Eraſmus; or rather, to put the Trick upon me, would have Folks think, that Eraſmus's rendring it by firmiorem, was not in his Tranſlation, but Paraphraſe, which I quoted; for he is ſo far from allowing firmiorem, or more ſure to be the Word of the Prophets, according to the common Acceptation, at leaſt, that againſt which we object, that he expreſly ſays, ‘ If ſo be that the Prophets plain Oracles be in great Eſtimation ‘ among you, which Propheſie by Figurative Dark Shadows of Chriſt, of much ‘ more Gravity or Weight ought ſo evident a Declaration by the Father himſelf of ‘ the Son be; which turns the Text upſide down, as to the Vulgar Senſe of it. This I cited out of his Paraphraſe upon this Epiſtle, J. Faldo ſhuffles from the Paraphraſe to his bare Tranſlation, which he explains in his Note in Criticis Sacris thus; Verum Græcis mos eſt ſubinde comparativum pro poſitivo uſurpari: That is, ‘ It is the Cuſtom of the Greeks, ſometimes to uſe the Comparative for the Poſitive. And if he underſtands Latine he may know, that Senior is alſo uſed for Senex.

'Tis true, Beza tranſlates it firmiſſimum (moſt ſure) or very ſure) which alſo excludes Compariſon, as Ipſiſſimus (the very ſame he, not the moſt ſame he) If J. Faldo denies this, it will ſhow him ignorant in the Latine Tongue; for the Superlative or firmiſſimum exceeds the poſitive or firmum by valdè (very) as well as by maximè (moſt) However, had we nothing of this to urge, yet his own uſe of the Compariſon, as his Conceſſion to what I ſaid in my Anſwer, and Eraſmus and Beza confirmed there at large, gives us all we deſire; for he acknowledges, That the Writings of the Prophets are not MORE true in themſelves than any other Revelation of the Mind of God; but more certain, with reſpect to the Jews, who had a greater Eſteem for, and Teſtimony of the Writings of the Prophets to be of God, and not a Deluſion, than of Peter's Revelation: So that we ſee from J. Faldo himſelf the Scripture is not ſet above the Spirit, as the more ſure Word, the Thing promoted of old by our Enemies, and which we only oppoſe; for, I doubt not but the Scriptures were more ſure to the Jews than Chriſt himſelf, elſe they would never have thought to find Eternal Life in them, whilſt they neglected, yea, perſecuted him, which whether it was their Perfection or Imperfection ſo to do, I leave with the Judgment of my ſerious Reader; yet doth the poor Man vainly call this his defending theſe three Paſſages from my Corruption and the Quakers Service. May my Adverſaries always defend themſelves at this rate, and I ſhall never fear any loſs to the Cauſe; For what with his miſrendering of our Writings, unfair Quotations, plain Wreſtings, pitiful Evaſions, and at beſt weak Replies, never did Cauſe receive more Advantage at the Hand of an Enemy, than ours hath from J. Faldo.

I will give one Proof more before we leave this Chapter.

Rep. pag. 84. My Expoſition of Coloſſ. 1. 25. Chriſt in you, &c. (though the moſt oppoſite to the Quakers Chriſt within) W. P. hath not one Word of Anſwer to.

Rejoyn. I know not whether he means the Text, or his Expoſition to be moſt oppoſite to our Chriſt within. The Text is Coloſſ. 1. 27. not 25. and is thus, To whom God would make known what is the Riches of the Glory of the Myſtery among the Gentiles, which is Chriſt IN you the Hope of Glory: In which I find not one Word that oppoſeth Chriſt's Dwelling in his People; One would think our Adverſary ſpoke Ironically, or by Contraries, if he meant it of the Text; for it ſeems an impoſſible Thing to me, that a Text ſo plainly expreſſing Chriſt to be in Men, ſhould notwithſtanding prove Chriſt not to be in Men. If he underſtood it of his Expoſition, how can that truly expound the Text, which expounds it quite to another Senſe than it will bear? At leaſt, he ſhould call this a begging of the Queſtion. Let us hear what he offers.

Firſt Book, Part 2. p. 100, 101. For Chriſt to be in the Gentiles (rightly underſtood would be no ſuch hard Matter for the Gentiles to believe, as to believe ſuch a Glory to be attained by Faith in and Obedience to the Laws of a Man who dyed as a Malefactor, and that this Death of his ſhould reconcile God to Man with the Addition of ſuch a Purchaſe.

This Sort of Doctrine well becomes J. Faldo; I perceive I have not miſtaken him. What Carnaliſt in the World could have let drop a more pernicious Sentence to the Doctrine and Kingdom of Chriſt, than to render it more difficult to believe, and lay a greater Streſs upon the External, than the Internal Work of Chriſt. We muſt read the moſt weighty Scriptures backwards upon this Man's Principles: He hath helped us to a New Way of rendring the Text; not, this Myſtery among the Gentiles is Chriſt IN you the Hope of Glory; but this Myſtery among the Gentiles, is a Man who dyed as as a Malefactor, by His Death reconciled to God, &c. Behold your Expoſitor! I dare warrant this Comment will never trouble the next Collection of Criticks. At this Rate, the Lord-Lord-Cryer is highly privileged, and the Galatians had paſſed the moſt difficult Birth, before they had known Chriſt to be formed in them; Regeneration is a ſlight Thing, in Compariſon of the Knowledge of Chriſt after the Fleſh.

This Doctrine brings not Men to Chriſt in them the Hope of Glory, but inticeth them into the Vain Hope of the Hypocrite, which periſheth. The Hiſtory is made the greateſt Myſtery, and to believe the one Matter of greater Difficulty, than to experience the other. Beſides, Why ſhould his Dying as a Malefactor, render him unfit to be believed; ſince his Virtue was moſt Exemplary, his Miracles ſtupendious, his Doctrine Spiritual and Powerful, his whole Deportment amongſt the Jews

Innocent and Heavenly? Did not Tiberius himſelf move to the Roman Senate his being taken into the Number of their Gods, upon the Report of his mighty Works? 'Tis ſtrange that ſhould be reputed moſt Myſterious, which was the Introduction to the Myſtery; and thoſe Tranſactions counted moſt difficult, that were by the Divine Wiſdom of God ordained as ſo many facile Repreſentations of what was to be accompliſhed in Man. In ſhort, it is to leſſen, if not totally to exclude the True Myſtery of Godlineſs, which is Chriſt manifeſted in his Children, their Hope of Glory. But he proceeds thus:

The Man Chriſt that was Nailed on the Croſs, the Quakers do not believe to be in them; for the God-head of Chriſt, that is every-where, and every-where alike — He is in every Thing at all Times, and nothing can be void of his Preſence. So that if this be it you mean, the Saints have no more Privilege than any other Creature whatſoever.

The ſecond New and Living Man, who is the Lord from Heaven, the Quickening Spirit, the Anointed Saviour, whoſe Body was Nailed to the Croſs, we confeſs before Men to be the Chriſt; and do by Virtue and Authority of Scripture aſſert him to dwell in his Children; and we ſee nothing offered by J. Faldo, that can induce the weakeſt of us to deſert this Faith, having with the Teſtimony of Scripture, that of Chriſt in our ſelves: But let it be conſidered with what Confidence this Man excludeth Chriſt from the Souls of his People, as well with reſpect to his Godhead as Manhood; but if in any Senſe he may be ſaid to be in them as God, it is no more than He is in Cats and Dogs: O Irreverent, O Prophane Man! Are Beaſts and Birds as properly the Temples of the Living God, as ſanctified Men? How can God be ſaid to dwell and walk in his People, if ſo remote from them as J. Faldo repreſents him to be? The Apoſtle is much to be blamed, according to our Adverſary's Doctrine, for letting fall this Paſſage, I live, yet not I, but Chriſt liveth in me, Gal. 2. 20. The Upſhot of this Sort of Doctrine is downright Atheiſm; for as they that know not God from the Manifeſtation of God Within, are ignorant of him, if Rom. 1. 19, ſays true. So thoſe who teach that God is no more in his Saints than in any other Creature, endeavour to invalidate the moſt convincing Teſtimony Man can have of a Deity, and to principle Men for the Rankeſt Atheiſm that ever was: Yet ſuch a Sort of a Doctor J. Faldo is become, and of all other Texts in the Bible, from which to preach it, hath choſen this, Col. 1. 27. This Myſtery among the Gentiles, is Chriſt in you, the Hope of Glory, which indeed of all other doth moſt oppoſe and ſubvert it. Once more, and he hath done with us upon this Paſſage, for this Time.

— Chriſt is in his People by his Graces, wrought by His Spirit, which is His Image and Likeneſs — by the Manifeſtation of His Love and Glory, His Works and Image in and on the Soul — and do as effectually poſſeſs the Soul for Chriſt His Uſe and Intereſt, as a Faithful Friend can do, according to that Text, That Chriſt may dwell in your Hearts by Faith, Eph. 3. 17.

But I would fain know of J. Faldo, How Chriſt's Graces, Works and Image can be there, and Chriſt the Workman excluded? If Chriſt be not actually there, they can never actually be wrought there; for none can work them but Chriſt by His Spirit. In ſhort, either they may be wrought without Chriſt's Spirit, which J. Faldo diſallows; or Chriſt's Spirit may work them, and yet not be where it works them; or if the Spirit may be where it worketh them, yet Chriſt cannot be where it works them, and conſequently divided from his own Spirit, though indeed the Lord Chriſt is that Quickening Spirit, which only makes alive again to God, who is the Reſurrection and the Life. O the dreadful Darkneſs that yet over-ſpreads the Hearts of (called) Chriſtians! It may be as truly ſaid of them as it was of the Jews, The Vail is yet over them, and Chriſt Jeſus, the Anointed Saviour, is unknown to them by that Redemption, which he effectually worketh in all thoſe that hearken to his Voice, and are conformed to His Holy Government. They are Witneſſes of his Graces, Works and Image, through believing in his Appearance, and giving up (like the Clay in the Hand of the Potter) to be ordered and diſpoſed by him. Nor doth the Scripture he quotes, impugn the Real Preſence of Chriſt in His People; for, By Faith Chriſt dwelleth in the Hearts of His Children; that is, by believing in Chriſt, he cometh to live and dwell in us, who, through the Unbelief of Men, is ſhut out from being Head and Ruler in them. Our Adverſary would make Faith and Chriſt's Real Preſence incomparable or inconſiſtent, whereas the one cannot poſſibly be enjoyed without the other; Faith being as the opening of the Door of the Heart to receive Chriſt in, to be Lord and King; and if this be not J. Faldo's Faith, he is void of the Faith of God's Elect,

See Rom. 8. 9, 10, 11. where the Spirit of Chriſt and Chriſt are equivalently taken.

Elect, which purifieth the Heart, and gives to ſee God, according to Mat. 5. 8. Bleſſed are the Pure in Heart, for they ſhall ſee God. This Doctrine is the Overthrow of Chriſtianity, a turning back of the whole Stream of the New Covenant, a cutting off the Spiritual Union; for the Chriſtian Diſpenſation is IMMANUEL, God with us; the Word is not ſtinted to Chriſt as the Head, but concerns the Body alſo; and God is manifeſted meaſurably in his People, as he was in Fulneſs, by and through that Holy Body; nay, ſome Eminent Profeſſors have gone ſo far as to ſay, They make up but one χριστὸς, or Anointed; for the Oil runs from the Head to the lowermoſt Part of the Garment, which takes in all. It gives the Lye to Chriſt's own Words, who ſaid, He would come and receive them to himſelf, he would not leave them Orphans; which implies a Real Preſence.

TESTIMONIES.

Good Old Apoſtolical Ignatius, was not of J. Faldo's Mind, who in his Epiſtles produced, and endeavoured to be proved Genuine by Biſhop Uſher, Iſaac Voſſius, and Dr. Pearſon, ſays in that to the Epheſians, pag. 26. Πάντα οὖν ποιῶμεν ὧς αὐτοῦ εν ἡμῖν κατοικοῦντος, ἵνα ὦμεν αὐτοῦ ναοὶ καὶ αὐτὸς ᾖ ἐν ἡμῖν θεὸς ἡμῶν. i. e. Let us do all Things, he ſo dwelling in us, that we be His Temples, and He our God In us. Οἰκοφθόροι βασιλίαν θεοῦ οὐ κληρονομήσουσιν. The Corrupters of his Houſe ſhall not inherit the Kingdom of God.

Juſtin Martyr, Expoſ. Tid. p. 375. Βλέπετε πῶς τὴν οἰκοδομὴν τὴν ἐν χριστῷ διδασκῶν, δι' ἧς ναοὶ χριστοῦ γινόμεθα κατὰ τὸν γεγραμμένον, ήσω ἐν αὐτοις, καὶ ἐμπεριπατήσω, καὶ ἔσομαι αὐτῶν Θεός. i. e. See, ſaith he, how he (Paul) is teaching the Edification that is in Chriſt, whence we are the Temple of Chriſt, according to what is written, I will dwell in them, and walk in them, and I will be their God.

The Story of Richard Woodman in the Book of Martyrs, affordeth thus much to our Purpoſe in Anſwer to the Biſhop of Wincheſter: I believe verily that I have the Spirit of God —— No Man can believe aright without the Spirit of God —— It is impoſſible to believe in God, unleſs God Dwell in us.

C. Goad defends our Faith in theſe Words: The Goſpel is nothing elſe but the bringing forth of Chriſt In us: It calls us from Conformity to the World, and from walking as Men unto the Life of God, Right Spirit of Chriſt, pag. 17.

T. Collier, God is a Myſtery, Col. 22. and it is by the Appearance of God In Us, we come to know God, who is a Myſtery. The Truth is, that we have had, and ſtill have low and carnal Thoughts of God, judging him to be a God Afar off, and not a God nigh at Hand. This is that Antichriſt which denies Chriſt to be come in the Fleſh. See his Works, p. 399.—— Again, God who is in himſelf, and in the Son, not only by Union, but alſo by a Diſpenſation of Grace to Men, is likewiſe in the Saints, and that not as in the Creatures, or other Men, But He is in the Saints as He was in Chriſt. The Saints are Truly made Partakers of His Nature, hence called Chriſtians, they are Chriſted, and indeed, Chriſt and Chriſtians make but One Chriſt, One Anointed, One God fills them both. See his Works, pag. 241, 242.

J. Sprig in his Preface ſaith thus: Thoſe that know Chriſt in them only mediatione virtutis, not ſuppoſiti, know not ſo Full and Glorious a Proportion in him to their End. It is and muſt be confeſſed, that God is, and ſubſiſts otherwiſe in Himſelf than in Men; but this hinders not the Immediateneſs of his Preſence, and Dwelling in Men —— If you confine Chriſt's Dwelling to a Local Heaven, you are ignorant of that which is the greateſt Joy that can be; Chriſt dwells in the Heart. Sprig's Teſtimony, pag. 87.

Thus Martin Finch, who ſtiles himſelf, Preacher of the Goſpel, in his Little Treatiſe, entituled, Animadverſions upon Sir Henry Vane's Book, pag. 81. The Word of God abode and dwelt in them (1 John 2. 14.) If we take it for Chriſt, they had him (Chriſt) Abiding in them; and ſurely, they that abide in Chriſt, and have Chriſt abiding in them, they are True Saints.

Thus, Reader, we take Leave of this Chapter, and proceed to examine his next.

CHAP.

Part II. Chap. XI.

CHAP. XI.

That we are not Guilty of Idolatry, as charged by our Adverſary. True Worſhippers. The Charge inverted.

IN his former Book, he charged us with the Sin of Idolatry; his Argument lay thus, Thoſe who own and profeſs that to be God which is not God, are groſs Idolaters; But the Quakers do ſo, in profeſſing the Light Within, and the Soul of every Man to be God; therefore Idolaters. The Teſtimonies upon which he inſiſted, I faithfully and fully conſidered, in above Seven Pages of Sober Anſwer; he returns me about Three in Defence of his Charge, not giving above a Dozen Lines of what I writ, and thoſe made up of Scraps, rather contracting what he ſaid before, then making any ſubſtantial Reply to them: But however, I will be juſt to him. Thus he begins.

Rep. pag. 84, 85. To my Charge of Idolatry, he anſwers as one that intended to confirm, not confute it: His very Denials implying a large Grant of the Queſtion, p. 192, 193. We do for ever renounce any ſuch Principle, as that the Soul of Man, ſimply as ſuch, is the very Eſſence and Being of God. Then it is with him the very Eſſence or Being of God, though not becauſe it is the Soul of Man.

Rejoyn. No ſuch Matter; but it is plain how much the Man is upon the Catches. His Argument led me to ſuch an Anſwer, for he calls it, The Soul or Spirit of a Man, which is a Conſtitutive Part of a Man, pag. 114. I was therefore led by him to write in that Abſtract Senſe, which thus far makes for him (in caſe he can maintain his Charge) that the Idolatry would be the groſſer; Beſides, God is the Soul, or Life of the Soul, therefore there was a Neceſſity for ſuch a Diſtinction.

Rep. p. 85. W. P. pag. 193. We never did, do, nor ſhall aſſert the God that made Heaven or Earth, to be comprehenſible within the Soul of Man — ſo that when we ſay the Light is within any, we do not intend the whole Being of Light. All that W. P. denies here, is but God's being ſo in the Soul of Man, as that He is no where elſe, or nothing elſe, yet allowing the Soul and Light Within to be God Eſſential.

Rejoyn. It were heartily to be wiſhed, we had nothing but Ignorance to charge him with in this Paſſage; but methinks he would not have us to take him for a Man of ſo little Underſtanding, as he muſt needs have, that writes ſo much Falſhood, and does not know it.

Firſt, He hath dropt the moſt Subſtantial Part of my Anſwer in the Middle.

Secondly, Theſe Paſſages relate not to the Soul, but to the Light, upon Occaſion of a Place he cited out of G. Fox the Younger, therefore not applicable to the Soul, yet by him as well applied to the Soul as to the Light.

Thirdly, He ſays, All that I deny in thoſe Words, he quoted out of my Anſwer, is only God's being ſo in the Soul of Man, as that He is no where or nothing elſe, which if he had only ſaid it of the Light, it would be no Contradiction to my Principle or the Truth; for the Light is as well on the Earth as in the Heavens, and in my Chamber as in the Firmament, without any Error in Phyſicks, and ſo may God, whom in my Anſwer I called the Great Sun of Righteouſneſs, that cauſed his Spiritual Light to ariſe and ſhine into the Souls of Men, be God as well within as without the Soul; for where-ever Divine Light is, God is; and where God is, Divine Light is: Howbeit, we do not call the Manifeſtation of Light, God, though the Manifeſtation of God.

Fourthly, His ſaying, That I yet allow the Soul and Light within to be God Eſſential, is a down-right Falſhood, as with Reſpect to the Soul; it is nigh Two Pages before that I conſidered his Charge againſt us about the Soul; What ſhall I call then his thruſting of it in here, which cannot be concerned in the very Nature of the Anſwer? As thus appears, If the Soul be God, God is comprehended within the Soul, and is no where, or nothing elſe but Soul, and where the Soul is; An Abſurdity, yea, a Blaſphemy, never rightly to be inferred from any Thing I ever ſaid or writ, thus ſcandalouſly flung upon my Anſwer by J. Faldo, for want of a better Reply; I cannot think that ever Man adventured (under his Pretences of Religion) ſo knowingly to pervert, wreſt, and miſapply Men's Words about Doctrines of the greateſt Importance. This ſhows he values Credit more than Conſcience, who undertakes to faſten a Blaſphemous Conſequence untruly on my Words, leſt he ſhould be thought to have charged us beyond what he could prove; but his Weakneſs neſs bewrays his Malice: For if the Soul may be God, and yet I deny that God may be nothing elſe (his very Words in my Name) then may the Soul be God, and God the Soul, and yet God ſomething elſe, and that ſomething elſe God. When or where did I ever give Occaſion for ſuch Blaſphemous Gibberiſh? Yet this is the Reſult of what he dares tell the World is my Meaning. I may ſay the ſame reſpecting Locality or Place; for what Man not ſtark Mad, would ſay the Soul is God, yet deny not but that God may be elſe-where, which J. Faldo alſo makes (though an expreſs Contradiction to his Wreſts) a Piece of my Meaning; for, unleſs God may be divided from God, where-ever he is, the Soul is, if the Soul be God; and ſo one Man is in another, and every Man Ubiquitary, or every where at the ſame Time.

Friendly Reader, none of this Blaſphemy and Nonſenſe belongeth to me, therefore I return it to the True Parent, to maintain it as he is able.

But he would have the World believe, that of Twenty Three Citations out of acknowledged Quakers, I did but nibble a little at Five of them. I think him not worth proving a L——, that have already ſo many Times done it upon unqueſtionable Ground in this Diſcourſe; beſides, I ſhould be neceſſitated to tranſcribe my whole Anſwer; but I beſeech this Kindneſs of the Reader, that he would not think his Time loſt in peruſing the 20th Chapter of my Anſwer, where he may ſee himſelf if I have only nibled, perhaps he will have a better Opinion of my Endeavours. I ſhall have Occaſion here to touch upon ſome of them, and no more, yet enough to ſhow my Adverſary's unfair Dealing.

Rep. To Fox Junior's, who calls the Light, The Eternal God which Created all Things. In his continued Diſcourſe (perſonating the Light) he calls it, The Light in you, me the Light in them; which P. would evade, by ſaying, I granted that in the Firſt Part Within Man was not mentioned.

Rejoyn. Had I ſaid no more than this, it might have paſt for an Evaſion; but to paſs over a Page and an Half of pertinent Anſwer to his Application of both Paſſages out of G. F. and then ſay I evaded them by urging his Grant, that Within Man was not mentioned in the firſt Paſſage, is to act the Shifter with a Witneſs; eſpecially when the little Part he quotes, was not ſaid by me concerning the laſt Paſſage, in which lay the Difficulty (to wit, Me the Light in them) but the firſt on which he very little inſiſted himſelf, viz. That the Light is the Eternal God, &c. This tranſpoſing of my Anſwer, and exchanging it, was not ingenuous. This, Reader, in ſhort, I offered as the Explanation of G. F's Expreſſion, and the Concluſion of a great deal more, too large to be recited, viz. “That He who is the Eternal Fountain of all Life, and Sun of Light, cauſeth His Light to viſit the Heart, and ſhine in the Conſciences of all Mankind, as well of ſuch as rebel againſt it, and ſcorn it, to reprove them, as of thoſe who receive it, and gladly ſubmit to it, to direct and juſtifie them; wherefore we utterly deny that the Manifeſtation in Man ſtrictly conſidered, Is the Moſt High God, but a Manifeſtation of God, and from God, by the In-ſhining of His Bleſſed Light; and we cannot be ſaid to worſhip the Manifeſtation, but that Eternal God (who is Light) that is thereby manifeſted, pag. 194.

The next Teſtimony brought by him, and examined by us, was out of E. Burrough's True Faith, &c. for Page he gave us none, neither then nor now; but ſuppoſing True Citation, a Thing moſt unuſual with him, I will ſet down his Words as they lye.

Rep. p. 85. The next W. P. brings off as clearly: “Every Man hath that which is One in Union with the Spirit of Chriſt, even as Good as the Spirit of Chriſt, according to his Meaſure, E. Burroughs. Can any Man, ſaith W. P. be ſo ſtupid as to think that E. B. ever intended the Soul of Man, that purely and ſimply conſtitutes him ſuch; for he is ſpeaking of that Univerſal Grace, Light, Spirit, which God hath given unto all, &c. His purely and ſimply conſtitutes, is pure Learned Nonſenſe. If what every Man hath, be as Good in Kind as the Spirit of Chriſt, which E. B. confeſſeth, it muſt be God and Chriſt.

Rejoyn. He ſhould either have paſt the Manner of my Expreſſion, or have corrected it better; but I had rather be guilty of Nonſenſe than horrible Perverſion, J. F's Crime; for he applies that to the meer Soul of Man which E. B. not only intended, but expreſſed of the Light of Chriſt Within Man. I will ſet down ſome of his Words, that it may be an indelible Brand upon J. F. a Notorious Abuſer of our Writings.

E. Burroughs in his Anſwer to J. Bunnion and this Paſſage [Heathens, Turks, Jews, Atheiſts have that that doth convince of Sin, yet are ſo far from having the Spirit of Chriſt in them, that they delight to ſerve their Luſt.] Thus expreſſeth himſelf. ‘ Do they ſerve Sin or Luſts becauſe Chriſt hath not given them Light to diſcover their Sin? or becauſe they hate the Light that is given them? Tell me, is not the Light or Spirit of Chriſt the only Thing that doth convince of Sin, Or doth any Thing convince of Sin contrary, or beſides, or without the Spirit of Chriſt? If nay, then it muſt needs be that it is from, or by, or ſomething of the Nature of the Spirit of Chriſt which is in the Heathens, E. B. argues and about five or ſix Lines lower thus concludes: ‘ Till thou proveſt the Light of Chriſt, which thou confeſſeſt every Man hath, to be contrary to the Spirit of Chriſt, I ſhall ſay, Every Man hath that which is one in union with and like the Spirit of Chriſt, even as good as the Spirit of Chriſt, according to it's Meaſure. Now let J. Faldo bluſh if he can. Certainly, Reader, greater Injuſtice could not well have been acted towards any Man's Writings, than he hath acted in this Particular; for what is clearer, than that the Soul is no farther concerned in E. B's Words, than that it ought to obey the Light and Spirit he writes of. I told him this before, as that Part of my Anſwer he hath tranſcribed into his Reply ſhows, to wit, that E. B. was ſpeaking of the Univerſal Grace, Light or Spirit which God hath given unto all, &c. of which he takes no Notice, but thinks an Epitome of his firſt Book of Accuſation and Wreſting Reply enough to my Anſwer. But which is yet baſer; he hath the Confidence for all this, to cry out againſt Shifting and Evaſion. But to make it yet plainer, I will ſet it down more diſtinctly.

E. B. Every Man hath that which is as good and like the Spirit of Chriſt.

J. F. Then every Man's Soul is as good and like the Spirit of Chriſt, which is God; therefore the Soul is God.

W. P. anſwers, E. B. underſtood it not of the Soul, but the Univerſal Grace, Light or Spirit, therefore no Proof.

J. F. If what every Man hath be as good in kind as the Spirit of God, which E. B. confeſſeth, it muſt be God and Chriſt.

W. P. That which E. B. confeſſeth is of the Light or Spirit, and not the Soul, therefore J. F's Charge is falſe.

Now Reader, what ſhall we call this but Petitio principii, a begging of the Queſtion, a repeating of his Perverſion, It is ſo, becauſe I will have it ſo, as much as if he ſhould ſay, I have charged them higher than any; more than that, I pretend to bring their own Books for Evidences. If I yield to have perverted them, my Credit is gone, my Books are deſpiſed, and which is worſt of all, my Gain is loſt. But to the next.

Reply, Pag. 86. That of Fox he deals treacherouſly in leaving out the Propoſition to which the Anſwer is made, and thereby it's Senſe alſo. F. brings in the Prieſt ſaying, It is an Expreſſion of a dark Mind to ſay, that God is not diſtinguiſhed from his Saints. To which he replies, He is a Reprobate and out of the Apoſtles Doctrine. What can be better proved? If God be not diſtinct from them, not only their Souls, but the Compoſition of the Saints, Souls and Bodies are God: But if this Paſſage do not prove P. a deſigned Deluder, none in the World will.

Rejoyn. The Subſtance of my Anſwer took in the Prieſt's Aſſertion, but that J. Faldo almoſt always takes Care to conceal. G. F. writ not like a Philoſopher, but an honeſt, plain, Chriſtian Man; Nor is it any Diſadvantage to our Cauſe, that either willingly or through Unſkilfulneſs he neglects them; for he meant by not being diſtinct, that they were not at a Diſtance in Point of Place, by Reaſon of the dwelling of God and Chriſt in his People; It is apparent G. F. intended no more by his Anſwer, which our Adverſary in his firſt Book gave in theſe Words. But God and Chriſt is in the Saints, and dwells in them, and he (the Prieſt) is a Reprobate, and out of the Apoſtles Doctrine. We ſee by this that the Queſtion was not, whether the Soul be God and Chriſt; but whether God and Chriſt are at a Diſtance from or dwell in the Saints, yea or nay? I leave it with my Reader's Conſcience, who hath ſhown himſelf the deſigned Deluder of us two.

Reply, W. P. tells me, p. 197. That Fiſher did not mean the Spirit of Man that is any Part of Man's Nature. whereas his very Words are, ‘ The Spirit of Man which concurs to the conſtituting Man in his primitive Perfection. I told him alſo that Fiſher allowed no Man in his degenerate Eſtate to have any Spirit at all as Conſtitutive of Man.

Rejoyn. 'Tis true, if he puts primitive Perfection to it; * for nothing can reduce Man to his primitive Perfection, but that Holy Spirit which he may be ſaid to have loſt (that is all, Intereſt in) by his Tranſgreſſion; but to ſay he told me that S. F. allowed no Man in his degenerate Eſtate to have any Spirit at all, as conſtitutive of Man meerly, is to tell his Reader an impious Falſhood twice over, and not to eſſay the enervating of one of thoſe Reaſons by me urged to prove it ſo: S. Fiſher's Words were briefly theſe: 'As to the Spirit of Man, which concurs to the conſtituting of Man in his Primitive Perfection, it is the Breath of Life which God breathed into his Soul—whereby he became a Soul, that did partake ſomething of God's own Life. This is that living Principle of the Divine Nature, which Man did before his Degeneration, and ſhall again after his Regeneration, partake of.

'I told him that S. Fiſher did never intend it of the Natural Soul of Man, but rather of the Divine Life of the Soul, without which the Soul is deſtitute of the Knowledge of the true and Living God, his own Words very plainly ſhow; for if S. Fiſher intended that Spirit which is the Divine Principle that Man did partake of before his Degeneration; certain and clear it is, that ſince Man did under that Degeneration partake of his own Soul, or elſe he could not have been a Man, S. Fiſher never meant the meer Soul of Man, but the Life of that Divine Principle which regenerates and renews the Soul unto a Life of Purity and Bleſſedneſs. Unto which and much more he affords me no other Reply than what I have already inſerted, to wit, I told him that Fiſher allowed no Man in his degenerate Eſtate to have any Spirit at all as conſtitutive of Man; as if his meer tell him were Convincement enough to his Reader, that S. Fiſher held all ſinful Men to have no Soul, and he knows the Conſequence; If no Souls, then no Puniſhment; for to be conſtituted a perfect Man to God, and a meer Man, is not one and the ſame Thing; neither can partaking of the Divine Life or Nature be ſo underſtood, as that the Soul is that Divine Life or Nature it ſelf; or that ſuch as partake not of it, have no Souls. Such Doctrine better becomes J. Faldo's Adventurous Abuſes than the Writings of that honeſt and Chriſtian Man.

He tells us of ſome other Quotations which I medled not with, particularly, that G. Fox in his Book called the Great Myſtery, &c: ſhould ſay, The Soul was Equal with God, that it was without beginning, infinite in it ſelf and a Part of God; for which he aſſigns us no Page in his Reply, in his firſt Book, the 16th; I have diligently peruſed it and find no ſuch Thing; however ſhould he have ever written theſe Words, I dare ſay for him, he underſtood no more by Equality than Unity; for God is greater than all; by Infinite no more than ſomething that is not finite, or which comes not to an End; and by the Soul's being without Beginning, and a Part of God, no other than that Divine Breath of Life, which is as the Soul or Life of the Soul, that came out from God, and therefore is of God; that Cauſe is much to be ſuſpected that props it ſelf with ſuch ſhallow Cavils; he obſerves no Nicety of Expreſſion in his Writings, and it is therefore diſingenuouſly done of any to make this ill Uſe of his plain and vulgar Phraſes.

But leſt all this ſhould fail, and he had Reaſon to ſuſpect it, he brings us out a Piece of a Letter, formerly written by Joſiah Coale (who lived and died a faithful Servant of God, and is now at Reſt with him) put into his Hands, I ſuppoſe, by his Gentleman, Pag. 94. as he received it at the Hand, I ſuppoſe, of ſome Vagabond-Quaker.
